MR. ZONEN: I'll lay the foundation.
Q. Did you see any of these records in the public forum at some subsequent time?
A. Yes. Every single sheet of paper that was ever created from my children, about my children or me from the DCFS people, was all over.

Q. All over where?

A. All over the world.

Q. On television?

A. On television. Internet. Every single place.

Q. How long after this interview was it that that happened?

A. Right after he was arrested.

Q. “He” being Mr. Jackson?

A. Michael. Mr. Jackson.

Q. How long did this interview go on after you turned off the tape-recording?

A. After I had turned off -- I used the rest room. Turned off the tape-recorder. And then I got extremely frightened, because I saw him still there with the CPS people. And that’s when he called me over.

And I went over there, the separate area out of the bedroom, and that’s when he had told me that he had placed another one -- the ladies are still distracted with my kids. And so that’s when he had talked to me and told me about that there was another one there. And I’m like, “Where?” I had been in the rest room. “Where.”

Q. Did he tell you?

A. No, he didn’t tell me where this one was at.

Q. Did he tell you whether it was open or hidden? Did he say anything about it?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whether or not there was a second one in that room?

A. No, I don’t know.

Q. To this day you don’t?

A. To this day I don’t know.

Q. Did Asaf finally leave and go outside?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Aja go outside?

A. Aja had left almost immediately. Aja and the baby.

Q. In what room did the interview finally take place?
A. It took place in the -- okay, the dining and the living room, it's combined. But it just looks like, you know --
Q. There is some conversation with you and the social worker that's on this tape; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Where did this conversation take place? Where was the tape-recorder during that conversation?
A. In the bedroom.
Q. So they were with you initially in the bedroom?
A. No, no, no. I'm sorry, I'm thinking about when the lady was talking to me by myself.

Q. Yes.
A. And I tried to tell her, and that's when Asaf popped up.
Q. Yes.
A. That part, when there's one person talking to me is -- towards the end is in Jay's bedroom.
Q. And that person came into the bedroom with you?
A. Yes, she came into the bedroom.
Q. Do you know who that person was, what her name was?
A. I don't remember her name, but I can -- I can tell you who -- who it is by the description.
Q. By the description?
A. Yes, I can.
Q. There were how many social workers there at the time?
A. Three.
Q. Did one appear to be a supervisor to you?
A. Yes, she -- Karen Walker.
Q. And the person who had the conversation with you that is picked up, was that Karen Walker or one of the others?
A. You could pick up Karen Walker in the beginning. But this one was not Karen Walker in the bedroom.

Q. All right. To the extent that this tape-recording goes on for approximately 19 minutes, does this tape-recording accurately capture the conversations?

A. Yes. And Asaf began taping when the CPS women walked in.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we would move to introduce into evidence Exhibit No. 810 with the representation that the transcript will be furnished within the day.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: How long did that interview go on with Child Protective Services or Department of Child Family Services?

A. Yeah, I couldn’t tell you, Mr. Zonen.

Q. At -- presumably this conversation ended at some point in time, did it not?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they make any representations to you, “they” being any of the social workers?

A. The three women?

Q. Yes.

A. They were just concerned about Mr. Jackson. They just didn’t want to be sued by Michael Jackson. They had not a single sheet of paper in front of them. They didn’t even take a single piece of note from me or my children.

Q. Do you know if they tape-recorded the conversation?

A. No, I don’t know.

Q. You didn’t see a tape-recording?

A. I didn’t see anything.

Q. They didn’t tell you they were tape-recording?

A. They didn’t tell me.

Q. None of them had notes that they were taking?

A. None of them had a single sheet of pad, notepad, pencil, pen, pulled out. All they kept telling me was that they didn’t want to be sued by Michael Jackson, over and over.

Remember I told you there was a difference of people? The one that had been brought out way, way -- her sole concern was my children. But in these, their sole concern was Michael Jackson.

Q. Did they ask any questions of your children in your presence?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Did they ask them if anything had happened to them when they were at Neverland?

A. Not really.

Q. What did they ask them?

A. It was just -- it was more of a -- of a pep talk.

Q. What did your children say to them in their presence?

A. They basically said happy things about Michael. And them being together.

Q. And did you do the same?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you tell them that he was a father figure to your children?

A. Yes, I did. Almost identical to the scripted video. But not as long. It was kind of like -- it was extremely short.

Q. All right. Presumably they left at some time after?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was still present among the ones that you’ve previously identified after the social workers left?

A. Aja, the baby, Asaf, me, the children, then Vinnie was there now. After the CPS women walked out.

Q. Excuse me. Did Asaf talk to you after the social workers left?

A. Yes. He was making sure that me and Aja had no private time. And he had told me, “Hold on. Vinnie wants to tell you something.” And he escorted Aja and the kids out to Aja’s car.

Q. Now, did Asaf in your presence retrieve the tape-recorder?

A. I think -- I remember him walking into the bedroom, but that's the -- because what happened was when -- after -- when the CPS women came, I ran into the bedroom and I put it back in the same place that he had placed it.

Q. All right. And did he then retrieve it?

A. Yes.

Q. And he retrieved it from the same place?

A. From the same place.

Q. All right. Did he make any effort to listen to it in your presence?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell him that you had stopped it?

A. No.

Q. Or attempted to stop it?

A. I -- yeah, I tried and -- but I did end up turning it off. Because I was pushing.

Q. Did he say anything to you at all about whether or not this tape had run the entire time? Did he make any inquiries of you?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Asaf at all following the moment when the social workers left?

A. Well, Vinnie was there now. And he told me that Vinnie had -- that Vinnie had to talk to me.

Q. All right.

A. While he escorted Aja and the children out to Aja's car.

Q. So there was no additional conversation?

A. No additional conversation. This is the best I can remember.

Q. With Asaf?

A. With Asaf. He told me that Vinnie had something to tell me.

Q. Did you then talk with Vinnie at that point?

A. Yes.

Q. What did Vinnie say to you?

A. That I had done -- that I had not done an adequate job on the video, and we were going to have to proceed with leaving out of the country.

Q. Is this the first time that anybody talked to you about your performance or the performance of the children in the rebuttal video?

A. Yes, it was Vinnie.

Q. And he said it wasn’t adequate?

A. That’s right.

Q. Did he give you any specifics as to what was not adequate in this interview?

A. Yeah, that I -- I was supposed to stick strictly to the script. I went out of -- the things I got in trouble for, because of God, the Child Welfare Services thing, and Gavin’s cancer.

Q. All right. Now, we have seen this video a couple times already.

A. Okay.

Q. Let’s go back. These are things that Vinnie specifically told you?

A. Yes.

Q. Let’s start with the first one. What did he say about references to God?

A. Okay. I was supposed to say that Michael healed Gavin.

Q. And did you not say that?

A. I did not say it exactly like they wanted me to. Instead I said -- Dieter had also presented to me to say, “Via God’s Grace,” because I was so, “No, it’s God who healed Gavin, not Michael healed Gavin. God did.” And so then I was supposed to say that sentence plus that, them.

Q. And what did he say about the other two issues that you had mentioned?

A. That I was supposed to make no issue -- see, the whole video, plus the outtakes, was also scripted. It wasn’t -- it wasn’t -- it was the -- the whole thing, from outtakes, to video filming, to everything, every single thing was part of the choreography.

Q. What did he say to you specifically, Vinnie? What did he say to you about the other two issues that you mentioned?

A. Well, I didn’t say about Gavin’s cancer, that’s why they repeatedly -- I wasn’t on target about that, what they wanted.

Q. What did he want you to say more about Gavin’s cancer?

A. Well, how they had scripted it.

Q. How was that? How was it different than what you actually said?

A. Well --

Q. Do you recall?

A. The best I can remember is that I said Gavin -- about -- I totally was not on script about Gavin’s cancer. I said from my heart.

Q. All right. And what was the third thing?

A. The Child Welfare Services, I was supposed to make no commentary about that at all. Zero.

Q. And you did?

A. And I did.

Q. Now, where did everybody go after this took place and the social workers were gone? Where did the kids end up going at that point?

A. Okay. The kids and Aja went to Neverland, and they were also being followed, and Aja don’t know she’s being followed.

Q. Just tell us where they went. They went back to Neverland?

A. Yes, they went to Neverland.

Q. Did they get any sleep that night at all?

A. The children?

Q. Yeah.

A. They must have slept about one hour. About one hour.

Q. Where?

A. At Jay’s.

Q. At Jay’s house before the workers got there?

A. Before the workers got there. And me? Zero.

Q. Did you have to wake them up?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. ZONEN: Excuse me.

Your Honor, I'd like to approach the witness, if I can, to show a couple of exhibits already shown to counsel, defense counsel.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: Before I do that, I need a stapler.

Q. I'd like to show you Exhibit No. 811. And then I'm going to show you 812. Let's start with 811 here.

A. Okay.

Q. 811 is a collection of four pieces of paper stapled together; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever seen any of those documents before?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Tell us what those documents are.

A. This is when we got off the car at Hamid's house, Vinnie had told me that I had to sign these releases. And this was part of it.

Q. Now, are these the releases, in fact, that were given to you?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you, in fact, sign that release?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And why did you do that?

A. Because this is all part of what they requested.

Q. All right.

A. In order -- in order for us not to leave the country and for my children to be let go and not have to deal with this anymore.

Q. Did you consult with an attorney before signing that release?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any discussions with Vicky Poderevski about that release?

A. No.

Q. Was there any other attorney that was brought to the -- to the -- to the house to --

A. No.
Q. Did you ever talk with Mark Geragos about that release?
A. No. I've never even spoke to Mark Geragos.
Q. Never had any conversation?
A. Zero conversation.
Q. Did you ever meet Mark Geragos?
A. Never.

Q. Did you have some discussion with either Vinnie or anybody else there about the nature of that release before signing it?
A. No.
Q. I'd like you to look at the next exhibit that's -- incidentally, before you turn back, there's four pages there.
A. Yes.
Q. Tell us how each of those pages differ from one another.
A. I -- I don't understand your question.
Q. All right. Is the -- are the signatures the same on each one?
A. Of -- no. They're all different, except Vinnie's. Vinnie's is the same on all of them.
Q. And whose are the other signatures? Is one of the signatures yours?
A. My three children and myself.
Q. Do you have a recollection of your three children actually signing those releases?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Were you present at the time?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Was anything explained to them at the time they signed it?
A. No.
Q. Did you encourage them to sign it?
A. No.

Q. Who was it who presented the releases to them?
A. Vinnie.
Q. And, in fact, Vinnie's signature is on each of them as well?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Do you recall if any of your children asked any questions about those releases before signing them?

A. They didn't.

Q. Did anybody talk to you about whether or not releases signed by a child would be legally binding?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Did anybody talk to you about the question of whether or not releases that are signed by a child -- wait till the question is asked.

A. Okay.

Q. That releases signed by a child would be legally binding? Did that discussion come up at all with Vinnie?

A. No.

Q. Or with anybody else?

A. No.

THE COURT: All right. We'll take our break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: All right. Counsel?

MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. We were looking at Exhibit 811, which I think you still have in front of you.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And are those accurate copies --

THE BAILIFF: Oh, microphone, please.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: We were looking initially at 811. Those are the four documents that are stapled together. And you've already testified as to what they were --

A. Yes.

Q. -- and when they were signed.

Are those accurate duplicates of the documents signed that evening by you and your three children?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: And, Your Honor, I would move to introduce 811 into evidence.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, prior to your signing it or even subsequent to your signing it, was there any subsequent conversation with Vinnie or anybody else about money that would be received?

A. No.

Q. Did you discuss with an attorney anything about money?

A. No.

Q. Did they offer you money?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask for money?

A. No.

Q. And I think that you had already said that that was not part of the conversation that you had with Vicky Podberesky.

A. Exactly.

Q. And did they offer you any other legal assistance, anybody else to talk --

MR. MESEREAU: Object to the word "they" as vague.

MR. ZONEN: I'll withdraw the question.

Q. Did Vinnie tell you about any other lawyers who might be available for you to discuss -- to talk about this release?

A. No.

Q. Was there ever any representation by them that they would pay you or your children for your participation in this video?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection to the word "them" as vague.

MR. ZONEN: I'll withdraw the question.

Q. Was there ever any representation by Vinnie that you would be paid for your participation in this video?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever request of Vinnie that you be paid for your participation in the video?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever have a discussion about being paid for this video with any employee of Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk with Michael Jackson about it?

A. No.

Q. Did you expect to be compensated for it?

A. No.

Q. Did you have a conversation prior to doing this video with Jay Jackson about whether or not you should be compensated for this video?

A. No.

Q. Did Jay Jackson have a conversation with you where he reviewed the content of a conversation he had with Frank?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware that he had had a conversation with Frank about this video?

A. No.

Q. Now, I'd like you to look at the other document that's right in front of you. It's No. 812. Have you seen that document before?

A. I’ve seen it per your investigation and over there at Neverland.

Q. Okay. When was the first time you saw that document?

A. I think the best I remember was in Neverland.

Q. And do you know who it was that showed that document to you?

A. It was Frank and Vinnie.

Q. Was that before the video was done?

A. No.

Q. It was after the video was done?

A. Yes.

Q. Did somebody hand that to you and ask you to sign it?

A. Yeah.

Q. All right. Who was that who handed it to you?

A. By this time my signing days were over.

Q. Tell us when that was, approximately.

A. That was in Neverland after -- after the Chris Carter thing.

Q. Okay. Now, the person -- I’m sorry, who was it again who handed that to you?

A. Frank and Vinnie.

Q. Were they both together at the time?

A. Sometimes together.

Q. But on the first occasion that you saw this document --

A. Frank.

Q. -- it was Frank?

Did you see that document on more than one occasion?

A. Wait. Best I remember. It could have been Vinnie. Vinnie or Frank. I don’t know.

Q. Take a moment. Take a moment.

A. Uh-huh. I think -- the best I can remember, I think -- yeah, the best I can remember was Vinnie, then Frank, then both. That’s the best I can remember.

Q. Let’s start with Vinnie, whether he was first or second. Do you remember what Vinnie specifically said to you about that document?
A. “Sign here.”
Q. Did he explain what it was?
A. No.
Q. Did he explain what it was for?
A. No.
Q. Did he give you any detail at all about that document or why he wanted you to sign it?
A. No.
Q. How about Frank? When he talked to you individually, what did he say about that document?
A. Nothing. Just, “Sign it.”
Q. Do you remember when this was relative to the video that you had already done?
A. After.

Q. Do you know approximately how long after?
A. No, I wouldn’t be able to tell you.
Q. Okay. Did Frank give you any direction as to why he wanted you to sign that document?
A. No.
Q. And when the two of them were together and spoke to you about that document, did either one of them, in the course of that conversation, say anything to you about why they wanted you to sign it?
A. No.
Q. All right. Now, the document that you have in front of you --
A. Yes.
Q. -- has your name preprinted; is that correct?
A. Uh --
Q. At the bottom of the page?
A. Oh, I see. Yeah. At the bottom.
Q. And was that how it was at the time that they had handed it to you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you, in fact, refuse to sign that document?
A. Yes.

Q. You never did?

A. Huh-uh.

Q. In the course of your --

A. I got in trouble for that.

Q. -- discussions with either Vinnie or Frank about your signing or not signing that document, did you make a demand for money?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask them for money?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell them why you didn’t want to sign the document?

A. Because my signing days were over. That’s it.

Q. What does that mean?

A. They had me sign a bunch of different things --

Q. Were there --

A. -- over the course of from Miami to this. I’m talking in total. And that’s it. You know, “Let me go. Let my kids go.” That’s all I wanted.

Q. All right. Ultimately you did not sign that document?

A. No.

Q. Did you see if there were similar copies of that document but with the names of your children?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Did they show them to your children at all?

A. I -- they may have. They may have. Because they had a period of time when they were alone with the children.

Q. Do you know from personal knowledge? In other words, did your children ever sign those documents in your presence?

A. In my presence, never.

Q. All right. Do you have any information, one way or the other, as to whether or not they ultimately signed that release on 812?

A. I don’t know about this release.

Q. Okay. Is that, in fact, an accurate copy of the release that was shown to you at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you shown that release on more than one occasion?

A. Yes.

Q. On how many separate occasions were you shown that release?

A. I wouldn’t be able to tell you, Mr. Zonen.

Q. Can you give us a sense of it?

A. No.

Q. Okay. More than once?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I would move to introduce 812 into evidence at this time.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

MR. ZONEN: Just one moment, Your Honor, please.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Miss Arvizo, I’m showing you No. 814 for identification. No. 814 for identification. I’d like to -- I’d like you to take a look at this, please. Take a moment and look at it.

A. Uh-huh. Okay.

Q. Is that a document you’ve seen before?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you see that before?

A. I think I seen this in -- I think I seen this in Neverland.

Q. Okay. Is that your handwriting?

A. No.

Q. Do you know whose handwriting it is?

A. This is Vinnie’s.

Q. Was that drafted in your presence?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. Turn the document over, if you would.

A. Oh, my God.

Q. Excuse me. Tell us what that is on the other side of the document.
A. It's the same one.
Q. In other words, it's --
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone, sir.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. We're back on.
Q. I've now asked you to turn this document over on the other side.
A. Yeah.
Q. And what is it on the other side?
A. It's the same one.
Q. It's the copy of exhibit number what?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm sorry, exhibit number what? Tell us what exhibit that is. I think it's 812. No?
A. Yes, 812.
Q. So the back side of the one that I just showed you which has Vinnie's handwriting --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is, in fact, a copy of 812?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it the one that has your name preprinted or one of the kid's?
A. It's mine, preprinted.
Q. Did Vinnie ever show you that document, the written one?
A. I don't -- I can't remember. I --
Q. Do you have a recollection of having seen it at some point in time?
A. Yes, I think so. At Neverland.
Q. Did you ever sign a handwritten document?
A. A handwritten document?
Q. Yes.

A. No.
Q. Is your signature on that document?
A. No, it isn't.
Q. But your name is on it?
A. But my name is on it.
Q. Does that appear to be some form of a model release?

A. It says, “This model release....”

Q. Was there ever a discussion between you and Vinnie or you and Frank about coming up with some kind of a release that was suitable for you?

A. No.

Q. The release that you’re holding in your hand right now, the printed form on the back of that page, that was presented to you before or after you did the video rebuttal?

A. After.

Q. You can go ahead and put those down.

A. Okay.

Q. Miss Arvizo, 812 that I showed you initially, the one that does not have something on the back --

A. Okay.

Q. -- is that, in fact, an accurate copy of the release that was given to you by both Vinnie and Frank?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: I’d move -- is 812 in evidence already?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: It is in evidence. Okay. Never mind.

MR. ZONEN: Tom, do you want to stipulate to this coming in?

MR. MESEREAU: No.

MR. ZONEN: Then I’ll lay the foundation. Excuse me.

Q. After the social workers left and your kids went back to Neverland, where did you go on that day?

A. Well, that began the process of getting the passports and visas. The first step was getting the birth certificates.

Q. All right. And did you, in fact, get birth certificates that day?

A. On that day was the application. And when I arrived there, I had to do -- they -- I had to write a little kind of paragraph stating that it was an emergency; that I had to get out -- something about out of the country. I don’t recall, but they wanted it fast enough.

Q. Did they say -- who is “they”?
A. Michael’s people.
Q. Well, somebody in particular had you write something?
A. Vinnie. And Frank over the phone. Frank never left our side, whether he was on the phone or in person.

Q. Vinnie asked you to write something that stated it was an emergency?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he tell you what that was for?
A. Well, that’s what -- the information that he had got, because he had asked the birth certificate people that he needed it immediately. And they had told him, “No, the only way we can do it, if there’s an emergency.” And so he had told me that to write it’s an emergency.
Q. Who was it who told you, “You’re going to Brazil now”?
A. Frank, Vinnie.
Q. What did you tell them in response to whether or not you wanted to go to Brazil?
A. They knew I didn’t want to go.
Q. Did you tell them that?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Tell us why you didn’t want to go.
A. I didn’t want to go because first, first and main reason, is Gavin’s doctor is here. He has to see an oncologist and a nephrologist. He depends on those doctors, first. And second, I waited a lifetime to find someone I could give a valentine to, and that was Jay.
Q. You didn’t want to leave that relationship?

A. No, I didn’t.
Q. Did you tell this to either Vinnie or Frank?
A. Yes.
Q. What did they say?
A. Well, the part about no, no going to Brazil.

Not the part about Jay.

Q. Did you talk to either Vinnie or Frank about medical issues?

A. Yes. I told him I couldn’t -- you know, I’m trying to negotiate for mine and my children’s freedom --

Q. Uh-huh.

A. -- by saying, you know, “Sorry, I can’t go,” you know. “The doctors are here.” And nope, still got to go.

Q. Okay. Why did you ultimately agree to go? I mean, why not just say, “I’m not going”?

A. Because of my parents’ life, my -- and Jay’s life.

Q. What does that mean, “your parents’ life” and “Jay’s life”?

A. Well --

Q. What did that have to do with going to Brazil?

A. That they were going to be killed.

Q. Who told you that?

A. Frank. Frank became the worst out of all of them.

Q. Did you have any additional conversations with either Dieter or Ronald?

A. No, the Germans are out of the picture. They’re no longer in the picture. Slowly -- there was a transition period where Ronald and Dieter were replaced by Frank and Vinnie. Frank and Vinnie took the spots of Ronald and Dieter. The Germans are out of the picture now.

Q. Did you tell them that you were going to go to Brazil?

A. No.

Q. Did you start doing things toward going to Brazil?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And you started to mention something about birth certificates.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, on this -- was it the same day as the interview that you had with the department -- with the social workers that you went and started gathering up materials?

A. Yes. Same day.
Q. What materials did you gather?
A. The only thing was the birth certificate application. They -- they assumed that we were going to get the application on the spot, and so --
MR. ZONEN: Counsel?
(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. ZONEN: Did you want these separate from the notebooks at the time we introduce them?
THE COURT: I'm sorry?
MR. ZONEN: I think I've made the decision already. I'll withdraw that question.
Q. I'm going to show you three items that are part of one exhibit. We will ultimately staple it together. At the moment it's three separate pages. And this exhibit number is No. 259. I'd like you to look at the three different pages. Do you know what this is?
A. Yes, this is an application for the birth certificate.
Q. All right. And have you seen these documents before?
A. Yeah. This is on -- when we did the application thing, when we had a paper.
Q. At the time you actually got the applications?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. And who were you with when you got those applications?
A. Vinnie, and the people that were following us. I always had a crew following us.

Q. There were others in a separate car?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who was in the separate car?

A. No, I never knew. And that was the scary part. Vinnie would always point them out to me.
Q. Go ahead and look at this document now, which is No. 259.
A. Yes.
Q. And are those, in fact, applications for each of you?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Whose signature is on those applications?
A. There’s no signature. Just printed.
Q. It’s just printed out?
A. Yes.
Q. Is any of that your handwriting?
A. Yes, it’s all my writing.
Q. And then each of the names are on here; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And each of the children’s names are on here?
A. Yes.
Q. Are those, in fact, accurate copies of those applications for birth certificates?
A. I feel they are.
Q. Do you remember where it was they were deposited?

A. In Norwalk. It’s by the 605 freeway.
Q. Okay. Now, the third document in here titled “The Registrar Recorder” --
A. Yes.
Q. -- does have a signature on it, does it not?
A. Yes.
Q. And whose signature is that?
A. That’s mine. This is that emergency thing.
Q. All right. And that you recall signing?
A. Yes. Yes.
Q. And the date on it is what, now?
A. The date on it is February 20th, the day of the CPS meeting. Afterwards.
MR. ZONEN: I would move to introduce into evidence Item No. 259.
MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach through here, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: If you would staple them together as one exhibit.

THE COURT: When you previously marked that exhibit, you meant it to have three pages when you prepared your notebook?

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

Q. Miss Arvizo, I’m going to show you now Exhibit No. 2-6-0. No. 2-6-0. 11 pages, separate. We will staple them together as one exhibit, No. 2-6-0.

I’d like you to turn through the pages of that exhibit, please. And when you’ve gone through each of the pages, let us know.

A. Read them?

Q. You don’t need to read it in its entirety.

A. Oh, okay.

Q. Just gain familiarity with them.

A. Okay.

Q. Have you seen these documents before?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I’m going to separate them now and I’m going to show you four specific pages on here of the documents.

A. Okay.

Q. Take a look at those four pages. Tell me what they are.

A. It says up here, “Application for U.S. Passport.”

Q. All right. Are these, in fact, four pages of applications for a passport for you and your children?

A. Yes. This isn’t my writing.

Q. All right. That’s my next question. Let’s begin with -- and perhaps what we can do is we can number these. This exhibit is 260. We’re going to number these four pages specifically 260-A, B, C and

D. And if I can have four tags for that. Well, let's do it as separate tags. 260-A, B, C and D. And then we'll distinguish them that way. Let's start with the --

THE COURT: Do you realize that exhibit is in, already admitted in its entirety?

MR. ZONEN: Would you prefer to distinguish these four pages from the other -- oh, it's already in evidence?

THE COURT: It's in evidence in its entirety.

MR. ZONEN: Can we just label it with a pen, then, those four pages on the outside of the vinyl cover, A, B, C and D? Can we do that?

THE COURT: All right. They have numbers within them, don't they?

MR. ZONEN: I --

THE COURT: 821 and 822?

MR. ZONEN: Do they?

THE COURT: They do in the book you gave me. That's in the bottom in the right-hand corner.

MR. ZONEN: Yes, they do.

THE COURT: Could you just reference those numbers?

MR. ZONEN: I sure can.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: I sure can. Let me just have a moment to make sure I have the right numbers.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the numbers that I'm looking at in the lower right-hand corner, mine are in red, is that what you have in your notebook?

THE COURT: They're not in red, but --

MR. ZONEN: Are those numbers Q-1, Q-2, Q-3 and Q-4?

THE COURT: No.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. That's my concern.

THE COURT: Go ahead the way you were going to do it. That's fine.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let's do it the way -- we're just going to take one, two, three and four, four documents. And let's start with the first one, and write -- on the vinyl on the lower left hand, just write “A,” the letter “A.” And this one is whose application, please?

A. This one is mine.

Q. All right. Is your signature on it?

A. Yes, my signature is on it.

Q. Is the content of the application your handwriting or your printing?

A. No, it isn’t.

Q. Do you know who filled this out?

A. Vinnie did.

Q. Did he fill it out in your presence?

A. No, he told me he did.

Q. And where was it that he had you sign it? Where were you? Not on the document. Where are you at the time he had you sign it?

A. I think it was when I was in the motel.

Q. And in this particular one, No. A, does this application have on it a destination?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. What is that destination?

A. The “Destination” says, “Countries to be visited: Italy, France.”

Q. Did anybody talk to you about going to Italy or France?

A. No. No.

Q. Did you notice that at the time that you signed that application --

A. No.

Q. -- that it said “Italy” or “France”?

A. No.

Q. Was there any discussion about going to someplace other than Brazil at the time that you signed that document?

A. No. Only Brazil at that time.

Q. All right. Now, let’s go to the next one and mark a “B” on the second one in the lower hand, on top of the vinyl. And whose picture is that, please?

A. That’s my daughter Davellin.

Q. On the first one, “A,” is your picture as well, is it not?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Do you know where those pictures were taken?

A. Yes. I think -- I don't know. I think I remember it's a Walgreen's. I think. I may be off. My best estimate is a Walgreen's.

Q. They took you there?

A. Yes, Vinnie.

Q. Vinnie took you there?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that a Walgreen's someplace near Neverland or someplace in Los Angeles?

A. Here. No, somewhere right here in Neverland. Here in Neverland, I think.

Q. Here in Santa Barbara County?

A. Yes, that's the best that I can remember.

Q. Again, the handwriting on this one, or the printing on this one, is that your daughter's printing?

A. No, it isn't.

Q. Is there a signature on there?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And whose signature is that?

A. I don't know if it's my daughter's signature. I don't know.

Q. Were you present at a time that that was handed to your daughter?

A. Yes.

Q. Does that appear to be your daughter's signature?

A. I wouldn't be able to tell you that.

Q. Okay. What's the destination on that particular application?

A. This one says, "Italy, France."

Q. All right. Move to the next one. And let's mark that one "C." Whose picture is that, please?

A. That's my son Gavin.

Q. All right. And the application handwriting is whose?

A. Vinnie.

Q. Is there a signature on that?

A. No, there isn’t, of his.
Q. So is there a signature at all?
A. That’s mine.
Q. Okay. And where it says on there “Gavin Anton Arvizo” --
A. That’s printing.
Q. It’s printed?
A. Yes.
Q. That’s your signature?
A. Yes.
Q. Gavin’s signature is nowhere on there?
A. No, it isn’t.
Q. Did you sign that at the time you signed the other one?
A. Yes.

Q. The destination on that is what again, please?
A. “Italy, France.”
Q. Move to the next one, please. And this would be “D.” Who is that?
A. That’s Star.
Q. The handwriting on that is whose, please?
A. The handwriting is my name.
Q. The handwriting is your name?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And the signature on that is whose?
A. It is mine.
Q. All right. Did Star sign that at all?
A. No.
Q. And the destination of that is what?
A. “Italy, France.”
Q. If you haven’t already labeled that as “D,” please go ahead and do that, lower left.
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, as to the collection of these documents, which I would ask to be bound together and admitted as No. 260, I believe already in evidence; is that correct?
THE COURT: That’s correct.
MR. ZONEN: Are any of these subsections, A, B, C or D, not yet in evidence?
THE COURT: No, the whole package is in.

MR. ZONEN: The whole package is in, all right.

May I approach through here?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Item No. 261, currently in evidence, I believe --

THE COURT: Correct.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: -- is a collection of one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine -- ten different pages. I'd like you to take a moment and just look through them to gain familiarity with each of them.

Have you seen any of these documents before?

A. Yes.

Q. I would like to show you specifically a couple pages in here.

Let's go ahead and mark each of these A through, on the vinyl as we did before, so we can distinguish one page from the other. Just mark "A" on the first page here, and then we're going to skip through it.

A. Okay.

Q. The second page we'll mark "B." Put it right there, if you can.

What is this, No. B, please?

A. It says, "Visa Application Form."

Q. All right. And is your picture on that?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there handwriting on that application or printing?

A. Printing.

Q. Is that your printing?

A. No.

Q. Did you not fill that out?

A. No.

Q. Is there a signature on there anywhere? Is that your signature?

A. No, it isn't my signature.

Q. Do you know whose signature it is?

A. It's Vinnie's.

Q. Is the signature in Vinnie’s name or is it in your name?
A. His name.
Q. But nowhere on there is your signature?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Now, the photograph that’s on there is, in fact, your photograph; is that right?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Do you remember where that photograph was taken?
A. No, I don’t.
Q. Does it list the names of your parents?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And are their names accurately listed on there?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. First, middle and last name as to both your parents?

A. That’s correct.
Q. Did you ever see this document prior to the grand jury?
A. This one?
Q. Yes.
A. I don’t remember that.
Q. I mean, did you see it -- did Vinnie ever show you that document?
A. Oh, no. Vinnie never showed me this.
Q. Were you aware at the time that there was an application process under way for visas to go to Brazil?
A. Yes.
Q. He had told you that?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he tell you anything about the applications that would go with it?
A. No. I was aware where Brazil was in the future.
Q. Let’s mark this -- let’s mark this next page 261-C. Do you know what that document is?
A. It says something “itinerary.”
Q. “For flights”?
A. Yes.

Q. Is your name on that document?
A. Yes.
Q. Where is your name?

A. It says, “Miss Janet Arvizo,” and it has a --
Q. Go ahead.
A. The address is 111520 Trent -- I guess it’s “CT.”
Q. Court?
A. Trent -- 111520 Trent Court, Calabasas, California 93102.
Q. Have you ever lived at such an address?
A. I never lived in such an address.
Q. Do you know whose address that is?
A. No, I don’t.
Q. Did you know the address for Hamid?
A. I think it was somewhere -- I heard something like San Fernando Valley.
Q. All right. Did anybody ever mention that particular address in your presence?
A. Never.
Q. Did anybody tell you that there was a flight itinerary to Brazil in effect?
A. No, not something like this.
Q. Is there a date on that in terms of the flight out?
A. Yeah.
Q. Can you read it?
A. Yes. It says up here, “Date, February 25th, 2003.”
Q. All right. The last one was 261-C. We’re now going to 261-D, if you’d write that in smaller print right there.

A. “D”?
Q. “261-D.”
A. Oh, “261-D.”
Q. Tell us what we’re looking at there.
A. We’re looking at my son Star.
Q. All right. That’s his photograph?
A. Yes.

Q. Taken at the same time and place as yours?
A. I figure so.
Q. The handwriting on that application is yours? The printing, rather?
A. The print, it’s not mine. It’s Vinnie’s.
Q. The signature at the bottom left?
A. Vinnie’s.
Q. It’s in his name? His signature, his name?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. That one is “D.” Let’s make this one 261-E. Tell us what that is.
A. This is my son Gavin.
Q. Is that the same application for a visa?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. It appears to be the same as the other two you’ve discussed so far?
A. Yes.
Q. Again, the same handwriting?

A. It’s printing.
Q. I’m sorry?
A. Printing, the same printing. Printing.
Q. And the signature on the lower left?
A. It is Vinnie’s.
Q. All right. That photograph of Gavin is the photograph that was taken at the same time as yours?
A. I figure so.
Q. Do you recall that?
A. I don’t remember. This set of pictures, I thought it was --
Q. Do you remember any other occasion that pictures were taken of you or your children for purposes of some official document?
A. No, I don’t remember the order.
Q. So this would be F, 261-F, if you could write that perhaps right here in small print.
A. Okay.
Q. Tell me what we’re looking at now.
A. We’re looking at my son Gavin’s birth certificate.
Q. All right. 261-G. And what is that document?

A. This is mine and my children’s child custody -- I don’t know what -- exactly what the title, but may I read this?

Q. Read the title.

A. Yes, sir. It says, “Child Custody and Visitation Order Attachment.”

Q. All right. Tell us what that is, to your understanding. What do you believe that document is?

A. Okay. To my understanding, this is something to do with the restraining order.

Q. Was there any discussion with either Vinnie or Frank about having to have a legal document?

A. Yes.

Q. And that attested to your custody of your children?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you believe that that’s what that document is?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Who is it who asked you to get that?

A. Vinnie and Frank.

Q. Did they explain to you why you needed such a thing?

A. For the -- the processing of the passports.

Q. Do you know where you got that document?

A. I think -- I don’t remember whether I had -- no, I did, I did. I think I -- yeah, because I always carried one with me all the time, the restraining order.

Q. Do you think that that came from your collection of materials from your restraining order?

A. Yes, yes, yes, yes. But you asked me from where, so I don’t know exactly where, but I always made it a point to have it with me.

Q. Why did you carry a copy of the restraining order --

A. Because if --

Q. Let me finish the question. Why did you carry a copy of the restraining order with you at all times?

A. Because of David.

Q. Okay. That’s 261-G you’re looking at. That’s the custody order. 261-H would be who, or what?

A. Oh. This is a birth certificate for my son Star.

Q. That’s 261-H.

A. H?

Q. Yes. 261-I is the next one. And what is that?

A. This one is a visa application form, and my daughter is on it.

Q. This is for Davellin?

A. This is for Davellin.

Q. All right. The printing on that form is whose printing?

A. This is Vinnie’s.

Q. All right. The signature on the bottom is whose?

A. Vinnie’s.

Q. The photograph in the document is whose?

A. It is Davellin, my daughter.

Q. And the photograph was current for that time; is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. That was a photograph of her at about that age?

A. Yes.

Q. J, which would be 261-J.

A. Okay.

Q. Tell me what that is.

A. This is a birth certificate for my daughter Davellin.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I’m not certain that 261 is in in its entirety or if at all. If not, I would move to introduce into evidence at this time 261.

THE COURT: 261 is in evidence.

MR. ZONEN: It’s in evidence.

Q. On the 20th and the 21st, do you remember where you stayed the night of the 20th; in other words, after you were with Vinnie gathering up the birth certificates?

A. For most of the part on the 20th, I stood in Jay’s apartment by myself.
Q. And then that night, did you spend the night in Jay’s apartment?
A. That’s what I’m talking about.

Q. Your children were where?
A. They were already in Neverland.
Q. The next day, did you meet up with Vinnie again?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall where you went on that next day, the 21st?
A. The next day, the best I can remember is Marc Schaffel’s house, and he -- and Vinnie picked upp the passport applications from his house. That’s the best I can remember.
MR. ZONEN: Could I approach the witness, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I’m going to show you No. 806. This is in a clear evidence bag which has a separate number of 1732. The court exhibit for identification, No. 806, pulling out the content.
A. And I’m being followed this whole entire time.
Q. That’s okay. Thank you.
Inside this exhibit are five pieces of paper. Would you take a look at those, please? Are those, in fact, duplicate copies of birth certificates --
A. Yes.
Q. -- of you and your children?
A. Yes. Those are originals.

Q. And the cover letter Affidavit to Amend Record?
A. Yes.
Q. County of Los Angeles?
A. Yes.

Q. And I’m handing you four items now. Take a look at those.

A. Finally. Finally.

Q. Well, just look at them one at a time and tell us what they are.

A. These are --

Q. Go ahead and look at all four first. What are they?

A. They’re my passports.

Q. Now, had you ever seen those documents before today, those passports?

A. No.

Q. All right. Is this what you understood to be the passports that they applied for at the time?

A. Yes. I had seen them when Vinnie was holding on to them --

Q. At some point in time --

A. -- in Neverland.

Q. Let’s go ahead and put these separate. I don’t know if 806 is not in evidence. I would move to move 806 into evidence at this time.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

THE WITNESS: These are the ones that Bill wrote for that I wanted.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: “Bill” is Bill Dickerman?

A. That’s right.

Q. You just looked at those four passports. And those four passports are of you and your children; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, did you mention that you had seen them at some time previous?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that that you saw them?

A. In Neverland.

Q. And do you remember when at Neverland it was?

A. Yes. Afterwards.

Q. And in whose possession were those passports?

A. Vinnie.

Q. How is it that you happened to see them in Vinnie’s possession?

A. Because he was rummaging through his like, I don’t know what. I don’t know. It kind of looks like a suitcase, but it’s not a suitcase. It’s a bag that you open up like this, and he was rummaging through the things. And that’s where I seen my passports. And I told him, “Could I have them?” And he said, “No.”

Q. How did you know that they were your passports?

A. Because he was rummaging through all these things, and then I happened to see them, and I said, “Is that my passports?” And he said, “Yes.”

Q. Okay. Did you see more than just the cover of them?

A. No, I -- just the cover.

Q. But you asked him if they were yours?

A. Yes.

Q. And he said?

A. He said, “Yes.”

Q. Did you ask to have them?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did he say?

A. He said, “No.”

Q. Did he say why he wasn’t giving them to you?

A. No, he just said, “No.”

Q. Now, at some later time, you retained an attorney by the name of Bill Dickerman?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. And did he request, by way of letter that was shown to you, to have these passports returned?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Were they, in fact, ever returned to you?

A. No, they were never returned to me.

Q. Prior to today?

A. Prior to today.

Q. Have you ever seen them?

A. I haven’t seen them.

Q. Where did you stay after you left on the 21st? Where did you go after the 21st of February; do you recall?

A. Neverland. After Marc Schaffel’s application, I went to Neverland.

Q. Let me ask you about Marc Schaffel. Who is Marc Schaffel? Who do you understand Marc Schaffel to be?

A. They just -- I know now per the investigation, it’s different.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Hold on. At the time, did you know the name “Marc Schaffel”?

A. No, I didn’t. But I had spoken to a Marc when the Germans were there.

Q. All right.

A. Marc --

Q. In person --

A. Marc Schaffel.

Q. All right. In person or over the telephone?

A. Over the telephone.

Q. Did this person identify himself to you?

A. Yes. He said he was Marc Schaffel.

Q. He said he was Marc Schaffel?

A. Yeah, and then that’s the one that I told about the audio you can hear. And I said he was very unkind, because he was saying I had to do the video, and I thought he was one of the Germans.

Q. This was a person you spoke to prior to doing the rebuttal video?

A. Yes.

Q. And he was talking to you about the video?

A. No. He said I had to do the video. And this is before Jesus.

Q. All right. Now, at some point on the 21st you were taken to a home?

A. Yes.

Q. Did somebody tell you that was Marc Schaffel’s home?

A. Yes, Vinnie did.

Q. Did you meet Marc Schaffel?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. To this day, have you ever seen a picture of him?

A. To this day I’ve never met him.

Q. All right. What were you doing at Marc Schaffel’s house?

A. Picking up the applications for passports.

Q. Were you with your kids or by yourself?

A. No, I was by myself.

Q. With Vinnie?

A. With Vinnie and the people that would --

Q. You’re saying there was another car of people?

A. There was always someone following us.

Q. Did you know who those people were?

A. I didn’t know at the time.

Q. Could you tell how many people were in that car?

A. Yes, sometimes there was two. And sometimes there was three. And sometimes there was one.

Q. Did you recognize any of them at any time?

A. No.

Q. You already knew Asaf’s appearance.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know if Asaf was ever one of them?

A. No, I just happened to see Asaf one other time, and - I think so - that was during that Calabasas period.

Q. All right. Where did you go on the 21st? Where did you stay after that?

A. On the 21st, I stood at Neverland.

Q. And for how long were you at Neverland?

A. Until the 25th.

Q. And on the 25th, you went where?

A. To the hotel. I don’t know if it’s hotel, motel, in Calabasas.

Q. All right. Do you remember the name of it?

A. I think it’s Country Inn & Suites.

Q. In Calabasas?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let me go back to that period of time from the 21st to the 25th that you were at Neverland. Where did you stay during that time?

A. In the guesthouse.
Q. And were your children there as well?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did Davellin stay?
A. In the guesthouse next to me.
Q. Not your unit?
A. And -- and I don’t mean to say “guesthouse.” It’s actually one building divided into four, and they’re actually just bedrooms.
Q. Four separate units in a building?
A. Four separate units?
Q. Yes. And you had one of the units?
A. Yes.
Q. And Davellin had another?
A. Yes.
Q. Where were the boys?
A. The boys were in the house.
Q. And that’s Gavin and Star you’re referring to?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. They were staying in the house?
A. Yes.
Q. Did they stay in the house the entire time?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know if Michael Jackson was there during that period of time?

A. At that time, I don’t know.
Q. Do you have a recollection of seeing him during that time?
A. At that time, I don’t remember.
Q. Were you seeing your sons throughout that period?
A. No.
Q. The 21st through the 25th?
A. No.
Q. Where were you during the day?
A. In the guesthouse.
Q. Did you ever leave?
A. Not really.
Q. Where did you take your meals?

A. In -- in there.

Q. In the guesthouse?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you ever go into the main house for meals?

A. No. No.

Q. Did you ever walk around the property?

A. Um, I think in that whole period from when I returned, from the 21st on, I’m being generous if I say -- if I may, my best estimate, if I say twice.

Q. “Twice” what?

A. I walked out into Neverland. And that’s my best -- and we’re talking about the period from the 21st on.

Q. Were you having -- were you spending time with your sons during that four-day period?

A. No.

Q. On the 25th, where did you go?

A. On the 25th?

Q. Yes. The 25th of February.

A. Okay. The 25th of February, went to my son’s doctor’s appointment. Then from there, I went to -- to Jamie’s, and then from there the hotel.

Q. All right. Let’s talk about the first two that you mentioned.

A. Okay.

Q. There was an appointment you had, I assume with Gavin; is that right?

A. Yes, I did. And Vinnie was there.

Q. And Vinnie went with you?

A. And the people that were following us.

Q. And another vehicle behind you?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you go with your other two children?

A. All three of my kids.

Q. All of your kids went?

A. Yes.

Q. The doctor’s appointment was where?

A. In Kaiser. That was his cancer specialist, his oncologist.

Q. And did they make another appointment for him or for testing at that time?

A. Yes. Yes, they did.

Q. What was that appointment?

A. That was -- I don't know what the correct medical term is, but Gavin has to go -- yes, he is a healthy boy, but he's got a lot of medical issues, and they have to watch out for -- and so they -- I don't know what this one is called. I don't know whether it's called a CT scan, ultrasound. The main purpose of that was to check his kidney, because there's a constant concern that Gavin could possibly lose his kidney.

Q. Is this a concern that exists today?

A. It still exists today.

Q. All right. Now, the -- he had an appointment with the doctor. So he actually visited with the doctor on the 25th?

A. Yes.

Q. During that visit, where did Vinnie go?

A. Oh, Vinnie was right there.

Q. What is "right there"?

A. With us, with me, the whole entire time with us. And usually our doctor visits, me and the kids are always like a group, you know.

Q. All right.

A. Because when I go to the doctors' appointments, yes, I -- you know, Sergeant Mommy. But I'm always like this, weak in my knees, because

I never know what is going to happen, I have to have, after the visit. So prior to the visit, I am holding my breath.

Q. Did Gavin actually have an examination with the doctor?

A. Yes.

Q. I assume that was separate from where Vinnie was.

A. Yes.

Q. Were you present during --

A. No, Vinnie was right there. Vinnie had expressed to me that there was something they could listen to me.

Q. I don’t understand what “right there” means.
A. Right there. Right outside the doctor’s room.
Q. Is that where you were?
A. Yes.
Q. So he was with you?
A. And he was with the kids.
Q. All right. And the kids were there, too?
A. Yes.
Q. Is this a waiting room of some kind?
A. No, it isn’t. It’s actually the hallway outside the doctor’s room.
Q. When you left the doctor’s office on the 25th, did you have an appointment to have an appointment to return to the doctor at some time in the future?

A. Yes. I --
Q. Was that for an examination or a test?
A. No, that was a test. Purely a test. No doctor visit whatsoever.
Q. And what day was that?
A. March 10th.
Q. What was the test?
A. I don’t know. Like I told you, Mr. Zonen, I don’t know whether it was one of those CT scans or ultrasound. The main purpose of that test was to check on his kidney.
Q. All right. Was that the day that you were supposed to turn in a sample of -- a collection of his urine?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, let’s go back to this, now, again.
A. A 24-hour collection.
Q. A 24-hour collection. We’re going to cover this in just a moment. Let’s go back to the 25th.
A. Okay.
Q. You said that you had a doctor’s appointment with all of you, and then you went to, you said, The Laugh Factory?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What was your reason for going to The Laugh Factory?

A. Okay. We were already on Sunset Boulevard.

And the Laugh Factory is not that far from Kaiser, so I tried to -- I tried to -- I'm -- I'm trying -- all along through this period, I'm trying to reach people to help me, to let them know the best that I knew at that time, because it kept evolving into more and more escalation.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.
THE WITNESS: Okay. That's my answer, though.
THE COURT: Just a moment, please.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE COURT: I think it was nonresponsive.
MR. ZONEN: I think it was.
Q. Now, you were going to go to The Laugh Factory. Excuse me, I'm sorry. Were you expecting to meet somebody at The Laugh Factory?
A. Yes.
Q. Who were you expecting to meet at The Laugh Factory?
A. I was expecting to meet just Jamie. And I think that Jamie on his own called Mr. Dickerman.
Q. Did you know who Mr. Dickerman was prior to that day?
A. Yes.
Q. And how did you know who Mr. Dickerman was?
A. Because Jamie had told me that Mr. Dickerman could possibly maybe help put a stop to Gavin's being ridiculed and called "gay" and all these things.

Q. Do you mean the television show?
A. Yes, because they were making no effort.
Q. Did you understand Mr. Dickerman to be an attorney?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you understand him to be Jamie's attorney, Jamie Masada's?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you tell Vinnie in advance that you were going to go visit with a lawyer?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Why not?

A. Because I was -- there was -- there was consequences, consequences for going out of their plan.

Q. Okay. When you arrived at The Laugh Factory, what did you tell Vinnie was the purpose of going to The Laugh Factory?

A. Just -- just visit Jamie.

Q. Did you tell him who Jamie was?

A. Yeah, I had told him Jamie’s a good friend, and that’s about it. And so the second I went in there, there was -- in two minutes I had to leave.

Q. All right. You went in there. Did you go in with any of your children?

A. I think it was one of them. He had two of them stay with him. And then now Frank’s on the phone going crazy because I’m talking to Jamie, so --

Q. Hold on a second. Hold on a second. You’re inside The Laugh Factory right now?

A. Yes.

Q. How do you know Frank’s on the phone with anybody?

A. Because Davellin came in running and said, “Mommy, let’s” -- “Frank’s on the phone, and he’s mad and he’s going crazy.”

Q. All right. How long were you inside talking to Jamie at that time?

A. My gosh, it was like -- not that long. Not that long.

Q. What is “not that long”? Five minutes? Ten minutes? 20 minutes? Give us a sense of it.

A. My best estimate -- my best estimate, less than maybe ten minutes.

Q. Less than ten minutes?

A. Yes.

Q. All right.

A. And that’s my best estimate.

Q. Where did you go after that? This is the 25th. Where did you go after that?

A. Then they -- then Vinnie had told me that -- do you just want me to tell -- not what happened prior?

Q. Yes, just where did you go after you left The Laugh Factory?

A. The motel.

Q. The motel in Calabasas?

A. Yes. Or hotel, the Country Inn.

Q. How many days did you stay in Calabasas?

A. The 25th through the 2nd of March.

Q. That’s a 28-day month, February.

A. Yes.

Q. So you were there five days?

A. Yes.

Q. 25th, 26th, 20 --

A. And I didn’t know I was going to stay there.

Q. Did they tell you why you were there as opposed to going back to Neverland?

A. Yes, Vinnie had said that the killers had arrived at -- at Neverland, so we weren’t going to be able to go back. We had absolutely no kind of piece of luggage with us. Nothing. That was a complete surprise.

Q. So --

A. Yes.

Q. -- where did Vinnie say you were going after the Calabasas hotel?

A. After?

Q. Yes.

A. Not during?

Q. Well, while you were at Calabasas at that hotel, Vinnie told you that it was not safe to go back to Neverland?

A. That’s right.

Q. All right. Did he tell you where you were going to go?

A. We were going to a motel.

Q. And after the motel?

A. After -- now, what are you talking? During?

Q. You said you were going to go to a motel. You were in a motel.

A. Yeah, that’s it.

Q. Did he tell you you were going -- how long did he tell you you were going to have to stay at that motel?

A. No, he didn’t. It was always one day. One day. Every day everything changed.

Q. You had no other clothing with you?

A. No.

Q. All your clothing --

A. No clothing.

Q. -- was at Neverland?

A. Was at Neverland.

Q. At some --

A. Every piece of clothing was at -- in Neverland that I had with me.

Q. At some point in time did you go shopping?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you go shopping?

A. And this is -- again, I had told them this is to replace -- because I wouldn’t accept anything from them. It was only in replacement. They said it was not -- not safe to return, so they were going to replace the children’s items, and that’s how they tricked us.

Q. All right. Ultimately how long did you stay at that hotel at Calabasas?

A. From February 25th to March 2nd.

Q. And during that time, on how many of those days did you go shopping for clothing?

A. One day.

Q. Was there any discussion during that five-day period of time as to when you were going to be going to Brazil?

A. Yes. It was -- we were going to Brazil. That’s it.

Q. Did they give you a day? Did they say in a week? In a month? Did they say when?

A. No. No, the second they get them, the second we’re going to go.

Q. The second they get what?

A. The second they get all of this covered.

Q. The documentation that they needed?

A. Yes, uh-huh.

Q. Did you believe at that time that you were actually going to go to Brazil?

A. Yes. And this is the period when I called Wheezy, Louise Palanker.

Q. You called her from the hotel in Calabasas?

A. No, I didn’t. I don’t know where I was. I don’t know where I was, but I called her during this period. That I can remember clear.

Q. All right. Who was at the hotel during this five-day period, other than you and your three children?

A. Frank. Vinnie. Johnny. This -- another guy that I never saw that always would stand outside my window. And then these other people that I never came to find out who they were.

Q. How many other people are we talking about?

A. Like I said, sometimes in the car there was one, sometimes there was two, and sometimes there was three.

Q. Were they there all the time?

A. Yes.

Q. Or one of them all the time?

A. Yes. Oh, there was -- nobody left my side at all.

Q. Were Frank and Vinnie with you the entire time?

A. No. It was these people that were all the time.

Q. Somebody named “Johnny” you just mentioned.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. What does he look like?

A. He’s -- he’s big.

Q. I’m sorry, I asked you about Johnny.

A. He’s big.

Q. Big?

A. Yes.

Q. What color hair does he have?

A. It’s a light color.

Q. Was he there the entire time?

A. Yes, the entire time.

Q. And day and night?

A. Day and night.

Q. Was there some -- if you walked out of your door, did you always see somebody there?

A. Yes. Absolutely. Outside my door, and outside my window, and wherever we went.

MR. ZONEN: If I could approach the witness, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Showing you No. 26, please, would you tell us who this is?

A. This is Johnny.

Q. That’s Johnny?

A. Yes.

Q. During this period of time did you have telephone calls with anybody else?

A. Me?

Q. Yes.

A. But my phone calls were being monitored and listened to.

Q. Somebody told you that?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. Frank and Vinnie.

Q. Did you believe that to be true?

A. Yes, I did believe them.

Q. Notwithstanding that belief, did you make phone calls from the hotel?

A. Yes, I did. What I did, I tried to give -- drop clues to every person. I figured -- I figured by all -- this was all going to be resolved by God’s miracles, and I figured one day -- there will be one day that all these people could give clues as to when me and my children would have disappeared, clues, clues, and this way this puzzle would have been put together.

Q. Who did you call during that period of time when you were at the hotel?

A. I called my mom, but I tried to like whisper to her in Spanish, and she said, “Que?” And so -- and --

Q. Your mom's a little hard-of-hearing, isn't she?

A. Yes, so -- so that didn't help me.

Q. All right. Did you tell your mother you were going to Brazil?

A. No, I don't think so.

Q. She didn't know?

A. No.

Q. Who else did you call?

A. But Aja did.

Q. You called Aja during this period of time?

A. Yes, yes. I sneaked it in there.

Q. You called her from where?

A. From the hotel.

Q. Okay. And you say you sneaked it in. What does that mean?

A. Yes, yes. Like, you know, I was letting her -- I was talking and kind of dropping people clues. Oh, you know, just kind of making --

Q. Hold on a second. The question was, how did you sneak a call in? What does that mean?

A. Okay. No, no, all my conversations were being monitored and listened to, all of them. What I'm trying to say is, I sneaked it in a way where I -- I said it to her, hoping that nobody had listened in on what I had told her.

Q. Who else did you call besides Aja, your mom and Louise?

A. Aja, my mom, Louise -- but I didn't call Louise from the hotel. I don't remember where I called her from.

Q. Okay.

A. Um -- um, I think it was one of my cousins. My mom.

Q. Did you call Jay during that period of time?

A. Yes, I called Jay. I hadn't called him for days.

Q. And you did call him from that hotel?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you call the police during that time?

A. No.

Q. Why not?

A. Because my calls are being monitored, they were being listened to, my parents are in danger, Jay's in danger, and who could possibly believe this?

Q. What do you mean by, "Who could possibly believe it?" What was your concern in that regard?

A. That nobody would believe me. And that's because Frank said nobody would believe me.

Q. Did you, in your conversation with Jay from the hotel, tell him what was going on?

A. No.

Q. Did you tell him you were going to Brazil?

A. I told him the same way I tried to talk to Aja. Everything was always broken. It was never complete. So in my -- in the midst of a regular conversation, I'd throw something in, hoping that it hadn't been heard, and yet that this -- that part could stick in somebody's mind, and hopefully one of these days this puzzle could be put together. I tried.

Q. After five days there, where did you go?

A. Back to Neverland.

Q. So this is now on the 2nd of March; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long did you stay at Neverland from the 2nd of March?

A. Till March 10th.

Q. During that eight-day period of time, where did you stay?

A. Like I told you, Mr. Zonen, from the 21st on, when I was at Neverland, I just stood in the room. That's it. And that was per their order.

Q. Was there somebody around?

A. Yes. Either Frank or Vinnie, or both. But this guy Joe, he was really scary. You know what's more scary? When you're not spoken to and you're just watched. That was really scary.

Q. Do you know Joe's name?

A. I don’t know his last name, but he’s -- he is extremely loyal to him, to Mr. Jackson.

Q. What does he look like, “Joe”?

A. He is tall, kind of balding, a little bit of hair you can see.

Q. Do you mean a shaved head?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know his last name?

A. I don’t know his last name.

Q. Did you ever hear it before?

A. No. Always -- the last names I would always find out by accident. They never told me their last names. Only when I would overhear them.

Q. What was it about Joe’s behavior that frightened you?

A. That -- that this particular specific time, for example, they would stand right outside my window, and Frank and Vinnie would talk to him, and then they’d turn around, Joe would go like this (indicating), and he’d go back and like this (indicating) and just stand there.

Q. Was Chris Carter there during that time?

A. Chris Carter. Um, I don’t know. I don’t know. I stood there inside the room.

Q. Was Jesus there during that time?

A. Yes. And whenever Jesus would -- whatever, come into my room, I’d go -- you know, right there in my room I’d try talk to him, and he would tell me, “I can’t help you.”

Q. Where were your boys during this time, from the 2nd to the 10th?

A. From the 2nd to the 10th, they were -- they were with Michael. This time I did see him.

Q. Could you tell if he was there the entire time, from the 2nd --

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Who are we talking about now?

A. Yes, because I’d see him. They’re running around with my kids like crazy, crazy nuts, you know. You know, I --

Q. All right, wait. You said “him.” Who is “him”?

A. Mr. Jackson.

Q. All right. And “they” were running with him. Who are “they”?

A. My boys.

Q. “Like nuts,” explain that to me. What does that mean?

A. Yeah, you know, I could see through my window at a distance. I know they’re my kids, but they’re this little. When you see someone really far, they’re about this little, and I see him this much bigger. It’s clearly them, them riding around in a go-cart and -- goodness gracious.

Q. Was there something about your boys’ behavior at that time that was alarming you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE WITNESS: No guidelines.

THE COURT: Just a minute.

Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No guidelines.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What does that mean, “no guidelines”?

A. There’s no guidelines. There’s -- that’s it. I’ve lost my kids.

Q. Did you have any contact with them during this period of time?

A. No.

Q. And “no guidelines.” How were they actually behaving? Tell us how they were behaving at that time.

A. Doing everything they wanted with Mr. Jackson.

Q. All day long?

A. All day long, all night long.

Q. Where were they staying at night?

A. With Mr. Jackson.

Q. All right. Did you ever go into Mr. Jackson’s residence at night?

A. No.

Q. Were you able to go into his residence?

A. No. From -- like I told you, Mr. Zonen, from the period of the 21st on, no. I'd be generous if I say, as my best estimate, two times.

Q. Did you tell the social workers from the Department of Child & Family Services, did you tell them that you would check on your children inside the house throughout the night?

A. With the DCFS meeting, if you take a smaller version of the video that we did on that same day, if you make it smaller, that's what -- that's what was discussed.

Q. Right. But did you, in fact, tell them that?

A. I could have. I could have.

Q. Did you know where your children --

A. And then but don't forget about the other additional tape-recording thing that Asaf had left there.

Q. Okay. Did you know where the boys were sleeping inside the house?

A. No. At that time. Now I know.

Q. At the time, where do you believe that they were sleeping?

A. I believed that the children stayed with children. That's what I believed.

Q. Do you mean his own children?

A. Well, with other children, because -- just children. That's what I believed.

Q. Did you ever ask Gavin or Star where exactly in the house they were sleeping during that time?

A. At that time, no.

Q. Did you ever have any conversations with Michael Jackson during that period of time from the 2nd of March until the 10th of March?

A. No. Zero. They were having too much fun.

Q. Did you have any conversations with either Vinnie or Frank during that period of time?

A. Oh, God. A lot of them.

Q. And --

A. I didn't have conversations. They -- they were coming at me.

Q. And what types of things were they telling you at that time?

A. And just following their orders. Oh, this is one of the things when they were trying to make me sign that -- that waiver.

Q. That waiver.

A. And I said, “No, no, I’m sorry, but my signing days are over.”

Q. Were your children in school during this period of time that they were at Neverland?

A. No, no school.

Q. Were they getting any private instruction while they were at Neverland?

A. No. See --

Q. No, did you complain about that to anybody?

A. I brought it to Mr. Jackson’s attention --

THE REPORTER: And to whose attention?

THE WITNESS: To Mr. Jackson, on that first -- prior to that meeting with Jesus.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: During the initial stay?

A. Yes, the initial --

Q. Early in February?

A. Yes.

Q. What did Mr. Jackson say to you about your children getting tutoring or schooling?

A. That Ronald and Dieter would fix everything.

Q. Now, during this subsequent stay from the 2nd to the 10th of March of 2003, did you complain about them not getting any schooling during that time?

A. No. My complaining -- my speaking days were over, because the second I would say something, “Ahh.”

Q. The second you would say something, somebody would do something?

A. Yes. Frank would holler at me.

Q. Were you aware that there was a private school located near Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask them to send the children to a private school?

A. No.

Q. At some point in time did your children visit a dentist while they were at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. For what purpose?

A. Remember how I told you I kept trying to do -- do things, Mr. Zonen, about ways -- ways of getting out of there? And so I had told them that if I didn’t get -- if I didn’t get the orthodontist’s teeth -- braces removed, that they will -- the social workers were going to call the police.

And originally, Ronald and Dieter, way when the Germans were involved, they had said that it was bad PR for the police to get involved for Mr. Jackson.

So I used that, and I told them that they were going -- if I didn’t get the braces removed, that they were going to call the social workers.

Q. All right.

A. So I used that, because what I was trying to do was go to my orthodontist, so this way it was someone I knew that could possibly believe me.

Q. All right. Now, whose idea was it to go to a different orthodontist?

A. Their idea.

Q. And did you, in fact, go to a different orthodontist?

A. Yes. And get this: After the orthodontist was closed, no other patient was there. It was after hours, and with that scary guy Joe, and being put on notice that I was being listened and monitored. So again, I, the mother, failed again.

Q. All right. Now, did they take off the braces at that time?

A. Yes, they took off the braces.

Q. Were they, in fact, ready to have their braces removed?

A. They were not ready to take off the braces.

My children were supposed to have -- I think one of them was, I think two years of orthodontistry. And the other one had -- Star needed -- required orthodontic care, and I think it was about three years.

And so we -- the kids only had -- at that period, I think they only had them on for -- oh, I think they only had had them on at a period of six months at that time. And that’s my best estimates. So they weren’t supposed to be taken off.

Q. Why didn’t you simply change your mind about it and say, “No, we won’t take them off”?

A. Then they would have known then that I’m trying to escape. Because every time I tried to leave, there was huge consequences.

Q. Did you have a talk with anybody at Neverland about moving out of your apartment on Soto Street?

A. This was -- it was an evolvement of different things. First evolvement was when -- because the killers had gone to my apartment, I had to move out and different things. But this only came after -- after they found out that I had in my home Michael’s letter, a rabbit that he had given my son, which he wanted him to call him “Michael,” just different pictures. So my apartment was meaningless to them until they found out that Michael’s things were there.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE WITNESS: That’s my whole answer.

THE COURT: Just a moment. Just a moment. It’s sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let’s back up a couple notches if we can.

A. Okay.

Q. The first conversation that you had about moving out of the apartment on Soto Street was with whom? Just tell me the name.

A. With Ronald and Dieter.

Q. That was with Ronald and Dieter?

A. Yes. Way back.

Q. So that was way back?

A. Yes.
Q. And did they talk to you at that time about moving out of the apartment?
A. Yes.
Q. At some point in time, did you tell -- did you tell somebody that in your possessions at that apartment --
A. Yes.
Q. -- were letters from Michael Jackson?
A. Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: That answer was “Yes”?
A. Yes.
Q. With whom did you have that conversation?

A. With Ronald and Dieter.
Q. Now, in fact, where were those letters?
A. In my apartment.
Q. And where in your apartment were they?
A. Okay. They were in different places. But one specific place that I remember is, I had a clay pot and it was Gerbera daisies, artificial Gerbera daisies. They weren’t real. So when you lift it up, it’s empty, because the artificial flowers do not belong to that pot. You can -- you can easily lift it up and out.
And I had placed them there. The -- and the reason that I had placed them there is because David is very sneaky. He does things, so I didn’t want David to get his hands on them.
Q. The letters were from Michael Jackson to whom?
A. To Gavin. Purely to Gavin.
Q. Had you read those letters?
A. Who?
Q. You.
A. Me? Yes. Yes.
Q. Why did you keep them at all, those letters?
A. Because they -- Michael had sent them, and they said “I love you” to Gavin, and, “Love you, Apple Head,” and “Doo-Doo Head.” Just -- I just kept them, you know, along with all these other things that I had ever received from other people.

Q. You had other letters there as well?

A. Yeah. From other people, too.

Q. Now, did you tell either Dieter or Ronald where those letters were?

A. No, I didn’t. I just said they were in my apartment.

Q. Did you tell them that anything else was in your apartment that had come from Neverland or from Michael Jackson?

A. Yeah. Pictures. And then the rabbit. It was a little pretend rabbit, not a real rabbit.

Q. All right. A rabbit from Neverland?

A. Yeah, it was just a rabbit that came in a gift basket.

Q. Where was that kept?

A. That was out in the open.

Q. Now, you said Ronald and Dieter talked to you about moving out of the apartment?

A. Yes.

Q. At some point did either Frank or Vinnie talk with you about moving out of the apartment?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Who was the first, between the two of them, to the best of your recollection?

A. Frank, on the phone, telling me it was so dangerous.

Q. At some point in time did you move out of the apartment?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Who did you tell that you were willing to move out?

A. I didn’t tell them that -- that yes, for sure. That I would think about it.

Q. Who is it that you told that to?

A. To Frank. But it wasn’t a “Yes.” I would think about it.

Q. Were you ultimately moved out of that apartment?

A. Yes. And this time I had said, “No.” I thought about it, and then it was a “No.”

Q. Do you recall if you signed anything that reflected your willingness to move out of that apartment?

A. I didn’t sign a thing.

Q. Did you have a conversation with anybody about moving out?

A. Yeah. Frank and Vinnie. And then Ronald, Dieter in the beginning.

Q. All right. Now, was there any rent that was owed on that apartment at that time?

A. That’s another thing that they had found out. It had slipped out --

Q. Hold on just one second.

A. Okay.

Q. The question was, was there any money that was owed on that apartment?

A. At that current time, it was -- no.

Q. How long had you lived in that apartment?

A. Five years.

Q. Was there any point in time during that five-year period where you did not pay rent?

A. Yes.

Q. And when was that?

A. That was when Gavin was ill.

Q. And for how many months was that?

A. That was two months.

Q. And what did the landlord say about that?

A. One -- one month he gave -- he gave us. And the second one was owed to him, and he had told us to pay it when we can and it’s okay.

Q. All right. One month was simply gratis; it was given to you --

A. Yes.

Q. -- for free?

A. Yes.

Q. And the second month you owed?

A. Yes.

Q. How much money was -- what was the rent for that apartment?

A. My apartment rent was 425. But I was current to the point that -- since 2000. That was since 2000.

Q. All right. So at the time that you were at Neverland for this period between the 2nd and the 10th --

A. Was already 2003. And I was still current on my month (sic), every month.
Q. How about that one month that you were going to pay back at a later time? Was that ever paid back?
A. No. Never.
Q. So there was still a --
A. Yeah, it's something that I knew.
Q. There was still 400-plus dollars that --
A. No, it was actually -- it was two months that weren't paid. But he said one was okay, and one was -- but it was two.
Q. Well, tell me, what was the amount that was owed at --
A. 850 from the year 2000. Nothing current. My rent was paid current.
Q. All right. 850 would reflect two months; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And that was --
A. Of the year 2000.
Q. Didn't you say that one of those months was forgiven?
A. Yeah, that's what he said. But I didn't -- I still didn't -- you know.
Q. It was either 425, one month, or 850 for two months?

A. It was for two months, but he had voluntarily said that one month is okay.
Q. All right.
A. But --
Q. Did you believe you owed 850?
A. Yeah.
Q. All right.
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you know if somebody paid off the balance of the rent that was owed?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who that was?

A. I came to find out -- it had slipped out of Vinnie that they didn’t want no one to be able to -- to miss me or the kids, or start raising questions as to where the kids were. And usually because of -- this is what Vinnie said; that they would possibly start looking for me because I hadn’t paid my rent.

Q. Do you know if somebody paid off that balance?

A. Yes, I became aware of that.

Q. Do you know who it was that paid it off?

A. No, I don’t. That part I don’t know.

Q. It wasn’t you?

A. No.

THE COURT: Counsel? Take a break.

(Recess taken.)

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness, please?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Yes, please.

Madam Clerk, is 276 in evidence? I don’t believe it is. 276.

THE CLERK: It hasn’t been identified yet.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. I’m showing you now Exhibit No. 276, which is two separate sheets, the second one having two documents in it, front and back.

And do we have that pen that you had initially?

And again, on the vinyl of 276, not on the document itself, perhaps right here, tell us what -- let’s mark “A” for 276-A. And is that an envelope?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. To whom?

A. To me.

Q. From whom?

A. From my old landlord.

Q. Okay. At the Soto Street address?

A. Yes.

Q. And the address to where that was sent?

A. The address where it was sent was my mother’s home address.

Q. In El Monte?

A. In El Monte.

Q. Let’s go to the second document, No. B. And mark that “B,” if you would, please, on the vinyl again.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: You have to speak into the microphone.

THE WITNESS: Oh.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And does that appear to be a letter?

A. Yes.

Q. Is your name typed on the end of that letter?

A. Yes, it is typed.

Q. And is that your signature above it?

A. No, it’s not my signature.

Q. Would you read the content of that letter, please. To yourself.

A. Oh. Okay. Okay.

Q. All right. What does that letter purport to do?

A. What does --

Q. What does the letter say?

A. Oh. It says basically -- should I read it or just tell -- summarize?

Q. Go ahead and read it.

A. It says, “I, Janet Arvizo, who have lived in Apartment 208, have spoken to Yolanda about ending my lease. As of March 1st, 2003, my apartment is cleaned and I have officially moved out as per the conversation. This letter is official notification of the monthly lease on Apartment 208’s termination.”

Q. And what is the date of the letter itself?

A. March 4th, 2003.

Q. Did you, in fact, sign that letter?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Turn the letter over, this document, No. B, over. Is there another letter on that?

A. Yes, there is.

Q. Is your name on that?

A. The printed name is on it.

Q. Is there a signature above your printed name?

A. Yes, there's a signature.

Q. Is that, in fact, your signature?

A. It is not my signature.

Q. Read that letter to yourself.

A. Okay. Okay.

Q. And what does that document say?

A. It says, "As per my conversation with Yolanda, the official final liabilities owed to the management is an amount of $850. This is an official receipt of this liability owed to the building manager and fully absolves me of any further payment. Upon signing this form, the management of the apartment building on 807 North Soto Street, Los Angeles, California, for my apartment, Apartment 208, recognizes payment in full, and no other moneys to be received by the management of this building from me, Janet Arvizo. And I am fully free of any debts owed to the management."

Q. All right. Were these letters sent to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Were they sent -- who sent these letters to you?

A. The landlord did.

Q. Was that after you had already moved out?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is it you were talking to about moving out of your apartment? In other words, who at Neverland was it that you were talking to about moving out?

A. Frank and Vinnie.

Q. At some point in time did you give them the key to that apartment?

A. I think they had taken the key from me.

Q. I'm --

A. I think, maybe. I don’t know.

Q. Do you have a recollection of how they got the key?

A. No, I don’t remember.

Q. What were your feelings about moving out of your apartment at that time?

A. Remember how I said I would think about it?

Well, at this time now it’s a no.

Q. All right. Did you tell them no, you didn’t want to move out of your apartment?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Do you know where your possessions went to after they moved you out?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Did they ever tell you where your possessions were moved to?

A. No, they didn’t. That’s another reason why I needed Mr. Dickerman’s help after I left Neverland.

Q. Did anybody tell you that they were put into storage?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever return to that apartment on Soto Street after you left Neverland at the time?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk to anybody at Neverland about the boys being withdrawn from school?

A. Until afterwards.

Q. I’m sorry, “afterwards” of what?

A. Until after they had checked Davellin out.

Q. All right. Now, Davellin was going to school where at the time?

A. She was going to school at Roosevelt High School, which was down the street from my Soto Street apartment.

Q. So that was in East Los Angeles?

A. In East L.A. It’s even on Soto Street, the high school.

Q. Now, let me back you up just a little bit, before you went off to Miami.

A. Okay.

Q. I think you had testified that you were living part time at Jay Jackson’s apartment in mid-Wilshire.

A. I was visiting.

Q. And part time at Soto Street?

A. I lived in Soto Street.

Q. The address that you used for the boys to go to the school that they were in on Wilshire --

A. First they attended Hollenbeck.

Q. Okay.

A. They attended Hollenbeck. This is a school down the street from Soto Street. And because the boys were not involved in any gangs, they kept getting beat up, because they wouldn’t join any gangs. And so I told Jay about it, and so moved them to another school within the same L.A. school district.

Q. And the school that you moved them to was which one?

A. John Burroughs.

Q. And John Burroughs is located where?

A. It’s near Jay’s apartment.

Q. Did you use Jay’s address to be able to do that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And --

A. And also they became aware of that afterwards, but it was already on the record and they were okay with it.

Q. Okay. Now, where were you actually residing during that period of time prior to going to Miami?

A. In my East L.A. apartment.

Q. All right. Would you spend the nights at Jay’s apartment as well?

A. Yes, sir, I did.

Q. Can you give us a sense of how many nights a week you would be at the East L.A. apartment and how many nights a week you would be at Jay’s apartment, on average?

A. Depending if Jay had to work late or -- it all depended upon Jay’s work.

Q. All right. Now, when you stayed at Jay's apartment during the week, where did Davellin stay?

A. She always stood in -- and this is what would happen: We'd all stay there in East L.A. She'd go to school, and then I'd take off on the bus to drop off the boys. And then I'd go to Jay's apartment, clean his apartment, do anything to -- just make myself serviceable.

Q. All right. On the nights that you actually stayed overnight at Jay's apartment --

A. Yes.

Q. -- during the week, where would Davellin stay?

A. Okay. When that would happen, I would -- I would contact my parents, and so since my dad has like a swing shift -- he's a truck driver, my dad. I would let my parents know, and then so they'd go by the apartment and go pick up Davellin.

Q. All right. Let me move you back now to this period from the 2nd to the 10th of March, and back at Neverland again.

A. Okay.

Q. Did you have a discussion with anybody at Neverland about checking your kids out of school?

A. Yes. After Davellin was checked out.

Q. All right. Did you have a discussion with anybody about checking Davellin out of school --

A. No. No.

Q. -- before you checked her out of school?

A. No.

Q. Did Davellin check out of school?

A. They checked Davellin out of school.

Q. Did you know that they were doing that in advance?

A. No, I did not know.

Q. And that was from Roosevelt School?

A. That was Roosevelt.

Q. In East L.A.?

A. East L.A., yes.

Q. Now, was Davellin out of school this entire period of time?

A. Yeah. They’re off track. So I don’t know if they’re familiar here with “track.”

Q. Well, let me see if we can figure this out. From the period of time in early February when you first went to Miami --

A. There’s a portion --

Q. Hold on. There’s no question pending.

A. I’m sorry.

Q. From the time you went to Miami in early February until the 10th of March, was Davellin going back to high school at all?

A. I think that’s -- I think -- I can’t remember, but I think Davellin was off track. “Off track” means you don’t go to school during that period.

Q. This is one of those schools where students --

A. Yes.

Q. -- attend --

A. It’s year-round school.

Q. It’s one of those schools where students attend at different times?

A. Yes.

Q. And it’s sometimes not necessarily in the summertime --

A. Yes.

Q. -- they are out of school?

A. Yes. And I think that’s the best I can remember.

Q. Now, as to the boys, did you have a conversation with anybody at Neverland about the boys being checked out of school?

A. Okay, this is when Frank and Vinnie holler at me that I have to sign this paper. That’s why it came to a point where my signing days were over. I had to sign a paper for them to check out the boys, but with Davellin, they did it without my signature. They did it themself.

Q. I’d like to show you a document now, or a couple documents.

If I may approach the witness, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Exhibit No. 271 -- do you have a pen there?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Exhibit No. 271 for identification, not in evidence, for identification, mark that first one on there “A,” and then we’re going to move on to the second one.

Let’s go to 271-B. Mark that “B,” and tell me what that is.

A. This one?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay. It says, “Checkout sheet.”

Q. From where?

A. From John Burroughs.

Q. All right. Is --

A. The boys’ -- my boys’ school.

Q. John Burroughs Middle School?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this for one of your sons?

A. Yes. This is for Gavin.

Q. All right. Is there a date on that?

A. It says March 6th, 2003.

Q. Is there a signature on that document?

A. Yes, there is. It says, “Parent’s signature.”

Q. And whose signature is it?

A. It’s Vinnie’s.

Q. All right. It says “date of birth” on there?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that Gavin’s birth --

A. That is Gavin’s birth date.

Q. Does it indicate where the new address is going to be for this child, for this student?

A. Yes. It says -- “City” is “Phoenix.” The state is “Arizona.”

Q. All right. Is this in your handwriting at all?

A. Not in my writing at all.

Q. Did you ever see this document?

A. I’ve never seen this document before.

Q. All right. You -- before today or before the grand jury?

A. Before -- I think it was the grand jury. I think that time. Or before --

Q. But at the time all this was happening --

A. At that time, no.

Q. Back on March 6th, 2003 --

A. No.

Q. -- did you ever see that document?

A. No.

Q. Now, did anybody talk to you about moving to Arizona, to Phoenix?

A. No. Except in that letter, the one -- the letter with the “Phoenix, Arizona,” that you showed me.

Q. Oh, all right.

A. That one.

Q. But conversations?

A. Conversation, no.

Q. Nobody had a conversation with you at Neverland about you moving to Phoenix, Arizona?

A. No, no. Zero.

Q. Did either Vinnie or Frank mention Phoenix, Arizona, to you?

A. No. Zero.

Q. Did either of them indicate where they wrote on these checkout forms where they were moving you to?

A. It says right here, “New address.”

Q. But in conversations that you may have had with Vinnie and Frank at the time?

A. No, no, it was Brazil.

Q. This is B.

Let’s go to C, if we can, right here. Mark that one “C.”

A. This is what I’m talking about.

Q. All right. Would you take a look a moment at that document?

A. Okay.

Q. Have you ever seen that document before?

A. Yes, this is the one with --

Q. Is your signature on that?

A. Yes, this one has my signature.

Q. And read that document.

A. It says, “I, Janet Arvizo, allow Vincent Armenta to check out my son Gavin Anton Arvizo from John Burroughs” -- I mean, “from Burroughs Middle School. He will be placed in another school district in Phoenix, Arizona, where a current new residence is being sought.”

Q. That is your signature?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And written -- typed below is the name “Janet Arvizo”?

A. Yes.

Q. Is this the letter you’re referring to?

A. Yes, this is what I was talking about.

Q. Now, at the time that you signed that, did you talk to them about, “What’s the business with Phoenix, Arizona?”

A. And they said this way nobody would be able to find me or the kids.

Q. This is C. Let’s go to D, please.

A. Okay.

Q. Go ahead and write “D” on that. What is “D”?

A. “D” is my driver’s license. Oh, that’s another thing they had.

Q. Just tell us what it is right now.

A. My driver’s license.

Q. And who else?

A. Vinnie’s driver’s license.

Q. At some point in time did somebody tell you that they needed a copy of your driver’s license?

A. No, they took my driver’s license.

Q. All right. Who is “they”?

A. Frank and Vinnie.

Q. Well, did both of them take it?

A. Yes. Yes. Frank was present when Vinnie took it. So --

Q. Tell me what you mean by “took it.” What did they do?

A. They said, “Let me have your driver’s license.”

Q. And did you hand it over to them?

A. Yes, I did. At that point I was doing everything they said.

Q. Was it about this time that you did that?

A. Yes. Yes, I did.

MR. ZONEN: Oh, I’m sorry. I’ll do that.

Q. Exhibit No. 272. At this time No. 272. Would you tell us what that is, please?

A. It’s “John Burroughs Middle School Checkout Sheet.”

Q. That’s for who?

A. For my son Star.

Q. Is this the same form as the one that we had previously looked at for Gavin?

A. Yes. And it says, “Star David Arvizo.”

Q. His full name is on there?

A. Yes, his full name is on there.

Q. This one also states you’re going to Phoenix, Arizona?

A. This one also states I’m going to Phoenix, Arizona.

Q. Put an “A” on that. So that’s 272-A. And we’ll turn it over.

A. And the parent’s signature is not mine.

Q. There is a spot for parent’s signature?

A. Yes.

Q. And whose signature is that?

A. It’s not mine. It’s Vinnie’s.

Q. Did he sign his own name?

A. Yes, he did. And it says, “Date of birth: 12-11-1990.”

Q. Is that, in fact, Star’s birthday?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And Vinnie, I’m assuming, is not his parent?

A. Yes, it’s -- oh.

Q. This is A. This is B.

A. Yes.

Q. Right here. Mark “B” on that, please.
And that document, is that the same document; however, the letter, that’s signed by you, except this one is for Star?
A. Exact -- exactly.
Q. And that is, in fact, your signature?
A. Yes, it is my signature.
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I would like to move into evidence Exhibit -- Exhibit No. 276, which would be A and B, which is the envelope as well as the letter dealing with the landlord. And I would so move at this time.
MR. MESEREAU: No foundation.
THE COURT: It’s admitted.
MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry, the Court’s ruling?

THE COURT: It is admitted.
MR. ZONEN: All right. I would also move to introduce into evidence 271, as to B, C, D, and 272-A and B.
MR. MESEREAU: No objection.
THE COURT: It’s admitted.
MR. ZONEN: May I publish a few of these documents at this time?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. ZONEN: Let’s start with 271-B and C.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May we have “Input 4,” Your Honor?
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, this is the “John Burroughs Middle School Checkout Sheet”; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And who’s “the student”?
A. “The student” is Gavin Anton Arvizo.
Q. And the printing on that -- the handwritten printing on that, is that yours?
A. No, it isn’t.
Q. All right. Was this filled out in your presence?
A. No.
Q. And again, this is a document you did not see until a court proceeding in Santa Barbara?
A. Correct.

Q. “Parent’s signature,” that’s Vinnie’s?

A. Yes.
Q. And the date of birth; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And this is the document that indicates “Phoenix, Arizona”?
A. Yes.
Q. Let’s go to the next one, please.
Exhibit C from that same exhibit, is this the letter, then?
A. Yes.
Q. And that is your signature?
A. It is my signature.
Q. And then 276-B on the front side -- what happened to our laser?
Put it on so both signatures are on there.
And then the second down here, where it says “Janet Arvizo,” is that your signature?
A. No, it isn’t.
Q. All right. Do you know if that is Yolanda Lozalde’s signature?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. And then turn it over.
This is the second letter that you identified. And that signature here, is that your signature?
A. No, it isn’t.
MR. ZONEN: Okay. You can turn on the lights.

Q. I’d like to move you ahead to the 10th of March, if I may.
A. Okay.
Q. You told us that you had a preexisting schedule requiring a visit again back at Kaiser Hospital; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And what exactly was it that Gavin had to do in preparation for that visit?
A. He had to -- okay, well, actually the creatinine clearance, Mr. Zonen, had to be turned in immediately. The creatinine clearance, that had to be turned in immediately after the doctor’s visit, which was way back in February, February 25th.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection, Your Honor. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I want to be very specific about the questions that I ask --

A. Okay.

Q. -- and the answers that you give.

A. Okay.

Q. The purpose of the visit on the 10th of March was for what?

A. Just to check his kidney.

Q. And was there a requirement that he had to furnish a urine sample?

A. That was required since February 25th.

Q. Okay. And why --

A. I had to do that the next day.

Q. Why didn’t you do it on February 25th?

A. Because they didn’t let me. They didn’t want me to go back to Kaiser to turn it in.

Q. Did he have an examination that had to take place on the 10th as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And the examination was to do what?

A. Was to check his kidney.

Q. All right. Did they, in fact, do that at that time?

MR. MESEREAU: Object to the word “they.” Move to strike.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did he have an examination of some kind at Kaiser Hospital on the 10th?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the examination that he had?

A. To check the inside of his kidney.

Q. Were you present during that exam?

A. Yes.

Q. And did that exam take place?

A. And so was Vinnie.

Q. And that exam took place?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, the creatinine clearance, tell us what that is, please.

A. The creatinine clearance is a 24-hour urine collection to check on Gavin’s kidney.

Q. And was there some piece of equipment that he had to have to collect it in?

A. Yes. It’s a big, giant jug that -- it’s made to collect urine.

Q. Now, I’m told that this is not a used exhibit.

A. Okay.

Q. And this is No. 349. Can you tell us if this Exhibit No. 349 is similar or dissimilar --

A. It’s similar, but it’s not it.

Q. It’s not the same?

A. No.

Q. Tell us how that is different from the one that you had.

A. Okay. It doesn’t have this, this thing, at all. It’s just completely closed.

Q. All right. Is the configur -- and the thing that you’re saying, “this thing” --

A. The cap. The cap.

Q. The cap is different on it?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, the cap on the one that you had, did it close in the same fashion?

A. It closed. It’s completely closed, sealed.

Q. So there wasn’t a part that you could open up?

A. There is no part that you can open up like that.

Q. On the one that you had, did it twist closed?

A. Yes.

Q. In the same fashion?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Was it --

A. It’s similar, the bottle, though.

Q. The bottle and the size was similar?
A. Yes.
Q. The cap on the one that you had, did it close to the same extent?
A. Completely sealed, because --
Q. You need to wait until the question is asked in its entirety.
A. Okay.
Q. The top, did it seal closed to the same extent that this one does?
A. Yes.
Q. So it twisted closed?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. The one that you had, was it as secure as the one that this is?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. All right. Now, was the color the same?
A. Yes, just about.

Q. All right. Where did you get that particular container, the one that --
A. At Kaiser at the laboratory.
Q. All right. Was that on the 25th?
A. That was on the 25th. And I was supposed to do that --
Q. Did you have a specific time schedule for returning it?
A. Immediately.
Q. All right. And it wasn’t done until the 10th?
A. It wasn’t done.
Q. All right. Whose idea was it to do it around the time of the 10th?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and answer.
A. Every time -- I had done these creatinine clearance already for years, since the year 2000.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Again, you need to listen to the question.

A. Okay.

Q. Whose idea was it to do it the 10th, you or somebody else?

A. I had kept having Gavin do the urine clearance, and every time there was an excuse why it couldn’t get turned in. It was lost; it was -- the urine wasn’t continued --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE WITNESS: That’s my answer.

MR. ZONEN: No, you need to listen to the question.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who decided to do it on the 10th?

A. I did.

Q. All right. That was the question.

A. But there was many times before --

Q. Hold on.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike as nonresponsive.

MR. ZONEN: Hold on. We’ll take care of it.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You need to listen to the question being asked.

Did you then give this container to Gavin to do this urine collection?

A. It had been given to him since the 25th.

Q. So he had it in his possession?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you have a conversation with Gavin about him collecting his urine?

A. Yes.

Q. At about that time?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it at least 24 hours prior to your going back to Los Angeles?

A. Yes, it had to be.

Q. Did you talk with him about collecting the urine during that time?

A. Yes. From the doctors.

Q. Yes. And, now, this is something he had done previously; is that right?

A. Yes. For years already.

Q. Now, to your understanding, did he begin collecting his urine?

A. He started collecting it from -- from like -- I think it was from the 2nd on, when we returned to Neverland. Because from the 25th to the 2nd when we were in the hotel, Frank had taken them away from us, because we weren't going to go to the doctors anymore.

Q. I didn't understand that. Frank actually took one of these containers away?

A. Yes, he took it away from Gavin.

Q. At the hotel?

A. At the motel.

Q. You had one of these at the hotel?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Gavin at 6301 Neverland about turning in this urine?

A. No, I didn't. I had told Vinnie and Vinnie had told Gavin. It was like I said; no more contact with my children from when we returned to --

Q. At some time prior to your going back to Los Angeles, did Gavin call you?

A. Yes. On March 10th.

Q. All right. Did he say something to you concerning the urine?

A. Yes.

Q. What --

A. It was about 4 a.m.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive and hearsay.

THE COURT: I'll strike after, "Yes."

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did he tell you about his urine sample?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: It would be a spontaneous declaration and an excitable utterance.

MR. MESEREAU: No foundation.

MR. ZONEN: It also explains the conduct of the parties thereafter.

THE COURT: I'll overrule the objection.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. What did he say to you about the urine sample?

A. He called me about 4 a.m., and -- he had phoned into the guesthouse, into the room I was.

And he had told me, "Mommy, we need to reschedule," because this was the end --

Q. Just tell us what he said.

A. Okay. Every time I wanted to do a creatinine clearance, they would always say no. Finally, I was using this appointment --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You need to tell us -- the question specifically is, what did Gavin tell you?

A. Gavin had called me about 4 a.m., and he had told me that Michael was scared because he had drank some Jesus Juice; that it was going to be detected in his urine.

And that's when I told him, "Baby, what do you mean."

THE COURT: Wait, stop. He just asked what Gavin said.

THE WITNESS: Oh, okay.

THE COURT: Just stop.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know what "Jesus Juice" was?

A. I had asked what "Jesus Juice" was.

Q. Did he tell you what "Jesus Juice" was?

A. Wine.

Q. Was this the first time you knew that he had been --

A. This is the first time.

Q. You need to listen to the question.

Was this the first time you had learned that Gavin was drinking alcohol?

A. Yes.

Q. When did you leave to go to the hospital?

A. From 4 a.m., I didn’t sleep anymore. It was -- I tried to get them up about 6:00. Nobody could find Gavin, so we left there in the morning.
Q. What do you mean, “Nobody could find Gavin”?
A. They couldn’t find Gavin.
Q. Did --
A. The security people. And they said that, “They’re with Michael,” and that was it; that they needed Jesus’s help to locate Michael with the boys.
Q. All right. Now, how did you find Gavin that morning? How were you able to find Gavin?
A. Well, finally Jesus brought him over.
Q. At what time was that?
A. That was -- I don’t know. I don’t know. We were supposed to leave Neverland at 7:00, and I know we didn’t because --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.
THE WITNESS: I can’t -- so it had to be after 7:00, because we didn’t leave at --
THE COURT: Just a moment.
THE WITNESS: Okay. Yes, sir.
THE COURT: I’ll strike that. Ask the question again.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know what time it was you left Neverland?
A. No. It was after 7:00, my best estimate.
Q. Were you up from four o’clock in the morning?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Gavin with you when you left?
A. Yes. And so was Vinnie.
Q. Did you have the container of urine with you?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was holding on to the container?
A. Gavin handed it to me.
Q. So you were holding on to it during the drive?
A. Yes. Oh, yes, I was.
Q. Where were you sitting in the car?
A. I was sitting in the front of the car, in the front seat, and Gavin handed it to me.

Q. All right. Did you hold on to it for the length of the drive?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where was Gavin sitting?

A. Gavin was laid out, passed out in the back seat.

Q. He was asleep?

A. In deep sleep.

Q. And was it Vinnie who was driving?

A. Yes. It was Vinnie.

Q. Anybody else in the car?

A. No. Just me, Vinnie, and -- me, Vinnie and Gavin, and -- and those people.

Q. At some point in time, did you stop on your way to the hospital?

A. Yes.

Q. Why did you stop?

A. I -- I had to go -- I had to use the rest room really bad, because I had been drinking the whole entire time to keep me up, so I wouldn’t fall back to sleep.

Q. Drinking what?

A. I kept drinking coffee.

Q. Okay. You had to use the rest room?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you stop?

A. I stopped at Denny’s, and I tried to hold it so much.

Q. Did you -- do you know where it was that you stopped?

A. No.

Q. The location?

A. No.

Q. Do you know how long you were in the car at the time that you stopped to use the rest room?

A. I don’t know. My best estimate, maybe halfway.

Q. Did you then go into the restaurant?

A. Yes, I went into Denny’s.

Q. When you came back out, where was the car?

A. Gone.

Q. How long did you wait for the car to return?

A. Maybe about -- maybe about not more than five minutes. It was just minutes.

Q. Was Gavin still asleep in the back?

A. He was asleep.

Q. All right. And did you talk to Vinnie about where he had been?

A. Yeah. I asked him, “Where did you go?” He says, “Oh, I went driving around.” I’m thinking, “We’ve just been driving for a long time. Why would you need to drive any more?”

Q. Did you get back in the car and proceed to the hospital?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you notice the urine sample at that time?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you notice about the urine sample?

A. I noticed that the bag had been moved a little bit, okay?

Q. It was in a bag?

A. Yes, in a paper bag, okay? So then I said, “Okay,” so then I picked it up. And when I picked it up -- when it had urine, it’s heavy. And it was light. And there was only -- do I continue?

Q. You --

A. There was only this much urine in it.

Q. All right. Did you ask Vinnie -- was the top sealed back on?

A. It was sealed back on and it was like a little bit wet.

Q. All right.

A. And it wasn’t closed tight, though, because when Gavin had handed it to me, it’s customarily that I always check the cap.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When you noticed that the container was missing, did you say anything to Vinnie?

A. The container wasn't missing. It was --

Q. The content of the container was substantially less than before; is that right?

A. Yes. I asked him -- it was only this much in there.

Q. How much had been in there up to that time?

A. Almost this way.

Q. And by "this way," you mean about 90 --

A. About this full.

Q. About 90 percent full?

A. About this full. And then there was this much after I went to Denny's.

Q. Maybe 10 percent full?

A. About this much.

Q. Okay.

A. I don't know percent.

Q. That's okay.

All right. Did you ask him what happened?

A. Yes. I said, "What happened?"

Q. What did he say?

A. And he didn't answer me. And then he just commented, "Oh, it must have fallen."

Q. I'm sorry?

A. He said -- he commented -- because he didn't answer me. And then he said, "It must have fallen."

And that's it. I knew at that point, zip the lip.

Q. All right. But were you able to tell --

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you able to tell whether urine had spilled into the car or not?

A. There was no urine odor, wasn't wet, nothing like that.

Q. You weren't able to see any evidence that urine spilled inside --

A. That's right.

Q. Listen to the question in its entirety.

You weren’t able to see any evidence of urine having been spilled anywhere inside the car?
A. That’s correct.
Q. Did you ask Vinnie to explain how it happened?
A. I asked him what happened. He didn’t answer. But afterwards he had commented.
Q. What did he comment to you about?
A. “It must have fallen.”
Q. Did you continue on to Kaiser Hospital?
A. Yes, I did. And I stood quiet.
Q. And did Gavin, in fact, have the test that he was supposed to have at that time?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
MR. ZONEN: I’ll withdraw the question.
Q. Did Gavin go into the hospital --
A. Yes.
Q. -- with you?
A. Yes.
Q. Was Vinnie there?
A. Yes.
Q. Was the urine sample turned in?
A. Yeah. I turned it in and --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.
MR. ZONEN: The question is, was it turned in, and she said yes.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Where did you turn it in?
A. In to the laboratory.
Q. Did you talk with anybody there about the content of the bottle?
A. They said --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The question is, did you --
A. Yes.
Q. Yes or no?
Okay. And did you at that time turn it in?
A. Yes.
Q. Prior to your leaving the car to go to the rest room, how tight was the top of that container --

A. It was --
Q. Wait till the question is answered (sic).
A. Okay.
Q. How tight was the top of the container screwed onto the container?
A. It was tight.
Q. Was that your habit and custom each time?
A. It was a habit and custom, because I always had to travel with the urine on a bus, so --
Q. Do you know how long you were at the hospital, Kaiser Hospital, with Vinnie and with Gavin?

A. Well, when I went to go try to turn that in to the laboratory, and then we went to the appointment, which was in a different building.
Q. All right. And after you left that building, where did you go?
A. Then I went to the apartment.
Q. You went to whose apartment?
A. Jay’s apartment.
Q. Was Jay there?
A. Jay was not there.
Q. Was Vinnie with you?
A. Vinnie was with me.
Q. Was Gavin with you?
A. Gavin was with me. But they didn’t go into the apartment.
Q. How long did you stay at the apartment?
A. Long enough to ask Jay to meet me at the nail shop.
Q. All right. Did you call Jay from the nail shop or from the apartment?
A. I called him from the apartment and told him to -- you know, because since they’re monitoring my phone calls, like I told you how I would speak to people. And then I told him, “Oh, why don’t you meet me in” -- “at the nail shop.”
Q. All right. Did you then go to the nail shop?
A. I did go to the nail shop.

Q. Was he there when you got there?

A. No, he wasn’t there.

Q. Did you have whatever they do at a nail shop done?

A. No. I had used the -- their phone. I had waited for Vinnie to cross the street, and that’s when I did it.

Q. What do they do, manicures at a nail shop?

A. They do manicuring and waxing there.

Q. Did you have any of that done?

A. I had done only a leg wax.

Q. Did you have a manicure?

A. No.

Q. Where was Vinnie while you were having a leg wax done?

A. Okay. He had came in --

Q. No, no. Where was Vinnie when you were doing --

A. Me, Vinnie and Gavin, when we originally arrived at the nail shop, we were all three together.

Q. And while you were having this procedure --

A. No.

Q. -- where was he?

A. First Vinnie checked the area out. And then I told her, “I came here for a leg wax.”

Q. While you were having the leg wax, where was Vinnie?

A. Then he saw that I was going to do the leg wax, and then that’s when he walked across the street.

Q. So he left?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was Gavin?

A. With him.

Q. He was with him?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Jay eventually arrive?

A. That’s when I called Jay to come.

Q. So you called him a second time --

A. Yes.

Q. -- from the beauty salon?
A. Yes.
Q. And did he, in fact, come?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Now, did you go back with Vinnie?
A. No.
Q. At some point in time, did Vinnie come back and see Jay?
A. Oh, yeah.
Q. What happened?
A. He turned red.
Q. Vinnie did?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did Vinnie say something to Jay or to you?

A. He said, "Okay. Let's go now, Janet."
Q. What did you say in response to that?
A. I told him that I kind of wanted to stay since I had a Family Court appointment the next day. And so I told -- I used that as a reason why I could stay, me -- me and Gavin.
Q. All right. Did you want to stay with Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. Your other two children were still at Neverland?
A. Yes. But I had to do everything as if -- not to raise suspicion.
Q. Did you say something to Vinnie specifically that you were not going back?
A. Yes.
Q. What did he say?
A. "No. That's not part of the plan."
Q. Now, was Gavin standing there at the time?
A. Yes.
Q. How was Gavin behaving?
A. At that time he's just -- he's just observing.
Q. All right.
A. It's until he talks to Frank that he gets -- he becomes distressed.
Q. Are you aware as to whether or not Vinnie got on the phone with anyone?

A. Yes, he did. He goes, “I got to call Frank.”

Q. And did he, in fact, call Frank?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did he have a conversation with Frank in your presence?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Were you able to hear what he was saying to Frank?

A. No, but Gavin got on the phone calls.

Q. You noticed that Gavin was on the phone as well?

A. Yes, because Vinnie wanted to talk to Frank -- to Gavin. Frank wanted to talk to Gavin.

Q. Was Jay Jackson there during this conversation?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Jay Jackson in uniform?

A. Yes.

Q. And what kind of a uniform does he wear during the day?

A. His military uniform. A camouflage.

Q. Camouflage. That’s his daily uniform; is that right?

A. Yes. That’s his work uniform.

Q. At some point in time, was it decided who was going to go back to Neverland and who was going to stay?

A. Jay got upset that Frank -- that Vinnie had said no. So then Jay starts -- he starts becoming a little bit -- I don’t know if “confrontational” is a correct word. I don’t know. But a little -- you can see that he’s upset. So I -- and then that’s when Frank -- another time he goes out right there, right outside the nail shop door.

And then that’s when I tell Jay, I said, “Please, Jay, please, Davellin and Star are there. Just play along. Just play along.”

Q. So who went back to Neverland?

A. Vinnie and Gavin.

Q. Why did you agree for Gavin to go back to Neverland?

A. Well, because. When Vinnie came back, I said, “Vinnie, Vinnie, I just want to spend some time alone with Jay. You know, that kind of stuff. That’s all. You know, we’ll” -- “We’ll see each other back in” -- “in the Family Court.” You know, you just bring all my kids, and I’ll go back. I just kind of want to spend some of that kind of time, quality time, with Jay.”

So then when -- when he saw me behave that way, then he says, “Okay.” He agreed to that.

Q. All right. Family Court?

A. Yeah.

Q. All right. Tell us about Family Court. Did you have an appearance in Family Court?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And when was that appearance scheduled for?

A. It was the next day.

Q. And had you already told them about that --

A. Yes.

Q. -- the Family Court appearance?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is it that you told about the Family Court appearance?

A. Frank and Vinnie knew.

Q. Did you know whether or not your children had to be at that appearance at Family Court?

A. I knew that they didn’t have to be there. But again, it’s like that orthodontist visit. I had said they had to be there.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE COURT: I’ll strike after, “I knew they didn’t have to be there.”

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The question was whether you knew whether or not the kids had to be there. And the answer was you knew?

A. I knew they didn’t have to be there.

Q. They didn’t have to be there.

Did you tell Frank or Vinnie --

A. No, I didn’t tell them that. I told them that they had to be there.

Q. And who was it you told, Frank or Vinnie or both?

A. Both.
Q. What was the purpose of the Family Court session on the 11th?
A. Because I was finally going to be awarded support.
Q. All right. It was a spousal support, or a child support --
A. Spousal support, child support, all that.
Q. Were you represented by an attorney during that time?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Who was the attorney?
A. Michael Manning.
Q. Family law lawyer?
A. Yes. That I’ve had for years, already years.
Q. All right. Did Vinnie represent that he would or would not bring the children back for this appearance?
A. He said he will bring all three of my kids back.
Q. Did you spend the night in Los Angeles?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. The next day was the Family Court appearance?
A. Yes. And now I’ve told Jay everything that night.
Q. So you had a complete conversation?

A. Told him everything.
Q. All right. Now, did you have an understanding with Vinnie as to how you would get to the Family Court appearance the next day?
A. Yes. The condition --
Q. Yes or no.
A. Oh. Yes.
Q. Okay. You’re doing better.
A. Okay.

Q. All right. Now, at what time was that appearance?

A. The appearance, I don’t remember, but maybe 8:00 or --

Q. It was a morning appearance?

A. It was a morning.

Q. How were you going to get to the court appearance?

A. The condition was Vinnie was going to pick me up and take me there.

Q. And the kids?

A. With him.

Q. All right. Did Vinnie arrive the next morning?

A. He did. He went all the way to Neverland and arrived early that morning.

Q. All right. When he arrived, did he have the kids with him?

A. He had no kids with him.

Q. Did he explain to you why the kids weren’t there?

A. He said I had to go back.

Q. He said you had to go back?

A. I had to go back.

Q. All right. Did you go to the Family Court appearance with Vinnie?

A. I did.

Q. And at the conclusion of the Family Court appearance, where did you go?

A. I went back to -- I went back to Jay’s.

Q. Did he take you back to Jay’s?

A. He took me back to Jay’s.

Q. You did not go back to Neverland?

A. I didn’t go back to Neverland.

Q. Did you ever go back to Neverland?

A. I never went back to Neverland.

Q. Now, this is now the 11th of March; is that right?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Did you engage in some effort at this point to get your kids delivered to Los Angeles?

A. I did.

Q. All right. What was this effort? What did you do?

A. When Jay came home, we called Karen Walker, the supervisor of the -- I don’t know. CPS, DCFS, that. And I and Jay both talked to her, and she said, “It’s out of my hands. It’s out of my hands. Go get yourself some legal help. I’m sorry, I can’t help you.” That’s what she said.

Q. Was Karen --

A. Karen Walker said that.

Q. Hold on.

Was Karen Walker one of the three that had been to Jay’s --

A. Yes.

Q. Listen to the whole question.

Was Karen Walker one of the three workers who had been to Jay’s apartment on the day of that interview on the 20th?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, after you called Karen Walker, what did you then do?

A. She didn’t help us, me or Jay. We both talked to them, and so we were trying to find a way where we can go get the kids where they wouldn’t do anything before we got the kids.

Q. What did you decide to do?

A. For my parents to play sick. My -- specifically my dad.

Q. So did you have one of your parents call Neverland?

A. Okay. When Jay returned to work, he called from his work, because now he’s aware that our phone calls are being monitored.

Q. So he called from work to whom?

A. To my parents.

Q. And talked with who, your father?

A. With my dad, and -- well, my dad and mom, but my mom speaks only Spanish, so my dad told my mom.

Q. Okay. And in that process communicated to them this plan?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Now, were the kids at some point in time then delivered to your parents’ house?

A. Yes, I negotiated for my kids. I told them I would give them myself in exchange for my parents being able to see my children.

Q. Who did you talk to?

A. To Frank.

Q. And did you tell him that; that you would --

A. Yes.

Q. -- go back to Neverland?

A. Yes, I negotiated for one hour. One hour. And I got two. And then I got a day. And then I finally got two days.

Q. All right. So by the time you got off the phone with Frank, it was understood that your kids would visit for how long?

A. For two days.

Q. And that was a conversation that you had with Frank?

A. With Frank.

Q. And you were placing that phone call to Frank, or he called you? Which?

A. Let me see. I had originally -- as Jay’s calling my parents, I’m calling Frank. And I’m letting him know.

Q. So you called Frank?

A. Yes.

Q. And you called from which telephone?

A. From Jay’s apartment.

Q. And you called Frank on the number that you had for him?

A. I think -- I don’t know whether it was his number or Neverland number, but on the other line was Frank, on the other end of the line.

Q. Were your kids, in fact, delivered to your parents?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it that day or the next day?

A. That day.

Q. Were you present at the time --

A. And I was made aware that our every step is being watched.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you there at the time your kids were delivered to your parents’ house?

A. No, I was --
Q. Do you know what time it was that you finally saw your kids?
A. In the evening.
Q. Did you go with Jay?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. At the time you got to your parents’ house, who is present? Who was there?
A. My mom and dad and my three children.
Q. How were your children behaving at that time? Let me be more specific. How was Gavin behaving at the time you got there?
A. They were not my kids anymore.
Q. Well, describe Gavin’s behavior specifically, how he was behaving.
A. He didn’t want to talk to Jay.
Q. We’re talking about Gavin right now.
A. Yeah.
Q. Describe Gavin’s behavior specifically.
A. Angry, violent. Yeah.
Q. Did you tell him that he was not going back to Neverland?
A. Yeah.
Q. And you say “angry” and “violent.” What do you mean? Describe what he was doing or what he was saying.
A. Just hollering, telling me that -- yelling at me at the top of his lungs that Michael loves him, and that he had to go back.

Q. All right. Were you the one telling him he wasn’t going back?
A. That’s right.
Q. How long did his behavior continue that way?

A. For hours.
Q. How long was it before his behavior was back to normal?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; no foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You can answer the question.
A. It took a long time.
Q. And what is that, “a long time”? Give me a sense of it.
A. I can’t.
Q. Are we talking about days or weeks or months?
A. It took weeks.
Q. Weeks?
When did you tell either Frank or Vinnie that none of you were going back to Neverland?
A. Excuse me. I didn’t call Frank or Vinnie.
We contacted Jesus the very next day.
Q. You contacted Jesus?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you tell him?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. What happened after you told Jesus?
A. And we weren’t coming back. And the only reason we contacted Jesus was because when the children were leaving, Frank had taken away all of the new clothes that they had purchased, plus some of my children’s clothing also in the -- in the removing the new clothes, because Frank had told them that they had to come back if they wanted their new clothes.
Q. When they came to your mother’s house, do you know if they actually had anything with them when they came?
A. Gavin wasn’t allowed to bring nothing.
Zero.
Q. And how about the other two?
A. The other two did bring their luggages and my bag with them.
Q. Did you start receiving telephone calls or visits?

A. Yes.

Q. All right.

A. Immediately.

Q. And in terms of visits, who was it who came to the house?

A. It wasn't visiting. It was -- it was following us in a very, very visual way. Knocks. Throwing rocks. Following us. Very -- they weren't hiding about it. They were in-my-face type of attitude.

Q. Do you know --

A. To come back.

Q. Are we talking about people who now are new, people-you-hadn't-seen people, or --

A. Okay.

Q. Wait till the question is answered (sic).

A. Okay.

Q. Are you talking about people you hadn't seen before or people that you were familiar with?

A. People that I hadn't seen before. And also, in addition to that, new ones.

Q. Among the people that you had seen before, tell us who they were.

A. The people that I seen before was Johnny, Frank and Vinnie. And then some other people.

Q. You actually saw Frank and Vinnie at some location?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. Where?

A. At Jay's apartment. And I knew it, because I looked through the peephole.

Q. Did you stay at your parents' house?

A. No.

Q. Did you go to Jay's?

A. Jay's.

Q. Did you stay anyplace but Jay's thereafter?

A. Only Jay's. And I enrolled Davellin, because I believe in, you know --

Q. No, the question is whether you stayed at some other location.

A. No, just Jay’s.

Q. For what period of time did you stay at Jay’s?

A. From that point on, till now.

Q. Your Soto Street apartment was now vacated?

A. Gone.

Q. You said that you saw Frank and Vinnie at Jay’s. Did you actually talk to them?

A. No. I didn’t open the door.

Q. You saw them through the peephole?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Both of them together or on different occasions?

A. Well, on this occasion they were both together.

Q. Were they saying anything to you?

A. Yeah. “Open the door.” Just knocking.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know who it was who was talking to you through the door?

A. Frank. I could see him through the -- I could see everything.

Q. Were you able to hear his voice?

A. Yes.

Q. You could hear what he was saying?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you recognize his voice?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you engage either one of them in conversation through the door?

A. No. Zero.

Q. Did you acknowledge to them that you were there?

A. No. Didn’t even want to let them know that I was there. But they knew. Because Frank was saying, “I know you’re in there.”

Q. Were you receiving telephone calls as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Continuously?

A. Continuously.

Q. Were you answering any of the calls?

A. No. No more answering.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Vinnie or Frank?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see Johnny?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Where did you see Johnny?

A. On my front door. And also there was one time when I was watching through the peephole, he had slipped a note through the side of Jay’s apartment. Before -- before they had put this thing around there, it was open all the way around, and so he slipped a note through there. And I saw him writing it.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Exhibit No. 277, please, for identification, have you seen that exhibit before?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Is that the note that you just described?

A. Yes, this -- this is the note.

Q. And how do you know that it was Johnny who left that note?

A. Because I’m looking at him while he’s writing it. I’m looking at him as he’s slipping it in.

Q. Okay. And he left that note where?

A. At Jay’s apartment.

Q. And that’s the note you then turned over to law enforcement?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. ZONEN: Move to --

THE WITNESS: I put it in --

MR. ZONEN: Move to admit that exhibit into evidence, please.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, may I publish that note, please?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, it appears there’s something on the front and on the back; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the back part? I’m assuming that’s the back. What does that say?

A. It says, “To Star or Gavin.”

Q. And then on the front it says?

A. It says, “Please call Frank, Vinnie, at emergency, 1-805-686-5466.” And it says “Now,” and it’s underlined.

Q. The top part’s in red. “Now” is in what color?

A. Blue.

Q. And the back, “To Star or Gavin,” is?

A. In black.

Q. Is that the front of the note that’s 277, Exhibit 277? Miss Arvizo, is that, in fact, what we’re looking at, the same thing?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And I’m going to turn it over at this time. And this is the part that says, “To Star or Gavin”?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, in response to that note, did you call either Star or Gavin?

A. No. No.

Q. I’m sorry, did you -- did you call either Frank or Vinnie in response to that?

A. No more. And then --

Q. Do you recall at this point you had any conversations with Frank or Vinnie?

A. No more.

Q. For what period of time did this continue, the phone calls and things like that?

A. It -- it went for months.

Q. You said at one point stones were thrown?

A. Yes. At my mom’s house.

Q. Did you ever see who was doing that?

A. No, I didn’t. Davellin saw him.

Q. All right. But you were not present at the time it happened?

A. No. It was my mom and Davellin present.

Q. Now, I think that you had also said that people were following you?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you become aware of the fact that people were following you?

A. Because now they were in my face.

Q. And explain what that means.

A. Meaning before, everything was being done a little bit -- a little bit secretly. And now it was -- I mean, it was more intimidating than it was before. That’s the best I can say.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Could you tell who it was who was following you?

A. Yes. Johnny. And then some of those other people that I had told you I never came to know who they were. And this is the first time I also saw a female and -- because the rest were always male. And then --

Q. Did you recognize any of them, other than Johnny?

A. Only Johnny. And then -- and then they were replaced by some other people.

Q. How were you aware of the fact that people were following you? I mean, what is it that you noticed specifically?

A. Well, I’m in the lane, they change the lane. I’m in a lane, they change a lane. I get off, they get off. I go to my under -- Jay’s underground parking, they’re right there. When I’m -- when Gavin went to church, one of these -- there’s -- there’s -- I don’t know what kind of camera, but it’s kind of like this, right there. Just right there, showing me that they’re doing it.

Q. All right. Now, at some point in time, were you actually shown video images of yourself and your family?

A. Barely now. Just the other day. Mr. Zonen showed it to me.
Q. All right. Did you see other images at the time of the grand jury?
A. No --
Q. Okay.
A. -- I didn't.
Q. You have no recollection of seeing other images?
A. No.
MR. ZONEN: All right. Your Honor, Exhibit No. 813 is a DVD. I've consulted with counsel. We've agreed it can be played at this time. There's no sound, so there's no transcript.
Q. Now, you've had an opportunity to view these images in advance; is that correct?
A. Yes. Yes, Mr. Zonen.
Q. And you have recognized the people in it; is that correct?
A. Yes.
THE COURT: How long is it?
MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry?
THE COURT: How long is it?
MR. ZONEN: Five minutes. Five, six minutes. About that, I think. If we can, let's go ahead.
Q. Excuse me one second.

Part of this, as well, is of your apartment on Soto Street, is it not?
A. Yes.
Q. There appears to be people moving your things out?
A. Yes.
Q. And that's at the very end of it?
A. Yes.
MR. ZONEN: Let me revise it. I think it's more like ten minutes.
THE COURT: Is this the PC, "No. 1"?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It is, Your Honor.
THE COURT: You're ready?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: We’re ready.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 813, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, they added the title to that. I didn’t approve that. That’s nothing we’ve seen before. Mr. Zonen added it. It’s not part of the original, so we object to this.

MR. ZONEN: Well, I -- all right.

MR. MESEREAU: We object on foundation and authenticity and that it’s been tampered with.

THE COURT: All right. The --

MR. ZONEN: I’d like to be heard on that issue.

THE COURT: You may, but -- maybe what we’ll do --

MR. ZONEN: All right. There is --

THE COURT: I think we’ll -- I think we’ll excuse the jury, and let you discuss it with me. That way they’ll get a little extra break here.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. ZONEN: Are we back in session?

THE COURT: We are back in session. Mr. Mesereau.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Maybe you want to -- can you move it back to the opening screen so we can look at what the objection was about?

MR. ZONEN: While he’s doing it, I can explain what the understanding was that we had that preexisted the showing.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It’s up, Your Honor, if you go to “Input 1.”

THE COURT: This is what you were objecting to, Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: I explained --

THE COURT: Could I have Mr. Mesereau's objection, so I fully understand it?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

This particular wording is not part of the original tape. It's been added by the prosecution. It was not disclosed to me. It was done to influence the jury. There's been no foundation laid that these are Brad Miller's surveillance tapes at all. The numbers have been added by them.

THE COURT: So, to be specific, what we're looking at is the "Brad Miller Surveillance Videotape, Item 811, 812, 816 and 815," and that was not on the --

MR. MESEREAU: No, not --

THE COURT: -- not on the DVD that you saw?

MR. MESEREAU: Not that I have seen.

They have laid no foundation to prove that Brad Miller arranged to have these tapes made. They have thrown different names around, Johnny and Asaf, et cetera. They have not ever proven who these people actually worked for. They haven't proven who did the surveillance. They haven't laid a foundation to where they found these tapes and whether or not they've been tampered with. There's no authenticity. There's no foundation. There's no logical connection, and they basically tampered with the tapes by adding these words.

THE COURT: Was there an agreement.

MR. MESEREAU: Not to have this. That's a surprise to me.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: Well, counsel knows that they're not tampered with at all.

And furthermore, we had a discussion in advance of showing this where I explained to counsel that there were two witnesses who will subsequently lay a foundation. The first witness who will testify that these -- that this is a compilation of tapes that were -- it's -- it's put now onto one DVD that were, in fact, a compilation of tapes that were seized from - guess where? - Brad Miller's office. And the second witness will be the one who actually seized the tapes from Brad Miller's office.

All right. Now, the content of the surveillance thereafter is identical. Nobody has touched anything on there, and counsel knows that.

My --

MR. MESEREAU: I don't know that.

MR. ZONEN: I had asked him if it would be agreeable that we could show this in advance of the other two witnesses laying the foundation; one, that they were seized from Brad Miller's office; and number two, that they were compiled into one DVD for ease of showing at this time, and he agreed to that.

My suggestion at this time is that you instruct the jury to disregard this frame on it, and we will commence the showing from the point where the car is in -- in session.

MR. MESEREAU: We object on foundational and authenticity, Your Honor. And we'd ask that the individual tapes be played, not their concoction.

MR. ZONEN: Well, you know, I had asked his permission and he gave it to me to do so.

MR. MESEREAU: To play videotapes.

MR. ZONEN: Wait a second.

I am relying upon his representation of what he said he was agreeing for us to do.

THE COURT: Sounds like he thought you were going to play two separate --

MR. ZONEN: No, he didn't. I made it --

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, I did. Nowhere was this ever described to me.

MR. ZONEN: I made it very clear that we compiled it into one DVD. Now, this I did not say. This I didn't know was going to be shown.

THE COURT: What's the -- what's the compilation? Is it a serial, just the first one and then the second one?

MR. ZONEN: Yes; one right after the other.

THE COURT: You intermixed the two?

MR. ZONEN: We can show it to you right now.

It only takes a couple minutes, if you'd like to see

it.

THE COURT: I thought you said ten minutes.

MR. ZONEN: The bulk of it is the cleaning out of the apartment, which is one separate tape, but the initial surveillance is less than five minutes, of different segments of surveillance.

MR. MESEREAU: I might suggest, Your Honor, that the cleaning out of the apartment, as I understand it, was to show what was being moved in or out, and it's not a surveillance tape. That is their concoction.

MR. ZONEN: Once again, this was something counsel approved of.

MR. MESEREAU: No, I didn't.

MR. ZONEN: He's lying. That's simply not true.

MR. MESEREAU: He's lying.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: I'll take a polygraph.

MR. MESEREAU: You'll fail it.

THE COURT: Just a moment. I don't want to hear anything like that. You don't accuse each other of lying. There's a misunderstanding here. You've added something. And that's not professional conduct. I won't put up with that. Do you understand, Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

THE COURT: And you are not to respond to him. You two talk to me.

MR. MESEREAU: I apologize, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Now, I think what we'll do is, I will explain to the jury that the initial title of the tape was added by the District Attorney, and they're to disregard that; that this is a compilation of two separate videos, and that it's being entered with --

MR. ZONEN: Let me have just one moment, please. Let me have one moment.

MR. MESEREAU: If I may, Your Honor, it's four videos they're made to look like one. They're not one at all.

MR. ZONEN: Let me have just one moment.

THE COURT: All right.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. MESEREAU: If I may address the Court, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Wait till he’s through with his conference.

MR. MESEREAU: Sure.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we’re going to play the original ones. We’re going -- as soon as we get it. We will not play this one. We will do the originals. We don’t have them here. We’re going to make arrangements to get them as quickly as we can.

THE COURT: All right. I think I -- I think I find that to be an acceptable way to proceed. I do want to tell the jury, though, when they come back in that the initial title they saw was, in fact, added by you, and not part of the seized tapes. They were tapes, right?

MR. ZONEN: Yes. The original videotapes have been transposed to a DVD.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: Ron?

Can I just have one moment?

THE COURT: Yes.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. ZONEN: The problem that we’re dealing with at this moment is that all of the detectives are currently at a funeral, and I’m not sure that we’re going to be able to get -- are we --

THE COURT: Let me tell you, what we’ll do is, you know, we’ll start our break now that we normally take at 1:15. So, the jury’s already out, so we won’t bring them back in. And we’ll just start our break, and take a -- let’s take a 20-minute break, and then you can decide how you’re going to proceed on the break. What we do know is you’re not going to --

MR. ZONEN: I will be not showing this one. I will show the originals.

THE COURT: And I do want to remember, when they come back in, to tell them to disregard the opening title. And -- okay? Any objection to that?

MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Let’s start our break, then.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can you go to “Black Screen,” Your Honor? Thank you.

(Recess taken.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we’re going to withdraw this exhibit at this time and we’re going to play it tomorrow morning.

THE COURT: (To the jury) All right. On the exhibit that we started to show you just before the break, there was a label, a heading on it, and the label was not part of the seized exhibit. It was added by the District Attorney as a title, and I’m going to instruct you to disregard that label and do not consider it in any way in your deliberations in the case. And you’ll -- you will see the material but it will come in in a different form than it was going to come in today.

All right. You may proceed.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Resumed)

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Arvizo, by the time that you got back to El Monte and then back to your residence in Los Angeles, how long had the children been out of school?

A. About less than two months. Less than.

Q. Did they have any instruction during that period of time at all?

A. None. Zero.

Q. Did you have, during that period of time, a conversation with either Michael Jackson or Vinnie or Frank about them getting tutoring?

A. Yeah. We had to go to Brazil if we wanted to get tutored.

Q. Who was that you had a conversation with?

A. With Frank and Vinnie.

Q. At different times or together?

A. Different times, together.

Q. What did Frank tell you specifically about tutoring?

A. That if I wanted a tutor for my children, that we had to leave the country and go to Brazil; that they could provide a tutor there. Everything was always Brazil.

Q. All right. Was there any mention by either Frank or Vinnie that a tutor had already been arranged in Brazil?

A. I can’t remember that.

Q. All right. Did either one of them tell you where specifically in Brazil you were going to be going?

A. Yes.

Q. Where?

A. In Brazil, it had to be in a place where there was no American hotels, no hotels, so no one could notice me and my children.

Q. Did they tell you whether any of them, meaning Frank or Vinnie, would be going with you to Brazil?

A. Yes. Frank and Vinnie and Brad Miller and Marc Schaffel had already prepared an apartment full of surveillance and everything there. This is what Frank and Vinnie told me.

Q. Did they tell you what city in Brazil?

A. No. They did tell me that it was away from any hotel.

Q. Did they tell you what size city or community or town you would be going to?

A. No.

Q. Did they tell you how long you would be there?

A. Until they did damage control for Mr. Jackson. And I followed everything that they said. There may be a possibility that I could come back, depending on what I did.

Q. Did they actually tell you in terms of days or weeks or months?

A. At this point, no. It was until they decided.

Q. Did they tell you whether or not Mr. Jackson would be joining you there in Brazil?

A. No. Mr. Jackson would not be joining us there.

Q. Did either of them say that specifically?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. Frank and Vinnie. And remember, this is an evolution, different times --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike her comments.

THE COURT: I'll strike the last sentence.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you recall when the conversation was specifically with Frank about whether or not Michael Jackson would be joining you there?

A. That was towards the end. There was going to be just me and my kids, and -- in the apartment that Brad Miller, Marc Schaffel had prepared full of high-tech monitoring surveilling system, surveilling me and the kids, and --

Q. Did your two sons and Davellin enroll back in school again?

A. Yes, I enrolled them back in school.

Q. Which school did the boys enroll in?

A. The boys re -- I reenrolled them back into John Burroughs.

Q. Did you continue living at the St. Andrews apartment?
A. I now began living in the St. Andrews apartment.
Q. Full time?
A. Full time in a one-bedroom apartment, now with Jay.
Q. Where did Davellin reenroll in?
A. I enrolled her in a high school near my mom’s out in El Monte.
Q. This is a different high school --
A. Different high school.
Q. Hold on. Wait till the question is asked. This is a different high school than the one prior to going to Miami?
A. That’s correct, it’s a different high school now.
Q. And which high school was it in El Monte?
A. Now it’s Mountain View High School.
Q. And did she live with your parents?
A. Now my daughter began living with my parents.
Q. Where does she live now?

A. My -- my daughter lives with us now.
Q. Were you able to get your possessions back?
A. Until the police got involved.
Q. Did you know -- by “possessions,” I mean your possessions from the Soto Street address.
A. That’s correct.
Q. What did you have at the Soto Street address at the time that it was moved from that location?
A. All my stuff. All my stuff from my apartment.
Q. What do you mean by “stuff”?
A. My furniture, the -- what was still there, because some -- some of these things got rid of.
Q. All right.
A. Our clothing. Our --
Let me see. What else?
Q. Did you have furniture?
A. No. The only thing that they left in there was my kitchen table with my kitchen chairs.

Q. All right. But was there some understanding with either Frank or Vinnie or somebody else that your possessions would either be stored or moved?

A. No. At this point it was a no. Remember I said I would think about it? And then I finally said no.

Q. When you finally got your possessions back, was what was returned to you everything that existed in the apartment?

A. No.

Q. What was missing?

A. What was missing was all of -- everything to do with Mr. Jackson. Everything.

Q. How about furnishings, furniture?

A. My kitchen table, my chairs were returned back to me.

Q. Okay.

A. My children’s clothing, my clothing. My pictures that were hanging on my wall.

Q. Were returned?

A. Were returned.

Q. Okay.

A. And -- but all the stuff that Mr. Jackson had given Gavin were gone.

Q. Did you have kitchen appliances of sorts?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Pots and pans?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Silverware?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Plates?

A. Yes.

Q. Cups?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that all returned?

A. Yes.

Q. Prior to going to Miami had you moved any of your possessions to Jay’s apartment?

A. No.

Q. Did you seek help from anybody in an effort to get your property back?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Who?

A. From Mr. Dickerman.

Q. Before contacting Mr. Dickerman, did you contact anybody from Neverland to --

A. No.

Q. Wait till the whole question’s asked.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Before contacting Mr. Dickerman, did you contact anybody from Neverland in an effort to get your property returned?

A. No way.

Q. Did you have any other conversations with anybody from Neverland after you left?

A. No.

Q. Did you know where your possessions were?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Did Mr. Dickerman write a number of letters on your behalf?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Did you read those letters?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Had you noted -- had you seen your passports prior -- well, you answered that you had seen them with Frank; is that right?

A. No. Vinnie.

Q. I’m sorry, with Vinnie.

A. Yes.

Q. Were your passports among the items that were requested to be returned?

A. Yes.

Q. And I assume they were not returned to you?

A. They weren’t. They weren’t.

Q. Were there other personal items that were requested returned?

A. Yes. The children’s clothing. That’s one of them.

Q. Was there something else that you wanted Mr. Dickerman to do on your behalf?

A. Yes. For Michael’s people to stop following us; that we did not want to go back. To get the message, “Please, leave us alone.”

Q. Was that communicated in the form of a letter as well?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And do you know to whom those letters were sent?

A. To Mr. Geragos.

Q. Mark Geragos?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if your children were still appearing on television in that production “Living with Michael Jackson”?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Because Mr. Dickerman had told me, Jamie had told me.

Q. Others were telling you --

A. Others were telling us.

Q. -- that it was still being featured?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Dickerman on your behalf attempt to get your children off television?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. At some point in time -- I’d like to move back one second, if I could.

I believe that you had testified that the workers, the social workers from the Department of Child & Family Services, that interview was conducted on the 20th in the morning hours; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you see any of them the next day?

A. Yes, I did. On the 21st I did.

Q. Who did you see on the 21st?

A. I saw Karen Walker, the supervisor.

Q. What was the purpose of that meeting?

A. She had called -- like I had mentioned before, all my phone calls was being monitored every day, 24 hours a day. Monitored, listened, surveilled, watched, followed. Everything.

She had came -- she requested that I sign a paper that said I understood the language in English. Bilingual form.

Q. All right.

A. Over the phone. So I went ahead, I said, “Yes, please come.”

Q. And did you sign that document?

A. Yes. She came, she met me outside. And I tried to run around on her driver’s side to try to talk to her secretly, and at that time I’m being followed right here, and Vinnie’s right here, so I was unable to communicate to her. So when I ran around this way, now Vinnie comes up and talks to her, and I’m trying to talk where -- behind him to her.

Q. Was she in her car at the time?

A. She was in her car.

Q. Do you know what kind of a car she was driving?

A. I can’t remember.

Q. Do you know cars at all?

A. Yeah, I do.

Q. Was it a sedan, or some other kind of car?

A. No, no. It was kind of like a little -- kind of like a little -- I don’t know if it’s called a little SUV. I don’t know. Kind of like a Range Rover type of thing.

Q. Did you communicate to her anything other than the fact you spoke both English and Spanish?

A. No. But when Vinnie was talking to her, telling her that --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE COURT: I’ll strike after, “No.”

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did Vinnie say something to Karen Walker in your presence?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. All right. Where was Vinnie standing at the time?

A. Right there on the passenger-side window, talking to her.

Q. And where were you?

A. I was right here.

Q. I don’t know where “here” is.

A. Right behind him off to the side.

Q. You were on the passenger-side window as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And next to Vinnie?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did Vinnie say to Karen Walker that you were able to hear?

A. Vinnie told Karen Walker that the children were being put in school immediately. Because Karen Walker asked him, were the children going to be put in school. And he said yes, the next day.

Q. This was on the 21st of February?

A. Yes, which was a Friday.

Q. And the kids were not put in school thereafter?

A. They weren’t put in school.

Q. Did you seek a tutorial for your children or a tutoring program once you were back out of Neverland?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did you seek to do that?

A. After the children -- we were out, and I reenrolled the children in John Burroughs. I took them to a place called G -- I apologize, JEI Learning Center to bring them up to speed for all those weeks that they had missed school.

Q. How did you select JEI?

A. I was looking, actually, for a learning center somewhere in the vicinity of John Burroughs so they would waste no time from attending school all day and then go there. And then that’s where I found it.

Q. Excuse me, I’m sorry.

At some point in time, were you introduced to an attorney by the name of Larry Feldman?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is it who introduced you to Larry Feldman?

A. Bill Dickerman.

Q. Do you recall when it was you were introduced to Larry Feldman?

A. Yes, when Michael's people wouldn't stop following us.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Tell us the date, if you recall, of your first meeting with Larry Feldman.

A. I can't remember.

Q. Tell us approximately how many weeks after you finally -- after your children left Neverland it was that you actually met with Larry Feldman, if you recall.

A. No, I can't remember.

Q. Whose idea was it to go to Larry Feldman?

A. Mr. Dickerman's.

Q. After you saw Larry Feldman, did he refer you to somebody else to see?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was that?

A. He referred us to see Dr. Katz.

Q. Is that Dr. Stan Katz?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind of a doctor did you understand Stan Katz to be?

A. Something with mental.

Q. Psychologist or psychiatrist?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know which one he was, psychologist or psychiatrist?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Did each of you meet with Dr. Katz?

A. Yes, we did.

Q. And by "each of you," who are we referring to?

A. Me and my three children. Davellin, Gavin and Star.

Q. Did you know why you were meeting with him?

A. Yes, because Mr. Feldman --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE COURT: After “Yes,” I’ll strike that.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What was your understanding of why you were meeting with Mr. -- Dr. Katz?
A. Because basically my house was a cuckoo house now.
Q. At the time that you went to Mr. Feldman, did you have any understanding of accusations of sexual abuse --
A. No.
Q. -- to Gavin?
A. No.
Q. Had Gavin talked to you up to that point about anything that had happened at Neverland to him?
A. Um --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer “yes” or “no.”
THE WITNESS: Yes. Gavin --
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: No, just “yes” or “no.”
A. Oh, yes.
Q. Gavin did have a conversation with you?
A. No, it wasn’t a conversation. It was like an erupted volcano.
Q. Hold on.
At some point in time, did you actually sit down with Gavin and have a conversation with him about what took place at Neverland?
A. No. It was always broken, always.
Q. At some point in time, did you sit down and have a conversation with Star about what happened at Neverland?
A. He, too, it was always broken. I would always hush them up. I’d say, “Just forget. Forgive, forget. Forgive, forget.”
Q. Did you have any belief at the time you went to Mr. Feldman that either of your boys had been molested?
A. No, not molested. But I was aware of things.
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike the comments.
THE COURT: Strike the last sentence.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you go to Mr. Feldman because you believed your children were molested?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: My children -- Gavin was like an erupted volcano, all the different things.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

THE WITNESS: That’s my answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let me withdraw the question and let me ask it again.

A. Okay.

Q. Why did you go to Mr. Feldman?

A. Because as time progressed, I was finding out more and more. I -- I thought it was just alcohol.

Q. Were you concerned about the fact that your child had been given alcohol?

A. Yes.

Q. That was something --

A. That was enough for me.

Q. Was that something you told Mr. Feldman?

A. Yes.

Q. Why were you concerned about your child having been given alcohol?

A. Because he only has one kidney --

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE WITNESS: -- and it’s malfunctioning.

THE COURT: Just a minute. You have to wait when there’s an objection.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Okay.

THE COURT: All right. The objection is overruled. And the answer was, “Because he only has one kidney.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: During the course of your interview with Dr. Katz, did you tell Dr. Katz that you believed that your child had been molested?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t remember what I told Mr. -- Dr. Katz. But -- I don’t remember, because as time went by it was progressing.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE COURT: “I don’t remember,” I’ll leave that part in. Strike the rest of it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At the time of your meeting with Dr. Katz, did you believe that your child had been molested?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Asked and answered; and leading; and foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever come to a conclusion that your child had been molested?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Asked and answered; foundation; and leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes. When I was told by the D.A., police office --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: I’ll leave the “Yes” and strike after that.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I just want you to tell us when, not the circumstance. But when did you come to the conclusion that your child had been molested?

A. Okay, when. I don’t remember when.

Q. Was it before or after your meeting with Dr. Katz?

A. Oh, it’s way after.

Q. Was it before or after your initial meeting with one of the detectives from the sheriff’s office?

A. It was after the police, the police form a trust bond with Gavin --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.

MR. ZONEN: The question is simply when.

THE COURT: Just a moment. Just a moment.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. I'll leave the answer, "It was after the police," and strike the rest of that sentence. Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Approximately how long after your initial conversation with detectives was it?

A. I can't remember. But it was after the police got involved.

Q. Okay.

A. But I was aware of things.

Q. That's all. Just --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When did you finally get your possessions back?

A. Until the police got involved. Yeah.

Q. Where were your possessions moved to at that time?

A. They were moved into another storage area, because I -- I no longer had a place now.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.

THE WITNESS: I -- okay.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you have an opportunity to go through your items after they were ultimately returned?

A. Yes. With the police there.

Q. All right. And where was that that you went through all of your items?

A. I immediately went to the clay pot that I told you where I had --

Q. Just tell us where it was that you looked at these items. Where is the location where the items were where you looked at them?

A. Dino's Storage.

Q. Do you know where that is?

A. I can't remember.

Q. Okay. Was it someplace in Los Angeles County, to your knowledge?

A. Yeah. Yes.

Q. Now, at that location, did you go through all of your --

A. Oh, God, no. I think it’s somewhere near, like, Calabasas area. Somewhere like that.

Q. In the valley somewhere?

A. Yeah, in that area.

Q. San Fernando Valley?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, at that location did you go through all of your items to see what was there and what was not there?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to find any of the letters that Mr. Jackson had sent to Gavin?

A. I immediately went to the clay pot. Lifted it up. Gone.

Q. Was everything missing from the clay pot?

A. Everything was missing.

Q. Were there any other items besides letters that were missing?

A. Yes. Pictures, and that rabbit.

Q. By “pictures” do you mean photographs?

A. Yes.

Q. And these are photographs of what?

A. Of Michael with the children.

Q. And then you said a rabbit.

A. Yes.

Q. You’re talking about a doll of some kind?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And from where did this rabbit come from?

A. From Michael, from Mr. Jackson.

Q. And what became of that?

A. Gone.

Q. Do you recall the jacket that you referred to that was given to Gavin by Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What happened to that jacket?

A. I turned that over to Mr. Sneddon.

Q. And did you identify that jacket before the grand jury?

A. I don’t remember if I did that. I don’t remember.

Q. Can you describe that jacket for us?
A. Yes, I can. It’s black with -- Mr. Jackson said it was crystals on the back.
Q. Something that glittered?

A. Yes. Mr. Jackson said it was real crystals.
Q. Was there anything else that was given to any of your children by Mr. Jackson during the time that they were with him during the months of February or March?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever see a watch?
A. Yes. Mr. Jackson told Gavin that it was a $75,000 watch.
Q. And where did you see that watch?
A. On his wrist. On Gavin’s wrist.
Q. At --
A. Mr. Jackson took it off of his wrist and placed it onto Gavin’s wrist.
Q. Were you watching that happen?
A. I don’t think I did. I don’t think I did. I just know afterwards this is what I found out.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; no foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Where did you first see that watch?
A. I first seen it when -- I think when Gavin got off the airplane. And then the rest of the time when they were at Neverland.
Q. Did he wear that watch while you were at Neverland?

A. Yes, he did.
Q. Can you describe the watch for us?
A. Oh, it was gold, and it had stuff that looked like diamonds on the face. That’s the best I can remember.
Q. For how long did Gavin wear that watch?
A. Every day until -- every day. Every day, I think, prior to going back to Neverland. I think so. I don’t remember. I’m doing my best estimate.

Q. When he took the watch off, what happened to the watch?

A. Oh, he didn’t take it off while he had it on at Neverland at all.

Q. At some point in time did he stop wearing the watch?

A. Yeah. When we got back, I took it off. You know, “Stop wearing this ridiculous watch.”

Q. Okay. What did you do with the watch?

A. I think I had -- I think I had Jay -- I left it at Jay’s apartment.

Q. And ultimately where did the watch go?

A. I gave it to the police.

Q. Mr. Sneddon?

A. Yes, Mr. Sneddon. The police.

Q. The police. Do you remember who it was you gave it to?

A. Let me see. Okay. Yes, I did. I gave it to the attorneys, because I didn’t want it in my house. And then --

Q. Which attorneys?

A. I gave it to Mr. Dickerman, and then we ended up giving it to Mr. Feldman, and then the police retrieved it from Mr. Feldman’s office, the -- yeah.

Q. While you were at Neverland, did anybody talk to you about finding you a place to live ultimately after Brazil?

A. No. The -- it was at Brazil.

Q. No, but did anybody ever talk to you about getting a house for you or apartment or a condo or something like that?

A. The condition was that we had to leave the country.

Q. I’m sorry. The question was, did somebody talk to you about getting a house or an apartment at some time?

A. Only if we left the country.

Q. Does that mean the answer is “yes,” somebody did --

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, this conversation was with whom?

A. With Frank and Vinnie.

Q. At the same time?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Were both of them talking to you?

A. Yes. They were trying to get me to leave the country.

Q. And this was still while you were at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. What did they say specifically about getting you a house or an apartment, or what --

A. If I left the country, I can have that.

Q. You could have what?

A. A house and an apartment to go back and forth. But, no, I didn’t want to leave the country.

Q. I don’t understand, “a house” -- I don’t understand. What does that mean, “to go back and forth”?

A. That’s what they said. Frank and Vinnie came up with different things every time. But the key here, that is consistent, is that, “You got to leave the country.”

Q. Conditioned upon going to Brazil?

A. Yes.

Q. What did they say specifically about a house or an apartment? What did they say?

A. If I left the country I could have that.

Q. You could have what?

A. A house and an apartment.

Q. Did they say why you would need both a house and an apartment?

A. They said something like to go back and forth. This way there’s still -- I have that burned in my brain, appeasing the killers. This way, if the killers showed up at the apartment, I could go to the house; from the house to the apartment.

Q. Did they tell you Michael Jackson would be purchasing that for you or renting that for you or what the arrangement would be financially?

A. That Mr. Jackson would do it if I left the country.

Q. Did you understand that you would actually own this?

A. No.

Q. They didn’t say one way or the other whether --

A. No, they just said as I told you.

Q. You didn’t ask whether this would be something in your name or somebody else’s name?

A. No.

Q. Or whether you’d have to pay rent on it?

A. I knew I didn’t want to leave the country. I don’t care what they promised me.

Q. Did either Frank or Vinnie make any other representations to you in terms of money, or college education, or anything else that they would be giving you if you went to Brazil?

A. No.

Q. Did he make any representations of what they would be giving to you even if you didn’t leave for Brazil?

A. No. Zero.

Q. During the period of time from the time that you were contacted by Michael Jackson back in early February of ‘03 to the time that you left Neverland and your children left Neverland on around the 11th of March, did you ever ask anybody from Neverland, whether it was Michael Jackson or Vinnie or Frank, for money?

A. No. Zero.

Q. Did you ever ask any of them for money prior to that time --

A. No.

Q. -- on February 4th?

A. That’s not my nature.

Q. Did either or any of them at Neverland make an offer to give you money?

A. No.

Q. Did you receive money from any of them?

A. Nope.

Q. And by receiving money, I mean at any time since you first visited Neverland back in August of 2000 until you ultimately left and had no further communication with them.

A. No.

Q. Did you ever have a conversation with anybody at Neverland, whether it was Michael Jackson or Vinnie or Frank or anybody else, about the subject of whether money would be given to you?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask anybody at Neverland, whether it was Michael Jackson or anybody else, to support you for the rest of your life?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: Could counsel and I approach the bench briefly about the exhibit?

THE COURT: All right.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: Okay. We’re ready to go.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Miss Arvizo, are you intending on filing a lawsuit against Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Are you intending on filing a lawsuit against Michael Jackson on behalf of your children?

A. No.

Q. Are you intending on doing it anytime during this proceeding or anytime thereafter?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I have no further questions at this time. I do intend to play the video once the particulars are worked out on it. And --

THE COURT: All right. What we agreed to at the sidebar here was the District Attorney needs to prepare the three or four tapes that he was going to show earlier that was compiled into one. He’s going to show them separately based on an earlier ruling I made. And rather than have Mr. Mesereau start late in the afternoon with cross-examination and then be interrupted with that, we're going to recess early.

(To the jury) I knew you'd be unhappy about that. I'll see you tomorrow morning at 8:30. Remember the admonition.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:10 p.m.)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning.

THE COURT: Counsel, you may proceed.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

JANET JACKSON

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Miss Arvizo, good morning.
A. Good morning.
THE BAILIFF: Do you have your microphone on?
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Miss Arvizo, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Yesterday I asked a few questions about your testimony with regards to your being followed at times. Did you ever see people actually filming you?
A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember where and when you saw people filming you?
A. At Jay’s home. My children’s school. At church. Everywhere.
Q. And I had asked you if you recognized any of those people. Did you recognize any of those people?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And could you tell us the names of any of the people you saw?
A. One of them was Johnny, and I think one other time was Asaf, and then there was one to three people. And then after we left, permanently left Neverland, that’s the first time I ever saw a female, in addition to a group of males.
Q. Prior to coming into court today, on a couple of different occasions did you have an opportunity to view videotapes of different persons being filmed out on the street and at other locations?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you recognize the people who are the subject of those films?
A. I sure did.
Q. And who were they?
A. My mom, my dad, my daughter.
Q. Davellin?
A. Davellin. My boys, Gavin and Star. And my now husband Jay Jackson.

MR. ZONEN: And, Your Honor, we're prepared to play it at this time.

THE WITNESS: And myself.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You were among them?

A. Yes.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: We need a moment. Excuse me. Just one moment. Your Honor, I'm sorry, we need to reboot the computer. It's going to take a moment.

THE COURT: What's the exhibit number on this?

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to withdraw the other exhibit, the DVD, and we're going to do this as three separate DVDs.

THE COURT: Actually, I don't think you can withdraw it. There were objections made concerning it. It will have to remain in evidence.

MR. ZONEN: That's fine.

THE COURT: Not in evidence, but it will have to remain as an exhibit. Not in evidence.

MR. ZONEN: All right. Then we'll simply give three new exhibit numbers to these three DVDs.

THE COURT: While that's being done, could I ask counsel to, each of you, file a response to the special master's report Monday so that I know what your positions are on that?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And a response from the defense to the supplemental motion that was served on me today, probably due today.

MR. MESEREAU: I have not seen that, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: We received a motion this morning. Is that what you're referring to?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Is that what you're referring to?

THE COURT: They can't hear you.

MR. SANGER: We received a motion this morning, if that's what you're referring to.

THE COURT: Yes. You might respond to that by Monday also.

MR. SANGER: Monday at 3:00.

THE COURT: At what?
MR. SANGER: At 3:00. Or Monday morning at 8:00?
THE COURT: Yes. That would be good.
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor --
THE COURT: You ready?
MR. ZONEN: Almost.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Some technical difficulties. I think what we'll try to do, Your Honor, is play it on the DVD player, so we'd ask you to go to "Input 4."
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Sir, your microphone's off.

MR. ZONEN: We also have the VCR here. We can do it on that. Either way we'll be able to do it this morning, if the computer doesn't work.
In the meantime, could I wrap up a little bit of old business? Exhibits 809 and 810 that are already in evidence are tapes in the form of a DVD and a CD -- CV -- CD. And the Court was waiting for transcripts from the People. We have those transcripts and they are now numbered 809-A and 810-A, and a copy has been furnished to the defense. I'll submit that to the Court at this time.
THE COURT: All right. And you're offering 809 at this time?
MR. ZONEN: 809 is not in evidence. We are offering it into evidence. That's right.
THE COURT: All right. That's admitted.
And 814, did you mention that?
THE CLERK: 814 is the one that had writing on the back. They were going to do it later.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can we go to "Input 1" -- or "Input 4," Your Honor?
(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 815, was played for the Court and jury.)
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Miss Arvizo, we've now -- this frame is stalled at this spot here. Can you tell us what we're looking at?
A. You're looking at my mom's house.
Q. This is in El Monte?

A. This is in El Monte.
Q. All right. The building -- the front portion of the building -- do you have the laser?

This front portion, is this portion your parents' house, as well?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. What is it?

A. That's the garage area.

Q. That's a gate that's in front of the house along here?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: All right. Let's go ahead and proceed.
Excuse me just one second before we start.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It just went dark. But I can back it up.

MR. ZONEN: Let's start here.

Q. On February 14 of '03, do you know where you were on that day?

A. I think -- to my best estimate, I think I was already at my mom's house. I think that, to my best estimate, is when Jesus had brought me back.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Let's go ahead and advance it.

THE WITNESS: And notice the time. 6:40 a.m.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE COURT: Sustained. No question pending.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. This is still your parents' house?

A. This is still my parents' home.

Q. And the last entrance on there was 10:35 a.m.?

A. Yes.

Q. All right.

THE COURT: Just for the record, what number is the exhibit you're showing now?

MR. ZONEN: 815, Your Honor. This is 815.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you now recognize the picture that you're looking at?

A. By the shape of the tree, the shape of the top of the garage and the white area above the garage door, that's my mother's home. This is after my -- Jesus had brought us back.

Q. And the -- on this frame are the words and numbers February 15, '03, 6:09 a.m.

Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and stop.

Q. This frame now reads February 15, ‘03, 1:04 p.m. Miss Arvizo, what are we looking at right now?

A. You’re looking at my parents’ home from a different angle. And this is still my best estimate from when Jesus helped me and my children come out of Neverland.

Q. The building that we’re looking at right now - and I’m pointing with the laser in front - is that the garage?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And your parents’ residence over here to the left?

A. Yes, that is the complete home.

Q. All right. And the entryway into the -- is from the garage over here?

A. No. This way.

Q. Over this way?

A. Yes.

Q. On this side, to the left is the garage?

A. Yes, it is.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, this says in the lower right February 15, ‘03, 3:07 p.m. And what are we looking at here?

A. You are still looking at my parents’ home.

Q. There’s the one right there.

A. Okay.

Q. Show us, please, where your parents’ house is.

A. This is -- right here is the door, my parents’ front door. Right here.

Q. The red car that we see in the driveway, is that --

A. That is the neighbor’s car.

Q. And your parents’ garage, can you see it?

A. It’s right here. Here’s the white of the top of the front of the garage. There’s the garage door. You walk around this way, and right there is the front door.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who is this person?

A. This is my father.

Q. And go ahead and point the laser so we can see where he is.

A. And I think --

MR. ZONEN: Advance it a little bit.

THE WITNESS: Right -- right there.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Stop right there.

Q. That person walking by, who is that?

A. This is my mother.

Q. And right now we're looking at the lower right-hand corner of the frame, it says February 15, '03, 3:51 p.m.

Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Stop right there.

Q. We're looking at a new frame that says February 15, '03, 8:12 p.m. Do you recognize the subject matter of what you're able to see?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that, please?

A. This is now the underground parking of Jay's apartment building.

Q. Is that the one on St. Andrews?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we're going to change tapes at this time.

The next tape, Your Honor, is 816.

THE COURT: 816?

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can we go to "Input 4," Your Honor? Or "Input" -- yes, "Input 4."

Thank you.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's

Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: This now says February 19, ‘03, at 5:56 p.m. Whose car is that?

A. This is Jay Jackson’s car, my husband.

Q. Can you tell who’s driving?

A. This is my husband who’s driving.

Q. And the location now?

A. This is the underground parking of Jay’s apartment on St. Andrews.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Stop it.

Q. We’re now looking at a frame that reads February 19th, ‘03, at 6:01 p.m. Can you tell what we’re looking at here?

A. Yes, you’re looking at my husband Jay Jackson.

Q. Do you know where he is? Can you tell?

A. He is in an area called Larchmont. It’s in -- there’s different -- it’s kind of like a -- different eating places. Different -- a marketplace in Larchmont. Near where Jay Jackson used to live.

Q. It’s in Los Angeles?

A. Yes, it is.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let me stop at this moment and ask you a question.

A. Yes.

Q. I believe that you had testified before that it was at the end of the day of the 19th that you went to Calabasas for the video; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Do you know where you were at approximately six o’clock in the evening?

A. I was inside Jay’s apartment.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are we still following your husband?

A. Yes, you are still -- they’re still following my husband.

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The frame that we’ve stopped is February 21, ‘03, 2:04 p.m. Tell us who we’re looking at here.

A. This is me and --

Q. Hold on a second.

The question is simply, who are we looking at? That’s you; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you have a recollection of having a conversation with somebody in a Range Rover on that day?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. With whom did you have a conversation?

A. I had a conversation with Miss Karen Walker.

Q. And Karen Walker you identified previously as the social worker?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember the nature of that conversation?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Now, was it your testimony previously that Vinnie was somewhere in that area?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and play.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Stop.

Q. Miss Arvizo, who is that?

A. This is Vinnie.

Q. All right. We’re now where it says February 21, ‘03, at 2:04 p.m. And the timeline on the lower left of this frame reads 11:33:11.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that Vinnie?

A. This is Vinnie.

Q. And this reads 11:45:29 is the time segment on the lower left-hand side, February 23 at 2:04 p.m.

Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Stop just a second.

Q. We're now at February 21, '03, at 3:05 p.m. It reads the time is 11:50:18. Can you tell us what we're looking at right here?

A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is this?

A. This is the vehicle that I was in with Vinnie. I remember the -- that little light thing going across. And I remember the seat being above me. And that's Vinnie's hair on top of --

Q. Go ahead and show us with the laser Vinnie's hair. And then -- are you in the seat?

A. Right there. I'm in there. But the seat's higher than me.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Santa Monica Boulevard is what's now showing, the street sign; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And do you remember being on Santa Monica Boulevard?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who is that?

A. This is me. And in the vehicle is Vinnie.

Q. Vinnie's driving and you're getting in?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is on the 21st of February, '03?

A. Yes.

Q. And the time reads at 4:15 p.m.

Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Stop.

Q. Are you in that frame?

A. I'm right here. This is Vinnie right there. This is Vinnie right there. And I'm right behind this man. Right there. You can actually see us walking up behind this couple.

Q. That couple have nothing to do with you?

A. This couple has nothing to do with me.

MR. ZONEN: All right. Go ahead. Or, hold it.

Q. Do you know where you are at this point?

A. At this moment I don't know where we're at.

Q. Or on what street?

A. I don't remember.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 816, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the next tape we're going to look at is 817.

THE COURT: All right.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Exhibit 817, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: It reads March 17, '03, at 2:02 p.m. Can you tell us what we're looking at right now?

A. Yes, I can.

Q. And what are we looking at?

A. This is my daughter. And beyond that is my parents' home.

Q. Show us where your daughter is in the picture.

And the home?

Now, where would you and your family have been on March 17, '03?

A. On March 17, '03, my boys, myself, are with Jay. My daughter is with my parents. We have permanently now left Neverland.

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 817, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: This is a close-up of your daughter looking back; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And show us the house where she's going to.

A. It’s right here. Right here.

Q. Is 2:02 about the time that she’d be arriving back at school?

A. Yes, it is. I enrolled my daughter and my sons almost immediately into school.

Q. She’s wearing a backpack. Is that the type of backpack she traditionally took to school?

A. That is correct.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 817, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And she’s looking back a second time; is that correct?

A. Yes, she is looking back and she looks frightened.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike her comments.

THE COURT: Stricken.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 817, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that the name of the street that your parents’ home is on?

A. This is the name of the street my parents live on.

MR. ZONEN: We have a fourth tape as well.

Q. Miss Arvizo, did you have an opportunity to take a look at a tape of the cleaning and moving of materials from a residence?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you recognize the residence?

A. Yes.

Q. Whose residence was it?

A. It used to be my apartment.

Q. Is that the Soto Street address?

A. It is the Soto Street address.

Q. And the items that were being packed up, to the extent that there were still items left, did you recognize those items?

A. Yes, I did recognize them.

Q. Whose items were those?

A. They’re mine.

Q. Of any of the people who appear at any time in that film, did you recognize any of them?

A. I did recognize someone to be, I think, Asaf.

Q. Was he the one who is the photographer or the videographer?

A. Asaf is the one who did the tape-recording of the Department of Child Family Services.

Q. Hold on a second.

The question is, in the course of the --

A. Oh.

Q. -- the film that you saw previously, you’re about to see --

A. Oh, okay.

Q. -- is he the one holding the camera?

A. That is correct.

Q. At one moment he appears in a mirror, is that correct?

A. Yes, he is.

MR. ZONEN: Let’s go ahead and play this one.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 818, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Which room is that?

A. This is our room that me and my children and my ex-husband used to live in.

Q. And sleep?

A. And sleep in.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

THE COURT: Is this 818?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 818, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that the picture that you saw before?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And at some point, were you able to hear his voice as well?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Let’s resume.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 818, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was that Asaf’s voice?

A. That is Asaf’s voice.

Q. The deeper voice?
A. Yes, it is.
MR. ZONEN: All right.
(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 818, was played for the Court and jury.)
MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.
THE COURT: That was Exhibit 118.
THE CLERK: 818.
THE COURT: 818. Are you offering that, or --
MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Are those exhibits being offered?
MR. ZONEN: Yes, they are, Your Honor. The numbers are 815, 816, 817 and 818.
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Are there any objections to those exhibits?
MR. MESEREAU: No objection at all.
THE COURT: All right. They’re admitted.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, Mr. Sanger is obtaining the tape of the phone conversation between Miss Arvizo and Frank Cascio, and I’m going to begin with that.
And also, the prosecutor lodged a transcript with the Court this morning of that phone conversation, which, with the Court’s permission, I’d like to hand to the witness as we play that tape.
THE COURT: All right.
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.
May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.
The tape should be 809.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning, Miss Arvizo.
A. Good morning.

Q. Miss Arvizo, as you know, my name is Tom Mesereau and I speak for Michael Jackson.

Now, you heard the prosecutor for the government play a recorded phone conversation between you and Mr. Frank Cascio, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you didn't know that conversation was being recorded, correct?

A. No.

Q. And to your knowledge, it was probably recorded by Mr. Cascio, correct?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained. Foundation.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Before it was played in court, when did you last hear that recorded phone conversation between you and Mr. Cascio?

A. I think it was during the grand jury. I think that's when it was.

Q. And you have in front of you a transcript of that phone conversation, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you read any transcript of that phone conversation before today?

A. I think so.

Q. And who provided you with a transcript to read?

A. When I came -- the D.A.'s Office.

Q. At this point, Miss Arvizo, I'd like to play that recorded conversation for the jury, and at various points I'm going to ask my co-counsel, Mr. Sanger, to stop the recording, and I'm going to ask you questions about what Mr. Cascio says and about what you say. Okay?

A. Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: With the Court's permission, we'll play the phone conversation, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And this is Exhibit --

MR. SANGER: 809, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay.

THE WITNESS: And this is more than one conversation blended, put together.

MR. MESEREAU: I know your position.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: We'll go through it.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE BAILIFF: Are you on "Input 1," Your Honor?

Can you check that switch and make sure it's over, the audio switch?

BAILIFF CORTEZ: I hear something.

THE BAILIFF: Is it where it was?

BAILIFF CORTEZ: No, it's just a little bit --

THE BAILIFF: It should work.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: I hear it.

MR. SANGER: Is it going through the microphone?

MR. MESEREAU: Start it again.

THE BAILIFF: I can turn it up here.

MR. SANGER: This happened last time. We were told there was a switch up there, but....

One more try, Your Honor. I'm sorry.

THE BAILIFF: Did you plug it into the defense?

MR. SANGER: It's plugged into the defense.

Plugged into the back. That's on. One, two, that's on. We can play it again with the speakers.

THE COURT: I think that's the best thing to do.

THE BAILIFF: They're coming right over.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I don't know if the Court's willing to wait for just a moment. I hear they're coming right away.

THE COURT: Would you like me to?

MR. SANGER: It would be a lot better to hear it through the system, I think.

THE COURT: All right. We'll wait.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE BAILIFF: We check this every day. They should be here any minute, Judge.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: While we're waiting, Miss Arvizo, let me ask you a few questions about what's said in this conversation.

You're telling the jury under oath, that you never wanted any kind of security provided to you by Frank, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you never made any statements to Frank that you needed any kind of protection, correct?

A. Uh-huh. That’s correct.

Q. And when Frank offered you any type of security at your home, you always declined; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Because you never felt you needed any security of any kind from him, right?

A. No, what I said was I didn’t want my parents to be scared.

Q. Are you telling the jury you didn’t want any security from Frank?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And in no conversation with him did you ever say anything to that effect, right?

A. That’s how I feel.

Q. And did you ever tell Frank that your home was being, in effect, bombarded by media people?

A. This was after a conversation with him.

Q. Did you ever tell Frank your home was, in effect, being bombarded by media people?

A. Yes, because I believed them after they had told me, and, yes, I saw it for my own self in my parents’ home.

Q. So you saw media people bombarding your home?

A. Yes. With all the mail that was left on the table.

Q. And did you ever tell anything like that to Frank?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay.

THE COURT: Would you pause so they can try to....

(Discussion held off the record.)

MR. SANGER: May I try it just to --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you very much.

MR. MESEREAU: I think we’re all set, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, do you recall telling Frank with respect to the rebuttal interview with you and your family that the Germans only want you to talk about one charitable act of Michael, but you want to talk about more than that?

A. What is your question?

Q. Do you recall telling Frank that you didn’t like what the Germans were asking you to say on the rebuttal video, because they only wanted you to talk about one charitable act of Michael and you wanted to talk about much more than that?

A. That’s incorrect.

MR MESEREAU: Okay. Could we play the --

THE WITNESS: There’s more than that.

MR. MESEREAU: I understand. You’ll have your chance to talk about it.

MR. SANGER: Ready?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Because they wanted me to do a choreograph that me and Michael had done a charity act to German orphans. And I wasn’t going to do that, to say that that had happened.

MR. MESEREAU: At this time we’re going to play the conversation, Your Honor. Thank you.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you’re telling Frank that you love his family, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You’re telling Frank that, in effect, “We’re all family,” right?

A. Yes. Because of Michael’s initial lovey-dovey meeting.

Q. Just please answer my question, Miss Arvizo. The prosecutor will then ask you whatever he wants. I just want direct answers to my questions, all right? Is that all right with you?

A. If you could simplify the questions, that would be easier for me.

Q. I will try to make them as clear as I can. And if you don’t understand, don’t answer me. Just ask me to try and restate it. Okay?

A. Okay. That’s fair enough.

Q. You told Frank Cascio in this conversation, “We’re all family,” true?

A. I said, “It’s like we’re family.” True.

Q. Did that mean in your mind that your family, Frank’s family, and Mr. Jackson’s family were all united?

A. Let me see. It says right here, “I love you so much. You don’t know how much I love your little sister and your little brother.” That’s what it said.

Q. And then later on, it says, “It’s like we’re family, you know, Frank?”

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay.

A. “Like we’re family.”

Q. And when you said that you meant it, true?

A. Yes, I believed what he said in the initial meeting in Miami.

Q. I understand, it all comes from Miami, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Doesn’t come from your being at Neverland with the Cascio family, does it?

A. No.

Q. Were you ever at Neverland with the Cascio family?

A. With the whole entire family? No.

Q. With the children?

A. With the children, no, never before at Neverland, before Miami.

Q. So one trip to Miami and you’re calling everyone family, correct?

A. Correct.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you say to Frank, “It’s like we’re family, you know, Frank?” And he says, “I know. And you say, “You know. And people don’t understand that,” correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And when you said, “People don’t understand that,” what did you mean?

A. Well, I thought they were honest people. And, for example, people 50 and over have a tender spot in my heart, and so it’s loving someone without knowing them. That’s what I mean.

Q. So what you’re saying is in your mind you were family with the Cascios because you loved them without knowing them; is that correct?

A. Correct.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you say, “It’s like crazy here.” Do you see that?

A. I said, it goes, “Um, (inaudible), bleep, are like crazy here,” so I really couldn’t tell you what was before there.

Q. Let’s go two lines down.

A. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You say to Frank, “Are like crazy here,” And he says, “Who?” And you say, “The reporters and stuff.” Right?

A. Correct.

Q. And please tell the jury what you’re talking about.

A. Well, in my mom’s table, when I arrived from Neverland, from Jesus helping me, there was a table filled with offers, many different offers requesting interviews, some people offering cars, to various denominations, and just a variety of things. And the phone ringing over and over and over.

Q. Okay. And people were coming to your house, true?

A. And some -- some of the reporters just wanted to talk. But it was all there.

Q. They were looking for you at times, correct?

A. Mostly my children. Mostly Gavin specifically.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you’re talking to Frank after you say Chris took you and, “Jesus helped me leave,” correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So the things you’re saying to Frank on this tape --

A. Has been manipulated.

Q. Oh, I understand your position, because we’ll go through that.

A. Okay.

Q. And what you’re saying is you’ve had someone look at this tape and decide it’s all been jumbled up together; right? Is that your position?

A. My position is I had the conversation. I know when I left, the first time I left with Jesus, the second time I left with Chris, two different events.

Q. Okay.

A. That’s why I know.

Q. But what you say is, Ya know, ya know, Frank, when I asked to leave on Sunday night,” and then Frank coughs, and then it’s inaudible, and it says, “And, ah, Chris took me and, ah, Jesus helped me leave.” Do you see that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And obviously this conversation is happening after Jesus helps you leave?

A. Correct.

Q. And it’s after Chris helped you, correct?

A. No.

Q. Why did you say then, “Chris took me and then Jesus helped me leave”?

A. Because Chris -- this tape has been manipulated. But also on that day -- Chris was the one who took me to go do the leg wax.

Q. Okay. Now, Chris was part of Michael Jackson’s personal security group at Neverland, true?

A. Correct. His personal bodyguard.

Q. Yes. He’s the one who took you for a body wax, correct?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Who took you for a body wax?

A. No one ever.

Q. Well, you went for a body wax when you were at Neverland, did you not?

A. Inaccurate.

Q. Never did it?

A. Never did it.

Q. Never went to a salon in Los Olivos and met someone there who treated you, correct?

A. I had a leg wax done.

Q. In Los Olivos?

A. In Los Olivos.

Q. And that was the day you claim Jesus helped you escape from Neverland, true?

A. That was the day that the Germans said that they wanted to do positive PR for Michael. And I figured this is what they have and that’s it. I could go now and it was still a no.

Q. The body wax you had in Los Olivos was the day that you claim Jesus helped you escape from Neverland, true?

A. His statement is inaccurate. He keeps continuously saying “body wax.” There is no body wax.

Q. What did you have at the salon in Los Olivos on the day you claim you escaped from Neverland?

A. A leg wax.

Q. Okay. Okay. And how did you get to the salon to have the leg wax?

A. I didn’t get them to do anything. They had already arranged it, the Germans, for their positive PR for Michael. With the film crew following us.

Q. How did you get to the salon in Los Olivos from Neverland to have your leg wax?

A. Chris took me.

Q. So when you say, “And, ah, Chris took me, and, ah, Jesus helped me leave,” you’re talking about Chris, who is part of Mr. Jackson’s security detail, taking you to Los Olivos to the salon, right?

A. For Michael's positive PR.

Q. I understand what your position is, but I'm asking you a direct question.

On the day you claim Jesus helped you escape from Neverland, that's the same day Chris took you to a salon in Los Olivos for a leg wax, correct?

A. Well, if he wants to get that technical, it was the next day, because it was closer to 1 a.m.

Q. Well, how do you escape from Neverland with Jesus and then have Chris take you for a leg wax?

A. Chris took me to have a leg wax in the afternoon. After midnight, about 1 a.m., is when Jesus helped me and my children leave.

Q. Okay. And to --

A. The next day.

Q. -- to get back to my initial point, this phone conversation is happening after you say Jesus helped you leave from Neverland, isn't it?

A. These multiple conversations are happening after Jesus helped me leave.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. All right. Let's keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you're telling Frank Cascio --

A. Just a moment, Mr. Mesereau. Where are we? I'm trying to --

Q. We're on the third page.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay? There are no numbers on the lines, but we're on the third page. If you look about midway through --

A. Okay.

Q. -- you will see your comment, "And, ah, Chris took me, and ah, Jesus helped me leave." Do you see that?

A. Okay. But we played the tape a little bit further.

Q. Yes, we did. Yes, we did. And we've stopped two quotes down.

A. Okay.

Q. We stopped where it says, "And that's how I feel.” Do you see that?

A. Oh, goodness gracious.

Q. Do you see it? Do you want me to point it out to you?

A. Please.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Good. Thank you.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You’re talking to Mr. Cascio after Jesus helped you leave, and you’re telling him, “My family, so as far as me and the kids, we are family, and that’s how I feel.” Do you see that?

A. Yes, it says, “My family” --

Q. Yes.

A. -- “(inaudible),” and then it says, “So as far as me and the kids, we are family, inaudible, and that’s how I feel.”

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Frank says to you, “People out there are so evil.” And you reply, “Yes, yes, Frank, they are, they are.”

He says to you, “They’re so evil,” and you go, “Yes, I know, I know.”

Right?

A. Correct.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you start to talk about David, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say, “They’ve been replaying over and over the news over here and on the radio. The father said making him so, so credible, you know, even the father said. David -- he was -- there’s nine criminal charges for what he did to that kid, you know. And for what he did to me. He doesn’t pay child support and, ah, he has a restraining order to stay away from me and the kids.”

Right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you’re talking about your former husband David Arvizo, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And you’re talking about a criminal case against him, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And that was a situation where the police were notified, right?

A. Two different criminal cases that both he pled guilty on 2001 and 2002.

Q. And one of them was an allegation that he had molested Davellin, true?

A. Not an allegation. Information.

Q. Okay. But, I mean, he was -- you know, you reported him to the police on a couple of occasions, true?

A. No. That was -- He’s incorrect. I was there. He was arrested for domestic violence. In the process of being investigated for that, that’s when they found out that there’s more -- that this man had caused more harm not just on me, but also my children, and so that sparked an investigation on what he had done to my kids.

Q. And you did report him for having falsely imprisoned your family, true?

A. It was -- I give them the information and they did whatever they did with it.

Q. And you did report him for having molested Davellin, true?

A. They -- he’s inaccurate. They asked a history about David, and the event he’s referring to is something that happened way over ten years ago.

Q. Okay. In answer to my question, there was a report made that David had molested your daughter Davellin, true?

A. It was a one-sentence statement, and they were asking for the history of David.

Q. Was a report made that your former husband David had molested your daughter Davellin? Yes or no.

A. That was in the midst of all the information that they were gathering about David, so, yes.

Q. Okay. Now, it mentions a restraining order, correct?

A. On which particular restraining order are we talking about?

Q. I’m going to ask you about that.

A. Okay.

Q. Did you get a number of restraining orders against your former husband David?

A. Yes, that were issued through the Family Court and the criminal courts.

Q. And how did you do that?

A. Well, when David was arrested for domestic violence finally, the criminal courts issued something that they do routinely, a restraining order.

Q. And at some point he was reported for having violated a restraining order, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And how did that happen? Please tell the jury how the case against him for violating a restraining order came about.

A. Well, my daughter came home, told me what happened. So then I called -- I let them know, the investigating officer, what had happened.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Take our break.

(Recess taken.)

JACKSON, Janet	6423-M

E X H I B I T S

FOR IN DEFENDANT'S NO. DESCRIPTION I.D. EVID.

5007 Document prepared by the Sheriff's Department and signed by Janet Arvizo December 18, 2003 6504

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Miss Arvizo, we were talking about the domestic problems you had with David, okay? And you said that you had obtained two restraining orders against him at various times, right?

A. I didn't obtain them. It was through the court system that they were issued.

Q. One for the criminal court system, correct?

A. Which I think, as best I can remember, is that they routinely issue them.

Q. And one through the Family Court system; is that correct?

A. Correct. That my family attorney requested.

Q. And who was your family attorney at that point?

A. Mr. Michael Manning.

Q. Okay. And when the issue came up about David Arvizo violating a restraining order, you went to court, true?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever appear in court for any hearing involving allegations that David had violated a restraining order by talking to Davellin?

A. I think that was in the course of the -- they didn’t have a, what you’re trying to say, that there was a separate issue. It wasn’t a separate issue. It was -- as best as I can recall, it was within the midst of the domestic violence that he was arrested that he did upon me.

Q. And the violation of the restraining order that was alleged against him had to do with his showing up at school and talking to Davellin, true?

A. It had to do with the fact that he violated the restraining order.

Q. The violation of the restraining order had to do with David showing up at school and talking to Davellin, right?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I’ll object; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: David, a grown man, was given a restraining order, and he violated it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me repeat the question again. If it’s not clear, tell me.

A. It’s not clear.

Q. Okay. What was the nature of the violation?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Didn’t David go to Davellin’s school --

A. Yes.

Q. -- see Davellin outside of school and ask her to go into his car and talk to him?

A. He called -- my understanding, because I wasn’t there -- the best who could explain it would be Davellin.

Q. You don’t know what happened?
A. I do know, but the best one who could explain it would be Davellin.
Q. What do you know about it, Miss Arvizo?
A. Okay, my understanding is that David had called her over into the car, and he wouldn’t let her go until he finished his conversation with her and until he was satisfied. Then he let her go. That’s my understanding. But the best one who could explain it is Davellin.
Q. You attended court with Davellin when there was a hearing with a judge on whether or not David had violated that restraining order, right?
A. Again, that was in the midst of the domestic violence that he had done upon me.
Q. Did you attend court when there was a hearing on whether or not David had violated the restraining order?
A. I think I understand what you’re trying to say, but if not, please make me aware.
Q. Okay.
A. I feel that he is trying to say that I was present when these proceedings were happening in the midst of the domestic violence. That is inaccurate. She went behind a closed door with a judge, a court reporter, and a -- David, Mr. Halpern, his attorney. And that’s where they had the hearing, some kind of hearing, understanding, talking. I don’t know what that process would be called. Because he had violated the restraining order.

Q. And you were in court that day, right?
A. They did it behind closed doors, in the judge’s chambers, and I was not allowed to be present.
Q. You were in court that day, true?
A. I was in the courthouse, in the courtroom. But in the judge’s chambers when that took place, I was not present. And there was a court reporter reporting everything there.
Q. And who was with you in court that day?
A. On that day was just -- it was me and Davellin, I think.
Q. Was Carol Lamir ever in court with you?

A. With me? No. She’s my ex-husband’s, David Arvizo’s, best buddy.

Q. Was she ever in court with you for any proceeding involving domestic violence?

A. With me, never. But with David. David. That’s his girlfriend.

Q. Okay. Now, you’ve told the jury about your experience in obtaining restraining orders involving David, right?

A. I don’t understand what you’re trying to say.

Q. You’ve just told the jury about your history of getting restraining orders against David, right?

A. Not history, not experience, but what happened after he committed these crimes.

Q. You never went to any court at any time and tried to get a restraining order against Mr. Jackson or anyone you thought was associated with him, right?

A. I was hoping it will just go all away. And Mr. Dickerman handled everything.

Q. You thought you were being falsely imprisoned, right?

A. Correct.

Q. You thought --

A. I didn’t think it. I knew it.

Q. You thought you were being extorted, true?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Did you think you were the victim of extortion by Mr. Jackson or any people associated with him?

A. Please be more clear.

Q. Do you know what “extortion” means?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. Okay. Did you think you were being restrained against your will by either Mr. Jackson or anyone you thought was associated with him?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you think you were being --

A. I didn’t think it. I knew it.

Q. Did you think you were being kidnapped by

Mr. Jackson or anyone associated with him?

MR. ZONEN: Calls for a legal conclusion. Objection.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you think you were being held against your will by Mr. Jackson or anyone associated with him?
A. Did I think it?
Q. Yes.
A. I knew it.
Q. And did you think you were the victim of either force or fear created by anyone associated with Mr. Jackson?
A. I knew it.
Q. Yet, you never went into court to get any restraining order at any time regarding Mr. Jackson, true?
A. I was too scared of him.
Q. Okay. And at the time you claim you were being held against your will, you had a number of lawyers who had represented you at that point, true?
A. I don't understand what you're saying.
Q. Well, you had a lawyer who, you just told the jury, had represented you in your domestic dispute with David, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. At some point you visited Mr. Dickerman with Jamie Masada, correct?

A. Uh-huh.
Q. You had a number of meetings with Mr. Dickerman and Jamie Masada, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. At some point, Mr. Dickerman referred you to an attorney named Larry Feldman, correct?
A. This is after the fact.
Q. Is that true?
A. Correct.
Q. Never have you ever sought a restraining order against Mr. Jackson or anyone associated with him, right?
A. That's correct.
(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Frank Cascio says

to you, “Do you know everything that David is saying is completely false.” Do you see this?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And you say, “Oh, I know, I know. That’s why I’m getting” -- excuse me, “That’s why I’m -- I’m getting all those information. Oh, for example, ah, there was like year and a half ago, a year and a half ago, they did an investigation of me and David. We understand that -- that Michael Jackson, and Chris Tucker are involved with you and the kids, and they said -- and the kids spoke up and they said, ‘They’re family to us. If we didn’t have Michael, if we didn’t have Michael, we wouldn’t have a father, a father figure in our life.’” And then the social worker, (inaudible),” it says, “(possible keys typing), okay, I’ll give the person here a call named David Arvizo. And she documented it and everything and so I’m returning the note paper so you can have all these papers.”

Do you see that quote?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. You’re referring to an investigation of you and David, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What investigation are you talking about?

A. Okay. Remember how I told you about the Child Protective Services, that there was different people, not this group, the one that was in a different building, which was a female. This is how -- my children’s state of mind at that point, because Michael had been kind to them in the initial meeting when we first met in August. That stood with them. Yeah.

Q. Well, okay. So you met Michael Jackson in August of what year?

A. Of 2000. And also Evvy, his personal assistant, made sure that we -- that the children felt and saw everything as a family environment and to see him as a father figure. This is Evvy Tavasci, his personal assistant.

Q. When you were involved in the investigation you just described --

A. Yes.

Q. -- how many times had you seen Michael Jackson?

A. Me personally by this time, once.

Q. You had seen Michael Jackson one time, and when you're being investigated by the Department of Children & Family Services, you tell them that Michael is like a father to your kids and your family, true?

A. No. Inaccurate. It says, "And the kids spoke up and they said 'They're family to us.'" The children continue speaking and say, "If we didn't have Michael -- if we didn't have Michael, we wouldn't have a father."

My kids said that.

Q. "A father figure in our life," correct?

A. Yes, that's the children.

Q. Were you there when the kids said that to the representatives of the Department of Children & Family Services who were investigating you?

A. That's correct.

Q. One meeting with Michael and --

A. Not me.

Q. -- and you're calling him "family" and "a father figure," right?

A. Yes, per Evvy Tavasci's, his personal assistant, request. And also Michael had also pointed that out to the children in August of 2000.

Q. I'm asking about you.

A. Okay, me?

Q. You're being investigated by DCFS, true?

A. Yes. Me and David. Because when David was arrested for domestic violence -- remember how I told you that this particular social worker, I was very impressed, because she didn't care about me. All she was interested was in my children.

And that's what I thought and was hoping that these three, who were only solely concerned about being sued by Michael Jackson, would have had that same position. Then all this wouldn't have happened.

Q. Miss Arvizo, we're talking about a DCFS investigation, by your own words, that was a year and a half before you’re quoted in the conversation, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. That has nothing to do with what you just told the jury.

A. This has everything to do with it. This is -- this, 2003. The DCFS was about -- about 2001. So I’m giving a best estimate on this conversation.

Q. You’ve met Michael one time and you’re using him to defend yourself in the investigation?

A. No. Incorrect. Inaccurate. We had -- in my apartment, we had a series of different pictures. And the social worker had pointed out, because the pictures that they had taken out of my apartment when they did that little move, they were there displayed amongst many celebrities, many people. People that even donated blood were up there.

Q. Now, you told the jury when the prosecutor for the government was asking you questions that you’d always had good relationships with the Department of Children & Family Services, correct?

A. Who’s “the government”?

Q. These guys.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay?

Do you remember telling the jury that you had always had good relations with the Department of Children & Family Services?

A. That’s correct. Prior to this CPS meeting which they were not concerned with my children, they were just concerned about being sued by Michael Jackson, it was a positive experience. Like I said, they cared solely about my kids.

Q. And was it a positive experience with the Department of Children & Family Services when you were investigated a year and a half before this conversation with Frank Cascio?

A. That’s what I’m talking about. In the year 2000, when David was arrested, they initiated a Child Family Services -- I don’t know, one of those -- it’s the same people, I feel, had came out to make sure that I was a good mom and make sure that the children were in a safe environment.

Q. And you used the name “Michael Jackson” and the name “Chris Tucker” in that investigation?
A. That’s incorrect.
Q. So, are you not telling the truth when you say that to Frank?
A. No, no, you said if I used them. That’s inaccurate. Like I said, there was pictures on my walls of different people that had been kind to my children. Amongst them was Michael, Chris, celebrities, other people, and people that had donated blood. And it was her question that she asked that sparked my children to answer that. At that moment was a time that -- that was their mindset.
Q. You were investigated by the Department of Children & Family Services in the 1990s when Gavin alleged you had abused him. Remember that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Okay. Did you have a good relationship with the Department of Children & Family Services at that time?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Okay. He accused you of abusing him and then he changed his mind, right?

A. No, that’s inaccurate.
Q. Why don’t you tell the jury what happened in the investigation in the 1990s.
A. I feel -- if I’m correct, I feel that what he’s talking about, it was a time when Gavin was I think in kindergarten. I think it was kindergarten. I’m not sure. And the nurse, or something like that, had said to Gavin -- and this is the best I can recall it, had said -- about Gavin going home.
And then Gavin says, “No, I don’t want to go home,” because he didn’t want to go home from school.
And so he had told them that -- that if he went home, he would get in trouble or something like that. I don’t remember very clear.
And so the Department of Child Family Services came out, verified that my son was in a safe environment, and that was it. It was another positive experience.

Q. He had accused you of abusing him and then changed his story, didn't he?

A. No, it's inaccurate what you're saying.

Q. You just said that to the jury, that he accused you of abuse, right?

A. And it's okay. He was a kindergartner. He was a kindergartner. And the way -- the nurse or teacher, whoever it was - this is the best I can recall - had communicated it that way to the Department of Child Family Services. And that was it. This -- it's okay.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let's keep going. Thanks.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Frank says to you, "Janet, can you do me a favor? You see what's going with everything, and it seems like you're, like, hiding from everybody, right?" And you go, "Yes." See that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Who were you hiding from?

A. Well, from the people that they said that were out to kill my children.

Q. You were also hiding from the media, weren't you?

A. No, the media -- I was -- I was a little bit unclear, because Michael had said that they're all bad people.

Q. You had said they were bad people.

A. Well, because Michael in the initial meeting in Miami had said that, and so did the Germans.

Q. I see. Okay.

A. So I believed them. I -- you know, I'm incompetent. I don't know -- I don't have experience with this, so I believed him.

Q. I'm sorry. Do you remember making repeated statements that the media were harassing your family, your parents, your children, and you?

A. I don't see anywhere I say here "harassing."

Q. Did you ever say that to anyone at any time, Ms. Arvizo?

A. In this conversation I don’t think I said, and prior to this I never did. This is per these conversations, and this is multiple conversations.

Q. I understand your position. I’m asking you a general question.

Did you at any time, while these events were occurring, ever say to anybody, “The media is harassing my family, my children, my parents, and me”? Yes or no.

A. Well, like you said, it’s general, so I’m going to generally answer. Prior to these conversations, which are multiple conversations, no.

Q. I understand your position.

A. It’s no.

Q. So you never said -- you never complained to anyone about the media harassing you at any time, other than in this conversation.

A. You know --

Q. Is that true?

A. No. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. This was the first and only time you ever complained about the media harassing you and your family?

A. And that was because, in the initial meeting in Miami, Michael had pointed out that the media were bad people, which I come to find out different now, and that the Germans had said they’re bad people. I believed them.

When I got to my mom’s and I saw all those offers and the constant phone calls, then it just confirmed in my mind to what they had told me. And that’s it. They’re just doing their job. And that’s okay.

Q. Then why did you tell Frank they were harassing you at your home?

A. I didn’t say they were harassing me.

Q. Never said anything like that in this conversation, true?

A. No, I didn’t say “harassing.”

Q. Okay. All right.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Defendant’s Exhibit No. 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you tell Frank about the offers you received, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you, in effect, tell him you're not going to accept any of them, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And then you say --

A. Because that's not in my nature.

Q. I understand that. We'll get to the J.C. Penney case and a few other things.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

MR. ZONEN: It's a gratuitous comment.

MR. MESEREAU: Withdrawn.

Q. You say here, "I know we're family, Frank. Me, you, me, my kids are family. You, Marie Nicole, my kids, Baby Rubba are family. Michael, Marie Nicole (inaudible), (Frank coughs). You, me, are family and my parents. That's all I got. So that's why when these German people...," and then it's inaudible. Do you see that?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, this conversation is taking place after you say you escaped from Neverland with Jesus, true?

A. Correct.

Q. You're still calling Michael your family, correct?

A. That's correct, yes.

Q. You didn't escape from Neverland at all, did you?

A. Oh, yes, I did.

Q. And how many times did you go back after your first escape?

A. Be more specific, please.

Q. How many times did you return to Neverland after your first escape?

A. After I was convinced by Frank, believing that they were good people, I went back probably -- well, they've broken it down for you guys in a period of two days. So, let me see.

I went back with -- with Chris immediately. Came back that same day. And then when Vinnie took me back, and that's it. I think. I'm trying to be summarizing those two days’ worth of information.

Q. Well, it’s a total of approximately three escapes, isn’t it?

A. Are you including the one where I permanently left and never went back?

Q. Yes, and maybe it’s four escapes. How many times do you escape from Neverland?

A. I’m asking you. I’m asking you. Please.

Q. I’m asking you how many times, in your mind, you escaped from that dungeon Neverland?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many times did you escape from Neverland, Miss Arvizo?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

With Jesus. With Chris. And then the last time. And that’s the best I can remember.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And during the period of these escapes, you’re constantly referring to Michael as family to you, right?

A. Prior?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; vague as to “during the period of.”

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase it, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll withdraw it.

Q. Between the first and the last escape from Neverland, you were still referring to Michael as your family, right?

A. Prior to Jesus taking me, my kids and me, back to El Monte to my parents’ house, I thought he was still a good guy. I was confused and I was sad at that moment because I did not know the events or what’s happened. Now I know a lot. But in that period I only thought it was the Germans. That’s it.

Now, after, when Chris brought me back, I knew now things are problematic, things that are arising, so I’m still clueless. But as time evolves, I'm finding out more and more things. Now today, I know different.

Q. Ms. Arvizo, getting back to the leg wax that you had on February 11th, 2003, the day of your escape, you had a full leg treatment, a brow treatment, a lip treatment, a face treatment and a bikini wax; is that correct?

A. That's incorrect.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to look at the receipt?

A. It wouldn't refresh my recollection because I know my recollection. It's solely a leg wax. If they've manipulated it, that's what they have done.

Q. The total cost was $140, correct?

A. Like I say, it was only a leg wax.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to just look at the copy of the receipt?

A. I'm telling you, it was only a leg wax. He has the ability to choreograph everything.

Q. How about you, Ms. Arvizo?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You don't want to even look at the receipt?

A. No, because I'm telling you, it was only a leg wax.

Q. And who paid for that?

A. I paid for it. The reason is, they deducted it from the items they lost or stolen that were taken from me from the Miami trip.

Q. Who paid for your treatment at the salon?

A. I did, because that was their effort in replacing the items that were lost and stolen from the bags that I had in Miami.

Q. Did you pay the person at the salon your own money?

A. Like I said, the condition here was that they were deducting it from the items that they had lost or stolen from me.

Q. Did you pay the person at the salon any money?

A. I just answered that.

Q. Did you take money of your own and give it to anyone at the salon on that day, Miss Arvizo?

A. No.

Q. Who did?

A. I don't know. I don't know. That was taken care of by the Germans in the process of doing their positive PR, which there was a film crew. It would be good to show that.

Q. We'll talk about that. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Frank asks you to be interviewed for a documentary about Michael Jackson, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. This is after your escape with Jesus, correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And he tells you he'd like to do a documentary and would like you to say "nice things" - actually, he used the word "beautiful" - "about Michael," right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And you say, "Oh, I would. That's all I have to say." Frank says, "You" -- and then you say, "Me and the kids, that's all we have to say." Correct?

A. This is correct. In this period, I only thought it was the Germans that were problems.

Q. Are you still telling the jury that everything you said nice about Michael on the rebuttal tape was from a script?

A. Yes.

Q. And if it hadn't been for that script, you wouldn't have said beautiful things about Michael, right?

A. Could you say that again?

Q. Are you telling the jury that when you did the rebuttal video, you and the kids, and you said nice things about Michael Jackson, you were doing it all from a script? Yes or no, Miss Arvizo.

A. Well, you lost me now.

Q. I will rephrase it.

A. Okay.

Q. In this conversation that you didn’t know was recorded --

A. Correct.

Q. -- Frank’s asking you --

A. That was illegally recorded.

Q. Thank you.

In this conversation where you are recorded --

A. Illegally.

Q. I understand your position.

A. Okay.

Q. -- you tell Frank that all you and your family had to say in a documentary are beautiful things about Michael Jackson, true?

A. Yes. That is correct.

Q. Yet, you’ve also told the jury that when you did the documentary, all the good things you said about Mr. Jackson were scripted, correct?

A. In the document -- in the thing, the rebuttal that they did, the whole entire thing -- I know I have a problem speaking. I’m trying to do my best.

The whole thing, from the beginning to the end, including outtakes, it was all scripted material. All of it. You didn’t have to do that at this point. I would have done it on my own. But -- prior to that, because I thought it was only the Germans.

But from the period that they did this, now this is scripted, now things have elevated. But in this, at this moment in time, yes, I would have.

But now? Have another rebuttal, and I’ll speak freely. Have another audiotape with Brad Miller. I’ll speak freely now.

Q. I understand. But at this point in time after your first escape, you had nothing but nice things to say about Michael Jackson?

A. That is correct. I only thought it was the Germans.

Q. And you were ready to do a documentary about Michael Jackson where all you had were beautiful things to say, correct?

A. And only if the things wouldn't have been dictated of exactly what to say. Only if. That's the only problem I had; that they want -- they wanted me to say things that were scripted, exactly what they wanted to say. Because I -- I felt what's wrong with telling the truth? And at that moment, that was the truth.
Q. And everything you said --
A. And now I know different. It was happening right underneath my nose.
Q. Miss Arvizo, everything you said on that rebuttal tape was scripted; is that what you're saying?
A. Every single thing.
Q. We will get to the rebuttal.
A. Even the outtakes.
MR. SANGER: Ready?
MR. MESEREAU: Yeah.
(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you complained to

Frank that the Germans are trying to dictate to you what to say, right?
A. I didn't complain. I expressed myself.
Q. Is that what you expressed to him?
A. Yes. Because they were trying to dictate to me exactly what to say. For example, also the charitable act. They wanted me to say that me, Michael, my children had went to Germany and gave to German orphans. That's what they said. I'm not going to do that. What's wrong with the truth at that point? I thought he was a good guy. Now I know different.
Q. Miss Arvizo, at any time in that rebuttal tape, did you talk about going to Germany and dealing with orphans, per the script?
A. No. Obviously they eliminated that.
Q. Okay.
A. Or maybe I forgot. I don't know.
Q. I understand.
A. I was -- like I told you, I got in trouble for not doing exactly what they said, so that's why the process of leaving out of the country had to happen.

Q. Right. I understand.

A. You’re correct, I did an inadequate job. I’m a poor actress. You’re right.

Q. I think you’re a good one.

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to move to object.

Ask the Court to admonish counsel.

THE COURT: I’ll admonish counsel not to make those remarks.

MR. MESEREAU: I will --

THE COURT: Admonish the jury to disregard such a remark.

I expect more professional behavior from you.

MR. MESEREAU: I apologize, Your Honor.

I withdraw it.

THE COURT: (To the witness) And you must only answer his questions. You’re not to get into arguments with him. It’s as much your fault. Do you understand that?

THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said that to Frank, that what you say in the documentary has to come from the heart, right?

A. Yes. I said -- yes, I did. I said, “Think with your heart, not your head.” Because our heart has a lot of pure things in there.

Q. And when you said the things you said about Michael Jackson on that rebuttal video, you were, in fact, speaking from the heart, right?

A. It was all scripted.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you said you didn’t like someone named Mark Ratner, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Mark Ratner was a director on the Rush Hour movie, true?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Who was Mark Ratner?

A. I came to find out afterwards that it was

Marc Schaffel.

Q. Well, you talked about Mark Ratner.

A. There is no Mark Ratner. There’s only Brett Ratner.

Q. And --

A. And I hadn’t --

Q. And who is Brett Ratner?

A. And I haven’t spoke to Brett Ratner since my children were with Chris, since 2001. I think -- wait, 2000 -- I think it was January of 2001.

Q. Brett Ratner was the director on the Rush Hour movie, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you first meet him?

A. I met him for about -- Chris had taken the children to -- that’s when he was doing the filming for Rush Hour 2. It was on the set.

Q. Did you ever see him at Neverland?

A. I never saw him at Neverland.

Q. Did you ever learn that Gavin had seen him at Neverland?

A. Yes, I came to find out that afterwards.

Q. And did you learn that Gavin had asked him to take Gavin to Florida to see Michael? Did you ever learn that?

A. You are -- you are -- I have a lot of thoughts in my heart about you.

But he’s incorrect.

Q. Did you ever learn such a thing? Yes or no.

A. What I learned afterwards is that Brett Ratner, while I was over here in Los Angeles, and Dieter had cornered my son, including with Michael, to have him sign a piece of paper. That’s what I learned while I was over here in Los Angeles.

Q. Did you ever learn that Gavin wanted to go to Florida to see Michael, and Brett Ratner wouldn’t permit it?

A. That’s incorrect.

Q. Okay.

A. Because Brett Ratner, Dieter and Michael were all there in Michael’s house.

Q. Were you there?

A. My children were there.

Q. Were you there?

A. I wasn't there.

Q. Now, you talk about the Germans keep trying to push Michael Jackson to drink. Do you see that?

A. Yes. How foolish I was. I thought he didn't drink. And they choreographed the little scene in front of me where they were pretending like he doesn't drink, and he doesn't even drink Pepsi, and I fell for that. I did. Now I know a lot of things.

Q. You complained that the Germans are trying to get Michael Jackson to drink alcohol, right?

A. Yes. Like I said, I fell for it, their little choreography. I thought he didn't drink. They pointed out he didn't drink an ounce of alcohol, not even Pepsi, and I fell for it. Yes, I did.

Q. When you fell for this, how many times had you stayed at Neverland?

A. This is the period before I left with Jesus. This is this period.

Q. When you fell for this, how many times had you stayed at Neverland?

A. This is the period before I left with Jesus.

Q. Okay. And did you watch the people you refer to as the Germans trying to get Michael to drink?

A. Yes. Michael was part of this choreography. Michael had pointed out that he doesn't drink, and the Germans said he doesn't drink and that he doesn't even drink Pepsi. He was going, "No, no." And now I know different. Now I know that Neverland's all about booze, pornography and sex with boys.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike her comments as self-serving.

THE COURT: They're stricken. The jury is admonished to disregard those remarks.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Frank says there are evil people out there, and you agree with him, correct?

A. Yes, I believed him.
Q. Okay. And he talks about making some arrangements because you're not safe, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you thank him, correct?
A. Let me see. I'm just being appropriate.
Q. You're just being --
A. I have manners.
Q. You're just being well-mannered?
A. I'm just having manners, because as you can recall, I had left -- I believed what he had said.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, can I move to strike her comments?
THE WITNESS: So I went to Jay Jackson's house instead of going back.
THE COURT: Just a moment.
All right. I'll strike after she said, "I'm just having manners."

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you agreed with Frank that he should make arrangements because you weren't safe, you were just being well-mannered, correct?
A. At this point, I'm being only well-mannered, and I didn't agree. I was -- he was convincing me.
Q. I see. Okay. All right.
(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you get back on the line with Frank and he says, "How can I get in touch with you, because I know sometimes your lines are always busy."
And you say, "Yeah, it's like people are calling like crazy, you know?"
Who are you referring to?
A. This is correct. A lot of people were calling. They were interested in my son Gavin.
Q. And you were complaining to Frank about that, correct?
A. No, I'm not complaining. This is in the midst of a conversation. I didn't call him. He called me. Many times.
Q. Did you ever complain to Frank that people were calling you like crazy?

A. I stated to him -- the word here is, “Yeah, it’s like people are like calling crazy, you know.”
MR. MESEREAU: Let’s keep going.
(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Frank says to you, “I’m going need to get through to you and talk to you, because I want to get you out of there. It’s -- I don’t think -- I don’t want you -- I don’t think it’s safe.”
And Miss Arvizo, you respond, “It’s not. It’s like it’s crazy. Can I read you one of the letters? It’s like there are all kinds of things, and it’s of no interest to me, because family never leaves family behind.”
Do you see where you said that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. You don’t refer to any death threats at all, do you?
A. No, I don’t.
Q. You say it’s not safe, and you talk about all the letters you’re getting. No reference to one single death threat --
A. That’s because --
Q. -- is that correct, Miss Arvizo?
Just please answer my question, if you can.
A. Yes, that’s correct.
Q. Okay.
A. You don’t have to raise your voice. I’m here listening.
Q. I’m sorry. I’m sorry.
And then you say, “Family never leaves family behind, you know,” right?

A. That’s correct.
Q. You still consider Michael to be your family, right?
A. That’s because of the initial meeting where he said --
Q. Yes or no?
A. -- “Family never leaves family behind.”
Q. You still considered Michael --
A. At this point?

Q. -- to be part of your family?

A. He called himself family, and it -- basically, like I said, people 50 or over have a tender spot in my heart. Sometimes --

MR. MESEREAU: May I object to the colloquy? Move to strike.

THE COURT: Sustained. Do you want to read the question back? Read the question to her.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: I considered him to be like family.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Frank says to you, Ms. Arvizo, “For your safety, and if we were to put a secur -- maybe have somebody 24 hours outside your house, protecting your house from people, would you mind if we do that?” And your answer is, “No.” Right?

A. My answer is, “No,” I don’t want that.

MR. MESEREAU: Keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Ms. Arvizo, after Frank says, “Maybe have somebody 24 hours outside your house, protecting your house from people, would you mind if you do that?” And you say, “No,” you then talk about how your children’s school is bombarded; correct?

A. Yes, this is because Michael and the Germans had told me that.

Q. Well, you didn’t say that now, did you?

A. I did say that.

Q. You’re in Los Angeles when you make this comment, aren’t you?

A. No, it’s correct. I’m telling you -- you want to know the information. You weren’t there; I was. Michael and the Germans had told me that.

MR. MESEREAU: May I ask -- would the Court instruct the witness just to respond to my question?

THE WITNESS: I am responding.

THE COURT: You must listen to the question and answer the question, and not try to advance beyond the question.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You say to Frank, “So I have my kids here, and the school is completely cooperating with giving, like, me to work.” He says, “Okay.” And you say, “My children’s school is like bombarded,” correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. Frank goes, “I know,” right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Then you say, “I didn’t go to the other apartment. It’s like crazy over there,” correct?

A. This is correct.

MR. MESEREAU: Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You then tell Frank about the apartment in East Los Angeles, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. You tell him it’s on North Soto Street, right?

A. That’s right.

Q. And after telling him that your children’s school is, like, bombarded, and that the other apartment, it’s like crazy over there, you tell him that you didn’t go to Soto Street. You went straight to your mom’s house, true?

A. This is -- this is correct. I told him I came straight here to my mom’s house from Neverland, to my mom’s house, because I believed what the Germans and Michael had said.

Q. Okay.

A. And I’m repeating what they said --

Q. I see.

A. -- to Frank.

Q. That’s your explanation for those comments, correct?

A. This is -- this is accurate information.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Let’s keep going.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s

Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Miss Arvizo, after talking about how your children’s school is bombarded, and it’s crazy over at Soto Street, and that you’ve gone to your mom’s house and didn’t go to Soto Street, Frank says to you, “What if we were to take you to a church up there? Because it’s just really important. You’re going to have to have somebody stay outside your house and watch you, your house, protect and make sure nobody comes to your house. Oh, I want to take you up to the ranch just for your safety and your family.”

And your response to that statement is, “Do you have a cell number, Frank?” And he says, “Yes.”

At no time do you say you don’t want any of that protection, do you?

A. At no time does it say a “Yes.”

Q. Your response to his statement about giving you protection is, “Can I have your cell number?” Right?

A. I just said, “Do you have” -- and prior to that, you said something about church. I have never missed Ash Wednesday. Never.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.

THE WITNESS: And when I was in Neverland, they didn’t take me to church. I missed Ash Wednesday.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

I will strike that, those remarks. But, Counsel, your question was so long and lengthy, one wonders what one should comment on in it.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

THE COURT: And I’ll ask you to refrain from that type of question. It’s causing problems here.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes. I’ll rephrase it, Your Honor.

Q. Miss Arvizo, referring you to Frank Cascio’s statement, it begins with “What if we were…,” do you see that?

A. Okay.

Q. He says to you, “What if we were to take you to a church up there,” right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. “Because it’s just really important,” right?
A. Uh-huh.

Q. And it says -- it says, “Inaudible,” right?
A. Yes.
Q. And then he says, “You’re going to have to take somebody” -- excuse me. “You’re going to have to have somebody stay outside your house and watch you,” right?
A. Correct.
Q. He says, “Your house,” right?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Then he says, “Protect and make sure nobody comes to your house,” right?
A. Correct.
Q. “Oh, I want to take you up to the ranch just for your safety and your family.” Do you see that?
A. Correct.
Q. And your response to that is, “Do you have a cell number, Frank?” Right?
A. That’s it.
Q. And he says, “Yes.”
A. And it’s not --
Q. Right?
A. And it’s not a “yes” from me.
Q. And it’s not a “no” either, is it?
MR. ZONEN: It’s argumentative; objection.
THE WITNESS: He’s convincing me.
THE COURT: Excuse me, Counsel?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Let’s keep going.
(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Going further into this taped phone conversation --
A. And notifying that there’s also numerous tape breaks.
Q. I understand.
You say to Frank, “Is there a way I can get back to you, Frank?” Do you see that?
A. Yes, I see that. I’m being polite.
Q. I understand.

And Frank --

A. Because I not once - and when you see those subpoenaed phone records - called him back during this period.

Q. And you say, “Call you” -- Your Honor, may I move to strike the witness’s comments?

THE COURT: I’m not going to strike it. The last question listed is you just saying, “I understand,” and then she starts talking. So there was no question and --

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. Miss Arvizo, you say to Frank, “Is there a way I can get back to you, Frank?” Correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Frank says, “Call you if there is an emergency,” right?

A. Correct. And there’s also a tape break.

Q. Yes. And then you say, “Okay, I have no control (another phone is heard ringing) Frank. People call and call. So when they call, it sounds busy to whoever else. “ Do you see that?

A. This is correct.

Q. Frank says, “Okay.” And then you say, “This is my mom’s number.”

A. Yes, I was at my mother’s house.

Q. You gave Frank your mom’s phone number, true?

A. I gave Frank my mom’s phone number? No.

Q. All right.

A. He himself had it.

Q. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said to Frank, “Don’t worry, Frank, we’re a family, okay?” Do you see that?

A. Oh, I see it right here.

Q. Frank says, “Okay.” Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. You say, “Michael’s family to me.” Then it’s inaudible. “My kids call him Daddy Michael.” Do you see that?

A. That’s correct. This is correct.

Q. Then he says, “But -- but Janet, you understand like how we have to protect you and Michael, Gavin and your kids. That’s why I’m so concerned.” Do you see that?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you respond to Frank, “That’s why the German people said, ‘You need no protection. You’re nobody’ --
A. Yes.
Q. -- “you know?”
And you say -- and Frank says, “No, that’s not true,” correct?
A. Correct. Do you want me --
Q. I’d like to ask you just some questions, if I can, all right?
A. Okay. Sure.
Q. You complain to Frank that the German people said you didn’t need protection, because you’re a nobody, right?
A. No. It’s -- it says, “That’s why the German people say, “I need no protection. You’re nobody,’ you know?”
Q. And then Frank then responds, “No, that’s not true,” correct?
A. Correct. Correct. But do you want information on this statement?
Q. Did the German people tell you you don’t need protection, you’re a nobody?

A. Yes, they sure did.
Q. We’ll move further on.
A. When they had me sign the paper --
Q. Correct?
A. Oh, then he doesn’t want you to know.
THE COURT: Just a moment. Just a moment. Listen to the question and answer it. You’re going beyond the question. I’ve asked you not to do that.
THE WITNESS: Okay. This is just so hard, Judge. For two years I’ve been waiting.
THE COURT: I’ll strike that remark.
Go ahead, Counsel.
MR. MESEREAU: Let’s go.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

THE COURT: Counsel? I'm sorry to break your concentration, but I want to explain something to the jury.

MR. MESEREAU: Sure.

THE COURT: If you need to start over on that, you can.

(To the jury) During the course of this trial, quite often I have said, "I'll strike that." The purpose in doing that is twofold: One is to tell you you're not to consider that, whether it's testimony, whether it's remarks by an attorney, whether it's remarks by a witness. And it also is reflected in the record.

Later, when you're deciding this case and you're in the jury room, you may want to have testimony read back. And when testimony is read back to you, you don't -- that's not there. It is stricken at that time, so the court reporter reads it to you, she sees that it's stricken, she doesn't read all of that to you.

So it may seem strange that I just say "Strike that." But what it really means always is, if I say "strike it," don't consider it. Don't discuss it in your deliberations. It's sort of like asking you to unring a bell that you've heard ring, but as intellects, we are -- you know, we are capable of deciding the case on information that's admissible and not on information that's not admissible, right?

Everybody on the jury understand that?

THE JURY: (In unison) (Nods head up and down.)

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Did you want to -- since I interrupted you, did you want to play that section back, or are you okay?

MR. MESEREAU: I think we're okay, Your Honor. Appreciate it. Thank you.

Q. Miss Arvizo, you constantly complain about the German people in this conversation, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And going back to the portion that we just played, Frank tells you the following: “No, don’t. Listen, ah, you don’t have to talk to them. Just talk to me, talk to Michael, and I’m going to arrange everything. But it’s either we’re going to have to have somebody at your house this weekend or we’re going to have to take you to the ranch. This way Michael -- Michael wants to see you. He’s -- he was almost -- he didn’t know what happened. He thought he did something and he was trying to get in touch with you. And I said, ‘Don’t worry, I’ll take care of this.’ So --”

And your response to that statement is, “Tell him he’s our family,” right?

A. That is correct.

Q. You never object to having security at your house, as Frank proposes, right?

A. I didn’t -- I never said “Yes.”

Q. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Going further, you keep complaining about the German people.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Frank says to you, “You don’t have to talk to them,” right?

A. Correct.

Q. You say, “I thought like everything, my family was in jeopardy,” correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. Frank responds, “No,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And your response to that is, “Meaning us being with Michael and Michael being with us, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What you said to Frank was you were concerned about your family not being with Michael and Michael being with your family, true?

A. I said, “I thought like everything, my family, was in jeopardy.”

Q. And then you say, “Meaning us being with Michael and Michael being with us”?

A. Yes. I will never say no to love.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Objection to her -- move to strike the remarks.

THE COURT: I’m sorry, I don’t understand the question or the answer.

Would you just ask another question?

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll ask another question, yes, Your Honor.

Q. Frank says, “You don’t have to talk to the German people,” and you say to him, “I thought like everything, my family, was in jeopardy,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you say, “Meaning us being with Michael and Michael being with us,” correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. After your escape with Jesus, you still want Michael to be with your family, and your family to be with him, true?

A. Yes. I thought it was all --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: I believed what he said in Miami.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

All right. Go ahead with your next question.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Going further into this tape, okay?

A. With the numerous tape breaks.

Q. I understand. Now, Frank says, “We need to protect you and your family, so I’ll call you in one hour to see if you’re okay,” right?

A. Okay. Did you go farther up, higher, or --

Q. Well, let’s see, the pages aren’t numbered. So it starts at -- the top of the page starts with, “...to do in a couple of hours....” Do you see that?

A. Okay, this is from this previous page.

Q. Do you see that?

A. And then on top. Okay. Okay.

Q. Yes. The first full quote from Frank Cascio on that page, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Frank says, “I’m going to call you just to see how you’re doing, because we need to protect you and your family. So I’ll call you in one hour to see if you’re okay.” And you say, “Okay,” right?

A. Uh-huh. This is correct, being polite.

Q. At no time do you disagree with the continually repeated idea that your family needs some protection, right?

A. And at no time do I request it.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You tell Frank you’re at your mom’s house. He says to you, “This is the number to your mom’s house,” question mark, and you say “Yeah,” correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. Are you still telling the jury you never wanted Frank to have the number to your mom’s house?

A. He’s calling at my mom’s house. He asked me, “Is this your mom’s house?” I never gave it to him. He already had it.

Q. Okay.

A. I’m at my mom’s house.

Q. And you have no idea how Frank got the 6469 number to your mom’s house, true?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. Now, going back a little bit --

A. Oh, yeah, now I know how.

Q. I understand.

Going back a little bit, “I told them when people neglected us, rejected us, they don’t know…,” and then there’s a tape break. It says, “Um, Baby Rubba.”

What were you referring to when you said, “People neglected us and rejected us”?

A. My husband, my ex-husband David Arvizo, with his family.

Q. Were you referring to anyone else?

A. No. Nobody else.

Q. Do you remember in the rebuttal video where you accused the Department of Children & Family Services of neglecting your family?

A. Maybe it was -- maybe it was put in another context, but that’s what I meant. My ex in-laws.

Q. They’re the only people you’re referring to, right?

A. That’s exactly right.

Q. Okay. Now, in that rebuttal tape, you also talk about your family being spit on and discriminated against and things like that, correct?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And are you only referring to David’s family when you say that?

A. Part of it is David’s family. And David. Mostly David.

Q. And who’s the rest of it?

A. Mostly David, his family. And just different things like that. Different experiences.

Q. But in that tape you talk about more people than David and his family.

A. Are we talking about this tape or --

Q. I’m asking about the rebuttal tape now, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. You talk about -- excuse me, in that tape, you say words to the effect, “We’ve been spit on, we’ve been fried, we’ve been rejected because of our race,” and a whole bunch of things, right? You’re not referring to David’s family when you say that?

A. Are you missing the point that it was all scripted?

Q. I’m asking you a question, Miss Arvizo. Could you please answer it?

A. Okay. Remember in the initial meeting in Miami how I was just telling everything about -- to the Germans? Well, obviously they were in the works in doing the script since back then.

Q. So when you say words to that effect in this conversation --

A. This conversation.

Q. -- the Brad Miller interview and the rebuttal video, you're only referring to David's family?

A. Brad Miller audiotape and this is referring to David's -- David mostly, with his family. But in the rebuttal, like I said, it was all scripted. All of it. It was the information that they had extracted from me and my children. And it's pretty obvious that it's very ingrained, the experiences that I have felt and gone through with my ex family, which is David's family.

Q. Okay.

A. And they put it in with their little script.

Q. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 809, was played for the Court and jury to its conclusion.)

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, I think that completes the recording of the phone conversation.

THE COURT: Okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Miss Arvizo, you filed for divorce from David approximately five days after you settled the J.C. Penney case, correct?

A. I filed for divorce after David was arrested for domestic violence.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, may I ask the Court to instruct the witness to answer the question?

THE WITNESS: Well, your question was about --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Would you read the question back to the witness?

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: I don't know about that. He wanted a history as far as when, and I'm telling you, I filed for divorce the day after -- not the day after, but after David finally was arrested for domestic violence.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In your case against David for domestic violence, you told the Los Angeles Police Department that he had been abusing you for many years, true?

A. This is correct.

Q. You told the Los Angeles Police Department that he had been abusing you since you were married, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. Had David been abusing you from the time you were married?

A. This is correct.

Q. You told the Los Angeles Police Department that for approximately 17 years, he had been physically and emotionally abusing you, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You also said he had been abusing your children for the entire marriage, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. But in the J.C. Penney case, when you wanted money, you said the opposite about David, didn’t you?

A. That’s incorrect. When David was arrested, I went to Rothstein’s office, who was in charge of the civil -- civil proceedings, of the civil J.C. Penney’s lawsuit, and I told him David has finally been arrested. I want to correct this statement that me and my children were unable to say because he was still part of our life. And I went to their office, and they told me that they would take care of it. And that’s why when the police asked me to waive this information of my civil lawsuit, I did happily. And yet these Rothstein people did not do that. I told them to inform J.C. Penney’s and Tower Records that that information was incorrect right after David was arrested. I finally was liberated to say what actually had been going on for years.

Q. Miss Arvizo --

A. So you’re inaccurate.

Q. Well, Miss Arvizo, do you remember having your sworn deposition taken in the J.C. Penney case?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was a case that you had filed claiming you were sexually abused by J.C. Penney by the security guards in a public parking lot, correct?

A. I gave the civil lawyers the information about what happened, just as I told the police department, the West Covina Police Department. Now, how they write their statement, how they do these paperworks, I don’t know. But it’s only one story. And it’s been repeated over and over. How they put it in this paperwork, I don’t know. I wasn’t the attorney.

Q. Miss Arvizo, you gave a sworn deposition in that case where you were placed under oath, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. And you filed a claim for monetary damages against J.C. Penney, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. You were claiming that you had suffered physical injury because of what J.C. Penney security guards did to you, correct?

A. Tower Records.

Q. Correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. And to prove your claim for monetary damages, you had to explain that your physical injuries were solely the result of what J.C. Penney and Tower Records had done to you, correct?

A. This is correct. And they had me explain, to the millisecond, of the process while I was being hurt.

Q. Your deposition was taken on December 18th, the year 2000, correct?

A. Yes, while I was still married and David was with me and my children. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. And what year did you file for divorce from David?

A. Approximately in 2001. When David was arrested.

Q. And on December 18th, the year 2000, you were asked under oath, “Has David Arvizo ever struck you,” and you said, “No.”

A. This is correct.

Q. You were asked under oath, “Has David ever struck your children?” You said, “No. We goof around a lot, though, play.” Correct?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. You were not telling the truth under oath when you made those statements, correct?

A. But prior to settlement, I had went to the -- to Rothstein's office and I requested that they fix that, after David was arrested, because I finally could open my mouth. And this -- I want you to have a picture of this.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: This is when Gavin is going through chemotherapy.

THE COURT: Just a moment. Just a moment.

I'll strike her answer to that.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Further in that deposition --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, I'm sorry. Pardon me.

THE COURT: Do you want to go back to the question you asked? The answer has been stricken.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, if we could have it read back, Your Honor, I'd appreciate it.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: This is correct.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Further, in that deposition, you were asked, "Have you had any marital problems at all other than related to this incident at J.C. Penney?" And you said "No." Right?

A. This is correct. I was -- by the time that David had gotten arrested, I was never going to tell anything that he had done to me or my kids. Never.

Q. You lied under oath to increase the amount of money you could get from what you claimed J.C. Penney and Tower had done to you, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, in that deposition, you were asked when you decided to file a lawsuit, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You said you decided to file a lawsuit against J.C. Penney and Tower Records two weeks or two or three weeks prior to the expiration date.

Remember that?

A. I don’t understand what your question is.

Q. Well, I’m just going to ask you about your answer. And I can show you the page, if you want to see it.

A. No, I just don’t understand your question. I don’t know whether you’re making a statement or an actual question.

Q. Then that’s my mistake. I’ll rephrase it.

A. Okay. That’s okay.

Q. In your deposition under oath, in the J.C. Penney case, you were asked the question, “When did you decide to file a lawsuit?” Do you remember that?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And your answer was, “Two weeks or two or three weeks prior to the expiration date.”

A. This is correct. If it’s on there, it is correct.

Q. Then you were asked, “Was that before or after the criminal charges had been dropped?” Remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said, “Way after,” correct?

A. Yes.

Q. When you used the words “expiration date,” you were referring to the deadline that you had to file charges -- excuse me, file a lawsuit before, correct?

A. That’s what I was explained.

Q. You would lose your right to file a civil suit if you didn’t file it by a certain date, correct?

A. That’s what I was explained by the civil attorneys.

Q. And --

A. If there’s anything that sounds worth -- worth of any intelligence there, that’s what I was informed. No credit to me. Only to the civil attorneys.

Q. Well, you knew enough to say under oath that you filed your civil case before the deadline, right?

A. Because of attorneys had made me aware of that.

Q. Are you aware of the deadlines that you or your children have to file claims against Mr. Jackson?

A. We will never file a claim against Mr. Jackson. I want justice here.

Q. Are you aware, Ms. Arvizo, of the deadlines you have to file a civil claim against Mr. Jackson? Yes or no.

A. I think so. I'm not interested, so I don't ask.

Q. I understand. And in this case you weren't interested until after the criminal investigation was over, correct?

A. I wanted an apology.

MR. ZONEN: Which case is counsel referring to? Vague.

MR. MESEREAU: I will rephrase it. The prosecutor is correct.

Q. In the J.C. Penney case, you waited till after a criminal investigation was over to file your civil claims, true?

A. I wanted an apology.

Q. You wanted over $100,000, didn't you?

A. I didn't get over $100,000.

Q. You got 152,000 in the settlement, Miss Arvizo, didn't you?

A. In -- in my hand, I did not get $150,000.

MR. MESEREAU: May I ask the witness be instructed --

MR. ZONEN: I think she just answered.

THE WITNESS: I answered.

THE COURT: It was -- your question, your last question, was basically whether she got a certain amount, and she's trying to answer that.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The settlement to you and --

THE COURT: Just a minute. Let her finish the answer.

THE WITNESS: In my hand, I received only $32,000. That's it. In my hand. And that's my best approximation.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, what did Gavin get in his hand from that settlement?

A. I don’t remember, because it’s been put away where it’s to be untouched by me.

Q. What did Star get in his hand in that settlement?

A. Still nothing. I don’t know, because it’s -- it’s something that’s untouched by me. It’s for them.

Q. What did David get in his hand from that settlement?

A. That’s -- you’re going to have to ask David, and yet he was not injured whatsoever.

Q. The total was over $152,000 that your family was given in the settlement, true?

A. That you have to ask my civil attorneys. And I think his statement may be correct.

Q. Okay. You claimed in that case that you had bruises from what the security guards did to you, right?

A. It is correct.

Q. After you had resolved that case and obtained money, you claimed that you were bruised by David, true?

A. I had always been bruised by David for years. But I never told anyone until after David was arrested. That was the pivotal point in my life. Not until David was arrested did I say anything about bruises in my whole entire life, and that was only with people of authority. That’s it.

Q. When you were seeking money from J.C. Penney and Tower Records, you testified under oath on December 18th, the year 2000, that you never had any black and blue marks prior to the incident at J.C. Penney, correct?

A. Yes, this is correct. I was too embarrassed to ever tell anyone.

Q. You made that statement because you wanted any injury you ever had to be attributed to J.C. Penney and Tower Records, right?

A. Incorrect. What J.C. Penney’s and Tower Records did to me was one day, one situation, one incident. That's it.

Q. If you had testified truthfully under oath and said that your bruises were from David, the amount of monetary damages you could get from J.C. Penney would have been lowered, true?

A. This is incorrect. I would have never told anyone until David got arrested that I -- that David was giving me these bruises. Never. People would see me with bruises and I would never, never, never tell them.

Q. Did you lie under oath in your deposition in the J.C. Penney case?

A. I tried to remedy that when I had gone to my -- after David was arrested, I went to Rothstein's office. And I requested that they inform Tower Records and J.C. Penney's that I would like to make that correct statement because the statements that were there were incorrect. But finally me and my kids could finally say what was really happening for many, many years.

Q. Mrs. Arvizo, the problem you had was that when you made allegations later on against David that he had abused you for 17 years, there was a deposition that had previously been taken where you said the opposite under oath, right?

A. You're -- it's too long. There's a yes and no and yes and no, and now I don't know.

THE COURT: Let's take a break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Miss Arvizo --

THE BAILIFF: You need to turn your microphone on, please.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, thank you.

THE COURT: You missed a good show of hands there. Give it to him again, would you? Look, look, look.

(Laughter.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, did you tell the jury that David was not honest in the J.C.

Penney case?

A. Me?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay. Ask the question again.

Q. I’ll rephrase it. Did you tell the jury words to the effect that your ex-husband David did not tell the truth in the J.C. Penney case?

A. Are we talking about the grand jury or the civil lawsuit?

Q. The civil lawsuit.

A. Did I tell a jury?

Q. Did you tell this jury today that David did not tell the truth in the J.C. Penney civil suit?

A. We weren’t talking about David. I was telling you what I -- David had done to me and the children.

Q. David sued J.C. Penney with you, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. David claimed he was injured in that parking lot with you and your children, correct?

A. To my -- what I was aware of is that he wasn’t injured. And that’s it.

Q. But he was suing, with you, for monetary damages for being injured, right?

A. I came afterwards. David -- when I walked up to the situation, he was being hit by these people. So I don’t know what happened prior to me arriving there. So I’m unaware.

Q. During the time you had your deposition taken in the J.C. Penney lawsuit --

A. Yes.

Q. -- did you consider David to be an honest person?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember testifying under oath in the J.C. Penney lawsuit that, “David is extremely honest. He’s too honest”?

A. If that’s on there, then that’s correct. Whatever’s on the deposition is correct.

Q. Do you remember saying that under oath?

A. If it’s on there, then it is.

Q. Would it refresh if I just show it to you?

A. I’m just asking, if it is on there, it’s correct.

Q. Okay. I have to get a response from you as to whether you said that or not, okay?

A. If it’s on there, it’s correct. And it would be a yes, if it’s on there.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection just to show it to you first? Would that help?

A. It’s a yes.

Q. Your answer is “yes”?

A. Yes.

Q. You did say under oath that, “David is extremely honest. He’s too honest”?

A. Yes.

Q. And you weren’t telling the truth when you made that statement under oath, correct?

A. Anything to do with David, no. That’s why I went to the civil attorneys, to try to correct that after he was arrested.

Q. Let me get this straight, now. You went to the civil attorneys to try and change your testimony after you collected a settlement?

A. Incorrect. The settlement still had not been corrected, accepted or settled. Anything like that. It was still prior.

Q. Now, you claimed you were assaulted in a public parking lot by J.C. Penney security guards, correct?

A. Plus Tower Records.

Q. And Tower Records, right?

A. That’s right.

Q. You said you thought you were going to die, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you think you were going to die in a public parking lot when you were assaulted by these security guards?

A. Yes, I did, because it came to a point where I couldn’t breathe.

Q. Okay. You testified the security guards were doing belly flops on top of your body, right?

A. That’s what I was told.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as beyond the scope of the 402 hearing.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Do you want to read the question back to her?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor. Thank you.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: This is correct.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And you also claimed that security guards in a public parking lot pulled your breasts out of your blouse and squeezed your nipple between 10 to 25 times, correct?

A. No, they didn’t pull my breasts out.

Q. What did you claim happened?

A. In the course of me getting beat up, I was laying flat on the floor. My breasts had came out of my bra.

Q. Did you testify under oath that your nipple was squeezed by one of the guards 10 to 25 times?

A. At this moment, the attorney, who was the defense attorney, wanted me to describe everything by the millisecond, even though, in my depositions, I keep saying, over and over, “It was like this. It was like this.” And instead, he wanted me to go millisecond per millisecond, so I described it the best I could as it was happening. But if you fast-forward, that would have been fast.

Q. And how did you describe the sexual assault?

A. Like I said, the wording as far as how the civil attorneys did, that was their choice of words. There was only one, how I described it, and that’s how they put it in.

Q. Please tell the jury how you were sexually assaulted.

A. Well, to me - me - I feel that my breast area and anything to do with my -- with down there, my private area, is considered my sexual organs. That’s how I see it and how I feel about it. So if you place your hands on me in that area, I’m going to say that.

Q. And please tell the jury how you were sexually assaulted in that public parking lot.

A. Okay. When I was laying on the floor, while they're beating on me, one of the Tower Records guys, who incidentally -- this can be verified. I think he was also fired for doing this to some other people after this, so -- but this person, while I was laying on the floor getting beat up, he had his hand over and over on my breast and on the front area of my private area. My pants were on. There was no intercourse, no rape, no nothing like that.

I was just trying to describe that his hands were on my breasts, which I think I repeatedly kept saying I just wanted his hands off of me, and that's it.

Q. Do you remember testifying your nipple was squeezed 10 to 25 times?

A. Yes. Again, it was he wanted me -- to humiliate me, like he's trying to do at this moment, and making me to say it millisecond per millisecond.

Q. You testified to these facts to get money, true?

A. It was a civil lawsuit, yes, it was.

Q. Now, you claim in that lawsuit that Gavin's cancer was made worse by the security guards, true?

A. I don't think so. I think -- I think I said something that Gavin was having the chemotherapy at this time when they wanted the deposition to occur.

Q. You also claim that Star's cyst was made worse by the security guards, correct?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Did you ever make such a claim?

A. Incorrect.

Q. What did you say about Star in that situation?

A. I think -- and this is the best I can remember, and we're talking 1998 here when this happened. This is the best I can try to remember. He's got a big, giant book right there, and I have nothing in front of me.

And, let me see, I think what happened was when we went to the doctors, they did -- they put him in this tube, and when it came out, they ended up telling me that Star has a cyst on his brain, but this is something that is -- that Star has. That's it. Has nothing to do with J.C. Penney's lawsuit.

I’m -- of course, getting hit on the head doesn’t help if you’ve got a cyst on your brain.

Q. Do you know someone named Mary Holzer?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Please tell the jury who Mary Holzer is.

A. Mary Holzer is a giant Michael Jackson fan. And she’s also a -- an office manager. This is my understanding. She told me she was an office manager for Rothstein civil law -- civil law firm.

Q. And who is the Rothstein civil law firm?

A. The Rothstein civil law firm is a firm that was responsible for the lawsuit.

Q. Do you remember, after you had settled that case, telling Mary Holzer that you lied in the case?

A. That is inaccurate.

Q. Okay. Do you remember telling Mary Holzer that David’s brother is in the Mexican mafia?

A. That’s incorrect.

Q. And that he sells drugs here and in Las Vegas?

A. That’s incorrect.

Q. You said, “He’s going to come after you and your daughter if you ever tell anyone what I’m revealing to you”?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Okay. So that never happened, right?

A. That never happened.

Q. And if Mary Holzer comes into court and says that, she’d be lying; is that correct?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE WITNESS: Yes, she would. Yes, she would.

THE COURT: Just a moment. The objection to the question is sustained. The question and answer are stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many lies under oath do you think you told in your depositions in the J.C. Penney case?

A. Like I said, I tried -- after David was arrested, I went to the Rothstein office and I pointed out to them, prior to a settlement agreement, that I would like to correct the statements that were inaccurate, because finally David was arrested. Finally, we and my children could speak. And Rothstein, including with Mary Holzer, said, “Don’t worry. We’ll take care of it.” And they didn’t. So I considered their firm a -- liars.

Q. But not you, right?

A. That’s correct.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained. The remark’s stricken.

You’re admonished not to make those remarks.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

Q. You testified in that deposition in the J.C. Penney case that you had worked as an undercover agent. Do you remember that?

A. Me?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you --

A. I don’t think the way you’re using it is correct.

Q. Remember you said you had worked in internal security?

A. What he’s trying to say, he’s trying to make it bigger than it is. I used to be a loss prevention agent way back in -- I think it was 1990. We’re talking about 15 years ago. That’s my best estimate. I used to work at Von’s. Just, you know, people that took an orange, took a banana, things like that.

Q. Remember you were asked the question, “And you were an undercover type of agent?” And you answered, “Yes”?

A. Yes. That’s what they called it. It was loss prevention agent. You wore plain clothes and you stopped people when they take items without purchasing them from the market, from Von’s market. A grocery store.

Q. How long did you work in that capacity?

A. I think I worked there for -- my best estimate, best estimate, maybe - this was about 15 years ago - maybe about one year. Maybe. My best estimate. This is having to recall 15 years ago. Please, this is an approximation of dates.

Q. You testified in that case that security agents in the public parking lot punched you, correct?

MR. ZONEN: Which case are we talking about? Von's?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: J.C. Penney case. Was there a case against Von's?

I haven't have said that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You're right, you shouldn't have.

The District Attorney, you're admonished to object according to the legal standards for objections.

MR. ZONEN: The objection is vague, then, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It's a little late.

I'm not going to allow you to engage in that type of conversation with each other or with the witness.

MR. MESEREAU: I apologize.

THE COURT: Do you want me to shut the trial down this afternoon?

MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor, I don't.

THE COURT: Then let's start taking this seriously and act correctly.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In the J.C. Penney case, you claimed under oath that you were punched with closed fists in the parking lot of J.C. Penney, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You also claim that you were punched with handcuffs, like they were brass knuckles, correct?

A. Read -- what are you talking about? If I said that I was beat up, that includes everything they did.

You know, he wants me to recall something that happened in 1998 and break it down while he's got a big, giant book right here.

Q. In the J.C. Penney case, did you claim under oath that you were punched with handcuffs as if they were brass knuckles?

A. I remember -- I remember seeing the female having the handcuffs inside her fingers like this. That's what I remember seeing.

Q. And after being punched all these times in the parking lot, you said you thought you were going to die and it was like you were in a cave in a tunnel. Do you remember that?

A. Yes, it did feel that way. It did feel that way.

Q. You said security guards were punching Gavin and Star, correct?

A. Can you please read -- bring me that where it says that?

Q. Okay.

A. Because my son -- both of my sons were hurt.

Q. Were they hurt by security guards?

A. No, bring me --

Q. Were they hurt by security guards?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. Okay. You said Gavin didn't get up. He just laid on the floor, right?

A. I think -- he's being general. My son was pushed and -- by one of them, causing his elbow to fracture. He ended up having a fracture, so --

Q. And you said Gavin had cancer in both his lungs, right?

A. Now, are we going at that time?

Q. Yes, at that time.

A. Okay. He's mixing up the facts purposely. When my son was deposed in 2000, he had cancer. And they had -- progressively it went to both of his lungs. At that time when both my boys -- the summer of first grade when this happened with J.C. Penney's, no, he did not have cancer. But when he was deposed, yes, he did.

Q. And he had cancer in both of his lungs at that point, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. Stage IV.
Q. Do you know an attorney named George Owen Feldman?
A. No, I don’t know him.
Q. Has George Owen Feldman ever represented you, to your knowledge?
A. Never.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just showed you a document you signed with his name on it?
A. Sure. Go ahead.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Okay. And I think that’s something that your office, Mr. -- Mr. Sneddon’s office --
THE COURT: Just a minute. There’s no question pending.
THE WITNESS: Oh, okay. I was ready to --

THE COURT: Just a moment.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. Have you had a chance to look at that document?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Does it refresh your recollection about who George Owen Feldman is?
A. I’ve never been represented by George Owen Feldman, but I understand what he’s trying to say, the paperwork.
Q. So you never have been represented by that lawyer, right?
A. Never.
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE WITNESS: Never.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember testifying under oath in the J.C. Penney deposition that you weren’t interested in suing?
A. I wanted an apology.
Q. Did you ever withdraw your suit for money?
A. No.

Q. Are you telling the jury that you blame your descriptions of what happened to you on your attorneys?

A. What?

Q. Are you telling this jury that you blame the way you describe your injuries in that case on your lawyers?

A. No. Like -- I’m going to try to make out what he’s trying to say. However I spoke to them and however they communicated to the court, that’s how it was.

Q. Did you testify under oath the way your lawyers told you to? Is that what you’re saying?

A. What?

Q. Did you testify under oath in that deposition the way your lawyers told you to?

A. No.

Q. Are you blaming your descriptions about what happened to you in the parking lot on your lawyers?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Vague as to “descriptions.”

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay. I’m going to try -- I’m trying to feel for what he’s asking.

How I communicate -- communicated to him, to them, is once. As I told the police, I told them.

Now, what they -- how they put it on paper, I have no control of that. He was not -- I wasn’t one of the knights of the round table sitting there and coming up with proper words what to say.

That’s it. One story. That’s it. The same one I told to the police.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you meet Michael Jackson?

A. I think it was, my best estimate, August of 2000.

Q. Do you remember signing a document prepared by the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department on December 18th, 2003?

A. Okay, I think -- is it the paper you just showed me?

Q. Yes. But I have a --

A. I can’t answer unless you tell me exactly. You know, there was a lot of paperwork.

Q. Would you like to see it?

A. Well, I’m asking you, please, is it the same one that you just came up here and showed me?

Q. It is.

A. Okay. Then, yes. I’ve signed many paperworks of theirs.

Q. Let me ask you the question again.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recall signing a document prepared by the Sheriff’s Department of Santa Barbara County on December 18th, 2003?

A. I think so.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection just to look at the date and your signature?

A. No. That’s -- is that the one that you just showed me?

Q. It is.

A. Then -- then, yes.

Q. You did sign that document --

A. Yes.

Q. -- on December 18th --

A. Yes.

Q. -- 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, do you remember signing a document prepared by the sheriff’s department that said the following: “From time to time, between January 1st, 2000, and the present date, I consulted one or more of those lawyers concerning Michael Jackson’s interaction with me and my children at Neverland Ranch in Santa Barbara County and elsewhere, in this and other states, and concerning the return of some furniture stored by or in the name of Brad Miller at Dino’s Storage in North Hollywood, Los Angeles County.” Do you remember signing a document that had those words?

A. Do you want me to have the document, like -- we’ve had this discussion over since August.

MR. MESEREAU: Object, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Since August, the same thing --
THE COURT: Just a moment. I want you to answer the question. The question is, do you remember signing that document?

THE WITNESS: Yes. Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And the document said that you had started investigating Michael Jackson sometime between January 1st, 2000, and the date you signed the document, which is December 18th, 2003, right?
A. Yes. If that’s -- those words are on there.
Q. Why would you start investigating Michael Jackson around January 1st, 2000, if you didn’t meet him till August 2000?
A. Okay. Let me explain something to you. And this has already been discussed, and he knows the answers. This was discussed at the end of September.
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object to this part of the answer as nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
THE WITNESS: This -- when the sheriffs were doing their investigation, they wanted to know every single detail about me. George Owen Feldman is -- I think he’s associated in the same law firm of Rothstein.
So the -- the police department did an extensive, extensive search on me as a person, and so they want -- they put everything in a general form so they can have access to everything about me and my past, because they wanted to verify and make sure that what they were going to do towards this goliath was going to be accurate and truthful. And that’s why this -- this paper was made in such a general way.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you now telling the jury that George Owen Feldman did represent you?
A. No, he didn’t represent me.
Q. At any time?
A. No, he didn’t represent me. He is one of the people inside the civil law firm. But my understanding -- my understanding was that it was only the Rothstein -- Rothstein and another attorney named Adler, another attorney named Ramieri. That was my understanding, and it still is today.

Q. Let me try and ask the question again - okay? - in a clearer form, because perhaps I was not clear. And I apologize if I wasn’t.

You signed a document that said from time to time between January 1st, 2000, and the date you signed the document, you were investigating Michael Jackson through various lawyers, correct?

A. Okay. There’s more information on that paperwork which he purposely has taken out of context. It’s -- certain events are attached to specific attorneys. Certain situations are attached to certain attorneys.

Like I said, the police wanted to do an extensive, thorough investigation on me prior to doing it on him. So they wanted everything about me. So they made it in a general form. But he keeps taking it out of context.

MR. MESEREAU: I don’t want to offend the Court, Your Honor. I don’t think I actually got an answer to that, but I will leave it to the Court’s discretion.

THE COURT: Ask your next question.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

Q. You did sign this document, correct?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. MESEREAU: I would move it into evidence, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

MR. ZONEN: I will object, given the prior ruling dealing with confidentiality of the --

MR. MESEREAU: It’s redacted.

MR. ZONEN: Perhaps we could argue this at the next break or the conclusion of the proceedings.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll withhold ruling on it, on its admissibility, till --

MR. MESEREAU: Shall I submit it to your clerk, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Have you numbered it?

MR. MESEREAU: I have not.

THE COURT: Will you do that now, so we have a record of what you’re talking about?

THE CLERK: 5007.
THE COURT: 5-0 --
THE CLERK: 5007.
THE COURT: All right. I’ll withhold ruling until we hear from the District Attorney.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor, at this time we’d like to play the rebuttal tape.
MR. SANGER: Exhibit 340.
THE COURT: 340.
Are you ready?
(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Miss Arvizo, you are laughing at various times during this tape. Was that something that you scripted in advance?
A. I was nervous. Brad Miller was standing right next to the camera, right in front of me.
Q. Was the laughing something that you scripted in advance?
A. Yes. Also, Dieter wanted that included.
Q. Is everything that your son is saying memorized?
A. Everything -- they took all the information from us, information that did exist, back from Miami, and information that they had already, they studied us and got background information --
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: -- and then they put it all together.
THE COURT: Just a moment.
THE WITNESS: I answered your question.
THE COURT: I think that could be answered “yes” or “no.” The question is, “Is everything that your son is saying memorized?”
THE WITNESS: Everything is -- is going according to what Dieter had scripted.
THE COURT: Go ahead.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Is it memorized?
A. I think so.

Q. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ms. Arvizo, were the words you just articulated on that tape all memorized?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you lying on this tape?

A. No. I’m a poor actress. That’s why they started the proceeding to go do the passport and the visa. That’s what Vinnie had communicated to me; that what I did was inadequate.

Q. You were not lying on this tape?

A. Acting.

Q. Let me rephrase the question.

The jury just heard the words you expressed on the tape, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Were they lies?

A. Acting.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, may I request that the witness be instructed to answer the question?

THE COURT: Well, the question was, “Were they lies?” And she said, “Acting.”

MR. MESEREAU: I can rephrase it, Your Honor.

Q. When you said what the jury just heard you say on this tape, were you telling the truth?

A. I was acting. I don’t know how you want me to define it. I mean, you’re not going to call Halle Berry and say, “Are you Catwoman?” She’s going to tell you she’s acting. She’s just acting. She’s not a liar.

I was acting. That’s it.

Q. Are the words you said on that tape the truth?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ms. Arvizo, was what you just said about Michael Jackson being fatherly the truth?

A. Everything on here was choreographed by Dieter and Ronald, specifically Dieter, and it’s all acting. And I failed at that.

Q. Are the words you spoke true or false?

A. The words I spoke were part of a script.

Q. Were you telling the truth or not?

A. I was acting.

Q. Was Gavin telling the truth or not, as far as you were concerned?

A. As far as --

MR. ZONEN: I think that’s speculative. I’ll object.

THE COURT: It’s overly broad. I’ll sustain the objection.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it your belief that Gavin was acting in this tape?

A. Yes, because I had seen Dieter work with my children prior to Jesus taking us back to my mom’s house. I had seen Dieter work with me and my children.

Q. Did you believe that what Gavin was saying was true or false?

A. I believe, like I told you, Dieter had worked with us continuously on this script.

Q. Did you believe what Gavin said was the truth or not?

A. I believe what he was saying was keeping to the script.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Ms. Arvizo, you said that you and your children were neglected and spit on, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And who were you referring to?

A. They took elements of my life and my children’s life which were truthful and incorporated it into their script. And this happened in the initial meeting in Miami. They already had -- they were already in the works on this. It took me a while to find out. And it's taken many other people to find out later, too.

Q. Who neglected your family?

A. In this script, everything is scripted. But if you're making a general question, you already have the specifics on that.

Q. When you said your family was spit on, who were you referring to?

A. On this rebuttal thing, everything is scripted. They took elements of mine and my children's life which were true and incorporated in here.

Q. When you said, "Everybody tossed us aside," who were you referring to?

A. This is all scripted here.

Q. When you said, "We weren't in the right zip code, and we weren't the right race," what were you referring to?

A. This was all scripted.

For those answers, you need to ask Dieter.

Q. But wouldn't you agree that on numerous other occasions you said exactly the same thing?

A. That's correct.

Q. You even said words to that effect on that phone call you had with Frank when you didn't know you were being recorded.

A. That's correct.

Q. And your answers weren't scripted there, were they?

A. No, they weren't. They -- like I said, they took elements of mine and my life -- mine and my children's life and put it into this script.

Q. Well, not referring to what you say on this tape, but referring to what you said on other occasions when you didn't know you were being recorded, what did you mean when you said, "Our family has been neglected and spit upon," et cetera? What were you talking about?

A. Outside this rebuttal, we're talking about David.

Q. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's

Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Ms. Arvizo, you had been very critical of David for not defending you and your children like a father should, correct?

A. He would have to defend us from his own self.

Q. Were you critical of David for not defending you in the J.C. Penney case the way you thought he should?

A. I was not critical.

Q. Never were?

A. No, I was just -- he just stood there.

Q. Didn’t you say that you had -- excuse me. Let me rephrase the question.

Didn’t you say on one occasion that you would forgive David for not acting like a man in that parking lot?

A. I don’t remember clearly, but I can -- I can try to recall for you.

I’m getting beat up on the floor. And the history is David had always been beating me up. And this one moment that he could have done something for me, he allowed these people to beat on me while I was laying flat on the floor, while he stood like a coward on -- it was like a little sidewalk.

That’s where he stood.

If that’s what you want --

Q. Okay.

A. -- that’s the best I can recall.

Q. Now, you say in this tape about -- excuse me. Davellin says in this tape, about Michael, “The fact that he stood up and defended us, that’s a father.” Was that just scripted?

A. Okay. All this on the video, plus the outtakes, everything is scripted. Michael, when we arrived in Miami, he had like a 45-minute lovey-dovey meeting with us.

Q. Okay. And they started scripting it in Miami?

A. They must have. They must have started all this stuff way before I was even called up -- up to Miami. They must have.

Q. So they were scripting you in Miami, but you didn't know what they were doing, right?

A. Like I said, we're going to have to call Ronald, Dieter, all of them in here to find out what they were up to. Or Michael, he could come up here.

Q. Were you being scripted in Miami without knowing it?

A. I don't know. I don't know.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, is what you just said memorized?

A. Yes. And -- yeah.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: As far as you were concerned, was everything Gavin just said memorized?

A. As far as I'm concerned. Like I say, I pointed out, Dieter had worked on us, with us. And also, I would like to maybe help you remember, this was --

MR. MESEREAU: Could I get a "yes" or "no" answer, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes. Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: Sure, please.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Yes.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit 340, Disk 1, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Ms. Arvizo, you say that because you're with Michael, you don't have money problems, correct?

A. Scripted. And remember, this is being filmed at 3 a.m., right before the CPS meeting.

Q. Now, you say that everything the jury has just watched and heard on this videotape was memorized and rehearsed, right?

A. Yes. And while I was over here, in Jay Jackson’s apartment they had their claws in my three kids.

Q. How long did it take all of you to memorize all the words that the jury just heard you say?

A. Well, they worked -- Dieter -- while I was there, in my presence, Dieter worked, well, with us daily, and about on the average of ten times a day. And then when I came over here, and the children were over there, who knows how many times. That you would have to get from my children.

Q. Let’s talk about you only. You said you sat down with Dieter ten times a day, correct?

A. My best estimate.

Q. And where did you do that?

A. In one of the guesthouses, the one that looked like the little boy’s room. That one.

Q. This is the first time, after numerous police interviews and after going to the grand jury, that you’ve ever said, “I met with Dieter ten times a day to memorize my words,” right?

A. No, I said, “Many times daily.”

Q. Okay.

A. That’s my words, but you want specific answers.

Q. So you said everything the jury just heard was memorized, and I’m just asking you how long it took you to memorize all of it.

A. How long?

Q. Do you think.

A. Well, I didn’t do a good job.

Q. How long do you think it took you to memorize all of this?

A. I couldn’t give you an answer.

Q. Was it all memorized word for word?

A. I did my best.

Q. And was it all written out in advance?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. So how -- how many pages were in this script, if you know?

A. Well, at the end of the video right here, you can see Christian have the script himself. And probably Bradley Miller also had it, because he was standing right next to the cameraman right in front of us. Brad Miller’s job was to report to Dieter if we did everything we were supposed to do.

Q. Was everything written out word for word in advance?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. They’re very detailed.

Q. And you just memorized every page, true?

A. I did my best.

Q. Okay.

A. And I failed.

MR. SANGER: That was the end of that first disk. We have the second disk.

THE COURT: I understand.

You ready?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Oh, we’ve got to -- just a second.

THE COURT: Do you want me to put it on “Black”?

MR. SANGER: Oh, you can leave it on. I just wanted to squelch the high-pitched tone that would be otherwise heard.

THE COURT: That was pretty good of you to remember that.

(Whereupon, a portion of a CD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit No. 340, Disk 2, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, was what you just said memorized word for word?

A. Yes, I tried to do my best.

MR. MESEREAU: Do you want to take a break at this point, Your Honor?

THE COURT: That would be good. Thank you.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Miss Arvizo, before we continue with the tape, I’d like to clarify something. Did you tell the jury earlier that even the outtakes were scripted?

A. Yes. Everything. The whole entire -- from the moment we got to Hamid's house, Brad Miller there -- was there, Michael's P.I.

Q. So when you said about Gavin, "He was doing gang signs. That was what he was doing. He's -- he shot out to his friends on the west side," was that all scripted?

A. Everything; everything was scripted.

Q. Okay. We can continue.

THE BAILIFF: You need to push the "DVD" button.

MR. SANGER: I pushed "DVD." I'm going to pause for a second. Shall we just pick up? We missed ten seconds, but I'll just go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, Miss Arvizo, this is the portion of the videotape where you refer to the Department of Child Social Services, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you told the jury that you were criticized for referring to them in the videotape, right?

A. As I told you before, I got in trouble by -- because I mentioned -- I went off the script with God, cancer, and the Child Welfare Services, those three things --

Q. Okay.

A. -- specifically, Vinnie told me.

Q. So now you're off the script --

A. Yes.

Q. -- when you criticize the Department of Child Social Services, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You were speaking of your own free will when you said that, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you said, "So where are all these people that -- that have all of a sudden this care and concern throwing the child advocacy group on me, the Department of Child Social Services," you were telling the truth, correct?

A. At that point where I went off, God, the Child Welfare Services, and the cancer, so that one word.

Q. Were you criticizing the Department of Child Social Services?

A. No. That one word I went off the script, and so I got in trouble for it.

Q. Were you criticizing the Department of Child Social Services?

A. No. That was part of the script, the child advocacy.

Q. That was part of the script?

A. Yes. I added the -- the Child Welfare Services in a way that was off the script.

Q. And why were you criticizing that agency?

A. Well, I had the Child Welfare Services meeting that morning, and it blurted out, so I got in trouble for it.

Q. Were you worried about the meeting?

A. No -- yeah, I was worried about the meeting, so I got in trouble for that.

Q. So you were being critical of DCFS, correct?

A. No, no, I wasn’t. That came out.

Q. It came out, but you were --

A. No, the word, the one word, “Child”....

MR. MESEREAU: We can move on. /

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff’s Exhibit 340, Disk 2, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ms. Arvizo, everything said in this interview was memorized, correct?

A. Everything was except for what I got in trouble for. Those are the three things. I was supposed to say that Michael healed Gavin --

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, could I -- could the Court admonish the witness to just answer the question?

THE COURT: Yes.

Just answer the question.

THE WITNESS: I thought I was answering it.

THE COURT: Yes, go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Everything was memorized word for word, right?

A. Yes, except when I blurted out the little meeting that I was going to have in a matter of hours. I wasn’t supposed to blurt that out. And I did. I failed.

Q. Now, you told the jury yesterday that during this period of time where you claim your family was falsely imprisoned, that you never reported it to the police, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you told them that you didn’t report it to the police because you thought no police officer in Los Angeles would believe you, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And because you thought no police officer would ever believe you, you never talked about being held against your will, right?

A. Is that a question?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; vague. To whom?

MR. MESEREAU: Let me rephrase it.

Q. What is the period of time that you claim you and your family were held against your will by people associated with Mr. Jackson?

A. From -- approximately from February to March.

Q. And --

A. That’s my best estimate.

Q. And what date was this rebuttal video, if you know?

A. This was -- the best I can remember is being taken there on the 19th about 11 p.m. at night, approximately. And then it went into the morning of the 20th, was filmed at about 3 a.m. And that morning, about nine o’clock, was the meeting.

Q. During the time you claim your family was held against their will, were you in contact with any police officers?

A. No.

Q. Do you know a Los Angeles police officer named Andrew Lassak?

A. Officer Lassak, yes, I do.

Q. Who is Officer Lassak?

A. Officer Lassak is a friend.

Q. How long has he been your friend?

A. He’s been my friend since I think approximately -- let me see. Oh, you know, after David was arrested from domestic violence. That period of, I think, about 2001.

Q. And during the period of time you claim you were being held against your will, you were communicating with Andrew Lassak, correct?

A. No, that's incorrect.

Q. Well, do you remember an interview you had with the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department where you mentioned Andrew Lassak?

A. Yes.

Q. Remember while you were discussing what Vinnie was doing, you told the interviewer, "He's one of the LAPD officers that I had told him about things that were happening?" Do you remember that?

A. I don't think you're saying it correctly. You're leaving things out from the beginning and in front of that.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to see what you told the Santa Barbara sheriffs when you were interviewed?

A. No. You don't need to -- I'm saying to you, you're not saying it completely to the jurors.

What he's trying to say is I was -- after I met with Mr. Dickerman and Mr. -- in the process of that, of the attorneys, I tried to reach Officer Lassak. And in between that was when I had contacted him in order to get help to let him know what was going on.

And then in the midst of that, that's when the sheriffs, the Santa Barbara sheriffs got involved, and the Santa Barbara sheriffs, which is on my police report, stated that he didn't need to get involved, that it happened over here, so therefore they're the ones that are going to take over the investigation.

Q. During the time you claim you were falsely imprisoned, you had phone conversations with Andrew Lassak, correct?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Okay.

A. But during the police interview, yes.

Q. He is with the Hollenbeck Division, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. The Hollenbeck Division of the Los Angeles Police Department is the division where your Soto Street address is, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. And you’re saying you never told anyone from the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department that you were in communication with Andrew Lassak during that period of time?

A. When we were having a police interview, Officer Lassak happened to call because I was trying to put in a call, like I said, between the attorneys and the Santa Barbara sheriffs. This period was Officer Lassak, way after Neverland, because finally I was able to make contact with him.

Q. Do you remember telling Officer Lassak, “Something big is happening. I can’t talk about it. I have lawyers”?

A. I never said something like that.

Q. So if he said you said that, that wouldn’t be true?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative; speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know an LAPD officer named Patrick Metoyer?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did you meet Patrick Metoyer?

A. Officer -- the same time Officer Lassak, I met him.

Q. And what year would that be?

A. That would be in 2001.

Q. Did you know a Sergeant Milt Hernandez from the LAPD?

A. And Officer Metoyer is no longer working for LAPD.

Q. Did you know a Sergeant Milt Hernandez from the LAPD?

A. That -- that name doesn’t sound familiar.

Q. Do you remember talking to him? He’s with the Hollenbeck Division.

A. I think what you’re trying to refer to is someone who was there as a watch commander or something like that.

But not a friend. He’s not a friend.
Q. When did you first meet him?
MR. ZONEN: Who’s “him”? Objection; vague.
MR. MESEREAU: Milt Hernandez.
Q. When did you first meet him?
A. If it’s the same --
MR. ZONEN: Objection; assuming facts not in evidence that she ever met him.
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase it, Your Honor.

Q. Did you ever meet Sergeant Milt Hernandez from the Hollenbeck Division?
A. No, never.
Q. Did you ever speak to him on the phone?
A. If it’s the same person, I think it was inquiring about the LAPD Explorers, because I was interested in moving Davellin from the Wall Street Central Division up to the Hollenbeck Division, if that’s --
Q. And approximately when did you talk to him, if you remember?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. You said you first met LAPD Officer Andrew Lassak --
A. And this is the best I can remember.
Q. You said you first met LAPD Officer Andrew Lassak in 2001; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. And how did you meet him?
A. I think it was because of a call or something like that.
Q. And what are you talking about?
A. That’s the best I can remember.
Q. You said it’s a call about something?
A. Yeah, that’s the best I can remember.
Q. Did you call him?
A. No, I didn’t.
Q. Did he call you?

A. No.
Q. Did you ever ask him to assist you or your family in anything?
A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask him to drive you home?
A. Not me personally.
Q. Did he ever drive you home?
A. I think so, yes. In the LAPD car, yes. I do recall that.
Q. And when did LAPD Officer Andrew Lassak drive you home?
A. He drove me home because I had -- both my feet were operated.
Q. And how did you get in touch with him?
A. I think there was a call, a request for help, and he helped me out. I don’t really recall.
Q. He drove you home from the welfare department, didn’t he?
A. Yeah, I think so. Yeah. Yes.
Q. Okay. And through him, you met a number of LAPD officers, did you not?
A. Yes. Just met, not friends.
Q. And they were in the Hollenbeck Division where your Soto Street home was, correct?
A. That’s correct. And I don’t know any of their names.
Q. And you met all these officers in approximately 2001, right?

A. This is correct.
Q. You also met some officers from the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, also called MTA, right?
A. This is correct.
Q. And who did you meet from the MTA -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.
What police officers did you know from the MTA?
A. That department, to the best I can remember, was dissolved. It’s no longer. They were all sent out to different departments, because that was -- that had ended. But I did get to meet - which I completely lost contact with them - I think it was a female officer and a male officer. No, actually -- yeah. That was the initial officers I met, yes. But they’re no longer existent.
Q. How do you know that?
A. Because I drove -- I rode the bus frequently and I never got to see them again anymore. They were substituted by private security. Because LAPD used to run the metro department.

Q. Did you ever meet a Sergeant Chiu from the Rampart Division?

A. Sergeant Chiu. That name doesn’t sound familiar.

Q. How about a Cindy Garcia?

A. I may have. But it doesn’t sound familiar.

Q. How about a Detective Angulo, A-n-g-u-l-o, from the Hollenbeck Division?

A. It doesn’t sound familiar. Because of Officer Lassak, I got to meet a lot of officers, but they weren’t my friends. Just when he was doing his patrol, he would stop by and he would have someone with him. He was -- what are those officers called when they’re -- oh, he was a training officer. So he constantly had someone he was training.

Q. And at one point you had LAPD Officer Lassak’s cell phone number, didn’t you?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Do you remember the number?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. And he did some nice things for you and your family, didn’t he?

A. Yes, he -- he was our friend.

Q. Please tell the jury the nice things that LAPD Officer Andrew Lassak did for you and your family.

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as irrelevant.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ms. Arvizo, the truth is, you knew a lot of police officers near where you lived, you could have called any of them and said you were the victim of crime, and you didn’t, right?

A. It would have been helpful, but Officer Lassak was recently married in about June. And out of respect I figured he’s got a new wife, and it’s best that I don’t communicate with him. So I lost communication the day he got married, right before.

Q. Did you ever hear of a group called Big Brother or Adopt-a-Family?

A. No, but -- no, but I came to find out now that maybe those kind of things are --
Q. I'm sorry?
A. That's what I told you.
Q. Okay. When you were interviewed by Santa Barbara sheriffs --
A. Yes.
Q. -- did you ever mention that you had met Andrew Lassak and a bunch of other officers through a group called Big Brother or Adopt-a-Family?
A. I think that was Officer Robel or Officer Zelis that mentioned that. It wasn't I that said that.
Q. Excuse me. Let me rephrase that.
Did you ever participate with LAPD Officer Andrew Lassak in any type of group involving family support in East Los Angeles?
A. Okay, Officer -- I think I know what you're referring to if --
Q. Yeah, whatever -- please tell the jury whatever it is.
A. Okay, Officer Lassak -- usually all the department -- this is what was explained to me. Each officer personally picks someone, someone from the community or someone they like, or anything, and they put their name into some kind of -- I don't know how it works, but this is how I came to understand. That they put their name into some -- something, and then they pick families out of there. And that's it.

Q. And was your family chosen to participate?
A. Yes. Officer Lassak put me and my kids in there.
Q. Approximately when was this?
A. This was in -- I don't remember. But it was Christmas.
Q. Do you know approximately what year?
A. No, I wouldn't be able to tell you that, but I know it was Christmas.
Q. Was it before you think you met Michael Jackson?
A. No, it was after. Because I -- like I said,

I met Officer Lassak after David was arrested.

Q. And for the jury’s benefit, approximately when was David arrested?

A. About -- I don’t know. My best estimate, September, October of 2001. That’s my best estimate.

Q. And in your interview with the Santa Barbara sheriffs, you said that Mr. Lassak would come with different officers and make jokes, right?

A. Yes. He would -- like I said, Officer Lassak, even though he was a corporal, he’s also a training officer. And he would bring different officers, and he would stand in the doorway, and he’d make jokes with the kids.

Q. Now, which doorway was this?

A. My front door to my apartment.

Q. Okay. And you said he’d get a big kick out of the kids telling him jokes, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know who the officers are that he used to bring to your front door?

A. I wouldn’t be able to tell you, because the majority of them never came twice. They just would come once.

Q. How many would he often bring -- excuse me, let me rephrase that.

How many officers would Mr. Lassak bring to your house at one time?

A. Well, whoever he was training at that time.

Q. What’s the largest number of officers he ever brought to your house?

A. Well, him and the other person he was training.

Q. And did you ever go to the police department to see him, where he worked?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. Did you used to see Officer Lassak driving around the Hollenbeck Division?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you were a friend of his for a number of years, weren’t you?

A. Up until he got married. Because when he got married, I felt it’s a new marriage, and out of respect, he needs to dedicate himself to his wife. And I don’t think it would be very respectful for me to be a friend when he’s supposed to be dedicating his time to his new wife.

Q. Okay. Do you remember the names of other officers in the Hollenbeck Division that you knew around the time Officer Lassak used to come to your doorway?

A. Only Officer Lassak.

Q. Did Officer Lassak ever arrange any type of fund-raiser for your family?

A. No, outside from him putting -- putting us in that Christmas thing, that’s it. No fund-raiser.

Q. Now, what Christmas thing was this?

A. It was -- every officer picks somebody and they put it in like a bag, and that’s it.

Q. Okay. And where did this take place?

A. In the Hollenbeck Division.

Q. And what location did this Christmas event take place?

A. In the Hollenbeck Division.

Q. Okay. Was that at the police station?

A. I think it was.

Q. Did you bring your children to the police station?

A. I didn’t go.

Q. Did your family participate in that event?

A. Yes.

Q. How?

A. Officer Lassak had came by and told the kids that on this day they were going to have like a Christmas party. And that’s it.

Q. And who went to the Christmas party from your family?

A. Davellin, Gavin and Star.

Q. Okay. And this is after 2001, right?

A. It definitely has to be, because it was -- I met Officer Lassak after David was arrested, and that’s my best estimate.

Q. When is the last time you spoke to Attorney Larry Feldman? Don’t say what you said. That’s confidential. But when was the last time you spoke to Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. I -- I wouldn't be able to tell. I couldn't remember.

Q. Have you been in any communication with him in the last month?

A. Let me see. Let me see.

No. It's only the times that I was receiving subpoenas from your office was -- yeah, that's the best I can remember.

Q. Have you talked to him in the last couple weeks?

A. I don't think so. I've been here.

Q. Have you talked to Attorney Larry Feldman in the last couple of weeks?

A. Let me see. You know what? When was -- when did he testify?

Q. I can't answer questions.

A. Oh, okay. I'm only saying that would help me remember. Because it was before that time.

Q. Have you talked to Attorney Larry Feldman while this trying has been going on?

A. Oh, yes, yes.

Q. How many times?

A. Oh, I wouldn't be able to tell you that. Just about every time you sent a subpoena.

Q. Okay. Would it be accurate to say that while this trial has been going on you've talked to him more than once?

A. Oh, yes. Every time they sent a subpoena.

Q. Okay.

THE COURT: Counsel, there may be a little ambiguity there as to, "while the trial has been going on."

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, okay. I understand.

THE COURT: What "the trial" is to some people is different than others.

MR. MESEREAU: Sure. Let me rephrase it.

Q. You're aware that Attorney Larry Feldman testified in this trial, right?

A. Yep. Yes.

Q. How did you know that?

A. Because I had seen "Accuser's Mother's Attorney Testifies." I seen that, something like that.

Q. Okay. Within the last few months, you've been in contact with Attorney Larry Feldman, have you not?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. You've been in contact with him on a number of occasions?

A. Yes, every time they sent a subpoena over.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, I think you've answered this question, but let me just be specific.

A. Okay.

Q. All of these officers you met through LAPD, Officer Andrew Lassak, starting with the year 2001, none of them were ever contacted by you about false imprisonment, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. None of those --

A. Until when I tried afterwards between Mr. Dickerman and the Santa Barbara sheriffs. And on your thing they said, "Don't talk to any other officers but their department so the investigation wouldn't be compromised."

Q. Before you went to Attorney William Dickerman, you never contacted any of these officers or trainees that you knew in your neighborhood about anything you claim Michael Jackson was doing?

A. That's correct. I was afraid to talk on the phone, because they were monitoring, listening and surveilling me and following me. That's correct.

Q. Even when you were at your parents' home, you never called LAPD Officer Andrew Lassak and complained, right?

A. Because at this point I didn't have his phone number.

Q. When did you lose it?

A. When he got married, out of respect, I seized my communication with him.

Q. Well, you'd been to the Hollenbeck Division Police Department before, right?

A. Yes, I had.

Q. Did you ever contact anyone from the Hollenbeck Division Police Department and complain about Michael Jackson?

A. Well, I no longer belong to their division. I know -- because my apartment, because of them, is no more existent there, so I'm not their problem anymore.

Q. You still could have called them, couldn't you?

A. I didn't. Because of being monitored, followed, surveilled, listened to.

Q. You didn't call them from Jay Jackson's apartment, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. You didn't call them from your parents' home in El Monte, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. You didn't call them from Soto Street while you were living there, correct?

A. That's correct. But I told the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department.

Q. After you went to Attorney Larry Feldman, right?

A. No. Before. Jay Jackson called in about February and that's when we communicated. That was our first communication.

Q. You didn't fill out a police report with any police department about anything until you went to Attorney Larry Feldman, right?

A. We made contact with sheriffs, Santa Barbara sheriffs, back in February. They were not helpful to us. So there was this big gap until afterwards.

Q. When did you first meet Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. After Mr. Bill Dickerman introduced me to him.

Q. Do you know about when that was?

A. I wouldn't be able to tell you. But they could tell you best.

Q. To your knowledge, how long has Attorney Larry Feldman been giving you advice? Don't say what the advice is. I'm just asking you, as far as you know, how long has Attorney Larry Feldman been giving you advice?

A. I’m a little confused by the question, because he’s helped more than gave me advice, when you guys have been bomb -- giving me all those subpoenas.

Q. I understand.

A. That they even wanted my school records all the way till I was a kindergartner myself.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

That’s stricken.

Do you want to rephrase the question?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

Q. If you know, for how many years has Attorney Larry Feldman been giving you advice?

THE WITNESS: Your Honor, I’m having difficulty with it. I’m telling you, “help” and “advice” to me is different.

THE COURT: She’s asking you to clarify the question. That’s --

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: What you say to an attorney is confidential, and I’m not asking you about your conversations. Okay?

I’m just asking you how long, in your mind, Attorney Larry Feldman has been helping you. We’ll use the word “help.”

A. Okay. Well, he felt that your defense team was bullies.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, could the witness be admonished to answer the question?

THE COURT: Ask the question again or have the question read back, please.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Okay. Every time they -- they were sending me the subpoena, for example, requesting all my school records, all the way till I was a kindergartner, he’s been helping me.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me ask it one more time. But if I’m not clear, just tell me.

A. Okay.

Q. What year did you meet Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. In 2003.

Q. You knew some police officers from the MTA, did you not?

A. Yes, I did. I did meet them, but it was not a close contact, as I was with Officer Lassak, which I stopped because he had gotten married, and that was it. And they no longer were in existence, because a private security company took over the metro bus division. So I lost complete contact of them.

Q. And MTA means Metropolitan Transportation Authority, correct?

A. Yes. They're underneath the ground. They're police officers that were underneath the ground taking care of the trains that run -- I don't know whether they're train or metro rail. I don't know the correct --

Q. And you knew a number of officers with the MTA, correct?

A. When that was dissolved, my -- as far as my relationship was with them, every time me and my children rode the trains, when we would see them we'd say hello. But past that, once they were -- I don't know what the word is. When they were gone, no more, I didn't see them anymore.

Q. And how many officers from the MTA do you think you knew, when you knew them?

A. It was about two. A male and a female, and the rest were by sight. Every time we'd see them, we'd say hello. But there was definitely more than two that I recognized by face.

Q. And were they stationed in the Hollenbeck area?

A. No, they weren't stationed in the Hollenbeck area.

Q. Where were they stationed?

A. They were stationed -- to my understanding, they were stationed right there, underneath the ground in the train rail system.

Q. And didn't these MTA officers help your family out also?

A. Well, I don’t know if you call it help, but they also did some Christmas thing.

Q. And what was that?

A. They -- they took a liking to the kids, because they saw the kids go off and on the trains, and so -- and that was it.

Q. And approximately when did this happen?

A. Christmastime.

Q. Approximately what year, if you know?

A. I don’t remember. But I do remember Christmastime.

Q. Was it after 2001?

A. Oh. Oh, yes, yes. After -- after David was arrested, me and my kids became free to have -- to go beyond having friendships.

Q. And after David was arrested, it would be accurate to say that you and your kids had a lot of friends who were police officers, right?

A. The only one we could say is Officer Lassak. That’s it. The rest were just people that we met, but completely lost contact with.

Q. And through Major Jay Jackson, did you meet anyone in the United States Army?

A. Not really. I -- no. I don’t even go to -- when Jay would have, like, gatherings from the Army, I prefer not to go. Even to his -- even to his going-away luncheon, because I knew I wasn’t smart enough to be in that kind of group.

THE COURT: Counsel, is this a good place to stop?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. We’re going to recess for the weekend. Remember next Wednesday afternoon, we’re not going to be in session. I’ll see you Monday at 8:30. Remember the admonitions. Don’t talk to anybody. Don’t read anything. Enjoy the weekend.

MR. SANGER: When are we not in session?

THE COURT: Wednesday afternoon.

MR. SANGER: Wednesday afternoon we’re not in session. We’re here Monday.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

PLAINTIFF’S WITNESSES DIRECT CROSS REDIRECT RECROSS

JACKSON, Janet 6546-M (Contd.)

Santa Maria, California
Monday, April 18, 2005
8:30 a.m.

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.
THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.
COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Ready to proceed?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.

JANET JACKSON
Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued)
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Ms. Arvizo, throughout January, February, March and April of 2003, you were being represented by counsel in proceedings related to your ex-husband David, correct?
A. Of what year?
Q. 2003.
A. Yes.
Q. And without going into much of the detail, you were represented by a lawyer who you’ve mentioned already named Michael Manning, correct?

A. For what?
Q. For your request for spousal support, your issues involving David Arvizo and your domestic proceeding, correct?
A. This is correct.
Q. And documents related to your requests for spousal support from David and other issues related to your divorce were being periodically filed by Attorney Michael Manning, correct?
A. I don’t understand his question very well, but something about spousal support and child support, that was in effect for already almost -- almost, my best estimate, for almost three years. We had been waiting for that court date for years already. That’s my best estimate.

Q. And how long do you recall Michael Manning representing you?

A. I think, my best estimate, since 2001. I was way at the bottom of his list because I -- he was providing his services for free.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken after the date.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: So would it be accurate to say, based on what you remember, Attorney Michael Manning was representing you in 2001, 2002, 2003, and 2004 on issues related to your ex-husband?

A. Yes.

Q. And various income and expense declarations, various declarations, various documents were periodically being filed with the court by Attorney Manning on your behalf, right?

A. If I clearly -- if I understand his question, I think with Mr. Manning, that was handled in a bulk, and I think it was probably in the first meeting that I had ever met with him, and I held onto those things. That’s the best I can remember. So he did it when he had time because, like I said, I was at the bottom of his list.

Q. Would it be accurate to say that this lawyer filed documents on your behalf on October 15th, 2001, October 16th, 2001, November 6th, 2001, January 10th, 2002, April of 2002, June 25th, 2002, January 6th, 2003, January 23rd, 2003, March 5th, 2003, and that there was a hearing on March 11th, 2003, involving your issues with David? Does that sound accurate to you?

A. I don’t know what he’s trying to say. But like I said, in the initial meeting with him, to the best of my recollection, it was handled like in a package, he had like a package already made. So when he had time, he went ahead and took care of it himself. Because he made me aware, since he was doing it for free, it was as he could, so I had to be patient.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just showed you all those filed documents that were filed with the court?

A. Yes. He filed them accordingly to when he had time, because I was not a paying customer.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: After “Yes,” I’ll strike.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, have you had a chance to look at those court documents?

A. Just the date on them, the same ones he just said.

Q. Do they refresh your recollection that your attorney was filing documents throughout those years on your behalf?

A. Like I said, he went -- according to when he had time, yes, that’s correct.

Q. All of those years, this attorney was representing you in your domestic problems with your ex-husband David, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I think it goes without saying that this lawyer was representing you during the time period you claim you were being harassed and falsely imprisoned by Mr. Jackson’s associates, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And I think you’ve already said, you never told this lawyer at any time that anyone in your family was being held against their will, correct?

A. Are you -- is that attorney-client privilege? Because he’s still my attorney.

Q. If you’re asserting the privilege, I will not ask any further into that.

A. Yes, please.

Q. Okay. Is Attorney Michael Manning still representing you?

A. No, he’s not.

Q. Okay. Now, you indicated to the jury that this attorney was representing you for free; is that correct?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. Didn’t your attorney at one point file documents with the court asking that your ex-husband pay your fees?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. Now, in the -- just to set the record straight on dates, it appears that your divorce action was filed October 15th, 2001. Does that make sense to you?

A. The best I can remember is after David was arrested and the first day he presented himself at the criminal courts is when Michael Manning handed him already the documents for divorce.

Q. Okay.

A. That’s the best I can remember how it happened.

Q. And do you recall approximately when he was first arrested?

A. I think he was arrested either the end of September -- I think my best estimate is the end of September, but it could have possibly been the beginning of October. But the best I can remember is the end of September.

Q. Now, on October 4th, 2001, you went to the Hollenbeck Division with Davellin, Star, and Gavin to report problems with David, right?

A. The Hollenbeck Division is composed of two different separate buildings. The Hollenbeck Police Department is a separate building from the Hollenbeck detective center. And if you walk there, it’s quite a distance. But on car, it’s quite fast. And there’s even, I think, a bridge, a freeway bridge that separates both things, and they’re even on separate side of the buildings. Separate side of the street, I mean.

Q. And you know that police department quite well, correct?

A. I’ve never gone to the police department. I’ve only gone to the detective center.

Q. And on October 4th, 2001, you did go to the Hollenbeck detective section, correct?

A. I don’t remember the date, but I do remember the event.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you a report to refresh your memory on the date?

A. If you say the date’s on there, then that should be correct. That should be accurate.

Q. I can’t testify. Can I just show it to you?

A. Well, if it’s on the paper, it’s correct.

Q. Okay. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show it to you?

A. Okay. Come on over.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes. But, Counsel, she’s conceded the date. So what are you doing?

MR. MESEREAU: If the Court permits, I’ll just read the date into the record.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I’ll stipulate to the date as being the date of the event.

THE COURT: Without stipulation, she’s conceded whatever date is on there is accurate. So let’s move along.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

Q. The date on the report is October 4th, 2001.

A. Okay.

Q. And you recall going to the detective division to speak about your problems with David, correct?

A. Yes. The detective there had invited me, if I wanted to come on over, to come on over, because our phone had been -- our interview had been by the phone.

Q. Now, you got to the detective division and asked to talk to a detective, correct?

A. Yes. I think it was the same one that I had been talking to.

Q. And you told the detective you wanted to show the detective a videotape and numerous photos of you and your children spending time with various celebrities?

A. Yes, because he had a hard time believing that a woman in East L.A. with her children knew such -- knew -- knew them. And he’s a detective, so, you know, he was curious.

Q. Did you bring the photos of celebrities with you?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what photos of celebrities did you bring to the detective division of the Hollenbeck Division?

A. I think it was -- I think it was mostly of Chris. Chris and Aja.

Q. And according to the detective, you laughed and appeared happy at the meeting, correct?

A. Yes, because finally me and my children are getting some sense of freedom.

Q. It says you seemed happy as you showed him information about various celebrities, correct?

A. Well, it was a video of Chris and the children together. And Aja.

Q. Now, before you testified has anyone showed you any police reports to review?

A. Yes, they have shown them to me.

Q. And who’s “they”?

A. The D.A.’s Office.

Q. Okay. And when did they do that, approximately?

A. Approximately, probably -- I think it was days ago, yes.

Q. Okay. Did you meet over the weekend with anyone from the prosecution?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Who was that?

A. Mr. Zonen.

Q. And when did you meet Mr. Zonen?

A. Yesterday, with a detective present.

Q. And did you go over documents?

A. No.

Q. Did you talk about your testimony?

A. Yes.

Q. How long was the meeting?
A. With me? Probably about -- about ten minutes.
Q. Okay. And the whole meeting was ten minutes?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And where did it take place?
A. At -- in --

Q. Don’t give your address if it’s your home. Just say it’s, you know, at a residence.
A. No.
Are you okay?
BAILIFF CORTEZ: I apologize.
THE WITNESS: I don’t know what you --
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was it at a residence?
A. No. No, it wasn’t.
Q. Was it at an office?
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object to the location, Your Honor.
THE COURT: He’s just trying to get a general statement. It’s overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Where I’m staying.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Okay. And they came to see you?
A. Yes.
Q. And the meeting was only ten minutes?
A. It was ten minutes.
Q. Okay.
A. I think he must have been on his way back to the office, I guess.
Q. Okay. In your -- in one of your domestic violence disputes with David, do you remember signing a declaration that your children -- your boys sleep with baseball bats because they’re afraid of David?

A. Yes.
Q. And was that true?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And when did your boys begin sleeping with baseball bats, if you know?

A. To the best that I can remember, it’s when David and Mr. Halpern, his attorney, were making the -- parading on the circuitry of the T.V., you know, making their rounds on T.V. And so it resurfaced a lot of things that they had been already feeling. But it intensified in 2003.

Q. So because of the T.V. appearances by David and his lawyer, your sons began sleeping with baseball bats; is that what you’re saying?

A. It began then. It began. It’s the best I can remember.

Q. Now, did the -- now, excuse me, did you say a prosecutor showed you various police reports?

A. Not yesterday.

Q. Not yesterday?

A. No.

Q. But at some point?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Did the prosecutor show you another police report where you reported David for domestic violence and told the police that Michael Jackson, Kobe Bryant and Fritz Coleman are going to help you?

A. That’s because David was calling me “whore,” and he said -- David said that he was going to tell everybody that I had sex with them. And so if they wanted to do that, they can go verify with them that I’m not having sex with any of those people.

Q. That wasn’t in your police interview, was it?

A. I did speak to the detective about it.

Q. So when you told the detective, “Michael Jackson, Kobe Bryant and Fritz Coleman are going to help me in my action against David,” that’s what you were referring to?

A. Not action against David. That they can go ask basically them themself that I’m not having sex with them.

Q. Okay. But you’ve seen the report, and nowhere in the report does it ever say that you told the police officers that there are accusations that, “I’m having sex with these celebrities,” correct?

A. Well, I don't think that's considered a crime.

Q. So when the police officer just mentions that quote, in your mind you should have also said, "I told him the reason for the quote was that there were false accusations about me having sex with these celebrities," correct?

MR. ZONEN: I'll object. That question is ambiguous.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Had you ever told Michael Jackson anything about your domestic problems with David?

A. No.

Q. Had you ever told Kobe Bryant anything about your domestic problems with David?

A. No.

Q. Had you told Fritz Coleman anything about your domestic problems with David?

A. No.

Q. And again, in looking at the report, you know that there's nothing in that report about these false accusations of sex, you know that, correct?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know that?

A. I don't think it was considered a crime.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection just to see the report?

A. I don't need to see the report. I'm telling you that's what happened and that's it.

Q. Okay. Now, you had a hearing -- excuse me, let me rephrase that better.

Based on reports you made to the police, David Arvizo was charged with domestic violence a couple of times, right?

A. I don't know what you're talking about. What --

Q. I'll be happy to rephrase.

Based on accusations you made about David

Arvizo being abusive and violent, he was prosecuted, right?
A. I don’t under --
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as speculative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall David Arvizo being prosecuted for crimes related to domestic violence?
A. Yes.
Q. And as far as you know, why was he prosecuted?
A. Because he did the crime.
Q. And was he reported for those crimes, to your knowledge?
A. He was investigated.
Q. And do you know how the investigations began?
A. Yes, because the best I can remember is I was outside getting beat up and some children called the police.
Q. Now, do you recall, in -- excuse me. At some point you spoke to a city attorney, correct, from the Los Angeles County City Attorney’s Office, correct?
A. Okay. Which case are we talking about?
Q. One of your domestic -- one of the domestic violence cases that were filed against your ex-husband David. Do you recall talking to someone named Soriano?

A. Okay, yes.
Q. Okay. And do you recall talking to Mr. Soriano about a photograph that had you holding a knife? Do you remember that?
A. I didn’t talk to him about it. He asked me, because David and Mr. Halpern, the ones that they’ve sold to the tabloids, presented it to me.
Q. And you didn’t deny there was a photo of you with a knife like this, right?
A. Of course there was.
Q. And you had an explanation for that photograph, right?
A. Of course.

Q. And please tell the jury what that explanation is.

A. In the tabloids they have blurted out -- well, they phased out the running -- I think it was running water, dishes -- full of dishes in the sink, my son sitting in the background doing his homework. I was washing the dishes at the time. And David had asked me, he goes, “Hey, Janet’s like the movie.” This is the best I can remember. And he said, “Here,” and it was all done in jokingly, and he snapped a picture. Well, we’re talking about one of those throw-away camera pictures. And my son is clearly in the background doing his homework, holding up his paperwork. It’s the best I can remember.

Q. And you would agree you’re photographed with a knife like this?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And it all is play acting, right?

A. No, it was done jokingly.

Q. Okay. Some other photographs surface of you with something else you were holding, correct?

A. That was a broom. You know, when you sweep like this from left to right, depending, yes. And they also -- Mr. Halpern and David also sold that to the tabloids.

Q. And that was meant in jest also, correct, the photo of you with a broom?

A. Those pictures were taken in, hmm, I think -- I think in 1999. The best I can remember. 1999. No, goodness, I think 1998, actually. Seven years ago. That is the best I can remember.

Q. Now, around October 16th of 2001, you filed documents with the Superior Court through your attorney, Michael Manning, in which you claimed David had threatened to kill you and the kids, right?

A. I don’t think it’s the word -- the way you’re saying it is word for word. But David, many, many years, had already threatened me. Always.

Q. And didn’t you say in documents filed with the court David said he would kill you and the kids?

A. I think what is -- I don’t think he’s saying it word for word. But David had always threatened me and the kids, always.

Q. Did he threaten you with death?

A. He always would.

Q. And you indicated that David said that if you cause him trouble, he would have one of Ray’s, his brother, people kill you and the kids, right?

A. Yes. David had said that for years, many, many years to me.

Q. Who is Ray?

A. Ray is David’s brother, who is a convicted drug dealer.

Q. And did Ray himself ever threaten you and the children?

A. Ray never, never threatened me. It was all per David’s own word.

Q. At some point did you mention in one of your interviews that you had been abused in your own home growing up?

A. Never.

Q. Okay. Did you ever mention anything about your father being abusive?

A. Absolutely never.

Q. And you didn’t tell that to anyone, correct?

A. Never.

Q. Okay. Did all the abuse in your home come from David himself?

A. Always.

Q. Okay. Do you recall the meeting with Brad Miller at Jay Jackson’s residence?

A. I think so.

Q. And do you recall Mr. Miller mentioning to you and Jay Jackson and your family that he worked for Attorney Mark Geragos, who represented Michael Jackson?

A. No, I didn’t recall that. And it wasn’t important to me because when he had walked in at the door, he said he was Michael’s private investigator. And also Frank had told me that Brad Miller was Michael's private investigator. So all that mumbo-jumbo he was saying, it wasn't brought to my attention until we had a -- here, I was here in this courtroom, and I think it was September. So he's doing the same thing he did in September.

Q. When --

Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I'll strike after, "No, I didn't recall that."

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you learned that Brad Miller was an investigator, did it ever occur to you that you were being investigated?

A. No. Because Frank had told me that he was Michael's private investigator and he was here to help me and the kids. And I believed him. I believed too much of them.

Q. He said he was an investigator for Mark Geragos in front of Major Jay Jackson, did he not?

A. Jay repeatedly kept coming in and out of his bedroom.

Q. Did Brad Miller, as far as you remember, ever tell Major Jay Jackson in Major Jay Jackson's home that he was an investigator for Mark Geragos, who represented Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall ever discussing with Jay Jackson the fact that Brad Miller was a private investigator?

A. No. It's just that's how he introduced himself.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Jay Jackson either before or after that interview who Brad Miller was?

A. There was no -- I don't know what he's trying -- it's so broad, but, the answer to that question is no, as I'm understanding it.

Q. After the interview was completed, did you ever discuss with Jay Jackson who Brad Miller was?

A. No.

Q. And did Jay Jackson ever ask you, "Janet, he said he's an investigator. Who is he?"

A. No.

Q. Did you ever learn that Asaf worked for Attorney Mark Geragos?

A. On the tape -- on the tape-recorder that Asaf illegally was taping the Child Protective Services, he also says my son -- I think my son there, Star, asks him, and he points out that he’s Michael’s security, or Star asks him, “Are you Michael’s security?” And he clearly says by his own mouth, “Yes.”

Q. Did you ever learn that Johnny was a private investigator working with Miller?

A. Johnny told me he was Michael’s security.

Q. So it never occurred to you at any time that Attorney Mark Geragos had anyone investigating who you were and who your family was?

A. Well, first of all, why would he have a criminal defense attorney --

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE WITNESS: -- if there’s no criminal investigation under its way?

THE COURT: You may answer that “yes” or “no.” Did it occur to you?

THE WITNESS: Can you --

MR. MESEREAU: If we could have it read back.

THE WITNESS: Could you ask it differently? Because I answered you what I thought was the answer that you were looking for.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did it ever occur to you that Attorney Mark Geragos had hired investigators to investigate who you and your family were and what your plans were?

A. Criminal defense attorney, no. Now I know he’s a criminal defense attorney. No.

Q. And you never discussed with Major Jackson who these people are and what they’re doing, correct?

A. No. I believed everything Frank had told me. I believed everything Michael had told me. I believed them. I trusted them, that’s why we’re here today.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I'll strike everything after "No."

MR. MESEREAU: At this time, Your Honor, with the Court's permission, we'd like to play the audiotape of the Brad Miller interview, Exhibit 5000.

THE COURT: Would you remind us how long that tape is?

MR. SANGER: It's 34 minutes and 24 seconds.

THE COURT: Are you going to interrupt the tape with questions or just play it again?

MR. MESEREAU: I was going to interrupt with a couple of questions. Not too many.

THE COURT: Can't you just go to the points in the tape that -- instead of having us sit here again, listen to that whole tape?

MR. MESEREAU: I can do that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Do it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Miss Arvizo, do you recall -- the interview begins with Mr. Miller saying the following: "All right. This is a tape-recorded statement conducted with the Arvizo family, conducted by Brad Miller. Today is Sunday, February 16th, 2003. It's now 9:47 p.m. on that evening. And as I told you, my name is Brad Miller. I'm a licensed private investigator working on behalf of the Law Firm of Geragos & Geragos, specifically for an attorney by the name of Mark Geragos, who is an attorney for Michael Jackson. And this conversation is being tape-recorded with your permission, correct, Janet?"

And your answer is, "Yes."

Do you recall Mr. Miller telling you he worked for Mark Geragos?

A. In September it was brought to my attention, this mumbo-jumbo. Up to that point I had only believed he was Michael's private investigator.

Q. Do you recall towards the end of that recorded interview, Mr. Miller asks you the following: "All right. Well, I thank you guys. I think this has been very helpful. So let's wrap this up. It’s now about 10:25, Sunday night, February 16th, 2003. As I’ve told you, my name is Brad Miller. I’m a private investigator working on behalf of Mark Geragos, who’s an attorney for Michael Jackson. And this conversation has been tape-recorded with your permission, correct, Janet?”

Answer, by you, “Yes.”

Do you recall that?

A. I didn’t pay attention to that.

THE COURT: Counsel, do we have a transcript yet for that?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, we do, Your Honor. I don’t think we’ve lodged it with the Court, but we do have one.

THE COURT: Would you lodge it with the Court, please?

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll see if I can --

THE COURT: Later today is fine.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Yes, we will.

Q. Where was Jay -- excuse me, where was Major Jay Jackson during that interview?

A. My husband -- in the beginning, we were just -- it was a new relationship. And at that point I think he must have been in his bedroom, because you saw him kind of detached, what was going on.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Stricken.

You just need to answer the question. Listen to it carefully, and then just answer the question. Don’t volunteer additional information.

Would you -- do you want to restate it or do you want the court reporter to read it back?

MR. MESEREAU: If the court reporter would read it back, I’d appreciate it. Thank you.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: The majority of the time, in his bedroom.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall Major Jay Jackson sitting during the majority of that interview on the couch?

A. The majority of that interview he was in his bedroom.

Q. Now, is it your -- let me rephrase that. Are you claiming that what you said in this interview on February 16th, 2003, was scripted?

A. I already told him before. Everything that was on the Bradley Miller audiotape was from my heart, from the initial lovey-dovey meeting that I had in Miami. I believed him and I trusted him. So, it's -- the best I can say, it's most -- it's all accurate.

Q. You were asked by Mr. Miller, "What was Mr. Jackson's role in his recovery?" referring to Gavin and his cancer. Do you remember that?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And you said, "Like a father, like a father to him." Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. Brad Miller said to you, "What would Michael do?"

And your answer was, "Everything a loving father, unselfish, kind," then inaudible, "exhibits unconditional love," correct?

A. All of the Bradley Miller audiotape, it's all correct and accurate. That's how I felt.

Q. Now, your son Gavin also spoke in that interview, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And as far as you know, he was telling the truth, right?

A. There's -- there was a few times that I had stepped out, because I was feeling a little bit concerned as to why and -- how Jay was feeling, because it was a new relationship with me that I was beginning with Jay, so I was getting a little concerned as to why Jay kept coming in and out. So there's periods in there that I'm not present when there's being audiotape.

Q. Gavin said that Michael would always put a smile on his face. Do you remember that?

A. I have since read the -- the transcript of the audiotape. And like I said, everything there is accurate. Everything there is correct. That’s how they were feeling at that moment and at that time.

Q. And you were there when Gavin said Michael didn’t come to the hospital but he would call him on the phone, correct?

A. Pardon me?

Q. You were present at the interview when Gavin said Michael didn’t come to the hospital. He would call on the phone, right?

A. Yes. He did -- Michael never once came to the hospital. But there was long hours of conversations, hours and hours.

Q. And you said in that interview, “And that’s one thing the role Michael was, he wasn’t just a father figure to Gavin, he also was to Star and Davellin, because he knew that all three of them needed him and he was -- um, is family to me. And he also realized that I needed him.” Correct?

A. Yes. This is stemming from the initial meeting that I had in Miami that he gave me a reinterpretation of what his role was. This is from Michael in Miami.

Q. So this is from your heart and it’s the truth, correct?

A. Yes, it is. It is.

Q. You talked about David being charged with child endangerment and terrorist threats, right?

A. If that’s on there, yes.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection? I can show it to you.

A. Yes.

Q. And Davellin said that David had broken her tailbone, correct?

A. Yes, he had.

Q. And that was true, correct?

A. Yes. Yes. With his big old foot. Kicked her right --

Q. Gavin said that David hit him during his cancer treatment?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. And that was also true, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And Star said that David hit him where he has a cyst, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You said that David would even abuse the dog, right?

A. Yes. He hurt many of our little animals.

Q. You mentioned a ferret and a dog, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. Yeah.

Q. You talked about, “They had filmed -- when they had filmed the beautiful story about Michael and my son, David was there present.” Do you remember that?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. What were you referring to when you talked about “the beautiful story about Michael and my son”?

A. It was the DVD that’s titled “Michael and Gavin.” I had never seen it prior to this time, but Michael had informed me that it was a beautiful story. So this is a -- all stemming from the Miami meeting, that 45-minute lovey-dovey meeting that I had with Michael.

Q. So when you talked about the beautiful story, you hadn’t seen it; is that true?

A. I had never seen it prior to Gary giving it to Evvy -- I mean Evvy giving it to Gary and Gary giving it to us.

Q. You said that David was mad one day because you and Michael were dancing, right?

A. Yes. And this was -- this was David’s character. You know, I couldn’t wear makeup. Couldn’t shave my legs. You know, just different things.

So, yes, it was a -- I was happy to see Gavin dancing, because Gavin at that point had like a toddler walk. And, to me, that made me happy. And we were at a 20-foot distance and yet I still got beat up for that.

Q. But you said that, “Me and Michael were dancing,” correct?

A. Yes, me, Michael, the children. You don’t take it out of context or make it dirty. He was -- me, Michael, the children, other guests there. It was inside this -- what is it? -- bumper cars area, and they have the ability to play the music really loud, so -- and that’s what -- that’s just what it was all about.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike the comments, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Denied.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Where were you and Michael dancing?

A. It was inside, just the children, me, Michael and other guests there, under a tent in the bumper car area.

Q. And when did this happen?

A. That happened in the initial meeting in August of 2000. And I was happy to see that Gavin was actually trying to dance. He wasn’t able to dance. But because he had a toddler walk, to me, that was a big step.

Q. Did you tell the jury last week you had never had a conversation with Michael Jackson until Miami?

A. Yes, I never had a conversation with Michael. Michael didn’t talk to me in the initial visit with him.

Q. You danced with him, but you never talked to him?

A. That’s right. It wasn’t me and him solely under the blue sky night. It was me, him, my children, other guests, under a tent in the bumper car area, which they had the ability to play the music really loud.

Q. The first time you visited Neverland, do you recall having dinner in the main house at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Michael Jackson being there?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall a discussion about where Gavin was going to sleep?
A. It wasn’t a discussion with me. It was a discussion with David.
Q. And approximately when did that dinner take place?
A. Dinnertime.
Q. Approximate month and year?
A. Approximate, August 2000.
Q. And you never spoke to Michael Jackson at that dinner table?
A. No. David was present.
Q. How long did the dinner last?
A. I guess maybe -- maybe 20 minutes’ worth. Maybe.
Q. Getting back to the Brad Miller recording, you said the following: “In my observance and their interaction, and Gavin with Michael and Star, with Michael and Davellin, with Michael is that, as a father figure, he provides for them. He provides them with a sense of humor. He’s very funny. And a sense of direction and guidance.”
And you meant what you were saying, correct?

A. Yes, I did. This is my observance of what I saw in Miami. But now I know different what was happening and I was -- and I was clueless.
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike the comments.
THE COURT: I’ll strike after “Yes, I did.”
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said, “Michael’s everything that an ultimate father is, and that’s what the children have always prayed for, is a father, and that God has blessed them with. And me, I’ve always wanted family, so he’s family to me.”
You said that from your heart, correct?
A. Yes. He put on a good show in Miami.
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike the comment.
THE COURT: Strike the -- after “Yes.”
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And you said, “In being what I endured in 17 years, I would be the most sensitive to any little thing. And Michael has never, absolutely never, made me feel in any way, form, shape or matter that anything was anything different other than Gavin as a son to Michael, Star as a son to Michael, Davellin as a daughter to Michael, and Michael father, like a father to all three of them."

Do you remember saying that?

MR. ZONEN: What page are we on?

MR. MESEREAU: 12.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember saying those words?

A. Yes, and now I realize how stupid I was.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: I'll strike after, "Yes," but what's the point? I mean, on the questions here, you're asking her whether she said things. We've heard the tape, we know what she said. Do you have specific areas you wanted to ask her about?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Getting her to say again that she said those things doesn't seem to be getting us somewhere here, to me.

MR. MESEREAU: I'll tie it up, Your Honor.

Q. Ms. Arvizo, do you remember telling the jury that you were rehearsing with the people you refer to as the Germans for the February 20th interview?

A. Yes.

Q. This interview with Brad Miller is February 16th, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You've told the jury it wasn't rehearsed, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Are you saying in the next four days you rehearsed for the February 20th video?

A. Prior to Jesus, it was many times daily in Neverland with Dieter. First it was Ronald, Dieter, and then it became Dieter hands on. And as you can see, maybe you've -- it's been played approximately five or six times here, and I’m sure there’s many people that can recite it now. Imagine me working daily, Dieter hands on, with me and my kids, many times in one day, how that’s possible.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: I’ll ask you just to answer the question again. The question was, “Are you saying in the next four days you rehearsed for the February 20th video?” And what’s your answer to that question?

THE WITNESS: It had already done -- been done prior with Dieter on a daily basis.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll strike her other answer. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You’re saying you’d rehearsed with Dieter before, but what you said on this interview with Brad Miller was from the heart, right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. When did you first meet Jamie Masada?

A. The best I can remember, I think it was -- it was definitely before Gavin became ill.

Q. And how did you meet him?

A. Through -- the best I can remember, it was -- I had seen a flyer at a public school that was, you know, talking about a comedy camp.

Q. Did you bring your children to Jamie Masada’s comedy camp?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And did your children attend the comedy camp?

A. Yes. Yes, they did.

Q. Did you attend with them?

A. Yes. Every single time. I did.

Q. Now, do you recall any of your children getting on stage and performing about how poor your family was?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And do you recall telling Jamie Masada that your children dove into a fountain for coins?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall telling George Lopez your children dove into a fountain for coins?

A. No. It may have been David maybe. If they’re saying that, it may have been David.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken after “No.”

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Jamie Masada introduced you to various celebrities, right?

A. Not just me, the whole group, the whole -- everybody. Everybody that was attending.

Q. And did you meet various celebrities through Jamie Masada?

A. Yes.

Q. And who did you meet?

A. There were guest comics. And me personally, I didn’t get to meet them. The only people I did get to meet was -- personally was George Lopez. This is the best I can remember. Louise Palanker. Fritz Coleman. Sully McCullough. That’s the best I can remember. Those are the people that I personally met. And of course Chris Tucker and his fiancee, girlfriend, I don’t know how they are now, but that’s the best I can remember. Me personally.

Q. And approximately what month and year was this?

A. The best I can remember, it was all prior to Gavin becoming ill. The only one that we met after Gavin was ill was Chris Tucker. And with Aja. This is the best I can remember. But all the other ones that have already came up here, it was prior to Gavin becoming ill.

Q. In your deposition in the J.C. Penney case, and I’m referring to December 18th, 2000, you indicated that you had filed a state disability claim because you were depressed. Remember that?

A. Um, yes.

Q. You were asked what caused the depression. You said it was not your marriage, “I was just sad about being a nobody.” Do you remember that?

A. I’m still a nobody.

Q. Would you just answer the question. Isn’t that what you said?

A. If it’s on there, that’s correct.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you that?

A. There was many things why I was sad. Most of all, the man that I was married that didn’t love me or my kids.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Strike that answer. I’m not quite sure what the question is at this point, however.

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase; I can restate it, Your Honor.

Q. You testified under oath, Ms. Arvizo, that you filed a state disability claim because you were depressed, and when asked why you were depressed, you said, “I was sad about being a nobody,” right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; compound.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember being questioned about why you had filed a state disability claim?

A. No, I don’t. But what he’s talking about --

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember filing a state disability claim?

A. Not at that time. It was years and years and years prior to what he’s saying now.

Q. Do you remember why you filed that state disability claim?

A. Depression.

Q. And the depression was because you felt you were a nobody, right?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as irrelevant; immaterial.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I’m still a nobody. But now I’m with somebody that’s just a regular person.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike, Your Honor.

I'd just request the witness be asked to respond to the question.

THE COURT: I'll strike the answer. Are you asking her if that's the reason she gave on the form?

MR. MESEREAU: In the deposition, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I think you need to make that clear. It's not clear.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. I will do that.

Q. Ms. Arvizo, in your deposition in the J.C. Penney case on Monday, December 18th, 2000, you had admitted you had filed a state disability claim, correct?

A. Yes. Years prior.

Q. You said you filed a claim for depression, true?

A. Yes.

Q. You were asked if your marriage had caused depression. Do you remember that?

A. No, I don't remember that.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you those pages?

A. No. But if it's on there, it's correct.

Q. You were asked was it your marriage, and your answer was, "No, I was just sad about being a nobody," correct?

A. And I'm still a nobody.

Q. In your effort to obtain money in that lawsuit, you didn't want anyone to think you had had any depression from -- caused by David, correct?

A. That's incorrect.

Q. When did you last see Brad Miller?

A. When did I last see Brad Miller?

Q. Yes.

A. When he was standing right next to -- next to the camera, in the rebuttal video. Right there. Here's the camera. Here's Brad Miller. Right there. I think. That's my best remember -- my best recollection.

Q. The interview with the DCFS was the morning after the rebuttal video.

A. Oh, that’s right. He did come afterwards and -- that’s -- go ahead.

Q. Was Brad Miller at the meeting with the representatives of the Department of Children & Family Services?

A. No, he wasn’t present there when they were there.

Q. So was the last time you saw him, that you can recall, where you did the rebuttal video? Was that the last place you saw him?

A. He did come afterwards, after the ladies had left. The ladies were no longer in my apartment. He did come afterwards.

Q. Was it your idea to have the DCFS interview at Major Jackson’s home?

A. I think so.

Q. Why?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Were you living at Major Jackson’s home --

A. No.

Q. -- when you had that interview?

A. No.

Q. Did you represent to the social workers from the DCFS that that was your home?

A. No, I told them this was my boyfriend’s home.

Q. Did you tell him that your children ever stayed there?

A. I did tell them that we visited there.

Q. Was your intent to make them think that’s where your children lived?

A. Absolutely not. They know where I lived. I lived in East L.A. on Soto Street. They knew that.

Q. Now, I believe you told the jury that at that interview was someone named Aja Pryor, correct?

A. Aja Pryor, yes.

Q. And Aja Pryor at the time, as far as you knew, was actor and comedian Chris Tucker’s fiancee, right?

A. At that time that’s what I felt. They do have a baby together.

Q. And her baby was there for the interview, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And after the interview was over, you drove somewhere with Aja Pryor, didn’t you?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Did you ever drive with Aja Pryor anywhere after the interview?

A. No.

Q. Did Aja Pryor ever drive you to Neverland at any time?

A. No.

Q. How often did you used to talk to Aja Pryor during this time period?

A. Often.

Q. Would you call her?

A. Yes.

Q. Would she call you?

A. We’re talking about a friendship that had gone on for years. So can you specify the time period?

Q. Sure. Let’s say between January of 2003 and April of 2003.

A. Okay. Prior to Neverland, it was back and forth phone calls. During Neverland, it was -- there was no return phone call that she can call me back on.

Q. Do you recall Miss Pryor ever driving your children to Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. When was that?

A. That was right after the CPS interview, when Asaf had escorted Aja and the children to the car. And they were being followed.

Q. Did you ask --

Move to strike the comments.

THE COURT: Denied.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ask Miss Pryor to drive your children to Neverland after the DCFS interview?

A. No.

Q. Do you know why she did that?

A. That was already prearranged.

Q. How was it prearranged?

A. Well, it was already in a conversation prior, per Frank's instructions.

Q. Did you ever ask Aja Pryor for the keys to Chris Tucker's car?

A. No.

Q. To your knowledge, did Davellin ever do that?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall ever being in a call with Davellin where you and Davellin asked Aja Pryor to the keys to Chris Tucker's automobile?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall discussing going to Brazil with Aja Pryor?

A. Like I had told you, remember those conversations that I would have and try to slip something in? So at the end of the -- all these people could put this puzzle together as to where me and my children were finally at.

Q. Do you recall telling Aja Pryor that you were excited to go to Brazil?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall inviting Aja Pryor to go to Carnaval in Brazil with you?

A. No.

Q. When's the last time you saw Aja Pryor?

A. I think it was the CPS meeting. I think that was the last day.

Q. I'd like to ask you some questions about some of the interviews you gave the sheriffs in Santa Barbara, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. I'm just going to go through those interviews.

You indicated in one interview that you were studying to be an orthopedic technologist, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that true?

A. Yes.

Q. And where were you doing that course of study?

A. I was doing that at a vocational school in Orange County.

Q. And what years did you attend there?

A. I attended approximately in 2003.

Q. Did you finish that course?

A. No.

Q. How long did you go to school there?

A. Probably summer and attempted to try to finish fall.

Q. You mentioned to the sheriffs that you knew Carol Lamir, correct?

A. Yes. That's David's girlfriend.

Q. Well, before you thought she was David's girlfriend, you knew her in another capacity, correct?

A. Yes, David and I both knew her.

Q. And how did you know her?

A. Through -- she doesn't like to call herself grandmother, but she actually is the grandmother to -- to one of the children that was taking tap dance lessons where my children were.

Q. And you met her at that school, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. Okay. Did you stay in touch with her for any length of time after you met her at that school?

A. David did.

Q. Did Davellin ever stay at her house, to your knowledge?

A. Davellin stood, I think, when Gavin had gotten ill, I think for less than one month. And I came to find out that all she wanted Davellin was to clean her house. And so I put a stop to that.

Q. To your knowledge, how many evenings did Davellin stay at Carol Lamir's house?

A. I can't remember. But the best one who could remember that would probably be Davellin. We're talking five years ago.

Q. Do you know if she spent weeks there?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. Did you often know if she was going to stay there?

A. Of course.

Q. Would she ask your permission to stay there?

A. No, she didn’t want to go to her house anymore. And I came to find out is because all Carol wanted her was to clean her house.

Q. But you don’t know approximately how many nights Davellin stayed at Carol Lamir’s home, right?

A. No. Please. My son had cancer, I....

Q. Do you know approximately what year Davellin was staying at Carol Lamir’s home?

A. Yes, this was when Gavin had cancer, in 2000.

Q. Did you ever tell Aja Pryor that your family was being held against their will?

A. Yes.

Q. When was this?

A. I think -- I think it was during the hotel period. That’s the best I can remember. I -- I tried to reach different people.

Q. And you specifically remember telling her that you were being held against your will?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember ever asking her to call the police?

A. No. That was another thing I slipped in, and I was always hoping that these people would call themself. This way the call didn’t come from me. Quick slip-in.

Q. Now, during the DCFS interview, Aja’s present at Major Jackson’s home with three social workers from Los Angeles, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You never say anything about your being held against your will, correct?

A. That’s correct. Because Asaf had already told me -- he already had warned me prior to them -- the ladies coming in.

Q. You saw Major Jackson when you arrived that morning, correct?
A. Yeah -- I think so. But it was a new relationship with Jay, and he was a -- now he has softened up, but back then was very completely organized.
Q. The first time you visited Neverland, did you tell the jury you didn’t know where your sons were the first evening?
A. Which -- are you talking the police report?
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as vague.
MR. MESEREAU: I’ll rephrase it if it’s unclear.
THE COURT: All right.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The first time you, your husband and your son -- excuse me, you, your husband and your children visited Neverland, do you remember when that was?

A. Yes.
Q. And approximately when was that?
A. In August of 2000.
Q. Do you remember where your son stayed that first evening?
A. In Michael’s house.
Q. How did you know they were staying in Michael’s house?
A. Because Gavin had asked.
Q. Did you hear Gavin ask?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Do you know approximately where he made that request?
A. No, I don’t remember.
Q. Did he make that request at the dinner table, to your knowledge?
A. You know, I -- I can’t remember that part.
Q. Did you --
A. We’re talking five years ago.
Q. Did you have any discussion with Michael Jackson about where your sons were going to stay that evening?
A. I didn’t -- he didn’t talk to me. I didn’t talk to him. It was David talking to Michael.

Q. So as far as you know, the first night you were there, your sons were staying somewhere in the main house, but you didn’t know where, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And you assumed that David knew where; is that correct?

A. I assumed that children stay with children. That’s what I assumed.

Q. Did you see your sons the next day?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask them where they had stayed that evening?

A. No, I didn’t. They had told me that they had played, and that was good.

Q. Did you then stay at Neverland a second night?

A. I think so. Yes. Yes, yes.

Q. And was it your belief that your sons stayed in the main house that night?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Did you see them the next morning?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ask them where they had spent the evening?

A. No. I didn’t -- now I know a lot of things. Now I know --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you stay at Neverland a third night during that first visit?

A. I don’t remember how many days we stayed there, but I know it was just days. And that’s it. You’re going to walk me through each room -- I mean each door, each day, and I don’t know.

Q. Do you think you stayed more than two nights at Neverland during that first visit?

A. Definitely more than two, but definitely less than -- less than a week. It was just days. But I can’t remember, it was five years ago.

Q. Did you ever at any time ask your sons during that first trip to Neverland where they had spent the night?

A. No. No, I didn't. But I've learned things now --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In one of your initial interviews with the sheriffs, you talked about Michael Jackson giving a big gift for Gavin, which was a car, correct?

A. Yes. It looked exactly like the O.J. Simpson truck.

Q. Was it an SUV?

A. It was -- it was an old car. It looked like just the O.J. Simpson Bronco thing.

Q. It wasn't a Bronco, was it?

A. Oh, no. No. That's incorrect. Thank you. You're right. It was a laptop computer. The truck came afterwards.

Q. Okay. I'm focusing on just the truck. Okay?

A. Okay. Because you had mentioned the truck, so --

Q. Well, you said it looked like Mr. Simpson's Bronco, but it was really a Chevy Blazer, wasn't it?

A. No. I think it was a Ford Bronco.

Q. At some point, didn't you refuse to return the registration to that car?

A. I didn't have no registration.

Q. Did you ever keep any of the papers associated with that car?

A. No, a VIN number.

Q. Did you ever tell the sheriffs in any interview, "I have the papers associated with that car"?

A. I have papers that -- I wrote down the VIN number.

Q. Anything else?

A. No, that's it.

Q. You were upset that that Blazer was returned, weren't you?

A. No.
Q. You never were upset?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever think it was wrongfully kept by Mr. Jackson?

A. No. What I thought was wrong is that they wanted Gavin to come back alone to pick it up, that's what I thought. That was the uneasy part.
Q. Did you ever complain to anyone that, "Michael Jackson said he would repair the car and we never saw it again"?
A. No, I didn't complain. That was just information that -- the police wanted to know every detail, so that was the best I can recall. And we're talking about in 2001. This is four years ago.
Q. Now, at some point, you said that Mr. Jackson gave your son a laptop computer, right?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. And do you know approximately when that was?
A. That was the first visit that we had gone to in August of 2000.
Q. And did you actually see that computer?
A. Yes.
Q. And was that returned at some point also?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Do you remember telling the sheriffs that you had kept the VIN number and registration?
A. Okay. Now I know the difference. It was only VIN number. The paperwork of the VIN number. That's all.
Q. So when you said "registration," it was a mistake?

A. Yes. It's VIN number, that big long number.
Q. All right. And you also complained about Michael's people taking the computer back, correct?
A. No, I didn't complain. I had just made them aware, that's all.
Q. And when you say you made them aware, who were you talking about?

A. The police.

Q. Okay.

A. Because they wanted every detail that I can possibly remember, so it was just information.

Q. Okay. You never complained to any sheriff that the computer had been returned when it really belonged to Gavin?

A. No. It was information.

Q. Okay.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, okay.

THE COURT: Take our morning break.

THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Ms. Arvizo, you mentioned to the sheriffs in one of your initial interviews that Michael had sent gifts to Gavin, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And what gifts do you recall Michael Jackson sending to Gavin when Gavin was ill?
A. When Gavin was ill?
Q. Yes.
A. Go through the whole list?
Q. Sure. Whatever you can remember.
A. The best I can remember is the computer, the -- I think it was a Bronco - I just have a picture of it - white, Christmas gifts, and that was all, when he was sick.
Q. And what --
A. That's the best I can remember.
Q. Do you remember anything being delivered at the hospital for Gavin from Michael Jackson?
A. Yes, a big gift basket.
Q. Okay. Do you remember toys like Play Station 3, things like that, being delivered to Gavin for Michael?
A. Okay, I was incorrect in saying Play Station 3. It was a Play Station 2, and that was during Christmastime.
Q. Is that all the gifts you remember Gavin ever receiving from Michael Jackson?

A. This is the best I can remember, when Gavin was sick.
Q. When Gavin wasn't sick, do you remember other gifts being given?
A. Yes. Michael would send things through -- through like a courier, messenger, something like that, give baskets, and was saying, "I love you, Gavin."
Q. Do you remember telling the sheriffs that when Michael Jackson gave those gifts and those messages, you assumed he was trying to cure him, because Gavin was ill? Do you remember saying that?

A. No, I don’t think that’s exactly correct how you’re saying it. But I feel when Gavin was sick, there were just things that were get-you-well gifts, I guess, I don’t know. The only thing that made me uneasy was --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.
THE COURT: Overruled. And you interrupted her answer.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember telling the sheriffs Michael Jackson would leave messages at your home for Gavin?
A. Yes. He would leave -- what kind of messages? Phone messages?
Q. Yeah. He’ll say things like, “I’ll never forget you,” and things like that, right?

A. Okay. The best I can remember, Gavin had his own private phone number, own answering machine, because his room had to be sterile. And Michael knew that it was his private -- private phone line. And that’s where Michael would leave the phone messages.
Q. And you told the sheriffs when you were discussing those messages, referring to Michael Jackson, “He’s saying it out in the open. You know, you know, he’s saying it probably because he’s ill, trying to cure him.” Do remember that?
A. Yes. That again is my own cluelessness.
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.
THE COURT: The part after “Yes”? After “Yes,” is that --
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. I’ll strike it.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you learned at some point that Star, your son Star, had done a video at Neverland with Mr. Jackson, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And when did you learn about that video?
A. I think in Miami. That’s when I learned that.
Q. And have you ever seen that video?
A. I’ve never seen that video.
Q. Okay. When Star was at Neverland making that video, did he ever discuss it with you?

A. No.

Q. You’ve described your first trip to Neverland, okay? When was your second trip to Neverland?

A. I think it was the -- Aja and Chris’s baby boy’s birthday party that Aja and Chris took their -- almost their entire whole family. He had them flown in from Atlanta, Georgia.

Q. And approximately when was that trip?

A. That was approximately -- I think it was early September in 2002.

Q. After your first trip to Neverland, your children went back with David on a couple of occasions, did they not?

A. Not my children. My two boys. They went -- do you want me to say?

Q. Sure.

A. Okay. The initial visit, the best I can remember - always, please, dates, best I can remember - is August 2000. And then both my boys returned with David to Neverland. Davellin did not return. Davellin stood with me. So --

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Your Honor, we have lodged with the Court a transcript of the Brad Miller interview, and I believe it’s Exhibit 5008.

THE COURT: Thank you.

THE CLERK: Is it received into evidence?

THE COURT: No.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During -- let me get this straight now. You went the first time with David and your children, and there were a couple of times after that that David just took your sons, correct, to Neverland?

A. It was one other time.

Q. Okay. Was there just one other trip with David and the sons alone?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And when do you think that was?

A. That was right after, also.

Q. And how long a trip was that, if you remember?
A. The best I remember, it was also -- it was also days.
Q. Do you know where your sons stayed, during that trip, in the evening?
A. No, I don’t. The best -- you can probably ask the boys.
Q. Did you ever ask them yourself where they had stayed during that next trip with David?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever ask David where they had stayed during that trip?
A. No.
Q. Before 2003, how many times did you personally visit Neverland?

A. Before 2003?
Q. Yes.
A. Before 2003, best I can remember was the initial visit that I went. I think it was August 2000. And then with Chris and Aja’s baby boy’s birthday party in early September 2002.
Q. Now, during Chris and Aja’s birthday party, Mr. Jackson was not present, right?
A. Yes. Mr. Jackson was not present.
Q. And did you stay in the guest quarters?
A. Not at all. It was only a day visit. It was a birthday party. That’s all it was.
Q. You came in that morning and left that evening?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, at some point your children are at Neverland when the Bashir documentary was filmed, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And do you recall approximately when that was?
A. Approximately -- this is the best I can remember. Gavin had done -- had a biopsy done on his kidney. Then the baby boy’s birthday party. And then the film that I now know -- am aware of.
Q. How did your children get to Neverland when the Bashir documentary was filmed, if you know?

A. Yes. Michael picked them up from my East L.A. apartment. He had a driver, and then they went over there. They stood the night, and they came the next day.

Q. Did Chris Tucker introduce you to other celebrities?

A. No. Not me. David, yes. And the children.

Q. To your knowledge, what celebrities did Chris Tucker introduce David to?

A. I don’t know.

Q. To your knowledge, what celebrities did Chris Tucker introduce your children to?

A. I think one of them was Jackie Chan. And that’s the best that I’m aware of. That’s it.

Q. Do you recall Chris Tucker introducing your children to Mike Tyson?

A. Oh, that’s correct. Yes. Chris took the children to Mike Tyson’s house.

Q. Now, was it in Las Vegas?

A. Yes, this was in Las Vegas.

Q. Were you there during that trip?

A. There’s actually more than one trip there.

Q. Okay. Did you take more than one trip to Las Vegas with Chris Tucker?

A. No.

Q. Did you take any trips to Las Vegas with Chris Tucker?

A. One.

Q. Was that the trip when your children met Mike Tyson?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet Mike Tyson?

A. Never.

Q. Okay. Did you at some point meet Louise Palanker?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where did you meet Louise Palanker?

A. Through the comedy camp. Through Jamie.

Q. At some point do you recall Louise Palanker writing a check for $10,000 to you?

A. What time period are we talking about? At any time?

Q. Sure.

A. This was when Gavin had become ill.

Q. And do you recall that check being written to Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes, I became aware of that.

Q. And do you recall it being deposited into your mother’s account?

A. It was cashed through my mom’s account.

Q. Did you cash that check?

A. No.

Q. Did you endorse that check?

A. Yes, I think I did.

Q. Okay. And do you recall at some point a second $10,000 check being written by Louise Palanker to David Arvizo?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And do you recall that check being deposited into your mother’s account?

A. It was cashed through my mom’s account.

Q. At that point in time, did you have any bank account?

A. At that point in time, no, I didn’t.

Q. At that point in time did David have any bank accounts?

A. No, he didn’t. Well, actually, I think -- no. The best I can remember, no, I don’t think so. I don’t know.

Q. At that point in time, had you set up any bank account for Gavin’s benefit?

A. No.

Q. At some point did you set up a bank account for Gavin’s benefit?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. Do you know when that was?

A. I think that was in -- the best I can remember, maybe October. Maybe November. That’s the best I can remember.

Q. And did you personally deposit money into that account?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that money that you raised at The Laugh Factory?

A. No.

Q. Was that money that you got from fund-raisers for Gavin?

A. With -- attached to The Laugh Factory?

Q. No. Let me rephrase the question. The money that you deposited into the account you set up for Gavin, do you remember that account?

A. I -- I don’t think I personally deposited things. They were deposited.

Q. Okay. That was an account set up at -- was it Washington Mutual?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was across from The Laugh Factory, wasn’t it?

A. Pardon me?

Q. Was that bank near The Laugh Factory?

A. There’s Washington Mutuals everywhere.

Q. Was this particular branch near The Laugh Factory where you opened the account?

A. No, it wasn’t.

Q. Where was it?

A. The best I can remember, it was -- it was done, I think, in -- well, near the Hollenbeck Division.

Q. And you made deposits for the benefit of Gavin, right?

A. I think the majority of them, they were deposited on their own.

Q. So people went to the bank and deposited money on their own into Gavin’s account?

A. I think so, yes.

Q. Did you ever deposit any money into that account for Gavin’s benefit?

A. The best I can remember, I don’t think so.

Q. All right. Now, when the $10,000 check that Louise Palanker wrote to you was placed into your mother's account, you say that it was basically -- cash was taken out immediately; is that correct?

A. The best I can remember, I think there had to be a waiting period or something like that. And then it could be cashed.

Q. And you endorsed the check, right?

A. Yes, I think so.

Q. And did you get some of the money?

A. No, everything was handed to David. David loved having the sense of authority, and I was like his personal secretary.

Q. So you're saying none of that money went to your benefit, right?

A. It was -- like I said, David had the authority. I was like David's personal secretary.

Q. Okay. So you're telling the jury that you never spent any of that money for yourself, correct?

A. I'm telling the jury I was as -- like David's personal secretary.

Q. Did any of that money go to the benefit of Gavin, to your knowledge?

A. I think so.

Q. Do you know so?

A. I think so.

Q. You're not sure?

A. No, I think so.

Q. Okay. What do you think it went to?

A. I --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I think it went to credit cards, to food, to -- just different things. Whatever David would instruct me to do.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And the second $10,000 check that Louise Palanker wrote was also --

A. I was talking -- I was referring to both.

Q. Okay.

A. So it's going to be the same information.

Q. Okay. Let me just go through the second one, make sure.

Louise Palanker wrote the first check for $10,000 to Janet Arvizo. It was deposited for cash, and you believe it was spent on matters related to Gavin, correct?

A. No. There was -- Louise Palanker, there was no strings attached. It was just to the family.

Q. And you’re not sure whether -- what that was spent on. You think credit cards, right?

A. We’re talking five years ago. And the best I can remember, it was to the family, and I did everything that David instructed me to do.

Q. Let me ask you about the second $10,000 check from Louise Palanker.

A. Again, I’m lumping both of them. Because it was both the same thing.

Q. So as far as the second $10,000 check goes, you pretty much did what David asked you to do with the money, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. And other than credit cards, you’re not that sure what it was spent on, right?

A. No.

Q. You think maybe food, right?

A. I think so.

Q. Okay.

A. And whatever David kept for his pocket.

Q. And you never kept any for your pocket, right?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Were you employed at that point?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And where were you working then?

A. I was a waitress.

Q. Okay. Where was that?

A. The Bonaventure Hotel.

Q. And is that when Gavin was in the hospital?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And did you work there full time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Did you learn at some point about some fund-raisers that went on at The Laugh Factory for the benefit of Gavin?

A. I came to find out everything afterwards.

Q. Did you know those fund-raisers were going on when they actually happened?

A. I don’t think so. We’re talking five years ago.

Q. So you’re not sure whether you knew they were even going on when they happened, right?

A. No, I would find out afterwards.

Q. Now, were you in touch with Jamie Masada at this point in time?

A. Just a little bit.

Q. Was he a friend of yours at that point in time?

A. Yes, he is a friend of mine. And he was a friend of mine at that point.

Q. And he still is a friend of yours, right?

A. He still is a friend.

Q. All right. And you had met him when your kids were going through the comedy camp, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You knew him to have assisted Gavin when Gavin was ill in the hospital, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You were in touch with him at that point in time, right?

A. Yes.

Q. But you’re not sure if you knew when these fund-raisers were going on?

A. That’s correct. I would find out afterwards. And not because David told me, but because Jamie would tell me.

Q. Do you recall Fritz Coleman, the newscaster, helping with any fund-raiser?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall David -- excuse me. Do you recall George Lopez ever trying to help Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Knew nothing about that?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Never met with him and thanked him for what he had done for your family?

A. No. I thanked him through Ann Lopez, because Ann Lopez would pray with me on the phone.

Q. Did you ever meet with George Lopez and give him a gift and thank him for what he had done?

A. I had given him a mustard seed faith amulet, because he had told me that he had lost his key chain, so I had given mine, the one I would carry.

Q. Okay. So when -- excuse me.

When any fund-raisers were being planned at The Laugh Factory for Gavin, you were not involved, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And Jamie Masada didn’t tell you what he was planning, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. Okay. Louise Palanker never told you what she was planning, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. And you don’t even know who attended those fund-raisers, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. Because you never discussed a fund-raiser with Louise Palanker, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. Never discussed a fund-raiser with Fritz Coleman, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And never discussed a fund-raiser with Jamie Masada, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. Do you recall ever speaking to someone at a local newspaper in El Monte about Gavin’s illness?

A. Yes.

Q. And who did you speak to about Gavin’s illness?

A. The best I can remember, I think her name was Christie. And she had expressed to me -- I felt sorry for her, because she had told me that -- she was an elderly lady and she was trying to start a new career and -- start a career in journalism, because she never had had the chance. So when she expressed herself like that, I went ahead and spoke to her about my son’s illness.

Q. So you were really doing her a favor is what you’re saying.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you saying you were trying to help this person with her career; that’s why you spoke about Gavin?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative and irrelevant.

THE COURT: Just a minute.

I’ll sustain the objection as argumentative.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall asking Miss Causer to put an article in her newspaper so you could raise money for Gavin?

A. I think how this came about, if -- I’m trying to understand his question -- was I went ahead and spoke to her about my son’s illness because the editor there is David’s good friend of his sister, and it was David and his sister that went to this editor and brought this about.

I purely wanted to speak to her only about my son’s illness because she had expressed to me that she was an elderly lady trying to start a new career.

Q. Did you tell this lady that it cost $12,000 per chemo treatment for Gavin?

A. What I told this lady was that it was $1200 for the -- it’s called Neupogen injections. Gavin had to have these injections right after chemotherapy. So when it appeared that way, it was a typo. They added an extra zero, first of all.

And then second, I had expressed to her that continuously we’re experiencing miracles, and that when -- that David had went to the -- to the -- where they were processing the Neupogen injections. They made him aware how much this would cost if it would have came out of anybody’s pocket.

But, no, at no time did I say it was costing us a single penny. So I told her basically that it was a miracle of God that it was being covered.

Q. You're telling the jury that you told her it was $1200 for a treatment, and there was a typo that said 12,000?

A. No -- that's correct. $1200 for the Neupogen injections, not for the treatment injections. And if you want to be completely -- that's part of his care.

Q. Did you see the article that appeared in the Mid Valley News?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you ever complain about what was in the article?

A. David said he was going to take care of it, because David's sister is the editor's real good friend, and David's sister and the editor and David had -- this is where that had originated.

Q. You told Miss Causer that several celebrities were doing fund-raisers to help pay for Gavin's chemotherapy, didn't you?

A. I think what I told her was that they were helping. And to me, "help" meant sitting by Gavin, feeding him the water -- the cantaloupe, things like that. That's what I meant by "help."

Q. Did you tell Miss Causer that various celebrities were doing fund-raisers to help pay for Gavin's chemotherapy?

A. No.

Q. Did you complain to Ms. Causer that the first article about Gavin did not mention the bank account at Washington Mutual?

A. No.

Q. And did you ever complain to Miss Causer about the typo which said chemo cost 12,000 per treatment?

A. David said he was going to take care of it because the editor was David's sister's good friend.

Q. Do you recall Miss Causer visiting your address on Ramer Street?

A. She did come to where my son's sterile room was, and that would be my mother's home.

Q. And do you recall her bringing a turkey?

A. No, she didn't bring a turkey.

Q. Do you recall anyone from that newspaper ever bringing you a turkey?

A. No.

Q. And did you ever complain to anyone at that newspaper that a turkey wasn't enough. You wanted, in effect, money?

A. That's incorrect.

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as to the content of an article as impeachment.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

You may answer.

She was interrupted. Have the question read back.

THE WITNESS: I heard -- I remember it.

It's incorrect.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You do remember the article appearing, though, right?

A. The one by -- the one that you guys encouraged to be put out there?

Q. No, the one that you encouraged to appear in the Mid Valley News.

A. The one that I helped the lady with, yes.

But it didn't say nothing about no turkey dinner

there.

Q. Did you do anything to help arrange for any fund-raisers for Gavin at any time?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask anyone for any assistance at any time for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. At some point you said to the sheriffs you did not trust Chris Tucker, correct?

A. He's taking that out of context.

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as irrelevant, the question, and nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

THE WITNESS: Chris Tucker --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Read the question back to her.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: That’s incorrect. He’s taking it out of context. Chris Tucker is a decent person. It was in response to afterwards, Chris Tucker was budding around with Michael afterwards. That’s all that was referring to. I didn’t trust, because he may have innocently communicated something to Michael, and since I already had -- was in the process of deprogrammizing my children from being brainwashed, that I didn’t want Chris Tucker to communicate something innocently to him, and that was it. Chris Tucker has always been a decent person to my children.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: After “That’s incorrect” is stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you indicated at one point that Brett Ratner -- excuse me. You indicated at one point that Brett Ratner met your family, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you personally meet Brett Ratner?

A. I personally didn’t -- was not introduced to him, but I knew that he was the director.

Q. And how did you learn who he was?

A. Because Chris Tucker had pointed him out to me; that he was the director.

Q. Have you ever met him to this day?

A. I never was introduced.

Q. Have you ever talked to him on the phone?

A. I’ve never talked to him on the telephone.

Q. Okay. Do you know how many fund-raisers took place at The Laugh Factory to help your family?

A. No.

Q. Do you know, as you sit here today, when any fund-raisers at The Laugh Factory took place for your family?

A. As I sit here today how many?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Do you know approximately when any fund-raisers took place at The Laugh Factory for your family?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see Jamie Masada at the hospital when Gavin was ill?

A. I think -- I think maybe once. I think maybe once.

Q. And did you ever discuss with Jamie Masada efforts being made to raise money at The Laugh Factory?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall Fritz Coleman, the newscaster, visiting your home in East Los Angeles?

A. Yes, I do. This was before my son was ill.

Q. Were you there during the visit?

A. Yes, I was there.

Q. Were you ever aware at any time that Fritz Coleman had tried to raise some money for your family?

A. No.

Q. When's the last time you saw Fritz Coleman?

A. Let me see. I think the best I can remember was -- I think he was at the hospital and he was already leaving when I was arriving. I think that's the best I can remember. So it was a matter of just minutes.

Q. Okay. Did you ever speak to comedian George Lopez about Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately when did you speak to comedian George Lopez about Gavin?

A. I think -- I think when he first became ill, and then the next time when he was visiting Gavin. And that's -- I gave him the mustard seed amulet key chain.

Q. Did you ever know anything about George Lopez trying to put together a fund-raiser for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Louise Palanker ways to raise money for the family?

A. No.

Q. Do you know why Louise Palanker wrote her first $10,000 check to Janet Arvizo?

A. I think that’s because David requested that way.

Q. Okay. You don’t know for sure, right?

A. Well, I believe Wheezy, because she’s the one that wrote the check for the money.

Q. Okay.

A. “Wheezy” is Louise Palanker.

Q. Were you the signatory on the bank account at Washington Mutual, which was set up for the benefit of Gavin?

A. What does signatory mean?

Q. Were you the one who would actually -- could sign to withdraw money from the bank?

A. Yes. David requested it that way because David owed his brother in the thousands of dollars, so he wanted to point out to his brother Ray that I was the one that -- that’s it.

Q. Was he a signatory on that account, to your knowledge?

A. No, he wasn’t.

Q. Did you ever withdraw any money from the account?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. How much do you think you withdrew?

A. Well, everything that had always been put in.

Q. Do you remember roughly how much was in there at any time?

A. No. I can’t remember.

Q. Were there thousands of dollars in there, to your knowledge?

A. There was thousands. And I went ahead and gave all that information to the police and the D.A.’s Office.

Q. Did you ever withdraw any money yourself from that account?

A. Yes, of course I did.

Q. Did you withdraw thousands of dollars from that account?

A. Yes, I sure did.
Q. Was any of that money used for medical expenses?
A. No, there was no need for medical expenses in the hospital, because everything was covered through Kaiser.
Q. Okay. And were you ever aware that anyone donated money to that account to help with medical expenses?
A. No.
Q. Now, you’ve told the jury you told someone at the Mid Valley News about $1200 per type of treatment, correct?
A. And I was expressing to her that -- that thank God our family is experiencing a lot of miracles, and that was covered.
Q. And you never mentioned the word “chemotherapy” to that person, true?
A. I think I did. It was -- it was a little story about my son being ill.
Q. Did you ever mention the cost of chemotherapy to Miss Causer?
MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I think what I was telling her was a story complete about the miracles that we were experiencing. That’s it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know the article was going to be published?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see it when it was published?
A. Yes, I did. And that’s when David said he was going to take care of it.
Q. And based on what you read, did you think it was a request for assistance?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Now, did you go with Chris Tucker to Knott's Berry Farm?

A. No.

Q. And did your children?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know when that was?

A. Yes. They went with Chris, Aja, David and the children.

Q. Do you know approximately when that was?

A. When Gavin was ill.

Q. Were you talking to Aja Pryor on a regular basis at that point?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Okay. When did you start communicating with Aja Pryor on a pretty regular basis?

A. Our friendship -- probably -- it just grew very slowly, to the point where we were -- we were speaking almost -- almost maybe a few -- four times a week. But it started out very slow.

Q. Did you ever tell Aja Pryor that all of the money that came from the fund-raisers for Gavin was spent on David's drug habit?

A. I don't think so. It may have --

Q. No?

A. It may have probably -- I know the children and I had conversations with her. So --

Q. Did you ever tell Aja Pryor that the money from the fund-raisers for Gavin was spent on David's drug habit?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Do you know for sure?

A. I'm for sure more towards I don't think so.

Q. Isn't it true that after you told Aja Pryor that the money for the fund-raisers was spent by David on drugs, she went to her bank and got a $600 check for you and the family?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Compound and assuming facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: I'll sustain the compound.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember Aja Pryor going to a bank and getting a $600 cashier's check for you and the family?

A. He's incorrect.

Q. Did she ever do that?

A. You're letting me answer?

Okay. Aja was leaving out of town to Atlanta, Georgia. She had told me -- I had -- me and the children had bought her, Chris and the baby some Christmas gifts. Aja then told me, "Janet, I don't have time for shopping. Please buy the children some Christmas gifts." She's flying out -- out of town to go to Atlanta, Georgia. And that's what happened.

Q. But you never mentioned to Aja anything about fund-raisers for Gavin, true?

A. No.

Q. You never mentioned to Aja that money from fund-raisers went to support David's drug habit?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Do you remember telling Aja that David was taking money from fund-raisers for Gavin?

A. I don't think so.

Q. Do you remember having a discussion about fund-raisers for Gavin with anybody?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember receiving any money from Chris Tucker?

A. I became aware of this afterwards, now, through the police investigation, that he had wired some money into the account.

Q. Which account?

A. The Washington Mutual.

Q. That was the account you were a signatory on, correct?

A. You've explained "signatory." So it's still the same meaning the way you're using it, correct?

Q. Yes, it is.

A. Yes. Yes. Which I withdrew the money and gave it to David.

Q. And you're saying -- telling the jury under oath that you never knew Chris Tucker had wired that money into that account until the police told you?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know approximately when this was?

A. Now, per the police investigation, I think it was -- I think it was in December or January. I think it was within those time -- months.

Q. And you had received --

A. And at that point, that's when Chris and -- David was going everywhere with Chris.

Q. And that's the point in time where you were associating quite a bit with Aja, right?

A. No, our friendship did not begin with Aja until -- until David was out of the picture. I hardly even spoke to Aja. My friendship did not begin with her until David was out of the picture.

Q. And where did the 2,000 from Chris Tucker go, if you know?

A. Well, yeah, I withdrew it and gave it to David, and that's when David had gone to Las Vegas.

Q. So, to your knowledge, you gave that money to David and it wasn't used for the benefit of Gavin, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. Do you recall any discussion with Aja or Chris Tucker about your family getting the use of one of Chris's cars?

A. Okay, say that again.

Q. Do you recall any discussion with Chris Tucker or Aja about your family using one of Chris's vehicles?

A. Okay. I'm -- I don't know what he's asking.

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as nonresponsive, or vague. She doesn't understand the question.

THE COURT: Overruled. I'll have the question read back.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: It's incorrect the way he's saying it.

Chris -- Aja had her birthday. Chris had taken the children to go pick out a brand-new Mercedes for Aja. The children picked out the color for Aja, and Chris went ahead and purchased it. And that was Chris's gift, birthday gift, to Aja.

And so the car that Aja was driving, months later, Chris and Aja gave it to me and the children for a Christmas gift, but I never have driven it. I don’t have it. I don’t have ownership of it. But that’s what he’s referring to.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever ask anyone if you could use that car?

A. Never.

Q. Did you ever complain to anyone that you were supposed to be able to own that car?

A. Never.

Q. How did you learn about the car?

A. Well, because Chris had given me the keys and told me, “This is a Christmas gift. This is Aja’s old car, but we -- Aja and me want you and the kids to have it,” because Aja had been given for her birthday a brand-new Mercedes.

Q. Didn’t you complain to Aja that you had no car to drive?

A. No, I didn’t complain to Aja. It was okay for me. I drove -- I was on the bus continuously.

Q. Did you ever tell Chris you needed a car to drive?

A. Never.

Q. And never told that to Aja either, right?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know why Chris Tucker would even discuss letting you use his car?

A. He would never let me use his car. Like I said, he gave it to me and the kids as a Christmas gift, because it was Aja’s old car that was just sitting in her driveway. No one had no -- no need for it.

Q. To your knowledge, did Davellin ever call Aja Pryor on your behalf asking for the keys to the car?

A. No, Chris had already given me the keys.

Q. And you think he just came over there one day and just said, “Here’s a gift”?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know why Mr. Tucker was giving a gift of a car to you?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Asked and answered and speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall Davellin telling Aja Pryor words to the effect, “I can’t wait until you get another new car. Then I can have the Mercedes”? Do you recall that ever?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall complaining to Aja Pryor about the Germans?

A. Yes. I made her aware. That’s another thing I slipped in. I tried. I tried my best.

Q. You told her you didn’t like these German people around Michael Jackson, correct?

A. No.

Q. Well, you did complain about them to her, right?

A. I didn’t complain. I made her aware. I tried to make different people aware so me and my children could get help.

Q. You told Aja Pryor you didn’t like the Germans, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You never complained to Aja Pryor about being held against your will at any time, did you?

MR. ZONEN: I believe there was an objection, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh.

THE COURT: He changed the question, so --

THE WITNESS: I made her aware that they were not letting us go.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: To your knowledge, did she ever do anything about that?

A. I don’t know.

Q. After she drove your children to Neverland, did you speak to her?

A. No.

Q. How did you know your children got to Neverland?

A. Because they had -- Michael's people had tabs on them. They were being followed.

Q. How did you know your children got to Neverland?

A. Because Frank told Vinnie and Vinnie told me.

Q. And did you ever tell it to Aja Pryor after she drove the children?

A. No. On that day, no.

Q. Do you remember telling Mrs. Pryor that you had errands to run and asked her to drive your children to Neverland?

A. Me?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you tell Aja Pryor about your friendship with Marie Nicole?

A. Never.

Q. Ever tell Aja Pryor you liked the Cascio children?

A. No.

Q. Ever talk with Aja Pryor about Miko Brando?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who Miko Brando is?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is Miko Brando?

A. He would die for Michael. That's who he is.

Q. Who is Miko Brando, if you know?

A. I think --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. ZONEN: And relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I think I met him once. He had actually came to bring --

THE COURT: Just a minute. The question is, who is Miko Brando?

THE WITNESS: He's one of Michael's damage control, personnel assistant. He has a lot of titles.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know if he’s related to the late Marlon Brando?

A. This I became aware.

Q. Okay. What did you become aware of?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as speculative; lack of foundation; and relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you meet Miko Brando at Neverland?

A. Yes. Once.

Q. Approximately when was that?

A. When he came to deliver Mr. Jackson some things.

Q. Was it your understanding he was the son of Marlon Brando?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: At that time, no.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever have a discussion with --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

The objection is sustained. The answer is stricken. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever have a discussion with Miko Brando?

A. No.

Q. But you met him, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And was it your understanding that he worked at Neverland?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay. It was my understanding that he had multiple roles, multiple titles. One being damage control. Another one, positive PR. Another one personal assistant. He wore many hats.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember telling Aja Pryor that you had learned that Michael Jackson was not going on the Brazil trip?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever telling Aja Pryor that once you learned Michael Jackson was not going on the Brazil trip, you didn’t want to go?

A. No.

Q. And it’s your testimony you never discussed the Brazil trip at any time with Aja?

A. I’m -- like I said to different people in the midst of the conversation, I tried to slip something in as to what was happening.

Q. Do you recall complaining to Aja Pryor that Michael Jackson was making money on the Maury Povich show and your family was getting nothing?

A. Never.

Q. Do you recall commenting to Mrs. Pryor that a college fund was being set up for Gavin by Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember telling Aja Pryor, “What good will a college fund do for my son? He may not be alive in ten years”? Do you remember saying that?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember telling Aja Pryor that you had not signed releases for the rebuttal video?

A. He’s incorrect. No.

Q. Did you ever discuss the rebuttal video with Aja Pryor?

A. No.

Q. Ever complain to Aja Pryor that phone calls were being monitored at Neverland?

A. I informed her that the phone calls were being monitored. Like I said, I tried to make people aware of what really was happening in there.

Q. Did you make your lawyer, Michael Manning, aware at any time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Michael Manning never called the police, right?

A. That’s right.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained. The answer's stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ask Louise Palanker if you could meet her at a Von's?

A. I think I did. That's when I was in a period of -- a period -- in the Calabasas period.

Q. Did you ask Louise Palanker if you can meet her at her home?

A. I think I did. I was trying anything possible to leave the grasp of him and his people.

Q. Do you know when you first met Bill Dickerman, the attorney?

A. I think I met him approximately -- the best I can remember is the 25th, because it was the same day that I had that visit, and it was on the way to over there.

Q. Do you remember complaining to Aja Pryor that you were being kept away from Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever complain to her that the Germans were keeping you away from Michael Jackson?

A. No. What I was telling her was that they were keeping -- maybe you're taking that out of context; that I wasn't able to see my children anymore.

Q. Did you ever complain to anyone that the people around Michael Jackson were separating Mr. Jackson from you and your family?

A. No, no. They were separating me from my children. By the end, I had no control of my kids anymore. I had lost them.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Denied.

THE WITNESS: Your Honor? I'm sorry, but I have to go to the rest room.

THE COURT: All right.

THE WITNESS: I've been holding it here.

THE COURT: All right. Would you take her back there?

MR. MESEREAU: Can Mr. Jackson go as well?

THE COURT: We're not taking a break. Just to the witness.

Let's see, Mr. Mesereau, maybe someone from the District Attorney on the hard drives, if you'll approach the bench. Maybe we could discuss that for a moment.

MR. MESEREAU: If I could, Your Honor, Mr. Sanger would --

THE COURT: Yes. Whoever. That's fine.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: Are you ready?

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: Excuse me. Go ahead, Mr. Mesereau.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Ms. Arvizo, to this date, have you ever watched the Maury Povich rebuttal video?

A. No.

Q. Ever discussed it with anybody?

A. No.

Q. And did I hear you correctly that you said you had never actually watched the entire Bashir documentary?

A. That's correct. In Miami I wanted to see it. Now I don't want to see it.

Q. Did you ever discuss the Bashir documentary with anyone?

A. No.

Q. Now, you indicated that you saw Mr. Jackson licking your son's head on a plane, right?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. And you told the jury you at first did not believe what you were seeing, right?

A. Yes.

Q. After that flight, did you ever allow your children back to Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times?

A. Well, the whole entire time until we permanently left in March.

Q. If you can recall, how many times did you let your children go back to Neverland after you claim you saw your son’s head being licked?

A. The whole entire time until March.

Q. And how many times would that be, back and forth?

A. The best -- I can’t remember, but we’ve already walked through that.

Q. Do you think it was four times you let your children go back to Neverland?

A. They were there the whole entire time except for that time that Jesus had taken us out. Poor judgment on my part.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE WITNESS: I know now.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Strike the last sentence. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would it be safe to say you’re not sure how many times your kids returned to Neverland after the head-licking incident?

A. The only time my children were out -- out of their grasp was when Jesus had let -- taken me and my children to my mom’s house. But the rest of the time, they were -- even if they were outside, Michael’s people were still on my children.

So if you want to get very specific, my children only made it out of there once. Because all the other entire time, Michael’s people were on them.

Q. How many times did they go back and forth to Neverland after --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: He wasn’t allowed to finish his question.

Go ahead, Counsel.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did your children go back and forth to Neverland after the Jesus incident?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Except for that time with Jesus, the rest of the entire time, Michael’s people were on my children.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you first learn that Gavin claimed he'd been drinking alcohol at Neverland?

A. The day I never went back. That's the day. And it's burned in here.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Denied.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know what day that was?

A. Yes. I will never forget the date. It was March 10th. 4 a.m., to be exact.

Q. You had never had any indication that Gavin had ever touched alcohol before that day, correct?

A. This is correct. I know different now.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Strike the last sentence.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember telling the Santa Barbara sheriffs in an interview, "There's plenty of police out there that can protect my kids"?

A. He's --

MR. ZONEN: Vague as to time; objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you first tell anyone that there were threats to kill your family from people associated with Michael Jackson?

A. I think I -- I think the best I can remember -- the best I can remember -- let's see. The best I think I can remember is Mr. Dickerman.

Q. Was that in a meeting with Jamie Masada?

A. I don't remember that. I just remember being -- when I finally was able to say everything was with the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Offices -- officers.

Q. Do you know approximately what month that was?

A. I think -- the best I can remember, finally I think it was in July. I think. That's the best I can remember.

Q. And that was after you had met with Larry

Feldman, correct?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. It was actually long after you had first met with Attorney Larry Feldman, right?

A. My -- my meetings with Mr. Feldman, he couldn't make out -- we were basically all, you know, cuckoos after him. You know, it was all cuckoo. Our whole home environment was cuckoo. So he basically wanted to make heads and tails. He just basically wanted to help.

Q. And your discussion about anyone threatening to kill your family first occurred long after you met Attorney Larry Feldman, true?

A. I wanted to tell that to the sheriffs. I wanted to tell that to the police officers, let them be the first. I remember asking Mr. Dickerman that I wanted to share that information with the police.

Q. And in none of Mr. Dickerman's letters involving your family did he talk about threats to kill, correct?

A. Because I expressed to him that I wanted to tell the police, because that would have gave them the opportunity to see that I was trying to make contact with the police.

Q. Do you remember going shopping while you were staying at the Calabasas Inn?

A. Yes.

Q. And tell the jury where you went shopping.

A. I think it was -- I think it was an outlet store, and also a Robinson's-May. And this is what -- with their positive PR film crew following us.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained as to the last sentence.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: While you were shopping, you didn't ever complain to anyone you were being held against your will, true?

A. Incorrect. I called Wheezy.

Q. Did you call the police?

A. No.

Q. If you could call Wheezy, why couldn't you

call the police?
A. Because I couldn’t. I was hoping she would.
Q. Which phone did you use to call Wheezy?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. Was it a cell phone?
A. I had no cell phone at that time.
Q. Was it a phone in the hotel?
A. I don’t think so.
Q. Was it a phone at the shopping center?
A. I don’t remember.
Q. You didn’t dial 9-1-1, did you?
A. That’s correct. But I have now.
Q. After meeting with two attorneys, correct?
A. He’s incorrect.

Q. When you appeared for the Department of Children’s & Social Services interviews, did you believe you, yourself, were being investigated?
A. Can you be more clear?
Q. Sure. Sure. When you had the meeting with the Department of Children & Social Services representatives at Major Jackson’s home, did you believe you were being investigated?
A. Um --
Q. Yes or no, if you could, please.
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And did you believe you were being investigated because someone had made a complaint about the Bashir documentary?
A. All this I came to find out after the meeting. But before the meeting, I had no understanding whatsoever.
Q. So you didn’t know why you were there?
A. This is correct.
Q. Did you ever tell the sheriffs that you were there because somebody complained about the Bashir documentary called “Living with Michael Jackson” and wanted the mother investigated?
A. Yes, I came to find this after.
Q. Do you remember at the beginning of your interview with the Department of Children & Family Services you asked what your rights were?
A. Yes.

Q. And why did you do that?

A. Because that was Vicki Podberesky’s instructions.

Q. Vicki Podberesky was the lawyer that you had spoken to, right?

A. This is the attorney who put fear in me right before the video, and she claimed she was Michael Jackson’s attorney and Geragos’s attorney.

Q. The fear she put into you was you better handle it properly or you could lose your children, correct?

A. The fear that she put in me was that I could possibly have my children ripped away from me forever and probably won’t see them for a long time. That’s the fear she put in me.

Q. Did you tell her you had been investigated on other occasions by the Department of Children & Family Services?

A. No. Brad Miller, his P.I., dialed the phone number, gave me his cell phone, and there she was.

Q. And did you speak to her?

A. Yes, she spoke to me.

Q. Did she give you advice about how to handle a meeting with the Department of Children & Family Services, to your knowledge?

A. Because I declined - she wanted to be present - she had gave me information, and now I know why. They wanted all --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How long was your interview with the Department of Children & Family Services?

A. Well, let me see. Asaf arrived there. He tape-recorded the meeting illegally, and then maybe a total of -- maybe a total of about -- maybe about, total, about 35, 30, 40 minutes. Because the time frame of Asaf tape-recording the meeting was about 20 minutes.

Q. By the way, on one of your sheriff’s interviews, do you recall saying that there are no clocks or calendars at Neverland?

A. What I remember was that -- what I was trying to communicate, that in my bedroom, I had no -- no -- none of these things in my bedroom.

Q. You told them at Neverland there are no clocks, correct?

A. Yes. Because I was in the guesthouse. For the end part of the time, I wasn’t allowed to come out anymore.

Q. Are there no clocks at Neverland?

A. On the ground, yes, there is.

Q. Now, the people you claim were telling you that your family were going to be killed are Frank, Vinnie, Dieter, and Ron, right?

A. Right. Ronald and Dieter were replaced by Frank and Vinnie. But the initial meeting was with Michael. Michael told me. But what started it off was Michael.

Q. Telling you your family was going to be killed --

A. Yes.

Q. -- is that what you’re saying?

A. First it was Gavin, and then it went to my three children, in Miami.

Q. Do you recall ever telling a sheriff’s investigator that Miller told you that Mr. Jackson was buying you a house and an apartment?

A. I don’t remember saying that.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you a page of the transcript of your interview?

A. What I think he’s referring is totally different. He’s taking it maybe out of context. But, yeah, bring it on over.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: What page is that, Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: It’s nine of this interview. The interview is August 13th, 2003.

MR. ZONEN: Oh, thank you.

THE WITNESS: Yeah. This is what I had talked to you about already; that we had to leave the country.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that page?

A. I just looked at the highlighted words. I didn’t read anything.

Q. Does it refresh your recollection about what you told the sheriffs?

A. That’s because we had to leave the country.

Q. Did you tell the sheriffs that Brad Miller told you that they were buying you a house and an apartment?

A. What I was trying to point out to the police department was this is what they were trying to do in order for me to leave the country. And there’s no house and no apartment, because I don’t want to leave the country. And because they’re lies. What I was trying to point out is they were using different tactics.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Because they wanted me out of the country.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: I had sustained the objection.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you think you were getting a house from Michael Jackson?

A. No, I was pointing out to the police that they were trying to do everything possible to get access into my apartment, to go clean it up, to go remove all the letters and items that Michael had given Gavin. This is what I was trying to point out to the police. And second, that they wanted me and my children out of this country really bad.

Q. Did you tell the jury that the plan was for you to go to Brazil and never come back?

A. That’s -- that’s what their plan was ultimately. That they were going to decide -- depending if they did positive PR, cleaned all the mess for Michael, then they were going to decide at that point in time if I could return. “If.”

Q. Did you ever see any documents that said it was a two-week trip?

A. That don’t matter.

Q. Did you ever see any documents that said the trip to Brazil was a two-week trip?

A. Don’t -- and if you look at the documents, it’s not going to be within the time frame that I was supposed to leave. They choreograph everything.

Q. Did anyone ever mention to you in any form, verbal or in a document, that this was a planned two-week trip?

A. No, it wasn’t. I know that.

Q. Did you ever see a document that said that?

A. Never. But like I said, they choreograph everything.

Q. Okay. So when you told the sheriffs that Brad Miller said they were buying you a house and an apartment, you were not suggesting you wanted one, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Okay. Did you tell the Department of Social Services that your children were being sent to a private school?

A. No, I didn’t. Vinnie himself, straight from his mouth, told Karen Walker.

Q. That your kids were going to a private school?

A. Yes. This is another lie.

Q. Okay. Did you believe Vinnie when he said that?

A. No. That’s why I was behind Karen Walker saying, “No.” I was going like that.

Q. Is that when you didn’t tell Karen Walker you were held against your will?

A. This is correct.

Q. Now, you make some references in some of your sheriff’s interviews to speaking in code. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And what code were you speaking in?

A. This is what I’ve already explained to the jurors, is that in the midst of my conversations I’d try to slip something in, or I would say one word, say another sentence and say another word, hoping that when a person would sit or think, they’d say, “Wait a minute, that word doesn’t match this.” I was constantly trying to leave clues for people.

Q. Did you leave any clues for Major Jay Jackson when you stayed at his home?

A. Yes, I tried. I tried. Yes. When I finally left the nail shop, that’s when I finally told him everything. Because Asaf had pointed out that there was another tape-recording being -- and Frank and Vinnie told me they can hear everything, so I believed them. I believed them.

Q. So you believed Jay Jackson’s phones were being tapped?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you believe the phones at the salon were being tapped?

A. When I finally was able, I told him, “Come on over,” and then that was it. Permanently left Neverland forever, thank God.

Q. Did you believe the phones at the salon were being tapped?

A. No. That’s why -- I didn’t know what they could do. Because they said I was being constantly listened and monitored, so I went ahead and tried.

Q. Do you remember visiting a federal building to get a passport?

A. Yes.

Q. Who were you with?

A. Vinnie, the people that were following us.

Q. Do you remember walking into that federal building to get your passport?

A. Yes. Vinnie and the people that were following us, yes.

Q. Do you remember speaking to anyone in that federal building as you got your passports?

A. No. I just stood by Vinnie and the children, and that’s it.

Q. Did you see any federal employees or agents in that federal building?

A. Yes, and I wanted to reach for them so bad.

Q. Did you complain to any of them that you were being held against your will?

A. No, because at that point my parents' lives were at risk. And until I can see my parents and tell them what was the danger, I couldn't say a single thing. They had full control of me.

Q. Did you complain to anyone in that federal building that any crimes were being committed against you or your family?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever try to dial 9-1-1 to reach any police officer?

A. No. But I have now.

Q. Now, you're aware that in your family law proceeding, your ex-husband David claims that you sat down and scripted your children in the J.C. Penney case, correct?

A. Yes. Amongst many things David has said.

Q. Did you ever sit down and rehearse your children about what to say in depositions in the J.C. Penney case?

A. He's giving me too much credit. No.

Q. To your knowledge, did your children always tell the truth when they testified under oath in the J.C. Penney case?

A. Except for the part about David.

Q. What about the part about your injuries? Did they tell the truth, to your knowledge?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, that was when -- that was a situation where Gavin was caught running out of the store with something that wasn't paid for, correct?

A. This is what I came to understand, because I wasn't present when that happened.

Q. And you told the police that Gavin was just trying to trick his father into paying for those goods, right?

A. No, I did not tell them that.

Q. What did you tell them the reason Gavin did that was?

A. At that point, when I talked to the police, I had -- I wasn't aware of what happened.

Q. Did you ever learn that that was the reason why Gavin left the store with unpurchased goods?

A. Yes, I came to find out afterwards. The police told me themself.

Q. Now, did you ever learn about an incident with George Lopez where there was a claim that money had been taken from Gavin's wallet?

A. I came to find out afterwards by Jamie.

Q. And did you talk to George ever about that event?

A. No.

Q. Ever talk to his wife about that event?

A. No.

Q. Ever talk to David about that event?

A. No.

Q. Ever talk to Gavin about that event?

A. No.

Q. Now, you told the sheriffs that Mr. Jackson's people had done background investigations on Jay Jackson. Do you remember saying that?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you know that anyone associated with Mr. Jackson had done a background investigation on Jay Jackson?

A. His dear damage control people and Frank told me that.

Q. They told you they had checked out who Jay Jackson was?

A. Yes, Frank told me that.

Q. Okay. So you were aware that Mr. Geragos's employees were doing investigations into who you were and Jay Jackson --

A. No, you're incorrect.

Q. -- was, correct?

A. Frank had told me that they had done all this information so they can choreograph their story. That's why.

Q. In that recorded phone conversation you had with Frank which we played on Friday, you never mention anything about killers, do you?

A. I'm sure I did. And since he had control of that, illegally taping, I'm sure they either erased it, manipulated it or took it off. But if it was left to me, I would have left it on there. But it didn't benefit him to leave it on there.

Q. You never mention killers in that recorded phone conversation, do you?

A. I'm sure I did. But Frank had control of the tape.

Q. Okay. Do you recall a blood drive at Neverland for Gavin?

A. Yes, I was the one responsible for that. Anywhere where I can gather 50 people or more, Kaiser was willing to go and take their own bloodmobile, because it benefitted not just Gavin, many, many children and hospital patients. So I was continuously asking for anybody that can gather more than 50 people, that Kaiser themself would go over there.

Q. And Mr. Jackson allowed you to use his property for a blood drive, correct?

A. All his employees gave blood. All of his employees that wanted to could donate blood. Not just to Gavin, but to many people, because they were trying to find O negative, C and B negative blood for Gavin.

Q. And to your knowledge, Mr. Jackson allowed you to do this blood drive on his property, correct?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And approximately when was this blood drive?

A. Oh, when Gavin was ill in 2000.

Q. Okay.

A. But, you know, he wasn't the only one. There was many church groups. Many, many people that had gathered. And the bloodmobile would go out to those particular places.

Q. At one point you told the sheriffs that you didn't think Michael was really involved in that, right?

A. Yes, and I've also communicated to you. In the beginning, I thought it was only the Germans, but now I know different per their hard work, investigative working, that it was different.

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as nonresponsive and also object to the question as vague. Involved with what?

MR. MESEREAU: I can rephrase it, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well, now the time to object to the question is long gone, but I'll sustain the objection to the last part of the answer.

Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you work with someone named Grace at the blood drive for Gavin?

A. No, I didn't work there. All I had done was ask Grace if she could ask permission, because like, remember, that's another indicator that I didn't talk to Michael himself.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember complaining to the sheriffs in an interview about Michael Jackson, "Here's a man that has so much wealth, and yet did not even hire my children a single tutor when they're supposed to be in school."

Do you remember complaining about that?

A. I didn't complain to him. I was trying to point out to the police that these were the things that now I'm aware of that he really didn't care about children. He just cared about what he was doing with the children.

Q. Do you remember saying that to the sheriffs?

A. Like I said, I gave him information.

Everything possible that I could possibly do to let them know that the children -- all this time had passed, and they were not educated.

Q. Now, how much time are we talking about where you think Michael Jackson should have hired a tutor for your kids?

A. No, I don't think he should have tutored -- hired a tutor. I think -- I think he should have just let me and my kids go.

Q. When you said to the sheriffs, “Here’s a man who has so much wealth, and yet did not even hire my children a single tutor when they’re supposed to be in school,” what were you referring to?
A. That he’s managed to fool the world, and I was one woman inside there. That’s what I was communicating; that what he puts out in the world is not who he really is. Now, because of this criminal case proceedings, now people know who he really is.
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.
THE COURT: Denied.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you done any investigation into Michael Jackson’s actions around the world for children?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.
THE COURT: It’s not argumentative, but it’s not material.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
THE COURT: We’ll take our morning recess.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: All right. Mr. Mesereau, you may proceed.

THE BAILIFF: Turn your microphone on, please.
MR. MESEREAU: Oh, I’m sorry.
Q. Miss Arvizo, when the prosecutor was asking you questions about the Brazil trip, he showed you an itinerary, which is in evidence. Do you remember that?
A. Yes.
Q. It’s a typed itinerary giving departure and arrival times, correct?
A. This is correct.
Q. And he showed it to you. Do you remember that?
A. Yes.
Q. And you identified it as something you were aware of, right?
A. I came to find out after.

Q. Well, the itinerary says you’re leaving Los Angeles for Sao Paulo, Brazil, on March 1st, 2003, right?

A. Okay.

Q. It says you’re returning from Sao Paulo, Brazil, to Miami on March 6th, 2003, correct?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And it says you’re leaving Miami for Los Angeles on March 7th, 2003, correct?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. That was the itinerary you were shown about the trip, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you ever see any plane tickets that were actually purchased for the trip?

A. No. Just like my visa and passports.

Q. And you never discussed that trip with anyone other than who, Frank and Vinnie?

A. This is correct. Frank, Vinnie, and the initial meeting, in that 45-minute meeting where Michael said if things got so bad we would have to leave the country.

Q. And you never told Jay Jackson about the Brazil trip?

A. I didn’t tell Jay anything until when I permanently left Neverland. That’s when I told Jay.

Q. Okay. Did you tell Jay Jackson you had gotten passports?

A. I told Jay everything after we came out of -- permanently out of Neverland.

Q. Did you tell Jay Jackson you’d gotten a visa?

A. I told Jay everything after we had left permanently out of Neverland. That’s the best I can remember.

Q. Now, at some point, you must have met with, it appears to be Vinnie, and filled out some of those documents, correct?

A. Vinnie never left our side the majority of the time.

Q. Excuse me?

A. The majority of the time, Vinnie never left our side.

Q. And did you sit down with him and fill out the documents so you could apply for a visa?

A. No.

Q. Do you know where he got the information that went onto those forms?

A. They had already studied me. They already had acquired all the information they wanted, needed.

Q. Did you ever sign any forms; do you know?

A. Yes, I did. Yes, I signed them.

Q. And where did you sign those forms?

A. I think -- the best I can remember, I think actually there at the facility.

Q. Which facility is this?

A. Where they were doing the -- where they were doing the -- processing it.

Q. Is that a federal facility, to your knowledge?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Did you sit down and do -- work that out with Vinnie? Is that how it worked?

A. It was already filled out by Vinnie.

Q. And did you and your children sit down with 6666 him and sign anything, to your knowledge?

A. No, we didn't sit down.

Q. Okay. But you -- what I think you're saying, and correct me if I'm wrong, you completed those documents at the federal facility, right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Is that incorrect?

A. That's incorrect.

Q. All right. Where did you just tell the jury you sat down to finish those forms?

A. Never sat down. Vinnie had already all that information pre filled out. All I did was sign it. And that's the best I can remember.

Q. Okay. And then you took a trip to the -- was it a consulate you went to?

A. No.

Q. What buildings did you go to to get your passport, visa, and all the documents you needed to take this trip to Brazil?

A. Everything was done in steps. First it was the birth certificate. Then the passport. And then the visa.

Q. Do you know how many buildings you went to to get all this done?

A. Three different buildings.

Q. And which -- identify those buildings, if you can remember.

A. The birth certificate, the passport and the visa place.

Q. And was it always you, Vinnie and your children?

A. Yes, plus the people that were following us. They never left our side.

Q. Did these people that you have not identified who were following you ever enter the buildings?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. So they were just mixing in with the crowds in the buildings?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that what prevented you from ever telling any officer or employee, “Help us, we’re being kidnapped”?

A. Mostly because my parents’ life were now in danger.

Q. Now, you told the sheriffs at one point you thought your family might disappear in a hot air balloon from Neverland, correct?

A. He’s taking it out of context. I had informed the police that -- that Frank and Vinnie had expressed to me that they had many ways to -- and also Ronald and Dieter, remember, and Ronald and Dieter were replaced by Frank and Vinnie, and that they had many various ways to make my children disappear. And I was expressing it, but he’s minimizing it.

Q. Did you tell the sheriffs that you thought your family might disappear in a hot air balloon from Neverland?

A. Again, he's minimizing it. I told him what I told the police what Ronald and Dieter, Frank and Vinnie had said; that they had various ways to make -- transporting my children and making them disappear. And what was most terrifying is when it was towards the end, now they had the passport, plus visa.

Q. Did you ever mention a disappearance in a hot air balloon? Yes or no.

A. I made them aware that they had a variety of ways of getting my children out and that was one of them. This isn't me. This is what your Frank and Vinnie said, plus your Ronald and Dieter. So I'm just communicating to the police what I was told.

Q. And some of them -- somebody mentioned to you disappearance in a hot air balloon, right?

A. This is one of a variety of ways.

Q. Okay. Now, you said you went to the child support hearing, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Your lawyer, Michael Manning, was there, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And the night before, you stayed at Major Jackson's, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. And the night after the hearing you stayed at Major Jackson's, correct?

A. The night of the hearing, yes.

Q. And you never complained to anyone at the courthouse about these problems you've identified, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And I think you told the jury, correct me if I'm wrong, that you never told Jay Jackson about these problems either the night before the support hearing or the night after it, right?

A. The night of March 10th.

Q. Is that correct?

A. This is correct. I told him that night everything.

Q. You told him the night of the hearing?

A. The March 10th, which was the day before the hearing.

Q. Okay.

THE COURT: You know, Counsel, I'm going to ask you to refrain from saying, "You told the jury. You told the jury." Everything that she says here she told the jury.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

THE COURT: It's just an improper reference on your behalf. You ask her for the facts, and they'll listen to it.

MR. MESEREAU: I will do that, Your Honor.

Q. You appeared at a hearing in this courthouse on September 17th, 2004. Do you remember that?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And at that point in time, you were represented by Attorney Larry Feldman, true?

A. No.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the transcript?

A. I think what I'm clear on, he was helping us every time something was happening.

Q. I asked you, "You are represented currently by Mr. Feldman, correct?" And you said, "Yes," right?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Now, when you first hired Attorney Dickerman, one of the things you wanted him to do was stop any use of your children's likeness or photos in any media-type event, correct?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. And did you say earlier that you were involved in a proceeding in England against Bashir that you didn't know about?

A. This is correct. Mr. Dickerman came to find out afterwards.

MR. ZONEN: I'll object as nonresponsive beyond, "This is correct."

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you saying that you were a party to a lawsuit in England that you knew nothing about?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Speculative; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: This is correct.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And when did you find out that you were represented by a lawyer in England in a lawsuit against Bashir and his company?

A. That Michael was involved in.

Q. I'm sorry, excuse me?

A. That Michael was involved in. I came to find out this.

THE COURT: The question was when. When did you find out?

THE WITNESS: Oh. Summer. In about the summer.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And what summer was that?

A. 2003.

Q. Okay. And did you come to learn that some statements had been attributed to you in some British newspapers about the Bashir documentary?

A. Yes, I came -- I came to find out a lot of things through this investigation, what they were doing.

Q. Did you ever see a document that was titled "Recommended Statement by Janet Ventura to the UK Sunday Telegraph"?

A. I don't know what you're talking about. But I know that Ronald and Dieter were heavy at work.

Q. Okay. Do you know if they were preparing any statement to be released quoting you?

A. I came to find out that Ronald and Dieter were using my children, like Michael was using my children. Everybody was exploiting and using my children. Now I've came to find out many things.

Q. Okay. And let me rephrase the question. Did you ever find out that anybody had prepared a statement attributed to you to be released to a British newspaper?

A. I gave no authority, no interviews, no nothing.
THE COURT: Just a minute. He’s asked you --
THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE COURT: -- two or three times if you know about a statement. That’s the only question he’s asked you. Do you or not?
THE WITNESS: No.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you have any communication during the first three months of 2003 with an attorney named David LeGrand?
A. No, I didn’t.
Q. Okay. Did you ever even hear his name during that period?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. And when did you first learn about an attorney named David LeGrand?
A. Okay. Michael had called over the 60 Minutes, Ed Bradley. This was all part of the choreography. And Dieter pointed this out, and Ronald over the telephone, that this interview was never going to take place. It was just per Michael’s choreography. And that Ed Bradley was a dishonest man and they were using him for their choreography.
And David LeGrand’s purpose -- Michael’s attorney was there as part of their choreography, to let them know that this interview was not going to take place. He was used. That’s what happened.
Q. Did you -- I’m sorry, go ahead.
A. No, it’s okay.
Q. Did you ever tell anyone to include the following words in a recommended statement by you to the Sunday Telegraph newspaper in England --
A. No.
Q. -- “The relationship that Michael has with Gavin, Star and Davellin is a beautiful, loving father, son and daughter. He is their Daddy Michael. And to me and my children, he is our family. He cares for them as a good, loving father.

Michael is their only father figure who loves and cares about them. They are not fatherless, because they have their Daddy Michael. My family consists of unconditional love."

Did you ever tell anyone to use those words?

MR. ZONEN: May I see the document, please, Your Honor?

MR. MESEREAU: Sure.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever give words to that effect to anyone to be used in a statement by you?

A. I think I'm recalling something. Remember how they put those two -- that page that had, like, two signatures on there? And I told you that one of my -- them, one of them was my signature, but it had been moved, I can tell, because of where it was.

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as nonresponsive to the question of whether or not she used those words.

THE COURT: I'll sustain that objection. But I'm going to ask counsel to simplify the question a little bit. It's a little cumbersome the way it stands.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: Here it is. There it is. Uh-huh.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that document?

A. Yes. Yes, I have.

Q. Have you had a chance to read those words?

A. This is where they took my signature from.

Q. Okay. Have you had a chance to look at it?

THE COURT: Just a minute. Just look at the words that counsel wants you to look at.
Would you show her which paragraph you're --

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Yes. Yes, yes.

THE COURT: You're showing her two paragraphs?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. I am. Well, I'm showing her --

THE COURT: Which one are you going to ask her the question about?

MR. MESEREAU: I'm showing her one sentence in one paragraph and a -- well, it's really one, but there's some handwritten stuff that I'm asking her to look at.

THE COURT: Well, you need to address with her what you're trying to show her so that she can answer any questions.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, could we mark this item as an exhibit?

THE COURT: No. He was refreshing her memory with it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ms. Arvizo, I'm just asking you if you know where the following words came from.

A. Yes, from Dieter.

Q. Okay.

A. Dieter had -- they added that second paragraph right now. But all it was was --

THE COURT: Just a minute. There's no question pending.

THE WITNESS: Oh, okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay? Do you remember the words I read?

A. No, you didn't read any.

Q. Okay. Let me just read them and see if you know where those words came from.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay? "The relationship that Michael has with Gavin, Star and Davellin is a beautiful, loving father, son and daughter. He is their Daddy Michael. And to me and my children, he is our family. He cares for them as a good, loving father. Michael is their only father figure, who loves and cares about them. They are not fatherless, because they have their Daddy Michael. My family consists of unconditional love."

Have you heard those words before?
A. Yes. This is when -- when Mr. Zonen was doing his -- when he was speaking with me, I had told you that my signature had been moved, because Dieter had a pre -- preprinted paragraph, and then in my -- in my own writing, he had me write something. So, yes, that is right before we left Miami.

Q. Well, if you knew about this, did you know about the lawsuit?
A. No.
Q. So you did know about a statement that was supposed to be attributed to you to appear in a British newspaper, right?
A. No. No, no, no.
Q. Do you know whose writing that is that I just showed you?
A. This is my writing that I've already told the jurors.
Q. So you wrote those words, correct?
A. Yes, per Dieter's dictation.
Q. You wrote those words on a statement to be released Friday, February 7th, 2003, correct?
A. No. It wasn't a statement that was going to be released. What Ronald had done -- Dieter had told me that what Ronald had done did not work to appease the killers. And there's that phrase, and that's a quote.
Q. And there's a heart that's written in between the printing, and that's a heart that you wrote, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And then you see "XOXOXO," meaning "Love," right?
A. Yes. That's --
Q. And that's your writing, correct?
A. Yeah. That's correct. I used to be that kind of person. Now I'm like this (indicating) hold up. I'm putting one hand over my heart.

Q. And your writing is inserted into a printed statement, right?

A. Yes. They have -- by the way, he’s shown me the paper. That bottom paragraph was not there.

Q. Are you saying that you wrote these words and put a heart and put “XOXOXO” in Florida?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. And does the date February 7th, 2003, sound right to you?

A. It must be right.

Q. Okay. And the printed portion of the statement says, “I am appalled at the way in which my son has been exploited by Martin Bashir and Granada Television,” correct?

A. That’s what Dieter had written.

Q. And that’s the way you felt, right?

A. No. They had told me that this would -- what Ronald had did does not work and this would appease the killers. So I was fooled.

Q. Well, are you saying you didn’t know this was to be released in England?

A. Exactly.

Q. And you’re saying you didn’t know that there was going to be a lawsuit in England in which you, your children, and Mr. Jackson were going to sue Bashir and Granada Television?

A. This is correct. Money doesn’t buy happiness. That’s why when I found out through Mr. Dickerman --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE WITNESS: -- I put a stop to it.

THE COURT: Sustained. There’s no question pending.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever see an article that appeared in a British newspaper the next day, February 8th, 2003, that quoted you?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever talk to anyone who claimed to represent a British newspaper at any time?

A. I think -- I think when those two people that had came before we left to Miami that had scared my parents, and they kept saying, “Gavin, cancer; Gavin, cancer.”

Q. Ms. Arvizo -- oh, sorry.

Miss Arvizo, did you ever tell anyone that you were living in a stable with hay and horses in Bakersfield?

A. No.

Q. Ever say anything to that effect to anyone?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear or learn that you were quoted as saying that?

A. Yeah. I came to find out a lot of things.

Q. When did you find out that you were quoted as saying that you and your family were so poor you were living in a stable with hay in Bakersfield?

A. Just recently. I’ve never lived in Bakersfield.

Q. Did you ever learn that Jamie Masada had quoted you as saying that?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as lack of foundation and assumes facts not in evidence that Jamie Masada said she lived in Bakersfield.

THE COURT: Sustained; foundation.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, the document that you just admitted adding language to, was that presented to you at the hotel in Florida?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And you read that before you inserted all these words?

A. No, I didn’t. I completely trusted them.

Q. Did you know it was supposed to be a recommended statement by you?

A. What?

Q. Did you know the document you were inserting words into was titled “A Recommended Statement” by you?

A. No. I didn’t read it. I completely trusted them.

Q. Well, why would you add language to an already existing paragraph if you didn’t know what was in the paragraph?

A. Because Dieter dictated that. Everything was -- at that point was like a state of panic. That’s how Ronald and Dieter were behaving.
Q. So you just filled out what you were told to fill out and never read a thing, correct?
A. Yes, I completely trusted them. I did.
Q. Let me get back to what you told the social workers on the 20th, okay? You told them, “My children are never solely alone with Michael Jackson,” true?
A. Incorrect.
Q. You didn’t tell that to them?
A. That’s correct.
Q. Okay.
A. And let me remind you --
MR. ZONEN: Objection; no question pending.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You told the social workers, Mrs. Arvizo, “There’s always someone around,” right?
A. Incorrect.
Q. You told them, “When we go to Neverland, we are always around people,” right?

A. Incorrect.
Q. You said, “Sometimes I stay in the visitors’ quarters, but mostly I am in the main house,” right?
A. Incorrect.
Q. You said, “Gavin, Star and Davellin have all been in Michael’s room,” right?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. You said, “Yes, Gavin and Star have been with Michael on his bed watching T.V.,” right?
A. Incorrect.
Q. You told the social workers, “As to the allegations that they share a bed, it is no”?
A. What?
Q. Did you tell that to the social workers?
A. Repeat that, please.
Q. The words are, “As to the allegations that they share a bed, it is no.”
A. Incorrect. These social workers, all they were interested was not being sued by Michael

Jackson.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: They didn't have --

THE COURT: Just a minute. There's no question pending.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In that interview with the social workers, you said, "There are always children in Michael's room," right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You told the social workers, "On or about September 15th, 2002, the day in question, Gavin and Star were in Michael's room watching T.V. and they made s'mores in a fireplace in Michael's room"?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Never said anything like that to the social workers?

A. No, no. They didn't even have no pad or pen with them when they were sitting at the kitchen table.

Q. You told the Los Angeles social workers, all three of them, that, "Michael slept on the floor with blankets and a sleeping bag while Gavin and Star slept in the bed," right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You told the social workers, "I'm usually up walking around the house all night long," right?

A. No.

Q. You told the social workers, "The room is open and there are no doors to shut," correct?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You told the social workers, "It makes me sick that someone would accuse Michael of doing harm to my son and other children when he has never been anything but wonderful." You said that, didn't you?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You told the social workers, "He has been like a father to them," right?

A. Yes.

Q. Told the social workers, “My children have never felt uncomfortable in his presence,” right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You told the social workers, “Michael has been a blessing,” right?

A. Huh-uh.

Q. You told the social workers, “I was not aware that the taping with Mr. Bashir would be aired”?

A. That I did.

Q. You told them, “We did not sign any consent to have my children on this interview,” right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You further told them, “When my children would go to visit Neverland, there was always somebody present,” right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You told them, “On several occasions, Michael’s friend, Chris Tucker, and his family were there,” right?

A. I informed them that my children had been there, had had that visit that I’ve already expressed to you over and over.

Q. You told the social workers, “In September of 2002, Chris Tucker accompanied Gavin, Star and Davellin in Neverland Ranch,” right?

A. That’s the birthday party that I was talking to you about.

Q. You told them, “Our last visit to Neverland together was on February 19th, 2003”; is that right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You said, “The children are welcome there any time,” right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You said, “I do not always go to Neverland with the children,” right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You told them, “Michael is like a father to my children,” right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said, “He’s like family,” correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said, “He gives advice to my children, and that is something they never had with their father,” right?

A. That is correct, because of the initial meeting.

Q. You said, “He loves them and I trust them with him,” right?

A. Yes. What a fool I was.

Q. You said, “Michael is so kind and I feel that he is misunderstood,” right?

A. “So kind,” but I didn’t say “misunderstood.”

Q. You further said, “Michael was an important part of Gavin’s recovery from cancer,” right?

A. Incorrect.

Q. You said, “Gavin met Jamie Masada at The Laugh Factory about three years ago and made a wish to meet Michael Jackson,” true?

A. No. I said Gavin had spoke to Jamie and said he was one of three people that he wanted to meet.

Q. Did you tell them you felt that the paternal grandparents had deserted your children?

A. Does that mean like David’s family? I’m asking you if that’s what it means. Unless you want to clear -- can you make it clearer, please?

Q. All I can ask you is, did you say, “Mother feels that the paternal grandparents have deserted the children”?

A. Oh.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as vague.

THE COURT: She’s asked for a definition of “paternal.”

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: She didn’t use the word. It’s not suggested she used the word. That’s a conclusion of one of the social workers. So would you help her?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, I will, Your Honor.

Q. Yes, I think the way you’ve defined it would be correct.

A. Yes. Yes. David’s family didn’t want nothing to do with my kids.

Q. Do you remember telling those social workers the media has been taking everything out of context and you’re appalled at the negative attention your children have been receiving?

A. No. What I told her is that -- told them that I didn’t understand what was happening.

Q. Did you tell them that you’ve been having a difficult time personally and financially?

A. No.

Q. You told them about your prior involvement with the DCFS, right?

A. Oh, yes. Yes, I did.

Q. Your children were interviewed on that day, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you there when they were interviewed?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And just in summary, you heard them say glowing things about Michael Jackson, right?

A. Yes, they did. Yes.

Q. And at some point, you learned that this investigation was closed, right?

A. Yes, I came to find out.

Q. Approximately when did you find out the investigation was closed?

A. Well, when Jay and me paged Karen Walker after the Family Court day and we asked her for help. And she said, “It’s out of my hands. It’s out of my hands. We’ve already done the report. Go get legal help. I can’t help you.”

When I told her that my son had been given alcohol, that we were being held, that they were taped, gave her all this information, and she said, “It’s out of my hands,” that’s when I found out the report was done.

Q. And approximately what date was that?

A. That was the 11th, March 11th.

Q. And did you call her?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Did you file a report?

A. Well, I spoke to the supervisor. She was the supervisor, Karen Walker.

Q. Were you being represented by Attorney William Dickerman at that point?

A. No.

Q. When did you first start being represented by Attorney William Dickerman?

A. After she didn't help me.

Q. He didn't write to the DCFS at any time, did he?

A. No, he didn't. But Mr. Feldman did.

Q. And that was, what, months later? To your knowledge.

A. I can't....

Q. Okay. Did you ever read any of the letters Attorney Dickerman was sending to Attorney Mark Geragos?

A. Yes, some of them I did.

Q. And did you assist Mr. Dickerman in preparing those letters?

A. I didn't assist him. I told him what was happening. He wrote them himself.

Q. And was it your belief that Mr. Dickerman was writing Mr. Geragos to complain about injustices that had been done to you and your family?

A. What Mr. Dickerman was doing was giving us help, as retrieving our visa, our passports, everything that belonged to us. Where is my storage? Where is my items? Things that belonged to me. Requesting that my children's clothing be returned.

Because when Frank rummaged through the children's clothing, he took all the new clothing that they had purchased. But when they were doing that, they also took my children's own clothing and kept all of Gavin's clothing. And Frank said that if they wanted them, they needed to come back to Neverland.

Just different things like that. And for your people to stop following us, and to make you aware that we wanted nothing to do with you anymore.

Q. In none of his letters did he ever mention anything about alcohol or child molestation, true?

A. Because that was information for these guys right here, for the police.

Q. How many months later?

A. Because I didn't want Geragos to know that we were headed towards -- straight to the police.

Q. Do you know when you first met with Dickerman?

A. I believe -- I think it was the 25th of February.

Q. Pardon me?

A. I believe I met him, but he was not my attorney, February 25th. Just met him for minutes. Minutes. That's it.

Q. How many meetings did you have with Mr. Dickerman?

A. Prior to leaving out of Neverland, once.

Q. How about after you left Neverland?

A. After I left Neverland? Well, all these -- in order to -- I think -- the best I can believe, I think it was two. It was two. That's the best I can remember.

Q. How long did Mr. Dickerman represent you?

A. Well, until Mr. Feldman and Mr. Dickerman kicked me to the curb because I didn't want to tell them all the information that I was telling the police. Because the police told me not to tell them because that would compromise the investigation. And so I didn't tell them nothing. Mr. Feldman was clueless, and so was Mr. Dickerman.

Q. But you weren't speaking to the police until long after you met Larry Feldman, true?

A. Yes, because I wanted to ensure that these people weren't following us anymore.

Q. You didn't go to the police until months after you first started meeting with Attorney Larry Feldman?

A. This is correct. I wanted to just hopefully -- maybe we could have the ability to just -- maybe it would disappear. But the more things were happening, the more I was becoming aware.

Q. So you had gone to at least two lawyers about your alleged problems with Mr. Jackson for months before you ever spoke to anyone with the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department, right, Ms. Arvizo?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And the first report of any allegation of child molestation to the sheriffs came from Mr. Feldman, did it not?

A. Let me see. Well, actually -- actually, Mr. -- my husband, Jay Jackson, tried to reach the police. And then when me and -- me and Jay both contacted the supervisor, Karen Walker, then -- and she said to go get legal help. And also, as things are moving in dates, I’m starting to find out more and more. Now I know why he had a criminal defense attorney, but I didn’t know because there was no investigation underway.

Q. There had been an investigation since February that was publicly announced by Santa Barbara, right?

A. Well, I wasn’t aware of that.

Q. You’re claiming that in the middle of all of these efforts to falsely imprison your family, restrain your family, get you to Brazil, deal with the media, all of a sudden child molestation starts, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative and compound.

THE COURT: Sustained on compound.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember meeting with someone named “Bowen” from the DCFS?

A. No. Is she the one, or he, that leaked all the information from the DCFS to everybody?

Q. You remember meeting with three women from the DCFS on the 20th, right?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And there was Karen Walker, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there -- Irene Peters one of the ladies?
A. That sounds familiar.
Q. How about Jacqueline Bowen?
A. I don't -- I don't remember the -- all I remember is Miss Karen Walker, Jackie and someone named Yvonne. So I don't know.
Q. And you complained to Miss Peters about the Bashir documentary, right?
A. No, I didn't. I told them that there was no consent. That's all.
Q. And you were upset about that, right?
A. No, I said there was no consent.
Q. Do you remember complaining that you could not get any assistance from Michael Jackson regarding tutoring or home schooling because of all the media attention?
A. No. That's incorrect.
Q. Do you remember saying you were having a difficult time schooling your kids because of the media attention?
A. That's incorrect. Because I reenrolled my children back into that school the second we finally got to leave Neverland permanently.
Q. Do you remember telling Miss Bowen you were having a hard time contacting Michael Jackson in regards to helping with the tutoring due to the problems the children were having at school?
A. That's incorrect.

Q. You never said that to Ms. Bowen of the DCFS?
A. No, the meeting was so small with them, that I remember all they were interested was not being sued by Michael Jackson.
Q. And how long was that meeting, if you remember?
A. Okay. Well, let me see. Here we go. Twenty minutes -- about 20 minutes of Asaf taping it. So about maybe after that, maybe about ten minutes sitting with them. 10, 15 minutes. 15 minutes would be generous. So about a total of -- altogether maybe 30, 35 minutes, 40 minutes. 40 minutes would be a stretch. That would be making it generous.

They came in there for one thing only. You know, one thing: Not to be sued by Michael Jackson.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as nonresponsive.

THE COURT: The last two sentences are stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember asking Karen Walker if she could talk to Michael’s people to see if they could provide schooling for your kids?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember asking Miss Walker if she would write a letter on your behalf so your kids could get schooling?

A. No.

Q. And do you remember telling Ms. Walker you’re not going to take a trip to Brazil?

A. Do I?

Q. Yes.

A. I made no mention to them of leaving the country. I made her aware afterwards, when Jay and I paged her, what they were trying to do.

Q. Now, at some point, did you sign any documents which suggested your children should be taken out of their school?

A. I -- not suggested. It was. I didn’t sign the one for Davellin, which they had done before they had taken the children out. The one for the boys I did sign, because that was afterwards.

Q. And the document you signed was designed to give your permission to take your sons out of school, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. And what school did you think they were leaving?

A. I didn’t know. I just did what they said. That’s it. At that point, the end point, I was doing what they were saying. That’s it.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive to the question.

THE COURT: I’ll strike after, “I didn’t know.”

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: During the point in time when you signed that document authorizing your sons to be taken out of school, did you talk to anyone at the school?

A. At that time, no. I wasn’t even present.

Q. But clearly you knew your children were going to be leaving their school, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And what school did you believe Gavin was leaving?

A. They were going to be nowhere. We were headed out -- out of the country. This was for their purpose of no one being able to trace my children nor me. We were headed out.

Q. What school did you believe Gavin was leaving when you signed that document?

A. Well, if it was up to them, they were going to be in no school.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I don’t believe the witness understands the question.

MR. MESEREAU: I can try to rephrase it, Your Honor, if it’s unclear.

THE COURT: We’ll just have the court reporter read it back. She hasn’t said she doesn’t understand.

Read it back.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Zero.

MR. ZONEN: I don’t believe the witness understands the question.

THE WITNESS: I don’t understand.

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll try to rephrase it.

Q. You signed a document --

A. Yes.

Q. -- authorizing the school to release Gavin as a student, right?

A. Gavin and Star. The boys.

Q. Which school were you talking about?

A. That they were attending?

Q. Yes.

A. They were attending John Burroughs.

Q. And you knew that a document was prepared to allow Davellin to leave school, right?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that Davellin was going to leave school?

A. No. Davellin, I had no knowledge of.

Q. So you thought you were going to Brazil, but you only thought Gavin and Star were leaving school?

A. No, no. I signed that paper because they had me sign it.

Q. To your knowledge, did Gavin and Star actually leave that school?

A. Well, they were checked out by Vinnie. I wasn't there. When I finally got permanently out of Neverland, I reenrolled them immediately into the same school.

Q. Well, when you got out of Neverland at that point, you knew you were not going to be involved with Mr. Jackson ever again, correct?

A. He gave my son alcohol. Please.

Q. Did you know that?

A. He gave my son alcohol. That was enough for me. But as time progressed, I found out more and more and more. So no way, no way.

Q. Well, as time went on, the story just kept getting bigger and bigger, didn't it?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Argumentative; asked and answered.

THE COURT: It's argumentative. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know that Major Jay Jackson had asked for monetary compensation for your family from Frank?

A. No.

Q. Did you know that Jay Jackson had said words to the effect, "You guys are making millions. And this family should get their proper piece of the action"?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; misstatement of the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay. I’ve come to find out now. But, no, I didn’t then.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: So at that point in time, you never discussed with Major Jay Jackson your family’s right to have any compensation if they appeared in a rebuttal video?

A. This is correct. There was a new relationship with Jay.

Q. And based on the fact that you now are aware of this, do you believe he kept you silent on that issue?

A. I don’t understand your question.

Q. You’re saying that Jay Jackson never told you that he approached Frank and said, “How much is the family going to get?”

A. I’m aware now, because of the investigations, but I didn’t know then. And that’s it.

Q. Did you know at any time that Major Jackson was discussing the possibility of selling a story to a British tabloid?

A. I think you’re saying it incorrect. I barely found out as I’ve been up here.
But the way he’s saying it isn’t the way it’s been said to me by the D.A.’s Office.

Q. Did you know at any time that Major Jackson was in discussions with representatives of a British tabloid about the possibility of selling a story?

A. No.

Q. He never discussed that with you at any time?

A. No. Not at all. Till this day he still hasn’t.

Q. Did you ever have a discussion with Frank about your getting any home in the Hollywood Hills?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever have a discussion with Frank about the possibility of a college education for

Gavin being paid for by Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Now, you believe your signature was forged on some documents making you a party to a lawsuit in Britain, right?

A. My signature, per their investigation, is accurate. I signed a blank piece of paper in Miami that Ronald had presented to me. But that signature is mine.

Q. Did you ever receive any communications from any lawyer regarding the lawsuit in England?

A. After we were permanently out, Mr. Dickerman communicated to me that this was going on. And they even offered me money to stay in it, and I said no.

Q. When you left the apartment on Soto Street, did you personally sign any documents that say you're going to leave?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever sign any documents involving rent that was owed or not owed?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Did you ever talk to the landlord and say you were leaving?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And was that Yolanda?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. And I -- this is another person that I tried to slip something in --

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE WITNESS: -- leaving -- that I told her I was leaving the country.

THE COURT: Just a moment. Just a moment, please.

Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was that Yolanda Lazalde?

A. Yes. That's where I slipped in "I'm leaving the country." This is another one of the people that I was trying to reach out to.

Q. This was another one of your clues that you were leaving?

A. Pardon me? Yes. Yes, it was.

Q. Now, was Ramon Trujillo also the landlord?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Did you communicate with Ramon Trujillo that you were leaving the apartment?

A. No, I had no communication with him.

Q. Okay. You told Miss Lazalde that you were leaving the apartment, but gave no reason?

A. I did not tell her that. I told her I was leaving the country, but that's it. Jay Jackson had went and paid my current rent.

Q. To your knowledge, did anyone other than Jay Jackson pay rent that you owed?

A. No. It was from my funds that he went and did me the favor to go pay the rent, because I couldn't.

Q. My question is, and it may not have been clear, are you aware of anyone other than Jay Jackson paying rent that you owed on that apartment?

A. I came to find out, through that, what Mr. Zonen submitted into evidence, that they had done that. And then I also came to find out that Frank and Vinnie had said that this was a way for no one to start searching for where me and the kids might be.

Q. Now, at this point in time, you thought that Mr. Jackson, one of the best known people in the world, was trying to just kidnap your whole family, right?

MR. ZONEN: Object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At this point in time, you thought Michael Jackson was arranging to kidnap your entire family, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection to the use of "kidnap"; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: All I know is what I saw and what I knew. They were making me, my children leave the country. That's all I knew.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You were leaving the country for one week, right?

A. No. Till they decided when. And as long as I did what they told me.

Q. Do you know someone named Katie Bernard who worked at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Now, are you aware of Katie Bernard driving you to the spa in Los Olivos when you had the wax?

A. That was Chris Carter.

Q. You don’t recall Katie Bernard doing that?

A. No, it was Chris.

Q. Are you aware of a Katie Bernard ever dropping you off the next day to have your hair done?

A. Never happened.

Q. Do you remember telling Katie Bernard how good Michael Jackson had been to your family and what a great guy he was?

A. No, I don’t even know Katie Bernard.

Q. Okay. Are you aware of Katie Bernard paying for your spa treatment?

A. No. And it was a leg wax.

Q. Did you ever call Katie Bernard and ask her to arrange for Gavin and Star’s braces to be removed by a dentist?

A. No. That was taken care of by Frank and Vinnie.

Q. Did you ever tell Katie Bernard that you were being hassled by a Los Angeles dentist for payment and you wanted her to arrange to have your two sons’ braces removed?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell Katie Bernard you wanted her to return the braces to the L.A. dentist because you couldn’t afford to pay for them?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever calling Katie Bernard and saying you wanted to go shopping for clothes while you were at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone at Neverland named

Rafael Camacho?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall Rafael Camacho occasionally driving you to places off the ranch property while you were staying at Neverland?

MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as lack of familiarity by the witness. She says no, she doesn’t know him.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know whether or not anyone who worked at Neverland ever drove you to various places off the ranch property while you stayed at Neverland?

A. No. They even made me miss Ash Wednesday, and I had never missed it before.

Q. Who’s “they”?

A. Michael’s people.

Q. Okay. Did you ask for someone to drive you to church on Ash Wednesday?

A. They knew I wanted to go to church. But at that point, that was it.

Q. But did you actually ask for someone to drive you to a local church on Ash Wednesday?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Who did you ask?

A. I asked Frank and I asked Vinnie, and they said no.

Q. Did you ever know someone named Modesto Camarena at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone at Neverland named Hector Elenes?

A. No.

Q. Did you know someone at Neverland named Francisco Fuentes?

A. No.

Q. Ever complain to Francisco Fuentes that you were struggling financially?

A. I don’t even know Francisco Fuentes.

MR. ZONEN: I’ll so object as lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Lack of foundation; sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ever know someone at Neverland named Tammy Gewehr, G-e-w-e-h-r?

A. No.

Q. Ever know someone at Neverland named Gayle Goforth?

A. No.

Q. Ever know someone who worked at Neverland named Maria Gomez?

A. No.

Q. Ever tell Maria Gomez that you thought Frank and Vinnie were separating you from Michael Jackson?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Lack of foundation, that she knows this person.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever tell anyone at Neverland that Frank and Vinnie were separating you from Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell anyone at Neverland that you had financial problems?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone who worked at Neverland named Curtis Gordon?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone at Neverland named Patty Hankins?

A. No.

Q. How about Chris Hernandez?

A. No.

Q. How about Ryan Hester?

A. No.

Q. Ever know someone who worked at Neverland named Anthony Hudley?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone who worked at Neverland named Charlie Kirchhoff?

A. No.

Q. Ever know someone who worked at Neverland named Julio Magana?

A. No, I don’t. But I remember when I had called to Neverland to make contact with my kids, because I was already out, I asked him his name and he said his name was Julio. So that was it. But that's the name. It sounds familiar.

Q. Do you know someone who worked at Neverland named Christy Mann?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone named Shane Meredith?

A. No.

Q. During any of your trips to Neverland, did you ever meet someone named Samuel Moreno?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet someone named Jonathan Bruce Richards?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet someone named Manuel Rivera during your trips to Neverland?

A. No.

Q. During your trips to Neverland, did you ever compliment Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Ever complain to anyone that you wanted your children on television with Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Now, you did argue with Ronald Konitzer at Neverland, right?

A. I didn't argue with him.

Q. Did you ever argue with Dieter?

A. I didn't argue with them.

Q. Did you ever know someone at Neverland named Brian Salce, S-a-l-c-e?

A. No.

Q. Ever know an employee at Neverland named James Silva?

A. No.

Q. While you were visiting Neverland, did you ever meet Javier Velasco?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell anyone at Neverland that your children loved Michael Jackson like a father?

A. No. Once at Neverland, all that stopped. Especially when he’s running around like crazy with my kids.

Q. Did you ever complain to Javier Velasco that Michael Jackson had promised to take care of you, and you knew now it wasn’t going to happen?

MR. ZONEN: Lack of foundation that she ever knew Javier Velasco.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever complain to anyone at Neverland that Michael Jackson had promised to take care of you, and now you knew it wasn’t going to happen?

A. No.

Q. Ever meet someone named Angel Vivanco?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever know someone named Jason Wolcott at Neverland?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet someone named Christian Robinson?

A. Yes. He’s the one that did the -- the rebuttal video. He’s the one that had the scripted questions and you could even see him holding it. And he’s the one that also picked up mine and my children’s birth certificate.

Q. Now, when you say “scripted questions,” do you mean he had the questions in advance that he was going to ask you on the rebuttal video?

A. Yes. That’s my understanding. I may be wrong.

Q. And were they the questions you believe he was asking you when you filmed the rebuttal video?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you first meet him?

A. Right there.

Q. Was that at Hamid’s house?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that the first time you had ever seen him?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would have been the -- what, the day of the 20th?

A. The day of the 19th, going into the 20th. From 19th, about 11-something, till like a.m. hours of the 20th.

Q. And approximately what time do you think you met Christian Robinson?

A. Oh, well, when I got there.

Q. Now, did someone tell you whose house you were going to?

A. Yes. Vinnie.

Q. Okay. So you knew it was owned by someone named Hamid, right?

A. Yes. And also Frank on the phone.

Q. Your understanding was that the purpose of that video was to make Michael Jackson look good, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And you knew for quite a while that efforts were being made to put together a television show in response to the Bashir documentary, right?

A. That’s what I came to find out. And I wanted no part of it, and that’s why I left with Jesus, me and my children.

Q. Did you ever hear your sons say to Mr. Robinson they wanted to be famous on the T.V. show?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. When is the last time you saw Christian Robinson?

A. It was just that day. That’s it.

Q. Okay. Now, do you remember when you testified before the grand jury, you were shown a number of documents involving expenditures that were made for you and your family at one point by Frank and Vinnie?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And when you were in the grand jury room, you did acknowledge that what was on those documents had been spent for you, Gavin, Star and Davellin, true?

A. He’s taking it out of context. Another thing: What applied to me and my kids was pretty accurate, but what applied to Frank and Vinnie, you’re going to have to talk to them about it.

Q. When you stayed at Neverland, it was your understanding that any costs involved were paid for by Michael Jackson, true?

A. We were on his --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; vague. Costs involved with what?

MR. MESEREAU: I’ll be happy to rephrase it.

Q. When you and your family visited Neverland, you were often transported back and forth by someone that you thought was hired by Mr. Jackson, correct?

A. We were not often transferred back and forth.

Q. Well, how many visits do you think your family made to Neverland in total?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How did you get to Neverland the first time your family went?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: How did we get there the first time?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

A. Which time?

Q. Let me rephrase the question. Most of the time when you or your family went back and forth to Neverland, the transportation was arranged by someone at Neverland, true?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. And it was your belief that this transportation was paid for by Mr. Jackson, correct?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And you mentioned someone named Evvy Tavasci whom you knew, right?

A. Yes, I never met her. It was only solely per the telephone.

Q. You used to call her sometimes, didn’t you?

A. No, she called us.

Q. Did you ever call her yourself?

A. In returning her phone message.

Q. Did you ever ask Evvy Tavasci to do anything for you or your family?

A. Never.

Q. Okay. Ever give her any ideas about ways Michael Jackson could help you or your family?

A. Never. I had friends. If I wanted some help I could ask my own friends, and yet I never did.

Q. Ever ask Evvy Tavasci to arrange any trip for you or your family?

A. Never.

Q. To your knowledge, did she ever do anything like that?

A. Well, she -- when Michael had contacted us for the Miami stuff.

Q. Well, you traveled to Miami on Chris Tucker’s plane, right?

A. No, not Chris Tucker’s plane.

Q. Did you travel to Miami with Chris Tucker?

A. Yes, I did. And that was per Evvy’s arrangement. Evvy and Michael had called Chris and got him pulled into this mess.

Q. Did you hear -- did you watch Michael Jackson call Chris?

A. No, I didn’t.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever observe Mr. Jackson calling Chris Tucker at any time?

A. Well, it’s my understanding in Miami, and Chris had told me there at his house, that Evvy and Michael had contacted him. This is why I became aware.

Q. Did you ever request to travel to Florida with Chris Tucker?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet anyone at Neverland named Julio Avila?

A. I think I already said this.

Q. You did not.

A. They -- when I had called and I was already out of Neverland, I called wanting to speak to my kids. And the person that I was speaking to, I asked them what their name was, and they said their name was Julio. I think that’s --

Q. Did you ever speak with anyone named Alex Byrne?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who Alex Byrne is?

A. No.

Q. How about Nancy Catullo?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever speak to Nancy Catullo about setting up a bank account for Gavin?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: Objection. No foundation she knows a Nancy Catullo.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever seek advice from anyone about setting up a bank account for the benefit of Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Now, you spoke to Dr. Alex Farshshian, did you not?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Did you ever meet him?

A. Yes, I did. But we weren’t introduced. I just knew because I heard them calling him that.

Q. He was the physician who was on the plane --

A. Yes.

Q. -- on the flight back from Miami, true?

A. Yes, I am aware of that.

Q. Did you exchange any words with him at all?

A. No.

Q. Ever meet someone at Neverland named Romero Ruvalcaba Garcia?

A. No.

Q. How about Gary Hearn?

A. Gary Hearn, the extent of my conversations with him was when he would pick up the kids, and when he told us, “Guys, there’s been a change of plans,” and he took us to Chris’s house. So it’s just -- he was a driver.

Q. Do you remember him driving your family from Neverland and making various stops to buy things for you and your family?

A. No.

Q. That never happened?

A. That never happened.

Q. Ever meet someone related to Mr. Jackson named Rio?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet someone related to Mr. Jackson named Simone?

A. No. But I did see other children there.

Q. Do you know Arlene Kennedy?

A. Yes, I know Miss Kennedy.

Q. And who is she?

A. Miss Kennedy is someone that I got to meet. She’s the owner of the tap dance school where my children had attended tap dances. I think my children only attended there for less than -- I’m being generous if I say five months. It was only months.

But my relationship with Miss Kennedy and Mr. Kennedy continued. She’d come and pick me up and take me to like, for example, a Christian crusade to the Anaheim Convention Center. She’d come and pick me up and take me to a variety of churches in South Central.

We’d pray a lot on the phone. She’d continuously come and pray for Gavin in the church. I mean, at -- at the hospital. And then we’d request churches to pray for Gavin.

She took a trip to another country and she inscribed Gavin’s name on somewhere where they could pray continuously. It’s a place where they pray 24 hours. So my relationship with Miss Kennedy was mostly that of spiritual.

Q. And she ran the dance school your children attended, right?

A. Yes, for less -- my children -- for about five months, that’s all. And that’s the best I can recall. No more than five months. But my relationship with Miss Kennedy went on for years, and Mr. Kennedy.

Q. And your children did attend the school on a scholarship --

A. No.

Q. -- because they didn’t have funds, right?

A. No.

Q. That never happened?

A. That never happened.

Q. Okay. Now, you called her from Neverland Ranch, did you not?

A. Yes, I did. This was another person that I tried to reach.

Q. You called her after the airing of the Bashir video and said you were at the ranch because the press was causing problems, right?

A. No.

Q. You told Miss Kennedy that you wanted to get out of the country, correct?

A. No. She would know, too, that there’s no way, because she knows the extent of my son’s medical needs. He needs medical care. I know he looks, on the surface, healthy, but he does have some serious medical issues.

Q. You complained to Miss Kennedy that people around Michael Jackson keep everything from him and he doesn’t have a clue about anything, correct?

A. No.

Q. Never said that?

A. Never said that.

Q. Did you ever tell Miss Kennedy that the people around Michael Jackson keep him in the dark?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall Miss Kennedy telling you, “Go to Michael Jackson directly with these concerns”?

A. No.

Q. How many times do you think you called Arlene Kennedy from Neverland Ranch?

A. I think maybe once.

Q. Are you sure about that?

A. Yeah. I think it was only once.

Q. Only one time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. You called her many times and never indicated your calls are being monitored, right?

A. No, I called -- I think I called her once. And when I knew that they were listening, I wouldn’t be able to say that, when I felt -- but, yes, I did tell everybody possible when I could.

Q. Now --

A. Because I knew I was being monitored. I knew it.

Q. I understand.

You mentioned that you knew Carol Lamir, right?

A. Yes. That’s David’s girlfriend and part of his damage control team in the past. She had to do something to reinstate herself, and this is it.

Q. When did you first meet Carol Lamir?

A. At the dance school.

Q. That was years before you ever met Mr. Jackson, wasn’t it?

A. Yes, this is correct. But she made it very aware.

Q. For how many years did you know Carol Lamir before you ever met Michael Jackson?

A. Let me see. I think my children attended tap there in -- my best recollection is maybe three years.

Q. And at some point, your understanding is that Carol Lamir arranged for Mr. Jackson to speak to Gavin, right?

A. My understanding is David has -- had and still has a very close relationship with Carol Lamir, extremely close. David would even go cook at her house. David would even go spend nights over there.

And my understanding is that David was the one that communicated to me that Carol Lamir felt that she was the one that introduced Michael and Gavin, the family. And Jamie, I heard it from Jamie, that he felt it.

So I never have known. It was either one of two people. That’s how I feel till this day.

Q. Was it your understanding that Carol Lamir arranged for Mr. Jackson to provide your family with an automobile so that you could get to the hospital?

A. I wasn’t involved with that. All I know is that David and Carol Lamir were, and still are, very close.

Q. Do you know who first informed Mr. Jackson that you wanted an automobile so you could travel back and forth to the hospital?

A. I didn’t need an automobile. I didn’t ask for an automobile. David and Carol Lamir were, and still are, very close.

Q. When did you first learn that Mr. Jackson had provided an automobile so you could travel back and forth to the hospital?

A. When it was delivered to my mom’s house. I knew it came from him.

Q. Did you ever inquire as to why it was being delivered?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. To your knowledge, did Miss Lamir ever refer you to a woman named Nancy Catullo?

A. No.

Q. And you’ve indicated you knew Davellin was staying at her house, right?

A. Yes. Until I found out that all Carol wanted my daughter was to clean her house. That’s it. A little housekeeper.

THE COURT: Let’s take our break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Your Honor, the last document I showed the witness we’ve marked as Exhibit No. 5008. And I would move that it be admitted into evidence.

MR. ZONEN: Which document is that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: That’s the document you showed her earlier to refresh her recollection?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. That’s admitted.

MR. ZONEN: No objection.

THE COURT: You moved it in earlier, Counsel, yourself.

MR. ZONEN: Yes, I understand.

MR. MESEREAU: I’m sorry, Your Honor, was that admitted?

THE COURT: Yes, it was.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, it was. Oh, thank you. I’m sorry.

Q. Ms. Arvizo, when did you last see Carol Lamir?

A. I last saw Carol Lamir when she accompanied David to David’s criminal domestic violence proceeding. That’s when I last saw her. And they were holding hands.

Q. Did you ever tell her that David did not provide for the family and you had no food?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever tell her that you had no insurance and needed money to pay Gavin’s medical bills?

A. No.

Q. Ever tell Louise Palanker that David had threatened to kill you?

A. I don’t think so, but that is something that David always did.

Q. Pardon me?

A. That’s something that, you know, was customary, part of his own violence.

Q. He would always threaten to kill?

A. But I don’t think I told Wheezy that.

Q. Did you ever tell anyone that David often threatened to kill members of your family?

A. I don’t think so.

Q. Ever tell the police that?

A. I don’t think so. I told them what David would tell me, and that was about his brother Ray, but Ray had never done that, or said that to me.

Q. Did you ever meet someone named Richard Ramey?

A. No.

Q. Do you know Marian Arvizo?

A. Yeah, that's the one that's friends to the editor of the Mid Valley News. And David, that's -- they're -- David and Marian are in cahoots about many things. Such as like the --

Q. I'm sorry.

A. I came to find out -- a lot of things.

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as exceeding the scope of the question.

THE COURT: Nonresponsive do you mean?

MR. ZONEN: Yes.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How long have you known Marian Arvizo?

A. The last time I seen Marian Arvizo was when she also went to David's criminal domestic violence proceeding. And prior to that, I hadn't seen Marian since, let me see, maybe when my children -- when my daughter was, I think, two years of age.

Q. Do you recall Marian Arvizo organizing some blood drives for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever hear anything about that happening?

A. No. All I know is that she's -- she's the editor's friend.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever meet someone named Mrs. Marie Triggs?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of Mrs. Marie Triggs ever trying to organize blood drives for Gavin?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. No foundation that she knows the person.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Regardless of whether you know the person, did you ever learn that Marie -- someone named Marie Triggs had helped organize some blood drives for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember ever complaining to Marian Arvizo that you didn’t want her to arrange blood drives for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. Ever tell Marian Arvizo, “I don’t need your blood. What I need is money”?

A. No.

Q. Okay. When did you last see Marian Arvizo?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: I already said.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Ever know of a blood drive being held in Claremont, California, for Gavin?

A. No.

Q. How about a blood drive being arranged through Von’s warehouse where David used to work?

A. No.

Q. Do you know -- I think I may have asked you. I’m not sure whether I asked this question or not, Your Honor.

Do you know someone named Bruce Richards?

A. No.

Q. Now, while you were at Hamid’s home, and before you began the filming of the rebuttal video, do you recall making some phone calls?

A. No. I made no phone calls.

Q. Do you recall ever being on the phone with anybody before the video was shot?

A. No. The only -- when Brad Miller had dialed the phone and Miss -- Vicki was on there.

Q. Was that at Hamid’s house?

A. This was at Hamid’s house.

Q. Did you only talk to Vicki Podberesky that one time?

A. This is the one time.

Q. Okay. Do you know Violet Silva?

A. No.

Q. Now, which employees at Neverland, other than Jesus and Chris, do you recall meeting?

A. That's it. I gave the police every possible information that I could, and that's it.

Q. I want to just clear something up that I said on Friday. The J.C. Penney settlement -- excuse me. Let me rephrase it. That agreement to settle was approximately September of 2001, right?

A. I don't think so.

Q. When do you think you settled that case?

A. When -- I think it was -- I know it was after David was arrested.

Q. Actually, he was arrested five days after the agreement was signed, right?

A. Okay. No, David was arrested. Then he was out on bail. And so -- no, it had to be after he was arrested. That's the best I can remember.

Q. The agreement was signed September 24th, 2001, right?

A. Okay. I may not understand what his -- the legal words is. I'm talking about the end result, the end result when the J.C. Penney's attorneys and Tower Records attorneys stood with my civil attorney, and that's what I'm talking about. And to my understanding, that's when the judge approved it. I don't know. So that's what I'm talking about. Me and you may be talking about something different.

Q. Okay.

A. Because I know there was different proceedings prior to that.

Q. But around that time, David was arrested, correct?

A. Yeah, because, you know, he did what he did.

Q. And a couple of weeks after the agreement was signed, you filed for divorce against David, right?

A. I -- when David showed up to the criminal court proceedings on the first day --

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE WITNESS: I already answered that so many times.

THE COURT: Just a moment, please.

Sustained. Do you want the question read back, Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: I don't know how to answer that. All I know is that David was arrested. And the first day that he showed up where I was at the criminal proceedings, that's when he was handed my -- the filed divorce file. And I've never gone back with him ever again, so it was serious. That was it. That was enough.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: After he was arrested, you were in a legal dispute with him as to how the settlement money would be divided, correct?

A. Incorrect.

Q. Did you go to any type of mediation procedure to settle how much each member was going to get of the 152,000?

A. No. That's incorrect.

Q. You don't recall any discussion among lawyers about that, right?

A. That's incorrect.

Q. Okay. When did you and David agree how much each party was going to get?

A. There was no -- there was no back and forth with that. They -- the civil law firm, they decided that. But I know -- but I am aware of this, though: David's -- Mr. Halpern, his wife --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as nonresponsive.

THE WITNESS: -- was demanding --

THE COURT: Just a moment. There's no question.

Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. David got approximately $5,000 from that settlement, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. I'd like to ask you about purchases made on your behalf by anyone associated with Michael Jackson, okay? Do you recall a dinner at Outback Steakhouse on February 21st, 2003?

A. No. That didn’t happen. I know where I was February 21st.
Q. You never were there with Frank or Vinnie, correct?
A. This is correct.
Q. Okay.
A. As a matter of fact, on the surveillance video, you can see your guy following us.

Q. Well, you were being investigated, weren’t you?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You’re not aware of Mr. Geragos ever hiring people to investigate you?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: So you never went to Outback Steakhouse, right?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall going to Robinson’s-May on February 21st, 2003?
A. No. That’s incorrect. I know where I was February 21st.
Q. Did you ever go into Robinson’s-May in Thousand Oaks on February 21st, 2003?
A. No. I remember the day. I think it was the 26th.
Q. You went to Robinson’s-May?
A. I think it was the 26th. The same day that my children had gone.
Q. And do you know who paid that bill?
A. That was Vinnie. I think that was Vinnie.
Q. And do you remember what was purchased?
A. No, I can’t remember. I think it was -- I think it was a couple of outfits. I think so.
Q. For who?

A. This was for me.
Q. And you were --

A. I think so.
Q. Do you recall the bill being approximately $92.24?
A. No, I think it was more like -- I don’t know. It was around that price range, though.
Q. And do you recall what clothes you bought?
A. No, I can’t remember, because they took them away. They rummaged through the things when I had finally got out. And not only did they take the things that they had purchased, but they also took some of our items back. And that’s why Mr. Dickerman’s letter, it states “Children’s clothing.” I didn’t care about mine.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the receipt --
A. It don’t matter.
Q. -- as far as the clothes you bought?
A. I’ve already seen it.
Q. Do you know what clothes you purchased?
A. And I’m acknowledging that on the same day that my children’s things were purchased, the same items were.
Q. Okay. Do you know what clothes you bought?
A. No, I don’t remember.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection to look at the receipt?

A. Sure. If you have the receipt --
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE WITNESS: -- of the 26th.
MR. ZONEN: May I see the receipt, please? This is not the 26th. Your Honor, I believe the witness has requested the receipt from the 26th.
THE WITNESS: That’s right.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You don’t want to see one from the 21st?
A. No.
Q. You deny being in Robinson’s-May on the 21st, right?
A. This is correct. I know where I was the 21st.
Q. Do you recall going to Lisa’s Beauty Supply on the 21st?

A. That’s incorrect.

Q. Have you ever been to that store?

A. No.

Q. Never got hair products there?

A. No.

Q. How about a store called Pacific Sunwear, did you ever go there?

A. I don’t think so. I think it was just the -- I think it was -- the best I can remember, it was in an outlet area. It was a Jockey store, and I think it was a Levi store. And then the luggages.

Q. And you think you went --

A. On that same day, Robinson’s-May. I think -- that’s the best I can remember.

Q. Do you think you went to Robinson’s-May on the 25th?

A. No. No, it was the same day, the 26th.

Q. Did you go to Robinson’s-May on the 25th?

A. No.

Q. Did you go to Anchor Blue on the 25th?

A. No.

Q. To your knowledge, did Mr. Jackson ever pay for clothing for you at Anchor Blue?

A. No.

Q. How about at Robinson’s-May?

A. On the 26th, yes. Which they kept.

Q. And you never went to Pacific Sunwear on the 26th of February, right, 2003?

A. No. The best I can remember is the Levi outlet store, the Jockey outlet store, and then that luggages. That’s the best I can remember.

Q. Do you recall --

A. And Robinson’s-May.

Q. I’m sorry. Are you finished?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall purchasing luggage on February 26th, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. And what luggage do you recall purchasing?

A. They were -- they were black.

Q. Do you recall asking for a particular kind of luggage?
A. No.
Q. Okay. And the cost was approximately $127.40, right?
A. I think so. And also -- Vinnie had purchased also for Frank and Vinnie.
Q. For themselves?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay.
A. In that luggage store.
Q. For that trip to Brazil?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall going to Banana Republic on February 26th, 2003?
A. No.
Q. Never went there?
A. Never went there.
Q. Do you recall going to the Gap outlet in Camarillo on February 26th, 2003?
A. No. The best I can remember, it was the Levi outlet, the Jockey, the luggage, and the Robinson’s-May. That’s the best I can remember.
Q. Do you recall charging up $436.77 at the Levi outlet on February 26th?
A. That sounds about correct.
Q. Do you recall eating at the Woodland Hills Black Angus on February 26th?

A. I think that -- I think that’s correct.
Q. And who did you eat there with?
A. It was Frank, Vinnie, the three kids, myself, and they were filming that for Michael’s positive PR.
Q. And the bill was $175.34, approximately, right?
A. I never saw the bill. I never saw the bill.
Q. All right. Do you recall shopping at The Foot Locker on February 26th, 2003?
A. No. That’s incorrect.
Q. Didn’t go there?
A. No.
Q. Didn’t get any shoes for your son there?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you recall going to Abercrombie & Fitch on February 26th, 2003?

A. No.

Q. Didn’t go there at all, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Okay. And you do recall Robinson’s-May in Canoga Park on February 26th, right?

A. I don’t know what city it was, but it definitely was February 26th. Some things just -- are just stuck in there.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the receipt?

A. Like I said, if it happened February 26th, then it did happen.

Q. Okay. Do you know what clothes you bought there on that day?

A. No, I can’t remember.

MR. ZONEN: On what day? Objection; vague.

MR. MESEREAU: February 26th, 2003.

MR. ZONEN: Where is this?

MR. MESEREAU: Robinson’s-May in Canoga Park.

Q. Do you know what clothes you bought there?

A. No, I can’t remember. But besides that, Frank had taken all the clothes that they had purchased. And when he was rummaging through our bags, he also took some of my children’s clothing that belonged to them that they did not purchase.

Q. Were you shopping with Frank or Vinnie on February 27th, 2003?

A. No.

Q. Didn’t go to Robinson’s-May on February 27th?

A. No.

Q. Didn’t go to Rite-Aid?

A. No.

Q. Didn’t go to Anchor Blue, right?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you recall going to Hsong’s Barber Shop on February 28th?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall going to Adidas on February 27th of 2003?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall going to Old Navy on February 27, 2003?

A. No.

Q. Now, do you recall going to Robinson’s-May on February 27th, 2003?

A. February 26th. It’s burned inside my memory.

Q. And where was that Robinson’s-May located?

A. Right next to -- right next to the hotel where we were at.

Q. Was that across the street?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall ever going to Canoga Park during this period of time?

A. I don’t know what the city was. I just know that it was near there. That’s all.

Q. Do you recall going to Anchor Blue on March 1st?

A. No.

Q. How about Robinson’s-May on March 2nd for cosmetics?

A. No.

Q. How about Lovely Nails on March 10th?

A. March 10th is the nails -- the nail shop.

Q. And that was for a manicure and a pedicure, correct?

A. No.

Q. It was a $115 bill paid by Mr. Jackson, true?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE WITNESS: No.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall -- let me rephrase this.

Do you recall sending any employees to do shopping for you while you were there?

A. No.

Q. So that never happened?

A. Never happened.

Q. Okay. Where was Lovely Nails located?

A. Right by Jay’s work.

Q. And do you know who paid that bill?

A. Vinnie did.

Q. Do you recall Gavin getting a haircut during that period of time?

A. No.

Q. Do you recall ever asking Frank or Vinnie to buy cosmetics for you?

A. No, that didn’t happen.

Q. Never happened?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever go to any store where you could pick out cosmetics that they would purchase?

A. No.

Q. What restaurants do you recall eating at with Frank or Vinnie?

A. The Black Angus one. And it was one meal, while we were in the hotel. It was one meal per day. And they were filming the whole thing. So Black Angus is one of them. But that’s the best I can remember. And we had to stay in the hotel.

Q. So you’re saying you were limited to one meal a day while you were filming?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. And where were you filming?

A. I wasn’t filming. Your people were filming. And when we’d go eat. At Black Angus was one of them.

Q. Let me get this straight. You’re staying at the hotel, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you’re saying you’re limited to one meal a day, right?

A. Yes.

Q. While you’re being filmed; is that correct?

A. No, not while we were being filmed. They would film the event. They would film the dinner for Michael’s positive PR.

Q. So a dinner was filmed at Outback

Steakhouse?

A. If in that time period, it falls within that time period, it did happen. But the best I can remember is only -- what he just said, is Black Angus. I do remember that.

Q. And who do you remember eating at Black Angus with?

A. Frank, Vinnie, my three children, me, yes.

Q. Do you recall around November 9th, 2001, buying an automobile?

A. November 9th?

Q. Yes.

A. Of what year?

Q. 2001.

A. No.

Q. Did you buy an automobile around that period of time?

A. No, I didn’t.

Q. Okay. Were you taking the bus all the time then?

A. Yes.

Q. And you -- again, just for the record, you moved in with Jay Jackson approximately December of 2002; is that right?

A. That’s incorrect. I moved when they took my place away.

Q. Okay.

A. And that was in March of 2003.

Q. Were you spending time at Jay Jackson’s home starting December of 2002?

A. I visited Jay throughout -- since I first met him. He was my -- it was a new relationship. I really liked being with him, me and the kids.

Q. And did you start spending a good portion of the week there approximately December of 2002?

A. No.

Q. When did you start spending days at Jay Jackson’s home?

A. Again, this is like three years ago now probably. Well, when you guys took my place away.

I had nowhere else to go.

Q. Were you spending most of the week at Jay Jackson’s home before the Soto apartment was vacated? Yes or no.

A. I would ride the bus with my children on the metro rail. I’d take them to school. And then I’d go and -- to Jay’s apartment and make myself serviceable with cleaning his house, do just something, and then go pick up the kids. And he would let me know how long he was going to be at work. If he was going to stay longer, then I’d just go home.

Q. Do you know approximately -- let me rephrase that.

You first met Psychologist Stanley Katz in May of 2003, true?

A. I think so. I think so.

Q. You met him through Larry Feldman, right?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. And you told the jury that at some point you first learned about any molestation through the Santa Barbara police, right?

A. I already felt and were aware that things were a mess. But it was confirmed when the police and the D.A.’s Office made me aware. Mr. Robel had explained to me that Gavin had entrusted something with him --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You claim you first learned about any alleged molestation in September of 2003, correct?

A. I don’t understand what he’s saying, but I was becoming aware of things through Gavin and Star, little by little by little.

Q. You claim that you learned about any alleged molestation in September of 2003 from Prosecutor Sneddon, Sheriff Klapakis and Sheriff Robel, right?

A. Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Ms. Arvizo, good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Mr. Mesereau had asked you about a Mary Holzer. Who is Mary Holzer?

A. Mary Holzer, she is the last -- what I know, she’s the office manager of the Rothstein civil law firm, and she’s a humongous Michael Jackson fan.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, when she was taking me back and forth to the various visits, because I didn’t have a car, she was continuously asking, requesting, begging to meet Michael Jackson.

Q. Did you ever tell Miss Holzer that the injuries that you sustained after the J.C. Penney’s incident were given to you by your husband?

A. Never.

Q. Is it the case that the injuries that you sustained in the J.C. Penney’s case were received by you by your husband?

A. If the -- on the day the J. --

Q. Yes.

A. Say it again.

Q. Is it the case that the injuries that you suffered during -- that the injuries that you had were received by your husband and not by J.C. Penney’s?

A. I kind of don’t understand.

Q. Let me ask that question again.

A. Okay.

Q. Were you injured during the J.C. Penney’s arrest?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, what happened in that arrest?

A. The J.C. Penney’s and Tower Records injured me and both my boys.

Q. How did that happen?

A. Well, they clobbered me.

Q. How did you happen to be there?

A. Well, because I was -- I had already gotten a loss prevention agent job for Oshman Sporting Goods.

Q. Where was Oshman Sporting Goods?

A. It was inside the mall.

Q. Were you at Oshman Sporting Goods?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Was your husband with you?

A. No, he wasn't.

Q. Were either of your two children with you?

A. No, they weren't.

Q. Where did they go?

A. They went with David.

Q. And Mr. Mesereau had asked you if, in fact, you had learned your son Gavin had walked out of the store with items. How old was your son Gavin at that time?

A. I think my best -- they were in the summer of first grade, and I think -- I think both -- I think either -- I think it was six and seven. Six and seven, I think.

Q. This was before Gavin was ill with cancer; is that correct?

A. Yes, way before Gavin was ill.

Q. At some point, did you learn that he had walked out of the store with something?

A. Yes.

Q. What was the item he walked out with?

A. Two school uniforms and two school uniform pants.

Q. Was David Arvizo with him at that time?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. All right. Now, what was the first thing you saw or learned that day?

A. Well, the first thing I saw was David getting hit by a male and a female. And this is -- I don't know if you know malls. Like --

Q. Just tell us what you saw.

A. -- way far.

Q. Just tell us what you saw. What did you see?

A. I walked out and I saw that David was getting hit by a male and a female.

Q. Did you know who they were?
A. No, I didn’t know.
Q. Were they wearing uniforms?
A. No, they weren’t.
Q. Did you have any reason to believe that they were security?

A. No, I didn’t.
Q. What did you do?
A. Well, I figured, you know, they might think -- I might be able to startle them with my two phrases, and those two phrases are also burned here. I told them, “What are you doing? What’s going on?” Because I figured by saying that, that would spook them and they would run.
Q. What happened?
A. Instead they turned around and just clobbered me.
Q. Were you arrested by them?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Were you injured by them?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Hold on just one second. Where were you injured and how were you injured?
A. Okay. The best I can remember is they broke my hand, my left hand. They made some -- like a little bump here, pop out, from my wrist. They, you know, hit -- punched all over my body. Let’s see. They did significant muscle damage on my back. Hit my face. All over my body. That’s the best I can remember.
Q. Where did you have bruises on you?
A. My legs. My arms. A little bit on my face. But that’s -- that’s the best I can remember.

Q. Were you arrested that day?
A. Yes, I was arrested.
Q. Were you taken to jail?
A. I was taken to jail.
Q. Was David Arvizo taken to jail?

A. Yes. David was taken to jail.

Q. Were you charged with any criminal offense?

A. Yes.

Q. What were you charged with?

A. I was charged with burglary, assault and battery, and petty theft.

Q. Did you ever actually go inside J.C. Penney's?

A. I never even went inside that store.

Q. Were those charges ultimately dismissed?

A. Yes.

Q. Was the lawsuit with J.C. Penney filed before or after the charges were dismissed?

A. It was after.

Q. Did you have photographs that were taken of your injuries?

A. Yes.

Q. After you were released from jail, what did you do?

A. After I was released from jail, the best I can remember is I remember the -- the jail person giving me the car keys, so I walked over to the mall parking lot. The best I can remember is I picked up the car. My children at this point had already been taken by my parents, because the police officer did not want to take custody of my children. So they waited for my parents to arrive before I even went to the jail. Right there in the parking lot, the police handed over my two boys.

And -- but after I came out of jail, and then I -- I don't know whether this came first or after, I went to go do a drug test, because that's what I went to go pick up at the -- at Oshman's. I had already been given the job. I just had to do -- it was -- they said it was a mere technicality. All I had to do was submit to an alcohol -- I mean, what they -- those drug tests. And --

Q. Was that a urine exam?

A. Pardon me?

Q. A urine test?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Where did you have to do that?

A. It was really close to the mall, right there.
Q. Did you do it that night?
A. Yes, I did it. And they time-stamped it.
Q. Where was your husband at that time?
A. At that time, I believe he’s still in jail.
Q. All right. The kids were where?
A. The kids are with my parents.

Q. Do you know approximately what time it was?
A. At this time?
Q. Yes.
A. No, I don’t. I know it was right before I ended up going to Kaiser.
Q. All right.
A. Which that was also time-stamped.
Q. Did you have a car at that time?
A. At that time, yes, it was a mini-van.
Q. And where was the vehicle?
A. The vehicle was at the -- still at the shopping mall.
Q. All right. And then where did you go with the -- did you get the vehicle at some point in time?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. I believe that I walked over and went and picked it up myself.
Do you know approximately what time it was that David Arvizo was released from custody that night?
A. No, I don’t. I just know that it was minutes before we went to Kaiser.
Q. All right. Did you, in fact, go to Kaiser that night?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you do that soon after David Arvizo’s release?

A. Yes, like that.
Q. Did he inflict any injury on you at any time from the time he was released from custody to the time --

A. No.
Q. -- that you arrived at Kaiser Hospital?
A. No, he didn't.
Q. All right. And did they attend to your injuries when you got to Kaiser Hospital?
A. Does that mean like --
Q. Did they treat your injuries at that time?
A. Yes, they did. They did.
Q. You said your kids were picked up by your parents at that time?
A. Yes, at the shopping mall. They didn't even take them -- the police wanted to release the children right there to my parents. They didn't want to take them into custody.
Q. Were either of your children injured in the course of that altercation?
A. Yes, they were.
Q. Which children were injured?
A. They broke Gavin's arm. They gave him a black eye. Star, they gave him a concussion. That's the best I can remember.
Q. Was there a settlement on behalf of Star and Gavin?
A. What does that mean?

Q. In other words, did they receive money?
A. Yes, they did.
Q. Do you recall how much they received, approximately?
A. No, I don't recall. I've never touched it. It's still sitting there.
Q. I believe you just said there was an amount of money that was received by both Star and Gavin.
A. Yes.
Q. You don't recall at this moment how much that was?
A. No, I don't. That's --
Q. Did one receive more than the other?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that reflective of the injury?
A. I think so.
Q. Which one? Which of your children received the greater amount?

A. Gavin did.
Q. I think you said it went into a bank account; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it still there?
A. It is still there.
Q. How long will it remain in that bank account?
A. Till they become adults.
Q. I'd like to show you two exhibits, please, No. 820 and 821. Take a look at those two exhibits, if you would.

A. Okay. Okay.
Q. Are those exhibits familiar to you?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. All right. And do they reflect the amount of money that was received by each of those two children?
A. Yes. It is correct.
Q. Can you tell us, then, how much money it was for each one?
A. Gavin is -- to the dollar? To the penny?
Q. Yes.
A. Okay.
Q. As long as it's in front of you.
A. Okay. Gavin is 25,595. And Star's is $8,576.
Q. Have either you or your husband had -- your ex-husband David had access to that money at all?
A. No.
Q. And that's per the conditions of that settlement; is that correct?
A. Yes, this is correct.
Q. Tell us how much you received on that.
A. Myself?
Q. Yes.
A. The best I can remember, myself, I received 32,000.

Q. All right. And how much did David receive?

A. David received 5,000.

Q. All right. Now, the total judgment on that was something over 150,000; is that right?

A. This is correct.

Q. What happened to the rest of the money?

A. The attorneys -- it went all to the attorneys.

Q. Were there medical expenses as well?

A. I think so. I -- it came -- it was disbursed from the law office. What they did with it, they would know best.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I'm showing you a collection of documents that are numbered 819 for identification. 819, a series of photographs. And there's actually 19 pages in here. Excuse me, 16 pages. 16 pages.

Take a look at that, if you could, and let's start with each one of those pages. Can you tell us the content of the subject matter of that first page?

A. It is me. I do have a bra on. And it shows bruises on my arms and my legs.

Q. Go ahead and go to the next page. And the two top photographs are who, please?

A. They're both of me.

Q. And they show injuries where?

A. On my legs, on my arms, and then wearing that thing on my wrist.

Q. And the thing on your wrist is a brace?

A. Yes. First it was the cast, and then it went -- they did that after they cleaned it up.

Q. Okay. And then the two bottom photographs on the second page of this exhibit.

A. They're both of Gavin.

Q. Okay. And what injury did Gavin have?

A. He had a broken arm.

Q. Okay. Was it at his elbow?

A. I think it was his elbow. I'm -- or up here. I don't remember very clear. It was either up here or his elbow.

Q. Okay. How old was Gavin?
A. The best I can remember, six or seven.
Q. Okay. Go to the next page, please.
A. Okay.
Q. No. 3 reflects what, the two top photos?
A. It's of my hand, and myself sitting down.
Q. And the two bottom photos?
A. Of me with the bruises.
Q. All right. And the bruises are where in those photos?
A. My arms and my legs.

Q. Go to the next page, please, No. 4. And where are the bruises in these four photographs?
A. On my arms and my legs.
Q. The front or back of your legs?
A. The back.
Q. All right. Go to the next page, please, No. 5, and tell us what these photographs depict.
A. They're of my legs.
Q. No. 6, page six, what do these photographs depict?
A. Still on my legs.
Q. And these are bruises on the bottom and top portion of your leg?
A. Yes.
Q. Go to the next page, No. 7. What does that reflect?
A. Bruises still on my arms and legs.
Q. All right. Next page, please.
A. And I think this is Gavin's arm up here.
Q. So on page seven of the four photographs in that -- on that -- depicted on that page, the upper right, you believe, is Gavin's elbow?
A. I think so.
Q. All right. Go to the next.
A. Okay.
Q. Four pictures on page eight, what are they?
A. They're of myself.
Q. Okay. And the two top ones, or the top one on the left, what does that depict?

A. The top left is a full back side of how I looked.

Q. And it shows bruising where?

A. On the back of my arms, and the back of my legs.

Q. Okay. And on the right side at the top, what does that depict?

A. My arms from the front side.

Q. Okay. And then the bottom picture on the left?

A. Of my wrist.

Q. And then the picture on the right?

A. Of my face, right cheek.

Q. What kind of bruise did you have on your right cheek?

A. Like a -- like this.

Q. All right. Go to the next page. This is page nine. Let’s turn it on its side. Tell us what -- the picture of the little boy, which little boy is that?

A. This is Gavin.

Q. And that shows his arm?

A. Yes.

Q. And then the two other pictures?

A. This was the scrape that he had on this arm, and it shows his black eye.

Q. Okay. And then the other two pictures apparently are -- no, go back.

A. Oh.

Q. On the same page, which is page nine, there are two other pictures. That is of you?

A. Of my legs.

Q. And then the four photographs on page ten?

A. They’re all the same. And they’re just showing my upper arms.

Q. Okay. And page 11?

A. My upper half and one of full body.

Q. Okay. So these are --

A. Showing bruises.

Q. -- bruises, upper chest and your upper arms?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Page 12?

A. A front view of me.

Q. Okay. Page 13, one photograph.

A. Of Gavin.

Q. And that’s his arm?

A. Yes.

Q. Page 14?

A. I think this is because it’s showing a scrape on that arm.

Q. Okay. Page 14, four photographs of what?

A. Of right here.

Q. The wrist?

A. Yes.

Q. Page 15?

A. My son Gavin.

Q. That’s Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. With his arm?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And finally, page 16?

A. This is Gavin with his broken arm.

Q. All right. When were those photographs taken?

A. Immediately.

Q. By “immediately” what do you mean? That day, or the next day, or when?

A. I think it was -- the best I can remember, I think it was -- I think it was the next day right after we had taken -- I think it was after the boys had received medical services. I think that’s the best I can remember.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I’m going to move to introduce these photographs, which is Exhibit 819, into evidence at this time.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

MR. ZONEN: May I have just a moment, please?

Your Honor, I’d like to publish these photographs, or some of them. I’d like to publish these photographs at this time.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let’s start with the two on the top of page two of this exhibit. And Miss Arvizo, go ahead and look at this. These are the top of page two. And describe for us, please, what we’re looking at, the injuries. First start with the pictures on the left.

A. That’s me. This is me sitting down and showing the bruises from -- from this, this part right here, my legs and my lower half.

Q. All right. And the picture on the right?

A. Yes, my legs.

Q. It’s page six of that exhibit. Tell us specifically what we’re looking at here, please.

A. Kind of like a little diagonal view of my legs.

Q. And that shows the bruises where on your legs?

A. On my -- the front part of my calf area.

Q. All right. And on both legs?

A. Yes. On both legs. And you can see a little bit of the back part of my thighs.

Q. Also page six on the lower left-hand corner. Can you describe what we’re looking at in that photograph?

A. Bruising on the back side of me. And there’s that -- the thing over my hand.

Q. And on your left hand?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is page number seven. On page number seven, would you tell us, please, what we’re looking at on that photograph?

A. That’s from a sitting position, I think it’s di -- I think it’s diagonal in the other direction of the bruises on my arms and my legs.

Q. On both legs -- both arms?

A. Both arms.

Q. And both legs?

A. Yes.

Q. Exhibit No. 8, No. 8 of this exhibit, tell us what that one is, please.

A. This is a -- a back side of me. And then you can see a little bit of the -- of the underarm, showing that, showing my right arm.

Q. And what are we looking at on this picture?

A. I had -- I had bruising and a little bit of swelling right here, my right cheek.

Q. And that’s also Exhibit No. 8.

THE COURT: I think you’re referring to the page number.

MR. ZONEN: Yes, page number. Exactly.

Q. That was who now?

A. This is Gavin.

Q. And he had his hand at that time in a sling; is that right?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. And a cast?

A. He had a cast.

Q. We can have the lights back on.

You were asked some questions about a car that had belonged to Chris Tucker. Did Chris Tucker ever actually offer you a vehicle?

A. Chris Tucker gave it to me and the kids as a Christmas present from him and Aja. It was Aja’s old car, but Chris had taken the kids to buy Aja a birthday present, as a surprise birthday present, and he had the kids pick Aja’s new color of her car for her birthday.

Q. Now, did you actually ever drive that car?

A. I never drove that car.

Q. Did you ever take possession of it?

A. I never took possession of the car.

Q. Do you remember when it was that he offered you the car or gave you the car?

A. It was for Christmastime. And he hadn’t seen me and the kids, neither did Aja, so the first time he got to see us was at his home, and that’s when he gave it to me.

Q. Did -- you say he gave it to you. But how is it you never took possession of it?

A. Well, because he says, “Here’s the keys. And this is yours and the kids’ Christmas present.”

Q. And --

A. It was Aja’s old car.

Q. But tell me why you didn’t drive away with it.

A. Because. In Miami -- remember way in the beginning I had told you that I had tied a garbage bag which I had placed my Timberland shoes inside a Turnberry bag and I tied it so tight to my red sports bag that the only way you can take this bag off was by ripping it? That’s it. And that disappeared. I didn’t see it till --

Q. Are you telling us that had the keys in it?

A. Yes, that had the keys in it.

Q. All right. Now, again, that was early February when you went to Miami?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Where was the car between Christmas and early February?

A. At Aja’s house.

Q. All right. Did you -- you took the keys, but you never got the car?

A. That’s correct. On that day was when Chris had told me that Aja and Chris had been looking for us to give us a Christmas present.

Q. All right. So when exactly was it that they gave you the keys?

A. The day I went to Chris’s house.

Q. To go to Miami?

A. To go to Miami, yes.

Q. Okay. All right. So it was not a Christmas gift to you. It was a Christmas gift to Aja?

A. No.

Q. The new car?

A. No. I don’t know if I explained it correctly. Aja had gotten a brand-new Mercedes for her birthday. This was now Aja’s old car, which was just sitting in her -- in her driveway. So Chris and Aja decided that they wanted to give me and the children this car for Christmas, but they were unable to locate us.

Q. All right. It wasn’t until the --

A. Until --
Q. He went to Miami?
A. Yes, that’s correct.
Q. So the keys you took, but you never got the car?
A. Exactly.
Q. Did you ever have a conversation with either Aja or Chris Tucker after you got back from Miami --
A. Well --
Q. -- about the car?
A. With Chris, never again.
Q. You never had another conversation with Chris?
A. I never had.
Q. And with Aja?
A. With Aja, I think so. I think it was -- I think it was, yeah, I was able to tell her, “Thank you.”

Q. Did you ever see the keys again?
A. I never saw the keys again.
Q. You never took the car, never drove the car?
A. No, they disappeared with my garbage bag.
Q. Now, the vehicle that was a gift to Gavin from Mr. Jackson, do you know the difference between a Bronco and a Blazer?
A. No, I don’t.
Q. If I were to ask you to describe one against the other, would you know?
A. No, I wouldn’t be able.
Q. Do you remember what color it was?
A. I do remember that. It was white.
Q. Do you know what the letters “SUV” stand for?
A. No. No.
Q. If somebody were to say “SUV” to you, does that --
A. The best I can --
Q. Hold on.
Does that conjure up in your mind some kind of a vehicle?
A. Yes.
Q. SUV?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind of a vehicle?

A. Kind of like a half truck, half pickup with enclosure, like a camper, all fused together.

Q. Okay. Was it that kind of vehicle that Mr. Jackson gave you?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know the difference between a GMC and a Ford?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. Do you know what the letters “GMC” stand for?

A. No.

Q. Did somebody tell you it was a Bronco?

A. Yes.

Q. Who?

A. David did.

Q. All right. Now, this car actually did come into your family’s possession; is that right?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Did you ever get any documentation on it; in other words, a registration of some kind, or a pink slip?

A. No.

Q. Do you know what -- when I say “pink slip,” do you know what that means?

A. Yes, I do know that.

Q. And registration, do you know what that means?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever actually bought a car yourself?

A. No. Let me see. I think a long, long, long time ago, I may have been a co-signer, I don’t know, of a red Nissan Sentra.

Q. Did you ever actually walk into a car dealership by yourself and pick out a car and purchase it?

A. By myself, never.

Q. On this particular case, I asked you about documentation, a pink slip or a registration, and you said, I think, they did not give you that; is that right?

A. Yes, that’s correct.

Q. So you were talking about a document with a VIN number on it.

A. Yes.

Q. What was that?

A. Okay. I had -- there was a -- like a long number thing, and I had written it down on a piece of paper.

Q. So you wrote the number yourself?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And tell me why you did this.

A. Because -- just so I know that that was the car that belonged to that. That’s all.

Q. But you did that at a time that you had the car in your possession?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. How long was --

THE COURT: All right. Counsel, we’ll end for today.

Remember the adminitions. See you tomorrow morning at 8:30.

Santa Maria, California
Tuesday, April 19, 2005
8:30 a.m.

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen, you may proceed.

MR. ZONEN: Good morning, Your Honor.

JANET JACKSON

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Arvizo, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. Yesterday, there were a number of questions that were asked about that tape-recording of the phone call, or series of phone calls, between Frank and you that you listened to in court early in your testimony, and you had testified previously that you believed it was a compilation of a few different calls; is that correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. All right. Now, at any time during the series of telephone conversations that you had with Frank after you had left Neverland on that first occasion, did you talk with him about the specific issue of danger?

A. Yes.

Q. And what specifically did you tell him?

A. The death threats about my children.

Q. How often did you bring up that subject in the course of those conversations?

A. Every single time.

Q. You were asked some questions about attorneys that you had seen over the last number of years, and why you might have contacted an attorney to deal with Mr. Jackson. Do you remember those questions from Mr. Mesereau?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. It’s a little confusing because apparently you have at one time or another dealt with two attorneys by the same name, Feldman; is that correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. The attorneys that you went to with regards to the J.C. Penney’s lawsuit. What was the name of that law firm?

A. The law firm was called Rothstein & Feldman.

Q. All right. Now, the Feldman that we’re referring to, is that Larry Feldman?

A. No. That is not Larry Feldman.

Q. It’s a different Feldman?

A. It is a different Feldman.

Q. Do you know his first name?

A. I come to know now that his name is George Owen Feldman.

Q. Did you actually deal with Mr. Feldman, George Feldman?

A. I’ve never dealt with George Owen Feldman.

Q. Who are the attorneys from that law firm, Feldman & Rothstein, who you actually dealt with?

A. From that law firm, dealt with Mr. Rothstein, Anthony Ramieri, and a Michael Adler.

Q. Now, did you contact Feldman & Rothstein?

A. And --

Q. Not Larry Feldman?

A. There was one more, but he was with Michael Adler.

Q. Did you contact the law firm of Feldman & Rothstein for purposes of dealing with Michael Jackson in any way?

A. No.

Q. When was the first time issues of Michael Jackson or actions involving Michael Jackson came up with a lawyer?

A. Mr. Dickerman.

Q. And then Larry Feldman thereafter?

A. Then Larry Feldman thereafter.

Q. There were questions that were asked of you by Mr. Mesereau as to the amount of money that Louise Palanker gave to you or your family. Did you ever ask Louise Palanker for money?

A. No.

Q. How many separate checks were turned over to your family by Louise Palanker?

A. It was two checks in the amount of $10,000.

Q. All right. Were you present at the time either of those checks were written?

A. I wasn’t present.

Q. Were you present at either time the checks were given to you?

A. No.

Q. Did you know in advance that David was going to be given that money?

A. No.

Q. Did he discuss it with you in any way prior to him getting the money from Louise Palanker?

A. No.

Q. Did you assist in cashing or depositing either of the two checks?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware that one of them was written to you?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have to endorse that one, sign it?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. There’s been a lot of testimony so far about the cleanroom at your mother’s house for Gavin while he was ill. The money that came to create that clean room came from where?

A. From Wheezy, Louise Palanker.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Louise Palanker, either before or after that check was given to you, about how that check would be used?

A. No.

Q. Were you given any money by Fritz Coleman?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask for money from Fritz Coleman?

A. No.

Q. Were you given any money by George or Ann Lopez?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever ask for money from either George or Ann Lopez?

A. No.

Q. Were you present at any time when that issue of a wallet became the subject of discussion between George Lopez and your husband, your then husband David Arvizo?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware of that at the time that it happened?

A. No.

Q. When did you first learn about that incident?

A. I think I heard it from Jamie. And this was after David was no longer with us.

Q. At some point in time, did you learn that there was an unnamed benefactor who was prepared to give you money?

A. Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading and beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, “Yes.” Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who is it who told you about that?

A. Jamie.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; beyond the scope.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. ZONEN: The answer is in?

THE COURT: The answer was, “Jamie.”

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was that Jamie Masada?

A. Yes, that was Jamie Masada.

Q. What was your response to this offer of money?

A. I told him, “No, thank you”; that all I wanted was friends and prayers.

Q. Do you know the name of the person who was this benefactor?

A. I never knew.

Q. Do you remember when that took place?

A. This was -- the best I can remember, it was after all this Neverland stuff happened. That’s the best I can remember.

Q. Did you ever ask Jay Leno for money?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever meet Jay Leno?

A. I’ve never met Jay Leno.

Q. Did you ever have a telephone conversation with Jay Leno?

A. I’ve never had a telephone conversation with Jay Leno.

Q. Were you ever present at the time your son made any telephone calls to Jay Leno or had a conversation with him?

A. No.

Q. Were you present at any of the fund-raisers that took place at The Laugh Factory?

A. No.

Q. Mr. Mesereau asked you questions about medical insurance covering Gavin’s illness during that period of time. Did his medical insurance cover all of the expenses of his illness during that period of time?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. Did you ever tell anybody that -- that insurance was not covering the medical expenses?

A. No.

Q. Were you ever concerned about whether the medical insurance would continue?

A. I was concerned because David wasn’t working. He didn’t want to go back to work.

Q. Did you express that concern to anybody, to your recollection?

A. To my recollection, I don’t think so.

Q. At one point you purchased an automobile -- or, excuse me. At one point -- let me do that one more time.

You were asked a question by Mr. Mesereau as to whether or not you purchased an automobile. Did you actually take steps towards purchasing an automobile?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What was it that you did toward purchasing an automobile?

A. Okay. I had -- I had called a car dealership from a phone booth, from the phone book. And the person -- they transferred me over to the sales department. And the gentleman who spoke on the phone sounded really nice. So I figured that’s the way I’m going to go, through this dealership, through this man. And then --

Q. Which dealership was it?

A. I think it was -- I don’t remember. But I remember it was -- I think it was Hollywood Ford. I think it was. That’s the best I can remember.

And so I had a -- I don’t know whether it was a travelers check or a cashier’s check, one of those things made out to that, in that amount, but I then changed my mind and I had it cancelled. But I -- so I never did purchase a car.

Q. Okay. You had a travelers check that you actually made out for a certain amount of money?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Were you able to cancel that check?

A. Yes, I was. I -- yes. I didn’t follow through with the purchase of the car.

Q. You were asked questions about conversations with Mr. Jackson by Mr. Mesereau. Prior to the phone call on the 5th of February, or the date that you received that phone call from Mr. Jackson when he was in Miami, inviting you to come to Miami, had you had any conversations with Mr. Jackson prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. Had you asked him for any money?

A. No.

Q. Prior to that date?

A. No.

Q. Or since that date?

A. No.

Q. Did you receive any money from him?

A. No.

Q. What was the state of your -- what was your life like prior to that phone call?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

MR. ZONEN: Let me change the question.

Q. On the 4th of February, the day before you received that phone call, were there any problems that you were dealing with at that time?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were your children healthy prior to that?

A. Our life prior to Mr. Jackson's --

Q. No, just limit it to just the question.

A. Okay.

Q. Were your children healthy in early February?

A. Yes.

Q. Gavin was dealing with no medical issues other than the ones that he deals with on a regular basis?

A. This is correct.

Q. How long had you been in a relationship with Mr. Jackson at that time, Major Jackson?

A. It was a new, promising relationship with him.

Q. Were you aware, prior to Mr. Jackson's telephone call to you, that he was even in Miami?

A. No.

Q. Did you express any desire to anybody to go to Miami?

A. No.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, finally, this might be beyond the scope of the cross-examination in which I would ask the Court's indulgence to reopen. I've advised Mr. Mesereau of this. We neglected to show part of the surveillance tapes. We missed it on Friday. And I'd like to show the last part of it. It's about 60 seconds' worth, if I could do that at this time.

MR. MESEREAU: Beyond the scope, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. I'll allow you to reopen.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

Q. You had previously seen some surveillance tapes prior to coming into court and then you saw some surveillance tapes on Friday. This is an additional footage I'd like to show you at this time. And then we're going to stop the tape and have you identify it.

If you could turn down the lights, please.
THE COURT: It's going to be on "Input 1"?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, Your Honor.
And we're on "Input 1," Your Honor?
MR. ZONEN: Bob, did you rewire this?
THE COURT: I think you all ought to go together and hire a teenaged boy to handle this for you.

(Laughter.)
MR. ZONEN: Any teenaged boy.
MR. SANGER: You don't have that hooked up.
THE BAILIFF: Do you want to play it off the DVD?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I think we'll just play it off the DVD.
We'll need "Input 4," Your Honor.
(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, I'm just going to fast-forward through a portion of it that we've already seen.
MR. ZONEN: We're ready, Your Honor.
Go ahead and stop it.
Q. Miss Arvizo, do you recognize those people?
A. Yes.
Q. And who is that?
A. This is now my now husband, Mr. Jay Jackson, and my two boys, Gavin and Star.
Q. And they appear to be carrying something.
What is that?
A. Yes. This is -- they're carrying their military uniforms.
Q. From the laundry?
A. Yes, from the cleaners.
Q. Do you know what street they're on?
A. Yes, actually, this is right near Jay's Army base, which is way far from where Jay was living.

Q. In West Los Angeles, do you mean?
A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: And for the record, the date on the lower right-hand corner is March 20th, ‘03, and the time was 3:47 p.m.

Go ahead, please.

And stop it.

Q. They’re stopping now. The date on the lower right-hand corner, March 21, ‘03, at 8:01 a.m.

Do you know who’s in that car?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Who is that?

A. This is me.

Q. All right. And that car is --

A. And my boys.

Q. That car is your family car?

A. This at the time was -- I’m now married to Jay, but that was Jay’s car.

Q. Okay. The -- do you know where you are?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. Where is that, in this slide?

A. Yes. Right here, I am dropping off the children at their school. Gavin and Star. I’m parked right there in front of their school.

Q. Is the school John Burroughs Middle School?

A. This is John Burroughs Middle School.

Q. And would 8:01 a.m. be consistent with about the time that you would drop them off at school?

A. Yes, this is consistent.

Q. Let’s go ahead and -- March 21st was a day, in fact, that they went to school?

A. Yes, I had already by this time immediately reenrolled them back into John Burroughs Middle School.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

Go ahead, stop it.

Q. It now says March 22nd at 5:10 p.m.

Do you know what we’re looking at here?

A. Yes, this is Jay Jackson’s apartment. Where you see that little rag or shirt, rag, shirt, hanging off the balcony, that’s his apartment.

His -- I don’t know -- what’s that called? Balcony.

That’s what it is, balcony. And right beyond the palm you can see me, I’m standing right there.

Q. And again, this says March 22nd, ‘03, at

5:10 p.m.
A. So if you look closer to the wall where the palm is, right above the palm, that’s me.
MR. ZONEN: Stop it for just one second.
Q. I’ve asked to stop it one more time. Just a couple of questions.
Behind this apartment building, what is there? In other words, is it a parking lot or something that’s right behind? Let me ask it differently.

A. Okay.
Q. Are we looking at the back of the apartment or the front?
A. Yes, you are looking at the back of the apartment building.
Q. Standing up on the balcony where you appear to be, what can you see looking down?
A. You can see the street. You can see other apartments. And beyond that, you can see the actual -- like a little eating area, market area, stuff like that.
Q. Okay.
A. This was Korea Town.
Q. Can you tell, based on looking at this picture, where the person would be who is taking the photograph?
A. Yes. Based on this angle, they would be right there, on the street, because right there is an actual city street.
Q. Do you know the name of the street right there?
A. No, I don’t. It’s just the back side of the apartment building. The apartment building is surrounded by three public city streets. And that’s one of them.
Q. Were you aware -- I mean, now that you know the date, March 22nd, were you aware at that time you were being filmed actually at that time?

A. No. It’s by -- by -- sometimes I would see them and sometimes I wouldn’t.
Q. But on this particular occasion --
A. But on this particular occasion, I did not see them.

MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

Your Honor, we have no further questions.

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Miss Arvizo, the day after you claim you were beaten severely in the J.C. Penney parking lot, you returned to J.C. Penney, true?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeding the scope of the redirect examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you told -- the prosecutor asked you about -- excuse me. Let me rephrase it.

The prosecutor asked you about what happened to you in the parking lot in his redirect examination, okay? And I'd like to explore some more of those facts, all right?

You were in a public parking lot, what time of day?

A. I was in a public parking -- I don't know if you know a mall. Way, way, way at the end. And this particular area where we're talking about, there's actually no windows, no anything. It's almost empty.

Q. It was a public parking lot at J.C. Penney, true?

A. Incorrect. It was a mall parking lot, which was at the furthest distance where this Tower Records sits independently. And there's no windows or no -- nothing of view. So it's kind of like in a -- the farthest away, where -- it's almost isolated, that area.

Q. Is that where your car was parked?

A. Yes, this is where the car was parked.

Q. Is that where Gavin ran to with the items that were not paid for?

A. I wouldn't know that. I wasn't there.

Q. Well, at some point, you saw something going on near the automobile, correct?

A. That’s incorrect.
Q. Did you ever see something going on near your automobile in the parking lot?
A. No.
Q. Did you see something going on at some point that concerned you?
A. That’s too vague. Everything concerned me.
Q. Well, at some point, did you walk out of a building and see some activity around Gavin and David?

A. When I had came out of the mall, I had to walk the farthest distance of the parking lot and that’s where I saw David getting beat up by this male and this female. But, no, I did not see Gavin.
Q. Didn’t you tell the jury the other day that nothing happened to David?
A. As far as to the extent that happened to me, no. But I did see him getting hit by this male and this female.
Q. And for how long did you see David being hit by a male and a female?
A. The best I can remember, it’s from when I had view of to where I walked up to them.
Q. How far away from the car was David when you saw him being beaten up by J.C. Penney security people?
A. Well, initially I didn’t see where the car was. I just saw David. It’s until afterwards did I become aware where the car was located.
Q. Did you ever learn that Gavin had the car keys with him?
A. I was explained that afterwards.
Q. And where were you coming from?
A. I was coming from having had accepted a job for loss prevention from Oshman’s.
Q. Now, you claim that at one point one of the J.C. Penney security guards twisted your neck, correct?

A. This is correct.
Q. You said the person got behind you, put a hand on your chin, grabbed your hair and twisted your neck, true?

A. This is correct.

Q. Okay. You said your head was being pulled from side to side, front and back, correct?

A. This is correct. And these are things that are happening all in a fast motion. But this attorney, defense attorney, wanted me to break it down to millisecond to millisecond.

Q. Did you break it down from millisecond to millisecond?

A. I tried to do my best.

Q. Okay. Did you tell the truth?

A. Of course.

Q. Okay. Now, you said one of the J.C. Penny security guards was calling you “Bitch, bitch,” right?

A. I think so.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to see your --

A. I’m saying I think so. I’m saying yes.

Q. Now, J.C. Penney security guards were assaulting you, if you remember?

A. The best I can remember, it was two males and a female, and then that other one from that other store. That’s the best I can remember. And we’re talking about this event that occurred almost seven years ago.

Q. You walked over to where you saw David being struck, correct?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you claim you never struck anyone, true?

A. This is correct.

Q. You claim you never resisted in any shape or form, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You were just attacked by these people for no reason, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. You said your head was being twisted like the exorcist, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You said that someone struck you with their knee, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You said at some point you were --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as hearsay, unless it's inconsistent with current testimony. The deposition would be hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may proceed.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said you were dragged on the ground, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And who dragged you?

A. I remember how he looked, and it was one -- it was one of the J.C. Penney's people. That's the best I can remember.

Q. Now, you were handcuffed at one point, right?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And you were then dragged with the handcuffs, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you had trouble breathing, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You fell and you were dragged and dragged and dragged, right?

A. Yes.

Q. That was in public view, correct?

A. Like I said, this area is the furthest of the shopping parking mall and it's actually almost behind this building, Tower Records. And on this side of the building, there is no windows. So, yes.

Q. Was it a public parking lot?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it a parking lot attached to a mall?

A. Yes.

Q. Was J.C. Penney's in that mall?

A. J.C. Penney's was on the other side of the mall.

Q. Was Tower Records in the mall?

A. No, Tower Records is an independent building, and that's where these people did what they did.

Q. Now, you said your head, neck, arms, hand, fingers, back, butt, thighs and calves were all injured, right?

A. This is correct.
Q. Do you know approximately what time this happened?
A. Okay. Like I said before, this is something that happened seven years ago, and the best I can remember, it was in the afternoon. Actually, the afternoon.
Q. Do you know what day it was?
A. No. I can’t.
Q. Well, you arrived sometime between 6:00 and 6:30, correct?
A. That sounds about right.
Q. And was it during the week or a weekend, if you remember?
A. I wouldn’t be able to tell you that.
Q. Now, you said that David was driving around the parking lot and delaying what you were doing because you were kissing him over and over, right?
A. The best I can remember -- the best I can remember is that David couldn’t find a parking space close to the mall. And so, yes, I was. I was happy to have a job.

Q. And you said that your appointment was delayed because you were driving around the mall with David kissing him, correct?
A. Like I said, there was no parking near the entrance area. So he was trying to find a parking space.
Q. There was no parking because the lot seemed pretty full, true?
A. No. The -- since I was just going to run in and out to go pick up the drug test, and we were on our way to go wash clothes, so that’s why.
Q. But you testified under oath you were driving around the lot because David -- because you kept kissing David, right?
A. He was my husband.
Q. Did you say that?
A. That -- yeah, that he was my husband.
Q. Was that your testimony?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, yesterday, you said Gavin was six or seven, correct?

A. It's approximately six, seven, maybe -- the boys are about a year difference. So depending -- if we count back seven years, so maybe six, seven, seven, eight, about there. Because you didn't ask me specifically. You said "boys," I think.
Q. Well, you testified on December 14th, the year 2000, that Gavin was eight years old when this happened, right?

A. When -- when -- he's mixing up things purposely. My son was deposed right in the middle of chemotherapy and radiation treatment. And that -- and at that age, he was ten years of age. But when this happened, he must have been -- the boys are a year apart. He was either six or seven, seven or eight. And this is the best I can remember. The deposition was done when my son Gavin was ten and my son Star was nine.
Q. Do you remember testifying that Gavin was eight years old when that incident happened?
A. This was seven years ago. The best I can tell you is either the boys were six and seven, or seven and eight. They're only a year difference. So -- I'm not really good at math, so if you would like to subtract seven years from now, that's about when.
Q. Now, you testified that one of the security guards, a female, kept using the "F" word at you, right?
A. I think so. I believe so.
Q. That she was going to "F" you up, right?
A. I think so, yes.
Q. And she said -- you testified she called you an "F asshole," right?
A. I think so, yes.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to see your testimony?
A. No, I'm saying yes, I think so.
Q. And you testified she did this for no reason, right?
A. That's how I felt. That's my opinion.
Q. They didn't know --

A. Because definitely I did not go inside the store. And definitely I did not do what they were claiming that I had done, which was burglary, petty theft and assault and battery.
Q. And this woman said this to you when you walked over to what was happening to David?
A. I think they were just overzealous security. And so they did what they did. I think they themself were in the moment.
Q. Now, you said you were hit with a closed fist, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. By this woman; right?
A. Yes.
Q. You said you saw David being choked, correct?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Now, you also mentioned that a male security guard assaulted you, correct?
A. They all assaulted me.
Q. And at some point you hit the ground, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And while this happened, the security guards kept cursing at you, right?
A. I believe it was only the -- one of the males, and the female.
Q. You indicated that one of the security guards took his badge and twisted it into your face, correct?
A. I think so. But at that time I couldn’t tell there was a badge.
Q. Well, you testified that he took a badge, twisted it into your face and said to you, “For the tenth time,” and did it, right?
A. Yes, I came to find out afterwards that that’s what it was.
Q. You testified you thought you were going to die, right?
A. Yes, it did feel that way.
Q. And at no time did you resist any of this assault, right?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: This is correct.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And you said at some point you were face down on your stomach, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said at no time did David ever come over to help you, right?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. You said he just stood there on the sidewalk, right?

A. That’s right. He just stood there on the sidewalk.

Q. You said that the woman was hitting you over the head with her handcuffs, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said she was pulling your hair, right?

A. This says -- if -- yeah, that’s the best I can remember.

Q. And you said the male security guard is the one who grabbed your breasts and touched you in your private areas, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You also said he was kicking you, right?

A. I think so. Yes.

Q. And the woman was kicking you as well, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said you had no idea why you were being assaulted this way, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said you were being choked, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You said you were kneed by one of the two guards, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You said they all scratched you, correct?

A. Yes. I did receive scratches.

Q. You said you were hit with handcuffs that were like brass knuckles, right?

A. They had -- I was trying to describe where they were on their hand.

Q. You said that you were smashed like a cockroach, correct?

A. Probably so.

Q. Did you say that?

A. I probably did, trying to -- for them to get a visual.

Q. You said that the male was holding on to your breast with one hand, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said they were hitting you all at the same time everywhere, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You said that Star was assaulted for no reason, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You said Gavin was assaulted for no reason, right?

A. That's right.

Q. And how many security guards do you remember being in the parking lot with your family? 6800

A. Okay. The best I can remember is first it was the male and female. Then another male. Then another male. And then way towards the end, there was another male, but that other male didn't do a single thing. That's the best I can remember.

Q. You said everything became like an echo, like a cave in a tunnel, correct?

A. Yes. It did.

Q. And that's when you thought you were going to pass away, correct?

A. Pass out.

Q. Well, you said you thought you were going to die, right?

A. Yes, but you're taking it -- he's mixing up words. I did feel that way.

Q. And you said they took Gavin and they shoved him into some vomit, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said at some point Gavin just laid there, right?

A. He did.

Q. Okay. Were you handcuffed standing up or when you were on the ground; do you know?

A. I -- I remember that. And the best is -- yes, I was laying down when they handcuffed me.

Q. And you said at one point you were called an “F-ing wetback,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said they were all laughing while they did this, right?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And you said Gavin and Star were following while you were dragged, right?

A. Oh, yes. Oh, that is -- that is burned right there.

Q. You said at one point your breasts were outside your blouse and Gavin helped you redress, right?

A. Gavin and Star. My breasts were outside of my bra, and the boys -- because I was handcuffed, the boys got my breasts, put them inside my bra and buttoned me up. So, yes, it was my boys.

Q. And you said that one of the security guards told you, “I hate blacks and I hate Mexicans,” right?

A. One of the security guards, that was his focus.

Q. Is that what you claim that one of them said?

A. I think so. But, you know, I’m -- since -- this is seven years ago. This is the best I can remember. And since he takes things out of context and mixes words around, I’m -- you know, but that does sound correct.

Q. You said under oath, “Gary said, ‘I hate blacks and I hate Mexicans,’” right?

A. Yes.

Q. You were asked how you felt about the fact that clothes were taken without being paid for and that’s when you said, “David is extremely honest. He’s too honest,” right?

A. Yeah.

Q. You said Gavin helped you get your cell phone out of your pocket, right?

A. Yes, I remember that.

Q. And you were both dialing 9-1-1, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And at some point, all of you were arrested, right, you and David and the children?

A. The children were never arrested.

Q. Did they go to the station with you?

A. No, they never went to the station.

Q. Where did they go?

A. They -- when I was standing outside, the police officer did not want to take the boys into custody. So he had the station call my parents. My parents came. And my -- and the officer gave the boys to my parents and that’s from right there. Then I was taken to the police station after my parents came from there, from the area, and took the children with them.

Q. And you went to the station, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. Your photograph was taken, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Did your photograph show bruises on your face?

A. I don’t think so. I had makeup on at the time.

Q. Do you remember testifying that at the station, you didn’t show bruising, you showed marks, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said, “As days went by, they started getting darker and changing colors, you know, every day, every week,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. You said you had no black and blue marks prior to the incident, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you questions about a woman who worked at the law firm that represented you named Mary Holzer, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you told Mary Holzer that the photographs in the J.C. Penney case were the result of David’s beatings, not anybody at J.C. Penney, right?

A. That’s incorrect.
Q. You said your hand was broken, correct?

A. Yes. Right here.
Q. You said they stomped on your hand, correct?
A. I think so. I think so.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I show you that page?
A. No, I’m saying I think so, so that’s a “yes.”
Q. You didn’t ask that anyone in your family be taken to a hospital, right?
A. Yes, I did. I asked -- I asked the officer and the officer said, “We’re going to just process you. It shouldn’t take long. And then you can go to the doctor’s.”
Q. Do you remember testifying, your response to the following question: “Did you urge anybody at any time, including to the police, that either of your sons be taken to the hospital or receive emergency treatment?” And the answer was, “No”? Do you remember that?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were asked, “Why is that? You didn’t think there was an emergency?” You said, “At that point I could breathe again. And since my mom knows how to fix everything, you know” --
“Q. You were going to leave it in her hands?
You said, “Yes,” right?
A. Yes. Yes.

Q. All right. You said you’re not a doctor, and you didn’t have any reason to think you needed emergency treatment, right?
A. That’s correct. But there’s also somewhere in the deposition where I stated -- what I had asked the J.C. Penney’s people, for them to call the paramedics or something like that - this is the best I can remember - and he declined it. And it’s in there.
Q. And you testified at the time you just wanted the J.C. Penney guards arrested. You didn’t want any lawsuit, right?

A. Show me that.
Q. Sure.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: So this is correct, then.
MR. ZONEN: I’ll object as vague to the question, “at the time.” At the time of the deposition or the time of the event?
THE COURT: You’re refreshing her memory. Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: That’s right. At --
THE COURT: Wait. Just a moment.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that page?
A. Yes.
Q. Does it refresh your recollection about what you said in that deposition under oath?

A. Yes.
Q. You said you wanted them arrested, you weren’t interested in suing, right?
A. That’s correct. At that moment, that second, when the officers came, that’s what I wanted.
Q. You later changed your mind and decided to file a suit, correct?
A. Because the time had already expired for these people to be arrested.
Q. You claim you had a back injury, right?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. You said prior to this event you had never had a back injury before?
A. This is correct.
Q. Okay. You were asked if you knew whether or not David was aware that Gavin was going to run out of the store with the unpurchased items, and you said, “I didn’t have to, no. I know David’s honest character,” right?
A. Yes.
Q. You testified that in the parking lot, your breasts were fondled for minutes, not seconds, right?

A. That’s how I felt.
Q. You said your pelvic area was touched for minutes, correct?

A. That’s how I felt.
Q. You said you were hit with closed fists, right?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And you said the security guard spit intentionally --
MR. ZONEN: There was an objection to the last question, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You said the security guards at J.C. Penney spit intentionally into Star’s face, correct?
A. I think so.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if you see that?
A. I think so. “I think so” meaning “yes.”
Q. Did you say that under oath?
A. I don’t know if -- this is seven years ago, so I don’t know whether it was Star or Gavin, so that’s why I’m saying yes, I think so. But since he said Star --
Q. Would it refresh your recollection to look at the deposition transcript?
A. Okay. I’m saying to you, because he’s saying this, I said yes, I think so --
THE COURT: Just a moment.
THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: He asked you a question whether it would refresh your recollection to look at the transcript.
THE WITNESS: It’s okay.
I remember it happening to one of my boys.
And he’s specifying --
THE COURT: Ma’am, you’re not answering my question.
THE WITNESS: Okay.
THE COURT: Do you want -- will it refresh your recollection to look at the transcript?

THE WITNESS: It’s a yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You also said the security guards started spitting pumpkin seeds at your family, correct?

A. Oh, yeah, I remember that. That’s right there, burned.

Q. And at that point in the deposition is where you said that David Arvizo had never struck you or your children at any time, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. When did you first go to a lawyer after this incident?

A. I think it was about a year later.

Q. So a year after the incident you change your mind and decided you did want to sue, right?

A. That was too long ago, the question.

Q. Well, during the time of the alleged events you described, you said you weren’t going to sue anyone and then you changed your mind, right?

A. There was a criminal proceedings. I was charged with crimes. I was charged with burglary, petty theft, assault and battery. That process took months. And those people needed to apologize.

Q. So you only sued for an apology?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. At one point didn’t your lawyer ask for millions of dollars?

A. No.

Q. But you accepted 152,000, right?

A. No. On -- in my hand, what I received, was only about 32,000. That’s it.

Q. Now, did you talk to the prosecutor last night about what you were going to testify to today?

A. I -- on the telephone he spoke to me that he would like to show these surveillance videos, and that’s it.

Q. Did the prosecutor talk to you last night about Louise Palanker?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Do you remember testifying yesterday you didn’t know what happened to the money Louise Palanker gave you and David?

A. This is correct.

Q. But last night you talked to the prosecutor and now you remember it was used on the room for Gavin?

A. No. He refreshed my memory as far as what it was. That’s all.

Q. Now, you said today -- excuse me. Let me rephrase.

You said today that you never asked for any money to help Gavin, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. To your knowledge, the only person in your family that ever asked for money to help Gavin was David, right?

A. Yes. This is -- now I know.

Q. But on the Washington Mutual account, which was set up to take funds for Gavin, you were the signatory, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You were the one who withdrew money from the account, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. So you’re on that account for Gavin which you have no knowledge of any fund-raisers, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You’re the signatory on that account, but you don’t know why anybody even deposits money into it, correct?

MR. ZONEN: That’s argumentative. Objection.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Can you ask it differently?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Sure. You’ve said you had no knowledge of any fund-raisers for Gavin, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said you never asked anybody for any financial help at any time, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You said you never asked anybody for financial help to assist Gavin, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. Yet at the same time, you set up a bank account --

A. Is this a question or a statement, what you're starting right now?

Q. Yet at the same time, you set up a bank account for Gavin's benefit with you being the signatory, correct?

A. Yes, I did follow David's instructions.

Q. And you have no idea why anybody put any money into that account, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. You just saw the money there and withdrew it, right?

A. Yes. I was David's personal secretary.

Q. Never asked a question of anybody, "Where did this money come from?" Right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Just assumed it was for you to withdraw, right?

A. No. I did what David told me.

Q. And you said yesterday you couldn't remember what any of that money was spent on, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. And you had no idea that Chris Tucker was going to wire some money into that account, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And all your discussions with your friend Aja Pryor, who was his fiancee, the issue of Chris Tucker giving money never came up, right?

A. This is correct. Like I testified yesterday, I didn't become friends with Aja until after David was completely out of the picture. While Gavin was sick we hardly even spoke. The one I spoke most to was Ann Lopez.

Q. And in your discussions with Ann Lopez, you never learned that George Lopez was planning to put together a fund-raiser for Gavin, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. And in all your discussions with Jamie Masada, you never learned that he was putting any fund-raisers together for Gavin's benefit, right?

A. Yeah, this is correct.

Q. And in any of your discussions with Fritz

Coleman, you never learned that Fritz Coleman was helping to assist your family with Gavin’s illness, right?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. No one told you about any of this, right?

A. That’s right.

Q. You never knew that comedians showed up at The Laugh Factory on a number of occasions to help raise money for Gavin, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. You never knew that Gavin was in the lobby with his father accepting funds, right?

A. This is correct.

Q. Now, you said you began to buy a car and then changed your mind, correct?

A. Yes. This is true.

Q. And approximately when was that?

A. The best I can remember, the best, because I never even stepped foot in the dealership, was the fall of 2001. I think -- no. No, no, that’s incorrect. I apologize.

It was definitely the fall. No, it was, the fall of 2001. That’s the best I can remember.

Q. And was the company that you were going to purchase an automobile from Hollywood Ford?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Did you go to Hollywood Ford yourself?

A. I never went to Hollywood Ford.

Q. How did you communicate with Hollywood Ford?

A. I looked in the phone book, and I -- I got their phone number from there, and I called.

Q. Do you recall using any money that had been donated for Gavin’s benefit on cosmetic surgery?

A. No, I used a credit card.

Q. Was it your credit card?

A. Yes. My credit card. Which is still outstanding.

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as exceeding the scope of the redirect.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The prosecutor mentioned the room that was constructed for Gavin at your parents' house, okay? Do you remember him asking you questions about that?

A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. And that's the room that today you say Louise Palanker's money was spent on, right?
A. This is what Mr. Zonen made me aware, refreshed my memory yesterday.
Q. Did you hire a contractor to fix up that room?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if anyone did?
A. I now know that David did hire, through Wheezy, through Louise Palanker. I know now.
Q. Did you have anything to do with a contractor fixing up that room for Gavin?

A. No.
Q. Did you ever meet a contractor who was fixing up that room for Gavin?
A. No.
Q. Did you even tell a contractor what to do to fix the room up for Gavin?
A. No.
Q. Did you have any involvement at all in making sure that room was fixed up properly to help Gavin with his illness?
A. I think so. It's my mom's house. It started with it being in my mom's house.
Q. Did you ever see it being repaired?
A. No. I was with my two other children.
Q. Do you remember when it was repaired by a contractor so that it would be an appropriate room for Gavin?
A. No.
Q. You never had a discussion with anyone about what the requirements were for Gavin in that room?
A. No.
Q. That was all David, too; is that correct?
A. Yes, this is correct.
Q. So David was the one who was telling the contractor what the specifications were for this renovated room, right?
A. Yes, this is correct.
Q. And David was the one telling the contractor what Gavin's requirements were to make sure he didn't get exposed to germs and things of that sort, right?

A. I think so.

Q. Was all David, right?

A. Yes. I wasn't there. I was with my two other kids.

Q. It was done at your parents' home but David was the one taking care of everything, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: Yes, that's correct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Just a moment.

Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, in response to the prosecutor's questions, you said that you never obtained any of the money from the first Louise Palanker check, correct?

A. Yes, this is correct.

Q. That was a $10,000 check written to Janet Arvizo, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that presented to you by David?

A. No.

Q. Well, who presented the check to you?

A. I -- I think this is how it went. I endorsed it, give it back to David, and that was it.

Q. You just said -- excuse me. Who gave you the check to begin with?

A. David had me endorse it, and that's it.

Q. And you know --

A. I think so. That's how it happened.

Q. Did you know David was going to deposit the check into your parents' account?

A. Now I understand, this is my understanding, that my mother cashed it for him.

Q. You didn't know that was going to happen at the time?

A. No, I was with my two other kids.

Q. Well, you saw a check for $10,000 --

A. Yes.

Q. -- made out to Janet Arvizo, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you knew it was made out to you by Louise Palanker, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you're saying that David asked you to endorse it, but didn't tell you where it was going?

A. This is correct.

Q. And you never knew until recently that it was deposited into your parents' account?

A. Yes. This is correct.

Q. Okay. When did you first learn it had been deposited into your parents' account?

A. It wasn't deposited, it was cashed. Just with a lot of events that are occurring now.

Q. And you never knew where any of that money went, true?

A. This is correct. I was -- I did what David told me. I was like his personal secretary.

Q. Did you ever learn that Louise Palanker had written a second check for $10,000 to David?

A. I am aware now.

Q. Did you know at the time?

A. At the time, no.

Q. Well, you were communicating with Louise Palanker a lot at that point, weren't you?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Wheezy was your friend, correct?

A. Still.

Q. And you were talking to her quite often, were you not?

A. I feel -- I feel I was.

Q. Yet, Wheezy never mentioned she was contributing $20,000 to your family?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. Wheezy never mentioned she was writing a $10,000 check to you?

A. This is correct.

Q. Wheezy never mentioned she was writing a $10,000 check to David?

A. This is correct.

Q. You never knew anything about this, right?

A. Yes, this is correct. At that time,

David -- David was more in control of all these previous friendships that I had had.
Q. By the way, do you recall David's using Von's to cash checks?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever learn that David would go to Von's and cash checks?
A. No.
Q. Okay. To your knowledge, did David have his own account anywhere at that time?
A. No.
Q. He had no bank account at all?
A. No.
Q. Did he use a credit union at Von's?
A. Maybe. I don't know.
Q. But you never heard anything about that, right?
A. No.
Q. Now, in one of the police reports involving David's domestic violence, you said you had been abused by him throughout your marriage, true?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; exceeding the scope of the redirect.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: It would have to do with her injuries, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. I'll allow the question.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you.
Q. Do you remember telling the police, when David was arrested, that throughout your 16-year marriage he had physically abused you?
A. Yes. Finally I said something.
Q. You told the police that he would hit you on all parts of your body, right?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. You said he forced your head under water, right?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. You said he prevented you from wearing makeup, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And in a number of interviews with the police, you said he had beaten you throughout that marriage, right?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Yet, in the J.C. Penney case, you said none of your bruises or injuries had anything to do with David, right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. When you testified under oath in the J.C. Penney case that initially you weren’t bruised but as time went on they got blacker and blacker, what did you mean?

A. Well, that I had -- even though I had -- I did have visible abrasions, that even though these people had hit me, it wasn’t immediate. I could see them.

Q. Did your attorney have those photographs taken that the prosecutor introduced into evidence yesterday?

A. Yes.

Q. You didn’t go to a lawyer till a year later, right?

A. No. He’s incorrect. Those photographs were taken immediately with the criminal court proceedings. That stuff, criminal case, whatever. Had nothing to do with the civil case. I had those photos already. Well, actually, my -- the defense attorney had those photos.

Q. Who hired the photographer?

A. Actually, I think it was -- I don’t remember very clear. I don’t remember very clear. But it was per the defense attorney’s actions, ways, I don’t know what you would call it, suggestion. I don’t know.

Q. It wasn’t taken -- excuse me. Those photos were not taken by the police, correct?

A. This is correct.

Q. They were taken at the direction of a lawyer, correct?

A. Yes. This is correct. A defense attorney. Not a civil lawyer.

Q. Where were those photos taken?

A. That I do remember. It’s at -- it’s a place in El Monte. I don’t remember the name, but it’s El Monte.

Q. Was it an office of a photographer?

A. No, it’s actually one of those, like, one-hour photo places.

Q. Who took you there?

A. I think it was David. Yes, I think it was David.

Q. Do you know when he took you there?

A. Immediately.

Q. But didn’t you testify in the deposition you didn’t have these bruises immediately?

A. No. That’s right. When the -- when the defense attorney had told us, then that’s the time.

Q. Who went there to get their photographs taken?

A. I believe it was me and David. And then I think Gavin was -- the boys were with us. I think so.

Q. And were you doing this all at the direction of David?

A. No. I was doing it in the direction of the defense attorney.

Q. And what was this defense attorney’s name?

A. Mr. Fountain.

Q. The prosecutor asked you questions about Attorney Bill Dickerman. You first met Attorney Bill Dickerman on February 21st, 2003, correct?

A. Incorrect. I remember the date. It was February 25th.

Q. Did you ever tell anyone that you met with Bill Dickerman on February 21st?

A. No.

Q. Have you ever discussed with Bill Dickerman the date you first met him?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of Gavin telephoning Jay Leno at any time?

A. No.

Q. Never heard anything about that?

A. No. I’ve heard now.

Q. Did Gavin ever tell you, “I tried to reach Jay Leno”?

A. No.
Q. Were you ever standing in the background during a phone call that Gavin made to Jay Leno?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever spoken to Jay Leno?
A. I've never spoken to Jay Leno.
MR. MESEREAU: If I may just take one second, Your Honor, I'll be ready to wrap this up.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you aware of Gavin making any attempt to contact celebrities by phone?
A. No.

Q. To your knowledge, did Gavin ever try to contact any celebrity from your home?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever contact any celebrity from your home?
A. No.
Q. Did you attempt to contact any celebrities at any time?
A. No.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Ms. Arvizo, did you earlier testify that you had contacted George Lopez when your son became ill?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Did you contact any other people when your son became ill to notify them that he was ill?
A. I think I contacted Jamie Masada, Louise. These are all previous people that I had already known before Gavin had become ill. And that's it. That's the best I can remember.
Q. When did you first learn that Gavin had been injured in the altercation at J.C. Penney's?
A. Okay. My parents had came and picked up the children from the parking lot, because the officer did not want to take them to the police station.

And so it was my mom who called me up and told me that -- that she's tried everything, everything, first aid, and that was still not enough for the kids to feel better.

Q. You say she called you up. Where did she call you?

A. She called me -- at that time I had a cell phone.

Q. But where were you at the time? At what time was this?

A. I was staying in the place that we were staying in.

Q. Okay. I'm asking you when. So had you already been arrested and released from jail?

A. Yes.

Q. And had you already gone to the hospital?

A. Yes.

Q. For your own injuries?

A. Yes.

Q. So at the time that you were being arrested at J.C. Penney's in the parking lot, were you aware that Gavin was injured at that time?

A. I had seen them, the way they had hit both the boys, but I figured my mom, you know, could do what she always does, and in first aid, just like when they fall or scrape or anything, that she can tend to them. So that's what I figured. I didn't think it was beyond what my mother could care for.

But my mom made me aware that it was beyond her capability.

Q. Did you know at the time that you were arrested that your son Gavin had a broken elbow?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did you know at the time that you were arrested that you had a broken bone in your hand or wrist?

A. No, I didn't.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

THE COURT: All right. We'll take our morning break.

THE COURT: Any further questions, Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor. We'll call Detective Vic Alvarez to the stand, please.
THE COURT: Come forward, please.
When you get to the witness stand, remain standing. Face the clerk over here, and raise your right hand.

VICTOR M. ALVAREZ
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: Victor M. Alvarez; A-l-v-a-r-e-z.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Detective Alvarez, you've previously testified in these proceedings, have you not?
A. Yes.
Q. And identified yourself as a detective with the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Office?

A. Yes.
Q. You're going to be testifying to a number of different items this morning, although fairly rapidly. Is that your understanding?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the last time that you were on the witness stand testifying, or perhaps one of the last few times you were on the witness stand testifying, you were testifying to some items that you had personally seized from Neverland Ranch during the course of that search back in November of '02; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. November 18, '02, am I right?
A. '03.
Q. I'm sorry --
A. It would be '03.
Q. I'm sorry, '03. Okay. November 18 of '03.

Exactly.

At the time of your testimony, you had -- one particular item had fallen out of a bag and was not present in court at the time it was presented to you. Is that your recollection?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like to show you Court Exhibit 822. Court Exhibit 822, and specifically -- occupational hazard here -- specifically Sheriff's No. 304-B. Would you take a look at this item and tell us if you recognize that item?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that an item that you seized?

A. That's correct.

Q. Is that the item that fell out of the bag?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And just describe it for us, please.

A. It is a -- appears to be a paperback. It is titled, "The Art of Dave Nestler," N-e-s-t-l-e-r.

Q. Was that taken to another detective who then booked it into evidence?

A. The title is "Wicked Intentions" and -- yes.

Q. I'm sorry, there were two questions. The title of the magazine again was what, please?

A. "Wicked Intentions."

Q. And that magazine was then booked in by whom?

A. I believe it was Detective Padilla.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. I would move to introduce that item into evidence at this time, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: I need to cross-examine on that, if I may, please, before the Court rules.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: I'll withhold ruling on that.

MR. ZONEN: Okay. I'll proceed with other exhibits, if I may.

Q. Detective Alvarez, did you have an opportunity to review a number of VHS videos and compare them as against a number of DVDs?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I would like to show you each of the DVDs and each of the videos and ask you if, in fact, they are duplicate copies of one another, if I may.

A. Sure.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let me begin with four court exhibits, and the four court exhibits are No. 815, a DVD; 816, a DVD; 817, a DVD; and 818, a DVD. Have you seen those four previously?

A. I have.

Q. And can you tell us if you viewed the contents of those four?

A. I have.

Q. And what is the subject matter of those four DVDs?

A. These are surveillance tapes.

Q. Is one of a residence on Soto Street?

A. One is a residence on Soto Street.

Q. And the other three?

A. Of Ramer Street. One of Jay Jackson. One of Davellin.

Q. Okay. Did you -- were you in court on Friday where some of those surveillance tapes were played?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And are those, in fact, the same as the ones that you're currently holding?

A. They are.

Q. All right. Now, did you have an opportunity to compare them as against videotapes?

A. I did.

Q. Let me now show you exhibits for identification, please, No. 823, No. 824, No. 825 and No. 826. And could you take a moment and look at each of those four VHS videos?

A. Yes.

Q. Do those four correspond to the four DVDs you've already identified?

A. They do.

Q. Are they duplicates of them?

A. The DVDs are actual exact copies of the VHS tapes.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Exhibit 822, Detective --
A. Yes. The magazine.
Q. The magazine. It's just a separate magazine?

A. Yes.
Q. That's marked as 822, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you've indicated that it was actually 304-B as designated by the sheriff's department. Was that your testimony?
A. Yes. That's -- it came from Item 304, the original item, and this is -- this was found with Item No. 304.
Q. Okay. So really it was not booked into sheriff's department evidence as 304-B, was it?
A. I believe it was.
Q. Okay. On your booking form, your sheriff's department booking form, the one that was filled out by Detective Padilla --
A. Correct.
Q. -- that would be the form that he used to designate by number the various items that were seized; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And he indicated that the contents of that one bag were 304?
A. Right.
Q. All right. He did not designate it 304-A or B, correct?
A. Not at that time.
Q. Okay. Now, I think you've told us -- and I don't want to be redundant, but I think I asked you about your training and experience when you were on the stand previously --

A. Correct.
Q. -- is that correct?
And I don't know if I went into detail, but let me ask quickly, if I can, you were trained at a police academy; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Which police academy?

A. Allan Hancock.

Q. Allan Hancock, all right. That’s a POST Academy?

A. That’s right.

Q. And you have also had inservice training; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were also a bailiff in Department 9, or whatever number it was over the years, Judge Lodge’s department down in Santa Barbara; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So you had an occasion to see how evidence was handled in court, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you had an occasion to see countless witnesses, police officers, detectives, cross-examined with regard to the chain of custody; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And in your training and experience, both your POST Academy training and your inservice training and your experience as a police officer or a sheriff, you’re aware that chain of custody is important; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And when an item is seized originally by your department, specifically the sheriff’s department, it is given a sheriff’s booking number, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it’s put usually into an evidence bag, assuming it’s the kind of object that can be put into a bag; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That bag is sealed; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And the idea is to come into court and open the bag, and say, “Sure enough, here’s the same contents that were put into that bag originally,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. You would agree that it is not a proper police practice to lose an item from a bag; is that right?

A. This wasn’t lost.

Q. Okay. It wasn’t here when the item was in front of the jury when you testified originally, was it?

A. No, it wasn’t.

Q. It fell out of the bag?

A. It was in the box.

Q. Okay. Fell out the bag, right?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And you would agree it’s not a proper police practice to have things fall out of the bag before you’re standing in front of the jury or sitting in front of the jury and introducing the contents of the bag, correct?

A. Whether it’s proper or not, I -- I don’t know, but it happened.

Q. When do you believe that somebody gave this item the designation of 304-B?

A. Originally what happened was at the initial search of Neverland Ranch, all these items were put -- for example, 304, there were more than one item. Later on, as these items were opened, they were given As, Bs and Cs, depending on what was searched and what was found.

Q. Okay. Detective Padilla gave it the number 304, correct?

A. As a group, yes.

Q. Who gave it -- to your knowledge, do you know who actually gave it a designation 304-B?

A. I’d say it was Detective -- or Sergeant Bonner.

Q. All right. So you were not -- you did not give it the number 304-B; is that correct?

A. I did not. I gave it the original number,

304.
Q. Did you ever see that item between the time you handed it to Detective Padilla and the time that you found it was in the box?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you see it?
A. When Sergeant Bonner was itemizing the items.
Q. So you saw him --
A. This is not the second time I have seen this.
Q. You saw it when Sergeant Bonner actually gave it a designation 304-B?
A. That's correct.
Q. And then your understanding was it was supposed to be put back in the bag, 304, right, to preserve the chain of custody?
A. Either in 304 or designated as 304-B in its own container.
Q. In any event, when you took the stand, 304, the bag that you thought contained 304-A and B, only contained A and not B; is that correct?

A. Correct.
Q. Now, this particular item, which you told us is "The Art of Dave Nestler," is that a book of art by that particular individual?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And that is an item that, to your knowledge, is legal for an adult to purchase commercially, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. I'm not talking about copyrights. What I'm talking about --
A. Yes, yes.
Q. -- it's something that somebody could buy. If they can find it in a store, right, an adult can buy it? There's nothing illegal about that, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And there's nothing illegal about an adult possessing that?
A. I don't think so.
Q. All right. Thank you.
Now, let me just ask you, the second part of your testimony pertained to these videos, and you have related the videos to the DVDs. The actual --

A. Or the DVDs to the video. Either way, yes.
Q. Okay. Am I missing something there?
A. The DVDs are made from the original videos.
Q. You said you related them. That was my word.

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. On the stand you said these DVDs were taken from these videos, right? That's, in essence, what you're saying?
A. Yes.
Q. There we go. And in that regard, the videos -- your understanding is that these video were located in Bradley Miller's office; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And Bradley Miller is a private investigator that worked for Mark Geragos, correct?
A. Correct.
MR. ZONEN: Objection; speculative.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, "Correct."
MR. ZONEN: Lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Proceed.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
Q. The -- you've looked at the videos, correct?
A. I have.
Q. And they appear to be surveillance films of some sort, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. They appear to be taken from a public place, a place where a person would lawfully be, a street or sidewalk; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And that is consistent with what private investigators do from time to time, correct?
A. I'm not a private investigator.
Q. No, sir. But you've seen private investigators' surveillance videos before, have you not?
A. I have.

Q. And sometimes private investigators, for whatever reason, do surveillance videos, correct?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. The magazine that's in front of you, I think it's right below your hands at the moment.
A. Yes.
Q. What is the Court number again on that? The one that we've identified as 304-B, sheriff's number?
A. 822. Exhibit 822.
Q. Where in Neverland did you find that particular exhibit?
A. This was in --
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That's beyond the scope of direct, actually.
MR. ZONEN: Then I would move to reopen on that question if that's the case.

THE COURT: It is the case. I'll allow you to reopen.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you.
Q. Where exactly was it that you found that?
A. This was along with Item 304.
Q. Yes.
A. And it was in the master bedroom downstairs bathroom, next to the sink area by the tub. There's a sink. There's a tub. It was in the middle there.
Q. Was it something that was contained in a drawer or in a suitcase or in any kind of a closed container?
A. I believe it was out in the open.
Q. It was in the open at the time?
Now, you said the magazine wasn't lost, it was in the box. Tell us what you mean by that.
A. As we brought the exhibits into the courtroom, it was actually placed in one of the boxes that we carried it in. So it just --
Q. And what happened with the magazine?
A. It was in the box and wasn't presented in court.

Q. Okay. Fell out of the -- what was it originally contained in within the box?

A. If it’s labeled 304-B, then it was in plastic and must have just fell out of the plastic.

Q. And did you then retrieve it from the box?

A. I did.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. SANGER: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You may step down.

MR. ZONEN: As to Exhibit No. 822, we would move that into evidence at this time.

MR. SANGER: I’ll submit it.

THE COURT: It’s admitted.

MR. ZONEN: And we’ll call Maria Ventura to the stand.

THE COURT: She’s on her way.

Counsel, the in-camera hearing that was requested, I think we’ll conduct that at about ten minutes before the next break. I think ten minutes is a sufficient amount of time for that in-camera hearing. So that will extend the jurors’ lunch by ten minutes and shorten yours by every minute you take over ten.

(Laughter.)

MR. SNEDDON: Why are you looking at me, Judge? I have a guilty conscience maybe.

THE COURT: You must have a guilty conscience.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could you give us a little more --

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau knows.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, oh, oh. I know what it is.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

MARIA A. VENTURA

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE COURT: For the attorneys' information, we have two interpreters. I've given them permission to switch off as they need a break. They know when they need to, and so they may do that while you're questioning the witness.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you.
May I proceed?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Maria A. Ventura.
THE INTERPRETER: May the interpreter spell?
Ventura is spelled V-e-n-t-u-r-a.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Miss Ventura, are you the mother of Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you have other children as well?
A. Yes.
Q. Does Janet Arvizo have children?
A. Yes.
Q. And how many children does she have?
A. Three.
Q. All right. These are the three children from her marriage with David Arvizo?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Does she have a child also with her marriage to Jay Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. And that child is how old?
A. The little one?
Q. Yes, the little one.
A. Eight months.
Q. Okay. Now, the three older children, the children who are the children of Janet and David

Arvizo --
A. Yes, sir.
Q. -- are their names Davellin, Star and Gavin?
A. Yes.
Q. And those three are your grandchildren?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you talk with those three children on a regular basis?
A. Well, they’re my kids.
Q. Does that mean yes, you do?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And do the children speak enough Spanish that they’re able to communicate effectively with you?
A. Yes.
Q. I’d like to direct your attention back to the early --
A. You can speak louder, because I can’t hear. I can’t hear.
Q. I would like to direct your attention back to the early part of 2003, January and February of 2003.
A. That’s fine.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It’s not you. It’s the interpreter.
MR. ZONEN: I was wondering why --
THE WITNESS: What did you say?
MR. ZONEN: That’s what happens when trials go on long enough.
Q. Miss Ventura, can you hear me now?
A. Yes, I do. It was for her.
Q. I understand.
(Laughter.)

Q. I would like to direct your attention back to the early part of 2003.
A. That’s fine.
Q. Were you aware as to where your daughter and her three children were visiting during that period of time?
A. Yes.
Q. And where was that?
A. Neverland. I can’t say it very well, but there, Neverland.

Q. Is Neverland a place where you had once visited?

A. Never.

Q. Did you know what Neverland was prior to that time of January and February and March of 2003?

A. No.

Q. Did you know who Michael Jackson was prior to February of 2003?

A. No.

Q. Do you know who Michael Jackson is today?

A. We all know, because you see it on T.V.

Q. All right. Now, did you ever see a documentary on television that was titled “Living with Michael Jackson”?

A. No.

Q. Did you ever see anything on T.V. that featured your grandchildren, where your grandchildren were shown on television?

A. No. I only see parts of it in the Mexican channel, because those are the channels I watch.

Q. Did you ever see any shots at all of your grandchildren on television?

A. Lately, just little clips, short little clips on 52 and 34.

Q. Did you become aware of the fact that your grandchildren had been featured on television in a documentary?

A. No.

Q. At some point in time, did you have a number of reporters or press who came to your home?

A. Oh, yes. My door, my mailbox. They opened my mailbox.

THE INTERPRETER: Okay, okay.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: They even opened my mailbox. They yelled at me. I even had to call the police several times. They parked everywhere. The worst ones were the 52, Channel 52. The light was so bright they seemed like a soccer field. The police came and told them to take that away. And that reporter, she said no, because she had to do a report. Another police officer came and he did make them to turn it off, and then they -- six o’clock p.m., they turned it on again.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know what it was that caused all of these reporters to come to your home?

A. Yes.

Q. What was it?

A. The participation of that man, the involvement of that man.

Q. All right. Did you --

A. They wanted to find out what I knew from new talk, but I didn’t know anything. I found out later when I watched all those reports, all those newscasts, everything.

Q. At some point in time, did your children come to your home from Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you do something to facilitate their coming to your home, to cause them to come to your home?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I had to lie and say that I was ill so that they could come.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who did you --

A. Because those children love me very much, because I raised them.

Q. Okay. The children specifically, who was it who you told that you were sick?

A. The truth is I don’t remember. The one thing I know is that my children called me.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was it --

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry?

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: It wasn’t stated, so it doesn’t need to be stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was it one of your grandchildren who called you?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember which of the three?

A. No.

Q. Do you remember if it was one of the boys as opposed to Davellin?

A. Yes. Yes. I don’t remember if it was Gavin or Star.

Q. Did you tell that grandchild that you were sick?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE INTERPRETER: I’m sorry, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Why did you do that?

A. So that they could come.

Q. Okay. Were you, in fact, sick at the time?

A. No. Well, no. Well, yes, actually, because I do have arthritis and thyroid problems and things.

Q. All right.

A. High cholesterol. I mean, I can make you a longer list.

(Laughter.)

Q. It’s not necessary.

Did they, in fact, come, the three children?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if it was the same day or at a subsequent time, at a later time?

A. They called me in the afternoon. Later in the afternoon they called me and they said, “Mom” --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may complete your answer.

THE WITNESS: They call me “mom,” because they do call me “mom,” so they asked me if I was sick. And I said yes, because I was -- I was desperate and I was anguished because I hadn’t seen them, and I would get a heart attack from not seeing them.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And did they arrive that day or soon thereafter?

A. The following day, I believe, is when they came.

Q. All right. Do you know who it was who delivered them to the house?

A. No. Because my house is like this, the entrance is right here, so they had to walk.

Q. All right. Did they come into the home, the three children?
A. Yes.
Q. This is your El Monte home, the home in El Monte?
A. Yes. My house.
Q. The person who -- how long have you lived in that house?
A. 36 years.
Q. And your husband --
A. Approximately. More or less.
Q. Your husband’s name is what, please?
A. David.
Q. And David has been married to you for how many years?
A. He’s been my only boyfriend and my only husband and he’s still with me.
Q. How old were you when you met him?
A. 20. 20.
Q. And David does what kind of work?
A. He’s a trucker.
Q. And he has worked in that capacity for how long?
A. His whole life, since I met him.
Q. Is he still working?
A. Yes.
Q. And he’s still a trucker?
A. Yes.

Q. For which company does he work?
A. I’m not -- I’m going to say it, but I don’t know if it’s right. Ralph’s?
Q. A grocery store chain?
A. Yes, the markets.
Q. All right. Going back to when the three children arrived at your house, did you see the person who drove them to the house?
A. No.
Q. Did that person walk them to the door?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Why are you saying that?
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did that person --
A. No, I’m saying him. Why does he say to wait? Is it --
Q. Because he can.
(Laughter.)
THE WITNESS: I’m sorry.
THE COURT: Okay.
MR. ZONEN: Let me change the question.
Q. Did you see at any time the person or persons who delivered your three children to your home?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know who the person was who delivered the children to the house?
A. Miguel’s people.
Q. Is “Miguel” Michael Jackson?
A. Yes. It’s “Miguel” in Spanish.
Q. Thank you.
Miss Ventura, when your children came into the house, was your daughter Janet and her then boyfriend Jay at your home at the time that the three grandchildren arrived?
A. No. I received them by myself.
Q. At some time later that day or at another day, did Janet and Jay arrive at your home?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, they came later.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was it the same day or a different day?
A. Yes. The same day.
Q. The same day. All right. Would you describe for us how the children were behaving at the time that they arrived from Neverland?
A. Those children that came were not my grandkids.
Q. Explain that to us, please.

A. The -- their entire life, my grandkids and I were very close. Their happiness, their sadness, their games, all of that. I was always very important for all three of them.

When they came back, they didn't talk to me the same way. They were different kids. And -- and even up till now Gavin is not the same child.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; move to strike.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: After the three children returned from Neverland to your home, did you receive any phone calls at your home?

A. Many. Many, many. Day and night. I had a red telephone, and it had a square like that. And in that little square sometimes it said "Neverland," and some other time "Frank," or I don't know. And the voice would say, "Gavin, Star, Davellin, somebody answer."

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Excuse me. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Could you actually hear messages being left on your phone?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there -- was -- were there voices on the messages asking for your grandchildren?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Just a moment.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: Have you offered her some water?

I'm --

Yourself too, if you --

THE INTERPRETER: I have my bottle. Thank you.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Could you tell if it was one voice or more than one voice leaving messages on the phone?

A. Sometimes it said on there "Neverland."

Q. Okay.

A. And some other times it was that Frank.

What really hurts me is that my granddaughter erased it. Otherwise -- she always liked to -- well, one of the phones broke down, and she tried to make, out of two phones, make one.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: All right. The latter part of the answer, Your Honor, you're referring to?

THE COURT: We'll leave the first two sentences in.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You told us what you were able to see on the screen on the phone, and you told us you were also able to hear a voice.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that your --

A. Yes. The phone had a little square, and 6862 then you could hear the person talk.

Q. All right.

A. And I never allowed the kids to pick up the phone because I was always watching out for that. You know, I would also get calls very late at night, maybe thinking that I was asleep.

But ever since that time when they came, when they were no longer the same kids, I couldn't sleep anymore because I was always watching out for that phone.

Q. Let me ask you some questions about the messages. Were the messages always left in English?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you able to understand the messages?

A. No. What I understood is as soon as I saw "Neverland" --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What were you able to understand of the messages?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: It's not for the truth of the matter.

THE COURT: I'll allow the question.

THE WITNESS: What I understood is that it said "Neverland" and that they were calling my grandkids. That's what I understood.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You were able to hear the names of the kids being called?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Could you tell if it was the same voice each time or if it was a different voice?

A. The same one.

Q. Give us a sense of how many times this person called.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: The number of times I can’t tell you, but I know that it was very often.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Over what period of time did the calls continue? In other words, was it over days, over weeks, or months? How would describe the length of time that the calls continued?

A. A long time. I couldn’t tell you days or whatever, because I just -- I didn’t keep track of days, hours. And I watched my grandkids until my daughter took them, took the boys. And Davellin stayed with me.

Q. Did you ever become aware of the fact that there were people watching you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: All around my house there was a lot of cars. There was a lot of people.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did anybody ever come to the door and attempt to contact you or the children?

A. Many people came to the door of my house. Cameras. I was -- I was hiding. I was almost like a prisoner. I had to hide. I couldn’t even stick my face out like that, because everybody would just come on, come on over.

Q. Within a week or two after your grandchildren returned to your home, did anybody come to the door, knock on the door, and inquire about the children?

A. Yes. All the time. All the time.

Q. Anybody throw stones at your house?

A. Yes. Once. I’m speaking slow so that you can be talking.

I was sitting down watching the soap operas, because I'm always watching my soap operas. That T.V. I have in the dining room. Davellin sleeps -- or used to sleep in the bedroom that goes out -- that's out to the street. But sitting like this, here's the dining room and there was her bedroom. But I was sitting down when I heard, "bbrrr," something like that.

MR. ZONEN: (To the interpreter) That was well done.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: But I thought to myself, well, it must be the kids just out in the street. But, no, then again, and again. And then by the third time is when I stood up --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive and narrative.

THE COURT: Narrative; sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did you then do?

A. I stood up and I walked around. And Davellin just rushed out of the bedroom, and she asked me, "Mama" -- "Mom, did you hear that?"

So I told her, "Yes, somebody's throwing rocks at the house."

We both went up to the door. And when we went out like that, we saw a man standing next to the car. It was a small car. I don't know if it was black or blue, because it was getting late.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Narrative; nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: After you saw the vehicle, did you see the person near the vehicle?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you --

A. Right at the time that my granddaughter and I went out, we turned like that, because right at the time, a rock was coming on its way, and it hit right on the window of Davellin's bedroom.

Q. While you were standing watching?

A. Yes. Right at the time that we went out, like that.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Narrative; nonresponsive.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. ZONEN: Perhaps we could get the translation of the last -- I don’t know if the interpreter translated the last statement.
THE COURT: Well, I sustained the objection, narrative, so --
MR. ZONEN: Let me back you up a couple steps.
Q. You actually saw somebody throw a stone?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it the person standing next to the car?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you describe that person for us, as best you can?
A. I know that it was a man that was standing there, and he had a cap. Right at the time that we saw the man, Davellin and I, I told Davellin, “Call the police.”
MR. MESEREAU: Objection, Your Honor. Narrative.
THE COURT: Sustained as to the last sentence.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you standing with Davellin at the time you saw the stone being thrown?
A. When he threw -- when he threw the last rock that I saw that hit Davellin’s bedroom window, we were both standing there.

Q. Did you then contact law enforcement?
A. That’s when I told Davellin to run and call the police.
Q. Did you --
A. And so that man very quickly got in the car and took off.
Q. And did you, in fact, call the police?
A. No.
MR. ZONEN: May I have just one moment, please, Your Honor?
THE WITNESS: I don’t really remember, but, yes.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor. I have no further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No questions, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: But the other day --

THE COURT: Thank you. There are no other questions. You may step down.

MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry, Your Honor, I need to call the next witness. I neglected to do that.

Your Honor, we will not be needing the interpreter any further.

Who's doing this, you or Bob?

MR. MESEREAU: Bob.

THE COURT: Counsel, maybe you'd like to take this moment to explain the scheduling issue that you were going to raise while we're waiting for the witness.

MR. SNEDDON: Approach the bench?

THE COURT: No, it's all right. You can just tell us. Go ahead and tell us. I mean, it's not a private matter.

MR. SNEDDON: I think it is, because it involves some evidentiary issues.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone, sir.

THE COURT: All right. Approach the bench.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: Please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

WILLIAM F. CALDWELL

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: William F. Caldwell; C-a-l-d-w-e-l-l.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Sergeant Caldwell, your current occupation, please?

A. I'm a sergeant for the Santa Barbara

Sheriff’s Department.
Q. You’ve been in the Sheriff’s Department in Santa Barbara County for how long?
A. 27 years.
Q. What is your current position?
A. I’m a detective sergeant in the Coastal Station.
Q. I’m sorry, which station?
A. Detective sergeant in the Coastal Station, Carpinteria area.
Q. You’ve held that particular position for how long?
A. Four years.
Q. Were you involved, among other detectives, with searches that were executed on the 18th of November, 2003?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. The area where you searched was what, please?
A. It was the office of Bradley Miller, a private investigator in Beverly Hills, California.
Q. And do you remember the address?
A. I don’t. 211 South Beverly Drive, No. 108, I believe.
Q. Very good. In Beverly Hills?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Can you tell us at approximately what time you conducted that search?

A. At approximately 9:30 in the morning.
Q. And how many of you went to conduct that search?
A. Three of us.
Q. And who were they?
A. Investigator Tonello from the District Attorney’s Office and Detective Forney from the sheriff’s department.
Q. The three of you. And did you have any uniformed officers with you at that time?
A. Yes. Officer Roy Tinkler from the Beverly Hills Police Department.
Q. When you arrived at that location, was anybody at the office?
A. No, sir.

Q. Was the office closed and locked?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Were you able to gain entry into the office?

A. Yes.

Q. And how were you able to do that?

A. We contacted the property manager who ran the building, and she provided a key for entrance into the outer door of the office.

Q. And did that get you through the outer door into the office?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you at some time, either prior to or after gaining entry into the outer door, make an effort to contact Brad Miller?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you do that?

A. I previously obtained Mr. Miller’s cell phone number and I tried to call it and I left a message on his voice mail on the cell phone.

Q. Were you able to get ahold of him?

A. No.

Q. Did you attempt to gain entry into the inner doors in the office?

A. Yes.

Q. How many inner doors were there?

A. A total of three.

Q. And where did they lead to?

A. One of the offices was open. The door led to a secretarial area, and then the other two doors were locked.

Q. All right. Were you able to gain entry into the two rooms that were locked?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you do that?

A. Through use of a sledgehammer.

Q. What does that mean?

A. We forcibly opened the door by pounding on the door with a sledgehammer.

Q. How were you able do that? What -- kind of give us a sense of what’s involved. We’ve all seen it on T.V., but I don’t know that we’ve ever --

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object.

Relevance, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. ZONEN: Sustained as to the entirety of that question or just the comments at the end?

THE COURT: The entirety.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you gain entry into that office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And what were the two rooms that you gained entry into?

A. One of the offices was the office of Bradley Miller, the private investigator, and the second room was a conference room.

Q. All right. Did you seize a number of items from that location?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did you have something to do with the documentation of the items that were seized?

A. Yes.

Q. Tell me what your role was in that.

A. My role was to complete the property form at the scene. Detective Forney would bring me the items, and I would number them and list the items on a property form, and put them in bags, and number the bags.

MR. ZONEN: Excuse me. I'm sorry.

Q. I would like to show you three exhibits currently marked for identification No. 831, 832, and 833.

If I may approach the witness, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You may.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: If you would look at those three photographs and please tell us what they are.

A. Exhibit 831 is a photograph of a cabinet with a television and VCR and a number of video and audiotapes.

Exhibit 832 is a blow-up of some audio tapes.

And Exhibit 833 is a blow-up of some VHS video cassette tapes.

Q. Now, the audiotapes and the videotapes, the VHS tapes that you can see in 832 and 833, are they also visible in 831?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And can you describe in that photograph where they are?

A. They're located on a shelf above the VCR, which is standing on top of the television.

Q. Were items seized from that general location --

A. Yes.

Q. -- as depicted in 831?

A. Yes.

Q. And among the items that were seized, can you just describe what they were, please?

A. Videotapes and audiotapes.

Q. I'd like to now show you a series of tapes, if I can.

If I could approach the witness with all of them.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I would like to show you, if I can, Exhibit No. 823, and that is Court Exhibit 823.

A. Okay.

Q. Can you tell us what this item is?

A. It's a videotape. It's entitled, "Arvizo 2-19 and 2-21." And it says, "Re MJ." And it's my Evidence Item No. 811. It was seized from this cabinet that I've talked about earlier.

Q. And who was it who actually seized it from the cabinet?

A. Detective Rod Forney.

Q. Did you see it in the cabinet?

A. Yes.

Q. Court Exhibit No. 824, please. Take a look at that, Court Exhibit No. 824, and tell us what that is.

A. It's a VHS cassette tape. It's entitled, "To Brad Re Arvizo." It's my evidence Item No. 812. And it was seized from the top shelf, as indicated in the photo.

Q. No. 825, please, Court Exhibit No. 825, tell us what that is.

A. This is a VHS video cassette tape. It's entitled, "Arvizo Move, 3-5-3. MJJ." And it's my Evidence Item No. 815. And this, as well, was seized from that same location, the cabinet above the television.

Q. Showing you Item 826, please.

A. This is a VHS video cassette tape. It's entitled, "To Brad, Jeanette, March, Johnny." There's a phone number, "1-866-256-6275." And it's marked, the other side, "MJJ, Arvizo, 2003." It's my Evidence Item No. 816. And it was seized from the location as indicated, the cabinet above the television.

Q. Item 827, Court Exhibit Item 827, tell us what that is.

A. This is an audio cassette tape. It's marked "MJ" or labeled "MJ." It's my Evidence Item No. 817. And it was seized on that same shelf above the television.

Q. Court Exhibit No. 828, please tell us what that is.

A. This is an audio cassette tape. It's entitled, "Michael Jackson." It's my Evidence Item No. 818. It's also labeled on the side, "Michael Jackson," and it says, "Arvizo, ST, MT, 2-16-03." And it was seized from that same location on the shelf above the television.

Q. Item 829, please tell us what that is.

A. This is a mini video cassette tape. It's marked "Arvizo Move." It's my Evidence Item 819. And it was seized, as well, from the shelf in the television cabinet, the same location.

Q. Now, as the person who we've described previously was the scribe, what was your obligation with regards to those items?

A. My obligation was to collect them from Detective Forney, to note the location that he seized the items from, to number the items, and to log the items in on an evidence sheet and to place them in those respective bags and seal them.

Q. And did you do that as to each one of those items?

A. I did.

Q. The three photographs that I've handed you, tell us again the court exhibit number of those.

A. 831 is a photograph depicting the cabinet and the television, the VCR and the tapes on the top shelf.

Exhibit No. 832 is a blow-up or an enhancement of the audio cassette tapes.

And Court Exhibit 833 is a blow-up or enhancement of the video, VHS tapes.

Q. The content of those three photographs, are they accurately depicted in those photographs?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: I would move to introduce into evidence 831, 832 and 833.

MR. SANGER: No objection.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Sergeant Caldwell.

A. Mr. Sanger.

Q. How are you?

A. Very well, sir. Thank you.

Q. Good. You've been a detective for how many years total?

A. 16 or 17 years.

Q. So 27 years in the sheriff's department, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. 16 or 17 of those as a detective, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Four years as the detective sergeant in charge of the Carpinteria substation or what's now called the Coastal Station, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And Vic -- Victor Alvarez is a detective who works under your supervision; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your assignment in this case came from whom?

A. Well, initially from Lieutenant Kitzmann and Lieutenant Klapakis.

Q. All right. So the two lieutenants, Kitzmann and Klapakis, assigned you, in essence, to be a scribe on the search of Brad Miller’s office; is that correct?
A. Well, they didn’t make that individual assignment. I made that assignment to myself.
Q. All right. Let’s put it this way: They assigned you to go do the Brad Miller search in this case; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did they assign you, with your background and experience, to do anything else in this case other than the Brad Miller search?
A. Yes.
Q. What else?
A. A search of a storage locker in West Los Angeles.
Q. All right. That was related to the Brad Miller search; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. So other than the Brad Miller search and that spin-off, you were not assigned to do anything else in this investigation relating to Mr. Jackson; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. Now, with regard to the location that you searched, you understood that to be the office of a private investigator; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you knew, before you went in, that Bradley Miller was the owner of the premises or was the person whose offices you were searching, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you knew Bradley Miller was, in fact, a licensed private investigator, correct?
A. I was told that, yes.
Q. And had somebody else done some background work on that and presented you with it?
A. I believe that information was contained in the search warrant affidavit, yes.
Q. All right. And at the time you searched, did you know who Bradley Miller was working for? Of your knowledge, did you know who he was working for?

A. I -- at one point I was told that he worked for Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. And later you found out he worked for Mr. Geragos, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, Mr. Geragos, at the time and currently, was a prominent lawyer in Beverly Hills; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And Bradley Miller had an office in Beverly Hills, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. During the course of the search, you determined that there was a connection between Mr. Geragos and Bradley Miller, correct?

A. When you say “connection” I’m not clear on the question, sir.

Q. Well, let’s put it this way: In all your experience in law enforcement, you’re aware that private investigators often work for lawyers, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And in the course of your doing your search, you ran across correspondence indicating that there was a connection between Mark Geragos and Bradley Miller, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, you mentioned that on one of the tapes there, there was a reference -- maybe more than one, but at least one of the tapes there’s a reference to, quote, “Michael Jackson” --

A. Yes.

Q. -- correct? You’re familiar with the manner in which private investigators work, to a certain extent, correct?

A. To a certain extent, yes.

Q. You’ve never been one?

A. No, sir.

Q. All right. But you have certainly dealt with a lot of private investigators during your career, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And a lot of your colleagues in years gone by, who retired from law enforcement, have become private investigators, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And private investigators, when they're working for a lawyer, are usually assigned to work on a particular case; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And often they will give the name of their -- the client of the lawyer -- let me withdraw that.

Often the name of the lawyer's client will be the designation that they will place on their materials; is that correct?

A. My answer would be a guess. I don't know one way or the other.

Q. It's not unusual for people on either side of the -- of the matter, either a private investigator working for a defense lawyer or law enforcement, to refer to, for instance, "the Smith case," am I right?

A. That's correct.

Q. So you'd refer to matters pertaining to an investigation relating to Mr. Smith as being "the Smith matter," right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. That does not, in and of itself, imply that Mr. Smith had any particular control or direction over anything that --

MR. ZONEN: I would object to this as speculative and beyond the scope of this witness's expertise.

MR. SANGER: I didn't finish the question, but the Court got the gist of it, I suppose.

THE COURT: Go ahead and finish.

MR. SANGER: All right. Let me try to start it over.

Q. The fact that, for instance, hypothetically, based on your training and experience, the name

"Smith" appeared on a file or a videotape, or something of that sort, would not necessarily mean that Mr. Smith had any control or direction with regard to what the private investigator is doing; is that correct?

THE COURT: I'll sustain the objection.

MR. SANGER: All right. Very well. No further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. You mentioned the presence of an affidavit. Was that an affidavit to a search warrant?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you have that search warrant with you?

A. I had the search warrant with me, yes, sir.

Q. And had you reviewed the affidavit prior to the execution of the search?

A. I did.

Q. That was a search warrant authorized by a judge in Santa Barbara County; is that correct?

A. Correct.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to move to strike the last question and answer, Your Honor, as beyond the scope of direct and irrelevant.

THE COURT: It is beyond the scope, but I'll allow the question.

Do you want any examination on the issue?

MR. SANGER: No, Your Honor. That's fine.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

MR. ZONEN: We'll call Detective Rod Forney to the stand.

THE COURT: You know, we're just going to start -- in a couple minutes we're going to start the in-camera hearing, so have the next witness available at quarter to 12:00.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

THE COURT: We'll excuse you a little early for lunch; be in a few minutes.

The nature of the hearing that we're going to have is going to be in camera, in chambers, and I'll have the court reporter and an attorney from each side come back. And Mr. Jackson may attend or may not attend, as you deem -- whatever you request, Mr. Mesereau.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

(Whereupon, proceedings were held in chambers and, having been ordered sealed by the Court, are omitted herefrom.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Mr. Sneddon, you had indicated you had a scheduling issue you wanted to raise outside the presence of the jury?

MR. SNEDDON: I do.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, there are several issues I want to address the Court on, and some of it is going to be some good news for the Court and some of it is going to be bad news for the Court, or end up being bad news for me, one or the other. But in any case, I wanted to alert the Court to several issues.

The first one that I want to alert the Court to is, for scheduling purposes, that we believe, under our estimation, that we will probably be completing our evidence by the end of next week, so that the defense is prepared to know that that's -- we estimate we will be done by the end of next week.

The second issue involves -- I wanted to alert the Court, because I had a conversation with the attorney from Las Vegas last night, that one of the witnesses who you signed an order of transportation on, Mr. Carter, who is scheduled to be here either Thursday or Friday, that the lawyer indicated to me that he was going to invoke his Fifth Amendment rights with regard to the charges which are currently pending against him in Nevada.

And that raises several issues to the Court, and to us personally, with regard to his testimony.

And I thoroughly intended to have for the Court this morning a memorandum of the issues involved. And the reason I don’t is because Mr. Franklin’s computer blew up, and playing around with it trying to get the two documents that I had prepared and should have been here this morning and filed by 8:30 didn’t -- aren’t done yet. And my last estimate is they’re working on the computer to free up the stuff that’s in there. I don’t understand it, but a 15-year-old teenager probably does.

So in any case, those were issues I wanted to bring to the Court’s attention that are issues before Mr. Carter testifies. And that’s why I had the order changed from Thursday to Friday.

In addition to that, there are several outstanding issues that we’re going to ask -- one of the other things that we were going to file at 8:30 this morning was to calendar with the clerk a hearing, like we did on the 1108, that it’s now time, since Mrs. Arvizo has testified, to revisit the issues the Court postponed on the testimony of the domestic violence expert that we filed briefs on and counsel for the defendant filed briefs on.

And so before we can go forward on that front, we need to get some rulings from the Court on that, as well as, the Court knows, the issue that I filed and you asked that counsel for the defense did a brief yesterday on Mr. Abdool.

So that’s a long way of saying that the good news is, I believe that we’re about to the point where we can close off our case next week.

The bad news, which I was saving for last, is I don’t think we have enough witnesses to complete this week. And I’m very concerned about our ability to bring anybody in on Friday particularly. And the reason for that is that a lot of the witnesses that are on for next week are people who are coming from -- involve telephone records and things of that nature, which we had to give advance warning and are not local people. And we had to line it up in terms of their transportation and in terms of their ability to stay in order to try not to spend extra money having people fly and cancel trips and pay penalties on flights and stuff like that.

And we believe that we can put all of those people on on Tuesday. We'll have witnesses on Monday. But I believe that -- that also, like I said, we can't go forward on some of these until we get some rulings.

And the last thing is that we want to look at those disks, because that could impact what we do in the future. And not having had an opportunity to look at those and it's not simply something that we can simply turn over to investigators and say, "Look at these things," I think we, as the lawyers involved in the case, are going to need an opportunity to do that.

So I guess what I'm telling the Court is that -- that we will be able to go forward as the Court has asked us to in the past, and that's consecutively with witnesses, but I believe on Friday that we will have a very difficult time rustling up anybody for that date. We did not anticipate certain things that have happened in this courtroom today or yesterday, and so that's where we are. And that's the status on everything.

And as you know, we've only -- one time since we started our case did we finish early. So I think we've followed the spirit, if not the letter, of the Court's rulings. And I think we just have reached a point where trying to get the caboose in line for the finish has been a little more difficult than keeping the train on track to this point.

THE COURT: Do you have enough witnesses for tomorrow morning?

MR. SNEDDON: At this particular point in time, we believe we do. It will be close, but I think, you know, the Court wanted us to get that three hours in, so -- but it's a local witness. So if you were contemplating something else, I could push that witness off to the next day or something.

THE COURT: Well, I think the jurors would be happier with a three-day weekend than with an interruption in the middle of the week. I don’t know that, but I think so.

MR. SNEDDON: I agree with you.

THE COURT: So then the -- so, Mr. Mesereau, before I start saying anything, do you want to be heard?

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, we plan to call a lot of witnesses and we could run into some scheduling problems and we may be asking for some consideration, so I think the least we could do is be considerate in this regard. Because I think anytime you’re putting on a lengthy case, you can run into scheduling difficulties. So --

THE COURT: Are you saying that you sympathize with Mr. Sneddon?

(Laugher.)

MR. MESEREAU: I believe -- I think we should take Friday off, Your Honor.

THE COURT: How about the motions? I think the domestic violence one, we have all the material. I just needed to know where we were. You may want to make some additional points on that, each side, before I rule. But as far as the written work done, it’s done, I think.

MR. MESEREAU: And there are some other issues, Your Honor, I think, like the motion Miss Yu filed, which is important to our case.

THE CLERK: Can’t hear, Judge.

THE COURT: They can’t hear you in the back.

MR. MESEREAU: The motion that Miss Yu filed dealing with examination on sexual conduct --

THE COURT: Oh, yeah.

MR. MESEREAU: -- is an important one to us.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, could I give you two other things to factor into your contemplation?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: We anticipate filing, no later than tomorrow morning, two other motions for reconsideration on issues that the Court’s addressed. They’re short, brief motions, but we’ve almost got them finished.

THE COURT: All right. Well, I think the way that I would like to handle it, then, would be that we take whatever evidence you have -- today, how much evidence do you have for today?

MR. SNEDDON: How much we have today, Your Honor? I think -- I think we'll probably finish the day out.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SNEDDON: I wasn't short today. I mean, we could get ten minutes short or something, but I think we'll be here the rest of the day.

THE COURT: Let's finish the day out with evidence. And then what I would do is, if we finish early with evidence on Thursday, we'll start the motions. I think we could all do with Friday off, so if we can hear -- if we can get to the end of the evidence and still have the motions before Friday, that would be a good thing, so let's make that our goal.

MR. SNEDDON: I can arrange that, Judge. I can drop one witness off the bottom.

THE COURT: You can do that?

MR. SNEDDON: I can do that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Okay. So let's do that. Let's figure that we'll use today, tomorrow, and -- half of tomorrow and Thursday, and we'll go dark Friday, but we'll have the motions done before we leave. That's a condition.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay.

THE COURT: We will hear the motions before Friday.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. SNEDDON: All right.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. ZONEN: We'll call Rod Forney to the stand, please.

THE COURT: Please raise your right hand and be sworn.

ROD FORNEY
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Rod, R-o-d, Forney, F-o-r-n-e-y.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Sir, what is your current occupation?
A. I'm a detective for the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Office.
Q. You've been so employed for what period of time?
A. For the sheriff's department, approximately 11 years.
Q. And as a detective?
A. As a detective for approximately five years.
Q. And your current assignment is what?
A. As a detective in the Coastal Operations Bureau, which is in Carpinteria.
Q. Were you called to assist on the execution of a search warrant back on the 18th of November, 2003, at an office in Beverly Hills?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Do you happen to remember the address?
A. It was 211 South Beverly Drive, and it was Suite -- or Room No. 108.
Q. Do you recall whose office it was?
A. Yes, sir, I do.

Q. And whose office was it?
A. Bradley Miller's.
Q. And your responsibilities that day were what?
A. To seize evidence.
Q. All right. And did you, in fact, seize evidence at that time?
A. Yes, I did.

Q. Now, there's three photographs in front of you. Go ahead and grab those and take a look at those photographs.
Are those, in fact, Exhibit Nos. 831, 832 and 833?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. And can you tell us what those are, 831, 832 and 833?
A. They're photographs of items I had seized from Mr. Miller's office.
Q. All right. And in front of you are a series of objects.
May I approach the witness, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I'd like to show you each of these items, please, consecutively by number, and tell me if you recognize these items. Starting with Court Exhibit 823.
A. Yes, I recognize that.
Q. Is that an item that you seized?

A. Yes, it is.
Q. And turned over to Sergeant Caldwell?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And does that have a sheriff's number associated with it?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And what is that number?
A. Which -- there's numerous numbers that are associated with it. This is Item No. 811 and it's Tag No. 122980.
Q. Okay. Let's -- we'll do the item numbers on this case.
That was Item No. 811; is that right?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. In this case, the court number is 824. And tell us what it is, please.
A. It's Item No. 812, another videotape.
Q. It's a videotape. And you seized that item as well?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And Item No. 825, and this is Court Exhibit 825, what is that?
A. This is actually Item No. 815, and it's a videotape.

Q. When you say “815,” do you mean Sheriff’s No. 815?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And it’s a videotape as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And the next one is Court Exhibit 826. Tell us what this is.

A. It’s Sheriff’s Item No. 816. And it’s also a videotape that I seized.

Q. All right. And the next one would be Court Exhibit No. 827. What is that?

A. Okay. This is an audiotape that I seized. It is item -- Sheriff’s Item No. 817.

Q. And then the next one? Quick, before it falls out of the bag. Court Exhibit No. 828?

A. This is Sheriff’s Item No. 818. And it’s another audiotape that I seized.

Q. All right. And then Court Exhibit No. 829, what is this?

A. It’s item -- Sheriff’s Item No. 819. And it is a small videotape, digital videotape.

Q. And each of these items that you seized and turned over to Sergeant Caldwell, from where did you retrieve those items?

A. I retrieved them from like an entertainment unit in the conference room of Bradley Miller’s office.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the three photographs are currently in evidence. May I publish them at this time?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: We have to switch over to “Input” -- is it “4”?

THE BAILIFF: I’ll get it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The exhibit is 831 that we’re looking at at this time. Tell us, please, in which room in Mr. Miller’s office is this?

A. It would be what I would refer to as the conference room.

Q. All right. And can you tell us what we’re looking at in this photograph?

A. We're looking at the videotapes and audiotapes that I had seized.

Q. This is Item No. 833 currently on the board. Can you tell us what this is?

A. Those are some of the tapes that I had seized that were in the same location.

Q. And then finally 832?

A. Those are also tapes that I had seized from the same location.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Detective Forney.

A. Yes.

Q. How are you?

A. Fine, thank you.

Q. Good. How long have you been a detective?

A. Approximately five years.

Q. And how long have you been a deputy sheriff?

A. A deputy sheriff for 11 years total.

Q. Eleven total including the five as a detective?

A. Yes, and then another 14 as a police officer.

Q. And with what department?

A. Bakersfield Police Department.

Q. Okay. Did you have assignments there other than patrol?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Were you assigned to detectives at any time?

A. I was sort of a street-level vice/narcotics unit and also traffic as a motor officer.

Q. Okay. So would you just tell us -- that's 20-some years anyway?

A. 25 years.

Q. All right. And you were assigned to work on the case regarding Mr. Jackson; is that correct?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And your assignment was to go to the premises of Bradley Miller in Beverly Hills and execute a search warrant; is that right?

A. That’s correct.
Q. Were you assigned to do anything other than that?

A. No.
Q. All right. You’re familiar -- based on your training, you’ve had training through a POST academy, I take it, right?
A. That’s correct.
Q. And then you’ve had inservice training at two different departments you work at, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you would agree that chain of custody is a pretty important aspect of handling evidence; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. And that’s what we have all these bags for with tape on them and initials and dates and all that; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. Okay. Mr. Zonen made a remark about something falling out of a bag. You want the evidence to be in the bag that it was put in so that you can show that there is a chain of custody, correct?
A. That’s correct.
Q. And so you wouldn’t want to, for instance, find a random piece of evidence at the bottom of a box that fell out of its bag, would you?
A. No.
Q. All right. All right. Now, let me just ask you a question or two about the pictures that were up on the board, and I won’t put them back up. But basically, when you did this search, you realized you were searching a private investigator’s office; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.
Q. In the course of searching that office, you found things that seemed to be consistent with this being an office of a private investigator; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.

Q. There were -- there was office equipment and computers, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And there were -- there were videotapes --

A. Yes.

Q. -- is that correct?

There were audiotapes?

A. Yes.

Q. There were tapes other than the tapes that you seized in this particular investigation; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you would agree there's nothing unusual about investigators having surveillance tapes; is that correct?

A. That's correct. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. Thank you.

No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: Oh, I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SNEDDON: Michael Davy. He should be outside.

THE COURT: For the jury, during our last hearing you weren't present for, we decided to not have court on Friday. So we've worked long and hard, a lot of days in a row, and the District Attorney has told us that he expects to end his case probably by the end of next week.

So, considering some issues that we have to decide in your absence, we're all going to take Friday off, not just you. So, remember, there won't be court tomorrow afternoon, and there won't be court Friday now.

Come forward.

MR. ZONEN: Mr. Davy, go right up to the front, please.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Remain standing. Face the clerk. Raise your right hand.

MICHAEL DAVY

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Michael Davy. Last name is D-a-v-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Davy, we’re going to need you to scoot up closer to that microphone, if you can. It’s been a constant problem. But you have to lean into it so everybody can hear what you have to say, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. You’re retired, are you not?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you do before you were lucky enough to retire?

A. I worked for the Los Angeles City School District as a teacher, a counselor and an administrator.

Q. For how long were you employed by the school district?

A. 32 years.

Q. During the time that you worked for the school district, were you at some point in time assigned to John Burroughs?

A. Yes.

Q. And what grades does John Burroughs cover?

A. Sixth, seventh and eighth.

Q. So it’s three years, then?

A. Right.

Q. And what is the size of the school, approximately, when you were there?

A. When I was there it was about 2400.

Q. Now, during the year 2002 - okay? - the school year 2002-2003 - all right? - what were your assignments at John Burroughs?

A. I was a grade-level counselor.

Q. And for how long did you -- were you assigned that responsibility?

A. I worked there about -- I worked there five years, and I was in that assignment for about three and a half years.

Q. At some point during the school year of 2002-2003, were you reassigned some other responsibilities within John Burroughs?
A. Yes.
Q. And what were your -- what was your new assignment?
A. I became an administrator in charge of attendance.
Q. All right. Now, let’s go back to the first one. You were a counselor?
A. Right.
Q. Did you also have teaching responsibilities?
A. No.
Q. Full-time counselor?
A. Yes.
Q. And how many other counselors were there in the school; do you recall?

A. Yes. There’s one for each grade level, and there was a special needs counselor, so there was three -- a total of four counselors.
Q. During the time that you were a counselor and working at John Burroughs, did you meet two students by the name of Gavin Arvizo and Star Arvizo?
A. Yes.
Q. And did you meet their mother?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall her name?
A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. Janet Ventura.
Q. So she was known to you as “Janet Ventura”?
A. Right.
Q. And were the boys known to you as “Ventura” or “Arvizo”?
A. Arvizo.
Q. Now, at some point in time you were assigned as an administrator, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. What are the responsibilities or what were those new responsibilities to you as administrator?
A. It was to process students during the enrollment process, and to process them if they were leaving the campus, leaving the school, transferring to another school or school district. And it was also to make monthly reports to the district on our status, our attendance status. And to find out where kids were that were not coming to school.

Q. At some point during the school year of 2002 and 2003, you transitioned from counselor to administrator, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Can you tell us approximately when that transition occurred?
A. Well, the person that I replaced went out on leave, so I was just temporarily filling that person's job in the early parts of January, February, and March. And at some point, that person retired and I took the job permanently.
Q. So the earliest point would have been January, February, March of 2003?
A. Right.
Q. Okay. Let me show you a photograph, if I might. Just take a look at it for a second. I've handed you a photograph that I believe has the number "338" on the tag; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And in that photograph, do you recognize anybody in the photograph?
A. I recognize Star and Gavin, and I assume the third person is their sister, but I never met her.
Q. Okay. But the two males in the photograph are Star and Gavin?

A. Right.
Q. Okay. Now I'm going to ask you a few questions about Star and Gavin, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. To your knowledge, were they attending John Burroughs during some portion of the school year during 2002-2003?
A. Yes.
Q. And during the time that they were at the school, were you a counselor to them?
A. Yes.

Q. Or let’s take them one at a time. Were you a counselor to Gavin?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you a counselor to Star?

A. Yes.

Q. So that would have been what grade?

A. Seventh. Seventh grade.

Q. Seventh. Now, later, when you were in charge of attendance, did it come to your attention that Star and Gavin were not attending school?

A. Yes.

Q. And as a result of that information, what did you do? What course of action did you take?

A. I notified our pupil services counselor that I was unable to reach the house by phone, and I asked him to go out there and make a home visit.

Q. Does this gentleman -- is this a male or a female?

A. It’s a male.

Q. And what’s his name?

A. Stephen Coffman.

Q. Okay. And did you ever hear back from Mr. Coffman as to whether or not he was able to make contact with the family?

A. Yes, he reported back the same day that he was unable to make contact, and that he had left his card there, and that he had talked to neighbors, but was unable to find out where they were.

Q. At some point after this conversation that you had with Mr. Coffman, did you receive a telephone call from Janet Arvizo?

A. I did.

Q. Now, let’s go back just in point in time. Prior to this telephone call - okay? --

A. Yes.

Q. -- had you met Mrs. Arvizo personally?

A. Yes.

Q. Mrs. Ventura, I guess, as she was known to you.

A. Yes.

Q. And on how many occasions did you meet Mrs. Ventura?

A. Numerous. She came up to school regularly.

Q. And how would you describe her in terms of her cooperation with you and the school?

A. She was very supportive of our efforts.
Q. Now, at the time that you received a telephone call from her after Mr. Coffman had gone out to her house and been unable to locate her - okay? --
A. Yes.
Q. -- with regard to that telephone conversation, did you find anything unusual or different about that telephone call with Mrs. Ventura than your previous contacts with her?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague and leading.
THE COURT: Sustained. Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: On which ground, Your Honor? Just so I know.
THE COURT: Vague.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: During the course of your conversation with Mrs. Ventura after Mr. Coffman went out to the house, how would you describe her demeanor?
A. It wasn’t forthcoming.
Q. Was that unusual, in your opinion?
A. Yes.
Q. And when the subject -- would you tell us what the subject matter of the conversation was?
A. Right, I --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: With regard to the conversation that you had with Mrs. Ventura - okay? - did it involve the attendance of the kids at school?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And as a result of the conversation with Mrs. Ventura, did you give her some information that was necessary with regard to the kids’ future attendance at school?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. What did you tell her?
A. I -- they had been gone more than ten days, and I said that I needed her to bring them back to school or check them out. And she said to me that --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, it’s offered as circumstantial evidence with regard to her state of mind at this particular point in time.
THE COURT: The objection is sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. So without telling us what she said, would you tell us what you said to her, what instructions you gave her?
A. Right. I told her that I needed the students to either return to school or to check out. And she said it was not --

Q. You can’t tell us what she said.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: She said something in response to that, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And then did you say anything back to her?
A. I told her we cannot keep the kids in -- on our books as students at the school for any longer than we already had. And that if it was going to be an extended stay, they were going to be gone for a while, they needed to be checked out. And when they were available to come back to school, we would check them back in.
Q. All right. And did you give Mrs. Ventura some directions as to what was necessary to check the children out of school?
A. Right.
Q. Tell us what you told her.
A. I asked her to come in and check the students out. She said that wasn’t --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. So you asked her to personally come in and do it?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And she said something back to you?
A. Right.

Q. And as a result of that, did you give her further direction as to what procedurally would have to be followed to get those children out of school?

A. Right.

Q. Tell us what you told her.

A. I indicated that if she was unable to come, that we needed someone with a note from her, and her driver’s license, and that person needed to be able to have an I.D. also. And that we needed the textbooks returned, and to do it quickly, to do it soon.

Q. All right. At that point in time, did you become aware of the fact that somebody came to check the children out of school?

A. Yes. She said that somebody would come in a day or two.

Q. And did you write a note to somebody to expect this to happen?

A. I wrote a note to my secretary that a person would be coming with her I.D. and his I.D. and pay for the books, and to direct that person to the book room to pay for any textbooks that weren’t there.

Q. Now, did you at some point actually meet somebody who came to check the boys out of school?

A. I did.

Q. And do you remember the name of that person?

A. Yes. It was Mr. Amen. Vincent Amen.

Q. All right. And did you personally deal with him on the check-out procedure?

A. The secretary gave him the paperwork and made copies of his I.D. and Miss Ventura’s driver’s license, and she kept the note that was sent along with him.

And, you know, I spoke to him briefly, but I didn’t handle the nuts and bolts of it. The secretary did.

Q. And were some books paid for on that particular occasion?

A. Books were paid for, yes.

Q. By whom?

A. By Vincent Amen.

Q. All right. I’m going to show you some exhibits. Counsel, it will be 271 and 272. I want you to take a look at the exhibit that's been marked as 271-A and ask if you recognize that.

A. Yes.

Q. That exhibit is actually in evidence. And how do you recognize it?

A. It's my note to the secretary.

Q. That's in your handwriting, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. What's the date of that note?

A. February 5th. I'm sorry, I don't have my glasses on. March 5th.

Q. I'm sorry, I couldn't hear you.

A. March 5th.

Q. All right. Was that note prepared at the time of -- that date?

A. I think it -- I prepared it the day that I had the phone call.

Q. Okay.

A. I had the conversation.

Q. All right. Turn the next page to page B, if you would. Do you recognize page B?

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to page B, what is that?

A. That's a school form that we use when students check out.

Q. And for what student is that?

A. This is for Gavin Arvizo.

Q. And does it indicate the destination?

A. It does.

Q. As what?

A. Phoenix, Arizona.

Q. All right. Let's go to C, if we can. And this is 271-C. What is that document?

A. It is a note from Miss Arvizo.

Q. That's a document that you indicated she needed as part of the process if she was going to have somebody else check them out?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And lastly, 271-D, what's that?

A. These are copies of Miss Arvizo’s -- or Miss Ventura’s I.D., driver’s license, and Mr. Amen’s driver’s license.
Q. Okay. Now, let’s move to 272, if we can.
All we need you to do is just flip this over. Thank you.
And 272-A, which is in evidence, what is that?
A. It’s the check-out sheet for Star Arvizo.
Q. And is the destination indicated on that also?
A. Yes. Phoenix, Arizona.
Q. And the next page, which would be 272-B?
A. It’s a note from Miss Ventura to check out Star.
Q. Okay. And on the last page, on the back side of that is what?
A. That’s the school form where the teachers sign the student’s check-out form and put a grade there.
Q. And does that indicate that books were paid for on that form?
A. It does.
Q. All right. I’ll take that. Thank you.
During the time that -- I want to make it more particular, but -- well, during the year -- the school year 2002 and 2003 - okay? - at John Burroughs, was there an instructor there by the name of Mr. Geraldt?

A. Yes. Mr. Geraldt, yes.
Q. Geraldt. And how long have you known Mr. Geraldt?
A. Five years.
Q. And had you worked at the same school with him --
A. Yes.
Q. -- during that five-year period?
A. Right.
Q. And what was Mr. Geraldt’s position with the school?
A. He was a classroom teacher, and he also handled the detention room. And in the mornings, he didn’t have a home room. He processed students that were late to school.

Q. Did the manner in which Mr. Geraldt interacted with some of the students and parents at the school cause problems?

A. Yes.

Q. In what respect?

A. He had a kind of paramilitary demeanor about him. He was kind of a drill instructor, in your face, you know. Kind of shouty, loud, and, you know, “You need to do this” and -- just aggressive.

Q. And did that cause problems with some of the students?

A. It did.

Q. Did it cause problems with some of the parents?

A. It did.

Q. And did the school have to take actions towards him to try to calm down his behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, at some point -- I didn’t ask you this, but I should have. The documents that -- 71 (sic) and 72 (sic) that show that Gavin and Star were checked out of the school, those were completed on the day that the children were checked out?

A. Yes.

Q. That’s correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That would have been in March of 2003?

A. Right.

Q. Now, did Gavin and Star come back to John Burroughs later?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember approximately when it was?

A. About three weeks later.

Q. Now, do you recall an incident in which a person by the name of Major Jay Jackson came to contact you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And do you know who Major

Jay Jackson is?
A. I do.
Q. Where did you first meet Mr. Jay Jackson, Major Jay Jackson?
A. I met him in my office when I was having a conference with Gavin’s mother, and he attended with her.
Q. Now, on the particular day when Major Jackson approached you, do you remember approximately when that was in relationship to the kids coming back to school, Gavin and Star?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Tell the jury --
A. It was -- it was shortly thereafter. Within a few days or a week.
Q. And where were you when Major Jackson approached you?
A. I was in front of the school.
Q. I’m sorry?
A. In front of John Burroughs.
Q. And could you describe his demeanor at the time that he approached you?
A. All right. He was agitated. He said that there was a --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
MR. SNEDDON: It’s offered to explain the conduct of this witness in response to the information that was provided.

THE COURT: I’ll sustain the hearsay objection.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. I don’t know if we got an answer to the first part, so I’ll just start over again. And don’t tell us what Major Jackson told you, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. Would you describe his demeanor when he first approached you?
A. He was agitated.
Q. All right. And without telling us what he said, did he say something to you --
A. Yes.
Q. -- that caused you to do something?
A. Yes.

Q. All right. As a result of the information that you received from Major Jackson, what did you do?

A. I went down to the street and approached a car that had a gentleman in it that was videotaping students.

Q. Did you actually see the camera?

A. Yes.

Q. And where was the camera at the first point that you saw it?

A. In the driver’s hand.

Q. And in what direction was it pointed?

A. Out the windshield.

Q. Now, let’s pause for just a second, if we can, and go back.

At what point in the school day was it that Major Jackson approached you?

A. It was dismissal time.

Q. Can you describe to the jury what it’s like at John Burroughs at dismissal time in terms of the traffic flow?

A. John Burroughs is situated in a residential area between two major streets. And at dismissal time, the only way out of the school is through the front or the north and south end of the school. You can’t exit the back of the school because there’s houses back there. So the vast majority of these 2400 kids leave out the front or the side, but they end up in front of school.

And there’s school buses out there, and there are parents, a lot of parents there to pick up their students. So you have a traffic jam for about 15 or 20 minutes where the traffic flow is very, very slow. Only about five or six cars can go through the light at a time, because the students crossing the street hold up traffic. So it would take you -- it will take you 15 minutes to go from one end of the block to the other at dismissal time.

Q. Now, at the time that you approached this car, do you remember what kind of a car it was?

A. Generally, yes.

Q. Tell us.

A. It was a Nissan sports car.
Q. And where was this car in terms of the relationship with this traffic flow at the point?
A. It was in gridlock. It was in front of school in the gridlock.
Q. Were you actually able to go up to the driver of the car?
A. Yes. Yeah, that’s --
Q. Did you have a conversation with the driver of the car?
A. I walked up to the driver and I told him that he couldn’t videotape students. And he -- I said, “I need you to stop videotaping students.”
And he said, “Okay,” and set the camera down on the seat or the floor of the car.
Q. Did you write down the license number of the car?
A. I did not.
Q. Was there any school security available to you on this particular day?
A. On that particular day, the school police officer was not present. And I gave him a note the next day describing the car and telling him the situation.
MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Davy.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. My name is Thomas Mesereau. I speak for Mr. Jackson.
When did you first meet the Arvizo family?
A. Fall of 2002.
Q. Okay. And was that when Gavin and Star entered your school?
A. Yes.
Q. And Gavin and Star entered your school approximately November of 2002, right?
A. Yes.
Q. What grades were they in?
A. Seventh.
Q. Okay. They both were in seventh?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay.

A. I think Gavin had lost a year. He’s older, but he had lost a year from his health problems.

Q. Okay. And had you known them before they entered your school in November of 2002?

A. No.

Q. Had you known anyone else in the family before they entered your school in 2002?

A. No.

Q. Gavin was consistently a disciplinary problem, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. His behavior was disruptive and challenging, in your own words, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Gavin would routinely act up in class, right?

A. Correct.

Q. He would display poor cooperation with students and teachers, right?

A. Right.

Q. He would create situations in which he had an audience to view his poor behavior, right?

A. Yes.

Q. His grades were low throughout his education, right?

A. They were at John Burroughs.

Q. Yes. Pardon me.

A. Yes.

Q. His grades at John Burroughs were consistently low, correct?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And you felt he didn’t apply himself in a constructive manner in school, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You had a number of parent meetings with Gavin, Janet and Jay in which Gavin’s poor behavior was discussed at length, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you felt that Gavin was the kind of young man who could handle himself with adults, right?

A. He thought he was the kind of person.

Q. You felt he could handle himself with adults also, didn’t you?

A. He was -- he was pretty glib, yes.

Q. You did actually write a report -- excuse me, not “write a report.” You gave an interview where you actually made that statement, did you not, about Gavin; that he can handle himself with adults?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. You looked at his school records at one point, correct?

A. You know, I don’t recall that.

Q. Do you recall concluding that Gavin’s grades at your school were very similar to his grades at other schools he had attended?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. It calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you yourself ever look at Gavin’s grades from other schools and compare them to the grades he got at your school?

A. You know, I don’t recall that.

Q. Do you remember being interviewed by a Sergeant Steve Robel of the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Office?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember telling Sheriff Robel that you saw a consistent pattern of poor grades from school to school with Gavin?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. It’s hearsay. It calls for reliance on hearsay records.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: You know, I honestly don’t recall it.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Might it refresh your recollection to look at a police report about your interview?

A. Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Davy, have you had a chance to look at that report? Does it refresh your recollection about what you told Sheriff Robel about that issue?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you tell him?

A. That he had consistently underperformed in his academic pursuits.

Q. Do you recall that you were asked if you had seen any change in Gavin’s demeanor, attitude or academic performance from the period prior to February 2003 to the time Gavin returned to school on March 17th, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall your saying you had seen no definitive change in Gavin’s demeanor, attitude or academic performance during that period?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Gavin had a truancy counselor, correct?

A. Well, are you talking about Mr. Coffman?

Q. Yes.

A. Well, Mr. Coffman was an itinerant. He came to school two or three days a week and dealt with -- he would get computer readouts of people who had long-term absences.

Q. Okay. Is the appropriate label for him truancy counselor?

A. No, it’s pupil service and attendance counselor.

Q. Okay. And you said he would come three days a week?

A. Yeah. Oftentimes schools have to buy that time. So sometimes the school would buy two days and another school would buy three days, so he would split the assignment.

Q. Okay. And did you discuss issues involving Gavin with Mr. Coffman?

A. I don’t know about issues. I asked him to go to Gavin’s house.

Q. Okay. And the purpose was to talk to the family about why Gavin wasn’t going to school?

A. Right. At that point in time.

Q. Okay. Now, you indicated to the prosecutor that at some point someone named Vinnie Amen came to the school to check Gavin and Star out; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And Mr. Amen provided the school with a copy of his identification, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And he gave the school a copy of his New Jersey driver’s license for the school files, right?

A. Right.

Q. And to your knowledge, did he sign anything when he was checking these two students out; do you know?

A. I don’t know.

Q. But your understanding was that Janet had given him permission to check out Gavin and Star, right?

A. Right.

MR. SNEDDON: I object, Your Honor. It calls for a conclusion.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In your response to the prosecutor’s questions, correct me if I’m wrong, did you say something to the effect that the school had permission from Janet to allow Mr. Amen to check out these two students?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object. Calls for hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: His state of mind, Your Honor. I believe he testified to it on direct.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained. I believe you objected to the same testimony.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

Q. At some point, was it your understanding that Mr. Amen did, in fact, check out the two students?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And what would the normal procedure be for allowing someone not in the family to check out a student?

A. A permission slip written by the parent.

Q. Okay. And did you follow the normal procedure when Mr. Amen was checking out Gavin and Star?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you know how many meetings you had with Ms. Arvizo about Gavin’s poor behavior?
A. Not an exact number, no.
Q. And when Gavin was checked out of the school, how long had he been attending that school, if you remember?
A. Well, just months, since November. So

November to late February.
Q. And would it be accurate to say that even though he was only there a few months, it became readily apparent that he was a disciplinary problem, right?
A. Yes.
Q. The disciplinary problems began -- excuse me. The disciplinary problems with Gavin began in November of 2002, right?
A. I don’t recollect the first time.
Q. But certainly around that time, correct?
A. Probably.
Q. Now, what typically is the procedure you follow at this school if somebody has a disciplinary problem?
MR. SNEDDON: Object as immaterial, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall Gavin being late to class?
A. Not specifically, but I’m guessing that he was.
MR. SNEDDON: Object. Move to strike. Speculation. That part beyond the --
THE COURT: It’s stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would it refresh your recollection to look at some school records in that regard?

A. Sure.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Davy, have you had a chance to look at those records?

A. Yes.

Q. Do they refresh your recollection about disciplinary problems you had at your school with Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Excuse me, Your Honor. I’m going to object to the question. That wasn’t the question that he was refreshing. I won’t talk any more, but I don’t believe that’s the question.

THE COURT: That’s correct. It’s not.

MR. MESEREAU: Let me rephrase my question, Your Honor. I’ll withdraw that one.

Q. Mr. Davy, does the document you just looked at refresh your recollection about Gavin being late to class?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that a problem with him while he attended your school?

A. On occasion, yes.

Q. Do you recall a problem with Gavin banging on doors at your school?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall Gavin being consistently warned about his bad behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall problems with Gavin arguing with teachers?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recall problems with Gavin arguing with students?

A. No, I don’t.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection just to look at those records again?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that record?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, before counsel asks his next question, I want to interpose an objection to lack of foundation as to whether he’s aware of those records. Has he ever seen them?

MR. MESEREAU: Just refreshing recollection, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. The objection as to lack of foundation is overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall, Mr. Davy, problems with Gavin arguing with another student?
A. From those records, yes.
Q. Do you recall a problem with Gavin having a negative impact on his class?

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall problems with him jumping around, quote, “like retarded people”?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall problems with Gavin mumbling in class?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall your having to detain Gavin for disciplinary problems?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is the detention procedure that you would have used with him?
A. Well, basically you have to stay after school for an hour.
Q. Okay. And do you recall a problem with him that required lunch detention?
A. Well, a number of people can assign detention, so I don’t recall that. But I’m guessing that he served lunch detention.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the records?
A. If it’s there, it happened.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: I think the problem that we have is that I overruled an objection by Mr. Sneddon about foundation, but the -- when counsel asks you if it refreshes your recollection, that doesn’t mean that you then testify about what’s in the record. It means do you independently -- now do you independently remember this?
For example, “Do you know if he was late for school?” And you say, “I don’t remember.” Then he says, “Well, will this refresh your recollection?”

And you look at it. And that’s asking you, “Do you” -- “Now do you remember seeing him be late for school,” not “What does the record say?”

THE WITNESS: Okay, I misunderstood that.

THE COURT: Okay. So --

THE WITNESS: The fact --

THE COURT: You don’t need to come back to it. But the point we’re at is, you want to ask him if he can refresh his recollection about -- what was it?

MR. MESEREAU: About Gavin having been detained at lunch.

THE COURT: Okay. Would looking at these records help you refresh your recollection about being detained at lunch?

THE WITNESS: No, simply because oftentimes those are reflections of dean’s entries or another counselor’s entries.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, could I --

Excuse me, Counsel.

THE COURT: Yeah.

MR. SNEDDON: I don’t want to be burdensome,

but I think that I would move to strike --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Microphone.

MR. SNEDDON: I don’t want to be burdensome, but I move to strike all of the questions that he’s used to refresh recollection until the proper foundation can be established that this witness actually remembered that, as opposed to some record.

MR. MESEREAU: I believe, Your Honor, the witness has said he remembers it and spoke to a sheriff in an interview and made those conclusions.

THE COURT: Well, the problem that’s come up is whether or not he was refreshing his memory to things he actually can remember, or if he was just telling you what you showed him in the record.

So what I’ll do is go back and sustain the foundation objection that he made before you asked him these series of questions relating to Gavin’s behavior and strike those answers. And then you can proceed again to see --

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

THE COURT: -- what he remembers and what was just in the record.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Davy, I want to go back over some questions I asked you earlier.

Now, you were interviewed by Sheriff Steve Robel of the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Office approximately December 4th, 2003. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was at your school in Hollywood, right?

A. In Hancock Park, yeah.

Q. And for the purpose of that interview, you obtained Gavin's cumulative school files and his disciplinary file, correct?

A. I did. But one of the things that you need to understand is that there was another office that also handled discipline, other than the counseling office. And so some of the records that I think you're referring to came out of that office.

Q. Okay. But you did tell Sergeant Robel that you had obtained Gavin's cumulative school files and his discipline file from Bonnie Murrow, right?

A. She took my place when I transferred, so she wasn't there at that time.

Q. Do you recall telling Sergeant Robel that you had obtained Gavin's cumulative school files and his discipline file from Bonnie Murrow?

A. I believe that was after I left the school.

Q. Okay. But you did obtain those files, correct?

A. I went to obtain them. I think they were under subpoena.

Q. Do you recall meeting with Sergeant Steve Robel in a principal's office to review and discuss the files' contents?

A. Yes.

Q. And you did, in fact, discuss those contents with Sergeant Robel, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You gave Sergeant Robel a brief history of the schools Gavin had recently attended, true?

A. True.

Q. They were LeConte Middle School for sixth grade, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’m going to object as hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Had you counseled Gavin in your position at Burroughs?

A. Yes.

Q. And what had you counseled Gavin about?

A. Disruptive behavior in the classroom.

Q. Why did you counsel Gavin about his disruptive behavior in the classroom?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, this has been asked and answered.

MR. MESEREAU: If it’s in the record, Your Honor, I don’t have a problem. But I wasn’t sure if -- you’d asked me to go over this again.

MR. SNEDDON: Not this. Sorry, I apologize.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Why did you counsel Gavin?

A. I was receiving referrals from his classroom teachers.

Q. Were they negative referrals?

A. Yes.

Q. Were they consistently negative referrals?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it normal procedure when you received consistently negative referrals about a student that you try to counsel that student?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have many counseling sessions with Gavin about his poor behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know approximately how many you had?

A. Probably a half a dozen.

Q. Did you counsel him individually or with others present, if you know?

A. Individually.

Q. Is that the normal procedure for that type of counseling?

A. Yes. Oftentimes with a parent, too, present.

Q. Did you also counsel Gavin with any parent present?

A. Yes.

Q. And what parent was typically present for those meetings?

A. Miss Ventura. And sometimes Miss Ventura and Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. Did you tell Ms. Ventura that Gavin's behavior was disruptive and challenging?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Ms. Ventura that Gavin would routinely act up in class?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Ms. Ventura that he displayed poor cooperation with students and teachers?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell Ms. Ventura that Gavin would create situations in which he had an audience to view his poor behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you tell Ms. Ventura that his grades were consistently low throughout his schooling?

A. I think she knew that.

Q. Okay. Do you recall meeting with Jay Jackson to talk about Gavin's poor behavior?

A. With -- with Miss Ventura present.

Q. Yes. But you did meet with Miss Ventura and Jay Jackson to talk about Gavin's consistently disruptive behavior, right?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And Gavin was present at those meetings, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you told Ms. Ventura that you had seen no definitive change in Gavin's demeanor or attitude or academic performance from the period prior to February 2003 to the time following his return to school on March 17th, 2003, right?

A. Right.

Q. Now, you indicated that at some point, Mr. Coffman went to Gavin's home; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you know where that was?

A. Not offhand. I mean, we use school records for that. I don’t have access to that right now.

Q. To your knowledge, did Mr. Coffman find anyone home?

A. No.

Q. Did you meet with Mr. Coffman to talk about that issue?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it Mr. Coffman’s responsibility to try and locate Ms. Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And at some point, to your knowledge, he did locate her, correct?

A. Well, what they typically do is talk to neighbors and leave business cards with people. And at some point she contacted me.

Q. She contacted you and gave her permission to have Mr. Amen check out her sons, correct?

A. Correct.

MR. SNEDDON: Object. Calls for a conclusion. It’s the same question that was asked before.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you recall a problem with Gavin Arvizo singing in the classroom?

A. No.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to look at these school records?

A. Like I said, those records may have been written by someone else.

Q. Okay. Well, the question would be if you remember.

A. No, I do not.

Q. Is it possible they would refresh your recollection about that, since you counseled him on those issues?

A. I didn’t -- I wasn’t the only person that counseled him.

Q. Well, let me ask you this: You don’t remember an issue of him singing in class, right?

A. Right.

Q. If you look at some records, might they refresh your recollection about that problem?

A. Well, it will refresh my memory that it happened, but that I may not have handled it. I don't know who wrote those records.

Q. I'm only asking you about your memory about whether it happened, okay?

A. I don't have a recollection.

Q. Might it refresh your recollection to look at the records?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to the question. He says -- it's asked and answered.

THE COURT: All right. The witness is just trying to follow my instructions. Go ahead and show him the record.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Have you had a chance to look at that school record?

A. I have.

Q. Does it refresh your recollection about any problem in that regard?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you recall problems with Gavin disrupting test-taking?

A. No.

Q. Is that something you recall counseling him about?

A. My general recollections of counseling him were disruptive behavior. Specifically whether it was testing or singing, whatever, it doesn't -- I can't speak to that.

Q. Okay. Did you talk to various teachers at the school about Gavin's consistently disruptive behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. How many teachers did you talk to about his disruptive behavior, if you remember?

A. Well, I'm sure I spoke to the ones that were writing referrals.

Q. Were a lot of his teachers writing referrals?

A. The students at that grade level were in a group of teachers that had the same students all day. So generally if one teacher had a problem in that group, they all had a problem.

Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you questions about a teacher named Geraldt; is that correct?

A. Geraldt.

Q. And I believe you said words to the effect you thought he was somewhat -- acted in -- somewhat in a paramilitary kind of way?

A. Yes.

Q. What did you mean by that?

A. Well, he had a kind of drill instructor demeanor, I mean, when he was dealing with students that were late to class or misbehaving.

Q. But Gavin had many other teachers besides Mr. Geraldt complaining about him, didn't he?

A. In fact, I don't think he had Mr. Geraldt as a classroom teacher. I think he probably had him for his ROTC, his extracurricular --

Q. So the disruptive behavior that you've been talking about was disruptive behavior in the classroom, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And those were classroom teachers that were referring these problems to you, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you said Mr. Geraldt taught a -- was it an after-school type of program?

A. Well, he was an eighth grade science teacher, but he also had an ROTC class that sometimes met after school and on Saturdays. And he also ran the detention room after school.

Q. And did you think he was too strict in the ROTC program?

A. I don't know if he was too strict in his ROTC program.

Q. Okay. But you mentioned his paramilitary behavior. Was that in the ROTC program?

A. No, that was in his dealing with students on the yard or in the morning when they were coming in late.

Q. Okay. Okay. Do you recall him interacting with Gavin at all?

A. I do not recall that.

Q. If he had, would it be because Gavin was late?
MR. SNEDDON: Object; calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was one of Mr. Geraldt's functions to deal with late students?
A. Yes.
Q. And how would that work? I mean, if someone was late, how would they get to Mr. Geraldt?
A. Well, he did not have a home room which met first thing in the morning, so Mr. Geraldt was assigned to process students at the front door that were late coming in.
Q. So he would simply wait at the front door?
A. Yeah. Everybody had to pass through the front door. People with passes or notes from home would proceed on. People that didn't would be processed by him.
Q. And the procedure -- excuse me. The procedure he followed if he met someone at the front door who was late was what? What would he do?
A. Well, he would write them a detention slip.
Q. Okay. And would that detention slip be handed to the student?
A. Yes.
Q. And was there a procedure dictating what the student should do with that detention slip?
A. Yes.
Q. And what were they supposed to do with the detention slip?
A. One, they were supposed to get it signed by their parent and do their detention. It was an NCR paper, so we kept the copy.

Q. Would the detention typically be done that day?
A. No.
Q. When would it typically be done?
A. The next day after the parents were notified.
Q. And was the proof that parents were notified their signature on the slip?
A. Yes.

Q. Would someone actually talk to the parent directly?

A. Somebody from school?

Q. Yes.

A. Not unless they didn’t do the detention.

Q. Okay. Now, you do recall problems with Gavin being late, correct?

A. My recollection is more clear on the discipline inside the classroom, the disruption in the classroom.

Q. Okay. Now, when did you -- excuse me. Have you spoken to any prosecutor about your testimony today?

A. Yes.

Q. And when was that?

A. Last night.

Q. Okay. Who did you speak to?

A. Mr. Sneddon.

Q. Okay. Did he call you?

A. Yes.

Q. And you spoke to him about what you were going to be asked today?

A. We -- he just looked at my grand jury testimony and had questions about that.

Q. Okay. And did he ask you questions about what you would be saying today?

A. No, he was just clearing up what I had said, making him understand what I said during the grand jury testimony.

Q. Have you reviewed your grand jury transcript?

A. I have.

Q. And how did you get it?

A. I got it online.

Q. Okay. And so you and Mr. Sneddon discussed what you said before the grand jury last night, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. How long a discussion was that?

A. Twenty minutes.

Q. Okay. Did you and Mr. Sneddon discuss Gavin’s poor record for discipline in that call?

A. Briefly.

Q. Excuse me?
A. Briefly.
Q. Okay. Did you and Mr. Sneddon discuss your interview with Sheriff Robel?

A. No.
Q. You did discuss Mr. Geraldt, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Did Mr. Sneddon bring up the name “Geraldt” in that conversation?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he tell you he would ask you questions about Mr. Geraldt today?
A. I don’t think so. He just wanted me to tell him about it.
Q. In that conversation, did you inform Mr. Sneddon that Mr. Geraldt had not actually been a classroom teacher for Gavin?
A. I don’t think so.
Q. Okay. Did you talk about Mr. Geraldt’s responsibilities at the door of the school?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you talk about his responsibilities in the ROTC program?
A. Briefly.
Q. Okay.
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.
THE COURT: We’ll take our break.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes.
(Recess taken.)
//

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Mr. Davy, you met the gentleman who identified himself as Vinnie Amen, didn’t you?
A. Yes.
Q. And you expressed surprise at how young he seemed to be, right?
A. I believe so.
Q. And you described him as business-like, real cooperative and wearing dressy casual clothes, right?
A. Right.

MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

Call your next witness.

MR. SNEDDON: Janet Williams.

THE COURT: Come to the front of the courtroom, please.

When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

JANET WILLIAMS

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Janet Williams. J-a-n-e-t, W-i-l-l-i-a-m-s.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Ms. Williams, you’re now retired; is that correct?

A. I am.

Q. And before your retirement where did you work?

A. I worked for Santa Barbara County Sheriff.

Q. And how long had you worked for them?

A. A little over 29 years.

Q. I think the bailiff’s about to tell you to scoot into that microphone.

In case we missed it, how many years?

A. 29 years.

Q. And at the time of your retirement, what was your assignment?

A. I was working investigations at Coastal Station, which is located in Carpinteria.

Q. And how long had you been at that particular assignment?

A. Ten years.

Q. And prior to that, where were you assigned?
A. I was assigned to the main station in Goleta.
Q. In what capacity was that?
A. Jail, patrol, investigations, variety of assignments.
Q. All right. Now, prior to the time that you retired in November, the 18th of 2003, were you assigned to participate in the execution of a search warrant at Neverland Valley Ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. And during the course of your responsibilities on that particular day, did you -- were you responsible for seizing certain items of evidence?
A. Yes.
Q. And in particular, were you at one point in time assigned to search the downstairs area of Mr. Jackson’s bedroom suite?
A. Yes.
Q. And in that area, did you find some items that you seized?
A. Yes.
Q. And could you just generally describe the area that you took these items from?
A. The area appeared to be similar to a sitting room. It had a piano, large screen televisions and chairs, and some books. Fireplace. That kind of area.

Q. All right. I’m going to show you a photograph.
Counsel, it’s 90 and it’s in evidence.
MR. SANGER: What number?
MR. SNEDDON: Nine -- 9-0.
MR. SANGER: That’s fine. Thank you.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Now, with regard to the exhibit that I placed in front of you, which is a photograph, which is People’s 90 which is in evidence, do you recognize the area that’s depicted in that photograph?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. When and where was the first time that you saw -- or were in that particular location?
A. It would have been the day of the search.
Q. And do you see depicted in the photograph, People’s 90, the area from which you obtained some items that you seized and then had booked into evidence?
A. Yes.
Q. And I gave you a red pen. Would you put an arrow to the area where you obtained the items from?
A. An arrow on the photograph?
Q. Yes. Yes, mark on the photograph.
Now, in that photograph -- let me get the photograph for just a second. I was looking for the laser.

MR. ZONEN: Oh, here’s the laser.
Gordon?
Your Honor, could we have the input, I think four?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: “Input 4.”
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. Ms. Williams, with regard to the photograph that we have on the board, which is People’s 90 in evidence, can you point out to the ladies and gentlemen of the jury the arrow that you placed on that exhibit. Use the laser, if you would.
I think you might be pointing it the wrong way.
A. Could be. Oh. Found the right button, sorry.
Q. All right. So it’s the one that comes down on the right-hand side of the photograph. And below that, directly below that are a number of boxes and books; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that the area from which you seized certain items?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. In this particular room -- well, that’s okay. I’ll do it another way.
I think we can have the lights for right now, Your Honor.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: All right. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. I'm handing you a bag, a plastic bag that has the number "590" on it, 590 marked for identification purposes. And inside the bag are four books that have been marked 59-A (sic), B, C and D. So I'm going to ask you some questions about these, okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, with regard to 590-A, do you recognize that book?

A. Yes.

Q. And where was the book the first time that you saw it?

A. The book was inside one of the boxes that was -- that I depicted by the arrow.

Q. Now, there are a number of boxes there. Do you recall which one of the boxes that 59-A (sic) came out of?

A. I do not.

Q. But it was from one of those boxes?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, is that book in the same condition as when you seized it on that particular day?

A. It appears to be.

Q. All right. Now, let's go to 59-B -- 590-B. Okay. Do you recognize that exhibit?

A. Yes.

Q. And when and where was that the first time you saw it?

A. Inside one of the boxes from the same area.

Q. And do you remember what specific box it was in?

A. I do not.

Q. Do you recall whether it was with the Exhibit 59 -- 590-A?

A. I do not.

Q. All right. Let's go to the next one then, 590-C. Do you recognize that?

A. Yes.

Q. And where was that book the first time you saw it?

A. In one of the boxes from the same area.

Q. Is that the same condition as when you first saw it?

A. It appears to be.

Q. All right. And then let’s go to 590-D, like in “David.” All right. Do you recognize that book?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that one of the books you seized?

A. Yes.

Q. From the same area?

A. Same area, yes.

Q. And do you recall whether it was with the other -- any of the other books, A, B or C?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. With regard to that book, does it appear to be in the same condition as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Your Honor, I move that 590-A through D be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: Submit it.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: I’m going to display these, Your Honor.

Q. 590-A, now, this particular book is titled, “Bob and Rob.” After you took it out of one of those boxes that are depicted in the photograph, People’s 90, what did you do with this particular book?

A. I took it to the area where Detective Padilla was preparing the documents showing the items that were being seized.

Q. He was designated as what we call “the scribe”?

A. Yes.

Q. What you call “the scribe”?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. All right. Let’s put up 590-B. With regard to this particular exhibit, “Before the Hand of Man,” what did you do with that after you seized it?

A. The same procedure, I took it over to Detective Padilla for scribing in.

Q. Okay. 590-C. This is a book called “Room to Play.” And you obtained that from the same areas, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did you do with it after you obtained it?

A. I took it to Detective Padilla.

Q. All right. And lastly, 590-D. That was also found in those boxes?

A. Yes.

Q. And you also took that to the detective?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Thank you. Lights are fine.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I’ve handed counsel for his examination a clear plastic bag which has inside of it a white binder. This exhibit has been marked as 591 for identification purposes.

Q. I’m going to ask you to look at 591. Now, yesterday, I asked you to take a look at that exhibit, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you did take a look at that exhibit, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And inside of the Exhibit 591, which has the white binder, there are two items, two magazines, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Are those magazines that you seized on November 18th?

A. Yes.

Q. From where?

A. From the same area as the books that we’ve previously discussed.

Q. The books in 590?

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to the two exhibits that -- the two magazines that are inside the Exhibit 591, are they in the same condition now as when you first viewed them?

A. No.
Q. In what respect are they different?
A. They've been disassembled. They were intact at the time that I seized them.
Q. But they are the same two magazines that you took?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: All right. Move that 591 be admitted into evidence, Your Honor.
MR. SANGER: I will submit it, Your Honor.
THE COURT: It's admitted.
(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I have a clear plastic bag which has on the outside of it "Exhibit No. 834." That's on the outside of the bag. And from inside the bag there are four magazines that have been marked consecutively as 592, 593, 594 and 595. And I've shown them to counsel for his examination. And I'm going to approach the witness.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: First of all, there's the bag that's marked as 834, and the four magazines, 592 through 595. Do you recognize those?
A. Yes.
Q. And those were also exhibits that I had you look at yesterday; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you've had a chance to go through them; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And with regard -- let's take them one at a time. 592, where was it the first time that you saw it?
A. It was inside one of the boxes that I labeled on the photograph.
Q. Now, the title of these magazines -- or this magazine is?
A. This is "The Nudist."
Q. All right. And they must be from a long time ago because they're 15 cents.

A. It says "March 1935."

Q. All right. Now, do you remember where in those boxes that you found the Exhibit 592?

A. No.

Q. Which one of the boxes?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Let's go to 593. Do you recognize that?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that another one of the magazines that you took out of those boxes?

A. Yes.

Q. And are 592 and 593 in the same condition as when you first saw them?

A. Seems to be, yes.

Q. And this one's called "Sunbather"; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Let's go to 594. That's also a nudist -- the title is "The Nudist," correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Where did you find that particular item?

A. In one of the boxes.

Q. All right. And then let's -- I mean, is it in the same condition as when you found it?

A. Yes.

Q. And 595? It's another of "The Nudist," correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Is that in the same condition as when you saw it?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you see it first?

A. One of the boxes.

Q. Now, with regards to the Exhibit 592, 593, 594 and 595 - okay? - can you tell us whether those exhibits were all together in the same box or in different boxes? Do you have a recollection about that?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Now, with regard to those exhibits, 592, 3, 4 and 5, what did you do with them after you seized them from the box or boxes that you found them?

A. I took them to Detective Padilla for scribing and booking.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'd move that 592 through 595 be admitted into evidence, as well as the bag that contains it, which is 834.
MR. SANGER: I'll submit it.
THE COURT: They're admitted.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Miss Williams, I'm now asking you to look at three books, and the first one is numbered 596, 597, and I believe 599. Would you take a look at those for me, if you would.
Do you recognize those exhibits?
A. Yes, I do.

MR. SANGER: Counsel, you didn't show me those, I don't think.
MR. SNEDDON: I apologize. I was trying to be too efficient.
Q. All right. Let's start with 596, "Man, A Sexual Study of Man." Where was that the first time you saw it?
A. This was inside one of the boxes.
Q. And the same location as the other item?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And is it in the same condition as when you first saw it?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And the next one, 597, "The Golden Age of Neglect." Do you recognize that?
A. I do.
Q. Is that one of the items that you seized?
A. Yes.
Q. Where was it when you saw it the first time?
A. This was also inside one of the boxes.
Q. And do you recall whether it was in the same box as any of the other items that you previously identified?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. And with regard to 599, do you recognize that?
A. Yes.
Q. And where was that the first time you saw it?

A. Inside one of the boxes.

Q. And the same area?

A. Yes.

Q. The boxes that you've previously talked about?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that in the same condition as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Your Honor, I move that 596, 97 and 99 be admitted into evidence.

MR. SANGER: Submit it, Your Honor.

THE COURT: They're admitted. All three.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. We need the lights out again and "Input 4" again.

Q. 596 is the book, "Man, A Sexual Study of Man."

Now, with regard to that particular book, after you seized it, what did you do with it?

A. I took it over to Detective Padilla to have it scribed and booked into evidence.

Q. All right. And 597, do you recognize that?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And with regard to that particular item, what did you do with it after you seized it?

A. I took it to Detective Padilla for scribing and booking into evidence.

Q. All right. And the last item, which is 599, did you follow the same procedure with regard to that particular book?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Thank you. You can turn the lights on. Thank you.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I have a bag that's been marked as People's 835 for identification purposes. And inside of the bag are Exhibits 598 and then Exhibit 600 consecutively through 613. So it's 598 and then 600 through 613.

And I've shown them to counsel.

And may I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. Ms. Williams, I'm showing you the exhibit that's been marked. It's a plastic bag, 835. You see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And then I took out -- from 835, I took 598 and then 600 through 613.

Now, did I ask you yesterday to look at all of those magazines contained in there?

A. Yes, you did.

Q. And do you recognize those magazines? Let's just do 598 first. Do you recognize 598?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was 598 the first time that you saw it?

A. It was in one of the boxes that I mentioned earlier.

Q. And the title of the magazine?

A. "The Nudist."

Q. All right. So why don't we take 5 -- is it in the same condition as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's put that one aside.

Now, with regard to 600 through 613, were you asked to look through those magazines?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And those magazines are basically the same magazines, "The Nudist," and then there's a few other different ones in there?

A. Yes.

Q. And were those all magazines that you found in the downstairs area of Mr. Jackson's bedroom?

A. Yes.

Q. And where in that area?

A. Within the boxes earlier mentioned.

Q. Okay. And were those also items that you gave to Detective Padilla to be scribed and booked into evidence?

A. Yes.

Q. And are the ones that you looked at and the ones I'm talking about now, 600 through 613, are they in the same condition as when you first saw them on the 18th of November, 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let's put those back in here. And I move that 598 and 600 through 613 be admitted into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: I will submit it.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I have a brown paper bag with a sheriff's evidence booking tag on the front of it, and I've had affixed to it the Exhibit No. 836 to the brown bag. And contained inside of the brown bag are Exhibits 614, 615, 616, 617, 618 and 619 for identification purposes. And I've shown them to counsel and he's examined them, Your Honor. And I'd like to approach again.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: These exhibits I've handed you came from the bag marked Exhibit 836, okay? And again, yesterday, I had you examine the items that came out of that bag, Item 836, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And those bags -- actually, those items have been chemically treated, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. With regard to the first exhibit, 614, it's a binder. And did you have an opportunity to examine that item yesterday?

A. Yes.

Q. And inside of that binder, 614, did you recognize the item inside?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was that?

A. It was a magazine.

Q. And was it the same type of variety of the others that you've identified?

A. Yes.

Q. At the time that you saw it yesterday, was it in a different format as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

Q. How is it different now than when you first saw it?

A. It is -- has now been disassembled and chemically treated.

Q. Other than that, are the contents of the binder, the white binder that’s been marked as 614, the same as the magazine that you picked up on November 18?

A. It appears to be, yes.

Q. Put that aside, and let’s just go to 615, if we could. And 615, inside the plastic bag, do you -- I had you examine that item yesterday, too, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is the title of that document? Here, let me. I got my hands dirty. I’ll do it.

A. It is “The Nudist.”

Q. So these are the like kind of magazine that we’ve previously -- you’ve previously identified?

A. Yes.

Q. And other than having been chemically treated and disassembled, is the Exhibit 615 the same exhibit that you seized from Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let’s go to 616. Do you recognize that? You were asked to look at it yesterday, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it’s the same type of magazine, “Sunshine and Health, The Nudist,” as 615 is, correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Other than being chemically treated and disassembled, is it in the same condition as when you first saw it in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, these items, 614, 615 and 616, where were they found?

A. They were found in the boxes that I’ve mentioned earlier.

Q. Okay. Do you remember whether they were found in the same boxes with the other items or in different boxes?

A. I don’t remember.

Q. Okay. Go ahead and put that up there. And let’s go to 617. Do you recognize that?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And that’s another magazine of the same brand, correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Same title?

A. Yes.

Q. And it has also been chemically treated, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And disassembled?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you had the opportunity to examine the contents of that yesterday?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that also a magazine that you obtained from Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?

A. Yes.

Q. And from the same area that you previously told the jury?

A. Yes.

Q. Put that up there. Is it in the same condition, other than the chemical treatment and it’s disassembled, as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. The next item is 618. Do you recognize that?

A. Yes.

Q. And where was that the first time you saw it?

A. Within one of the boxes from the same area.

Q. And with regard to that exhibit, what’s different about it now than when you first saw it? And by “that exhibit,” I mean 618.

A. This one has also been chemically treated and disassembled.

Q. Other than that, it’s the same?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Would you put that up on top. And let’s go to 619.

Do you recognize 619 for identification purposes?

A. Yes.

Q. And where was that the first time that you saw it?

A. From within one of those boxes.

Q. And that one has also been chemically treated and disassembled, correct?

A. Yes, it has.

Q. Other than that, is it in the same condition as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And with regard to these items that we've had marked for identification purposes 614 through 619, were these also given to Detective Padilla, the scribe?

A. Yes, they were.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I move that 614 through 619 be admitted into evidence, as well as the bag which contains these exhibits, which is 836.

MR. SANGER: Submitted.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: We're almost there.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SNEDDON: All right, Your Honor. At this time I've had marked for identification purposes a bag, a brown bag, with, again, a sheriff's evidence tag with the number "#366" at the top. And the number here is 837.

And from inside of that bag I've withdrawn two exhibits. One is a magazine. And its identification is 620 for identification. The title is "Eden," E-d-e-n, and the exhibit number 621 is "The Nudist" I've had marked for identification purposes.

And then lastly -- and I've shown those to counsel for his examination.

And lastly, I have a brown bag, again with a sheriff's evidence tag on it, with the number "359" in black in the upper right-hand corner. Inside the bag I've withdrawn the contents and shown to counsel a book called “Poo-Chi,” P-o-o-C-h-i. I’m sure I’m not pronouncing it correctly. But that’s as good as it gets. And may I approach again, with your permission?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Now, with regard to the Exhibit 837, that’s the brown bag, okay? We have 620 and 621. So let me ask you the questions. 620, where did you find it?

A. I found this within one of the boxes.

Q. And is it in the same condition today as when you first found it?

A. Yes.

Q. This one hasn’t been treated or disassembled, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And then 621, where did you find that?

A. Within one of the boxes.

Q. And with regard to 621, is it in the same condition as when you first saw it?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, with regard to 620 and 621, did you give those also to Detective Padilla?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. If I can have those back. And these are in the same condition as when you first seized them?

A. Yes.

Q. If I didn’t ask you, where did you seize these two items, 620 and 621, from?

A. They were from within one of the boxes.

Q. And lastly, 538 (sic). I’m taking out of the bag a book and handing it to you, the contents of 538 (sic). Do you recognize that book?

A. May I look at that?

Q. Absolutely.

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Do you recall where that item was the first time you saw it?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Where?

A. This was located in a bookcase that is on the far wall of the den area.

Q. Okay. I’m going to come back up and show you Exhibit 90.

Do you recognize the area where you found Exhibit 838?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Would you put an arrow to it?

And would you just write “838” up there?

THE COURT: I think you’d earlier called that 538. Am I correct?

MR. SNEDDON: The book, Your Honor? It’s 838.

THE CLERK: He misspoke.

MR. SNEDDON: I misspoke?

THE COURT: I’m sorry, I just want the record to reflect that when you said 538, you meant 838.

MR. SNEDDON: I did, Your Honor. Thank you.

Q. All right. For the record, on Exhibit 90 you put a red arrow and an “838” to the right of the red arrow; is that correct?

A. I did.

Q. And that is the location where you found Exhibit 838?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that exhibit in the same condition as to when you found it --

A. Yes.

Q. -- on November 18th?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Did you also give that to Detective Padilla?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Thank you.

Move that Item 837 and the contents, which are 620 and 621, and 838 and the contents, be admitted into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Submitted, Your Honor.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: I believe that’s it. No further questions.

THE COURT: Mr. Sanger?

MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Detective Williams, how are you?

A. Fine, thank you.

Q. You -- and you're retired, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. May I still call you "detective"? Is that okay?

A. I'm happy with it.

Q. When did you retire exactly? You said that, and I missed it.

A. February of last year.

Q. February of --

A. 2004.

Q. 2004, okay.

You were active duty and still working actively for the sheriff's department in November of 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, Detective Williams, I think you said you've been a sheriff's officer for 29 years; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And in fact, if I'm not mistaken, you were one of the first two female officers in the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Close to it, in any event?

A. Close.

Q. There's a story behind there that I haven't got quite right. But in any event, you have a long career with the sheriff's department; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have been a detective for how long?

A. I was a detective two different periods. The last time in Coastal Station, which was ten years. And then prior to that, it was at the main station, which was for nine years.

Q. Okay. And part of what you did as a detective was specialize in sex crimes; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So you have a great deal of experience being the lead detective in sex offenses; is that right?

A. I have some experience, yes.

Q. Well, when you say “some,” are you being modest? You’ve had quite a number of cases where you’ve been the lead officer --

A. Yes.

Q. -- in sex cases, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And in this particular case, your assignment was to assist on one of the searches that was occurring on November 18th, 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were then -- you were then not asked to do anything else. You were given no other assignments in this case; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Now, if I understand what you did, you focused your attention on that first floor.

And could I have the exhibits? I’d like 590, if you have it there.

MR. SNEDDON: It’s up there.

MR. SANGER: Oh, it’s up there?

May I approach to retrieve it?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: May I put this back up on the screen, Your Honor?

Q. Now, you’ve already told us that this is the first floor. But just so we’re oriented, for people who are not oriented already, the boxes of books that you referred to under the arrow are to the right of a television, large screen T.V. console; is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. All right. And there’s additional -- an additional part of the room to the left on this picture that you can’t see in the picture; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you search that entire area?

A. Yes.

Q. Behind the piano -- in fact, do you have the pointer there still?

Okay. Would you be kind enough to point to the piano?

Okay. By the way, on the piano, was there a letter from Steven Spielberg sitting there?

MR. SNEDDON: Object as immaterial, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don’t remember.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Behind the piano that you just pointed to is an alcove area; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you point to that?

And there are quite a number of books in that area as well, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that’s where you found 838; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Most of the books in that area are art books; is that correct? Or art and entertainment kind of books?

A. I believe so. I don’t remember exactly, but I believe there were quite a number of those.

Q. All right. And then on the -- where you’ve drawn the other arrow to the boxes, and you indicated you found the other exhibits that you’ve talked about today, there are -- there were a number of boxes there; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You don’t know whether those boxes were coming or going or had been sitting there, do you?

A. Correct.

Q. You don’t know whether or not Mr. Jackson had even looked inside those boxes, do you?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, Mr. Jackson is an artist; is that correct? A performer?

A. He’s a performer, yes.

Q. And he’s an artist. He writes and composes music and choreographs dance, that sort of thing; is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object as immaterial; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you saw a tremendous number of books that pertained to that sort of thing, art and dance and entertainment, music, correct?

A. I remember seeing books of that nature, yes.

Q. Do you know if people send books to Mr. Jackson?

MR. SNEDDON: Object; calls for speculation.

MR. SANGER: It's a "yes" or "no," Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes, you may answer "yes" or "no."

THE WITNESS: I don't know if people send him books.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, of all of the books that you have identified -- and I'm not going to go through by number here. But out of all of the books that you've identified, there are no books in that group that are unlawful for an adult to purchase; is that correct?

A. I don't think there are.

Q. All right. And none of those books are unlawful for an adult to possess in his home; is that correct?

A. I believe you're correct.

Q. You mentioned that -- let's put it this way: You saw a number of these books. Let me see if I can take them out, here.

THE COURT: Are you through with the picture up there?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor. And then I'll -- thank you.

Q. I'll just refer you for the moment to Exhibit -- the bag is 835 and the contents are 598 and following. Do you remember those magazines?

Would you like me to bring them to you?

A. I remember them basically, yes.

Q. Okay. These magazines are, I think you said, from 1931; is that correct?

A. They’re from different years; 1935, ‘37, that era.

Q. That’s true, actually. These are from 1935. And the title of the publication is “The Nudist”; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. These appear to be collector’s items, do they not?

A. They could be.

Q. All right. And you have no information as to whether or not Mr. Jackson even knew that they were in the box; is that correct?

MR. SNEDDON: Object. It calls for speculation.

THE COURT: I was going to say she could answer “yes” or “no,” but anybody I’ve ever said that to has never answered “yes” or “no.”

(To the witness) Don’t answer that “yes” or “no.”

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: But I should answer?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: So, may I ask what the question was again, please?

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I think His Honor is kidding with you. You can answer “yes” or “no.” Do you have any information as to whether or not Mr. Jackson ever saw these nudist magazines?

A. I don’t have any information that he did or did not see them.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: There you go.

THE COURT: Someone following my instructions.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, in the part of Mr. Jackson’s house that you searched, do you know how many books were there total?

A. No, I do not.

Q. Were there thousands?

A. There were many books.
Q. Okay. At least hundreds?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And you went to some other places in the residence other than that particular room, did you not?

A. Yes.
Q. What other places did you go to?
A. The second story, a pantry-like room, a large room with multiple games and toys, and two bedrooms.
Q. All right. And you saw books elsewhere in the house besides where you were searching here in this room; is that correct?
A. Some books.
Q. Did you -- in order get to that room, you had to walk down a hallway, right?
A. To the den area. Is that what you're talking about?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. And that hallway was lined, floor to ceiling, with bookshelves filled with books; is that correct?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. That's fair enough.
And there was a library just off of that hallway as well. Did you take a look in that library?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Now, you said you did go upstairs, because you went into Mr. Jackson's son's room; is that right?
A. Yes.

Q. And right up there by his son's room is an alcove that is filled with children's books; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And again, there are hundreds of books up there; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have occasion to go to the arcade where there is a room that is basically filled with books?

A. Are you talking the same room that's the second story of the main residence?

Q. No, it's a different building. The arcade building.

A. I did not go there.

Q. All right. Of all the books that you saw, you seized the ones that you felt might be of some evidentiary value based on what you understood this case to be about; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I'm going to ask you to take a look at 599, and see if we can....

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I'm going to show you 599.

That appears to be a book of photographs that were taken some time ago; is that correct?

A. May I look through it?

Q. Yes, please.

They appear to be old photographs?

A. They look like they could be old photographs. They have the sepia tone into them.

Q. All right. And you said that as far as you know, there's nothing illegal about an adult possessing that book in the United States, or in California, let's say?

A. Yes.

Q. The United States in general, okay.

Were you aware that that particular author, that photographer, was prosecuted and acquitted during the Nazi regime prior to World War II for those very photographs?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as immaterial.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Let's put it this way: As you look at that, that appears to be a historic book, a book of recording historic photographs; is that correct?

A. I don't know what you mean by that.

Q. All right. Did you do any research as to any of the authors of any of these books?

A. No.

Q. All right. So in other words, that day you were there, your job was to look at things and see if they appeared to be within the search warrant and you seized them?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. All right. Let me show you -- let me ask you, before I show you something else, you seized some other things that have not been introduced into evidence here; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. You seized some paperwork from Mr. Jackson’s son’s room; is that right?

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. And you seized some other things. You seized a Christmas invitation from Liza Minnelli; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, I’m also going to show you Exhibit 838.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: And I’ll take this back, if I may.

Q. That’s 838. Before I ask you about it, your procedure in searching through all these books and boxes and things was to -- was to find books that, by their cover, looked like they would warrant some further interest on your part, right?

A. Usually I would open up the books to try to see what was inside also.

Q. Okay. But you didn’t flip through every single book in that room?

A. No.

Q. All right. So first of all, you’d look at something that looked like it might be a book that had something to do with sex. Is that pretty much what you were looking for?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And then once you found that book, you would look through it and see if you felt that it was the type of book that you thought should be seized in this case, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And you've indicated you seized some other items besides that, but when it came to these books that related to some sexual topic, you would actually look in them and make a determination that you should take it, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, on No. 837 -- I'm sorry, what is that? 838, the bag 838, and inside the bag is the book, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you seized -- have you looked inside the book?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, again, you're an experienced sex crimes detective, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So you're not shocked by seeing pictures of the human body; is that right?

A. I can still be shocked.

Q. Okay. Were you shocked by that book that's called Poo-Chi, P-o-o-C-h-i?

A. Yes.

Q. And you described it as -- if I get your exact -- do you recall how you described it?

A. How I described it?

Q. Yes. Did you describe it as a book containing photographs of the female groin area?

A. I may have. I'm not sure if I did or if that's the way Detective Padilla understood what I said.

Q. All right. Well, did you say something like that to him?

A. Probably.

Q. And does that appear to be what you described to him?

A. Well, some of it looks like it, yes.

Q. Okay. So the question is, is that pretty much what you told Detective Padilla, that you have a book that appears to be photographs of the female groin area?

A. Probably.

Q. All right. And, Detective, as you look at that a little more carefully, those are pictures of armpits and other bodily folds, that are not from genital areas, that are made to look like that as a spoof of some sort; is that correct?

A. Some of them could be. And some of them I don’t know.

Q. All right. And once again, there’s nothing illegal about owning that book, is there?

A. Not that I’m aware.

Q. And you don’t know if Mr. Jackson even ever saw that before, do you?

A. I do not know.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: No questions.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You’re excused.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: We’ll take our recess. Remember, tomorrow’s a half day. See you tomorrow at 8:30.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

THE WITNESS: Brian Barron, B-a-r-r-o-n.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:
Q. Good morning, Mr. Barron.
A. Good morning.

Q. Who do you work for, please?
A. Currently I work for the City of Guadalupe as a police officer.
Q. How long have you been a police officer?
A. About six and a half years.
Q. And for the City of Guadalupe that entire time?
A. Correct.
Q. At some time in your past, were you an employee of Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.
Q. And what did you do for Neverland Ranch?
A. I was a security officer there.
Q. How long were you a security officer at Neverland?
A. For about five, five and a half years.
Q. Was that continuous or sporadic?
A. It was sporadic. It was over three periods of time.
Q. Can you characterize approximately what those three periods were?
A. I started in the fall of 1997. Worked for about a year. I was in the police academy at that time. I then got hired by Guadalupe Police Department. Left the ranch for about a year. And then went back again about nine or ten months after that, and was there for about three years, three and a half years.

Q. And when did you ultimately leave your employment at Neverland?
A. It was about April or May of last year.
Q. And whose decision was that to leave?
A. Mine.
Q. Tell me what your duties were as a security officer at Neverland Ranch.
A. Our duties consisted of the ranch itself, securing the ranch itself, the guests on the ranch, the owner of the ranch, and anything that had to do with the ranch as far as first aid, security. Anything that we could do to help, we would do. But mostly it was to secure the ranch, the owner, and the guests that were there, the employees.
Q. Did you have set days and hours that you worked?
A. Generally, yes. Hours, yes. At times the days weren’t always set, but hours, yes.
Q. So during your time working there, did you always work days or nights? Or you tell me.
A. Generally I worked nights for the entire time I was there.
Q. And tell me what a night shift would consist of.

A. Night shift would consist of 6 p.m. to 6:30 a.m. And then we would do rotating shifts at the front gate. And then we would do -- which would be about four hours per person at the gate. And then secure the ranch after you’ve done your -- before or after you’ve done your gate time.

Q. So if you would, if you can, give me a description of an evening of work at Neverland Ranch from the time that you check in to the time that you finish your evening’s work and you go home. And I’m interested in particularly where you go, where you are on the ranch at various times.

A. Okay. If I were to get there at 6 p.m. and were to take the first shift at the gate, I would be at the gate from 6 p.m. till about 10:15. And that would be checking in and out people who are coming in and off the property, answering phones, doing whatever was necessary there.

Q. So when you’d come to work, there’s a gate that is -- approximates the perimeter of the property, is that --

A. Correct.

Q. Or is that inside the property?

A. No, that would be the guard house at the front gate. So you’d come in the gate there and there’s a guard.

Q. Okay. There’s a house there, a guard house?

A. Yeah.

Q. And when you’d come to work, would you just check in at the gate and stay there, or would you go to the main house first and go back to the gate?

A. Sorry. We’d go to the main house first, get any pass-on information that was going to happen that we needed to know that had happened on the prior shift or the things that we needed to know from the oncoming shift. That would be just speaking with the officers who were there at the house office. Security office.

Q. And where is that located?

A. If you can imagine the entire house property, and if you were looking at it from the front, it would be on the far left. Sorry, it would be on the far left of the building. There’s a main house, a walkway, Mr. Jackson’s office, video library, and the security office.

Q. So the security office is contiguous to the main house structure?

A. By way of a breezeway.

Q. Okay. And access to the security office, is that an exterior door or an interior door?

A. It’s an exterior door.

Q. Does it have any interior connection to other parts of that structure?

A. No.

Q. When you go in the security office, how many rooms are there?

A. There’s two.

Q. And could you describe them for me?

A. First room would be -- had a desk in it. Had a computer in it. So it technically had two desks in it, one on each side of the wall. There was a window that faced out towards the front property, the front lawn area of the house. And then as -- that would be basically the inside of that room. There was also in that room a grease board that we put pass-on information on, guest information on. And then as you go into the next room, it was basically a break room. There was lockers, refrigerator, and a table to eat on.

Q. What was the computer used for in the first room you mentioned?

A. Mostly what we used it for was generating our forms that we use on a daily basis, accident forms. It wasn’t really used for much. We would create, like, reports on that computer, security reports, anything that had to do with us. If there was a -- you know, we noticed damage to something on the property, we would write it up on the computer there. But that was mostly what that computer was used for.

Q. All right. So moving back to our chronology of a day in the life of a security guard. You check with the main office. If you have gate duty, you go out to the gate. What next?

A. If you don't have gate duty, then you would start your regular patrols. First thing you would do when you got on the property was make sure -- you know, we would know who was there, if we had guests, if the owner was on the property. And we would check all of the doors around the house first. We'd do a check of the house area, make sure all the doors were locked, everything was in order. If buildings needed to be opened, that those buildings were opened around the house area. And then we would -- after completing that check, we would do a similar check to the rest of the properties on the residence, any other buildings on the residence.

Q. If you're on patrol, would you be doing continuous checks?

A. Hourly checks.

Q. And what would you be doing between those checks?

A. Stuff to keep busy. We did a lot of training. The fire department, they're trained regularly, and we would assist with that. We were all basically part of the same group.

Q. How many security guards are on duty during an evening shift?

A. When I was working there, it was between three and four.

Q. How many on a day shift?

A. About the same.

Q. And as far as the next thing you'd do in your evening's work, would you continue to do these security checks throughout the evening?

A. That's correct.

Q. How many would you do in an evening?

A. If we did one an hour, 12. If we did more, just -- it would depend on need.

Q. Okay. And where would a security check take you on the property?

A. Everywhere.

Q. Would different officers check out different areas?

A. No. We'd check all -- being there would only be two of us at the house. If there was three of us working, there would be one of us at the gate and two of us at the house office. If there were guests or anyone on the property that was in -- at the house area, we would -- one of us would stay there, and the other one would check all the doors on the residence, all the buildings -- on the property, excuse me, everything.

Q. As far as checking the doors of the main residence, would you have -- did you have a key to the main residence?

A. Yes.

Q. And what door did that open?

A. The back door.

Q. Okay. As far as -- did -- the main residence has a punch card that can --

A. A key pad.

Q. -- that can give you access?

A. Like a telephone pad.

Q. Did you have the code to that key pad?

A. No.

Q. Did you have the code to the key pad that gave access into Mr. Jackson's private suite?

A. No.

Q. Did any of the security guards, as far as you know?

A. Not that I'm aware.

Q. When you'd work in the security guard booth at the entrance to the property, tell me about what your duties would be there.

A. Duties there were generally letting people on and off the ranch. We had paperwork that would allow us -- that we would know ahead of time who was allowed to come on the ranch, whether that would be guests, or it would be general deliveries, contractors, things of that nature. We would know who was coming and who was supposed to be there for that day, so we would have those people come on and off.

We also checked in all the employees and checked out all the employees, times they were in, times they were out. Every time they came or left the property.

Answering phones was a large part of it.

The majority of the phone calls that came in, especially in the evening time, they all came basically through us.

Q. When you were conducting your duties as a security officer at Neverland, did you have occasion to see the owner of the property?

A. Yes.

Q. And that would be Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Is he seated to my right, the man with the black hair?

A. Yes.

Q. And how much would you see Mr. Jackson on the property, assuming -- let me strike that question.

How often would you see Mr. Jackson on the property during those times when he was visiting Neverland or staying at Neverland?

A. Daily. At least.

Q. Okay. And would you be able to see him -- would you see him interacting with guests when they were on the property?

A. Occasionally.

Q. Would you ever talk to Mr. Jackson personally?

A. Only if I needed to.

Q. Okay. And how often would you have contact with him?

A. Not on a regular basis. Only if there was something pressing that he needed to know or we needed to ask him. We tried to let him have his privacy when he was there.

Q. You mentioned forms that are prepared on the computer. Are there daily logs that are kept at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. What are the daily logs?

A. The daily logs that we kept at the gatehouse, where those logs were kept always, was the employee entry list, the daily activity list, which would include, like I said, anybody other than employees coming on and off the property, which would mean anything -- general contractors, deliveries, anything like that, any guests that were on the property.

Also our time checks for all of the -- we would call in the start of a check of the ranch, a security check, all the doors, and we would call in anything that would happen that we would find out of the ordinary and log that at the gate. And then the end of that check also.

Q. Were these logs used during the entire I believe four years that you said you worked there?

A. About five years. Yes.

Q. Five years you worked there?

A. They changed. At times they looked different, but they were basically the same.

Q. What about accident reports? You mentioned those. How are they prepared?

A. In the same fashion. We would -- initially we would let whoever was at the gate know that we found something or something had happened, somebody had wrecked one of the golf carts or fallen down, whatever the case may be. We would let -- either the gate would let us know, because they called the gate, or we would let the gate know, because we were notified at the house. And then we would prepare that form after the conclusion of whatever was going on.

Q. How often would you have to prepare accident reports?

A. Not often. I didn’t prepare very many. The day shift usually prepared more, because more things -- there’s more people, more activity on the ranch, more employees. More guest activity during the daytime generally. But, you know, a couple times a month.

Q. You mentioned they'd be prepared if a golf cart was wrecked?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Would that be a common occurrence?

A. It happened -- it seemed to happen a lot more than it needed to, yeah.

Q. Why do you say that?

MR. SANGER: Objection, calls for speculation, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Was there -- tell me, was there a difference in the attitude and demeanor of employees when Mr. Jackson was on property as opposed to when he was off?

A. Yes.

Q. How would you describe that?

A. Tense.

Q. Can you elaborate on that? Why would employees be tense?

A. Well, they would have to get there earlier usually. They'd have more work to do. He was -- he's very -- at least the way I feel, is he's very -- like a perfectionist, everything has to be right. His property, his prerogative to be that way. But there was a lot more work to be done. Everybody just seemed to be walking on pins and needles a little bit more just to make sure things were right.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Madam Clerk, do we have a notebook with Exhibits 300, et seq.?

THE CLERK: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Mr. Barron, I show you a black notebook that appears to have numerous records in it. It is labeled as Exhibits 300 through 335. I'd like you to take a moment and look at that.

I don't really want you to look at every exhibit, but --

A. That’s all right.

Q. If you could just kind of thumb through it quickly.

A. They look very familiar.

Q. All right. Have you looked at a notebook like that?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you identify those records for me, please?

A. Yes. They are the employee in-and-out logs, the gate activity logs, and the daily entry access logs.

Q. And are these the type of logs that you were talking about when you said that you personally would prepare records at Neverland?

A. They are the logs.

Q. Okay. Now, just to help us a little bit with the various types of forms here, looking at Exhibit No. 300, the first page, can you tell us what that is, please?

A. That’s an accident or damage report.

Q. All right. And is that the type of report that would be prepared by a security officer in his normal duties at Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you yourself ever prepare these reports?

A. Yes.

Q. Does this look to be an authentic copy or an authentic document as far as an accident damage report?

A. Yes.

Q. Would these reports, the accident damage reports, be prepared in the normal course of your duties as a security officer at Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. When would these reports be prepared in relation to the accident that they are describing?

A. Generally right after, or very soon after the -- whatever happened happened.

Q. And is the information -- does the person who prepares these reports have a duty to accurately describe what is in the report itself?

A. Yes.
Q. Moving on to Exhibit 301, it appears to be -- it appears to be a daily log.
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Is that, in fact, what it is?
A. Yes.
Q. And tell me what type of daily log this is.
A. This would be the employee in-and-out entry and exist list. So the time you were in and time you were out, if you were there overnight. You notice there’s “CO” here, carry-over, you were carried over from the midnight hour to the next day.

Q. Okay. And there are numerous names on there?
A. Yes.
Q. Are those the names of the employees at Neverland?
A. Yes.
Q. And the written in information, in and out, depicts the time that they checked in and the time they checked out?
A. Correct.
Q. Again, this is a report that’s prepared in the ordinary course of your duties as a security officer?
A. Yes.
Q. And does the security officer have a duty to accurately record the information in this report?
A. Yes.
Q. And is it prepared at or near the time of the entries that are made?
A. At the time.
Q. Okay. Now, there appears to be a -- turning over page 301, on the back of it and on the next page there appears to be a report entitled “Daily Entry Access.”
A. Correct.
Q. Tell me what that is.
A. That would be the entry and access of anybody who normally would come on the ranch. Most of these on the top part of it are deliveries, and then those on the bottom would be the guests who are on the ranch.

Q. Okay.

A. For that day.

Q. Again, the same question. Are those parts of your duties as an officer at the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. And are they prepared at or near the time of the events recorded in that report?

A. At the time.

Q. And your duty is to prepare those reports accurately?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, I'm also seeing -- looking at a report now that is on the back page of Exhibit No. 302.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. It's entitled "Gate Activity Log." Tell me what that is, please.

A. The gate activity log is, like I was explaining earlier, when something happens or there's some information that officers need to know or anybody else who may need to know, we would write it down on the gate activity log.

The top part of that paperwork is the officer who was working the gate and the time that they were there. And then the center part is, again, that information that would be necessary for officers to know or to pass along to other people who are coming on and off the ranch, and that information is written down at the time it's given and then there's a time that it's given. If it says, "CO," which again is carry-over, that would mean that's something that needs to be on this list for an extended period of time, so that we're aware of it.

And then the bottom portion is the time we start our checks of the ranch, and then the time we finish the house checks, and then the exterior patrols also.

Q. Okay. I hate to be redundant, but I have to ask you the same questions. Is that prepared in the ordinary course of your duties as a security officer at the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. Is it a document that is -- that your duty is to accurately describe the gate activity at the time that it is happening or contemporaneous with the information that's in that log?

A. Yes.

Q. And you yourself have filled these logs out and are familiar with how these are prepared?

A. Many of them, yes.

Q. All right. And I asked you previously if you had reviewed a book similar to this. There's one more page here that I think I'll ask you about. Looking at 320, there is a security clearance and guest information form.

A. Correct.

Q. Tell me what that is.

A. That would be given to the gate. For instance, this one was given hopefully the day before, so it's June 18th of '02, telling us that the next day this gentleman would be coming onto the property, that did he not need to sign a confidentiality form, and then what he was going to be doing or where he needed to go.

Q. Okay. So before you'd let somebody on the ranch, would one of these have to be filled out if they were not already a guest or employee?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you notified beforehand whether to let a guest onto the property or not?

A. Yes.

Q. Would guests be allowed on the property if you did not have a form authorizing their admission?

A. No.

Q. Showing you Exhibit 333, there appears to be an emergency medical report.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. What is that, please?

A. That would be if someone was injured, one of the firefighters, who were for the most part all EMTs, would complete one of these forms for the ranch purposes to have record of whatever the accident -- where they had been injured had happened.

Q. Okay. And same questions there, duty to accurately prepare that information?

A. Yes.

Q. You're familiar with how that information's prepared?

A. Yes.

Q. You filled those out yourself?

A. I think maybe one I filled out for the EMT that was working on the person, just handwriting for them. I never did one of my own.

Q. These are prepared at or near the time of the event that's recorded?

A. Yes.

Q. And there's a duty to accurately depict the information on there?

A. Yes.

Q. And then I'm showing you lastly a Neverland Valley Medical Report Log. Have you ever seen one of those?

A. Yes.

Q. Tell me what that is.

A. That is a log of all the medical reports that were done for the year. So all of them had their incident report number, the date, who took it, the time it was taken, the name of the person, what was -- what happened, the injury, and then what type of treatment they were given.

Q. Okay. The person filling that form out had a duty to prepare it accurately?

A. Yes.

Q. Prepared at or near the time of the act, condition or event that's depicted in the form?

A. Yes.

Q. And you're familiar with how those are prepared?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then I'm showing you -- I don't think we've gone over one of these yet, have we?

A. Again, that's the same, it's just a different looking form. It's the blanket routine form, the guest form, and then ranch -- again, a lot of these forms changed. This is the same form as one of the earlier forms that we looked at.

Q. This is a form in Exhibit 335. It's on the back page of one -- well, on the second page, there appears to be one. So this is a similar form as far as guest activity?

A. It's the exact same, it's just written different.

MR. SANGER: Excuse me, Your Honor. 335 has a number of pages, as far as I can tell. What page are we talking about?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I had said the second page. Turn the page over and it's on the back side of the first page.

MR. SANGER: May I approach, Your Honor? I think the book that we were given may be out of order in 335.

THE COURT: Yes, go ahead.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you have 335? It should be the second page.

MR. SANGER: You have it on the back side.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: We doubled it up.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So all the questions I'd asked you before would apply to this one as well --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that you've spoken about, guest activity logs and such?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And I previously asked you if you had a chance to review these records. Would your testimony be the same concerning all of the records that are contained in this notebook regarding the accuracy of the information, the duty to prepare accurate information? All these records were prepared at or near the time of the events that were recorded?

A. Yes.

Q. And you're familiar with their method and mode of preparation?

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, I'd ask that Exhibits 300 through 335 be admitted at this time.

MR. SANGER: And I take it they're offered as a business record.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: They are.

MR. SANGER: I have no objection to that foundation.

THE COURT: All right. They're admitted as business records.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you.

Q. Mr. Barron, you said when you were doing your daily duties, conducting your daily duties as a security guard, you'd have occasion to see Mr. Jackson on the property?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you have occasion to see him interacting with his guests?

A. Occasionally, yes.

Q. Would you have occasion to see guests when they weren't interacting with Mr. Jackson on the property?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know an individual by the name of

Frank Tyson or Cascio?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is Frank Tyson or Cascio?

A. From what I originally knew, he was a friend of the family -- of Mr. Jackson's family, or a friend of Mr. Jackson. His family, his parents and brothers and sister were friends. At some point I believe he became an employee of Mr. Jackson. What his exact duties were I don't really know. But he was -- at some point, he became an employee.

Q. And do you have a time frame for when he was an employee, approximate?

A. I would say probably around -- maybe around the year 2000, right around in there.

Q. Okay.

A. And whether he still is or is not, I don’t know, but --

Q. Did Frank Cascio ever live at Neverland?

A. He stayed there a lot. Whether he lived there or not, as far as his primary residence, I don’t know. But he was there quite often.

Q. Would he stay there longer than a month?

A. Yeah. At times I think he would, yes.

Q. Did you have occasion to observe his relationship with Mr. Jackson?

A. Not on a real personal level, between the two of them, no.

Q. Did you see them together?

A. Yes.

Q. Would Mr. Cascio ever spend time in Mr. Jackson’s bedroom?

A. I have no idea.

MR. SANGER: Objection; calls for speculation, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll withdraw that question. And you can strike the answer, that’s fine.

MR. SANGER: So moved.

THE COURT: All right. So granted.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you feel that you could -- you have sufficient information to describe their relationship?

A. Yes.

Q. And how would you describe their relationship?

A. I would describe it --

MR. SANGER: I would object as no foundation. I believe he said he didn’t observe their relationship.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When you said you observed them together, where would you observe them?

A. Generally on the ranch, in the movie theater. I'd seen them riding the quads on the ranch before. Just doing general activities. In the park, I'd seen them in the park before, the theme park.

Q. How many times do you think you'd seen them before, approximately, if you can estimate?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object as vague as to time.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: During the entire period of time that you were a security guard.

A. Maybe 75 to 100 times. I mean, in passing I would see them together.

Q. And did you -- how many times -- if you could estimate, how many nights during that period of time, five-year period of time, did Frank Cascio spend at Neverland?

A. Oh --

MR. SANGER: Well, I'm going to object as lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You said that you were familiar with the logs in terms of who was staying on the property?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that part of your daily duties?

A. Yes.

Q. When Frank Cascio visited the property, would he be noted in that log as a visitor spending the night?

A. Yes.

Q. On how many occasions, could you estimate, did Frank Cascio spend the night during that five-year period?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object as lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Hundreds.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Who is Vinnie? Do you know an individual -- let me start with that. Do you know an individual who visited Neverland named Vinnie?

A. Yes.

Q. Who was Vinnie?

A. As far as I know, Vinnie was a friend of Frank.

Q. And do you know the period of time when Vinnie visited Neverland?

A. No, not offhand I don’t.

Q. Do you know approximately -- did Vinnie spend the night at Neverland?

A. Yes, I do know that he spent the night occasionally at Neverland Ranch.

Q. Do you know how many nights he spent?

A. No.

Q. Do you know an individual by the name of Marc Schaffel?

A. Yes.

Q. How do you know Mr. Schaffel?

A. Just from his coming to the ranch.

Q. Do you know how often he would visit the ranch?

MR. SANGER: Vague as to time.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: During the period of time that you were a security guard.

A. Not very often, but he would come probably three or four times a year maybe.

Q. Do you know an individual by the name of Ronald Konitzer?

A. I know the name.

Q. Okay. Did you ever meet him?

A. Not that I’m aware of.

Q. How about Dieter Weizner?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you meet Mr. Weizner?

A. Yes.

Q. Where did you meet him?

A. At the ranch.

Q. And if you can characterize, again I’m asking for your best estimation, if you can provide it, how many times did Mr. -- did Dieter visit the ranch?

A. Several times. He was there -- he would stay sometimes for a couple of days, and then he'd be gone for a while and come back. It wasn't a regular thing that he was there. For a short period of time it was, maybe two or three months I believe he was there on a somewhat regular basis, but generally it was off and on.

Q. Can you characterize the period of time that you observed Dieter on the ranch in terms of the five years you were there?

A. It would have been --

Q. Beginning time to when you left.

A. Probably sometime in 2002 to 2003.

Q. Okay. Now, did you have occasion to see children visit the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. How were children treated at the ranch?

A. Well.

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. It was a fun place to go. They got to do pretty much whatever they wanted, for the most part. Not all of them. But they were treated quite well.

Q. Are you familiar with some visitors to the ranch who were local residents of Los Olivos?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know their names?

A. Um, I can't remember right now.

Q. How many were there?

A. Three.

Q. Were they boys or girls?

A. Boys.

Q. What ages?

A. Teenage.

Q. Were any of them related?

A. Two of them were.

Q. And how often would they visit the ranch?

A. For a short period of time quite regularly.

MR. SANGER: Do you have numbers on those?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: 45, 46, and 47.
Q. Mr. Barron, I show you People’s 45. Does that look -- can you recognize that?
A. Yes, I recognize that.
Q. And who would that be?
A. His name -- their names are completely --
Q. Is that one of the people you’re talking about?
A. Yes.
Q. How about 46?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that one of the boys you’re talking about?
A. Yes.
Q. 47?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you have occasion to see how those young men conduct themselves at the Neverland property?
A. Yes.
Q. How would you describe their conduct?
A. Destructive.

Q. And why do you say that?
A. Whenever they were there, we had broken carts. Damaged carts. They at some point egged -- threw eggs at my security chief’s car, inside, outside, we’re talking dozens of eggs. There just always seemed to be something broken or some problem when they were there.
Q. Do you know if they ever got in trouble for this type of conduct?
MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You mentioned a grease board at the security office.
A. Yes.
Q. And what specifically was that grease board used for?
A. Specifically it was for guest information, names of people who were in which guest unit or where they were staying on the ranch. And then a pass-on board, just write notes on the board for the oncoming shift or something that happened, just so that it was remembered. Anything that we needed to remember on a daily basis could have been put up on that board.

Q. Who was your supervisor?

A. I had -- Violet Silva was the security chief, and then Curtis Gordon was a supervisor and Julio Magana was a supervisor.

Q. Did you have any supervisorial capacity as security guard?

A. Yeah, I had a shift supervisor. Curtis and Julio would work generally day shift. And then when I was there in the evening, I would be the shift supervisor. They were supervisors to me, but I would be in charge of the shift at night.

Q. Okay. At some point -- and let me just make -- be clear. What do you mean when you say "grease board"?

A. A white -- a white board that you use the wipeable ink markers on.

Q. Okay. So like a chalkboard or similar but you can --

A. Similar, yes.

Q. -- but you can wipe the ink off?

A. Yes.

Q. At some point during your employment at Neverland, did you see a directive on that board concerning Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who Gavin Arvizo is?

A. Yes.

Q. First of all, tell us how you know Gavin Arvizo.

A. Because he was a guest at the ranch.

Q. Okay. So you knew him by sight?

A. Yes.

Q. And tell us what that directive was.

A. It simply stated, "Gavin is not allowed off property."

Q. Can you tell me the approximate time that -- your best recollection as to when that -- when that directive appeared on the grease board?

A. It was early part of 2003, January, February.

Q. Do you know the exact date?

A. No.

Q. Do you know how long it was on the grease board?

A. I remember it being approximately a week.

Q. Okay. If Gavin Arvizo appeared at the front gate during this period of -- well, let me back up, first of all. What did that directive mean to you in terms of a security officer?

A. That we weren’t to allow him off property without some sort of permission from a supervisor.

Q. Okay.

A. That would be -- I would check first.

Q. Okay. So if Gavin Arvizo appeared at the gate, walking out of the ranch, would you let him pass?

A. No.

Q. If Gavin Arvizo appeared at the gate being driven out by Jesus Salas, would you let him pass?

A. I would check first with the ranch manager.

Q. So would you say you wouldn’t let him pass before getting authorization?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: Well -- I’ll withdraw it.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. I have no further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Mr. Barron, how are you?

A. Good.

Q. You’re a sworn peace officer; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And you went to the Allan Hancock Police Academy?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have been a police officer, an active duty police officer with the Guadalupe Police Department for how long?

A. Six and a half years.

Q. And during the entire time that -- I’m sorry, during the entire past six and a half years consecutively, you have been a police officer, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. So at no time during the last six and a half years have you not been a sworn peace officer?

A. Correct.

Q. You worked at Neverland while you were going to the academy, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And then after you finished the academy, you got a job with Guadalupe as a sworn peace officer, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And when was that?

A. The day I started with Guadalupe?

Q. Sure.

A. September 28th of 1998.

Q. Okay. So since September of 1998 to the present, you’ve been a sworn peace officer?

A. Correct.

Q. And sometimes you worked at Neverland Ranch as a security person as well; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So you were moonlighting, as it were?

A. Yes.

Q. And at some point you were aware that there was a raid on Neverland; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you there that day?

A. No.

Q. After you learned there was a raid at Neverland, did you have a discussion with your chief of police at Guadalupe?

A. Yes.

Q. As a result of that discussion with the chief of police, did you determine that you should resign your position as a security guard?

A. Yes. It was more like step away from it for a while.

Q. Okay. In other words, between you and your chief, you decided there's an ongoing criminal investigation, as a peace officer, you probably should not also be working at the ranch; is that correct?

A. At that time that's what I decided, yes.

Q. And when was that, approximately? Was that right after the raid?

A. I was on vacation at that time, at the time of the search warrant. And then so shortly after I came home from vacation.

Q. All right. So sometime maybe end of November?

A. What day was the raid?

Q. November 18th, 2003.

A. Yeah. Correct. I think I came home from vacation the last couple days of November, so shortly after that. Maybe the first week of December.

Q. All right. And you did not cease your employment -- I was going to say quit, but you actually stepped away for a while, you took a leave?

A. Yes.

Q. You did not do that because you had seen anything unlawful at the ranch; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And in fact, had you seen anything unlawful at the ranch from 1998 to the time that you stepped away from the job, you would have been duty-bound to report that, correct?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And in fact, as a sworn peace officer, you probably -- if you saw a criminal activity, you probably would have been duty-bound to either investigate or even make an arrest; is that correct?

A. Yes. To a point.

Q. Okay. At the very least report it?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And you had no -- you found no need whatsoever to do that the entire time that you were there; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. The people at Neverland Ranch that you worked with were made aware that you were a police officer; is that correct?

A. They all knew.

Q. All right. There was no secret?

A. No secret.

Q. And you were given access to every part of the ranch that any other security officer was given access to; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. You reported, you said, to Mr. Magana and Mr. Gordon?

A. Correct.

Q. And then Violet Silva was the chief of security at the time; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you have a good relationship with Violet Silva?

A. Very good.

Q. And was she a professional chief of security?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, I know that a lot of times law enforcement might look at security guards as -- somewhat cynically, is that true?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Did you feel that this security department was run in a professional fashion?

A. Yes.

Q. To a certain extent, the security department included the use of various police procedures; is that correct?

A. To a small extent, yes.

Q. General radio etiquette, for instance?

A. Yes.

Q. Making sure that you logged things in appropriately?

A. Correct.

Q. Did Violet Silva, for instance -- let’s take her. Did Violet Silva insist that the people under her command, as it were, keep accurate records?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did Violet Silva insist that the people under her make sure that the various places on the ranch were secure?

A. Yes.

Q. And there was a regular detail, or a regular -- let me withdraw that. There was a regular procedure to go through and check the various locations during the evening and the night to make sure that the ranch was secure; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Now, during the time you were there, was there a risk that intruders would get onto the ranch?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Did any intruders get onto the ranch during the time that you were there?

A. Yes.

Q. Were there ever occasions that you were aware of that intruders actually got to the house?

A. Yes.

Q. Did any intruders actually get into the house?

A. Yes.

Q. Were law enforcement officers called eventually to deal with those intruders?

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, that was the protocol, if you found somebody trespassing, to call for law enforcement?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, I understand you were law enforcement, but you would call the sheriff’s department at that point, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And I may be going a little fast and then you're kind of stepping on the end of my questions, and I may be asking too quickly. It makes it hard for the court reporter.

A. I apologize.

Q. That's all right. I apologize. We'll just slow down a little bit, both of us.

All right. Now, you explained the situation out there and I just want to go over it in a little more detail. There are basically two main security posts, stationary posts at the ranch; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. There's the gate, which is the little house right by the big front gates, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, at that little house, and the big front gates, there's -- or in the -- in the little house there's a computer and a desk; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Telephone?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the phone often answered by -- at that phone?

A. Yeah. A lot.

Q. All right. So people calling into the ranch, particularly at night, the phone will ring there, and the security guard at that phone will answer it; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And then the phone -- the phone can be -- or the call can be forwarded from that phone to other phones?

A. Any -- basically any phone on the ranch.

Q. And the phone that's at the gate is a regular telephone within that -- let me back up.

There's a system and the phones are pretty --

A. It's a multiline phone.

Q. They're pretty much identical phones throughout the ranch?

A. Yes. I believe they're all the same.

Q. So this is -- this is not a big phone with a lot of buttons on it. It's a smaller phone; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.
Q. So you get an incoming call and then you would forward it by using a code to forward it; is that correct?
A. Transfer it to whatever extension it needed to go to.
Q. All right. The gates at the guard house there are big iron gates, is that correct, the front gate?
A. Well, maybe on the inside. They’re wood.
Q. Or wood gates. I’m sorry, I think you are right. They’re big wooden gates, in any event?
A. Yes.
Q. And they’re anchored by, I think, stone walls on either side; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If you stand at the gates looking out to Figueroa Mountain Road, to the road there, and you were to go to the left of the guard house --
A. Okay.
Q. -- as you’re looking out to the left of the guard house, how far does the stone work extend, roughly?
A. Maybe 20, 25 feet. 30 feet maybe at the max.
Q. Okay. And after that 30 feet, what kind of fencing protection do you have?
A. Very little. Two-plank ranch fencing. It’s nice. It looks like -- but it’s maybe about four feet tall.

Q. And two rails?
A. Two rails and then posts however many feet.
Q. And there’s no wire on that or anything else, correct?
A. No.
Q. So people can pretty much hop over that if they want to?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. As you go around the rest of the ranch there’s -- as you get farther away from the gate, at some point there's some fencing, cattle-type fencing; is that correct?

A. Cattle, barbed wire fencing.
Q. All right. Now, you mention that there was another location which was up by the house, I think, for -- another stationary location for the guards; is that correct?
A. The house security office, correct.
Q. And that's not in the house itself?
A. No.
Q. It's at the end of the building that's adjacent to the house; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And in there, you have a -- an initial room that includes a desk and the computer and so on; is that correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. And there's a rack of battery chargers for the portable radios?
A. It may be in that room, now. It was in the other room before when I was there.
Q. Okay. In any event, there's the initial room that you walk into, and then behind it is sort of a break room; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. It's got a few lockers; is that right?
A. That's right.
Q. The break table and some chairs, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that where that board is that you were telling us about?
A. No. It was in the first room.
Q. In the first room. All right. Now, let me ask you something: The gate logs that you told us about that are among the documents that you authenticated from Exhibit 300 to 335 -- I realize there's some other documents that aren't gate logs in there --
A. Yes.
Q. -- but the gate logs that are in those documents, those gate logs are used to communicate information to the various guards who are on duty or who come on duty; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, I realize -- or let me ask you this: You had previously told law enforcement that you believed that this -- what you called or what Mr. Auchincloss called a directive, that this note about Gavin Arvizo was on the grease board?
A. Yes.
Q. And are you aware that none of the other officers recall seeing it on the grease board?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. That assumes facts not in evidence.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Are you aware of any other officer who claims to have seen that on the grease board?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Is it possible that this particular notation was, in fact, on a gate log instead of the grease board?
A. I'm sure it was on a gate log.
Q. Okay. And in fact, it's on the gate log for February the 19th; is that right?
A. I don't know the date that it's on there.
Q. You remember seeing it on the gate log; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. Okay. You said it was on the gate log?
A. I now know that it was on the gate log.
Q. Okay. All right. Do you have the book up

there, the --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's right here.
MR. SANGER: This is the official book. All right.
Q. Now, you say you're aware it's on the gate log. Did somebody show it to you?
A. I was told.
Q. By the prosecution?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And who told you that?

A. The District Attorney.

Q. Which one?

A. Auchincloss.

Q. Mr. Auchincloss.

A. Thank you. Sorry.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Your Honor, what I'd like to do, I'm going to take this page out of the book, the entire book has been admitted, and there are exhibit tabs, official court exhibit tabs on the first page of each exhibit. So I am taking a page out of 334. And at the bottom, this page says "MJ 00154." And I'd ask permission to put this up on the screen, if I may.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. I'll back up, first of all. I'll represent to you I just took that -- as I said to the Court, I took that out of the book here. That's one of the various pages. Does that appear to be a gate activity log?

A. Yes.

Q. And there's a number up on the top which we'll focus in on a little more. It says 2-19-03. It's a little fuzzy there, but --

A. Correct.

Q. And the purpose of this gate activity log would be to record pretty much contemporaneously activities that occurred during the security shift; is that true?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it's also for the purpose of recording information that should be communicated to other officers on other shifts; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, I'm going to, with any luck, focus in so we can read it, but we'll see about that.

Okay. Do you see there, it says -- three lines up from the bottom, on the middle of the page, it says 1752.

A. Yes.

Q. What does 1752 represent?

A. 5:52 p.m.

Q. Military time. So it’s 5:52 in the afternoon, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. That would be the time that somebody recorded the information on that, on that line adjacent to it; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the line adjacent to it says, “The kids are not to leave per Joe.” “Kids” meaning like Gavin, Star, et cetera, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Were you aware that that particular evening was the evening that these children were to go down to Los Angeles?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; assumes facts.

MR. SANGER: That’s --

THE COURT: Foundation; sustained.

MR. SANGER: Well, I asked if he was aware. Should I rephrase it? Let me do it this way, Your Honor. I won’t make that request.

THE COURT: The foundation’s a little different, too. Go ahead and rephrase it.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Let’s do it this way: A couple of questions. Just in general, if children are on the ranch, are guests at the ranch and they’re staying there and there’s not a parent present, would it be the policy of the ranch not to allow those children to go off of the ranch property without supervision?

A. Correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I’ll object as vague as to “children.”

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, we would not let them go off the property by themself.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: So at this time do you know whether or not there was a parent at the ranch with Gavin, Star -- well, it was “Gavin, Star, et cetera." So we'll say with Gavin and Star.

A. I don't know for sure. I don't believe there was.

Q. All right. So that would be a reasonable instruction for security in general, correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Argumentative; calls for a conclusion.

THE COURT: Sustained on argumentative.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: It would not be out of the ordinary, then, to not let children such as Gavin and Star leave the ranch without approval or without supervision, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And based on your experience, if children or any guests were scheduled to leave as a group, would it be appropriate for security to be alerted so that the people would be there to leave in the vehicle that was assigned to take them? Does that make sense? It was a long question.

A. Would it be appropriate to have security notified --

Q. Yeah.

A. -- if they were going to be leaving?

Q. Yes.

A. It would have been appropriate. It didn't happen very often, but --

Q. So if there was a bus or a limousine that was going to leave and certain kids were going to be on it, that's something that security could well be advised of, correct?

A. Should well be advised of. We weren't always advised.

Q. Weren't always advised. But if you were advised, you'd feel that was appropriate, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I'm going to put that page back where I found it. Close the book so I don't mix things up, and we'll come back to it in a moment.

All right. Now let's work backwards just a little bit here. You were asked about Frank Cascio, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And was he also known by another name?

A. Frank Tyson.

Q. Frank Tyson. Okay. Frank?

A. Frank.

Q. As far as Frank Cascio, Frank Tyson was concerned, was he there -- you said he stayed over, as far as you could tell, quite a number of times, right?

A. Right.

Q. And the District Attorney asked you if this was logged in the logs when he might be staying over.

A. Correct.

Q. Did you go back and look at the logs and add up the times?

A. No.

Q. All right. So you’re really not answering that question based on reviewing the logs; is that right?

A. I reviewed the logs, but did not write down or memorize how many times he’d been there.

Q. All right. So your general impression was that he stayed overnight quite a number of times, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And did Frank Cascio have any other family members who you were aware of?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they often stay over?

A. Yes.

Q. Did his father come out and visit from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. Did his brother and sister visit from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. Any other family members you can recall?

A. His mother had been there.

Q. Okay.

A. I think he had two brothers.

Q. All right.
A. I believe.
Q. Very good. So his brothers, his sister, and both of his parents would stay over from time to time; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, were there times during your -- your span there, when Frank Cascio or his family might be there, and then there would be a period of time where he wouldn't be around and he or his family would come back at some later time?
A. Meaning that --
Q. That was a bad question.
A. I'm sorry, I don't understand the question.
Q. Fair enough. Just tell me.
In other words, you say he was there -- from the time that you were employed to the time that you left the ranch, you said he was there many times, maybe you saw him 75 to 100 times with Michael Jackson, he stayed over many times, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Was this continuously or were there periods of time where the Cascios might be visiting, and then months might go by before they'd come back?

A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And did -- you were yourself gone for periods of time; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You next had somebody named Vinnie. Did you know his last name?
A. No, I don't know it.
Q. You said, well, he spent the night occasionally, I think. Do you know when that was?
A. The actual dates of when? Or --
Q. If you know them.
A. No, I don't know the actual dates of when.
Q. In general, when did you see Vinnie?
A. Generally I saw Vinnie when Frank was there.
Q. And when did you start seeing Vinnie?
A. Probably in 2002, right around there. I don't know the exact time frame.
Q. Maybe late 2002?

A. Could have been, yes.
Q. All right. So you didn't really see him the entire time that you were working there?
A. No.
Q. He was a more recent visitor?
A. Yes.
Q. Same with Marc Schaffel. You said he was not there -- or he did not spend the night very often. You recall seeing him every once in a while?

A. Every once in a while. Granted I worked two, three days a week, so I wasn't there all during the week.
Q. I understand.
A. But occasionally he was there, yes.
Q. And was he there continuously during a period of time or off and on, or two different distinct periods of time?
A. I remember him being there just off and on, odd times. He would just come out and -- he may stay the night, he may leave that day.
Q. You mentioned Ronald Konitzer and you said you recognized the name, but you couldn't really put a face to that name; is that correct?
A. I don't believe I could, no.
Q. You remember Mr. Konitzer being listed as a guest; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You remember seeing the name anyway --
A. Yes.
Q. -- in the context of being a guest.
Do you remember Mr. Konitzer's wife and children being listed as guests?
A. I don't remember that, no.
Q. All right. Now, if they were guests, there's a good chance they would be in the guest logs; is that correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. And then you mentioned Dieter Weizner. You said you saw him visiting several times; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.
Q. And do you know when this period of time was? Was this the entire time from 1998?
A. No, it would have been later into when I worked there, probably around, again, late -- mid, late ‘02, end of 2002, into 2003.
Q. Into 2003. Okay. Now, in general, besides intruders, which we talked about, actual trespassers and people who intrude, were there other concerns for security on the ranch?
A. Meaning --
Q. Well, for instance, was one of the concerns that this was Michael Jackson’s home and that his privacy should be preserved?
A. Yes.
Q. So there were confidentiality agreements that new visitors would sign when they came to the gate; is that correct?
A. Correct. Correct. I’m sorry, yes.
Q. I didn’t know if the court reporter got it.
A. I’m sorry.
Q. And one of the reasons for the confidentiality agreements was -- or one of the provisions was that people not take pictures when they’re at the ranch; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.
Q. And you understood the reason for that to be that people would sell pictures if they could; is that right?
A. I understood the reason to be we were told not to let them do it. What they did with them is --
Q. You understand that -- there was a concern about people getting cameras on the ranch to take pictures to sell them to the tabloids?
A. I’m sure that there was.
Q. And some of the intruders that you caught had cameras with them; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you -- were you aware of an armed intruder getting onto the ranch?
A. Armed with what?

Q. With a gun.

A. No.

Q. The ranch itself you understood to be Mr. Jackson’s home, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And one of the things that security was instructed to do was to accord Mr. Jackson respect as a person who is trying to live in his home, correct?

A. Absolutely.

Q. So the idea was to not unduly approach him or burden him, or take up his time while he’s trying to -- while he’s trying to be at home, correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And have you ever worked for any other celebrities or people of that sort?

A. No.

Q. But that made sense to you, didn’t it?

A. Absolutely.

Q. All right. When you say that when Mr. Jackson was there people were on pins and needles, did you mean by that to suggest that Mr. Jackson was a harsh or mean boss of some sort?

A. No.

Q. Just -- the structure of the people there, through the various commands and different departments, made everybody aware that when Mr. Jackson’s on property that you need to be on your best behavior, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you didn’t see anything wrong with that, did you?

A. No. Not necessarily, no.

Q. Okay. And you felt personally that -- I suppose you probably felt you should be on your best behavior at all times; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. But you didn’t have any objection to everybody being, you know, particularly careful to be prepared and ready to perform their duties when the owner is on the property, right?

A. I had no objection to that. No.

Q. Now, you said people worked harder when Mr. Jackson was there, right?

A. They worked more, for sure.

Q. Okay. Now, there's sometimes Mr. Jackson was not there when there were big events that were scheduled; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. There were family days?

A. Yes.

Q. And you've gone to family days, have you not?

A. Several of them.

Q. Do you have family? I won't go into details. But did you bring family members with you?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is something that Mr. Jackson did for his employees; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. Basically opened up the whole property, the employees could bring their children, their friends or their close friends or relatives certainly, and could enjoy the rides and all the other amenities at Neverland; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. Mr. Jackson would sometimes be there and sometimes not; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And then there were other days when he would have large groups of either, for instance, disadvantaged children or children who were sick or just children in general who would come to be his guest at the ranch; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. During those times, Mr. Jackson was often not on the property; is that right?

A. Often not on the property?

Q. Yes.

A. That's right.

Q. And he was sometimes on the property; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Whether he was on the property or not, the entire staff was instructed to treat all of the people, adults and children, as guests, as if they were guests at somebody’s private home; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. The only difference is that there would be certain boundaries, you can’t go into certain parts of the house and that sort of thing; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. But other than that, if the kids want something, if the adults want something, everybody is there to serve; is that right?

A. That’s right.

Q. Now, you mentioned that the security guards often did the job of other -- let me withdraw that. You mentioned the security guards worked with the fire department from time to time; is that correct?

A. Basically they were the same department.

Q. All right. And you had at least one fire truck there?

A. Yes.

Q. Was there a time when you had more than one?

A. Well, there was a time when there was -- when I was there, there was a time that there was more than one, one was not working.

Q. Okay.

A. But there were two. And then prior to me being there, yes, there was, I believe, more than one.

Q. Eventually they turned one of those fire trucks into a water truck, I think.

A. Water tender, yes.

Q. There you go. But they have one operating professional fire truck there; is that correct?

A. Not in the sense -- fire rescue, like a brush truck. It would be not like a large city fire truck. But, yes, a working -- held water, medical equipment.

Q. All right. Not a hook and ladder, but something that was an emergency vehicle --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that could be used to tend to emergencies on this ranch, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And anywhere from somebody being injured, to having a brush fire, to anything else that was needed on an emergency basis; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And both the people who were assigned as security officers and those assigned as firemen were somewhat interchangeable in these tasks. If it needed to be done, you all would respond and do it; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, there were a number of people who were in the fire department from time to time who eventually became employed in other fire departments; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So this was an area where people could work, gain additional experience in order to go work someplace else; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you feel -- as a professional law enforcement officer, did you feel that the -- that the operation was run professionally?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, the duties of security and fire you said were pretty much merged. But in addition to those duties, you also had duties to attend to the needs of guests and Mr. Jackson, or anybody else who required some assistance on the ranch; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And they were not always law enforcement duties or fire duties, correct?

A. Generally, no.

Q. Generally not.

So, if somebody needed something, you or anybody else that worked there -- say a guest needed something, you or anybody else that worked there was expected to respond as favorably as possible; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. All right.
THE COURT: Counsel? Take our break.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

PLAINTIFF’S WITNESSES	DIRECT	CROSS	REDIRECT	RECROSS
BARRON, Brian	7058-SA (Continuing)

THE COURT: Go ahead.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
Q. All right. Mr. Barron --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- or Officer Barron, across the street from --
THE BAILIFF: Can you turn your microphone on?
MR. SANGER: Oh, sorry. There you go.
Q. Across the street from Neverland on Figueroa Mountain Road, there are two schools; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. What kind of schools are they?
A. One is a boarding school, and one is like a -- an elementary school, I believe.
Q. Okay. And are these private schools?
A. Yes.
Q. People are there during the day?
A. Yes.
Q. So there's activity, at least during the school year; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. February and March of 2003, those schools would have been open; people would have been there?
A. Yes.
Q. Parents coming and going?

A. Yes.
Q. Teachers?
A. Yes.
Q. Administrators?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, you told us about the security staff that you were a member of, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And you told us about the fire department?

A. Correct.

Q. Did Mr. Jackson also have personal security or personal bodyguards?

A. Yes.

Q. And are these people who traveled with him?

A. Yes.

Q. You did not travel with Mr. Jackson; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. So your duties were pretty much restricted to the ranch. I shouldn’t say restricted. It’s a big ranch, but you were there at the ranch, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. If he went to Los Angeles or Miami or went on tour or anything else, you would not go with him; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. And who would go with him?

A. Whomever was his personal security at the time. It did change.

Q. All right. So he did have people who were generally experienced in going on the road and protecting a celebrity under those circumstances; is that correct?

A. There were times when he did, yes.

Q. Okay. There were some times when you thought his personal security may not have been --

A. Yes.

Q. -- quite as -- okay. All right.

Now, do you remember Janet Arvizo?

A. I know she was there. I do not remember her face until yesterday.

Q. All right. But you remember her being there and you remember having some contact with her; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you remember Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. You remember Star Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. And in general, did Janet Arvizo ever appear to not want to be at the ranch?

A. In general, I couldn’t answer.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. I’m going to object on the basis of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Would it be your opinion, based on your seeing her there at the ranch, that what stood out in your mind was that Mrs. Arvizo appeared that she wanted to be there?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Same objection.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. What kind of contact did you have with Janet Arvizo?
A. Probably talked to her on the phone once or twice. Other than that, relatively none.
Q. When you talked to her on the phone, did it appear that she wanted to be there at the ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. And Janet Arvizo had access to the house, full access to the house; is that correct?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I don’t know.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Do you recall testifying before the Santa Barbara Grand Jury on April the 12th, 2004?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you recall telling the grand jury that Janet Arvizo was one of the people who had access; she would have access to the house?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you were -- when the District

Attorney said, “Okay,” you said, “No question.”
A. Yes.
Q. Is that correct? And she had full access to the house because her children were there; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, did you have any personal observations about the behavior of Gavin and Star?

A. No.

Q. They appeared -- from what you could see, they appeared to want to be at the ranch; is that correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did you see them from time to time at the ranch?

A. Seldom.

Q. Was there any indication -- from the seldom times that you saw them, was there any indication that they did not want to be at the ranch?

A. No.

Q. You indicated that part of the security -- part of security’s job was to monitor who was coming onto the property, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that was recorded, to a large extent, in the gate logs; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were you aware that in addition to just plain interlopers, that there would be people who would try to gain some kind of introduction to Mr. Jackson to get into his favor?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Ambiguous; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: How do you mean?

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Well, were there people who seemed to be trying to get close to Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And sometimes Mr. Jackson really wouldn’t want those people to be around him, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So if they were allowed on the ranch, they were to be treated courteously?

A. Yes, yes.

Q. But nevertheless, you were to try to help Mr. Jackson not be bothered by people; is that right?

A. That's right.
Q. And Mr. Jackson, of course, during the time you were there, and now, for that matter, is an international celebrity, an artist, a very well-known person, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And there would be people who would basically be trying to get into his good graces; is that right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Foundation.
THE COURT: It's argumentative. Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, let me ask you one other thing before we get to the gate logs and some of the other documents you identified.
You were actually asked -- let me put it a different way. You were contacted by the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Office in December of 2003; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And in particular, Detective Bonner of the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department contacted you; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And he did an interview of you to determine if you'd seen anything unlawful and so on; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. But then he asked that you work as an informant; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were at that time a sworn peace officer of the Guadalupe Police Department, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And he basically wanted you to go back to work for Mr. Jackson in December of 2003 to be an informant, correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. And at that time, you know that the raid had already occurred on Mr. Jackson's house, correct?
A. Correct.

Q. You knew Mr. Jackson had a lawyer, had counsel, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were being asked to go in as a law enforcement informant into his ranch, at his home, and inform for the sheriff; is that correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And you refused to do that; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. What I'd like to do now is go through some of the exhibits that you've identified and ask you, based on your training and experience, to interpret the documents, okay?

To the extent you were there, you made an entry, and then you can contribute that as well and say, "Yes, I actually wrote that."

A. Yes.

Q. But to the extent that you introduced these documents, you said they were kept in the ordinary course of business, I'd like you to explain what they mean, if you could.

A. Okay.

MR. SANGER: So I'm going to start with Exhibit 300, and, Your Honor, if this procedure is acceptable, I'd like to do this without asking each time -- or I can. Whatever the Court wants me to do.

What I propose to do is identify the document by exhibit number. If there is more than one page to the exhibit, I'll indicate which page of the exhibit. If -- in the Exhibits 334 and 335, there are hundreds of pages, so I'll refer to the Bates stamp number on the bottom of the page for that purpose.

And if that procedure is acceptable, what I'd like to do then is put each of these up on the -- not all of them, but each of the ones I want to point out on the overhead projector, and I'll just make reference to it at the time.

THE COURT: That's a fine procedure.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. In other words, I won't ask leave each time. I'll just do it.

THE COURT: That's good.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. Okay. In that case, with the Court's permission in advance, I'll put Exhibit 300 up.

THE BAILIFF: Can you put "Input 4"?

MR. SANGER: Or we'll put up Mr. Auchincloss's....

THE COURT: That was "Input 4."

Q. BY MR. SANGER: What I'm going to do, I hope, is put it up in a way so we can show the exhibit tag number, if such exists, and then I'll give you an opportunity here to see what the document is, best we can.

If you want me to -- this was printed pretty large, so we can do it this way, if you want me to scroll it up or down. If you'd like me to approach and give it to you, if you can't read it, I'll just walk up and show it to you. So just let me know.

A. Okay.

Q. This is Exhibit 300. And it appears at the top to be an accident damage report, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. And I think you told us that was kept in the ordinary course of business; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the accident damage report appears to have been generated on a computer; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. In other words, it's not just a form that's handwritten in, but somebody generated the whole thing on a computer, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the format is such that it appears to be a standard format, and then you put in particular information based on the particular incident; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, what would be the purpose of this particular accident damage report? Let me rephrase that. What does this accident damage report refer to?

A. One of the golf carts.

Q. All right. And from that report and from the records, and based on your training and experience, can you explain what happened and why this report was written?

A. I can read it.

Q. Okay. Well, let’s do it this way, because we’ll start this way and then the other ones will speak for themselves.

There’s a date up there at the very top, right?

A. Yes.

Q. 6-21-02.

A. Yes.

Q. Would that be the date of the incident?

A. Yes.

Q. And then you have a date at the bottom. Would that be the date the report was written?

A. Yes.

Q. And there’s a time, 1610, so 4:10 in the afternoon, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the time at the top would be 1530, which would be 3:30 in the afternoon, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. So this report is designed to document the fact that Gavin Arvizo was involved in crashing a golf cart into the theater fountain; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And the cause of the accident was recorded as reckless driving; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, you told us that you’re supposed to be very courteous to the guests, no matter who they are, where they're from or whatever. Is it appropriate, however, for security officers to warn guests, particularly children, if they're involved in unsafe behavior?

A. Yes.

Q. And based on this report, does it appear that there was a warning given to Gavin Arvizo about driving the golf cart?

A. Yes.

Q. And the warning was to slow down or the golf cart would be taken away; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So based on your experience in these records, that would indicate that an officer gave that warning to Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Were you aware of other incidents involving Gavin or Star Arvizo that involves destruction of property or accidents or that sort of thing?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Did you review these records to see if you could find such evidence?

A. Not for that purpose, no.

Q. Okay. That's fair enough. Actually, I didn't see that. I don't think it was on my copy. Maybe it was.

On the back of 300 is a photograph. Does that appear to be a Polaroid-type photograph?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that the front of a golf cart?

A. Yes.

Q. And it kind of looks like a car.

A. Well, you couldn't hold golf clubs on them. They're more of a car.

Q. It's essentially the frame of a golf cart and it's got a little fiberglass car body on it?

A. Correct.

Q. And this one, I think, is the Batmobile one;

is that --

A. We call it “the Batman cart.”

Q. “The Batman cart,” okay. In any event, this photograph is taken to show damage that was associated with that report; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. I’m going to go to Exhibit 301.

And just so nobody gets too nervous, Your Honor, I’m going to try to -- I’m going to keep these in order, but it’s too hard to put them back on the sprocket there, and I’ll do that when we’re through, if that’s all right.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: 301 consists of a number of pages. And in the book, I would say it’s page four. It’s the back of the second sleeved page. No, I’m sorry, it’s the back of the first sleeved page, so it would be page two, I suppose. And let me put this up, if I may.

Do you want to see it first?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Uh-huh.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Exhibit 301 is the front, and then the back of the sleeve is the next page. And we’ll use this document for the purpose of orienting everybody to the way this works.

At that time, there was a form that looked like this, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that form was changed slightly as time went on; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. But essentially you’ve got -- at the top, you have the blanket “Routine Authorized Entries.” That’s people who might be making deliveries, that sort of thing; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. I see up there, for instance, “Santa Barbara Surfacing.” Looks like somebody may have been there to do some surfacing work on the roads; is that correct?

A. I don’t know what they were doing, but, yes.

Q. Okay. Just as an example, all right. And then I see -- looks like it says “Santa Ynez Ford.” It is a little hard to see.

A. “Santa Ynez Feed.”

Q. That would make more sense. “Santa Ynez Feed.” That would be, for instance, you would assume somebody came on at 11:30 to deliver some feed, and by 11:57, or whatever that says, they went back out the gate, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the in-and-out times on this are recorded at the time somebody comes in the gate, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And the time they leave, right?

A. Yes.

Q. So when somebody comes in the gate, the gates are opened if they’re allowed to have access?

A. Right.

Q. They stop the car or the truck right there by the guard house, correct?

A. Right.

Q. And the guard comes up and greets them?

A. Yes.

Q. And will write down who the person is and write down the exact time that it is at that moment; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And when they leave, the same thing occurs in reverse. They’re stopped before the gate. The guard will record who’s in the vehicle and the time that they’re leaving; is that correct?

A. Well, yes. We would make sure it’s the same person, and then we wouldn’t record their name again, but we would just record their time out.

Q. Their time out, okay. So if somebody came in with three people and only left with one, you’d want to know about that?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, we have the guest names down there. And guests would be people who are guests of the owner staying at the ranch, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. And they might be guests who stay all day and they might be guests that are coming and going that same day; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. Now, I don't know if it's the glare or what. It's a little hard to read. Can you read it from there?
A. For the most part.
Q. Okay. Right at the top of "Guests," it says, "Grace"; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it says, "C/O." And that means?
A. Carried over. They were carried over from the previous 24-hour period.
Q. So, in other words, there's no entry time for Grace, because Grace was already there?
A. Already there at midnight the night before. This was prepared at midnight the night before.
Q. And there's no indication that Grace left, so one would assume that she would still be there the next day?
A. At midnight of this day, this would be completed, and that "CO," carry-over, would be put in the "out" box. So she would continue to be carried over for the period.
Q. So let's look down the list. And the third person on the list appears to have gotten there at 7074 1205; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that would be five minutes after noon; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then left at 1440 hours, which would be 2:40 in the afternoon; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Can you tell me who that person is?
A. I can't read that.
MR. SANGER: All right. May I approach with a copy?
THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now that you have it in front of you, can you read the name?

A. Yes.

Q. What does it say?

A. “M. Bashir.”

Q. So Mr. Bashir came there at five minutes after noon and left at about 2:40, or left at exactly 2:40, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Let me leave that with you just for the moment, just in case you have trouble reading the rest of it.

A. Uh-huh.

Q. On that same day, it appears Chris Tucker arrived; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And Chris Tucker arrived at?

A. 1500, or 3 p.m.

Q. So 3 p.m. And it appears that at the same time Chris Tucker arrived, a number of other people came through the gate; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And those people include Gavin Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Star Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. There are a couple of other people there, and then I think there are three other people, and then there’s something that says, “Gavellin.” Or what do you think it says?

A. Well, it looks like maybe “Aubrey.”

Q. Below that. Right below that.

A. “Gavel” -- yeah, “Gavellin.” I -- “Gavellin.”

Q. “Gavellin.” Do people always get the spelling right at the gate?

A. Not always, no.

Q. Okay. You try your best, but sometimes you just spell it the way you thought you heard it?

A. The way it sounds, yeah.

Q. All right. So those people, plus Adrian, Kelly Bond and Aubrey, or Audrey, whatever that says, all those people seem to have come at three o’clock on the dot, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, it appears that Mr. Tucker and the Arvizos did not leave -- and I’ll ask you to assume, just for the sake of this question, that “Gavellin” is an Arvizo. But those three people came at three o’clock and they did not leave that day; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Let me retrieve my book, if I may. Thank you. I guess I was asking permission of the Court to approach there, to be specific.

I’m now going to go to Exhibit 302, and this would be what appears to be the third page of 302 in the exhibit, the official exhibit book. So this does not have a tag on it, but the first page does. And I’m sure I would be corrected if I were wrong. This is 302 I’m putting up, the third page.

So let’s start up here, first of all. This is on 6-22, the date following the day that we just saw; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And we look down here, and we see that it appears that Chris Tucker, Gavin, Star, and the other people we talked about, and then this “Gavellin,” all show that they are carried over; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And they’re carried over not only from the day before, but they appear to be carried over to the next day.

A. Correct.

Q. And if we look at 303 -- and we’ll take page two of 303. It’s on the back of the envelope here. So that’s 303, and I’ll turn it over, and that’s the guest names. And once again, Chris Tucker, Gavin, Star, and “Gavellin” are all carried over as guests; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And I’m sorry, that’s the next day, 6-23; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. We go to 304, Exhibit 304. Looking at page two of 304, page two, 6-24-02?

A. Yes.

Q. And again, we show Chris Tucker, Gavin, Star and “Gavellin” all carried over; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it doesn’t show any check-out time for them or any time they went by the gate; is that correct?

A. No. That’s correct.

Q. And then 305, this would be the third page, 6-25-02. And it shows Chris Tucker, Gavin, Star. And I don’t see “Gavellin” on there or “Davellin” or anything else like that. But it shows that Chris Tucker’s group left at 7:54 in the morning; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So they would have been there overnight and then they left together?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Now, if we skip ahead timewise to -- it’s Exhibit 306, and it’s page two of 306, it says “6-29-02” on the top, and it appears that Gavin, Star, and Davellin, or Davellin, and a limo driver all showed up at 46 minutes after midnight; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And Gavin, Star and Davellin all stayed there overnight that day, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the limo driver got a cup of coffee and left, looks like.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then going to Exhibit 307, about 6-30-02, we have Gavin, Star and Davellin all staying overnight at the ranch, correct?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: All right. Excuse me just one second.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Excuse me, Your Honor. I'm sorry. I just had to clear something up.

Q. Okay. I want to -- just because it's in sequence in the exhibits, let me show you 308, and this is a different kind of a form. And we'll be able to go a lot quicker here. And actually, we'll skip quite a ways ahead in a moment, just so everybody has something to anticipate.

308, okay, and I'll try to get as much of a wide angle as I can and still read it. Do you see that? It says, "Security Clearance and General Information"?

A. Yes. "Guest Information."

Q. Or, I'm sorry, I can't read it. All right. I can read it here. "Guest Information."

And this is information about the people who were arriving. And actually, this dates back a little out of sequence. It dates back to 6-21-02, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And basically this is information so you know how to treat the guests and what they can do; is that right?

A. We know who's coming and what they're able to do.

Q. Okay. So this tells you the estimated time of arrival; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you never know exactly if somebody's going to arrive on time, but it gives you a heads-up, right?

A. Right.

Q. And it shows Chris Tucker, Gavin Arvizo, Star Arvizo, Adrian, Kelly, Gavellin and Aubrey, it looks like.

So on 6-21, this was telling you these people are really going to show up, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then at the bottom, it says Mr. Jackson has cleared the guests to have full access, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So Chris Tucker and his guests are allowed to have full access to all of these activities; is that right?

A. That’s right.

Q. And those activities include the hill house, pool, spa, water fort, dance studio, and then quad runners; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And what were the quad runners?

A. ATVs.

Q. Were people supposed to keep those on the property?

A. They were property of the ranch.

Q. But, I mean, they weren’t supposed to go drive on Figueroa Mountain Road.

A. Correct.

Q. And they definitely were not supposed to go into Los Olivos.

A. No.

Q. All right. And then there’s scooters, right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Golf carts?

A. Yes.

Q. Jet skis. The main house. And written in is “horseback riding”?

A. Yes.

Q. So Mr. Jackson, according to this record, kept in the ordinary course of business, had cleared the guests to have full access to all of those activities?

A. Yes.

Q. And those guests would be Mr. Tucker and the Arvizos and his other guests; is that correct?

A. I believe Mr. Tucker, there, says he was the driver. Whether or not he had access to that stuff at the same time, probably, but --

Q. Do you know who Chris Tucker is?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Who is Chris Tucker?

A. He was an employee of the ranch.

Q. Okay. Are you thinking --

A. Or of Mr. Jackson.

Q. Are you thinking of Chris Carter?

A. I'm sorry. Chris Tucker. Excuse me. I apologize.

Q. Chris Tucker is the actor?

A. Chris Tucker is the actor, yes. I'm sorry.

Q. Do you remember him visiting the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. And you would assume Chris Tucker would have --

A. Chris Tucker, I'm sorry. Thank you.

Q. He would have full access to --

A. Yes, he would.

Q. All right. Now, if we go to Exhibit 309, you may recall -- let's show 309. There we go. You may recall that when we went through the gate logs, it appeared that Gavin, Star and Davellin came back and Mr. Tucker was not there; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, when they came back this time, they're estimated to arrive sometime in the evening. And if I'm not mistaken, I think they got there very early in the morning the next day. But here, Mr. Tucker is not there. They were not cleared for the quad runner or the jet skis; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And they were not cleared for horseback riding; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Based on your experience and understanding of these records kept in the ordinary course of business, who would have given those instructions?

A. Those instructions there?

Q. Yes.

A. They would -- this would have come to us through the administration office.

Q. All right. So somebody in the chain of command above decided that, under these circumstances, that these children should not have access to the quads or the jet ski?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. We'll go to Exhibit 310. And this will be the second page of 310. And it appears that -- 7-1-02. And it appears that Gavin, Star and Davellin stayed overnight, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then they left at 2114 hours, which would be 9:14 in the evening, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, then we skip ahead in time to September the 15th, which is the next record in the exhibit book which was presented to you by Mr. Auchincloss. And that shows 9-15-02; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And on 9-15-02, we have Chris Tucker, Gavin, Star, sister, it looks like it says Chris's nephew; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. There's a star there. What does that mean?

A. Probably means that the time was either not written down when they came in, or it was -- at that time, whomever was checking people in the gate failed to write them in, or we just didn't know when they came in.

Q. Okay. So every once in a while somebody makes a mistake, true?

A. Yes.

Q. That will happen.

And then it shows on that day, which is 9-15-02, Mr. Tucker and his group, including Gavin, Star, sister, and Chris's nephew, all stayed overnight; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. I'm going to go to Exhibit 312. 9-16-02.

And here we have a record that Chris Tucker and his group stayed overnight. It also shows "bus driver," correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember if Chris Tucker had a bus?

A. I don’t know if he personally had a bus. I don’t remember.

Q. Well, looks like the bus driver left with Chris Tucker and the rest of the party at 6:54 in the morning; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, do you know if Mr. Jackson was at the ranch at these various times that we’ve covered so far?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. Now, 9-26 -- I’m sorry, this would be Exhibit 313, the second page. 9-26 at the top, ‘02. And I think you can read this, but if you can’t, just tell me.

I don’t know if I made it better or worse.

Okay. All right. Looks like Martin Bashir arrived at two o’clock in the afternoon and left at 6:13; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it looks like he probably arrived with some other people there. There’s three other people, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. We see -- we see Gary Hearn arrived at 2:30; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Looks like somebody adjusted that, but that was the way it was entered at the time; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And it looks like -- now, first of all, Gary Hearn is who?

A. Gary’s a driver.

Q. He’s a driver for Michael Jackson and for Neverland; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. He often drives a limousine or whatever car is appropriate to transport people, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And Gary Hearn seems to have arrived with Gavin, Star, and “Davida” or “Davila” or something, whatever that says, right?

A. Yes.

Q. All at the same time. And then it appears that they were there from 2:30 and stayed overnight; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And then I’m going to put up 314, the second page. And it shows Gavin, Star, and “Davida” - I think that’s what it says - stayed over that night as well, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then I’m going to put up 315, page two, for 9-28, okay? I’m going to go down to the bottom, and it looks like Gavin, Star, and “Davida,” or whatever that says - all right? - stayed overnight, but they left at four o’clock in the afternoon; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And it appears that Gary -- down at the bottom, that’s probably “Gary Hearn”; is that correct?

A. Most likely, yes.

Q. And Gary Hearn came and went, but he came in about three o’clock, and then left at exactly four o’clock; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So based on that, you would assume that he drove the -- Gavin, Star, and whoever Davida is; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it looks like it -- it’s really hard to see what that says there, but it does look like there’s an entry, and I just want to clarify it so I don’t get confused. It says something like “Maxim Bahit”?

A. Your guess is as good as mine.

Q. All right. It’s not “Martin Bashir,” though?

A. It doesn’t look like “Martin Bashir” to me.

Q. All right. Now, if somebody checks out -- in other words, I say “checks out.” If somebody goes through the gate, out, and then they go to dinner or to town or whatever, and they come back, when they come back, they should be logged back in again with the time?

A. Yes.

Q. Does that sometimes not happen?

A. For employees? Sometimes.

Q. For anybody.

A. Yeah, I’m sure there’s times when it happens.

Q. All right. Now, I’m going to skip way ahead, and you guys are going to be happy to hear that, to Exhibit 331.

Okay. I’m sorry. Better yet, 333. And I’m going to put 333 up. This is the second page of it. And there’s a -- wide angle here. Okay. A medical report log; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that logs in various medical emergencies or skinned knees or anything else that happens that requires somebody to respond?

A. Each medical report for the year.

Q. And on the other side, actually the front side of 333, there’s a medical report for Star Arvizo; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you read that?

A. Not well. Actually, that really hurts my eyes. If you could bring it up, that would be great.

Q. Actually, I don’t blame you.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I’m giving you a copy of that page. Can you take a quick look at it there? And what I want to ask you is, basically, does this document reflect that Star Arvizo apparently had a fall on a scooter, slid on some loose gravel or something?

A. Yes.

Q. And he had minor scrapes to his left knee, right ankle and right knee?

A. Yes.

Q. So that sort of thing was documented carefully at Neverland, and that’s an example of it; is that right?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. May I approach to retrieve that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. I’m now going to go to Exhibit 334. For the benefit of the Court and everybody else, it’s probably about 90 pages, and so this is a part where I’m going to refer to -- I’ll just put the first page up so we can see it here, 334, and it’s again one of the logs, which I believe here actually starts February 1 of ‘03, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And now I’m going to refer to a Bates stamp number, which is a number in the lower part of the document, generally the lower right corner, and I believe in all of these it starts out with “MJ” and two zeroes and then a number. And I will refer to that so we’re on the same page.

THE COURT: Okay.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And I’m going to skip to page 116. That’s MJ00116. And I’m going to show you this here.

Now, this appears to be the format that was being used in 2003; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And I think it’s a little different, at least a little different than some of the forms that were used because under “Guest Information” you also have “Ranch Vehicle Information” --

A. Yes.

Q. -- showing when people come in and out.

On this particular document -- oops, sorry.

Let’s try here. This is for February the 6th, 2003; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it appears that at 2243 hours -- let's see. 2245 hours, it should be 10:45 at night, it says, "Owner and guests"; is that correct?
A. Yeah. Could I see that page? I -- I would assume it does.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May I see that?
MR. SANGER: May I approach?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Based on the paperwork that we fill out, we would not have put "owner" or "Mr. Jackson" or anything that would represent him on this paperwork. In the time that I worked there, I have never done that, that I can remember.

It could be -- it could be, "Owner and guest," which I didn't write it, but definitely could be.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. That's fair enough. I'll ask you about that a little more so it makes sense.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Could I see that again?
MR. SANGER: Sure.
Q. This is Mr. Jackson's home, right?
A. Correct.
Q. And so you were not -- not only not required to, but you were really not supposed to write down Mr. Jackson comes and goes and log him in like somebody else; is that right?
A. That is correct.
Q. Okay. You saw what you thought said, "Owner and guest," may have said, "Owner and guest," you're not sure --
A. No.
Q. -- but it would not be typical for you to write down "Owner"?
A. I've never done it. The whole time I was there, I'd never done it.
Q. That's fine. And it does -- it looks like it says, "Guest."
A. Yes.

Q. All right. It doesn't say who the guests are?

A. No.

Q. And that's somewhat unusual, isn't it?

A. If someone had come in with Mr. Jackson, we don't routinely stop his vehicle and look in his vehicle. Again, it's privacy for him. We try to bother him as little as possible.

So if someone had -- if that is "Owner and guest" and someone had come with him, we would not have just stopped his vehicle and, for the most part, asked who was in there, unless we really felt it was necessary.

MR. SANGER: Do you want to leave that on?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: Okay. All right. I won't put it here. I'll --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah, that's fine.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I want to see if we can reconstruct this a little bit. Where it just says, "Guests," there are no names?

A. Correct.

Q. So does that suggest to you that those guests were probably in a vehicle with Mr. Jackson?

A. It could have -- yes, it could have been.

Q. All right. And now we're going to go to -- and I'm sorry, that was on 2-6, February 6, 2003, correct? I'll put it up again if you want.

A. Yes. That's correct.

Q. All right. February 6th, 2003.

Do you know if Mr. Jackson was returning from Miami that night?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. All right. And you're welcome to look at this whole exhibit, if you want me to bring the book down so you can see it, if you feel you need to look at the pages in order or anything, okay?

I'm going to put up 2-7-03, which is MJ00120. And that is still a part of Exhibit 334, okay? And you can see we're referring to the "120" down there on the bottom, just so we're all oriented. That's what we call the Bates stamp number. This is for 2-7-03; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, if you look at the guests -- and I’m going to bring it a little closer and give everybody a headache, all right? If you look at the “Guests,” it appears that there’s an M. Nicole Cascio --

A. Yes.

Q. -- who stayed overnight; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And it looks like a Dr. Farshshian stayed overnight; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Actually, I’m going backwards. He’s at the top of that list, right?

A. Right.

Q. It looks like he left at 8:30 in the morning, right?

A. Right.

Q. And then he may have come back at 10:15?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So let’s go down to -- to “Marie Nicole,” or it says, “M,” something, Nicole Cascio.” You assume that’s Marie Nicole?

A. Yes, uh-huh.

Q. So -- it says stayed over or carried over, so that would tell you she stayed overnight; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now that you think about that in conjunction with the whatever-it-was “and guests,” does that suggest that Marie Nicole Cascio was probably one of the guests that came in the day before?

A. Do you have the other pages for this?

Q. I have --

A. There’s usually like three pages per day.

Q. Yes. Yes. You’re welcome to look at them. We have to be careful because we’ve got the book apart, and I want to put it back. So we have to keep it in the same order here.

Before I do, I'll let you see the whole thing, but it's safe to say you've got Gavin Arvizo, Star Arvizo, looks like "Daviella" now, Arvizo, Aldo Cascio, and Mom Arvizo, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And those are all carry-overs. So that would mean, to you, that they were there --

A. The night before.

Q. -- the night before?

A. Prior to midnight of that day.

Q. Of this day, which was 2-7 --

A. Correct.

Q. -- 03.

Okay. And it also appears that they then continued to stay overnight on the 7th; is that right?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. So now having said that, if it's all right with the Court, I'll approach with the book so that the witness can see everything in context.

Q. And I'll just speak loud for a moment, if I can.

The pages are in the exact order of the exhibit, so keep them in that same order, if you would.

A. Yes.

At some point they came in on the 6th and were there on the 7th.

Q. All right. And as you look at that -- before I come up and retrieve it, as you look at that, there's no specific record where those particular individuals, that is, the Cascios and the Arvizos, were logged in by name as coming in.

A. No.

Q. Other than perhaps just that reference to "Owner and guest," or whatever it says; is that correct?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: All right. May I approach to retrieve the book, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you, sir.
Q. Now, I'm going to go to page 121 of the same exhibit. It will still be 334 until further notice, if that's all right.
So it's -- it says 121, MJ00121 at the bottom. And then this is -- at the top, rather than "Guest," there are a number of people who are listed there. And this is -- there's no date at the bottom of this, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. So you need to try to ascertain the date by figuring out where it falls within the context of the other documents, right?
A. Correct. The -- it would have been, again, 7097 with at least one, most likely two other pieces of paper that -- gate logs.
Q. All right. And for the purpose of -- well, I'll withdraw that.
This shows that at the ranch, there were quite a number of people; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it says, "CBS Entertainment" there; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, it appears that on that list -- I won't read them all, but on that list is "Ed Bradley"; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you familiar with Ed Bradley of CBS?
A. Yes.
Q. And Jack Sussman, is he a producer at CBS? You don't know?
A. I have no idea.
Q. That's okay. There are a number of other people associated with CBS there, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And it indicates that all the people associated with CBS, at least down to the point that it's recorded -- let me withdraw that.
It looks like Jack Sussman arrived at 9:40; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Doesn’t show that he was checked out?

A. No.

Q. Okay. We assume he’s not still there.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. You got Ed Bradley. Can you read that?

A. Yes. The times?

Q. Yeah, the times.

A. 10:30 to -- it’s either 18 or 1900. So 6 or 7 p.m.

Q. And then the rest of them are 10:30 to 7 p.m., is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. 10:30 to 7 p.m.

Were you on duty that day?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Do you remember there being a large group of people?

A. I don’t remember being there when CBS was there.

Q. All right. That’s fair enough.

All right. Now we go to page 123, which is dated -- by that I mean MJ00123, which is dated 2-9-03, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And here we show on the 9th of February, 2003, that you have Gavin Arvizo, Star Arvizo, Davellin Arvizo. It shows they were all -- if you just look at those entries, they were all carried over from the night before?

A. Correct.

Q. And then it shows that they left at about 1:30 --

A. Yes.

Q. -- and apparently left with the person right before there, whose name is, oh, Marie Nicole.

A. Yes.

Q. That says “Marie Nicole” right above “Gavin Arvizo”?

A. Yes.

Q. So they all left at 1:30. Doesn't tell you where they went; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And then they came back at 4:15 in the afternoon?

A. Yes.

Q. It does appear that there are two other people down at the bottom, Anna Ruiz and looks like Silvana Ruiz. Do you see those?

A. Yes.

Q. Looks like they left at 1330, which is 1:30, and came back at 4:15, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And it says "limo" there. Does that mean they went by limo?

A. Yes.

Q. And you don't know how the Arvizos traveled on that occasion, do you?

A. No.

Q. You would assume that somebody gave them a ride, though?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then it shows next they're carried over -- that being the Arvizos -- they're carried over. They stayed overnight; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then we have page MJ00126, which shows 2-10-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And here we see the Arvizos and Marie Nicole staying overnight; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And it shows there "Mrs. Arvizo," as well, under "Anna Ruiz," correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it appears that they stayed overnight. Not only were they overnight the night before, but they're staying overnight the next night; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So that’s the 10th.

Now, did the -- did the procedures change at some point to where you would start logging in where people were staying at the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I want to show you 2-11-03, which is 00129, Bates stamp number 129. Okay, 2-11-03, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And here on 2-11 -- oops, sorry -- it appears that Dieter Weizner was staying in Guest Unit No. 4.

A. Yes.

Q. And he stayed overnight?

A. Yes.

Q. If you go down to the next, it shows Janet Arvizo.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I’m sorry, when I said “the next,” I meant to say skip one. It goes down to Janet Arvizo, Guest Unit No. 2.

A. Yes.

Q. Stayed overnight, or she was staying overnight, correct, from the night before?

A. Yes.

Q. But on this day, and again, “this day” being February the 11th, then Arvizo leaves at 5:04 in the afternoon, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And she comes back at three minutes to 8:00?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. It shows, “Gavin and Star, house”?

A. Yes.

Q. That means they’re staying at the house, according to this?

A. Yes.

Q. And then it shows -- now, what does that say now?

A. It looks like “Daniella.”

Q. Okay. Seems this name changes continuously.

But anyway, whoever that is, D. Arvizo, whatever it says there, is staying in Unit No. 2; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then Marie Nicole is staying in the doll room, right?

A. Yes.

Q. That’s in the house?

A. Correct.

Q. And Aldo, her brother, is staying in the house; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Ronald Konitzer is there in Unit No. 1, correct --

A. Yes.

Q. -- is that right?

And his wife and two children are also staying there at the ranch in Unit No. 1; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Units 1, 2, 3 and 4 are the four guest units that are right by the lake; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And they’re just across the front --

A. Grass.

Q. Yeah, the front entrance.

A. The driveway.

Q. The driveway for the entry of the house.

They’re right across from the front of the house in a building that has four units in it?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So according to this, Ronald Konitzer, his wife and children, are staying in 1. Davellin’s in 2 with Janet. And there are these other two people. Dieter’s in 4. And this Mark Lester, whoever that is, is in 3, right?

A. Right.

Q. Now, excuse me one second. I think it got cut off here. Hold on.

Yeah, okay. On this -- at the bottom here, same page, we’re still on 129 for February 11th, ‘03, at the very bottom, you have “Ranch Vehicles,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And I’m going to direct your attention to the one just before the bottom. It says “Katie,” and it’s kind of cut off, but it’s Katie Bernard; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know who Katie Bernard is?

A. Yes.

Q. Who is she?

A. She’s a secretary for the ranch.

Q. Works at the ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. Is she a nice person?

A. Very nice.

Q. It says, “Black van,” right?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is the black van?

A. Black van. It would be the -- it’s a ranch vehicle that usually Gary drives.

Q. Okay. So it’s a vehicle that’s used to drive people places, if the guests want to go to town or do something else, or go to the airport or whatever, it can be used for that, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, it looks like Katie Bernard checks the black van out and then she leaves at four minutes -- at 5:04; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So it appears that she is taking Janet Arvizo off the ranch, correct?

A. They at least left at the same time.

Q. If it’s down to the minute, they’re either right in the same car or one right behind the other.

A. Yes.

Q. But usually it’s the same car, right?

A. Yes.

Q. It would be 1705 by the time you get to the next car, probably, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, it looks like Katie Bernard was gone long enough to, say, go to town, drop somebody off and come back, right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now we go to 2-12. And this is page 132, 00132, and it shows February the 12th, 2003; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. All right. Now, here, let’s start with the guests. And I take it -- I think it’s obvious to everybody, the Xerox machine evidently cut off the edge of the page there, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Here it appears that there are a number of guests overnight, including Gavin, Star, and Davellin, however her name is spelled, all right?

A. Yes.

Q. We’ll call her Davellin, all right?

A. Okay.

Q. It appears that they stayed overnight, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then it appears -- and Janet as well, correct? It says Janet, Gavin, Star, Davellin?

A. Yes.

Q. They all stayed overnight, and then they all left at 1:38 in the morning; is that right?

A. That’s right.

Q. So when they went to the gate, whoever was driving them stopped the vehicle and said, “We’re leaving. And we have Janet, Gavin, Star and Davellin here,” correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So the person at the gate, the guard at the gate, could check all these people out at that date?

A. Yes.

Q. There was no secret spiriting of people away. This was checking right out at the gate?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.

MR. SANGER: That probably was. I’ll withdraw it.

THE COURT: All right. I’ll sustain the objection.

MR. SANGER: There we go.

Q. In other words, this is done according to procedure. A car comes up; the driver identifies the people in the car?

A. Either the driver or the security officer.

Q. Or the security officer looks in and sees who it is, and he opens the gate and they go, right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. If you look at the bottom here, we also have something that says, “Salas,” and it just says, “u-s Salas,” but your bet would be that’s “Jesus Salas,” correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Just got cut off by the Xerox machine. And he checks out the Rolls Royce, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you know what kind of Rolls Royce that is?

A. I don’t know which one exactly that is. There was a couple. They were older.

Q. Nice car?

A. Nice, yes.

Q. Nice car, all right. And he checked it out according to the ranch procedures, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And he checks out -- it goes out at 1:38, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. He does whatever he does, and he gets back, in the Rolls Royce, by 9:08 in the morning, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Gary Hearn was there. He’s a driver, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And he was staying overnight; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I think I’m going to go to 135. Hold on one second. Excuse me, Your Honor. I’m sorry. Let me skip ahead a little bit.

Okay. I’m going to go to 149. Show the bottom first. 149.

Now, it says 2-17 through 2-26-03. Is that a typical way to do this?

A. It has -- I’ve seen it done. I think it says 2-20, but --

Q. 2-20, you’re right, I’m sorry. 2-17 through 2-20?

A. The reason we would do something like this would be if we knew we were going to have guests for a certain period of time.

Q. So you have here -- and let me do this, first of all, so we can see it, and then I’ll focus in a little better for you.

At the top where it says -- ordinarily you’d put your service people and whatnot up there, that’s crossed out and it just says, “Guest List” and the whole page is used for “Guest List”?

A. Yes.

Q. Down through the first two parts of it, in any event; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And on the guest list -- let me see if we can get closer and read it.

Can you find the one that I did?

MS. YU: Yeah.

MR. SANGER: Let me borrow that.

Q. 2-17 through 2-20, it shows -- well, it looks like Davidia Arvizo was staying overnight, had been staying overnight; is that correct?

A. Stayed overnight at least once.

Q. All right. And then it shows “out” at 1951; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what day she left at 1951, 7:51 in the evening?

A. No.

Q. All right. And then you have Gavin is also staying overnight and leaves at 1951, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you have Janet, who leaves at 2145?

A. Yes.

Q. And then, again, Star is 1951?
A. Yes.
Q. And here it shows that the Arvizos are staying -- it says --
A. I would assume it’s “Dance Studio.”
Q. Staying at the dance studio?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And it shows the Cascios, Aldo and Marie Nicole, are staying at the main house; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And then there’s a number of other people there who are staying in the guest units down there. We don’t have to go through all of the names, but I see Ann Konitzer and kids is in one.
A. Yes.
Q. With Ronald Konitzer?
A. Yes.
Q. And there are other people staying in the other units, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, if we go to MJ00151, it says 2-18. And it doesn’t show all those guests that you showed -- I’m sorry, it does not show all the guests that were shown on page 149 that we just looked at; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. So since the other one said 2-17 through 2-20, you would assume that some or all of those people were continuing to stay overnight; is that correct?
A. Yes. We most likely had that one that you just showed without the guests, we had that for every day --
Q. Okay.
A. -- up through that period, because we would still need to have written down somewhere where those people, or general deliveries, contractors or whatever, were still coming in.

Q. If we go to 155, which is for 2-19, it doesn’t show all those other guests that were listed, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. But it does show some new guests, for instance, fan club people there?

A. Yes.

Q. Who apparently came onto the ranch for a while; is that correct?

A. For the day, it looks like.

Q. Okay. Now, I’m going to go to 2-20-03, which is 157. And again, if you want to look at any of the pages in between, you’re welcome to do it. I’m trying to pick out the ones that count here, but you can look at anything you want.

So this is 2-20-03, and this shows guests as of 2-20. It shows Aja Pryor coming in at 1420 hours.

A. Yes.

Q. Along with Dustin Tucker. Is that her son?

A. I don’t know.

Q. Okay. Aja Pryor is Chris Tucker’s girlfriend? Or you don’t --

A. I have no idea.

Q. Okay. Do you know who Aja Pryor is at all?

A. No.

Q. In any event, whoever they are came in at 1420. At the same time, Gavin, Star and Davellin came in at 1420 hours; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So evidently they left sometime before the time that they returned on 2-20, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And I showed you that other page where it said 2-17 to 2-20; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it showed some “out” times, but it didn’t tell you the day?

A. Right.

Q. So if somebody were to have left, say, on the 19th, the time was there, but you wouldn’t have the day to determine whether it was the 19th, the 17th, or what?

A. If that's how that particular paper was kept, yes. I don't know exactly what was going on, why -- I'm sure we had the extra sheet because we had so many people.

Q. All right.

THE COURT: One thing you need to do is to keep referring to the page number.

MR. SANGER: Did I fail to do that on the last one?

THE COURT: I don't -- I don't think you did. Maybe I missed it, but --

MR. SANGER: Okay. I'm sorry. The one that I just put up was 00157.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: And that is for 2-20-03.

THE COURT: You did refer to it. I just missed it. I'm sorry.

Is this a good place to stop?

MR. SANGER: Fine, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. We'll reconvene tomorrow morning at 8:30. Remember the admonition.

(The proceedings adjourned at 11:30 a.m.)

PLAINTIFF'S WITNESSES DIRECT CROSS REDIRECT RECROSS

BARRON, Brian 7120-SA (Contd.)

Santa Maria, California
Thursday, April 21, 2005
8:30 a.m.

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.
THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.
COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.
MR. SANGER: Good morning, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Mr. Sanger?
MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.
Could we please have the document screen again, please? There we go.
All right. With the Court's permission, we'll resume with Exhibit 334. And the Court may recall this is a series of a couple hundred documents and they have the Bates stamped number on the bottom, so we'll be referring to those by the MJ00 three-digit number, sometimes four-digit number.
Is that all right, Your Honor?
THE COURT: You may do so.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.

BRIAN BARRON
Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:
//

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued)
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. And in that regard, Mr. Barron, or Officer Barron, we had gotten to this period of time, just before we stopped yesterday, where the gate log showed from 2-17 to 2-20. Do you recall that?
A. Yes.
Q. And that was not the usual mode of recording. Usually it was day by day; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. So I'm going to show you 149 here again. Even though we had gotten up to 2-20, I want to go back to that period for a couple of other entries, all right?

So just to remind us where we were, I have MJ00149 up on the board. And that is the one that said 2-17 through 2-20-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And at the top, that had the extensive list of guests and where they were staying, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then it shows "CO," so it's carry-over for the Arvizo family, and then it has times out, but those times out are not necessarily coordinated with a particular day; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, I'm going to refer to 00152 and put that up on the board, if I may. Shows, at the bottom, 152.

Do we have our laser pointer, by any chance?

If you have it.

152. And then up at the top there's an entry that I'm going to -- I'm going to push the wrong button. I'm sorry. There we go. Sorry. I'm going to push the -- that button. See if you can read that entry.

Do you have it there?

MS. YU: No, somebody took it out.

MR. SANGER: All right. That's all right.

Q. Are you able to read the top entry there after I stop moving it? Just a second. There we go. Can you read that entry?

A. At 3:05?

Q. Yes. Would you like to have another copy up there?

A. I think -- I believe it says Marie Nicole, Danielle, Aldo are staying upstairs theater.

Q. Okay. And this particular gate log is dated 2-18-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, what would be the purpose of that particular entry; do you know?

A. So we would know where they were.

Q. So that would be a reference to where those particular guests were staying on that particular day; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. So as of 3:05, those guests had decided to stay in the upstairs theater, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. We'll skip ahead, then, to -- I don't want to get this out of order. We'll skip ahead to 155. Now, I'm going to show you 155. And I'll try to speak up when I come back here? If anybody can't hear, raise a hand so the Court and bailiff know. That's for 2-19-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And on this, I want to direct your attention to the top part of this one. It appears to indicate Hamid, a photographer.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And by the way, there's a column that says, “CONF.” What does that mean?

A. Confidentiality, if they need to sign one or not.

Q. So a person who has been there doesn't have to sign that agreement each time they come in, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the agreement basically says, “I'm not going to disclose private things about Mr. Jackson's residence”; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And it shows that Hamid and apparently a couple other people, a Mark Adams and a Ray Dominguez, arrived at 1620 hours, is that correct, 4:20 in the afternoon?

A. Yes.

Q. And departed at 2010 hours, which would be 8:10 in the evening, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, other -- let me ask you, did you have a chance to review these logs since you testified yesterday?

A. No.

Q. All right. I'm going to show you now 157. And I think this was really the last one that we put up yesterday. And this shows -- let me back this up a little bit. 00157 is for 2-20-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And this one shows that the Arvizos returned to the property at 1420 hours, or 2:20 in the afternoon, on the 20th of February, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it also shows that Aja Pryor and something Tucker, that's cut off there, returned at the same time?

A. Yes.

Q. So it indicated all those people came to the gate at the same minute, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And generally that would indicate they came in the same vehicle?

A. Generally, yes, it would.

Q. All right. Now, if we go to the next page, which would be 00158, which I'll put up, that shows 158 at the bottom. If we look at the top, that's also for 2-20-03, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you indicated there usually are three pages per day; is that right?

A. Generally, yes.

Q. Generally. So this is just another page for that same day?

A. If it's dated the same day, then yes.

Q. Yeah. And what I would like to do is direct your attention to -- see if I can get it in there so you can still read it.

If you look at the entrance for 1420 --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that's the same time that was indicated on the preceding page that the Arvizos, Aja Pryor, and Destin Tucker arrive; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And here the entry indicates Jesus S., so let's start with that. That would be Jesus Salas; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Jesus Salas cleared Aja Pryor, Dustin

Tucker, Gavin Arvizo, Star Arvizo, Davellin Arvizo to come in, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the purpose of that entry is what, that type of entry?

A. That type of entry is generally for, first of all, whomever's at the gate to know to let someone in if they don't have prior -- you know, if we haven't been given a list of somebody who's coming in that day, and then to let the oncoming shift know that they're there.

Q. So that would be further evidence in these logs that all of those people just mentioned, Pryor, Tucker, and three Arvizos, came back to the ranch at 1420 hours on February the 20th, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Oh, I'm sorry, there was one other thing on that. It also looks like Shane Brando ran over somebody's foot with a cart, is that true, at about 1815 hours?

A. If that's what it says, I'm assuming it's true.

Q. And then 1924, it looks like Shane Brando hit Gavin Arvizo with a cart?

A. Yes.

Q. And then the cart was taken away, all right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So, again, somebody in security or somebody on the staff, when they saw that there was a safety issue, exercised supervision over guests on the ranch; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it shows Gavin is Code 4, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then it says, "Received EMT care from," what does that say, K-10 and K-13?

A. No, it's R-10 and R-13.

Q. R-10 and R-13, are those designations for people that worked on the ranch?

A. "R" is Robert. It's a call sign over the radio, so we're not using each other's name.

Q. So whoever it was who responded from the fire department came down to give him some sort of emergency care to make sure he's okay, is that right?

A. Yes. Robert 10 gave the care. Robert 13 wrote it down.

Q. There you go. When it says, "Gavin, Code 4," Code 4 means no further assistance required, okay?

A. Yeah, he's okay.

Q. If you say, in police talk basically, "Code 4," you mean no further assistance, everything's okay?

A. Correct.

Q. All right, good. We're going to skip ahead here to 160. I'm putting up 160. Now, that's for 2-21-03; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And at the bottom, it shows, "Vincent Black," yes, "22" -- I think that says "55," "2255," correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So that would indicate -- even though it's written on the bottom, it would indicate, sir, that Vincent Black arrived, had to sign an agreement, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that he arrived at 2255 hours, correct?

A. Pull the paper down a little more.

Q. Certainly. Would you like to look at a -- would it be easier to look at a full sheet?

A. Yes, my eyes haven't adjusted from yesterday yet.

MR. SANGER: All right. May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Excuse me. Does anybody want to see this? I'm just going to show him my copy.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Black did need to sign a confidentiality, and he was checked in at 2255. It's on the bottom, because there's no more room for guests here.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. So, the fact that it's put in the margin is of no significance other than the fact you ran out of room on the form, right?

A. Yes, and the officer didn't want to start a new sheet.

Q. For ecological reasons, I assume?

A. Sure.

Q. It says "CO" next to the 2255, so that means Mr. Black checked in at 10:55 at night, he came through the gate at 10:55 at night, and then he stayed to the next day, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And below it, it says Janet Arvizo, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. That tends to indicate that Janet Arvizo came in at 2255 hours as well; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And she was not required to sign a confidentiality agreement?

A. No.

Q. And then she also stayed overnight that night; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And if we go up here, higher on the sheet, we see among the guests who were there on this day, the 21st of February, you also had Aja Pryor, 7128 correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then Destin Tucker, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then the Arvizo children, Gavin, Star and Davellin?

A. Yes.

Q. And it shows that the Arvizos were there from the night before, and they continued on to the next day without checking out; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And then, of course, there are other people that are listed on the list. We won't go through each one. There are other guests there that day?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. There you go.

May I approach to retrieve that?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, we'll go to page 164, if I may. It's MJ00164. Show that. And that's for February 22nd, 2003; is that correct?

A. Okay.

Q. It's hard to read. Maybe counsel would agree that when you look at it closely it says the 22nd. If not, let me approach.

May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'll tell you what --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I can't read it on mine.

MR. SANGER: Let's do this.

THE WITNESS: Is there a date on the top or just one on the bottom?

Q. BY MR. SANGER: No, there's just one on the bottom. But let me show you the -- let me show you that page.

May I approach with that page?

I'm going to show you page 00164, and ask you to take a look -- excuse me, take a look at the date at the bottom, and see if you can tell the date from that.

A. I'll agree it's the 22nd.

Q. All right. Thank you. And it would be in order, correct? There should be other pages pertaining to the 22nd in the book, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Okay. So there's the date. And I'm putting 00164 back up on the screen. And do you see there is the entries for Gavin, Star, Davellin in the guest information?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Gavin, it shows -- under "Limo/POV," it shows "#2." What does that represent to you?

A. To me that would represent he was staying in Guest Unit 2.

Q. And it shows Star Arvizo, ditto, is also in Guest Unit 2; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And they were both staying overnight. They had been there and they stayed over to the next time period, to the next 24-hour period, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. If you look at Davellin, what does that say?

A. Upstairs viewing.

Q. And upstairs viewing would be the room in -- one of the rooms in the theater; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So that indicates that she was staying in the upstairs viewing part of the theater; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And if you look up at the third entry up there, you have Cascio, comma, Marie Nicole; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it shows that she was also staying in the upstairs viewing in the theater; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And she also stayed overnight, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And down at the bottom it shows Janet Arvizo, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it shows No. 4. Is that Guest Unit No. 4?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, is Guest Unit No. 4 the guest unit that Elizabeth Taylor likes to stay in when she visits?

A. I have no idea.

Q. Okay. Is it a nice guest unit?

A. Yes.

Q. And it shows Janet Arvizo was staying overnight. She had been there at midnight, and she was there at the next cutoff, which would be the next midnight; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. We'll go to MJ00166, and that's 2-23-03; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, on this date, we have the Arvizos shown again as staying at the ranch; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And they were all staying -- they had all been there and they were all staying overnight as guests again, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And Gavin and Star are in Unit 2; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Davellin's at the theater upstairs?

A. Yes.
Q. And Janet is in Unit 4?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And Marie Nicole Cascio is also in the theater upstairs, the same place as Davellin; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, it's possible for people at Neverland to -- for guests at Neverland to request the services of staff people there; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in a sense, it's almost like a hotel as far as service is concerned; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. If somebody wants to call and have coffee brought to them or breakfast or anything, they can simply call and that will be done for them; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If somebody wants to call and have their laundry done, for instance, if they have laundry or cleaning that needs to be done, somebody would come and pick it up and take care of it for them; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. If somebody wants to have a wake-up call, they can make a request for a wake-up call; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. So I'm going to show 167 here, if I may. 167. By that I mean 00167, and the top is 2-23-03. And here this shows that a wake-up call is requested for Unit 4 at seven o'clock in the morning; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. Let's skip ahead. I like to say that. It gives everybody a false sense of progress here. We are getting there. Skip ahead to 171, if I may. 00171 is 2-24-03, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Now, there's a number of entries I'd like to -- a number of entries I'd like to focus on here. First of all, let's look at -- Gavin and Star Arvizo were staying in Unit 2, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Davellin is again at the theater?
A. Correct.
Q. Janet Arvizo is in Unit 4; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, it appears that the Arvizos were there overnight from the night before, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And then it appears that they all left at 1634 hours, which would be 4:34 in the afternoon; is that right?
A. Yes.

Q. And then it appears that Gavin and Star and Janet came back at 2005, which would be 8:05 p.m.; correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then they stayed overnight till the next day, right?
A. Correct.
Q. And then Davellin came back at 1855, which would be 6:55, five minutes to 7:00 in the evening, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. So it looks like they all left together, but Davellin came back a little earlier, and Janet, Star and Gavin stayed out and did something else and came back later, right?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, if we look down on this sheet -- and by the way, do you know if Gavin and Star were taken to the dentist at some point?

A. I don't remember that.
Q. All right. This is not a day that you were particularly on duty, was it?
A. Which day?
Q. This day, which is 2-24-03.
A. You'd have to show me the other log.
Q. That would be 172. Let me put that up.
This is 00172. And can you tell whether or not you were on duty that day?

A. No. Not according to that.
Q. I'm going to put 00171 back up. And let's see if we can figure this out. It looks like from the top that the whole Arvizo family left at 1634 hours. And then if you look down at the bottom, it says, "Employee vehicle," and the second entry shows "Vinnie, Arvizos 4," correct?
A. The second entry down?
Q. Yes.
A. No, that would be on the first entry.
Frank, Vinnie.
Q. Frank and Vinnie. Okay. That's fair enough.
That says, "Frank and Vinnie, brown dually."
Was there a -- or some kind of dually. Is there a dually?
A. Yes, it's a brown dually.
Q. Okay. And a dually, as most people know here, has got dual wheels in the back of the truck?
A. Correct.
Q. It looks like they went out in a brown dually at 11:05 in the morning and got back at 3:11 in the afternoon, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And the next entry, the one I was focusing on -- and it seems to be cut off just a little bit there. The second one says, it looks like "Vinnie," does it not? Or, "i-n-n-i-e," a little bit of a first letter got cut off?

A. Could I see your sheet? I --
Q. You can see mine, sure. If it's all right with the Court.
May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: It doesn't look like "Vinnie" to me.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: What does it look like?
A. "Chris."
Q. Oh, "Chris"? Okay. Anyway, you see -- I'm going to move away - because I'm not supposed to talk up here - so I don't have to walk back and forth.
You see where it says, "Arvizos 4"?
A. Yes.
Q. And whatever that says before, it might be "Chris," it might be anything, but whatever it is, after "Arvizos 4," it then says, "Pontiac," right?
A. Yes.
Q. So somebody took a Pontiac out. Was that a ranch vehicle?
A. I don't recall a Pontiac. It doesn't mean there wasn't one. I don't recall a Pontiac.
Q. Do you remember Vinnie was driving a Pontiac, if he brought a Pontiac to the ranch?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Did Vinnie at that time -- do you recall

Vinnie having some kind of a vehicle that he brought to the ranch?
A. No, I -- I don't recall his vehicle whatsoever.
Q. Okay. You don't recall either way, whether he brought one or didn't bring one?
A. No.
Q. All right. In any event, somebody with four Arvizos took a Pontiac and left at 1634, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If we look up at the top, that's consistent with the check-out at the gate, 1634, of the family; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then whoever that was with the Arvizos came back at 1855 hours, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. If we look up at the top, it would appear that whoever came back with that vehicle brought Davellin back; is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And so Janet and the boys remained out until 2005 hours, right?
A. Right.
Q. And if we look at the next entry, we've got Joe Marcus, right?
A. Right.
Q. Joe Marcus is the ranch manager; is that correct?

A. If he still is. He was at that time, I believe, yes.
Q. That's fine. As of the time, he was the ranch manager, correct?
A. Yes, he was.
Q. And do you know Joe?
A. Yes.
Q. Is he a good guy, decent guy?
A. Yes.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. You get along with Joe Marcus?
A. At times.
Q. All right. At times not, I gather. All right.
A. Well, I did at the time.
Q. You did at the time?
A. At the time, yes, I did.
Q. And had Joe Marcus, to your knowledge, been at the ranch for a long time?
A. Very long.
Q. In fact, his father had been the ranch manager for the prior owner; is that right?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. Now, it shows Joe Marcus has -- took a gray van; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. And was the gray van one of the ranch vehicles?
A. Yes.
Q. And it appears that he left at 1759 hours, which would be one minute to 6:00 in the evening; is that correct?

A. Correct.
Q. And then came back at 2005 hours; is that right?
A. That's right.
Q. And when you look at the -- put two and two together here, the Arvizos, Janet and the two boys, came back at that time. It would appear that they came back with Joe Marcus; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. We'll go to 174. And 174, MJ00174, was from February the 25th, 2003; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And here we see that the Arvizos, Gavin and Star, stayed overnight, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And they were in Unit 2; is that right?
A. That's right.
Q. And then Davellin and Janet were in Unit 4; is that correct?
A. Correct.

Q. The Arvizos, all four of them, stayed overnight?
A. Yes.
Q. And then they left at 7:25 in the morning --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is that correct?
So at 7:25 on the morning of February 25th, they leave the ranch?
A. Yes.
Q. And if you look down a little farther, it says, "Vinnie," who is apparently staying in the video library, he stayed overnight and he left at 7:25 in the morning?
A. Yes.
Q. So it looks like Vinnie and the Arvizos left together at that time, correct?
A. They left at the same time. If they left together, I don't know, but they definitely left at the same time.
Q. All right. Now, let's go to 180. This will be 00180 that I'm putting up. And this skips ahead now to February the 27th, .03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. I'm going to direct your attention in this case to Frank Cascio.

A. Yes.

Q. It appears that Frank Cascio returned to the ranch on February the 27th, .03, at 1735 hours or 5:35 in the afternoon; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And we'll go to 00181. 181. February 27th. This is another one of those sheets that pertains to the same day; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And at 735 -- I'm sorry, 1735 hours, the same time that was shown on the previous sheet, it shows that Jesus Salas cleared Frank Cascio to come on the property; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That's just further indication that Frank Cascio came back to the property at 1735 hours on that day?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And I'll put up 183. And this is 00183 on February the 28th, .03. And directing your attention to the third line down under "Guest Information." It shows Frank Cascio; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So on February the 28th, it shows that he had been on the ranch from the previous day, and continued to stay on the ranch to the next day?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Your Honor, I'm now, with the Court's permission, going to go to Exhibit 335 and proceed in the same fashion. That's a couple hundred pages. So I'm going to pick out a few of those pages and make reference to the Bates stamp number, if that's all right

THE COURT: That's fine.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. Just so we're oriented here, there's the Court's Exhibit No. 335 that starts on page MJ00185, and the date on that page is March 1, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was not a leap year, so February had 28 days; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So the next day, from the last page we showed, would be 3-1; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And in the back they're in these envelopes, back to back, here. I'm going to show you 186, which also says 3-1-03.

A. Yes.

Q. And it looks like somebody's trying to give February 29 days there, but tried to correct it?

A. Looks that way.

Q. And I want to focus your attention on the last line there of the guest information log where it says, "Frank Tyson," and that means that Frank was staying at the video library, and he stayed overnight; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it didn't -- it didn't show that he checked out that day?

A. No, it doesn't.

Q. All right. I do see at the bottom, it says Frank/Chris took a gray van from 1:30 in the afternoon to 4:30. Is that an indication that Frank Tyson or Cascio went out with Chris?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. There was not another Frank there at the time, that you're aware of?

A. Not that I'm aware of, no.

Q. But they came back, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And so Frank, as far as you can tell, was an overnight visitor that night as well?

A. As far as it shows. Didn't show that he left. Doesn't show that he was carried over, so very possibly.

Q. And then let's go to --

Okay, Your Honor, this is the exhibit as it exists from the way it was presented by the prosecution. This particular page does not have a Bates stamp number on the bottom. I'll show it to counsel. This does not have a Bates stamp number. It follows Bates stamp number 33673 and precedes Bates stamp number 33675.

THE COURT: I see that.

MR. SANGER: So I'm going to put that page up.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: And I'm going to hope it focuses. There we go.

Q. Okay. So no Bates stamp number, but it does say 3-2. So that's March the 2nd, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And on March the 2nd, 2003, Frank Tyson, it shows, stayed overnight from the night before, correct?

A. Excuse me, correct.

Q. And then it shows 1630 that he left; is that right?

A. On -- that who left?

Q. Frank Tyson. Am I not reading it correctly?

A. I'm sorry, I was -- yes. Six --

Q. Let's take our time here. I'm sorry if I confused you --

A. I apologize, I had to work last night.

Q. You worked last night?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I apologize, I'm sorry that you have to be here after doing that.

All right. We'll try to get you through this here. But take a look at it again, take your time. Looks like it says, "ank," a-n-k, "Tyson."

A. Yes.

Q. That's Frank Tyson, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And where it says 3625, are those the phone --

A. Phone extensions.

Q. And those phone extensions are where?

A. In the video library.

Q. So it's another way of saying that's where he was?

A. Correct.

Q. It shows he stays overnight and then it shows 1630, it appears that he left; is that correct?

A. To me, it looks like 20 from here.

Q. All right. Whatever it says, that would be the time that he left, according to this log; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And down at the bottom it says, “Frank Tyson” again, and it shows “out.” That means he took a ranch vehicle of some sort and left; is that right?

A. It should, if it was put there.

Q. All right. And that, I think, says 1305?

A. Yes.

Q. So 1:05 in the afternoon. And then it shows “in,” meaning he came back at 3:30 in the afternoon, right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And it looks like at 4:30 or 4:20, whatever that says, he may have left again; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, there's a star next to his name, and what does that mean?

A. Most likely that he came back and the person at the gate didn't record the time he came in.

Q. All right.

A. But if there was a star there, most likely whomever was at the gate knew that he was there.

Q. That he came back on the property but they just didn't record the exact time?

A. They didn't record the exact time.

Q. If you look up above that, we see what I think says, “n-n-i-e.”

A. Yes.

Q. And that shows that probably Vinnie; is that correct?

A. Probably.

Q. All right. Arrived at 1430 hours. It should be 2:30 in the afternoon.

A. Yes.

Q. And that he left at 1630 hours, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then there's a star, indicating he came back and somebody forgot to put it down?

A. Correct.

Q. So if we put those two together, it looks like Frank Tyson and Vinnie probably left at the same time, around 4:30 in the afternoon; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, we also see that the Arvizo family came back, and we have Gavin, Star, and Davellin -- whose name is now recorded as "Davida" or something; right?

A. Yes.

Q. -- and Janet all came back at about 2:30, apparently with Vinnie.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I'm going to go to 033667, which is dated 3-3-03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And this shows that -- excuse me one second.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: This shows -- just going down the list, on this particular date, which is 3-3-03, Vinnie was there, stayed overnight, and then he left at ten minutes after noon; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. It doesn't show that he came back that day?

A. No.

Q. Then you have Gavin, Star, "Davellia" and Janet Arvizo all staying overnight both from the night before and till the next night, right?

A. Correct.

Q. This shows both the extensions and the room numbers, or the unit numbers in some cases, right?

A. Yes.

Q. So Gavin was staying in Unit 3, which is Extension 20 on the phone; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. Star was staying in Unit 4, which is Extension 21, is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. We'll skip one there and go to Janet Arvizo was staying in Unit 4, also at Extension 21, also?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Davellin was staying -- first it said Extension 3. I'm sorry, it said, "Unit 3." That's scratched out and it says, "Extension 50"; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And Extension 50 is out at the theater; is that right?

A. Been a while. I -- I know 48 is. So it could be, yes. I don't remember which one 50 was at.

Q. But in any event, wherever 50 is, it's not one of the guest units?

A. No.

Q. So it's someplace else on the ranch, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that shows that she was staying at whatever room was associated with Extension 50; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, there are also -- and throughout, we've been not commenting on everybody who was staying there, but if you look down at the bottom there, it says Rio and Simone.

A. Yes.

Q. And you know who they are?

A. Yes.

Q. Does it appear that Rio and Simone arrived at about eight o'clock at night on the 3rd of March?

A. Yes.

Q. And then they stayed overnight; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And who are Rio and Simone?

A. They are cousins, I believe, of Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. And I'm going to go to 189. 00189, and that's for 3-4-03; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And on 3-4-03, we have Gavin and Star up at the top, staying overnight?

A. Yes.
Q. From overnight to overnight, there's no check-out time; correct? 7150

A. Yes. Well, they were there overnight.
Q. Yeah.
A. At least one night.
Q. All right. In other words, it doesn't show that they left. Usually you'd show carry-over for "out," but it just didn't show that, so you don't know. We'll look at the next day.
A. Yes.
Q. All right. The best way to do it. And look at the next day and see if they're still there, right?
A. That would be the best way.
Q. In any event, they're at 20 and 21. So those are guest units, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And then we have Davellin, and she was staying at that Extension 50, wherever that is, right?
A. Yes.
Q. That's somewhere other than the guest units and it may be the theater?
A. I believe it's one of the rooms in -- there's two bedrooms in the theater.
Q. All right. And the other bedroom in the theater is 51, is it not?
A. I believe so.
Q. All right. So it shows that she was there from overnight; is that right? 7151

A. Yes.
Q. And then it shows that she went out at 2:25 in the afternoon, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And came back at 6:01 in the evening?
A. Yes.
Q. And it appears, if we do some detective work there, down at the bottom, Chris Carter took the gray van out and apparently was driving -- was the driver of the van, and drove her out at 1425 and back at 1801, the same times; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then Rio and Simone were also on the ranch; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it looks like they had been staying overnight, right?

A. Right.

Q. And that they went out with Davellin driven by Chris Carter at 1425 and came back at 1801, at the same time; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And it looks like Rio was staying in the same room as Gavin; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So that's 3-4, and now they're -- we're going to go to -- we're going to go to 191.

Just for the record, Your Honor, it's not a big thing, but it's just a thing. As I'm paging through here, I'm seeing that these are a little bit out of order. It goes from 188 to 193 to 191 in the exhibit book. I don't know that there's any significance, but I just --

THE COURT: It's the same in my copy.

MR. SANGER: That's fine.

Q. So we go to 191, and that shows for 3-5, March the 5th, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And here we show, once again, Gavin in 20, guest unit?

A. Yes.

Q. Star, guest unit?

A. Yes.

Q. Both there from overnight, and no indication that they left; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. We have Davellin -- and I'll persist in saying “Davellin,” even though it's spelled countless ways in these logs; is that all right?

A. That's fine.

Q. You knew eventually her name was Davellin, is that correct?

A. Yes.
Q. So we have Davellin again at 50, which is apparently in the theater; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. And she stayed overnight, or she had been staying overnight, and there's no indication she checked out; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And then you have Janet, who's staying in one of the guest units; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And again, she was staying from overnight and there's no indication that she checked out, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then you have Rio, who is apparently staying in the same guest unit as Gavin; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And Rio was there from overnight, and on this date, March the 5th, it appears that both Rio and Simone left about 7:30 in the evening; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Let's go to 195. Showing MJ00195. That's for 3-6-03; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Here we show Janet Arvizo is now in Unit 4, which is Extension 21, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And she had been staying overnight?

A. Yes.
Q. And then we have Davellin, who's in Unit 3. She had been staying overnight, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And in fact, Gavin and Star are also shown in Unit 3, staying overnight; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. I'll put up MJ00198, which is for March the 7th, so once again the next day. And let's take the easy ones first. We have Gavin, Star and Davellin Arvizo, they show they're in Unit 3, which is Extension No. 20, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that they were there overnight, and they continued to remain overnight, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Then you have Janet Arvizo, who was logged in for Unit 4. It's crossed out. Do you have any idea why it was crossed out?

A. No.

Q. And then there's a star and a star; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And what does the star tend to mean?

A. Generally it means there was no time given, written in, no time given written out, so it wasn't written out. The fact that it's crossed out can mean that she wasn't there. I don't know.

Q. It shows she was there the day before?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And then if we look here, we see that Frank and Vinnie -- it says, "Vinnie Black." That's the same Vinnie. There was one Frank and one Vinnie throughout this, right?

A. Yes.

Q. So Frank and Vinnie, if I may use the first names, are staying in the video library, and they were there at the beginning of the day, at midnight, and they were there at midnight the next --

A. Next day, yes.

Q. Next day, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now we go to 2001. 2001, I'm sorry. Too many numbers. Sorry. 00201, which is 3-8 of .03, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. The next day. And on that day, the logs show that we have Gavin, Star, and Davellin as well as Frank and Vinnie all there the entire 24-hour period?

A. Correct.

Q. So they didn't come; they didn't go. All right.

Now we go to -- oops. Again, these seem to be a little bit out of order. 204 comes before 203. But in any event, I'm going to put 204 up, which is 3-9-03. So that's the next day.

A. Yes.

Q. And on this day we have Gavin, Star, Davellin, all there the entire time, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then you have Frank and Vinnie, who were there from the night before, and they seem to leave at about 3:43 in the afternoon, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then they come back at -- the two of them come back at the same time, at about 8:43 at night, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then they stay overnight; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. We also on that day have other guests of course, but we have Rio and Simone arriving at ten minutes after noon, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then they stayed overnight?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Now, may I approach the witness with the book?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Let me put that page back first.

Let me just say it out loud if I'm going to say it to the prosecutor. What I'm going to show the witness, keeping the pages in order and hoping not to trip and drop them all over the place, we have page 203 and then we have page 33697, and then there's page 121, which is followed by page 33698, and I want to ask the witness if that page, 121, belongs in the sequence here. And that's what I intended to approach him to do, if that's all right with the Court. And that gives counsel an idea of why I'm doing it.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Sure.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. Okay. Now, I'm not supposed to talk up here, but I just want to tell you this. Obviously these pages, we're going to keep them in the same order. It's just too hard to put them back in the binder as we went along.

Here we have page 121 and I'm going to ask you if that belongs in that particular position, and I'm going to ask you to take a look towards the beginning of the book. And I'll try to give you a better indication, when I get back to my book, as to where that page may have come from.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can I just interrupt?

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: I don't think this is the biggest thing in the world, but if you look at 121 that's in the book right there where you're looking at it --

A. Yes.

Q. -- does that appear to be in the correct sequence? Forget about the numbers at the bottom.

A. Right.

Q. That will just confuse us for the moment.

A. This looks like one of the pages that we looked at yesterday.

Q. In fact, if you look back to -- hesitant to have you flip that because it might fall apart.

A. I'll do my best.

Q. If you look back at Exhibit 334, and now look at the bottom --

A. Any idea how far back that is?

Q. 334 is just --

Okay. May I approach again? It might be --

THE COURT: Yes. He's referring to an exhibit number, not the page numbers now.

THE WITNESS: Oh, I'm sorry. I'm sorry.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: No, no, it's not your fault.

Okay. There's Exhibit 334, and now -- if I may, I'll just speak here briefly -- if we look at the bottom, and you flip forward to 121, which is MJ00121, does that look like that's the same page?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And -- all right. May I have the book back?

Do you want to look at it, Counsel?

Okay. Thank you.

And -- okay. And this is just the way the exhibit is, so we have to leave the exhibit the same way here. I'm now going to put this copy of 121 up on the board, just so we're all oriented.

There's no date on it; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you've gone back and you've seen -- this is a second copy of a page we looked at yesterday; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And that was really the page from February the 8th of 2003 -- oops, let me make sure I said that right. I'm sorry, February the 7th of 2003, correct, when CBS Entertainment was at the ranch with Ed Bradley and Jack Sussman, and so on?

A. I don't know from yesterday, but if that's the date that it says on the paper, then that's the day that it was from.

Q. I will represent that's in between the pages for February the 7th in Exhibit 334.

A. Yes.

Q. All right? Okay. So that has nothing to do with the current sequence then, in March. All right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, on -- on the --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Just for point of reference -- it's between the 7th and the 9th. So it's not keyed to the 7th.

MR. SANGER: Counsel is saying it's between the 7th and the 9th. Suffice it to say it's in the book in February and we can let the exhibit speak for itself. It doesn't have a date on it.

Is that all right, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

Q. Now, for this particular time period --

THE COURT: For a minute I thought the clock was going backwards.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: We'd like to start with February 7th, if we could, please.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: And do it all over again.

THE WITNESS: No, we wouldn't.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: No, we wouldn't. I think we all agree with that.

We are almost through, which is always a terrible thing to hear from a lawyer. But I think it's true in this case.

All right. I'm going to show you now 033698. We're back on Exhibit 335, okay? So we're going to put this up. Now, I will represent to you, and counsel can disagree if he wants, there does not appear to be the regular guest information page for --

MR. SNEDDON: Can't see it.

MR. SANGER: I know. It will focus in a moment.

Q. There does not appear to be the regular guest information page on March the 10th in this set where it lists who's staying at the ranch.

A. Okay.

Q. I'll just represent that. And this -- I'm hoping while I'm talking it's going to focus.

There we go. Okay. But this appears to be one of the other pages for March the 10th, 2003; is that correct?

A. Yes.

THE COURT: Can we take a break here?

MR. SANGER: Fine.

(Recess taken.)

MONTGOMERY, Examination by The Court - Page 7317 Cynthia C.
(Nonjury)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could we have the screen, please?

Q. Where we left off was MJ0033698 is the identifying number on the bottom, and on the top it says, 3-10-03.

And what I'm going to do, with the Court's permission, is I'm going to put this back in the book where it was and approach the witness, if I may.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: I had time during the break to put all the pages back in the clamps so they won't fall all over the place.

And before I get up, what I'm going to do -- ask you to do, we had established that this page, 33698, with Jack Sussman on the top, was out of order, and that was really from February, right?

A. Right.

Q. I'm going to give you the book -- we have to leave it the way it was anyway. I'm going to give you the book here, and I'm going to ask you to look in this time period, and see if you have the guest information page for March the 10th, 2003, or if that page seems to be missing from this, all right?

A. All right.

Q. And you're welcome to flip back and forth, do whatever you want, and then we'll -- I'm not going to ask you to look through the entire book, but in the general vicinity.

A. In the general vicinity after it, I don't see it.

Q. Look before.

A. I don't see it.

MR. SANGER: May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Thank you, sir.

THE WITNESS: Uh-huh.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. So that brings us back to putting that same page back up, which is 033698, all right? And we looked at that and that does appear to be from the 10th; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. But since the guest information log page is not there, I'm going to ask you to take a look at this, which is part of the gate activity log. And at 2145 hours, there's an indication there that Janet Arvizo did not return with Vinnie and Gavin. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So trying to fill in the gaps on a page that's missing, it appears, from that entry, that Vinnie and Gavin Arvizo came back to the ranch at 2145 hours, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that Janet Arvizo did not come back at that time?

A. Correct.

Q. And we can't tell from that anything about Star and Davellin, but at least we can tell that much, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And by the way, the -- just to save some time here, I'll put that same page back up again.

When these -- when these entries are made on this page, they are made contemporaneously with the event that's occurring; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So when it says "Time" there, "2145," that would be the time the gate officer noted that Vinnie and Gavin had returned; is that correct?

A. According to this, it would be that Janet did not return with --

Q. With them.

A. -- Vinnie and Gavin.

Q. So Vinnie and Gavin returned, Janet's not in the car or whatever, and that would have been at 2145 hours, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, having said that, let's go to 0033701, which is for March the 11th, the next day. And here we have Gavin, Star, and Davellin, whose name is yet spelled a different way, all staying in Unit 3; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And it looks like they were there overnight from the night before, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then it appears that they all left at 1645 hours?

A. Yes.

Q. To go someplace off the ranch, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And they came back at 1829 hours, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So they returned to the ranch at that point and there's no indication that they left again, so you would assume they were there again overnight; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. If you look down at the bottom of that page, it appears that Chris Carter checked out the gray van, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And he was out and in earlier in the morning, but if you look at the last two entries there, he left at 1645 hours, and he came back at 1829 hours, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So it appears that he gave a ride to the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And then we'll go to the next page. Excuse me.

And, Your Honor, this page, for the record, in the book is the next exhibit page to Exhibit 30 -- or, I'm sorry, 335. It's the next exhibit page following MJ033701. The number seems to be cut off at the bottom. I take it it's the same way in the Court's book.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: So I'm referring to the numberless page.

THE COURT: You can see half of it, can't you?

MR. SANGER: Well, that's an optimistic view of this. Let's see if we can get this to focus.

That's all I can see on mine. Is that what the Court is seeing in your book?

THE COURT: Mine's a little clearer.

MR. SANGER: The next page is about half.

I'm wondering if we're looking at the same page.

THE COURT: 702.

MR. SANGER: I believe that's the next page, Your Honor. This is -- well, I don't want to argue with the Court. I don't know what you're looking at, but that's what we have, and it's the same in my copy that was given to us by the government.

THE COURT: Okay. It is a different page.

I don't have the beginning page --

MR. SANGER: All right.

THE COURT: -- which is all right. That's the official exhibit book. So you go ahead with it.

MR. SANGER: All right. So in the official exhibit book, this follows MJ033701 and there's just the very top of a number there.

Q. And what it is, for the record, is the gate activity log for 3-11-03, correct?

A. Correct. I'm sorry.

Q. I'm sorry. I was talking to the Court, and now I'm talking to you, so, all right.

It's a little hard to read there, but -- and I'm happy to bring it to you to look at. But it does appear that on the third line down, it says “C/O.”

A. Yes.

Q. And that would, again, be continued from the night before; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. And it says Janet Arvizo did not return with Vinnie and Gavin; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So it's another notation in the logbook for the next day that from overnight from the day before, Janet Arvizo did not return; is that right?

A. That's -- it's just to let the next shift know that that was written on the page before.

Q. All right.

A. Or the day before.

Q. Okay. Now I'm going to go to MJ033703, and this is the last page that I'm going to show you.

A. Excellent.

Q. Sigh of relief that caused a veritable windstorm up here by the podium.

Okay. That's not going to focus. There we go. Okay. MJ033703, this is on March the 12th, 2003, the next day?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And on this day, we see Gavin, Star, and Davellin, and it shows that they stayed in Unit 3; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that they had been there overnight, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it shows at 12:15, or 15 minutes after noon on that day, March 12th, 2003, that they left; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it shows further that -- if you look there, it says, “Frank, video library,” stayed overnight, in essence, and “stayed overnight.” And right below that it says, “Vinnie, video library.” He was there from the night before. And it shows at 12:15 he apparently left at the same time as Gavin, Star, and Davellin, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And he was gone from the ranch from 15 minutes after noon until 7:49 at night, when he returned to the ranch --

A. Yes.

Q. -- correct? And then he stayed overnight following that; is that correct?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: And I have no further questions. Do you want this book here?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, please.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. All right. Good morning, Mr. Barron.

A. Good morning.

Q. Unfortunately I'm going to have to return to these records, but I'm going to give us a little bit of a break, ask you a few questions beforehand.

A. Certainly.

Q. Mr. Sanger asked you about the intruders on the ranch.

A. Yes.

Q. Can you characterize what -- any generalities concerning what type of intruders they would be? What would their purpose be to try and get onto the ranch?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That's vague.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll begin by asking you a foundational question. I'll withdraw that question.

Q. Was there anything that these individuals had in common, any generalities you could make in terms of their motive to be on that property?

A. Yes.

Q. What was that?

A. To see Mr. Jackson in the ranch.

Q. So these were fans?

A. Yes.

Q. Predominantly not physically threatening to Mr. Jackson?

MR. SANGER: I object. Calls for speculation and leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did these fans, in your opinion as a security guard and based on your observations of them, appear to present any physical threat to Mr. Jackson, in general?

MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you see these intruders on the ranch on occasion?

A. Yes.

Q. How many occasions?

A. Several. Not many came on the ranch while I was working.

Q. During the five years you were there?

A. Yes. We did have --

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. The witness is trying to answer the question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: How many were there?

MR. SANGER: Excuse me.

THE COURT: I think the last question was, “During the five years you were there?” Answer, “Yes, we did have...,” and then you were interrupted.

THE WITNESS: We did have intruders throughout my working there. When I was working, at the times that I was working, maybe a handful, five to ten.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And in terms of -- in terms of staying on top of the potential security threat from fans entering the ranch, were you generally apprised when other intruders entered the property when you weren't there?

A. Yes.

Q. So this was part of your job as a security officer to be aware of who might want to get on the property?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And during the course of your employment during this five-year period, can you state whether or not these intruders in general appeared to present any physical threat to Mr. Jackson?

A. In general, not much physical threat. There were a few, a couple, that we felt could. Maybe not to him, but we were not just there to protect him. I mean, there was lots of other people on the ranch.

Q. Okay. And what do you mean when you say they might not present a threat to Mr. Jackson, but might present a threat to someone else?

A. For the most part, if Mr. Jackson was inside a building, he would be fairly secure.

Q. Uh-huh.

A. We didn't have a dozen security guards to post at every door or anywhere -- I mean everywhere that we could possibly have an intruder on the ranch. But there were -- there were a few that we were concerned with when they were seen in the area or did happen to get on the ranch.

Q. Okay. In terms of Frank Cascio, you've testified that you've seen him with Mr. Jackson about 75 to 100 times. He's visited the ranch over 100 times. Is that accurate?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Are there any guests that you're aware of that you would say had visited Mr. Jackson on more occasions than Mr. Cascio?

A. Possibly Miko Brando and his family.

Q. Okay. Anybody else?

A. I can't think of any right off the top of my head.

Q. And would Mr. Cascio typically be on the property -- well, let me strike that. Would Mr. Cascio always be on the property when his siblings were with him?

A. Not always. But most of the time.

Q. Who is Miko Brando?

A. Marlon Brando's son.

Q. In terms of his relationship with Jackson, is he an employee?

A. I think so. I don't know. I'm sure -- I know that they're friends. I don't know for certain if he is employed by Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. You said that you were certain that Janet Arvizo had access to the house. Did you ever see her in the house?

A. No.

Q. Do you have any personal knowledge to base that statement on?

A. She was a guest. Her children had access to the house. I would just, as a security guard at that time, put two and two together and say she had access to the house.

Q. So that's an assumption?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Leading; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You testified that typically, ideally I should say, that you would be notified when guests would be leaving Neverland?

A. Ideally, yes.

Q. Would that -- and that would include children as well as adults?

A. Yes.

Q. And that rule was -- is it fair to say that that rule was -- generally was not really enforced or followed very often?

MR. SANGER: I will object, Your Honor. First of all, it's vague. And secondly, if it wasn't vague, it would be leading.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I'll strike the question and ask another one.

Q. Can you tell me whether that rule was followed or not?

A. Not often.

Q. In terms of being allowed off the property, you talked a little bit about children, whether or not they'd be allowed off the property.

If a 16-year-old walked up to the gate and said, "I want to take a walk down the road," would you allow them to do so?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation; incomplete hypothetical.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: If they wanted to take a walk down the street?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah.

A. I don't see why not.

Q. So you wouldn't question their leaving, exiting the ranch for purposes of taking a walk?

A. No.

Q. And as far as ATV use, you said those were not allowed off the property?

A. That's correct.

Q. So if -- did that rule apply to adults as well as children?

A. Anyone.

Q. Anyone. Okay.

A. Yes.

Q. So if Chris Tucker drove up on an ATV, on one of these quads, you'd say, "Sorry, you can't go off the property"?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation and relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, "Correct." Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Neverland Ranch, is that in the County of Santa Barbara?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, as far as having access to Mr. Jackson, the employees having access to Mr. Jackson, can you characterize for me the degree with which he valued his privacy on the ranch?

A. In my opinion, his privacy was most important on the ranch.

Q. Okay. So why do you say that?

A. He never specifically told me that his -- that he wanted his privacy, but that's what we were there for was to help him have his privacy on the ranch.

I tried to impose on him as little as possible, only if needed be. And that was something that I was taught as I was trained at the ranch, to let him have his own time. And if we needed to speak to him, we would. If not, we wouldn't. We'd pass it through a chain of command.

Q. Okay. So if Mr. Jackson was, let's say, in the dance studio --

A. Yes.

Q. -- and you knew he was in the dance studio --

A. Yes.

Q. -- would you avoid that area; I mean, let him kind of have his space there?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Wait a second. I'm going to object. I'm sorry. Move to strike the answer. For purpose of objecting, the question was vague and compound.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Were you encouraged or discouraged in engaging with guests in conversations?

A. Discouraged.

Q. Discouraged?

A. Yes.

Q. What about privacy for the guests?

A. Same as Mr. Jackson.

Q. Were you aware that Mr. Jackson -- were you ever aware that Mr. Jackson would have young boys sleep in his room with him?

MR. SANGER: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You mentioned that you were -- you would report something illegal if you saw it?

A. Yes.
Q. Were you allowed into Mr. Jackson's bedroom when he had guests in there?
A. No.
Q. Do you know of any employees that were allowed access into his bedroom to see what was going on in there when he had guests in there?

MR. SANGER: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I know that Joe Marcus had access to his room. Or the house manager, whomever that was at the time. Whether or not they were allowed to go in when he had guests in his room, I don't know.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You just know that he had the key, the code; is that what you're saying? Or you tell me.
MR. SANGER: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I know that Joe Marcus was able to get into the -- Mr. Jackson's room. Whether he had a key or had the key pad, I would assume he had both.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Who did Joe Marcus report to?
A. Mr. Jackson.
Q. Directly?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Okay. Anybody outrank Joe Marcus on the ranch?
A. When he was ranch manager, no.
Q. Okay. Do you know if there were guests allowed on the property without Mr. Jackson's approval?

MR. SANGER: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Are you aware of any instances, personally aware of any instances, where an individual was allowed on that property, Neverland Ranch, if Mr. Jackson -- and Mr. Jackson did not want them there?

A. At the time of them coming on?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Foundation and vague.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No, generally Mr. Jackson would be the one who allowed people to come on the property. There was sometimes when somebody would show up and we would call whomever was in charge, like Jesus Salas or Joe Marcus, and he would make a decision whether or not they could come on. But for the most part, from what all I remember, those are people who have been allowed on the property prior to that occasion.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Was Frank Tyson one of these people?

A. Yes.

Q. So during your evening rounds as a security officer, would you ever have occasion to see Mr. Jackson during the late and early morning hours?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you ever have occasion to see him with his guests during the late and early morning hours?

A. Yes.

Q. Were his guests during these periods ever children?

A. Yes.

Q. How often?

A. Often.

Q. Okay.

A. Often. I don't know how to say how often, but often.

Q. And the assignments and guest logs. There are certain rooms that are assigned to certain guests. Does that mean that that individual who was assigned to that unit necessarily slept in that unit on that given night?

A. No.

Q. Why do you say that?

A. Because -- well, one of the biggest reasons is we would receive the phone calls in the evening hours for guests at the front gate. And nine times out of ten, we had to try several extensions to find that person. The first one you would try would always be where on the log it said they would be, if it were a guest unit or in the theater or wherever it said they may be. We went through several different places. So you would try that first. But it was -- often we had to go through more than one extension to find someone.

Q. Were there any instances where you'd see children sleeping in areas of the ranch where they were not assigned?

A. Yes.

Q. How common was that?

A. Um, it happened. It wasn't uncommon. It wasn't something that happened every time, but it definitely happened.

Q. Okay. Who is Dr. Farshshian? Do you know that name?

A. I know he's a doctor. I don't know what he's a doctor of. And I know he came to the ranch often.

Q. Do you know if Dr. Farshshian would ever come to the ranch without Mr. Jackson?

A. I don't know if he did or didn't.

Q. As far as the -- as far as the individual you've named as Chris Carter --

A. Yes.

Q. -- you previously identified him as what?

A. Chris Carter?

Q. Yes, and his relationship to Mr. Jackson.

A. As a security guard, I believe personal security guard.

Q. And how often would you see Mr. Carter with Mr. Jackson?

A. Together?

Q. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. Vague as to time.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's fine. I'll refine

that question.
Q. When did you first see Chris Carter start to visit Neverland?
A. Oh. Probably in either late 2001 or early 2002.
Q. And was he employed as a security guard for Mr. Jackson at that time?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, you've mentioned that there are security guards that are personal guards and security guards that are guards on the ranch.
A. Yes.
Q. The difference is what?
A. Guards on the ranch generally don't travel with Mr. Jackson.
Q. So Chris Carter would be someone who traveled with Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. When Mr. Jackson -- well, let me strike that. When Mr. Carter was on the ranch, would he ever spend any time just as a guest of the ranch, generally speaking?

A. No.
Q. So if Mr. Carter visited -- was on the ranch, would it be fair to say that Mr. Jackson would generally be with him?
MR. SANGER: Objection; leading.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I can rephrase it.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When Mr. Carter was on the ranch, generally where was Mr. Jackson?
A. On the ranch.
Q. Okay. Now, you've mentioned during direct examination that there was this grease board with a message from somebody that says Gavin is not to leave the property.
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Sanger has shown you one of the exhibits that says Gavin and Star are not to leave the property.
A. Yes.
Q. Is there a relationship between the logs that you looked at and the information that you would normally find on that grease board?

A. Yes, at times there --
Q. Would one normally track the other?
A. Yes.
Q. And why is that?
A. So that -- because we don't all -- let's say there's three of us on duty at the ranch as security guards. Because we're not all at the front gate at the same time -- for instance, if we all worked 6 p.m. to 6 a.m., we're not all going to work the gate at 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. So there would be one at the gate, or two or three, however many more, at the house, so that both areas of the security, both offices of the security had the same information.

Q. Okay. So all the security guards would be on the same page working to fulfill those directives?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, I believe the directive that appears in the log, if I remember correctly -- let me just find it here.
If I could have the Elmo, Your Honor.
The date on this particular exhibit is 2-19-03. And this is the one that has, “The kids are not to leave per Joe.” Let's get the entire statement in there, and I believe that's at 5:52.
Now --
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I'm sorry, just for the record, could we have the page number?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Oh, yes. Certainly.
MR. SANGER: And the exhibit number.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's a good point. This is Exhibit No. 334 and it's page number 154.
Q. Have you ever seen a directive like this on one of the logs before that told the security guards not to let a child off the property?

A. No.
Q. Have you ever seen a directive before like the one you saw on the grease board that said, “Do not let Gavin off the property”?
A. No.
Q. During your five years, did you ever see anything of that nature during your employment?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: Objection; asked and answered.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I said “before,” and this contemplates the entire period.

THE COURT: All right. The objection is overruled. It's answered.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: As far as this date goes, February 19th, are you aware whether or not Janet Arvizo was scheduled to return to Neverland on that particular day?

A. I'm not aware if she was.

Q. All right. I have a few questions about the logs and I'll be done.

Beginning with the log for 334, Exhibit 120, we've had considerable testimony about this particular page.

Now, first of all, let me ask you, based upon your review of the logs and your experience in working with these logs, how would you characterize the degree of accuracy that is recorded?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. Are we talking about this particular page or are we talking about --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: In general.

THE WITNESS: In general, they were -- can I answer?

THE COURT: Sure.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

In general they were accurate. Obviously we make mistakes spelling names. There was that issue. But they were accurate.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And as far as this particular page goes, which is at the bottom, 2-7-03, this shows that the Arvizos are a carry-over from the previous day?

A. Yes.

Q. And if we go back to the preceding day, we have -- I'm now showing you 2-6-03. We have this guest information --

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, excuse me. Could we have a page number?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, thank you. That same exhibit, 00116.

Q. Now, if Gavin, Star, and Davellin were on the property, if the Arvizos were on the property on 2-7-03 as a carry-over, shouldn't they be reflected in this document on February 6 somewhere in "Guest Information"?

A. Yes.

Q. So how do you explain that?

MR. SANGER: Calls for speculation, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Not necessarily.

MR. SANGER: And lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Either it was completely overlooked or they weren't there.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Would you agree there clearly is an error in the logs somewhere on those two pages?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, as far as the "Owner and guest" notation there that you see, I believe you were shown that by Mr. Sanger, and you responded that there was something odd about that?

A. Yes.

Q. What is it that you find curious about that entry?

A. What strikes me is that we would never -- I would never, and I don't believe anyone else would ever write "Owner" down, "Owner and guest," on one of these logs. Again, for his privacy. We never logged him in or out.

Q. Okay. Would you sometimes make a notation

if he was to be expected on the property?

A. On one of these sheets?

Q. On a sheet somewhere; just that, "Mr. Jackson is expected to come today," or something of that nature.

A. No, that was generally verbal.

Q. Okay. But as far as an entry on -- in this particular fashion, you've never seen this before?

A. No.

Q. Never seen it during your five years there?
A. No.
Q. Do you recognize that handwriting at all?
A. No. I can barely read it. But, no, I don't recognize it.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. If I could just have a moment, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you know an individual by the name of Klein?
A. Is there a first name?
Q. Doctor?
A. Dr. Klein. I remember the name of Dr. Klein.
Q. Okay. And did that have any relationship to your employment at Neverland?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. It's beyond the scope of cross.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I believe counsel showed him a document that had Dr. Klein's name on it.
THE COURT: All right. Overruled.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And how do you know Dr. Klein?
A. Just that he came to the property.
Q. Do you know what his relationship was to Mr. Jackson?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if he would be a guest of Mr. Jackson's when Mr. Jackson was not present?
MR. SANGER: Objection. Lack of foundation, Your Honor, and relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I don't recall if he was ever there without Mr. Jackson being there.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. When one of the Rolls or the Bentleys would leave the property, can you tell me whether or not Mr. Jackson would generally be associated with the use of that vehicle, such a vehicle?
MR. SANGER: Objection. Vague and lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained on vague.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When you were conducting your daily duties at the security guard booth --

A. Yes.
Q. -- would you see Mr. Jackson coming and going onto the property?
A. Yes.
Q. Would he typically be in a vehicle?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you see an occasion where the Bentley or the Rolls was used?
A. Yes.
Q. Would you be able to see if Mr. Jackson was in that vehicle?
A. In the Rolls, the older Rolls Royces, yes, because there wasn't as dark a tint as on the Bentley. The Bentley was very dark tinted.
Q. Can you tell me, were those cars generally used when Mr. Jackson was being transported somewhere?
A. The Bentley in particular, yes.
Q. And I'm going to direct you to Exhibit No. 191, and/or I should say Exhibit 335, page number 191, if I can find it. It's not in order. Here we go.
That's the wrong exhibit. I'm sorry, Your Honor.
That actually completes my redirect. Thank you.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. I know you want to go home.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. I'll try to get you out of here.
First of all, you had occasion to meet Michael Jackson from time to time, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Had a chance to talk with him from time to time, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you felt it was appropriate to respect his privacy at his home, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. There was nothing weird about allowing a celebrity to have private time at his home, was there?

A. No.

Q. And in fact, how many employees were there at the ranch, roughly, during the time you worked there?

A. Probably around 80. Between 80 and maybe 100.

Q. So if 80 or 100 people came up and spent a minute with Mr. Jackson every time, every day, he would have no privacy, correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. In other words, with that many people or even with a few people, it would be important to allow a person whose home it was to spend time at their home and not be bothered by people who are employed there to work for him, correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Now, in the course of knowing Mr. Jackson in the context that you just described, Mr. Jackson is sensitive to the sun; is that correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Were you aware that he took measures to try to avoid direct sunlight?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; exceeds the scope.

MR. SANGER: Not at all. Dr. Klein.

THE COURT: Overruled.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: Was I aware --

Q. BY MR. SANGER: That he took measures to avoid direct sunlight.

A. Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Object as to foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SANGER: And the answer's in, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Q. Were you aware that Dr. Klein was the dermatologist treating Mr. Jackson's vitiligo?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware that he was a dermatologist?

A. I was aware that he was a doctor.

Q. And you believe he was Mr. Jackson's doctor for one problem or another; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, there was testimony on direct and then redirect again about this notation on the grease board and the notation in the logs on page -- it was 154 of Exhibit 334 about -- the notation on the grease board you recall was specific to Gavin. Gavin should not leave the property; is that right?

A. "Gavin is not allowed off property."

Q. That's your recollection of what was on the grease board, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And your recollection of what was in the log is what, in fact, was shown to you in Exhibit 334, page 154.

May I, your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Page 00154, and again, it says -- the whole quote is, "The kids are not to leave per Joe." "Kids" meaning like Gavin, Star, et cetera, right?

A. Right.

Q. And this was on the log of - you can see it there - 2-19-03, correct?

A. February 19th.

Q. February 19th, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was that time period where you had so many people on the ranch that you had this master list on 2-17, and then the regular posting of guests didn't resume again until after 2-20. You resumed again on 2-21-03, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So it was not possible to track everybody's movements on and off the ranch during that period of time; is that correct? They weren't all logged in and out as they should have been?

A. Not possible to --

Q. Track whether or not people left and came back on the ranch between that 2-17 and 2-20 when they were all kind of lumped together?

A. I believe there's even a note on the bottom of that page that that's going to be carried over through those periods. I believe it would be easy to keep track of who comes and goes on the property. In answer to your question, no, I believe that it could be tracked --

Q. Okay.

A. -- who was coming and going.

Q. All right. And I'm going to --

A. Maybe not by paperwork, but it could have been done.

Q. Okay. It could have been done, but the paperwork here is somewhat deficient in that regard, isn't it?

Let me put up 149, which is the page that said 2-17 through 2-20. And that's where we had everybody there on that big list, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And, for instance, it shows for the Arvizo family, the kids, it shows carried over from the day before, and it shows 1951 hours out, and it doesn't show back in.

A. Well, if you lift -- scoot the page back so we can see the bottom.

Q. Certainly.

A. If I were working the gate at this time period and I saw that note on the bottom, "List until guest departs, C-1," which is for Charles 1, which was Curtis Gordon, who was a supervisor, I would take that to mean that they came in on -- or the carry-over happened on the 17th, and their time out was on the 20th.

Q. Okay. I understand. So your interpretation of this, if this were accurate, is that the Arvizos did not leave until the evening of the 20th, 1951 for the children, and 2145 for Janet, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So again, everybody gets this, but 7:51 at night and 9:40, whatever that says, at night for Janet, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, were you -- are you aware, as you sit there right now, that the Arvizos were in Los Angeles on the evening of the 19th?

A. No.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object as to the form of the question being -- assuming facts.

THE COURT: The answer is, "No." Next question.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And if they were in Los Angeles on the evening of the 19th, there is no indication in these logs that they left the ranch for that purpose; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And, now, turning to 154 again, which we've all seen, 2-19, it says 1752, so that's 5:52, just before six o'clock in the evening on the 19th.

If the Arvizos were supposed to be available for the purpose of going to Los Angeles for a videotaping, would it be reasonable for the gate to be advised that the kids should not leave the ranch?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object as argumentative and assuming facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained as argumentative.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. Let's put it this way: In other words, as part of the duties of somebody at the gate, would you feel it was an appropriate instruction that somebody not -- whether it's an adult or a child, that somebody not leave the ranch if they're expected to be available to get into a car to go somewhere?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Argumentative; calls for a conclusion.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: All right.

Q. Now, whatever that notation is for, was that notation placed there in a place on these gate activity logs where any and all of the security staff would be able to read it?

A. Any and all that were working that day, yes.

Q. Okay. And was it -- are these records kept as permanent records?

A. I believe so.

Q. All right. So presumably months later, years later, somebody could go back and find that notation, right?

A. Yes.

Q. This is not a secret communication that was designed to be destroyed after people received the information, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. It was left as a permanent memorial to something that was instructed or something that was communicated to the security staff; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And when you talk about this grease board, any message that was on the grease board was put there so that anybody on the security staff could see it; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And anybody else that consulted the records could also see it, obviously; is that right?

A. These records.

Q. I'm sorry, you're right. You're up all night and I'm getting confused, so let me clarify it.

First of all, the grease board. Anybody that came into the security office could see that grease board and would be able see what was up there, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was right in the front room, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. The doors are often open?

A. When someone comes in and out.

Q. There's windows there?

A. Yes.

Q. Administration people can come down and do often come down into the security office, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So there's people that would work up in the administration building, the ranch manager, the administrative assistants and so on, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Firemen could go in there and see that, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You of course could see it, and you were a sworn peace officer, right?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And then similarly, with regard to those records, the gate log records, those were maintained so that people from the administration could review them, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And again, firemen and other security officers could review them?

A. Yes.

Q. So this was not a secret?

A. No.

Q. Thank you.

Now, you indicated that sometimes assignments got -- let me withdraw that.

The question was about room assignments.

Was there really a room assignment system?

A. Yes, at times there were.

Q. Okay.

A. Especially with the guest units.

Q. Who assigned people guest units?

A. Generally it would be the -- whomever was in charge of the house, or at times who was in charge of the housekeeping, or the ranch manager.

Q. Okay. So was it your understanding that those -- that somebody like that would actually tell the guest, "You are assigned to this unit"?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And if guests wanted to stay someplace else, for instance, somebody said, "Boy, I'd really like to have Unit No. 4," would an effort be made on the part of the staff to allow that person to have that unit?

A. I never was involved in that.

Q. Fair enough. If somebody wanted to stay, for instance, out at the theater rather than a guest unit, would they be accommodated, for the most part?

A. For the most part, yes.

Q. All right. Now, sometimes somebody might be assigned, say, to a guest unit and they would decide, "Well, I'd really rather stay out at the theater." That could happen, right?

A. Sure, it could happen.

Q. They might ask permission of somebody, whatever happens; they end up staying out at the theater on Night No. 1?

A. Okay. Yes.

Q. And it's -- it's generally -- it generally becomes known where the guests are staying; is that correct?

A. Eventually, hopefully.

Q. Okay.

A. Yes.

Q. But guests may make requests for food or other services on a -- well, let me ask that. They may do that from time to time?

A. Yes.

Q. In fact, it's very common for people to call for food or drink or something and have it delivered to where they are?

A. Yes.

Q. And security eventually becomes aware of where people are, either through them requesting services, or phone calls coming in for them, or something else, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And so if somebody is logged in repeatedly in the same unit in the security logs, that would tend to indicate that security is now pretty much aware that that's where the person is staying; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, you remember Davellin, do you not?

A. Vaguely.

Q. Vaguely. Do you remember -- and you remember Marie Nicole?

A. Yes.

Q. During this time period, do you remember Davellin and Marie Nicole hanging out together?

A. Yes, I believe I do.

Q. And they seemed to be good friends; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And did they seem to be having fun?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And they'd walk around the property and have a good time?

A. Sure.

Q. All right. And do you recall Davellin and Marie Nicole staying out at the theater during this period of time?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. So in addition to the log entries, you personally recall them being out -- staying out in that area; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And I believe one last area I want to ask you about here that was brought up by Mr. Auchincloss.

You have experience as a police officer, and also experience being a security guard for Mr. Jackson, a major celebrity, and I'm going to ask you, drawing on all of that, do you assume that intruders are not going to be a danger to anybody?

A. No.

Q. In fact, you assume they're going to be a danger?

A. Yes.

Q. You have to do that. And you're aware of celebrity stalkers, are you not?
A. Yes.
Q. And you're aware of instances where celebrity stalkers, even though they were fans, did harm to celebrities, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And did harm to people around celebrities, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you aware that one of the intruders actually got into the train room upstairs in Mr. Jackson's house?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object. Assumes facts.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: The third floor of the house?
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. And you would consider that to be a serious intrusion into Mr. Jackson's security, would you not?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you aware that one of the intruders was possessing a handgun?
A. No.
Q. A number of these intruders were actually arrested, the sheriff was brought on, and they were arrested and taken away; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And some of the repeat intruders were actually prosecuted by the District Attorney's Office; is that right?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:
Q. Generally speaking, based on your experience and not on what you anticipated, what did these intruders want?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That's -- that's vague.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: What did they want?
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah. Why did they want to come on Neverland?
A. They wanted to see Mr. Jackson.
Q. Just see him?
A. See him.
Q. Maybe meet him?
A. Yes.
Q. That's all?
MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Argumentative; sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: As far as the grease board goes, you previously testified that that instruction was on the board for approximately a week?
A. That's about the length that I remember it being there.
Q. Did you take that instruction seriously for the entire week?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider that to be an order to not let Gavin off the property for that entire period of time?

A. Yes.
Q. And can you tell me, based on your experience and training at Neverland, who would have authority to make such an order on the grease board and in the logs?
A. Well, ultimately Mr. Jackson.
Q. Okay. And who would do -- who would ultimately? How would the chain go? Who put stuff up on the board?
A. Generally one of my supervisors.
Q. And who was your supervisor?
A. Either Curtis Gordon, Julio Magana or Violet Silva.
Q. And who do they report to?

A. Joe Marcus.

Q. And who does he report to?

A. Mr. Jackson.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

FURTHER RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Now, when you say "report to," you have absolutely no evidence whatsoever that Mr. Jackson himself gave an instruction that Gavin was not to go off the ranch; is that true?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; argumentative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I have no knowledge of him giving that.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. And the fact that people report -- Mr. Jackson owns the property, to your knowledge, correct?

A. To my knowledge, yes.

Q. Okay. And the fact that people ultimately report to the owner of the property does not mean that they get every instruction that they communicate down the line from the owner of the property, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. So it's entirely possible, based on your understanding of this chain of command, that somebody somewhere in the middle, up or down, in this chain of command decided to put this on the grease board, correct?

A. It could have happened, yes.

Q. And you certainly never saw Mr. Jackson come in and write anything on the security grease board himself, correct, sir?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you never saw Mr. Jackson write anything himself into the gate logs; is that correct, sir?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: One last question.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Are you aware, during the course of your employment at Neverland, of any motive, reason, why Joe Marcus, Violet Silva, Curtis Gordon, Julio Magana, any of these individuals, any -- are you aware of any reason why they would want to have Gavin Arvizo kept on the Neverland property?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: Calls for speculation, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. No further questions.

MR. SANGER: And move to strike the answer. I think it did come in or was said.

THE COURT: I'll strike the answer.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

He had no questions. There were no questions, so I have no questions.

THE COURT: You're free to go.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, sir.

THE COURT: Come forward.

When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing, face the clerk and raise your right hand.

STEPHEN CLEAVES

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Stephen Cleaves.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could I have just one moment, please?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

MR. SNEDDON: Go ahead?

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. You're a sergeant employed by the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. How long have you been with the department?
A. 25 years.
Q. And your current assignment?
A. I'm working special operations.
Q. And you live in Santa Ynez?

A. That's correct.
Q. And on November the 18th of 2003, were you part of a group of people who executed a search warrant at Neverland Valley Ranch?
A. I was.
Q. And what was your particular responsibility on that day?
A. To supervise a group of investigators that went and searched the security offices for files.
Q. And when you say "security office," where was that located on the premises?
A. It was part of the main residence at the far west end, I believe that is.
Q. Was it directly connected to the residence or was there a breezeway between the two buildings?
A. I believe there's a breezeway.
Q. Now, when you got to the security office, you said that you were assigned a particular responsibility in that office.
A. That's correct.
Q. What was the responsibility?
A. To look for files or computers. Specifically, we had a list of names that we were looking for that -- of persons who came on or off the ranch.
Q. And did those names include the Arvizo family?
A. Yes, they did.

Q. And other individuals?
A. They did.

Q. Now, did you actually participate in looking through the records yourself?

A. I did.

Q. And from where did you obtain the records?

A. There were several boxes of -- cardboard boxes that had files stored in them in that room, and we ultimately went through each one of those boxes and then pulled the files with the names that we were looking for.

Q. So with regard to the search that occurred, all of the boxes and all the files contained in that security office were viewed by you or other members -- or the people working with you in that task?

A. That's correct.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation; lack of foundation; and leading.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you personally, as a result of your efforts in looking through these materials, take into your custody and control certain exhibits?

A. I did.

Q. And do you recall just approximately how many -- well, first of all, what were the nature of the items that you actually took into your custody and control?

A. Mine were files, and they were related to the gatehouse log entries and/or any medical injury incident reports. I believe all of mine were directly related to the entry logs, though, for the ranch.

Q. And when you went through the items and you saw items that you felt were items that you wanted to seize pursuant to the search warrant, what did you do with those items?

A. As we went through the box, we would collect the items that we wanted to seize and set them aside, completed the box, and then we took the items over to Deputy Moeller, who was our seizing officer, and turned them over to him. He assigned them an item number and packaged them for evidence.

Q. And that's what you did with regard to the items that you took?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, do you recall whether or not any of the documents that you went through personally that day involved any records beyond December 31st of the year 2002? In other words, did you find any records for the year 2003?

A. I -- I don't believe so, no.

MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.

//

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Sergeant Cleaves, in your 25 years with the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department, what kinds of duties did you have?

A. Started off in patrol, working down in Goleta. Was transferred to Solvang, Santa Ynez. Worked there for a number of years. Went back down to special operations, where I worked vice, narcotics, gangs, and then was assigned to the helicopter crew. Was promoted to sergeant, transferred to Santa Maria.

From Santa Maria, back to Santa Ynez. From Santa Ynez, back to Santa Maria. And then back to Santa Ynez, and I'm currently working in special operations.

Q. Special operations is a -- is that a detective assignment?

A. It is.

Q. All right. And in this particular case, the extent of your assignment in this case was essentially to assist with this search and look for some records in the office?

A. That's correct.

Q. And did you search anyplace other than the security office?

A. Our search also --

Q. I'm sorry. I was vague. Let me clarify the question. Did you personally search anyplace other than the office?

A. I did.

Q. Where else did you search?
A. The garage immediately to the rear of the security office. And the video library that was upstairs above that office.
Q. You did not search the administration building; is that correct?
A. No.
Q. In fact, there was not a warrant to search the administration building, correct?
A. I don't know. I just searched the area that we were asked to search.
Q. So did you review the warrant?
A. I did.
Q. And you were given a briefing --
A. Yes.
Q. -- the morning of the search?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that correct, sir?
A. Yes, yes.
Q. And prior to your searching, you were given a copy of a protocol; is that right?
A. A protocol.
Q. It was a -- I forgot the name of -- a memorandum, in any event, that explained what the case was about and what you were looking for?

A. We received the warrant, we read the warrant. And my assignment was to do the security wing, and that's what we did.
Q. Do you remember whether or not you got a little packet that included an outline of what the case was about and who the significant parties were and that sort of thing?
A. I don't recall that. I do recall getting a list of names that we were supposed to look for in the security office.
Q. And you got a copy of the affidavit for the search warrant?
A. Right.
Q. So you had a chance to familiarize yourself with that; is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And the affidavit would have been something that explained to the judge issuing the warrant, would have explained what your department thought the case was about, and why you should be allowed to search, correct?

A. True.
Q. Correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And -- all right. Did you have a copy of the warrant itself, see a copy of the warrant?
A. We did get a copy of the warrant and we did read it, yes.

Q. Was it your understanding, from all of that information, that the warrant was for the main residence, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was for the security office, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And it was for the separate building that was described as an arcade; is that correct?
A. I don't specifically recall that.
Q. All right. In any event, it was not for every building on that ranch, was it?
A. I don't have that specific knowledge.
Q. All right. In any event, to your knowledge -- well, let me withdraw that.
Aside from where you said you looked, which would have been the security office, and then in that same building, which was part of the garage, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. You looked in the garage?
A. Correct.
Q. And then you went upstairs in that same building and you looked in the video library, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. Other than that, you did not search any other part of that ranch, you personally, for records, correct?

A. No, I did not.
Q. And are you familiar with Brian Barron?
A. I know the name. A security guard.
Q. Were you aware that he was a sworn peace officer?

A. At the time of the search I don't believe so.

Q. You're aware --

A. I hadn't paid attention.

Q. You are aware now; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And if he has indicated that records are accurate, as presented to him in court by the prosecutor that pertain to these gate logs, would you have any reason to believe that he was incorrect?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. Calls for speculation; no foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Sergeant Cleaves. Whoever's out there.

MR. SANGER: There are probably a lot of people out there, but --

MR. SNEDDON: Only some of them are witnesses.

THE COURT: Raise your right hand, please, face the clerk.

TIMOTHY SUTCLIFFE

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Timothy Sutcliffe, and that's spelled S-u-t-c-l-i-f-f-e.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Actually, just to clarify things, you're the same Timothy Sutcliffe who testified previously in this case?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. That was a long time ago, but -- now, everybody probably recalls this, but just for the purposes of refreshing people's recollections, you're employed by the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department?

A. That is correct.

Q. And your current assignment is?

A. I work for the Criminal Investigations

Division in the Forensics Unit.

Q. And was that your assignment back on November 18th of 2003?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Now, on that particular date, were you assigned to assist Sergeant Cleaves in the review of certain records and files in the security office of Neverland Valley Ranch during the execution of a search warrant?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Now, tell me what you did on that particular day with regard to the records in the security office.

A. We were given a list of names of individuals that -- to search for specific items. We were checking through the security documents, which were gate logs and guest lists, for those particular names, and I did find some of those items.

Q. And with regard to the items that you found, what did you do with them?

A. As I collected those items, I then gave those to Detective Moeller, who listed them on the SH-451 property form.

Q. Now, prior to testifying here today, I asked you to review the logs that you personally took on the occasion of the execution of that search warrant on November 18th. Do you recall doing that?

A. That's correct.

Q. And I specifically asked you to review those logs to see whether or not you found the name of Janet Arvizo on any of those documents that you took.

A. That's correct.

Q. And with regard to the documents you took, you found the name of the Arvizo children listed, did you not?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And on the documents that you reviewed, did you find the name of Janet Arvizo listed as a guest at the ranch during any of those occasions?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Now, the records that you found, describe to the jury the process that you went through personally to take the records.
A. There were several boxes of records, and there was a filing cabinet, and I had selected a specific box to go through of records. And as I was pulling the records out, looking over each individual record searching for those individuals' names, then I would set those aside. And when I was done with a particular box or file, I'd hand those to Detective Moeller so he could enter those into the 451 form.
Q. All right. Now, lastly, with regard to the logs and the documents that you actually took on this particular occasion, did you find or take any logs that went beyond the date of December 31st of 2002?

A. Can I check my --
Q. Do you need to refresh your recollection on that?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. What document are you doing that from?
A. The SH-451 form.
Q. All right. Please take a look at it and see if it refreshes your recollection. That's just for the documents you took, now.
A. Correct.
Yes, just the last entry is 12-2 of .02.
Q. Nothing with regard to the year 2003?
A. No.
MR. SNEDDON: Thank you. No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Detective Sutcliffe, how are you?

A. Good morning.

Q. The logs that you saw were located in the security office; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And that is, once again, the office at the end of the building that has the garage on the first floor and the video library on the second floor; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you search the administration building? Do you know where the administration building is?

A. No. If you could tell me where it is.

Q. Up on the hill.

A. No, I did not search the administration building.

Q. Okay. Did you -- did you -- and you were briefed before you went out there to do the search; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. The search warrant did not include the administration building, did it?

A. I don't recall on that.

Q. Okay. And you did not search the office at the gate; is that correct?

A. No, I did not.

Q. You said the last record you have an entry for in your sheriff's booking form is December 2, 2002; is that correct? Is that what you just said?

A. Can I check?

Q. Sure. Certainly. I thought I was wrong. But you need to look. That's fine. Okay.

A. Yes, 12-2 of .02.

Q. Okay. That's the last record you seized; is that correct?

A. That's the last -- the latest date.

Q. That's the last date or the latest date that you seized, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. That is not the latest date that you saw?

A. I don't recall any further than that.

Q. Do you recall seeing records there at that office that went through the end of 2002?

A. Yeah, I -- I recall. I think there was some 2003 records as well.

Q. Some 2003?

A. But I didn't seize those, no.

Q. In any event, you just seized the records up to the date -- let me withdraw that.

You just seized the records that had entries for the names that you were looking for, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you did not make any record of the last date of any records that were there; is that correct?

A. I don't understand the question, I'm sorry.

Q. That's fine. You did not make a note of the last -- the most recent record that was there present in the office; is that correct?

A. The only ones I'm real familiar with are the ones I collected. And the last date of the items I collected was -- the latest date was 12-2 of 2002.

Q. Okay. My question was, you did not make a note of the latest date that was present in the office, did you?

A. No, I did not.

Q. And your recollection was, however, that you did not have the current logs for 2003, correct?

A. I recall that there was some 2003 logs. I just remember dates for 2003, but I don't recall what exactly they were.

Q. Okay. You didn't have logs -- this was November 18th, 2003, that you're there, right?

A. Correct.

Q. You didn't have the logs for November 17th, for instance, did you?

A. Not that I'm aware of.

Q. All right. And you did not locate the current logs for the recent months of 2003 in your searching, correct?

A. I personally did not, no.

MR. SANGER: All right. I have no further questions. Thank you.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Well, let's just get this straight so everybody understands it.
You were only authorized by the warrant to seize documents through the time that the Arvizo family was there, isn't that correct, through March of 2003?

A. That's correct.
Q. So there would be no reason to look for documents in April, May, June, July, November of 2003?
MR. SANGER: Objection. That's leading and it's also argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: In the execution of the search warrant, are you bound not to review the records that go beyond the period authorized by the judge in the warrant?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, with regard to whatever document you may have seen in 2003 that would have been within the time limit of the warrant itself, did you personally see anything within 2003?
A. No.
MR. SANGER: Excuse me, I'm going to object to that question. The way it's phrased is -- it's vague and it's also compound, if I understand it at all.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you personally see any documents during your examination of the records covering the month of January 2003?
A. I don't recall the specific month. I just remember seeing 2003s. Seems to me that there was some, but I don't recall any specific information about 2003.

Q. In the execution of the warrant, if you'd seen something during the time period set forth in the warrant, in other words, January, February, March of 2003, and it contained the name of any of the parties that you were looking for, would you have taken it?

A. Yes, I would have.
MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further. No further questions.
THE COURT: Thank you.
MR. SNEDDON: Investigator Rooney.
THE COURT: We'll take our break.
MR. SNEDDON: Okay.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. SNEDDON: Thank you, Your Honor. Tim Rooney.
THE COURT: Remain standing, please. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

TIMOTHY ROONEY
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: Timothy Rooney, R-o-o-n-e-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Mr. Rooney, you're employed by the Santa Barbara County District Attorney's Office, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How long have you been with the District Attorney's Office?
A. 16 years.
Q. And in what capacity are you employed by the District Attorney's Office?
A. Senior criminal investigator.
Q. Before that, did you have law enforcement experience?
A. 11 years with Santa Barbara Police Department.
Q. Okay. Now, on November the 11th of -- November the 18th, I'm sorry, November 18th, 2003, were you assigned to participate in the execution of a search warrant on Neverland Valley Ranch?
A. Yes.

Q. And what were your -- was part of the assignment that you were given that day to participate in the review of some documents and logs in the security office?

A. Yes.

Q. And were you working in conjunction with other people in doing that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. I'm not sure that mike's working. You might want to try that one there.

A. Okay.

Q. And who was it that you were working with in processing these documents?

A. Sergeant Steve Cleaves from the sheriff's office, Deputy Moeller from the sheriff's office, Tim Sutcliffe from the sheriff's office, Shelly Sweeton, a criminal investigator with the District Attorney's Office, and myself.

Q. And from where did you obtain the materials that you personally went through?

A. From the security area.

Q. And were they in some form of containers?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind?

A. Some were retrieved from files that were in file cabinets and boxes.

Q. Now, what is the process that you used in -- first of all, were you given a list of names of people to look for on these logs and records?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the nature of the records that you were looking through?

A. Records consisted of logs of people going in and out of the ranch, employees, guests, business vendors.

Q. And you had a list of names to look for; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And during the course of your examination of the documents that you personally examined, did you have occasion to remove some of those documents?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And after you removed them, what did you do with them?
A. I notified Deputy Moeller and he scribed them, took them from my possession and documented them.
Q. So he took them from you, you gave them to him and he documented them --
A. Yes.
Q. -- is that correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, have you had a chance to review the documents that you took on that particular day --
A. Yes.
Q. -- generally speaking?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Do any of those documents include documents after the date of December 31st of 2002?
A. I don't believe so.
MR. SNEDDON: No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. It's still morning. We always have to check here. We get kind of out of sequence.
Did you write a report in this case?
A. No, sir.
Q. Your assignment, among other things, was to look through those documents; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Were you assigned to do anything else in this case?
A. I helped search the video movie room that he had.
Q. The video library?
A. Yes, the library.
Q. I'm sorry.
A. The video library at the ranch.
Q. I didn't mean to talk over you.
Okay. The video library was upstairs in the same building as the security office?
A. Yes.

Q. And you also were assigned to stand watch over the guest units until somebody came to search them?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Other than that, did you do anything else in this case?

A. I went to the back employee area and stood by till somebody came -- from the sheriff's office came and contacted the employees.
Q. Okay. Did you search the administration building? Let me ask the foundational question. Do you know where the administration building was on the ranch?
A. No, sir.
Q. Okay. You were down at the main residence on the adjoining building with the video library and the security office, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You did not go up on the hill to an administration building to search there, did you?
A. Yes, that's the building I was referring to in the back. I didn't search there, but I stood by with the employees until somebody from the sheriff's office relieved me. I did not search that area.
Q. You're saying “the back.” Do you mean right behind the house?
A. Up high where you're talking about.
Q. What does that building look like?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Was it an industrial-looking building?
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. So we're then talking about the -- is that the building that has a fire truck up there?

A. There were no fire trucks when I was up there, I don't believe, but other employees' vehicles.
Q. All right. Okay. In any event, you did not search inside of that administration building; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you're aware at the front gate there is an office at the gatehouse; is that correct?

A. Yes, there is.
Q. Did you search the office at the gatehouse?
A. No, sir.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.
MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.
THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.
MR. SNEDDON: Detective Moeller.
Is that one on?
BAILIFF CORTEZ: It's on.
THE COURT: Remain standing. Face the clerk. Raise your right hand.

STEVEN MOELLER
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name's Steven Moeller, M-o-e-l-l-e-r.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. All right. Mr. Moeller, you're going to have to scoot up to that microphone there.
A. Can you hear me?
Q. That's perfect. That's as good as it gets in here.
All right. You're a deputy employed by the Santa Barbara County Sheriff's Department?
A. I am.
Q. How long have you been with the department?
A. 30 years.
Q. And what are your current duty assignments?
A. Currently I'm attached to the Aviation Bureau of the sheriff's department.
Q. And on November the 18th of 2003, you are one of the people who participated in the execution of a search warrant at Neverland Valley Ranch; is that correct?
A. That's correct.

Q. And on that particular occasion, were you assigned some responsibilities in connection with the execution of that warrant at the security office?

A. Yes, I was.
Q. And what were those responsibilities?
A. To go through various documentation looking for specific names on the list, and doing a basic search of that security office.
Q. All right. And were you assigned a particular responsibility with regard to any of the documents that were found during the course of that search?
A. Yes. I was a scribe.
Q. What's that mean?
A. That means that I -- for the search team, once they find something that they believe they want to hold as evidence, they turn it over to me, I assign it a number, and then I fill out the property sheet.
Q. And then after you assign it a number and you fill out the property sheet, what do you do with it? What did you do with it on this occasion?
A. The evidence?
Q. Yes.
A. Bagged it.
Q. Okay. And then after you bagged it?
A. I turned it over to the evidence officer.
Q. All right. Now, you were working with some other officers in the security office who you provided the scribe responsibilities for. Now, who were the other officers you were working with in there?

A. There was Sergeant Steve Cleaves, Detective Sutcliffe, Detective Rooney, and Detective Sweeney.
Q. And as they -- as they gave you the particular item and you assigned a number to it, did you make out what's called an SH-451 form?
A. I did.
Q. What is that, for the jury?
A. Basically that takes the evidence that's turned over, any description of that evidence, and we log who located that evidence and what location.

Q. All right. I want to show you a series of exhibits, with the Court's permission.
I can approach the witness, if I might.
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: And Counsel, this is 300 through --
MR. SANGER: 334.
MR. SNEDDON: 334. Excellent.
Q. I'm going to ask you to examine the items 300 through 334, which basically ends where that yellow tag is.
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I'm going to object to this procedure as cumulative, in that there's already a foundation and these documents were admitted.
MR. SNEDDON: I have other questions about the documents that I'm going to ask.

THE COURT: I'm not going to rule on your objection, because I don't know -- he's just asked him to look at the records. So I don't know if it's cumulative or not.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Okay. Have you looked at all those documents?
A. I have.
Q. Now, with regard to the very last one, this is People's 333, it's in evidence, it's the one -- yeah, flip that over, because I'm going to ask you a question about -- no. Flip it this way.
A. Okay.
Q. With regard to that particular document, in the upper left-hand corner is a number written in ink; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And do you recognize that number?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Did you put that number on there?
A. I did.
Q. Okay. Now, go back one more document, if you would. That document -- excuse me. With regard to the exhibit we were just talking about is in small numbers, black ink, correct?
A. That is correct.

Q. Now, go back one more.
MR. SANGER: May I approach, Your Honor? I'm not sure I'm following this.

THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: It's the same as in yours.
MR. SANGER: It's a different colored ink on that one. This is not colored.
MR. SNEDDON: It's black.
MR. SANGER: I see, okay. That was the first number? Can I just ask where the second number was?
THE WITNESS: 602?
MR. SNEDDON: That's on 601.
THE WITNESS: 601.
MR. SNEDDON: In the upper left-hand corner of the document.
MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Moving back, the next document has, in the upper left-hand corner, what number in black?
A. 6-3-5.
Q. Is that your handwriting?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, the handwriting with regard to 635 compared to 601 is significantly larger, is it not?
A. It is.
Q. Okay. And with regard to the review of the documents that I asked you to do in front of the jury here, those all have large print on them like the 6 -- like the one that's marked as People's 332, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. So even though they're smaller in size in one case and bigger in others, it's the same handwriting, your scribe?
A. It is.
Q. Do you have your SH-451 form --
A. I do.
Q. -- with you?
Don't look at it yet. I'm going to ask you a question.
A. Okay.

Q. And if you have to look at it, I'll let you do that.
A. Oh. Okay.
Q. With regard to the items that were given you from No. 300 through 332 - okay? --
A. Okay.
Q. -- were any of those documents beyond the date of January 1st, 2003?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Did you -- would your SH-451 help you refresh your recollection to that effect?
A. It might.
Q. Make sure you're certain of that. Let me just ask you a question. Your report, your SH-451, is listed by item number, correct?
A. Correct.

Q. So it doesn't necessarily correspond, without individually looking at every page, as to which is which?
A. Correct.
Q. So why don't we just turn all the way back, just momentarily to get the place on this, to Item No. 300 -- or Item 301. How's that? Just turn the book to 301.
A. 301.
Q. Okay. And that corresponds to your Item No. 614, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Just run consecutively to 614 down to the end of your documents.
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object, Your Honor.
MR. SNEDDON: Let me do it another way.
MR. SANGER: Sorry. Go ahead.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Just please review your form for right now.
A. Okay.
Q. And, now, does that refresh your recollection as to whether or not items -- the evidentiary items 301 through 332 were all items from the year of 2002?
A. With the exception of one.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object, Your Honor. The exhibits speak for themselves. We're getting a report about the exhibits.

THE COURT: He just asked him to refresh his recollection. If I understand your objection correctly, I'll overrule it.

MR. SANGER: Well, the objection was -- the question was, what is the dates on the exhibits, not in his report.

THE COURT: He asked him to review the item and see if it refreshed his recollection.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: This would be only through Items -- your Item 635?

A. Correct. 2002.

THE COURT: I think what's happened is the question is in two stages. So I'll ask you to break the question down to two separate questions.

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, Your Honor. I will do that.

Q. Does reviewing your SH-451 form refresh your recollection as to whether or not the Exhibits 301 through 332 are all from the same year?

A. Correct.

Q. And that year would be what?

A. 2002.

Q. And there was a single document which is Exhibit 333, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. One-page document. That was from the year 2003?

A. Correct.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.

MR. SANGER: The only problem is the book that was given to me has a two-page document. Maybe it's two sides of one page.

May I just inquire?

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. 333, is that two pages, or is it one page with two sides, or what is it?

A. Two sides.

Q. Actually --

A. Well --

Q. -- one piece of paper?

A. No, two pieces of paper.

Q. So basically, then, the answer would be Exhibit 333 is two pages that pertain to 2003?

A. Correct.

Q. Without getting too complicated here, you have a number of records which include gate logs from 2002?

A. Correct.

Q. And then you have two pages, which is Exhibit 333, that are not gate logs; is that correct?

A. No, they're not.

Q. Okay. So you have -- those are a Neverland

Valley Fire Department Emergency Medical Report from 2003, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then there's a Neverland Valley Medical Report Log from 2003?

A. That's also correct.

Q. So those medical reports are from 2003. The gate logs that you scribed in during the search were from 2002?

A. Correct.

Q. There you go.

Now, by the way, is your assignment with the Aviation Bureau, is that a -- does that mean you're up in the air full time in a helicopter or a plane?

A. Yes.

Q. That's where you are at all times?

A. As much as --

Q. As much as you can, probably?

A. As much as the county can afford.

Q. When did you first get that assignment?

A. Approximately six years ago.

Q. All right. So at the time you were -- you were assigned to do this, you were taken out of the air to come down to the ground and help out?

A. Actually, during that year that the search warrant occurred, I was temporarily with the narcotics unit for about eight months.

Q. So you were working as a detective?

A. I was.

Q. And you have prior experience as a detective in the department?

A. No.

Q. That was your only time as a detective?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, you were briefed on this search before you went out to the ranch, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you received a copy of the search warrant, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And you were aware of the structures that were covered by the search warrant; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And that would be the main house, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. The security office, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And then the arcade building?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you search the administration building?

A. I did not.

Q. Do you know where that administration building was?

A. No.

Q. Were you aware there was an industrial-looking building up on the hill?

A. If that's by the fire department --

Q. Yes.

A. -- area, yes.

Q. You're aware of that building?

A. I'm aware of that building, yes.

Q. But you did not search it?

A. I did not.

Q. And you're aware of the gatehouse or the office next to the gate, the very front gate on Figueroa Mountain Road, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was an office that was not searched as well; is that correct?

A. I did not search that.
MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. No further questions.
MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further, Your Honor.
THE COURT: You may step down.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, we'll call Jeff Klapakis as our next witness.
THE COURT: All right. Come forward. When you get to the witness stand, you may be seated. You're still under oath.
LIEUTENANT KLAPAKIS: Yes, sir.

JEFF KLAPAKIS
Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:
Q. Good afternoon, Lieutenant Klapakis.
A. Good afternoon.
Q. You've previously testified in this case that you were a lieutenant assigned to the Michael Jackson case. During the month of January in 2004, did you serve a search warrant on the home of F. Marc Schaffel?
A. Yes.
Q. And where did you serve that warrant?
A. In Calabasas, California. At his residence.
Q. What was the date of the -- that the warrant was served?
A. January 31st, .04.
MR. SANGER: Before we go any further -- yes, all right. Before we go any further, could we approach the bench briefly?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)
THE COURT: (To the jury) Before we have any further testimony, I have to hear some motions, and not just as to this witness, but to several witnesses that the District Attorney is anticipating calling. And there's -- I don't see any way that we could complete those this afternoon, so I'm going to have to let you go home.

THE JURY: (In unison) Oh.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: I knew you would be disappointed.

So you don't come back.

THE JURY: (In unison) Oh.

THE COURT: And I'll see you Monday at 8:30.

Remember the admonitions.

Let me just say one thing to you. This is not unusual. When you get to the end of either side of the case, things -- it starts stuttering. Every case I've ever had, those -- the witnesses that are left are the ones that have something that I have to do, and it's just not unusual. I don't want you to think it is. It just sort of -- cases don't just ride out to the end smoothly and stop. At least not in my court. They always go bump, bump, bump. That's where we are; bump, bump, bump.

So I'll see you next Monday.

I'm going to just leave the stand for a moment until you're ready to start the motions.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, before you start on the motion, I asked Mr. Dunkle to come over and sit in, because so many of these things were filed at the last minute and he's worked on responses, so I'd like to have him here. And he'll be here in a few minutes, but we can start without him, of course.

THE COURT: That's fine.

All right. The first item on the calendar is the plaintiff's motion in limine re admission of expert testimony on Battered Women's Syndrome. I deferred ruling. I would like to have Mr. Sneddon, whoever is handling the motion here, explain to me why this witness is necessary, what you intend to prove.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: This is my motion, Your Honor. And given the enormity of the evidence concerning Janet Arvizo's 16-year abusive relationship at the hands of her husband, and given the fact that the charges and facts of this case fall immediately upon the end of that 16-year relationship, both sides have made the issue of this relationship central to this case.

The defense has even attempted to use this relationship to show that Miss Arvizo was somehow fraudulent in the J.C. Penney case by attempting -- I won't concede that they were successful, but they attempted to lead the jury to believe that some of her injuries were, in fact, caused by her husband.

So there doesn't seem to be any contention that both sides agree that this woman suffered at the hands of her husband.

THE COURT: I guess the issue that I want discussed is what is the relevance here. The code section says that if you show relevance and you have an expert that will so testify --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Very well. I'll go straight to the point.

False imprisonment. Child endangerment. Personal verbal attacks. Death threats. Isolation. Hopelessness. Emotional abuse. These are all the central issues of domestic violence. They are also the central issues in this case.

Domestic violence evidence, expert evidence by a Battered Women's Syndrome expert, is designed to debunk misperceptions about women who have suffered this posttraumatic stress disorder. Women who have been raped, women who have been beaten, women who have been abused do not act in a -- in a predictive manner.

There are many misconceptions about how Janet Arvizo should act, given the stimulus of the defendant's conduct in this particular case.

Specifically -- these are problem areas for this jury that this expert will help them now to wade through. Specifically, why did she return to her abusers at Neverland? The jury needs to understand that. Victims of domestic violence virtually always return to their abusers.

Why didn't she go to the police? Why doesn't she report this? Victims of domestic violence -- this expert will testify, victims of domestic violence, when they're threatened, when they're abused, when they're taken advantage of, they virtually never go to the police.

Why didn't she make greater attempts to leave? Why didn't she just walk away? Those are the questions of people who wonder why these women stay in these domestic violence relationships. This expert will help this jury understand this issue.

Why she's still susceptible, why she's so gullible.

Common traits in domestic violence cases. Why was she so easily manipulated? Domestic violence victims are routinely manipulated by the men who abuse them. Why did she continue to trust in people who had proven they were untrustworthy?

Another common trait, this learned hopelessness. That's the terminology that the experts use, “learned hopelessness”; that they become eternal believers in, “Well, you know, if I just tow the line, if I just do what I'm told, if I don't make any waves, if I don't make any fuss, everything will be okay.”

Why did she act so helpless? A common question that we all have of victims of domestic violence and a common trait that's certainly associated with this disorder.

Why did she have -- continue to have hope and faith in Jackson when Jackson's people were conducting this conspiracy around her? Again, this sense of hope, trying to find some light at the end of the tunnel, trying to believe, wanting to believe. She wanted to believe that Jackson could help her, even when all the evidence was contrary.

Why does she lie under oath? Now, here's an important point. The defense has placed that fact in the center of their attack on Janet Arvizo.

They've charged her with perjury. They made a big deal about it. They questioned her extensively about that.

And this expert will come forward and tell you that victims of domestic violence virtually always or routinely lie under oath and protect their abusers. And that's exactly what she did in this case.

THE COURT: But I'm having trouble keeping up with you here. Are you talking at this point about her lying under oath in depositions about whether her ex-husband was abusive or not?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, I am.

THE COURT: But just before that, you were attributing the -- it wasn't -- you were sort of placing Mr. Jackson in the position of a husband, weren't you?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I am. I'm placing --

THE COURT: You made a big jump there.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I did. And I'm saying that Mr. Jackson was in a position where he could exploit the vulnerabilities of a woman who suffers from posttraumatic stress disorder.

Now, the statute itself says that the common misperceptions regarding Battered Women's Syndrome is admissible to help the jury understand the nature and effect of the physical, emotional, mental abuse on the beliefs, perceptions and behavior of victims of domestic violence.

Janet Arvizo's beliefs, her perceptions and her behavior in this case have been called into question by the defense. And those beliefs, perceptions and behaviors were altered, permanently probably, during those 16 years of being a battered wife.

Now, there are some interesting parallels here, even though Mr. Jackson is not in a position of being a typical classic father figure in a family. I mean, there's the family overtones. There's the I'm-going-to-take-care-of-you overtones. There's certainly some interesting parallels here. But this is primarily to help the jury understand why Janet behaves the way she does. Many questions are asked about this, and questions that have been focused on by the defense.

And Janet behaves the way she does because of her history as a victim of domestic violence.

Because of the stimulus that's provided, death threats, she reacts that way when she gets death threats. When she's scared, when she's upset, she doesn't go to the police. When she's feeling hopeless, she locks herself in a room and sits there on Neverland and doesn't go out and see anybody. She is -- is she paranoid? Yes, as most victims of domestic violence are.

THE COURT: The thing I'm having trouble with is that the case where this usually arises is in a case where a -- if it's a husband -- let's use that as an example. A husband is charged in court with abusing his wife, and she testifies, and there's a lot of inconsistencies because she didn't report it, or at other times she said he was abusive, he wasn't abusive, that type of thing, and you have --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well --

THE COURT: -- the testimony to explain her -- it's not too different from the Child Abuse Accommodation Syndrome, where the child doesn't accurately report and you bring in an expert to suggest why that would be, you know, in the total scheme of things.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And you're exactly right.

THE COURT: In this case, that's not the situation at all. I mean, she's --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: This is an unusual hybrid. I couldn't agree more.

But as you pointed out, there's two tracks here for admissibility. One deals with the conduct of the defendant, and trying to understand Janet's conduct, which I think is just -- just something that this jury absolutely has to have to help them understand Janet. She suffers from a posttraumatic stress disorder. They should be apprised of that and the classic symptomology, which is completely counterintuitive. And we don't want this jury to make this decision based on misconceptions. And there are an abundance of misconceptions of how women should be behave and how they actually do behave when they've been abused by domestic partners.

But the other side, the other track, which is completely independent of this and which this evidence should come straight in on, is to explain why she didn't tell the truth under oath. It goes straight to that issue, which the defense has chosen to make a centerpiece on their attack on Janet.

So for the jury to understand why did she perjure herself, why did she lie about her husband, that's a highway to bring this type of evidence in so that the jury can understand, that's normal. Women who are -- who are abused do that. It shouldn't be held against her, and it shouldn't be used against her the way this defense intends to do, and the way they tried to do when they examined her, and the way they ultimately will do when they argue this case.

So on one hand, the defense has asked for it. They've asked -- they should have all the evidence on what the reasons why she perjured herself. But on the other hand, it's -- there are many enigmas about why Janet acted the way she did, and those enigmas are largely explained when people understand that she is a classic -- she's exhibiting the classic symptoms of posttraumatic stress disorder.

And I might point out finally, just that under the code, under the section here, this is not exclusively used in the case of Battered Women's Syndrome where there's a domestic violence, where the husband is charged and the woman is the victim. I mean, the code itself says "whenever it's relevant." So it's not a matter of whether it's normal or not. The question is, is it relevant? Does it have a tendency in reason to prove --

THE COURT: Well, it's just that it's -- the relevancy is very clear under the typical scenario.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

THE COURT: It's not so clear here.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: But even in the cases, the cases don't always just go to that classic scenario. Sometimes it's used on the other side of the coin. Sometimes it's used to show why the woman assaulted the man.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And there's case law on that as well.

THE COURT: Yeah, and --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So --

THE COURT: I chose the example of the man assaulting the woman because that's the scenario we have in front of me.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Sometimes it's used to show that the defendant -- it's not only used to show the victim suffered from post-traumatic. Sometimes it's used to show the defendant suffered --

THE COURT: Oh, I see what you're saying.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When the woman is charged with murder, for instance, and an expert is introduced to show she suffered from Battered Women's Syndrome. So there are other cases. But I agree with you, it's not always simple, but we are not always confronted with simple facts for the application of the law. But I will say that it is abundantly clear that, under the defense's own intent and their own tactic in this case, they made it relevant, at a minimum, by charging her with perjury and parading that out in front of this jury.

So I would submit there are two very strong reasons that make this evidence highly relevant. And I don't think you can -- you can dispute the fact that many of her -- much of her conduct is counterintuitive, that -- and that it does fit within a pattern that is prevalent among women who are victims of this.

THE COURT: But you're saying that the expert's going to testify that not only does the spousal abuse accommodation theory explain why a person doesn't report, prosecute, et cetera, a person who is physically abusing them, and will say that that's equivalent to this case where --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, she will say that. She will say that this -- this disorder, the symptomology of this disorder, is not isolated to the home. When they walk out of the home, they carry this disorder with them. When they are confronted in the world with the stimulus, the similar stimulus that they have in the home, such as death threats, such as false imprisonment, such as threats of child abduction, such as trying to obtain control, any act of power, isolation and control, which we have here, when they're confronting these types of influences, they react the same way they do in the home. The posttraumatic stress disorder goes with them wherever they go.

And that's what this witness -- this expert witness will testify to. She will testify to that these types of incidences are -- are Janet suffering from this syndrome. That this type of behavior is -- and not specifically, but generally, because this will be general testimony, as it should be. It's to demystify the area. But she'll testify that women do not leave this disorder when they walk out of the house or even when they leave their husband. So --

THE COURT: Okay. Mr. Sanger, are you going to discuss this?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir. Yes, sir.

We briefed it, and I think the Court has hit one of the major points on the head, is that this isn't relevant to this kind of a case.

But responding to what Mr. Auchincloss said in an effort to answer the Court's question, we didn't make her perjury relevant. She has committed perjury, I think it's pretty clear, in this court from the stand. And she has said things that are preposterous, that are absolutely counter to the other evidence in the case. And that's not because she's a battered woman. That's because she lies for gain.

I don't want to be unnecessarily harsh, but let's face it, that's what this is about. She took the Fifth so that she has that protection to not be cross-examined. But the Court is going to allow us to bring in evidence that she lied for gain on repeated declarations for money and got that money and continued to get that money, and lied and cheated her way through life. That is what she does. That has nothing to do with being a battered woman.

Now, the People say, well, they should bring this in and because Mr. Auchincloss says she's really suffering from posttraumatic stress disorder, which is interesting, because they specifically asked to exclude Dr. Hochman's testimony, who indicates that she is basically an antisocial personality disordered patient, person, who coaches her children to lie. Remember, Dr. Hochman was the one that said that, and that she lies for gain, and lied for gain in that case in the J.C. Penney's case itself. But he made a diagnosis after actually seeing her and evaluating her and testing her. If they're --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object that that misstates the evidence, and this should be a legal argument rather than a factual one.

MR. SANGER: Well --

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SANGER: If they bring in PTSD and say that's what this is all about, and she can get up and say whatever she wants, obviously it proves too much. It's not relevant to this case. It's not relevant to the facts of this case, despite the heroic effort to stretch it. But it would prove too much. Anybody who claims that they were assaulted by their husband could come into court, lie in the trial proceedings before the Court, lie in countless other proceedings, and under oath, and then say, "I get a pass."

Now, there's nothing funny or nothing to be minimized about being the victim of any kind of violence, whether it's domestic violence or any other kind of violence. But it proves too much to say that therefore this witness, who Your Honor heard for five days -- and we'll address this maybe in an 1118.1 motion at some point here.

But without prejudging that, Your Honor heard this witness for five days. That is not the behavior of a shy, hopeless - what were the words? - a hopeless person who can't stand up for herself. She was perfectly willing to take Mr. Mesereau on as aggressively as possible. She has taken other people on in her history in that very same way.

When she wants something, she will get it.

There is nothing -- nothing shy about that woman that was on the tape that was trying to keep herself situated as close to Michael Jackson as possible, while denying that Jay Jackson even existed. There is nothing shy about this woman at any time. And she'll get up here and blatantly lie.

If the Court says, "Well, you can" -- if any court said, "Well, you can bring in an expert to say this person gets a pass and they can lie," what's the point of cross-examination? What's the point of coming into court and having the jury hear these things?

Now, it simply proves too much. It's not relevant to the facts of this case. If they do intend to bring in something like that and claim that it shows PTSD, and therefore she's not able to tell the truth, what does that tell us? But if they're able to do that, then we should, of course, be able to bring in Dr. Hochman to say he knows exactly why she doesn't tell the truth.

THE COURT: Don't you think there's relevance, without conceding your position, though? I'm having trouble with you, just like I am with the District Attorney. There's two areas we're talking about. One area, the claim is that she was the victim of abuse by David Arvizo. And as the District Attorney pointed out in his argument, neither side seems to be -- that's not an area of contest in this case. You know, when it occurred, and all that, may be, but not that it actually occurred.

So then we have the actual impeachment by the defense of her testimony that Mr. Arvizo was abusive by you, the defense, bringing in the depositions of the J.C. Penney case where she denies that he's abusive. And I don't want to go into the evidence at length, but there was a considerable amount of evidence relating to her responses in the J.C. Penney case, and then the -- you know, the final, ultimate statement by her that if she, you know, was at the point that he was finally arrested and removed from her presence, that she was able to go to her attorney and explain some of the untruths that she told.

That's one area.

Now, what's your argument, without drifting, please, as to the relevance of her -- of expert testimony explaining the Spousal Abuse Accommodation Syndrome in regard to that issue?

MR. SANGER: Or Battered Women's Syndrome.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: So, if I'm understanding the Court, the -- taking the argument -- and I understand the Court's advancing for the purpose of discussion, taking the argument --

THE COURT: You're giving me a discussion, yes.

MR. SANGER: Taking the argument that, while the testimony might not be admissible with regard to Mr. Jackson and any other conduct associated with people at Neverland, the argument may be relevant to explain what happened with David Arvizo and why she may have lied in the J.C. Penney's lawsuit.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. First of all, under 352, let's start there, the Court has to make the cut at some point on evidence that is going to come in to explain what is an issue in the case, but it is not the core issue in the case.

And the Court has made that determination with regard to Dr. Hochman, for instance, that we cannot bring in what we considered to be probative evidence. The Court did not say it was not probative. The Court said that you were going to exclude it, I take it, in part, on the grounds that it would be -- I believe the Court said on the grounds that we're not going to have a complete trial within a trial on all aspects of it.

So there does have to be a cut of some sort. And it seems to me that's a place where we can start with the discussion. Can they -- in a trial where Mr. Jackson is on trial for his liberty over what these people allegedly did, we're going to have an expert come in, whose testimony should really be limited to this very small area.

Now, I understand if the Court were to do that, Mr. Auchincloss would not be allowed, nor would anybody on that side be allowed to argue that this testimony explains away her perjury in this case or her perjury in other respects. But Your Honor would propose that somehow the jury be limited to that.

And so under 352, besides the undue consumption of time, you have the potential for prejudice to this defendant, to whom this witness would not apply at all, but the jury would not be capable of making that very surgical line, if you make a line surgically, but make that line very specifically. So it would cause prejudice, and it would cause undue confusion to the jury, besides the undue consumption of time.

Now, I want to address the relevance issue even more specifically, but I started with 352, because I think that really answers the question. But going more specifically beneath that, to whether or not it's probative at all on this, Your Honor said we don't dispute that she was abused by her husband.

There's already been reference to the fact that there was a photograph taken of her where she was appearing to assault her husband with a knife. And she said it was all a game, but I will represent to the Court that we have a number of witnesses who say that she was the violent one in the marriage, and was, in fact, striking not only her husband but other family members, and she's --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object that this is all irrelevant as to what she -- what Janet Arvizo is and what she may have done.

THE COURT: Overruled. Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: And we have a number of witnesses who we could call for that. Whether we will call them -- I'm representing they've been interviewed and that's what they say. Whether we will call them is a question of trial strategy and tactics, depending on where this all goes, of course. And there's evidence that -- well, suffice it to say, without going into the detail, there's evidence from third-party witnesses and family members to that effect.

Given that, if the Court allows her to now shore up her credibility as to why -- sort of a strange phrase, shore up her credibility as to why she perjured herself --

THE COURT: That's a phrase you've been choosing. I mean --

MR. SANGER: What the prosecution would be saying -- Your Honor argued this for them, I suppose, because we're talking about this narrow issue.

What the prosecution would be saying on this part of it, I suppose, is, “Look, of course she lied in J.C. Penney's because her husband's abused her and she's afraid.” So then when she -- when she testified, she not only testified that her husband never beat her and she loved her husband, and they had a hide-away love nest, and there was all these other things that went along with that deposition, but she also felt compelled to testify that she was sexually molested and all the other things that came out in that deposition that were just inherently preposterous. And they would argue, “Well, she's a battered woman, so she tends to lie about everything if she lies about anything.”

THE COURT: The expert on the Battered Women's Syndrome, doesn't the expert in that situation just explain why a person who's been the subject of abuse might not report it, might not report it accurately, might at one time say one thing about it and other times about another? That explanation doesn't extend to everything a person says thereafter to anybody, does it?

MR. SANGER: Well, it shouldn't, but I heard Mr. Auchincloss just argue that it does. However, focusing on the Court's argument, the question is what would the expert bring to this?

The expert is not going to be able to substantiate the argument that Mr. Auchincloss made, and that's my point. The expert's not going to be able to say that she committed perjury just in general because she's hopeless. The expert can simply say there are syndromes where a woman, or a man, or anybody that's subject to a Battered Person Syndrome, usually a woman, hence the name, but where a person is subject to this syndrome, they are beaten down, they're dependent on the person, they feel hopeless. And the theory goes, therefore they don't necessarily avail themselves of conventional means to resolve the problem. They tend to go back to the person, things that Mr. Auchincloss said are common -- I won't adopt them all, but those that I'm repeating are common denominators in the expert testimony. And that will explain the traditional case where, in fact, a woman doesn't go report it, and when asked, after being beaten, says, “No, I wasn't beaten.”

It just doesn't explain the facts in this case. When I say, “this case,” I mean the J.C. Penney's case. It certainly doesn't explain anything in this case. But in the J.C. Penney's case, it just doesn't explain the facts that are in that case, where she will go in for gain and make up a big story about all sorts of things for gain.

And then remember, Your Honor, she doesn't -- it's not that she's afraid to report her husband. She reports her husband five days after they get a settlement by mediation, while they are still deciding how the money's going to be split between them. And during the months that ensue, they can't decide, the insurance company files an interpleader -- I don't know if they actually filed, but stated in correspondence they're going to file an interpleader because they don't want to have anything to do with it. She reports him then for sexual abuse. And he finally says, “I give up. I'll just take 5,000 for my divorce lawyer and you can have the rest.” And that's not a battered woman.

THE COURT: You're really not addressing the issue. But --

MR. SANGER: I'm trying.

THE COURT: Let me ask you the other question.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry.

THE COURT: The area I cut you off on -- I just wanted to hear the argument related to my hypothetical, so I cut you off from arguing why it shouldn't apply, if the expert actually purported to be able to apply it to the -- a situation outside of the marriage or the relationship such as the Michael Jackson connection that she has. I'll let you argue that a little bit, because I wouldn't let you argue it.

MR. SANGER: All right. And not wanting to decline that invitation, could I make just one closing remark on the other issue?

THE COURT: If it relates to my question, yes.

MR. SANGER: And I want to tie it to the question. I think that is the question, is Your Honor says if it was limited to that issue, I suppose the question is how do you limit it to that issue? And that's why I come back to the 352, which is if you let in a battered woman expert on that, then we have all this other evidence as to whether or not she was actually battered, and whether or not she was behaving in accordance with a Battered Women's Syndrome, which would open that whole area substantially more than the Court, I think, intends to have it opened at this point.

Having said that -- that was the point of going on about the additional facts with regard to that point.

Having said that, the -- the greater argument, as it pertains to Mr. Jackson, who, after all, is the person we're representing -- we're not taking David Arvizo's side or not. You know, that's something that either did or didn't happen. The question is whether or not Janet Arvizo is telling the truth in this case when she's accusing Michael Jackson and other people at Neverland and elsewhere of doing things to her.

And this syndrome, as it's typically described in the testimony, would have no application to this picture, despite Mr. Auchincloss's argument that basically explains perjury in general.

Not only that, we still do not have an offer, specific offer of proof or a report of anything from a Battered Women's Syndrome expert.

And as far as I know, they haven't elected which one of the number that they listed on their list they were going to actually call.

So we don't know what they're going to say.

We have to assume they're going to say no more and probably no less than they generally will say in domestic violence cases or cases in which the parties, whichever one is the victim of the ultimate offense, where the parties are husband and wife or boyfriend and girlfriend, and they have that kind of a relationship.

So if they give that kind of testimony, that kind of testimony will not apply to this. That means that they are expecting to call somebody who is either going to say that, and therefore there's no relevance, or they're going to call somebody who's going to expand on the theory beyond any measure upon which it's been approved to explain that somehow this can give an account of what happened here for five days.

THE COURT: Have you ever seen a case where it's been applied, this testimony, to anything other than the people involved in the relationship?

MR. SANGER: I have never seen such a case. I have never seen such a case reported.

And let me just ask very quickly. Did you see a report of this?

MR. DUNKLE: No.

MR. SANGER: And Mr. Dunkle, who is religiously researching some of these things, particularly the last-minute motions, has tried to read every case there is on all of these things.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If the record could reflect, Mr. Dunkle shrugged his shoulders.

THE COURT: Clearly he said, “No.” Right? I heard him absolutely say, “No.”

MR. SANGER: I'm a battered defense attorney.

THE COURT: The way he was shrugging his shoulders was in fright. It was, “Don't ask me.”

(Laughter.)

MR. DUNKLE: That's correct.

MR. SANGER: As a battered defense attorney, I may not be able to hear him clearly. I guess that's --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: The point is, I just don't see how it can apply. If the Court has any other questions, I'll answer them. Otherwise, I'll submit it, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Two comments.

THE COURT: I'll let you make your two comments, but let me ask you the same question. Do you have any case where this has been allowed or used other than between the two parties and the typical domestic violence situation?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I don't have a reported case.

THE COURT: Do you have any unreported case?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Um --

THE COURT: Oh, you're not supposed to cite those, are you?

MR. SANGER: Rule of Court 977, but the delay answered the question.

THE COURT: You should have let him make his answer and then move to strike.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: But the bottom line -- one of my two important points is, number one, this is apples and oranges to Dr. Hochman, who would testify specifically about Janet Arvizo. This is not going to be testimony about Janet Arvizo.

THE COURT: No, I understand that.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: This is just general testimony. Mr. Hochman would testify about specifically Janet Arvizo and it's inadmissible for that purpose.

THE COURT: You're getting --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Putting that aside, I want to make that point, because it's not prejudicial to the defendant. It's not about the defendant. It's merely some information that the jury can use or not use. It's up to them. If they think it applies to this case, no problem. If they don't think it applies, they're the arbiters. So in terms of prejudice, really it's -- all it is is informing the jury of the truth about a certain syndrome.

Secondly, as far as this thing about perjury, I've never said that this gives her a pass to commit perjury. And Battered Women's Syndrome does not provide any exculpation of an individual who lies under oath except for the individual who lies about their mate. That is the one area, when they say, "He didn't beat me." When they say, "He didn't do anything." When they say, "He's a great guy. Oh, he's a good person. He's an honest person." When they say those things, that's where they do get a pass, and that's the only area. And that's what this witness would testify to. And that's why it's so -- it's so important and so probative in this case.

Thank you.

THE COURT: This is an area that has caused me a great deal of concern. Probably why I didn't rule on it initially, I wanted to hear all of the evidence before making the ruling.

And I think this type of evidence is valuable in domestic violence cases for jurors to help understand the dynamics of a particular relationship involving violence, but I'm not going to allow it in this case. It may or may not explain her -- or a person's conduct in a similar case, such as the J.C. Penney case, which was not a domestic violence case between her and her husband either, as this one is. And I think it would be a mistake for me to allow that type of evidence on what is a peripheral issue in this case, i.e., whether or not she told the truth in the Michael Jackson -- in the

J.C. Penney depositions.

The Court will also find, under 352, that in this case the prejudicial effect far outweighs the probative value of the information, in that the jury might well confuse the purpose of the testimony, which would be -- the only way I could see it at any time would be to explain the relationship of the abused and abusing couple.

And I also think that, under 352, to allow the evidence would force the defense to approach the abuse in a different area, a different way, which would cause an undue use of time and prolong the trial unduly.

So for all those reasons, the Court will deny the use of the expert on the Spousal Abuse Syndrome.

The next issue we'll take up is the plaintiff's supplemental motion for admission of additional evidence pursuant to Evidence Code Section 1108.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I'll be brief. I just want to correct a couple of misconceptions in the response by the defense to this motion.

Mr. Kassim was on the original witness list and has been since the beginning of this trial.

Secondly, the discovery with regard to Mr. Kassim's statement was provided, along with all the other materials, back in October of 2004 of the statements that he made to police in 1994 -- in 1994, in May, during the course of the first investigation involving Mr. Jackson. These have been known to the defense since that period of time.

With regard to the motion itself, I will indicate to the Court that he was not on the list of the 1108, because in my view, with regard to the observations that he made, as I've indicated in the brief, they were corroborative of the testimony of Mr. Chacon and did not involve the actual seeing of any misconduct on the part of any individual. And frankly, it didn't dawn on me that he couldn't just come in and testify to those events. However, when the Court asked me to do it and put it in writing and defer his testimony, I was more than glad to do so.

But this -- so this is not something that we're trying to bootstrap into something we didn't plan to do a long time ago. He's been on the witness list, items have been discovered, and so we filed a supplemental motion. And I believe that the evidence is probative and is admissible under the code section and certainly is -- sets a stage and corroborates the testimony of Mr. Chacon in terms of the fact of the defendant being with the children that were mentioned by Mr. Chacon, and the events as mentioned by Mr. Chacon, and then the corroboration of the incidents by finding the swimming trunks in the rest room when he went to turn the lights off immediately after the defendant went from that position to the house.

I'll answer any other questions that the Court has, but that was -- I wanted to explain those differences between our position and the defense's position on the factual issues in terms of what was and was not provided.

THE COURT: Okay. Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Yes, I don't know that there's -- that there is a dispute, nor did we intend to say there was a dispute about what Mr. Sneddon said.

All of the people that they could find in the Abdool, Chacon, McManus, Domz and Bagnall vs. Jackson case, the civil case, all of those plaintiffs were listed as potential witnesses in this case on the December 6th witness list, as I recall. If it wasn't that one, it was the one shortly thereafter. That was not our complaint.

Our complaint was that Abdool was not listed in the 1108 -- specific 1108 motion where the government spelled out what they intended to prove.

It has been and continues to be our contention that the government is required to turn over witness statements of witnesses who talk to the government, whether it's police officers or district attorneys. And our concern is that we had reports from 1994. We've had testimony, of course, from this Mr. Abdool in 1996 or .7, and that was involving the case I was involved in in representing Mr. Jackson, but we don't have any current reports.

And it's just hard to imagine that any of these witnesses -- and I'm taking just a moment, because this applies to other witnesses that will come up, that any of these witnesses from times gone by would just be called to the stand cold, without even so much as a reinterview. So that was our concern, so that was what we were trying to express.

And without anything new, and without anything by way of an offer in the original 1108, all we have now is the new offer, which is not based on declarations, as so many of these motions are. They're just things that are said in the motions, and the government wants to call Mr. Abdool for that.

This goes far afield. The Court was limiting the testimony under 1108, recognizing, I believe, that 1108 evidence can be very distracting to the jury for the same 352 reasons that we've discussed before, and the Court made an effort to limit it, my belief was, to people who saw some actual acts or purported to see some actual acts that would amount to actual evidence as opposed to circumstance and innuendo.

And not to go on about all the details of Mr. Abdool's testimony and whether or not it's been refuted by his own words, which I can indicate to the Court it has been, but aside from that, you're talking about a tangential witness to shore up another witness who has testified here, and we're turning the 1108 into more than it should be turned into.

This still remains a balancing act, and the Court has discharged that duty to balance by attempting to limit the 1108 testimony so the jury could hear what might be important to hear for the purposes set forth in 1108 and not to allow 1108 evidence to overtake the significance of the actual evidence in this case of guilt or innocence.

And so I think that expanding it any further would be a mistake, and I think it would be -- it would be harmful, be prejudicial, for all the reasons under 352, consumption of time, confusion to the jury, and prejudice to the defendant.

Thank you.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I just want to make one comment and I'll -- with regard to Mr. Sanger's position.

I think that the -- there's three incidents, and I tried to be specific about the incidents involved in the offer of proof. And clearly, my take on it, and has been from the beginning, that the first two incidents that really frankly involve relevancy issues more than anything else, and that they are like having multiple people see the same events and you're allowed to call people in to testify to certain portions of what they saw during the course of those events.

Clearly, I think the third incident is one that is more akin to the 1108 and 1101 kind of evidence that's been before the Court. But clearly, I think the first two incidents are ones that are more, in the sense, relevant because they corroborate Mr. Chacon as to significant events that he's testified to in this case.

And there's been a -- an attempt by the defense to claim that this evidence was fabricated based upon his involvement in later suing Mr. Jackson. And I think in fairness to Mr. Chacon, when there's a witness out there who can testify that he was also there that night and he also saw the same things that Mr. Chacon saw, in terms of the setting for the event and placing Mr. Jackson with the child at the time that Mr. Chacon says, that that's highly relevant evidence that this jury should be presented with.

So I think there's a difference in the basis for which the first two incidents would be admissible as opposed to the third.

And I'll submit it.

THE COURT: You know, I want to take a couple of minutes to read the briefs again on this. I'll take a five-minute recess.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: What department is this? Where are we?

(Laughter.)

THE BAILIFF: 8.

THE COURT: Okay. On this plaintiff's motion for admission of additional evidence pursuant to 1108 and 1101(b), I am going to deny the request to allow the -- what I'll refer to as the bedroom incident, which is your third incident.

I think I will allow the evidence relating to the -- what you call the bathroom incident, the swimming trunks. And the second one, the hug, that will be allowed under 1101.

Then the next item on the Court's agenda is the admissibility of certain testimony of several of the defense proposed witnesses.

I have a way of sort of streamlining this one. I can't tell how to rule without knowing why you would offer a certain witness in what regard. This is evidence that what you want to do is produce employees who will declare that they never saw Mr. Jackson touch a child inappropriately or something, you know, some type of evidence. And it's, generally speaking, negative evidence, you know. We can call a million people who never saw him do that. But if there's some way of advising me and the prosecution in advance that a particular witness was in a particular situation, it makes that not seeing something germane, then we have a different situation, right? Do you understand what I'm saying?

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: If you could give me the facts as to a -- I don't know, maybe it would be a situation where the District Attorney had a witness that said, "I saw such and such happen," and you had a witness that was there in the vicinity that didn't see such and such happen, then that becomes relevant.

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: Does my streamlining really work?

MR. SANGER: No, it didn't work, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: I'm here to prove that point.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: No, I understand what the Court's saying.

Certainly that streamlined version -- I think there's no question -- if they say at eleven o'clock in the morning on the 1st of whatever, somebody was standing outside the theater and something untoward happened, and we have an employee, for instance, who was working in that vicinity at eleven o'clock and was vigilant, and we can say he was looking around and he never saw any such thing happen on that particular day, clearly that's relevant. I mean, that wouldn't be a question. So to the extent it's streamlined to that extreme, I mean, obviously --

THE COURT: That's an extreme situation.

MR. SANGER: But I think that the kind of evidence that we are talking about is much more -- is much broader than that. There will be evidence of that sort. But there's also evidence of people who, for instance, worked at the park, the amusement park, saw children on a regular basis, saw Michael Jackson with children on a regular basis, some of whom saw the Arvizo children, some of them who did not see the Arvizo children, per se. They may have seen them, but they didn't see anything particular with regard to those children one way or another, but were able to say that they have seen Mr. Jackson on a regular basis with children and never seen him do anything inappropriate. There are also people who would say that they did not see children who were --

THE COURT: Do you think that's character testimony? Now you're having people testify to a trait of character. Do you want to put his character in issue for the trait of, you know, whatever?

MR. SANGER: Well, in essence, his character has been put in issue and that was part of what we briefed. 1108 evidence is -- the way 1108 is written and the way it's been interpreted, although we have thought -- I say "we." You know, the defense bar in general and a lot of legal scholars have thought that it really went overboard. It's been interpreted as propensity evidence. That's character evidence. If they're allowed to introduce some evidence of some events from 12, 13, 15 years ago for the purpose of showing propensity, which is what 1108 allows, we should be able to counter that by saying, no, there is no propensity.

And when they've been allowed to introduce evidence of children running amuck, this is not character as to Mr. Jackson, but you've heard the testimony elicited by the prosecution that there are children running amuck and totally unsupervised and out of control. Some witnesses say that. And other witnesses say, other than particular children, like the Arvizos, for instance, children were not running amuck, there was supervision, a certain amount of decorum. I think those are relevant. That's not character evidence as to Mr. Jackson. That is -- that is evidence that's directly offered to refute the evidence that was put in by the prosecution.

So if we take those two different categories and talk about those -- let's take the last one first. Let's assume -- let's assume we put on a witness who worked at the ranch in the public areas and saw children on a regular basis and said, "I've seen children on a regular basis there. I have not seen any children under the influence of alcohol. I had the opportunity to observe." Of course there could be a foundation objection. But assuming that there is a foundation, survives that, they have an opportunity to observe and they say, during the relevant time periods, "I saw dozens, hundreds of kids," whatever it is, "and nobody was under the influence," that's evidence we should be allowed to present, because it directly refutes evidence that was presented by the prosecution.

If we have evidence that -- so that's that category, and I think that's pretty simple.

If we have evidence with regard to Mr. Jackson behaving appropriately with children and providing -- you know, not doing anything inappropriate in his contact with them, that counters the 1108 evidence, the propensity evidence.

THE COURT: Well, I think what I'll do is I'll let you -- what I would do is let you, as to each witness - and we're not going to do it now, but either in through some written paragraph or through some offer of proof before they're called - tell me the basis, because I see some of those, but, you know, the example you just gave me, an employee who worked in the area of -- observed all these children, never saw any of them drinking, you know, if you had the ability and it was an area where they would be seen if they were drinking, you know, then I think I could -- I would go along with that employee. But, you know, if he's a ranch hand and comes in and out of the ranch occasionally and says he never saw anyone, we're starting to talk about people who wouldn't have an opportunity.

MR. SANGER: And that would be a foundation issue.

THE COURT: So I think I need a better -- and I would allow the D.A. to address each one, too. It's not just showing me, but -- the general scheme of things, there has to be something specific here to make it relevant. Just plain negative testimony isn't going to get it.

MR. SANGER: I understand.

So what the Court is saying, we have to show a foundation for the observation; that if the foundation is that there's adequate opportunity to observe and that it's relevant to the area or the time period.

THE COURT: Yeah. Something that makes the fact they didn't see it relevant.

MR. SANGER: Right.

THE COURT: Which is -- and I think your alcohol example is a good example of something that I would allow.

MR. SANGER: All right. And -- and I don't want to argue with the Court, and I'm not, but as far as --

THE COURT: And just like you're not supposed to talk over there by the witness stand, so you always remind yourself of that right before you start talking.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: That saves me from reminding you.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: It provides a warning, actually.

THE COURT: Yes. Could I go direct to contempt from there? Or -- go ahead.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: Well, I'm just a little concerned that we're sort of in the position of having to make an offer of proof on all these defense witnesses.

THE COURT: Just the ones relating to the negative testimony.

MR. SANGER: Yeah. And there may be -- I mean, we'll have witnesses who'll have percipient testimony on very particular things for which there would be no question. And they might also say something like that. It puts us in a position of just about every witness that worked at the ranch that we're going to call, because we're not going to call people that spent their entire time up at the administration building or over at the zoo --

THE COURT: I don't think it's burdensome to ask you to give me less than a paragraph. Just something.

MR. SANGER: Not overburdensome to me, but Mr. Dunkle, he's young, so he can take it. I say that facetiously. If the Court requires it, obviously we'll do it.

THE COURT: I think I do.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, can I have 30 seconds on this issue?

THE COURT: Well, I thought you were winning, but if you want to --

MR. SNEDDON: No, I'm winning, but I want to make something very clear that I think needs to be very clear on the record on this issue that may have not been clear from Mr. Sanger's remarks, but what's abundantly clear from the Court.

I couldn't agree more with the Court, and I couldn't agree more based upon the defense's own case, the Calpine case. That if they attempt to put people on the witness stand to testify to Mr. Jackson not -- not seeing Mr. Jackson molest some kid, that is opinion -- lay opinion testimony of character and opens the door for us to do the have-you-heards.

And I want to make it clear now, so that -- so they don't say I'm doing something different later, that's not -- that has nothing to do with 1101 or 1108. That's for everything that contests the credibility of that witness's lay opinion with regard to Mr. Jackson's character trait for deviancy or nondeviancy. And so I just want to make it clear today that if that's where they go, that's where we're going.

MR. SANGER: I want to make it clear that that's not clear, because what Mr. Sneddon said was lay opinion. If you bring somebody up to talk about an opinion, that's one thing. But if you say, "Did you see specific conduct during the relevant time period," that's not opinion as to character. And when we talked about 1108 being a type of character evidence, it is propensity evidence. It's not opinion.

THE COURT: It's not character evidence under the legislative approach.

MR. SANGER: That's correct.

THE COURT: It is propensity evidence, and it's an unusual statute, and California is one of the few states that has it. But it's been held constitutional, and we go by it.

MR. SANGER: And there it is.

THE COURT: But it's not character evidence.

MR. SANGER: I mean, I was speaking in general terms. When you respond to propensity evidence, which says there was conduct that occurred, and you respond by showing that there is conduct that is inconsistent with that, that is not a lay opinion that's offered as character evidence.

So Mr. Sneddon getting up making the remarks, it was welcome, because if there is any question --

THE COURT: I think he was responding to your -- you argued more broadly than I think you performed. In other words, you argued, “Well, Judge, 1108's character evidence, so we can put on character evidence.”

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: That's what you argued.

MR. SANGER: That's why I say, I welcome that, because when I was saying it, I didn't mean it --

THE COURT: I was just tipping you off, you know.

MR. SANGER: Well, there you go.

But in any event, just so we're clear --

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: -- Your Honor, it is not character evidence. This is our position. It's not character evidence to bring in specific acts.

THE COURT: You're telling me that you're not going to offer character evidence.

MR. SANGER: That's correct.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: And if we do, we will and we'll let you know. But what we're talking about here is not character evidence.

THE COURT: Now you're telling me you might offer character evidence.

MR. SANGER: Speaking as the -- as a member of a group, we have to decide at some point, and if -- in other words, to be serious about it --

THE COURT: I won't hold you to anything. Don't worry about that.

MR. SANGER: Okay. If we introduce character evidence, it will be of a different character.

THE COURT: I think the discussion just got way off track on the character evidence issue, and I think I probably started it.

Okay. The next item is the motion to quash the subpoena for Manuel Ramirez.

My thought on this is that I'm going to deny the motion to quash, but I'm going to ask the defense if they can accommodate this person. He's in the military. He needs to move on. Can you put him somewhere at the beginning of your case?

MR. SANGER: I had offered to do a conditional exam, and I say that's an offer. The prosecution opted to seek to quash first. I don't know that they would -- given the Court's ruling, that they would refuse to do a conditional exam, but that may be one way to take care of it. And we can talk about that. If that doesn't work, we will try to accommodate him.

THE COURT: Counsel, you're -- you stood up after I ruled.

MR. ZONEN: Actually, I was standing before, but I'll be happy to go sit down at this point, if you would like.

I'm not agreeable to a conditional exam.

They want to do that because they have no idea what this person's going to testify to. That's why they want to do a conditional exam.

He doesn't have any information on this particular case, and he was subpoenaed because he's the boyfriend of the victim's sister. That's all.

Now, if they want to put him at the very beginning and put him on the witness stand, they can do that. They won't. They're not going to call him as a witness in this case because they have no idea what he's going to say.

MR. SANGER: We do have an idea, and if Mr. Zonen tells us that this witness is not saying something, he's making a representation that he has a statement of a witness he hasn't turned over. I think it's rhetoric. But if it's more than rhetoric, I want that statement of this witness that he has nothing to say, because I believe, from all the evidence that we've presented, he does.

THE COURT: There appears to be evidence that he has something to say, and that's why I denied the motion to quash.

And now back to my question. Can we accommodate this young man somehow? He's in the military, we're holding up his transfer, and I would like to help him get on with his life in the Marine Corps -- is it the Marines?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: They won't let him go anywhere until this subpoena is taken care of.

MR. SANGER: I understand. We will talk.

There's a colonel who is representing him, and we will communicate with the colonel and see what we can do.

THE COURT: All right. The next one is the defendant's motion to admit evidence of alleged sexual conduct which, in accordance with the Penal Code, had been filed -- or Evidence Code had been filed under seal.

Who is going to speak first?

MS. YU: Thank you, Your Honor.

I didn't realize we can have a hearing on this, because I thought it was under seal.

THE COURT: It is under seal, and I've read the points and authorities. And if you have anything to say, you have to say it without --

MS. YU: The issue presented by this motion, Your Honor, is critical to the defense, because it really presents whether Gavin and Star are telling the truth when they say Mr. Jackson inappropriately touched Gavin or masturbated Gavin, because we're here to seek the truth. And the truth of the matter is that they themselves engaged in the very act that they are accusing Mr. Jackson of having committed. They themselves --

THE COURT: What I was trying to ask you when you interrupted me was not to mention the acts that --

MS. YU: I'm sorry. About the date in particular?

THE COURT: I just asked if you had any further legal argument on it. I know what's involved.

MS. YU: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Anything from the People?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

One thing that I think is very important for the Court to focus on in the analysis of whether to conduct a hearing, move forward under 782, is to make certain that we do not obviate the intent and purpose of 782 in the method in which we proceed.

One of the complications in this case at the present time is the fact that the victim has been cross-examined about this subject matter. The reason that's complicated is because if the victim answers in the affirmative, then the evidence comes in doing an end run around 782. In other words, 782 is obviated if the victim admits the conduct. If the victim denies the conduct, then the defense says, “Well, we want to get it in because we want to impeach him with this conduct,” irrespective of 782.

Now, the intent of 782 is specifically to allow this evidence in when the conduct itself is credible or deals with -- goes to the credibility of the victim in the case. Not to impeach him about some statement. But when that conduct impeaches the victim for purposes -- I shouldn't use the word “impeaches,” but when that conduct imputes the credibility of the victim by virtue of its relevancy, it has some similarity, some aspect that helps the jury understand whether or not this victim's being truthful.

Now, the cases on this which we've cited, the first one -- I don't know if we cited this case, but it's of course before we get to the next stage of 782, which is an open hearing, calling witnesses, that the defense has a burden to show affirmatively under oath the relevance of the complaining witness's ascribed sexual conduct and they must show that this is not evidence that's just designed to deprecate the character of the victim.

Secondly -- and that is People v. Rios at 161 Cal.App.3d 905.

Secondly, the case of People vs. Woodward, at 116 Cal.App.4 281, says that the conduct itself must be similar to the charged crime.

Now, I won't go into the facts, but I suggest to the Court that this is not similar conduct in terms of the actual act itself. There may be a similar description of events, but there is one that involves two people and one that involves one.

Finally, one case that we did cite for the Court is the Harlan case, which specifically states that this type of conduct is not relevant. It's not -- it doesn't go to the blameworthiness of the victim.

So going back to my original problem, if we look at the conduct itself that we're -- that the defense is trying to get in, under Harlan, the courts hold that that conduct, in and of itself, is not really relevant to the credibility of a victim in a child molest case. The reason it's not relevant is because it's common and it's something that could be ascribed to any child victim.

So if this conduct is not relevant, I suggest it would be unjust and unfair to let it in to impeach the victim's statement denying this conduct.

It's a little convoluted, but if you follow me, if we do that, if we say that the defense gets to cross-examine the victim about it, and the victim denies it, then the protections of 782 are completely obviated and the purpose is ignored.

So our point is, is that really the only way that they can get this evidence in is by showing that this type of conduct is sufficiently directly relevant to the facts of this case, even assuming it's true. And the case of Harlan specifically states that this type of -- this type of conduct does not pass muster and should not be admissible.

Thank you.

MS. YU: This conduct is relevant, Your Honor. It is relevant because Mr. Jackson is charged with masturbation, and that is the very act that deals with this particular motion. And it goes directly to the credibility as to whether they're telling the truth. Did they, in fact, do it themselves, or are they blaming now Mr. Jackson for the very act that he never did?

Star got on the stand and he -- he testified under oath that he looked at these adult materials outside the presence of Mr. Jackson, when in fact they looked at the adult materials, they looked at other explicit materials, and engaged in the very act that they're blaming Mr. Jackson for. It is credible to this case.

THE COURT: All right. Thanks.

Normally Evidence Code Section 782 does require a hearing outside the presence of the jury to determine what the complaining witness would say about that. But in this case, the complaining witness has already been questioned on the behavior, so the necessity of a 782 hearing is dissipated. We don't need one now.

I find that the evidence is relevant based on the -- particularly in view of the amended declaration as to the time frame, which I thought was critical to the relevance. So the evidence will be allowed.

Let's see, the next item is Mr. Jackson's request for clarification of the Court's order known to prosecution and unknown to defense.

The Court did provide you with a copy of the minute order of March 11th, 2005. And I don't want to hear argument on this.

MS. YU: Okay.

THE COURT: This is for my clarification. I don't see any need for it. But I have ordered that the defense may not attack Gavin's credibility with evidence that he maintained an e-mail account with the password "Sexy" on it. That's prohibited.

And the second one was -- stated that I would only permit the information that was submitted with respect to Rio's testimony, which was referred to as the male witness in the minute order. So that's -- that's -- I don't think any further clarification is necessary. It's -- is there?

MS. YU: I'm sorry? I apologize.

MR. MESEREAU: Is there any other clarification that's necessary?

MS. YU: No, Your Honor. I believe we're informed about the password. That was the only clarification.

THE COURT: They're all waving at you. So that takes care of the clarification.

MS. YU: We were seeking clarification as to Mr. Mesereau's cross-examination of Gavin on the e-mail account, as well as the passwords, because he did testify about the various passwords.

THE COURT: But I prohibited this area.

MS. YU: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. The next item was the plaintiff's memorandum regarding admissibility of evidence of criminal charges pending against witness Chris Carter.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, let me take this opportunity to indicate to the Court that Mr. Carter's attorney, Mr. Segal, is here - he's in the front row. Jeff Segal - and might want to address the Court with regard to his advice he's given his client with regard to this case. I will indicate to the Court that --

THE COURT: Counsel, if you'd like to come in.

MR. SEGAL: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Someone will give up a seat for you, I'm sure.

MR. ZONEN: Why don't you sit up here at the table.

MR. SNEDDON: I just want to indicate to the Court that the representations that have been made in the brief with regard to the fact, the key fact, one of the key facts, I think, in the Court's determination about how much can be brought before the jury in this particular case, Mr. Carter is testifying and he's testifying on his own, and he has not been promised anything at all with regard to his testimony.

MR. SANGER: Well, on that issue, the reported decisions are replete with cases where the representation was that there was no promise of leniency. And we've had very little time to respond to this, so I'll ask leave to do this off the cuff, but if the Court wanted some citations to the cases, I could certainly give them.

The cases are numerous where there has been no promise of leniency, or that's been the representation, and then when it comes time for sentencing, the witness later, in his own case, receives a lenient sentence. There are a number of habeas corpus cases where habeas corpus was granted based on that exact scenario.

I am not disputing at the moment what Mr. Sneddon has just said, but the fact of the matter is, that anybody who's facing both state and federal charges and very serious charges, bank robbery and robbery charges, may well have an inclination to please whatever government official comes before him.

And here we have the District Attorney of the entire County of Santa Barbara who is handling this case. There's no question this is a very high-profile, big case. There is no question that a person might believe that by cooperating with Mr. Sneddon in the case of the century de jour, which will be superseded, I'm sure, by some other case next week or next month, but right now that's the way it was perceived and it would be perceived to a witness like this, he may feel, by cooperating, that somehow this is going to redound to his benefit with other prosecutors.

We went back to the Gilio case, because that's sort of the root of all of this. The United States Supreme Court made it clear that the potential for influence of a witness's testimony is not up to the District Attorney to decide. It's up to the jury. And therefore, the defense should be allowed to explore that, to know about it. This is Gilio and that's the genesis of these cases. And the jury should be allowed to know about it so that they can evaluate whether or not there's any influence.

It's just -- even though this has already happened with Janet Arvizo, I mean, this is extremely unusual that the prosecution would come forward and say, “We want to avoid” -- “We want a witness to testify for us, but we want to prohibit the defense from fully confronting and cross-examining that witness.

And the Court has fashioned a remedy with regard to Janet Arvizo, which obviously was over objection, but this is beginning to add up, because following this motion, they've got yet another motion. They've got another witness they want to call who wants to take the Fifth and the jury's not supposed to know about it.

This is getting to be pretty weird, to put it in legal terms. All right? It's very, very unusual. It's gone beyond unusual to weird. I mean, you just cannot put a defendant in a position where the historic right to confront and cross-examine is being cut off or circumvented not only once, but twice and three times.

This particular situation is particularly egregious. I mean, we've got somebody who's charged with bank robbery, and, you know, this is -- this is not something that the defense should --

THE COURT: So what are you asking?

MR. SANGER: Well, I think if the witness is going to -- as we said with regard to Mrs. Arvizo, if the witness is going to be taking the Fifth, then their entire testimony is subject to being stricken. I know the Court has cited the Hecker case, and --

THE COURT: Well, I think that's a little different situation with Miss Arvizo.

MR. SANGER: Well, what I was going to say with regard to -- with regard to the cases -- and I don't know what the Court meant. Maybe I should find out what you just meant by that remark, if I may.

THE COURT: I think we're dealing with a little different situation here. But what did you want to say about the case?

MR. SANGER: I'm trying to guess what the Court is getting at.

What I was going to say was that this is a witness called by the prosecution. It's not a complaining witness. And maybe that's the distinction the Court was looking at.

THE COURT: (Nods head up and down.)

MR. SANGER: Okay. This is a witness they want to call. None of the cases that are cited by the prosecution really stand for the proposition that they're advancing. It is true that in the leading case that they cite, the defense sought to call a witness just to have the witness take the Fifth in front of the jury to gain that kind of impact. And that's not what we're talking about here. We're talking about the prosecution calling a witness and being immunized from confrontation.

One of the things Hecker said, and I'm not conceding this at all. I think if these witnesses, these two witnesses -- if we could address both at the same time, but certainly we can start with this one and equally it applies to Miss Montgomery. If they're going to take the Fifth, then they take the Fifth out of the presence of the jury and they go home, and that's it.

I would point out that Hecker said, which is the case the Court cited to us, that one of the remedies there, in a different situation admittedly, but one of the remedies there would be to allow somebody to take the Fifth and to have adverse comment made about that. Because again, it's -- as I argued in the Arvizo matter, these people are not stakeholders. And certainly these two witnesses we're now talking about are not stakeholders. If Miss Arvizo had any stake, it's the mother of a complaining witness, I mean maybe.

But these people have absolutely no stake, and their asserting the Fifth Amendment should not hurt them in their own affairs, if they were suing somebody or if they were being prosecuted and they're defending their own case, but there's no reason why they should be immunized from confrontation in this case, and there's no interest that they can assert --

THE COURT: Let's hear from his attorney.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you.

THE COURT: Would you state your name, please?

MR. SEGAL: Yes. Good afternoon. My name is Jeff Segal, and I represent Chris Carter.

Mr. Carter has no dog in this fight. If he is called by the People or by Mr. Jackson, he is prepared to testify truthfully, so long as he can do that without risking self-incrimination. He is charged with very serious crimes in Las Vegas. He denies that he was involved in committing those crimes. And the issue in all of those crimes is the identity of the perpetrator.

So I have instructed Mr. Carter to exercise his Fifth Amendment privilege with respect to any questioning about the alleged criminal actions in the State of Nevada, or anything that might tend to implicate him in any of those crimes.

With respect to whether he does that in front of the jury, or outside the presence of the jury, that's for the parties in this litigation to address. So long as Mr. Carter's rights are fully protected, you know, I have no other point to make on that issue.

So he is prepared to testify with respect to his knowledge and involvement with Mr. Jackson, but he cannot do that if it means self-incrimination. So he will be -- he will be asserting his Fifth Amendment privilege.

With respect to any agreement for leniency or expectation for leniency, I certainly don't have that expectation. There is no agreement with either Mr. Sneddon's office or with any of the prosecutors in Nevada. And I have no expectation that there would be any leniency down the road.

THE COURT: If he -- what if -- if he was asked the simple question whether or not charges are pending against him, in other words, not whether he committed them, but, "Is it true you're charged with" -- I don't know what it is, robbery, or whatever it is, in Nevada.

MR. SEGAL: Your Honor, I believe in an abundance of caution that he should not be required to answer even those questions. I think there may be another way to introduce that evidence before the jury, either by stipulation of the parties, or by the introduction of some kind of court record, but I would strongly prefer that Mr. Carter is not asked those questions, even that question, in front of the jury. I have no objection to that being admitted in court. I have no standing to object to that. But I would instruct him to exercise his Fifth Amendment privilege even as it relates to what crimes he's charged with in Nevada.

THE COURT: All right. Anything further by either side?

MR. SANGER: If I could just clarify one thing, just to say we object in Santa Barbara to analogies of dogs in fights, I think, but we might say no horse in this race.

However, there is a horse that this witness does have in this race, and he's charged with federal offenses. State offenses would be the same, but federal offenses in particular, the 5K1 downward departure is something that a person would argue if they came to sentencing, and there's no question that to be competent, as I'm sure Mr. Segal is, he would argue for a 5K1 downward departure under the United States sentencing guidelines. And the guidelines, as the Court is probably aware, have really been --

THE COURT: Held unconstitutional.

MR. SANGER: More or less. Under Booker and Fanfan, the two cases Booker and Fanfan, the guidelines have been opened up because they're found to be guidelines now, which was, actually, the title, as to opposed to actual requirements, and so therefore any kind of mitigation can be brought before the Court and would be brought before the Court. And I would actually expect Mr. Segal, as I believe he's the lawyer on the federal case --

Is that correct?

MR. SEGAL: In both cases.

MR. SANGER: In both cases, okay.

I would expect Mr. Segal, as a federal practitioner, unless he's confident he's just going to win the case, he'd be looking, as we all would in a case like that, to the consequences at the time of sentencing and would be looking to present evidence of mitigation.

So there is a horse in the race or a dog in the fight, if we take the analogy that was used by Mr. Segal, and we need to have the opportunity to confront this person in front of the jury if he's going to testify, and say, “Look, it's a fact that you know that you're -- that you're facing serious charges, and that's going to color your testimony, isn't it?” and go into that kind of a cross-examination with him.

Simply sanitizing it and saying, well, you can bring in evidence through a docket or something, or from some other witness that, yes, he's facing these charges doesn't do what cross-examination does. And the cases we cited before on cross-examination, it is a -- it is a very effective tool in getting to the heart of somebody's testimony and allowing the jury, the contemporaneous trier of fact, to see how that person performs and how things like that might affect their assessment of credibility.

So I'd submit as to this witness and also the other one, to save some time, if it does, that either they take the Fifth or they don't, which is certainly their right. But if they take the Fifth as to anything, then they should be precluded from testifying as to everything.

Thank you.

THE COURT: Anything further, Mr. Sneddon?

MR. SNEDDON: No. I guess my only comment would be -- I guess I shouldn't have said “No.” I should have said “Yes.”

I do have a brief comment, and my brief comment to the Court is, first of all, I haven't heard any reason why the two cases we cited, the Bento case, B-e-n-t-o, and the Dyer case, D-y-e-r, don't apply to this situation. And I just can't sit there and let it go unsaid that Mr. Jackson's not the first person in the world that's ever had a case where somebody comes in and claims the Fifth. That's why we have cases like this, and there's a lot of them on the dockets. And it's -- it's -- two of the three people were people associated with Mr. Jackson and we just happened to call them as witnesses. They're in our case, but they're associates of Mr. Jackson.

So I find it unfortunate that they have to do that, but I don't think that this -- this sin should be laid at our doorstep. It's just a fact that we have to bring to the Court's attention, because counsel representing those people have indicated in their representation of them they have to do it. It's that simple.

THE COURT: All right. What I'm going to do is allow him to testify, and I'm going to preclude the defense from inquiring into the circumstances of the crimes in Nevada for which Mr. Carter is charged.

I will allow, through some form, the fact that he is -- that he has those pending charges in Nevada and that he is incarcerated. How we tell the jury that I'm open to suggestion.

MR. SANGER: Could I address that issue?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I'll make it very simple, stop

Mr. Sanger from addressing the Court. I'll be willing to work out a stipulation with Mr. Sanger which would satisfy the Court. If we can't, then we'll come back to the Court.

MR. SANGER: I think we should be allowed to ask the question, not -- and not in an excessive fashion, but ask two or three direct questions to the witness, and he should -- if he wishes to take the Fifth, he should take the Fifth in front of the jury, and it should be subject to adverse comment under the Hecker case.

THE COURT: Well, I've already ruled that you're not to ask him any questions to force him to make a claim of the Fifth Amendment in front of the jury. And that suggestion that you turn around and do that flies in the face of the ruling I just made.

MR. SANGER: I apologize. I didn't understand that. So --

THE COURT: I'll give you an opportunity to work something out. If not, I'll do something, tell them myself personally.

I'll give you time. You can tell me Monday whether you've reached agreement on how he's -- how the jury is to be advised.

The next item is the -- shall we take up the other claim of privilege? That's the plaintiff's motion in limine to exclude evidence under the surrender flight. Is that --

MR. NICOLA: Should I bring the witness in, Your Honor, or would you like to hear argument first?

THE COURT: The witness isn't here? Maybe we should bring her. Is she close?

MR. NICOLA: She's right outside.

THE COURT: Okay. Let's have her come in.

MR. NICOLA: Should she take the stand, Your Honor?

THE COURT: No. Let's see here.

You're Miss Montgomery?

MS. MONTGOMERY: Right.

THE COURT: She's right there?

MR. NICOLA: She's right there.

THE COURT: Why don't you step forward, please.

You don't have counsel with you, do you?

MS. MONTGOMERY: No.

THE COURT: It's my understanding that -- well, before I state what my understanding is, do you wish -- I'll have counsel address me.

Do you want to address me on the issue?

MR. NICOLA: If I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: You can sit down for a second.

I'm sorry.

MR. NICOLA: We filed this motion with two alternatives. One is to preclude any mention of the November 20th, 2003, flight, because it's simply irrelevant. What happened on that flight and the conduct of anybody involved with that flight or thereafter is simply not relevant to any issue that Miss Montgomery will testify to or any other issue in this case.

And insofar as the defense has certainly made it a habit to bring things up in their cross-examination which are marginally relevant to attack credibility of witnesses, this is a particularly thorny issue, because Ms. Montgomery has, in fact, been advised by her attorney not to answer any questions with respect to conduct arising out of the November 20th surrender flight, as we've called it. And her attorney may have many reasons for that. To presume it's kind of guilty conscience or knowledge of guilt or anything adverse is not fair. And certainly the courts have said that's not a proper inference to draw.

With respect to perhaps drawing an analogy as to the previous motion the Court heard, we --

THE COURT: Would you -- would you come forward, please?

You know what I'd like to do, I don't know what instructions your counsel's given you, but what I would like to do is have you sworn and have you state under oath that you intend to invoke the Fifth Amendment so there's no question about what you're doing. That's the only reason.

MR. NICOLA: I appreciate that, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Would you swear the witness, please?

CYNTHIA C. MONTGOMERY

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please state and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Cynthia C. Montgomery, C-y-n-t-h-i-a, C., Montgomery, M-o-n-t-g-o-m-e-r-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

EXAMINATION

BY THE COURT:

Q. Miss Montgomery, if any questions were asked to you concerning the travel on charter jets and the booking of flights by Michael Jackson or Michael Jackson's companies, what would your answer be? Would you be claiming the Fifth Amendment?

MR. NICOLA: I don't think she understood the question, Your Honor.

Q. BY THE COURT: All right. I'm just asking you a general question. If you were questioned at all about arranging chartered flights for Michael Jackson or his company during the time period from, let's say, 2002 through 2004, would you claim the Fifth Amendment?

A. Um, only on November 20th of 2003.

Q. Only on that --

A. Correct.

Q. -- flight?

Is that the flight you were going to question her about?

MR. NICOLA: No. That's the flight that we wish to exclude from evidence under 352 and relevance.

THE COURT: Okay. That's the flight you're going to question her about?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor, and all the circumstances surrounding it, including the lawsuit, her cross-complaint against Mr. Jackson that she is litigating for money, and the fact that she came forward and offered to be an informant, a confidential informant, and brought forth a friend of hers who she offered as a confidential informant, who in fact was enlisted by the police to surreptitiously tape-record phone calls.

That kind of cooperation, that level of cooperation was, we believe, directly dictated by the fact that she's under federal investigation and engaged in a lawsuit surrounding the same facts both as a defendant and as a cross-complainant.

THE COURT: What's the -- what are you calling her for? What is the purpose of the testimony that you wish --

MR. NICOLA: Well, as a general proffer, Your Honor, Ms. Montgomery was the defendant's travel coordinator for a period of some time, during the relevant period of time. Say late 2002 through approximately September, she arranged private flights for Mr. Jackson. She's aware of the people that he flew with and continued to fly with after the conduct alleged in the 288 counts, which is circumstantial evidence of a continuing conspiracy.

She's going to offer testimony about Count 1, with respect to the Arvizos getting, through Mr. Schaffel, short-set one-way tickets to Brazil, with a date to leave of nearly immediately after the rebuttal video was filmed, things of that nature.

With respect to the November 20th, 2003, flight, we didn't intend to introduce at all or ask her any questions at all. And we understand that the existence of a civil lawsuit is certainly something that the defense can argue creates a bias within the witness as she testifies. However, the underlying facts of the lawsuit appear to be largely irrelevant.

It's almost like a witness -- mind you, there are no charges. She has not been charged. There's no evidence that she's being actively investigated, only that an investigation is being conducted. Under those circumstances, it's akin to asking a witness, “Isn't it true that you're being audited by the IRS?” And the implication there is that you violated some kind of federal tax statute. It's just simply not relevant.

MR. SANGER: Interesting. Because this actually is a progression along a continuum. Your Honor said the Janet Arvizo was different than Chris Carter, and Chris Carter is actually different than this, so I suppose this tests the hypothesis here.

In this particular case, Mr. Sneddon said two of the three witnesses -- I forgot what his words were. Two of the three witnesses are associates of Michael Jackson, something like that.

This witness is not in any sense an associate of Michael Jackson. She was in business for herself. But more importantly, Michael Jackson is the victim in her criminal activity. The FBI has an active investigation. They've interviewed people, and they've seized evidence indicating that Xtra Jet and Miss Montgomery have engaged in --

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, I'm going to object at this point. I don't think Mr. Sanger's doing this for anybody's benefit except for the people behind us. If he has --

MR. SANGER: That's absolutely not true, and if there's a legal objection --

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

MR. SANGER: All right. She -- they surreptitiously videotaped Michael Jackson and attempted to sell the tape, and that's how they got caught, and Michael Jackson is the victim of this person.

So we really have a continuum here of some sort, or maybe it comes back to a circle, depending on how you look at Janet Arvizo's activities. But certainly here he's -- he is a victim. And if Michael Jackson, the victim of this conduct of surreptitiously taping and attempting to sell that tape, if Mr. Jackson were convicted in this case with the help of Miss Montgomery, it would certainly help her in her civil case where she has filed a cross-complaint against Mr. Jackson.

Excuse me one second.

Yes.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: I mean, was that not clear? I'm sorry. I'm sorry, it's the end of the day. Mr. Mesereau is saying the Court understands that Mr. Jackson in the civil case is the plaintiff. I think I said this. And I think the Court knows it. He's the plaintiff.

THE COURT: I understand.

MR. SANGER: He has sued Xtra Jet. And she, Miss Montgomery, has cross-complained against Mr. Michael Jackson.

The point is, she has a big stake in the outcome of this case because it would directly impact her civil case and may or may not impact the underlying criminal case.

But all of that behavior on the part of Miss Montgomery and Xtra Jet also gives a tremendous amount of content and context, both content and context, to her activities in volunteering, going to the police, the sheriff here in Santa Barbara and volunteering that she had information. Her information that she offered was primarily hearsay, double or triple hearsay, and she offered to be helpful and she was considered to be a confidential informant for about eight or nine months.

The Court may remember that we complained that we didn't get discovery about Miss Montgomery and about Mr. Provencio that they had compiled in January, and we didn't get it until October or something. And the government got up and said, "Well, we didn't give that to you because they were confidential informants. We didn't want to tell you what they were doing."

They came forward, and she really didn't have much firsthand or anything firsthand, but she then got the government in contact with Mr. Provencio, who she continued to contact. And he eventually was told to tape-record conversations with other people, not with Mr. Jackson, so -- I don't think he knew Mr. Jackson. But that was -- that was being used, and in fact, they're seeking to call him as another witness in this case.

So I think we have to have the right to confront and cross-examine this woman on her bias. She's involved in litigation. And the underlying basis of the litigation is the illegal not only taping of Mr. Jackson as a celebrity and making him a victim of this, but attempting to sell that tape.

THE COURT: Well, the case is -- this is a different situation than the other two, as you pointed out. Each are distinctly different approaches. And the -- in this case, the Court's going to exclude the testimony entirely. I believe that the District Attorney has the ability to produce the evidence that she would testify to through other means, and the claim of the privilege here would be a total deprivation of the right to cross-examination.

So her testimony is ordered excluded based on her claim of privilege under the Fifth Amendment.

Let's see, we're through with our day. There's one motion left. I guess we could take that up Monday morning, unless everyone wants to meet tomorrow.

MR. SANGER: I think there are two.

THE COURT: Hold up your hand if you want to meet tomorrow.

My bailiff is holding up....

THE COURT: Oh, I skipped 9 and 10, too. I don't want to go on now because the court reporter has to do her daily transcript, and we're all -- I guess 9 and 10 --

MR. SANGER: I think there's 9, 10 and 12.

THE COURT: Yeah, on 9 we're going to have a longer hearing. I need more information on those documents. So I'm not -- I wouldn't -- that's not a short issue.

The admissibility of the state of Gavin's testimony by Chris Carter, if I could have resolved that by saying no, we wouldn't have had to deal with the Fifth Amendment problem. So you know my ruling on the admissibility of that statement is that he can give that evidence. But I think we'll take up the other issues on Monday, then.

All right. Court's in recess.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:35 p.m.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Let's see. There was an issue you wanted to address, Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes. Yes, please, Your Honor. Thank you.

Your Honor, I was informed by the prosecution this morning that they want to call Cindy Montgomery as a witness. As the Court may recall, the Court essentially disqualified Miss Montgomery last week because she's going to assert a Fifth Amendment privilege on certain issues related to a secret taping of Mr. Jackson on a plane.

The prosecution informed me this morning after I got to court that they have decided to grant her immunity. This is a surprise to the defense, and I was not prepared to examine her today. I have materials on Miss Montgomery that are not with me today, and it would be prejudicial to the defense for them to suddenly decide to immunize her and call her without us being aware of that.

The second issue, Your Honor, has to do with a witness named Hamid, who the prosecution intends to call today. We were given proper notice that he was to testify, but we were notified last night by Prosecutor Auchincloss that there is a tape of an interview that we have not heard and certainly have not had a chance to transcribe. So because we have not been able to do that, we'd request that Hamid not testify today.

I am told by Ms. Yu, who spoke to Mr. Auchincloss, that the tape is apparently not that lengthy, but we could not transcribe it in time, obviously, and I would need that for cross-examination. Based upon the information given to Ms. Yu by Mr. Auchincloss, there could be some significant information of value to us in that tape.

They're the two requests, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, I'll go ahead and address the Hamid issue first. Mr. Nicola will talk about Miss Montgomery.

Mr. Moslehi was interviewed on Saturday by myself and Detective Robel, and he gave us information on four points, basically that were summarized in four sentences, that I provided to the defense yesterday.

Detective Robel recorded that conversation on a digital recorder. He came back to Santa Maria yesterday and downloaded it and made a CD copy of that. And yesterday afternoon when he had finished that, we contacted the defense and tried to set up a meeting place where we could provide them with that tape. That didn't work out. It was -- the evening kind of became -- it became somewhat late and Miss Yu said she couldn't make it to deliver that document, or that tape. I also provided Mr. Sanger an e-mail with a copy of the four bullet points and

I told Miss Yu yesterday the substance of those four points. So that's where we stand.

Mr. Moslehi is a witness that -- probably our lengthiest witness today. So he was anticipated to take up most of the day. And I'll just say that the discovery was certainly timely in the fact that we turned it over as soon as we -- as soon as we obtained it.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. NICOLA: Good morning, Your Honor.

I filed a declaration, a motion for reconsideration, and had those documents served on the defense by fax on Friday morning, and we filed it with the Court Friday morning, as well, with respect to Ms. Montgomery.

And essentially in the declaration I believe I laid out that we received late notice on Wednesday that Ms. Montgomery would assert the Fifth on Friday -- or on Thursday, excuse me. We didn't have time to contact the U.S. Attorney and see their stance. On Thursday, after the Court's ruling, I was in touch with both Miss Montgomery's attorney and the U.S. Attorney. A decision was made at that time to offer use immunity for Miss Montgomery since she was claiming the Fifth. And upon hearing Thursday afternoon that everybody was okay with that, including the U.S. Attorney, I filed my motions as quickly as I could Friday morning. I know we faxed them to Mr. Sanger's office. I have no knowledge whether he received them or Mr. Mesereau did, but we did file it, and there is a proof of service on file.

MR. SANGER: I see that we have six pending matters and then I was handed some more material just this morning. So we just may need time to sort this out, Your Honor. I think we're all trying to do this as efficiently as possible.

On the Montgomery issue, we received sometime on Friday -- and I don't think it was in the morning. I didn't see it until the end of the day. Of course we were not in session, so it was sent to me. But there was a motion to grant her use immunity, which, as I understand it, is something that the People are going to have to apply to the Court for, and then the Court has to determine whether or not to grant it, and the witness has to decide whether or not to testify based on use immunity, because there's a question as to whether or not this Court can bind the U.S. Attorney.

I heard the prosecution just say something about being in contact with the U.S. Attorney, and my recollection is - and it may be faulty - that that was not concluded as of the time they filed their papers. The papers indicated that they were intending to make the motion, but there was no indication from the U.S. Attorney that they were going to abide by any grant of immunity that this Court made. So that is an issue that obviously needs to be heard, and there's several parts to it.

Our part, whether or not the Court grants immunity -- I mean, we're not here to argue one way or the other on a grant of immunity. The Court can do that based on other criteria.

The -- as far as the Hamid material is concerned, I did not get the four points. I believe Miss Yu got the four points just as of the end of the day last night. We got the tape or the interview just this morning, so obviously I don't know how long it is. If it's an hour long, we need an hour to listen to it. We have not heard his most recent interview.

So I -- I don't think that we can proceed with Mr. Moslehi without having an opportunity to hear the latest interview or, you know, take some other -- I think that's all we can do is hear it before he testifies.

I would indicate that, just so we're all on the same page, if I may, Your Honor, quickly, the other matters that are pending would be the Marc Schaffel matter, which I think the Court has. I was given some new material for Exhibit 420 by the prosecutor just this morning, at 8:30, which is one of the exhibits that we have objected to, and so there will need to be a hearing on all of that at some point. And I don't know if they intend to call him later today or tomorrow or when, but before he's called. That was a matter from last week that has been carried over, and we'll need to have a ruling on that.

And then we have the motion -- the People's motion to present the testimony of Alexander Manchester, to which we object, and we filed an objection on Friday.

And by the way, we filed our objection - I think the Court has it - on Thursday, on the first motion I addressed, which is the Schaffel exhibits.

We addressed just now the Cindy Montgomery issue of immunity.

The fourth one would be a motion by the prosecution to present testimony of Debbie Rowe. We filed an opposition -- that was received Thursday. We filed an opposition Friday. I take it the Court has that.

And then five, there was a motion for reconsideration of admitting some material the Court had excluded. That motion was filed on Thursday, and we filed our opposition on Friday.

And then the last thing is there was a proposed jury instruction on Chris Carter's taking the Fifth that we had discussed on Thursday. The Court had discussed that and said we should present something. We sent that to the District Attorney's Office on Friday for review and comment. We received no response. So we filed our proposed jury instruction this morning for the Court's consideration and I gave another copy to Mr. Auchincloss.

So I show those six matters as still pending, in addition to anything else that might come up here.

THE COURT: I didn't see the proposed jury instruction.

Did we get that?

I haven't seen it.

MR. SANGER: We wanted the prosecution to have an opportunity to respond, so we gave it to them on Friday. We just filed it this morning, and gave it to your secretary, Ms. Wagner, this morning, I think 15 minutes ago.

MR. SNEDDON: Judge, I wouldn't worry about it. Mr. Carter is not going to be testifying.

THE COURT: Okay. I won't worry about it.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: Five matters, then.

THE COURT: On the issue of the Attorney General, who spoke to the Attorney General on the use immunity?

MR. NICOLA: The U.S. Attorney's Office, Your Honor, and Cindy Montgomery?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. NICOLA: I spoke to them. They are not offering her use immunity. They didn't oppose us offering use immunity. Our contact with them is merely a formality between offices.

THE COURT: What rights does that give her with them?

MR. NICOLA: Well, I believe that a state court's grant of use immunity under the legal standard that we set forth in our brief covers her in federal court. They're not allowed to use her statements, her derivative evidence from that against them.

Her attorney is here today, and he would, of course, oppose her being compelled to testify on that very basis. But we served him as well with that motion. He won't contest that. I spoke to him this morning. And whatever the Court's ruling is with respect to that, then that's the Court's ruling.

THE COURT: Is he here right now?

MR. NICOLA: He is not.

MR. SNEDDON: He's upstairs.

MR. NICOLA: Shall I bring him down?

THE COURT: I think he should be here if we're discussing his client.

MR. NICOLA: Certainly.

It will be just a moment, Your Honor.

Your Honor, do you wish the witness to be in here as well?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, they are present.

THE COURT: All right. Just a second.

All right. On the testimony on Cindy Montgomery, is counsel for Miss Montgomery present?

MR. MOORE: Yes, I am, Your Honor. Bob Moore. Good morning.

THE COURT: Mr. Moore, the issue that I had talked to the District Attorney about before I realized you weren't in the courtroom was what the U.S. Attorney's position was on your client's use immunity through the state court.

MR. MOORE: I don't believe he's taken a position.

THE COURT: What's your position, then?

MR. MOORE: My position is if she testifies here, she's exposing herself to prosecution. I'm not saying a crime was committed or that she was involved in it, but she might say something that's incriminating.

THE COURT: Is there any protection under the federal court system once a use immunity is granted here?

MR. MOORE: The People have cited a couple of cases, which perhaps support that. However, I'm concerned about the language in the code, 1324. It says, and I quote, "The Court shall order the question answered or the evidence produced unless it finds that to do so would clearly -- would be clearly contrary to public interest or could subject the witness to a criminal prosecution in another jurisdiction." And I think that language is meaningful.

We have the federal jurisdiction. If a crime occurred, it may have occurred in Los Angeles County. It may have also occurred in Riverside County and in Las Vegas. And those are additional jurisdictions which have not been addressed.

THE COURT: Isn't the use immunity provision clear in terms of prosecution under California law? I mean, we're really one jurisdiction under California law. It's the federal jurisdiction that I would -- that I'm concerned about.

MR. MOORE: And so am I.

THE COURT: There's no federal statute similar to the California statute that covers this?

MR. MOORE: 1324, do you mean? I'm not sure, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Have you yourself discussed it with the U.S. Attorney's Office?

MR. MOORE: Yes, I spoke with him on Friday. And he took no position, which leads me to believe that there could be a prosecution down the road.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

MR. MOORE: Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. NICOLA: May I address the Court on that legal issue, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. NICOLA: May I borrow your brief?

MR. MOORE: Sure.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, I also left my -- the papers I filed on Friday upstairs. And Mr. Moore has allowed to let me use the one I faxed to him Friday.

Your Honor, we believe our authorities are directly on point with respect to this issue. The Supreme Court ruled quite some time ago that the Fifth Amendment privilege is of Constitutional significance, obviously. And immunity from prosecution for a witness who's compelled to testify under a grant of use immunity or derivative immunity or even transactional immunity transcends between the state courts and the federal courts. The case is absolutely clear about that issue. And when -- when the Supreme Court looked at the federal statutes, they analyzed them within the context of one jurisdiction granting use immunity to a witness who may further be subject to prosecution or an investigation in federal court. It was very specific to that. And congress has passed other statutes which are not inconsistent with California law.

With respect to the California courts, they've been following the Supreme Court line of cases now for quite some time. The case in particular was Nelson, and the fact pattern in Nelson is fairly identical to the one that we've -- we have confronting us in here; a witness believes that part of their activity with respect to what they may testify to could subject them to some kind of prosecution federally. And the Nelson court ruled that because of the Waterfront case, Murphy v. Waterfront, the issue has been well settled. The same kind of fact pattern, a witness in state court testifying to something they're worried about in federal court. And the Nelson court upheld the contempt order for those witnesses refusing to testify.

So we believe that we're on pretty firm ground here. And we'd request that the Court sign that use immunity order.

MR. MOORE: May I respond briefly, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MOORE: As I mentioned earlier, to the extent that if the crime occurred, it may have also occurred in the State of Nevada, which is a separate jurisdiction. And the code -- the language in the code says if you believe that the prospective witness could be exposed to prosecution in a different jurisdiction, that's a different jurisdiction. Federal court is a different jurisdiction. The People have cited cases that seem to indicate -- and they're somewhat old, but indicate that that immunity would be respected by the federal court. They cited nothing to say that the State of Nevada, if a crime occurred there, is bound by the immunity you might give her today. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Do you want to address the Nevada issue, Counsel?

MR. NICOLA: May I, Judge?

The United States Supreme Court authority is binding on every court in the country, whether it's in Nevada, Alaska or California. The Waterfront holding is good law and has been for, I believe, nearly 40 years. And part of the reasoning, the broad reasoning that the Supreme Court gave it back three or four decades ago - I forget the exact date of the publication of that opinion - was that to require every jurisdiction within the umbrella of the United States jurisprudence to grant use immunity before any prosecutorial agency could use the testimony of that witness in their case is unduly burdensome on government in its most legitimate function, which is the prevention of crime and justice.

So given that being the state of Supreme Court law in this country, we believe that Mr. Moore, if charges were filed against his client, based on anything she may say from this witness stand under compelled testimony by the Court, he should have no problem whatsoever avoiding that evidence from being used against her, if, in fact, it does incriminate her for something. That's all speculation, but we understand the statute invites a small amount of speculation with the Court.

We believe that your grant of use immunity compelling her to testify will preclude any jurisdiction, including Nevada, although I can't cite a case aside from the Supreme Court case that we cited previously, from using that testimony or any derivative evidence from that against her.

THE COURT: There's one area of the law that concerns me if I compel her to testify, and she testifies, and the law is that that testimony cannot be used against her, which I think that is what the law is.

What is the law in regards to impeachment in the federal court? If she testifies and testifies contradictory in a federal proceeding, is the testimony that was compelled here admissible for impeachment in substantive purposes against her?

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, my understanding of federal law is unless it's a voluntary statement, she can't be impeached in a federal court. It cannot be used against her in the federal court.

THE COURT: They can't hear you in the back.

MR. NICOLA: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I thought I was speaking up.

The use immunity -- the use immunity law essentially and intellectually merges all the courts. The Supreme Court fails to see the distinction between any jurisdiction. So essentially a grant of use immunity makes that -- that statement or any use of it, even impeachment purposes or getting a search warrant based on the statement that was given in court, completely untouchable. It cannot be used, period. It's not a voluntary statement. It's a compelled statement. And it's protected under the U.S. Constitution according to Waterford (sic). It cannot used against Miss Montgomery in any fashion, by anyone.

THE COURT: All right. Anything you want to add, Counsel?

MR. MOORE: I'm not sure that's an accurate statement. If she were to say something inconsistent, it could be used. It's my opinion. Perhaps I'm wrong, Your Honor.

THE COURT: What do you base your opinion on?

MR. MOORE: Well, I'm kind of shooting from the hip right now. It's a question I didn't expect. So I apologize.

THE COURT: That's called lack of authority.

MR. MOORE: Perhaps. No authority I can think of at the moment, though.

And with respect to counsel's statement earlier about the federal case law he cited governing all the states, what the case says, in Daly I think it was, it says that the testimony given in state -- compelled testimony given in state court cannot be used in a federal prosecution. That's what it says. Doesn't say it can't be used in a federal prosecution or in any other jurisdiction.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you.

MR. MOORE: Thank you.

THE COURT: Let's take up the motion to present testimony of Alexander Montague.

MR. MOORE: Just before I leave, Mr. Sanger has been kind enough to give me a case, Harris v. New York, that says that impeachment can be used.

THE COURT: Do you have a citation on that?

MR. MOORE: No. U.S. Supreme Court. I'm sorry.

THE COURT: That's the old Harris case.

(Laughter.)

MR. MOORE: Yes, Your Honor, the old Harris case.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MOORE: We all know it well.

THE COURT: Maybe you'd like to run out - we have a law library here - find it, and come back. I'll withhold any ruling until you find that.

MR. MOORE: I will do my best.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the motion is a motion by the People to present the testimony of Alexander Manchester. We've outlined in the brief what it is we expect that Mr. Manchester will be testifying to. The relevance deals with three specific aspects of his testimony.

First, he'll be testifying as to dozens and dozens of telephone calls that were made by the defendant to his child, this was back in, I believe, 1998 or 1999, I don't recall which, at the earliest stages of his becoming acquainted with this child. Telephone calls that were made all hours of the day, all hours of the night.

And that testimony is entirely consistent with the testimony of both Gavin Arvizo, his mother, about the telephone calls received by Gavin, as well as the testimony of June Chandler in terms of the level of obsessiveness with which the defendant pursued a relationship with her child, Jordan Chandler, back in 1993. In that regard, the testimony of Mr. Manchester is entirely corroborative of those three witnesses.

Secondly, he was prepared to testify to a visit that he had with Mr. Jackson at Neverland Ranch where he was in the theater and lost track of his child and Mr. Jackson, for an hour and a half he spent looking for his child, and eventually found the child up in Mr. Jackson's bedroom under circumstances outlined in the brief.

That, plus his statements to Mr. Jackson thereafter complaining about that particular event resulting in Mr. Manchester being threatened, physically threatened, physically confronted by a couple of Mr. Jackson's security people. And the notifying Mr. Jackson of that particular event certainly places Mr. Jackson on notice of the fact that staff at Neverland have been and continue to be vigilant in their protection of Mr. Jackson to the extent of using violence and threatening violence. Specifically, Mr. Manchester was threatened that harm could come to him and his family from fans in a manner that is entirely consistent with the threats that were given to Janet Arvizo.

We believe that those three specific areas of testimony are relevant for purposes of corroboration and are not so uniquely remote in time from the events that took place in this case, and are right on point in terms of the types of testimony given by a number of witnesses in this case.

Submit it.

MR. SANGER: We filed a brief response to this, but -- and I think we really covered it. I mean, the fact of the matter is that this is offered as 1101(b) evidence, not as 1108. It obviously could not come in under the Court's prior rulings on 1108. It is a big stretch on all of those points to say that this is conduct that would qualify under 1101(b). It is extremely remote in time. This is a witness who has been, in essence, clamoring to be a part of this case. And there are people like that, and they should be viewed with some distrust.

This man's child was interviewed and consistently denied that anything inappropriate had happened. There's no evidence that anything inappropriate had happened. And yet we have this man, who is a self-proclaimed, perhaps actually is some sort of royalty down the line, who just insists he wants to be a part of this case. And I don't think this qualifies under any stretch of the imagination. It's way too remote in time. Despite Mr. Zonen's rhetorical efforts to make it similar, it isn't similar. The fact that some security guard did something in 19 -- in the 1990s, and Mr. Jackson may or may not have been aware of it, doesn't mean that it can be used against Mr. Jackson in this case.

And it really comes down, in essence, to one thing. And I was almost just going to submit it without saying anything, but I want to --

THE COURT: But you just couldn't do that.

MR. SANGER: I couldn't do that. Now I'm trying to justify it.

THE COURT: I knew you couldn't do that.

MR. SANGER: Some of these last-minute motions share something in common, and that is sort of a desperation to come in and dirty up the case and make Mr. Jackson look bad as opposed to really bear on something that is actually relevant to this case.

The Court has now heard the testimony of Janet Arvizo and some of the other testimony that makes the story of the complaining witnesses in this case highly improbable, to say the least. And it just isn't right to allow the government to come in at the last minute and try to pull in strings on things that are not relevant and are not proper 1101(b) or 1108 evidence.

So I'll submit it on that, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: Mr. Manchester -- it's our desire that Mr. Manchester be a witness in this case. It's hardly Mr. Manchester's desire. He'd be happy to be left well enough alone. He has been on our witness list from day one. He was subject to an interview at the earliest stages of this investigation. And we're talking about within weeks after the execution of the search warrant at Neverland. This information has been turned over to the defense. It's been well over a year, probably closer to a year and a half, that they've had this information, or longer. We certainly indicated that we intended on calling him from the very earliest stages, if not just the investigation, but certainly the trial as well, and he was on our witness list from day one.

Now, this motion is being filed at this stage because it is corroborative of the testimony of other witnesses, and it was appropriate to wait and see how they testified before doing this, but nothing comes as a surprise. These materials and reports were turned over to the defense early on.

And it is corroborative of all of them. It is -- does come in as well under 1101, but also it is, under California's constitution, that all relevant evidence is admissible, and this is clearly relevant evidence. It's corroborative of each of the three different witnesses.

Submit it.

THE COURT: All right. The Court's going to deny the motion to introduce Alexander Manchester's testimony. It doesn't comply with my previous ruling that there had to be some connection of evidence of grooming activities with actual molestation, and there's no consistency in the other parts of it that would lead the Court to admit it under 1101. So that motion is denied.

The motion that -- on the admissibility of Gavin's statement to Chris Carter, that's no longer an issue, is it?

MR. SNEDDON: You ruled on that already, Your Honor. You ruled that it was admissible, but it's no longer an issue.

THE COURT: I think I said I intended to admit it at the end of the court day, didn't I?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: But I didn't want to rule out a statement from someone, or an argument if someone wanted to make it.

MR. SANGER: Chris Carter --

MR. SNEDDON: It's not necessary, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It's not necessary.

MR. SNEDDON: It's not at this point.

THE COURT: I just wanted to be sure. Okay. And the issue on the admissibility of the defendant's adult books from 1993 seizure, have you responded to that?

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir, we filed something on Friday on that.

THE COURT: Do you wish to add anything more to that? Either side?

MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry, was the Court addressing the prosecution?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. ZONEN: Only to the extent of saying that it is our recollection that the Court had indicated that the Court would reconsider the issue with regards to the .93 seizure subject to resolution of the 1108 motion. That, of course, has been resolved. These books were seized -- we are only asking to introduce two books of all the items that were seized during that period of time.

THE COURT: Where are those books?

MR. ZONEN: We have them here in Santa Maria. We could have them before the Court within an hour, if the Court would like to see them.

THE COURT: I'd like to see them.

MR. ZONEN: All right. We'll make arrangements to get them over here to you.

MR. SANGER: And, Your Honor, your comments suggest that you don't have the opposition in front of you. Could I give you --

THE COURT: I don't have it in front of me.

Thanks.

MR. SANGER: Let me just give you a copy.

THE COURT: I'm going to reserve ruling on that until I see the books.

The testimony of Debbie Rowe. Do you wish to be heard on that?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, very briefly.

The facts are outlined in the People's brief on that matter, but Miss Rowe had -- virtually at the same time that Miss Arvizo was submitting to a tape-recorded interview or videotaped interview for purposes of rehabilitating the damages to the defendant caused by the Bashir documentary, Miss Rowe was doing exactly the same thing. It was also a highly scripted interview that was being conducted. And there was the virtual identical incentive for her to do so, participate in the interview. And not just participate in the interview, but participate in the interview with enthusiasm was the suggestion in statement that she would be allowed to have visitation with her children. Something she did not have at that time. That was, in part, of course, an incentive for her to participate in that interview.

We believe that the fact that they used the same types of scripted questioning for purposes of conducting this interview, that her performance was the same level of over-the-top type of performance that we saw from Miss Arvizo, and the fact that the children were used as pawns to create that level of incentive is relevant in this case.

Submit it.

THE COURT: What about the fact that the defense raises that the Maury Povich footage has not been seen by the jury?

MR. ZONEN: Well, nor -- the Maury Povich tape is not relevant in this proceeding as having anything to do with her interview, except to the extent that segments of her interview are in it.

We're not planning on playing the Maury Povich interview. If we wish --

THE COURT: How does the jury understand the context of what you're presenting?

MR. ZONEN: Well, they have the -- we have the interview of Debbie Rowe separate. The entire interview was about three hours long. We haven't decided if we intend on playing all of it, any of it or none of it.

THE COURT: The interview by --

MR. ZONEN: The Ian Drew interview of Debbie Rowe, which was done at the same time. Marc Schaffel was present, Rudy Provencio was present. A number of the people who were involved in the interview with the Arvizo family were involved in this interview as well. And a number of them were present at that time, and there was discussions about what to do and how to do it. Many of them are witnesses to those events as well, including Debbie Rowe's attorney, Iris Finsilven.

But it's not necessary to play the Maury Povich film in that most of it has nothing to do with the Debbie Rowe interview. It's simply other information about Michael Jackson, his history, his life, his performances, his music, other people in his life, his father and allegations of abuse, things like that.

But there is a separate video of the entirety of the Debbie Rowe interview. Only segments of it were actually shown on the Maury Povich film. But we have the entire thing on video and are able to play the entire thing if it's appropriate to do so, if it's requested by either side, if the Court feels its appropriate. Or we could do it in segments, or we could do none of it and just have testimony about it. The interview is about three hours and two minutes, I believe, in its entirety.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: This, once again, is reaching.

First of all, Debbie Rowe gave up her parental rights, which is a totally different situation than we have here. There's an ongoing family law matter that persists, even as we speak today, in Los Angeles over this, over the relationship and her attempt to get some -- possibly some visitation or some other benefit from that.

However, we keep hearing "scripted performances," and there are no scripts. The only thing that has ever come up in this case, and will be clearly shown, if it isn't already, by the time we get through, is that there were questions that were written out in advance. And anybody that does any kind of an interview for television is going to script out questions in advance, just as lawyers script out questions or question areas before they get up and ask witnesses on the stand, so interviewers script out their questions. There's nothing untoward about that.

There was no scripted response to anything, despite Janet Arvizo's preposterous testimony on that. Everybody else will testify consistently with common sense that there was no script of answers. So it doesn't show a darned thing in that regard.

And as we pointed out, and the Court's already commented, the Maury Povich show is not in evidence. I don't think there's any way we can get it into evidence. We don't intend to offer it. And as a result, unless Debbie Rowe testifies, of course, so how is her performance on that tape relevant, as much as the prosecution would like to make it relevant. And I'm hearing they'd like to play parts of her tape, which just creates, under

352, if we even get to that point, if there is any probative value to this, it's far exceeded by the consumption of time, the confusion of the jury and the prejudicial effect. Because if they bring that in and they play even part of the Debbie Rowe tape, we'll play the three hours. There's no question that Debbie Rowe was spontaneous in her remarks, and it goes on and on. I think the Court saw the Maury

Povich part of it, where she even answers at one point, “Look,” and she uses some term that would not ordinarily be appropriate on television, kind of laughs about it, and says, “I just want to get to the point. Here's what it's all about.” That is her demeanor on the rest of that tape. She is giving an interview based on how she felt at the time.

However, if the Court allows the prosecution to get into this, besides playing the three-hour tape or a large portion of it - not as a threat, but because it will show the context of her answering questions in a very spontaneous fashion - we will have to get into this whole business with Ian Drew, and his fight with Marc Schaffel, and Marc Schaffel's fight with Ian Drew, and all these -- the -- all that surrounded this.

Debbie Rowe's on tape. In fact -- and she surreptitiously tape-recorded conversations that she had with Ian Drew that go on for hours where she is not upset at Michael Jackson, doesn't say anything bad about Michael Jackson as far as this -- the case is concerned. She says a few callous things, I might point out. But other than that, her focus is she doesn't like Marc Schaffel. And so she's fighting with -- or working with Ian Drew to fight about Marc Schaffel. All of this will come out to show -- it will have to come out because it shows the context in which she would be testifying here.

She has been extremely upset with Marc Schaffel for some other reason and has had an agenda that's clear on all of her taped remarks, including the ones she taped of herself talking. It's very clear that she has some agenda with regard to Marc Schaffel that has nothing whatsoever to do with Michael Jackson. She regards him as just being pretty much a victim in Marc Schaffel's machinations.

So if she's going to testify, we're going to have to bring that out. Again, it's not a threat. But I want the Court to understand the context.

There really is a tremendous amount of material, tape-recorded material, by Debbie Rowe and by others in the group that the prosecution is trying to present here which indicate that there are -- there are many other agendas on this case.

I don't know if you get to 352 because I just plain don't see the relevance, forgetting about the giant can of worms that it would open. I just don't see the relevance to these proceedings.

So I'd submit it, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, all of these people are interconnected in a number of different levels throughout this case. And the Court has been very good over the last number of months as we've proceeded through this trial in being able to separate what's relevant and what's not relevant and keep everybody on point, and on focus, and I think that we can do that in this case as well.

I mean, the fact is, is that she had a scripted interview that she gave. And part of the incentive for that interview was the suggestion that she would be able to have visitation with her children. Yes, it is true that some years ago, she gave up her parental rights. She had misgivings about doing that, particularly after this Indictment came down. She went back to court and was successful at reversing that decision. So her parental rights have been reinstated since then and now the litigation that they're involved in is compelling visitation with these children. To that extent, the children have been appointed counsel and that counsel has not yet had an opportunity to visit with them, to my understanding.

I don't see that that's an issue that would or necessarily should come into evidence in this particular case, except to the extent that she was promised visitation with her children if she did this video. That hasn't been given to her and is something she wanted to have. She did want to see those kids.

To that extent, it's one more example of how this group of people used children as a pawn to compel not just participation in these videos for Mr. Jackson's benefit, but an enthusiastic response as well.

Now, there will be obviously some level of questioning as to what's enthusiastic within reason, what's enthusiastic outside of reason. We expect that. But that's part of the give and take of the litigation process. We think that we can control, with fair measure, how far afield we go in terms of relationships between Schaffel and Ian Drew or any of the other people who are involved in this case. And at some point in time, some of these things become too collateral. And the Court has been very good at recognizing that and putting the kibosh on it, and I expect that will happen in this case as well.

I think that I've mentioned in the pleading, and it's worth mentioning again, her participation in this video was at the behest of Mr. Jackson personally. Initially she was contacted by Mr. Konitzer, one of the co-conspirators, but ultimately it was Mr. Jackson who made the initial phone call and brought her into this.

THE COURT: All right. I think we've argued every issue except the problem with the foundation of documents of Marc Schaffel, the ones seized from his office. On those, it seems to me that we have to sort of do admissibility on a case-by-case basis as the documents come up as opposed to -- some of the offers are made without evidentiary -- I mean, they're just that, they're offers without true evidentiary basis. I find it kind of hard just to go through and make rulings on all of them in advance.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, our primary foundation will be laid with the officers who seized those documents in Mr. Schaffel's home. And as I mentioned in our brief, I think that authentication will be sufficient when the Court looks at each document and considers where it was found.

As to putting on separate foundations for each document, those foundations are going to be primarily laid in terms of hearsay - certainly secondary evidence is really not an issue here - hearsay and relevance in light of the totality of the circumstances of the case, which the Court has before it. And most of those arguments will be -- will be handled in consideration of the evidence that is presently before the Court as to how they specifically are relevant.

THE COURT: Well, my example would be Exhibit 401, you say Rudy Provencio will verify the signature.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

THE COURT: Those are the kind of items that you say are going to happen.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And that's fair.

THE COURT: We don't know if they're going to happen.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: But there really are only a couple of witnesses left that will testify with any specificity about these documents. Mr. Provencio is one of them. So he's certainly one person who's going to figure in on these foundations.

So if you'd like --

THE COURT: I understand the basic seizure issue that you're raising, but that's not the -- you know, that just says they're seized legally. Now you have to prove the connection to the case.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Except for --

THE COURT: It seems to me that you're going to be able to do that, but I'm not going to rule in advance based on your representation that that's going to happen, that they're all admissible. It's like any other evidentiary issue. It's not till I hear the actual foundation and I hear the witness that I make that ruling.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes. Well, I guess I'm just preparing the Court for the fact that we have basically only -- I mean, the first foundation -- first foundational step is the one which we --

THE COURT: The seizure.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: -- is the seizure. And we'll go from there and deal with it piecemeal, if that's the Court's desires.

THE COURT: And that allows you to -- unless you want to address something separate from that.

MR. SANGER: Let me just address a little more of a generic concern that I have, because the way we saw this, and given the fact that the Court's of course very familiar with this case by now, but Your Honor has not had a chance to see everything that we've seen. Okay?

So I just want to share with the Court, my belief is that if the prosecution is allowed to start going down this road in front of the jury, that we're going to have a lot of wasted time and we're going to have some potentially prejudicial material get in front of the jury just to have the Court say there's no foundation. We understand that this stuff was by and large seized -- maybe all of it in this segment 400 to 420, was seized by law enforcement, in one form or another.

We're now told that there was a disk of hard copies as opposed to a disk of direct e-mails, but that was this morning. We'll take a look at that. But assuming for the moment that it was all seized from Mr. Schaffel's possessions somewhere, do we go to the point where we start marking things? We have somebody like Rudy Provencio giving a lot of testimony about his alleged connections with Mr. Schaffel, which would otherwise be irrelevant, only to find out that -- and I think it's -- it would be a fairly -- let's take a fairly easy ruling.

There's a Pendaflex file label that -- as I understand, it's a Pendaflex file label that says something like, “Fires Burning.” How in the world could that be admissible unless -- it's not admissible. I mean, it just doesn't make any sense that that would come in at all. That's hearsay. We don't know who made the file label. The fact it's in Mr. Schaffel's possession in an office that he shared with a number of people, so what? It just doesn't come in. But are we going to have testimony about that and spend a lot of time?

For the most part, and I think entirely really, these exhibits are based on that kind of speculation. It's stuff found in Mr. Schaffel's files in an office which the government knows was shared by a number of people during the relevant time period. So there's no way to authenticate it. And Rudy Provencio is apparently the person they're going to rely on. He's the person that volunteered to be an informant for the government, and tape-recorded conversations ad nauseam with all sorts of people that meant nothing, turned the tapes over to government. And one little thing they want to call him in here for is really speculation that somehow these documents, which he's not going to say he saw before, are probably legitimate because they came from Mr. Schaffel's stuff.

And I think if the Court has a chance to see that in the big picture, we save a lot of time by resolving it now. If the government had one or two or three things that they thought did not come within that category, then maybe we should hear that and we should focus on those. But I see this is taking quite a bit of time for no apparent reason. That's why we tried to address it up front.

Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Just one final remark. This case, the conspiracy case, the evidence of the conspiracy deals with words, just as in a drug case, the evidence in a drug case is the drugs. You find the drugs in the home of the individual, those drugs come in as evidence of the crime.

In a conspiracy, we're dealing with communications between the parties, with the knowledge that the individual parties have, the relationships between the parties, the various motives that may be pushing them forward through this conspiracy, and evidence of the criminal act itself. So that's where these documents come in.

And I don't think it's very genuine to say that we don't know whose documents these are. They're Mr. Schaffel's documents, found in his personal files, found with all his other files in his home, in his filing cabinet, in his office, and in his locked closet. So there's no issue as to whose records these are.

And we've gone through the records and taken out the ones that are relevant to this case showing the relationship between the parties, showing the evidence of the conspiracy and the communications, and the criminal acts themselves, the Arvizos, specific involvement with the Arvizos. So that's the nature of the relevance and where we're headed with all this evidence.

THE COURT: The attorney is not back yet on -- that was looking for the Harris case? Does anyone -- I'd like someone to communicate with him and have him come back in.

MR. SANGER: We could ask --

MR. SNEDDON: I'll take that responsibility, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: We won't fight over that. I was going to offer. But that's all right.

MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Nicola has gone to get him, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: We have found the citation, Your Honor, if the Court wants it.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MOORE: Yes.

THE COURT: Did you find your case?

MR. MOORE: I did. If the Court would like the citation, it is 401 U.S. 222. Would you like the lawyer's edition?

THE COURT: No, that's fine.

MR. MOORE: Thank you.

THE COURT: What's the --

MR. MOORE: What the case says -- and I apologize, a rather quick read, Your Honor -- but Ms. or Mr. Harris was not properly mirandized, and ultimately the decision is that the nonmirandized statements can't be used to convict, but they can be used to impeach. And I think that's the holding in the case.

THE COURT: Well, that's the underlying case that caused me to --

MR. MOORE: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: -- raise the issue.

But does the case go to the issue of immunity or is that just the --

MR. MOORE: It talks about Miranda.

THE COURT: Okay. That's -- all right.

Thank you.

MR. MOORE: Anything further, Your Honor?

THE COURT: No.

MR. MOORE: Thank you.

Does Your Honor want me to remain at counsel table, or --

THE COURT: Just for a moment.

MR. MOORE: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. The Court is going to grant the People's motion and grant the request for use immunity as to Cynthia Montgomery.

I do not know if I have the original document for signing of the use immunity that you provided but....

Do you have that, Lorna?

THE CLERK: No, I don't. Carrie has it.

MR. NICOLA: I believe Carrie has two copies, Your Honor. We'd request two original copies so that I may serve the United States Attorney in Los Angeles with that, so they're clear on that issue.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. NICOLA: I believe defense counsel also wanted to delay her testimony. I didn't hear the Court address that issue.

THE COURT: I don't think they did. They wanted to delay --

MR. SANGER: Mr. Moslehi.

THE COURT: -- Mr. Moslehi's testimony.

MR. MESEREAU: Also Miss Montgomery's, Your Honor. I didn't know she was even an issue. I didn't come here today prepared to examine her. If I could have a day --

THE COURT: They can't hear you.

MR. MESEREAU: If I could have just a day, Your Honor, I'd be prepared to do her tomorrow. I just didn't know it was even an issue.

THE COURT: They say they served you last week. They served me. Why didn't you --

MR. MESEREAU: I --

Did you get it?

MR. SANGER: We got it Friday at the end of the day.

MR. MESEREAU: I was not notified of it.

MR. SANGER: I got it Friday at the end of the day. That's all I can say. And --

THE COURT: So what witnesses are you prepared to go forward on?

MR. SNEDDON: We have Mr. Abdool here and ready to testify. He will be the first witness, Your Honor.

THE COURT: How long will that be?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm expecting direct examination to be in the neighborhood of a half hour, 40 minutes at the most.

After that, we intended to call Mr. Moslehi, and then we intended to call Cynthia Montgomery, and then we intended to put on the officers with regard to the search of the Schaffel residence and the items that they took. And we felt that would take the entire day and probably -- if probably not more than that, frankly, given we knew that the Court was going to have to spend some time on rulings today.

But at this point, clearly we have one witness here ready to go, and that's Mr. Abdool. And then the rest is contingent upon what -- the position that the Court takes on the defense request.

I should say we're also ready to go forward to get the officers here on the Schaffel search.

And we could do that during the time that Mr.

Abdool's on the stand. We were going to put them after the civilian witnesses, but we can get those people here, Your Honor. So -- and we would, obviously, if you told us. So that would -- those are the options available to the Court.

THE COURT: All right. Well, I think I will give the defense time that they have requested on both the witnesses so that they can hear the tape and prepare their examinations.

So I'll have Cynthia Montgomery testify tomorrow -- I mean, I'll put off her testimony one day, and the same with the other witness that you have the tape on.

MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Moslehi, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Mr. Moslehi. I'll put that off until tomorrow to give the defense time to review that.

So we'll go forward with Abdool and then the officers today.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. We'll get those officers in here, and --

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: This is our -- Counsel?

MR. MOORE: I was just going to inquire, Your Honor. Ms. Montgomery is up from Los Angeles and flew me up this morning. Can we get some sort of a time indication as to tomorrow? Would it be first off?

THE COURT: What would be most convenient for you - since I'm putting it over till tomorrow - to be first or later?

MS. MONTGOMERY: First thing tomorrow.

MR. MOORE: Most convenient would be to do it today, Your Honor. But not having that as a choice, first up tomorrow would be --

THE COURT: Can you accommodate him there?

MR. SNEDDON: I would say that's okay. We haven't checked with the other civilian witness, but we can do that.

THE COURT: Well, if you can't, let him know.

MR. SNEDDON: I will. I will check at the break. But as of right now, let's just assume that that is correct. We'll put her on first and Mr. Moslehi second. Okay?

THE COURT: All right. This is the normal time for our break. We'll take our break, and then we'll expect to have the jury in at....

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.
THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

THE COURT: (To the jury) Sorry to keep you all waiting back there, but we just had a lot of legal issues to take up this morning, and because of that, I'm not sure, but the day may be somewhat shortened.

Do you expect us to go the entire day today, or --

MR. SNEDDON: I would think -- I would think that would be probably not the case. But you never know.

THE COURT: Okay. That's what I thought. You never know.

MR. SNEDDON: I'd hate to raise somebody's expectations and then have them looking at me at 2:15 saying, "Why are we still here?"

THE COURT: I understand.

(To the jury) Some of the witnesses that were going to testify today I put off until tomorrow, is basically what we're dealing with. And so they're calling some witnesses that were going to appear later in the day, and we're not exactly sure how much time it will take.

MR. SNEDDON: I will say this, Your Honor. I think we're going to have a full week, though, from here on out.

THE COURT: Full week?

MR. SNEDDON: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right. Let me just -- so that -- before you start, let me just give you a ruling on the motion on -- I'll call it the motion regarding Rowe. That motion is granted. I will admit testimony in that case. I will look for ways to restrict the length of that testimony. We'll talk about that later.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. That would be fine, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: All right. You may call your next witness.

MR. SNEDDON: Kassim Abdool.

Mr. Abdool, would you come forward, please.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

KASSIM ABDOOL

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your first and last name.

THE WITNESS: My name is Kassim Abdool. K-a-s-s-i-m; A-b-d-o-o-l.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Abdool, I think you're going to have to scoot up as close as you possibly can to the microphone so everybody can hear you.

A. That okay.

Q. Sounds a little better. You have a very soft voice, so try to keep it up. Thank you. Mr. Abdool, you live in Lompoc; is that correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you're employed with the school district?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you at one time used to work at Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And from what period of time did you work at Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. .91, .92, .93.

Q. Do you recall when in .91 you came to work there?

A. No. It may be about the middle of the year. I'm just guessing.

Q. And do you recall when in 1993 or .94 was it that you left?

A. It was part of .94. In the middle of .94.

Q. When you worked at Neverland Valley Ranch, what were your -- what was your position there?
A. When I left or when I --
Q. No, during the time that you were employed at Neverland Valley Ranch, what was your position at the ranch? What were your job responsibilities?
A. To secure the ranch, to provide security for Mr. Jackson.
Q. So you were part of his security team?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you have a rank at that point in time?
A. I started off as a basic security guard and I went up to the head of security.
Q. What were the range of responsibilities that you had at the ranch during the time, let's say -- let's narrow it down now to 1993 and 1994, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. Were you the head of security at that point in time?
A. Just part of .93, I think. Maybe a few months.
Q. What were your responsibilities during .93 and .94?
A. To supervise, make sure the buildings are locked. Make sure whatever Mr. Jackson wants, to provide for him. Provide security for the guests. Sometimes they may need luggages to their units. We'd help with that. Make sure no intruders come on property. Those type of things.

Q. Now, what was the time -- during .93 and .94, what were the hours that you worked?
A. I think during most of my employment at the ranch, I worked the graveyard shift. Almost for all those years.
Q. And "graveyard shift" means -- what time do you come on and what time do you leave, generally?
A. Generally from about 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. I work most of the time that shift.
Q. Now, during the time that you worked at Neverland Valley Ranch, did you become acquainted with an individual by the name of Ralph Chacon?
A. Yes.

Q. In what capacity? How did you get to know Mr. Chacon?

A. He was also a security officer at the ranch. And he worked on the shift I worked on also.

Q. Did you know Mr. Chacon prior to the time that you came to work at Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. No, sir.

Q. And since the time that you left the employment of Neverland -- well, let me save that question for later, okay?

Was Mr. Chacon, to your knowledge, employed at the ranch during the same period of time that you were employed there?

A. Yes. I think he started working at the ranch maybe a couple of months after I started in .91.

Q. And was he working there during .93 and .94?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Part of .94?

A. Yes.

Q. During the time that you were employed in security for -- at Neverland Ranch, did you get to know a young child by the name of Jordan?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you know Jordan's last name?

A. Chandler.

Q. And did you see the child Jordan Chandler on the ranch on more than one occasion?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And can you give us an idea approximately how many times you saw him on the ranch?

A. He was there -- he was there for many times. I can't give a number of times.

Q. During the time that the child Jordan Chandler was on the ranch, was the defendant in this case, Mr. Jackson, on the ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the times that Mr. Jackson and the child Jordan Chandler were on the ranch, were the Chandler parents present on all occasions?

A. No, sir.

Q. How many occasions do you believe that Jordan Chandler, to your knowledge, was on the ranch with Mr. Jackson only?

A. Only?

Q. Yeah.

A. Maybe a couple times, I think. Two, three times. I'm talking about coming on the ranch with Mr. Jackson alone.

Q. So arriving with Mr. Jackson --

A. Yes.

Q. -- alone?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. During the time that you were on the ranch, could you describe -- well, when the child Jordan Chandler was on the ranch, did you have an opportunity to see him on a number of occasions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Could you describe his general behavior while he was on the ranch?

A. I don't think he ever spoke to me. He just kept, you know, a distance. I don't recall ever speaking to him.

Q. All right. Did you have an opportunity to -- to observe how he acted on the ranch?

A. Well --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you have -- do you have carts on the ranch?

A. Golf carts?

Q. Golf carts.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you have any problems with Mr. -- the child Chandler and the golf carts?

A. Yes. I remember one problem, yes.

Q. What was that?

A. I think he crashed it once.

Q. Were there any other occasions that you had problems with Mr. Chandler, the child Chandler?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; asked and answered.

THE WITNESS: No, I don't recall --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Overruled.

You may answer. Go ahead.

THE WITNESS: What's the question, sir?

MR. SNEDDON: Let me rephrase it.

Q. During the time that you had an opportunity to observe the child Jordan Chandler on the ranch, how would you describe his behavior?

A. Kind of wild. Kind of wild behavior. You know, driving -- driving wild a little bit.

Q. Anything else?

A. He would keep to himself. He would not associate with the security members or talk to them.

Q. During the time that you were employed at Neverland Ranch, did you meet a child by the name of Wade Robeson?

A. Yes, I know him.

Q. And during the time that you were at the ranch, did the child Wade Robeson visit the ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when he did, was Mr. Jackson on the ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And with regard to Mr. -- with regard to the child Wade Robeson, would you describe his behavior?

A. Same type of behavior. You know, driving around wild, but they would not have conversation with us.

Q. With regard to -- do you know a child by the name of Brett Barnes?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did the child Brett Barnes visit the ranch while you were there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. On more than one occasion?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was Mr. Jackson there on those occasions?

A. I don't recall all the occasions, but I know that Mr. Jackson was there when Brett Barnes was there, sir.

Q. Do you recall whether or not Brett Barnes' parents were always present when he was on the ranch with Mr. Jackson?

A. No, I don't recall that, sir.

Q. With regard to your capacity as security for Mr. Jackson at the ranch, were you given instructions with regard to how you were to interact with the children who misbehaved on the ranch?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don't understand your question.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Were there rules that were given to you as an employee at the ranch in terms of what you were or were not to do when children misbehaved at the ranch?

A. No, I don't recall rules.

Q. Were you given any -- can you tell us whether or not you were given any instructions as to what to do when somebody did something?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did something wrong.

THE COURT: Rephrase the question.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. I'll start all over again.

Q. Were there any instructions given to you during the time that you worked at the ranch as to what you were to do to try to control any children who got out of control at the ranch?

A. I don't recall instructions. I don't recall any instructions, sir.

Q. During the time that you were at the ranch, do you recall an incident that involved you and Mr. Chacon with regard to some French doors being left open?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer -- he did answer, “Yes.” Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Now, with regard to that particular night - okay? - did you see Mr. Jackson that night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you work the graveyard shift that night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was Mr. Chacon working with you that night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you recall approximately when it was you saw Mr. Jackson for the first time on that particular evening?

A. It would have been after 10:00, 10:15 or so.

Q. At some point that night did you see Mr. Jackson go to the Jacuzzi?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where is the Jacuzzi located?

A. The Jacuzzi's located outside the house, in the back of the house, near the swimming pool area. There's a barbeque area, and a Jacuzzi and a swimming pool area, and an arcade room on the other side.

Q. And when you saw Mr. Jackson going to the Jacuzzi area, was he alone or was he with somebody?

A. No, he was with the boy.

Q. What boy?

A. Jordie.

Q. And could you see how they were dressed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How were they dressed?

A. They were dressed with bathing -- you know, bathing pants. But they were bare back. And they had like bathing trunks. Pants that reached just above the knee.

Q. That went down to the knee?

A. Yeah, like loose-fitting pants.

Q. Do you recall where you were at the time that you saw Mr. Jackson and the child Jordan going towards the Jacuzzi?

A. I was --

Q. Where were you?

A. I was near the office area, somewhere closer to the back of the house.

Q. Now, at some point -- let me ask you this: At the time that you saw Mr. Jackson and the child Jordan walking towards the Jacuzzi, did you know where Ralph Chacon was situated or positioned?

A. I -- I had an idea where he was, but he was more in the barbeque area, I think.

Q. Was that his ordinary assignment?

A. Yeah. Normally they would go in that back area where no one could pretty much see them.

Q. What were the lighting conditions like at this particular point in time at night out around the swimming pool and the Jacuzzi?

A. It -- you know, like around the pool, you have these pool lights. Around the Jacuzzi, you have the Jacuzzi lights, and maybe some small lights in the flowers. I would say it would be like dim lighting.

Q. Now, at some point later, did you hear Mr. Jackson say something to someone?

A. Yes. Mr. Jackson called me.

Q. And did you respond to him?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. As a result of what Mr. Jackson told you, did you do something?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What did you do?

A. I went to the chef, his name is Bucky Black. Bucky.

Q. Okay.

A. I went to the chef. He was still on property that night, and I asked him to get two sodas for Mr. Jackson.

Q. All right. Did you take the sodas to Mr. Jackson or --

A. No, I did not take them.

Q. Now, later, when was the next time that you saw Mr. Jackson?

A. I saw Mr. Jackson going to the bathroom

area.

Q. What bathroom area are you talking about?

A. It's -- it's a bathroom maybe that's kind of joined -- you know, joined onto the arcade room.

Q. And when he was going to the bathroom area, was he alone or was he with someone?

A. I recollect he was with Jordie.

Q. And do you recall how they were dressed?

A. No. I don't recall exactly how they were dressed. My best recollection, they were in bathing trunks, but to be specific, no.

Q. And did you see them actually go into the rest room area or were they just walking towards that area?

A. I recall they were walking towards the rest room area.

Q. Now, at some point in time, did you see Mr. Jackson again later that evening?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where was he when you saw him?

A. He was near the back door of the main house. About -- about maybe five, eight yards or so from the back door.

Q. And was he alone or was he with somebody?

A. He was with Jordie.

Q. And where was Mr. Jackson in relationship to Jordie? Where was Jordan?

A. He was like piggybacking. You know, piggyback, when you put someone on your back.

Q. Who was on whose back?

A. Jordie was on Mr. Jackson's back.

Q. Do you recall what Mr. Jackson was wearing, if anything?

A. He was wearing -- he was bare back and he had a towel around his waist.

Q. And how about the child?

A. The child had like a towel-like robe, you know, like a bathrobe. Like, you know, it's towel material. It was thrown over him, over the child.

Q. And where were they when you first saw them?

A. I'd say five, eight yards from the back door.

Q. Okay. And did you see where they went?

A. They went into the house.

Q. And did you see or hear anything at that point in time?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What?

A. I heard the two locks on the back door, the screen door and the back door lock. You know, “clack,” when someone close it.

Q. Now, was that -- anything unusual about that?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What?

A. I never recall Mr. Jackson locking the house. We normally go and lock the house. We go and lock the theater, lock the game room when he goes to bed.

Q. So that's your responsibility?

A. Yes.

Q. And you're familiar with how that door locks?

A. Yes.

Q. And that there's a double -- that there's a double lock there to secure it?

A. It's not a double -- from my -- from what I remember, it was two doors, like a screen door and a solid door. And the two doors -- I heard the two doors, you know, lock.

Q. So it's not a double door -- double lock on one door. It's two doors that have separate locks, as you recall?

A. I don't know it had a double lock. I can't remember. But I remember it was two doors. That's my recollection.

Q. All right. And each had a lock?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Now, what I'd like to know is, from the point that you saw Mr. Jackson --

A. Yes, sir.

Q. -- walking towards the bathroom area that's attached to the arcade - okay? - with Jordan, to the time that you saw him later with Jordan on his back, just before he entered the door to the house - okay? - how much time had elapsed, approximately?

A. I would say maybe half an hour or so. Half an hour. That's an average. Could be a little bit more. But I would say half an hour.

Q. Now, after you saw Mr. Jackson and the child enter the house, and the door was -- the doors were locked - okay? - did you have an occasion where you went to the rest room area that you had -- that's attached to the arcade?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And why did you go there?

A. I was securing the arcade room and the rest room area, locking them up.

Q. And did you actually physically go into the rest room?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And when you went into the rest room, what did you see?

A. The lights were on, as far as I recollect.

Q. Okay.

A. And it's -- the ground is like -- I don't think it's like concrete. It's like cobblestone, you know, the blue cobblestone.

Q. Okay.

A. That's my recollection.

And the ground was wet, and there were two bathing pants on the ground close to each other.

Q. Now, were these the same trunks that you had seen Mr. Jackson and the child Jordan Chandler wearing?

A. Yes. It seemed to be the same trunks.

Q. And could you explain to the jury, where were the trunks in relationship to each other?

A. The trunks were like maybe about this far apart.

Q. You're indicating about --

A. About three --

Q. -- a foot and a half, three feet?

A. They were this far apart. Two feet apart.

Two, three feet. And they were near to -- closer to the door area when you walk in.
Q. Close to the front door, the entrance door?
A. Yeah. That's what I recollect, yeah.

Q. Did you notice anything with regard to the floor?
A. Yeah, the floor was wet.
Q. Now, I think in the beginning or earlier on in your testimony, you indicated that there was an incident about the French doors being unlocked - okay? - that particular evening where there was some French doors or some big doors that were unlocked?
A. Yeah, there were some doors unlocked in the house.
Q. Was this, again, part of your security routine, to check --
A. Check and secure, yes.
Q. Where are these doors located in terms of, if you were to walk through these doors, what room in the house would you be in?
A. If you walk -- if you were to walk through the ones that were open?
Q. Yes, sir.
A. You would come into a big living room area, and then there's a little corridor, and then Mr. Jackson's bedroom is right there.
Q. And with regard to these particular doors, how -- could you describe them to the jury?
A. They're like -- you know, like tall doors. Not regular - what would I say? - rectangular doors. They were like tall doors, like ten feet tall with an archway.

Q. Okay.
A. Huge doors. And they were -- so they had like bolts, you know, big bolts. I don't recall them having locks, these doors --
Q. Okay.
A. -- like the other doors that I found unlocked. And so you would probably have to climb up and, you know, bolt these heavy copper bolts into the frame, and to bolt the bottom. So each door -- if you have two doors opening like that, each door would have two bolts. One on top, one below.

Q. So you'd have to go inside the house to actually secure the house?

A. Yes, you have to go inside.

Q. And then you have to walk through of the house to get out of the house?

A. You have to walk through the house, yes.

Q. Was Mr. Chacon with you when you observed these to doors to be unlatched?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you give Mr. Chacon some instructions with regard to what you wanted him to do with these doors?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that?

A. I told him that we were going inside to secure the doors. We need to go in and lock them.

Q. And did he do that?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ask him on more than one occasion to do it?

A. I think a couple times, from what I remember, yeah.

Q. Did he say why he wouldn't do it?

A. He said he's not going in the house.

Q. Was that unusual for him to disobey an order from you?

A. Yeah. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recall any other occasion where he ever did that?

A. No.

Q. Now, with regard to the incident that you've just described for the ladies and gentlemen - okay? - the one with Jordan, the child Jordan Chandler, and the Jacuzzi and going into the arcade rest room - okay? --

A. Okay.

Q. -- do you have an idea of approximately when that occurred?

A. That would have been somewhere in the middle of .93 or so.

Q. Was Mr. Jackson, to your knowledge, just returning from some trip?

A. Oh, yeah, he had returned from a trip overseas.

Q. Do you know where?

A. No. He was on a tour, I guess.

Q. Where?

A. He was singing overseas and he came back. He was over there for a long time.

Q. Okay. Now, on the ranch during the time 1993 - okay? --

A. Okay.

Q. -- was there a thing called a Peter Pan display?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And where was the Peter Pan -- I can't even say it. Where was the Peter Pan display located?

A. It was in the back of the house outside Mr. Jackson's office. He had an office in the back of the house.

Q. Okay.

A. You know, a -- how would I describe -- you have the main house. You have a breezeway.

Q. Okay.

A. You have Mr. Jackson's office there.

And then on the other side, you have the arcade room, the swimming pool, the Jacuzzi, the barbeque area.

So the display, I don't recall if it was inside of the window or outside of the window, you know, but it was like on a short -- like a -- when you look in the window, it was like a lighting display. But it's been so long, I can't recall if it was inside of -- inside of the office or outside of the office.

Q. Now, on an occasion while you were working at Neverland Valley Ranch, did you see an incident occur involving the defendant Michael Jackson and the child Jordan Chandler?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And was this incident before or after the incident that you've described or the occasion which you described finding the swimming trunks basically next to each other in the rest room?

A. I don't recall, sir. I don't recall if it was before or after.

Q. All right. Now, on that particular day or on that particular occasion, did you see Mr. Jackson and the child Jordan Chandler together before you saw them at the display?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don't recall.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Where were --

A. Are you talking on this particular evening?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't recall if I saw them before I saw them at that time.

Q. Okay. And so, then, what would have been the first time you saw them?

A. It probably would have been when I came onto the night shift, so I would guess approximately after 10:00. 11:00, 12:00.

Q. All right.

A. It was pretty late in the night.

Q. And when you saw them at the Peter -- did you see them at the Peter Pan display?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, prior to them being at the Peter Pan display, did you see where they came from?

A. Okay. Yes.

Q. Where did they come from?

A. They had come down from the hill area, probably from where the theater was, and they drove down a small hill and drove in the back of the house. The back of the security area there's a garage, and then swung around, and that's where the Peter Pan display is. So they drove in the back of the house.

Q. You say they "drove." What were they driving?

A. As far as I remember, it was a small golf cart.
Q. And were they both in the same cart or in different carts?
A. My recollection, they were in the same cart.
Q. Now, at the time that you saw them in front of the Peter Pan display, could you tell us what you observed?

First of all, let me ask you this: Let's -- where was the child Jordan Chandler in relationship to Michael Jackson? Where were they positioned?
A. Jordan was standing in front of Mr. Jackson, and Mr. Jackson was standing behind him. You know, like if I'm standing here and someone is standing here, but we are both facing the same direction. They were looking at the -- at the display.
Q. And what did you observe about Mr. Jackson's conduct in relationship to the child at that time?
A. When I turned -- you know, I turned to walk away. I went to ask him a question. When I turned to walk away, and on the side, I saw Mr. Jackson giving him a little kiss on the side here, and he was kind of like hugging him. I just saw that maybe a couple seconds.
Q. And then you kept going?
A. Yeah, I kept going.
Q. You didn't watch what happened after that?
A. No.
Q. Now, was Mr. Chacon working that night?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Now, in May of 1994, you were subpoenaed to appear before the Los Angeles grand jury?
A. Yeah, okay. I think that's the time.
Q. You recall going down to Los Angeles?
A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you recall testifying in front of the grand jury?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You recall receiving a subpoena before you were to go down there?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And what was your attitude towards receiving the subpoena to go to the grand jury?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague; relevance.
MR. SNEDDON: Goes to his bias, Your Honor, his motive for testifying.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: You want me to answer?
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Yes.
A. I didn't want to go.
Q. Now, prior to going down to Los Angeles to testify, did you have a meeting with attorneys who represented Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And who were those attorneys?
A. It was Mr. Steve Cochran, Mr. Jackson's attorney. It was also a private investigator.
Q. And do you recall where that meeting occurred?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Where was that?
A. Mr. Bob Sanger's office in Santa Barbara.

Q. And at the time that you were at that meeting, did the attorneys for Mr. Jackson offer you certain services?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence. One attorney was mentioned.
MR. SNEDDON: Okay. I'll rephrase it if that's the problem.
Q. At the time that you met at Mr. Sanger's office with the private investigator and Mr. Steve Cochran, did he offer you services?
A. I don't recall. But he gave me some advice.
Q. Well, did you have a lawyer representing you at that time?
A. No, sir.
Q. Did they offer to represent you?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: He offered to be down with the grand jury if we needed advice, attorney.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Can you tell us --

A. I think -- I vaguely remember now that -- I think he remembered -- he offered, you know, to represent us, represent me.

Q. Do you recall whether or not you were ever offered any transportation down there?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Were you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever use Mr. Steve Cochran's services?

A. No, sir.

Q. Were you asked what you were going to say in front of the grand jury by Mr. Cochran?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you tell them?

A. I don't recall telling him, sir.

Q. Did you tell them what you were going to do?

A. I told him I was going to say what I know. I speak the truth.

Q. Now, between the time that you received the subpoena to appear before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury and the time that you actually testified at the Los Angeles -- before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury, did you receive a raise?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how much of a raise did you receive?

A. About a thousand dollars a month more. Or maybe a little bit more than that.

Q. Was this a proposal that you had made to them? Had you requested the raise?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And how long prior to the time that you went down to Los Angeles to testify had you requested that raise?

A. A few months. Couple months, maybe. I'm guessing. I -- it was before.

Q. Now, after you testified in front of the Los Angeles County Grand Jury, did you receive any threats?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: In what fashion? In what form did you receive threats?
Mr. Abdool, there's some water up there if you'd like some water. Take your time.
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What were the nature -- describe what threats you received.
A. People would call at home and threaten to kill me and my family. A lot of phone calls coming to the house.
Q. Was there always somebody on the other end of the line when you picked the phone up?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE WITNESS: They would stay on the line sometimes.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: They would stay on the line sometimes, yes. Just stay on the line.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you report these threats to law enforcement at the time that they occurred?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Mr. Abdool, do you know what the witness protection program is?
A. I know -- I heard about it. I don't know exactly what it entails.
Q. Did you ever request to be -- for you and your family to be put in the witness protection program?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; move to strike.
THE COURT: Stricken. It's leading.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: At any time did you ever request of law enforcement protection?

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And what did you request?

A. I requested to be put in that program, the witness protection program.

Q. Now, with regard to the -- with regard to the Neverland Valley Ranch, was there a change in terms of additional security people who were brought onto the ranch during the time that Mr. Jackson was under investigation back in 1993?

A. There was not a change. There was addition, some more people came on.

Q. And did you folks on the ranch have a name for those people, or was there a name that was associated with them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was that?

A. The OSS, Office of Special Services.

Q. Were they armed?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you armed?

A. No, sir.

Q. The regular security staff was not?

A. No, sir.

Q. How would you describe the atmosphere at the ranch with these people who are armed on the ranch?

A. It was very tense. I would say in the beginning -- you know, they were big people, and they were armed. And I've seen them drink on property, so you'd be concerned about your security on the ranch.

I also heard them make threats to people on the ranch.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

MR. SNEDDON: Well, that was going to be my next question.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.
THE COURT: Stricken. Next question.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Did you at any time ever hear them make threats to people on the ranch?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; move to strike.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And did they do that to you also?
A. Not directly, no.
Q. Okay. Did they do it indirectly or what you thought was indirectly?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. In what fashion?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection.
MR. SNEDDON: Oops. Sorry. I'll wait.
THE COURT: You said, “Objection.” I didn't hear your --
MR. MESEREAU: Leading and calls for speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: In what fashion?
MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.
THE COURT: That was your last question.
MR. SNEDDON: That --
THE COURT: Really, you have to take the last two questions to understand my ruling that you were leading.

MR. SNEDDON: I thought the first one was, but I didn't think the second would be, “In what fashion?” But I'll start over, Judge. That's no problem.
Q. You indicated that you thought that you had been intimidated indirectly. Could you describe for the jury in what fashion that occurred?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence, leading, and foundation, and calls for speculation.
THE COURT: I think what I'm asking you to do is to go back and form a foundation for the question you're asking before you ask in what fashion.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay.

Q. Were you ever indirectly intimidated on the ranch?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: You may answer. Were you ever indirectly intimidated on the ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And do you remember who the person or persons were that were involved?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who were they?

A. On couple occasions it was one person, and at other times it would be two, three of them, of the OSS officers.

Q. Could you describe in what manner you were indirectly intimidated by these people?

A. Are you saying things that they would say?

Q. You tell us. What was the nature of it?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation and hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I remember one of them, his name was Van Norman. He would say how they would beat people when they were overseas. You know, when they were on tour with Mr. Jackson, how they would beat people, and he knew a hit man in Europe.

And I remember once there was a fan at the front gate and he came down and put his gun and pointed it at her head. She was outside the gate.

And also --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; narrative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Was there any other indirect incidents directed directly at you?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. All right. What was that?

A. After I testified at the grand jury, when

I'm sitting in my office, they would just pass outside my office and just stare at me. They would not come in and talk to me. They would just walk past outside the door.
Q. Are there occasions they displayed their firearms to you?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Let's move on to another subject, if we can.
Were you involved in a civil lawsuit against Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And do you recall approximately when that lawsuit was filed?
A. .95, .96. Something around there.
Q. So this was at least a couple of years after your testimony, or at least one year after your testimony before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury?
A. Yes.
Q. During the course of the time that you were involved in that lawsuit, did you give a statement to the media?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And describe how that came about.
A. I think it was in the attorney's office.
Q. The attorney?
A. Our attorney's office, yes.

Q. Who's that?
A. Mr. Ring.
Q. Okay. And that's where the interview occurred?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And was it your idea to have the interview?
A. No, I don't think so. I don't recall that.
Q. Did you understand that as a result of the interview, that someone was going to pay someone some money?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you receive any of the money?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you understand how that money was going to be used?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. For what purpose?

A. To carry on the civil case.

Q. Against Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know who it was that set up that interview?

A. No, I don't recall.

Q. Now, one last question. Between the time that you received your subpoena to appear before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury - okay? --

A. Okay.

Q. -- and -- let me go back and start over again, okay?

You received a subpoena to appear before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, between the time that you received that subpoena and the time that you actually appeared before the grand jury to testify, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. We're talking about that time frame.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have a conversation with Mr. Chacon, Ralph Chacon, about what he saw the night that you found the swimming trunks side by side in the rest room?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did he tell you what he saw?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. SNEDDON: I haven't asked that yet. I'm sorry, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SNEDDON: Okay. No further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Abdool.

A. Good morning, sir.

Q. My name is Thomas Mesereau. I speak for Mr. Jackson.

A. Okay.

Q. If anything I ask you is unclear, if you don't understand it, please don't answer and just ask me, and I'll try and rephrase it, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Now, you told the prosecutor that on one occasion you met at Mr. Sanger's office in Santa Barbara, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told the prosecutor that present were Attorney Steve Cochran, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And an investigator, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you told the prosecutor that in response to questions asked of you by Mr. Cochran and the investigator, you said you would tell the truth, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. In your discussions with them, you told the truth, correct?

A. I don't recall having discussions with them.

Q. Well, you met at the office, true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Approximately how long was the meeting?

A. There were two meetings that day.

Q. Do you know when these meetings took place?

A. A date are you talking about? I don't recall the date.

Q. Okay. Do you recall approximately when those meetings took place?

A. It was just within a week before going to the grand jury.

Q. And do you know approximately when you went to the grand jury?

A. It was a Monday.
Q. Was it in 1993, do you think?
A. .90 -- early .94 maybe.
Q. Would it be approximately May of 1994, do you think?
A. Okay.
Q. And you met with Mr. Cochran and the investigator at some point before you testified before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury in May of 1994, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. How many meetings did you have with any representatives of Mr. Jackson before you testified before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury in May of 1994?
A. Two meetings.
Q. Okay.
A. Three. Three meetings.

Q. And you told the truth --
A. Yes.
Q. -- in all of your discussions at those meetings, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You told the truth about what you had observed at Neverland, right?
A. Yes, sir.
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object, Your Honor. Assumes facts not in evidence that he said anything to them.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: Move to strike.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In any of those three meetings, did you utter a word?
MR. SNEDDON: That's vague.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. SNEDDON: Object.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In any of those three meetings, did you speak?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you speak about what you had observed at Neverland?

A. I don't recall speaking about what I observed.
Q. Do you recall speaking about Mr. Jackson in those meetings?

A. No.
Q. Do you recall speaking about your employment at Neverland?
A. I don't recall, sir.
Q. Do you recall speaking about your background before you ever worked at Neverland?
A. I don't recall. I may have. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember signing a statement, Mr. Abdool, in one of those meetings?
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Do you recall signing a statement on January 13th, 1994?
A. No, sir.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I show you --
A. Sure.
Q. -- a statement?
May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Can I see it first, Counsel?
Okay. Thank you.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, it's a two-page statement. Could I request that the witness just read it to himself?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Yeah, okay.
MR. MESEREAU: There's another page, too.

THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Mr. Abdool, have you had a chance to look at and read that statement?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Does it refresh your recollection about what you signed?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And that is your signature on this statement, correct?

A. Yes, sir. Yes, sir.
Q. In fact, in the beginning of the statement, you corrected the spelling of your last name in your own handwriting, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You said you'd worked at Neverland Ranch since June of 1991, correct?
A. Okay.
Q. Is that approximately when you started work?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You said during your employment at the ranch, you worked in the security department and that you were currently working as a shift supervisor, right?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to the use of the reading of the statement into the record. It's hearsay and it's not used to refresh his recollection.

THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember signing a statement?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you remember what you said in the statement?
MR. SNEDDON: Well, vague as to -- he stated it's two pages long, so it's --
THE COURT: Do you mean outside of his having just read it now, or what?
MR. MESEREAU: Yes. Well --
THE COURT: You gave it to him to refresh his memory.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, I did.
Q. Does the statement you read refresh your recollection about the statement you signed?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Okay. And that is your signature on the statement, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You told representatives of Mr. Jackson that you'd never seen Mr. Jackson touch any child in a sexual manner or in any way that could be construed as sexual, correct?

A. That's what I wrote, yeah. I signed to that, yes.

Q. You said you'd never seen Mr. Jackson unclothed or in the company of unclothed children, correct?

A. Yes. I mean, when I say "unclothed," naked. If you have on pants, that's not unclothed.

Q. But you said you'd never seen Mr. Jackson unclothed or in the company of an unclothed child, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You said you'd seen Mr. Jackson play with children, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You said he plays as if he's a child himself, correct?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to reading the document into -- it's hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Cross-examination -- impeachment, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. MESEREAU: I believe on cross-examination --

THE COURT: Some is and some isn't. You're reading the whole thing, so you're not being very discerning in your impeachment.

MR. MESEREAU: Well, I'm not going to read the whole thing.

THE COURT: There was certain questions that he was asked that you can do that with. You're reading a lot more into it. You'd have to lay the foundation for each remark.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Do you remember signing a statement that discussed what you'd seen of Jordie Chandler at Neverland?

A. I remember signing a statement. I believe that statement that I signed was not at Mr. -- when I met with the attorneys. That was a statement that was prepared by the investigator in his handwriting. Yes, I did sign it.

Q. And you also corrected the statement before you signed it, true?

A. My name, I corrected it, yes.

Q. You said you'd never seen Mr. Jackson engage in anything sexual with Jordie Chandler, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you said that no one working at the ranch had ever complained about Mr. Jackson doing anything sexual with children, correct?

A. Right. No, that was before I went to the grand jury, before I think, before I met with Mr. -- in Mr. Sanger's office.

Q. The date was January 13th, 1994, right?

A. Right.

Q. Okay.

A. So that was about -- months before I think I went to the grand jury.

Q. You said you were the father of two children.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That you had no problem leaving them alone with Mr. Jackson, correct?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object to the question. It's hearsay. It's an improper use of the document.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At any time did you ever tell any representative of Mr. Jackson that you are the father of two children, ages 9 and 13, and you would have no problem leaving them alone with Mr. Jackson?

MR. SNEDDON: Same objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I probably did. I have no reason to say no.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you that portion of it?

A. If it's there, it's there, yeah.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Right. Okay. Yeah, I signed to that.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You've had a chance to look at that document?
A. Yeah, I've looked at it, sir.
Q. And you did make that statement, that you were the father of two children, 9 and 13, and they had both visited the ranch, right?

A. I signed it, the statement. It's not my writing. It's -- I didn't write that statement.
Q. But you signed it?
A. Yes.
Q. After correcting it, correct?
A. I corrected my spelling of my name. I didn't sign -- I didn't write that statement, sir. That's not my writing.
Q. Does your signature appear on both pages of that statement?
A. Yes, that's my signature. I signed that document.
Q. Okay. Now, the prosecutor alluded to a lawsuit that you and Ralph Chacon and Adrian McManus and others filed against Michael Jackson, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. In that lawsuit, you also sued the security guards that you called "the OSS," right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And one of the security guards you sued was James Van Norman, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. He's the fella you just testified to threatening you, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And that was the longest civil trial in the history of this courthouse in Santa Maria, California, right?

A. I don't know.
Q. It was a six-month trial, approximately, was it not?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And at the conclusion of that trial, Mr. Jackson prevailed, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you ended up with a judgment against you for $1,473,117.61, correct?
A. I don't know the figure, but that sounds correct.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the judgment?
A. It's fine. I accept it.
Q. All right. And the security guards that you sued also prevailed --
A. Yes.
Q. -- in that lawsuit, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And it's your understanding that Mr. Jackson won the case, was awarded costs, and was awarded all of his attorney's fees against you, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. Did you ever pay him any of that money?
A. No, sir.

Q. Do you know approximately when you filed that case?
A. I think maybe .95, 1995. I'm not sure.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the Complaint? It has a date of December 2nd, 1994. Does that sound correct?
A. Okay.
Q. You sued Mr. Jackson for many different claims, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You sued him for emotional distress, correct? Right?
A. If it says that. I don't recall all the complaints.
Q. Well, you said you'd been intimidated during your employment, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you testified in the case, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you testified that you had suffered emotional distress and various medical problems because of the way you were treated at Neverland, true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And your attorney was a gentleman named Mr. Ring, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. When did you first go to Mr. Ring to talk about suing Mr. Jackson and the security people of the ranch?

A. It would be after I -- we stopped work at the ranch. That's my recollection.

Q. And approximately when was that?

A. I don't recall, sir.

Q. Do you know the year you left your employment?

A. .94.

Q. Okay. Do you remember being disciplined while you were working at Neverland for stealing Mr. Jackson's gasoline?

A. For stealing Mr. Jackson's gasoline?

Q. Yes.

A. No, first time I -- no.

Q. You were counseled by a security chief named Mr. Wegner, spelled W-e-g-n-e-r, correct?

A. That's his -- yeah, that's the correct spelling.

Q. Do you remember being disciplined because you had filled your car up with Mr. Jackson's gasoline?

A. Mr. Jack -- where would I get his gasoline from to fill my car up? No.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection to show you that disciplinary report?

A. Sure. Yeah.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Okay. Yeah.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that disciplinary report?

A. Yes.

Q. Does it refresh your recollection about that issue?

A. Right. I remember that, yeah.

Q. Okay. A report was filed to that effect, correct?

A. Right. Right.

Q. That you had improperly filled your own vehicle with Mr. Jackson's gasoline.

A. No, not improperly fill my vehicle. I used my vehicle to go to -- I think to Solvang to run an errand, and I -- it was replaced for me, the three gallons of gasoline.

Q. Okay.

A. I remember that, yeah. I did not steal the man's gasoline. And that's why I refused to sign it, because I was having problem with the chief at that time.

Q. You were counseled on the violation, true?

A. Yes. I told you I went -- I used my vehicle and -- and --

Q. You were told a violation would be part of your permanent record of employment at Neverland, true?

A. I don't recall. Probably.

Q. Okay. There are gasoline pumps on the ranch, true?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Staff, particularly security staff, are not supposed to be filling their own vehicles with Mr. Jackson's gasoline, correct?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object as argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained. It's a foundational sustaining.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you know the policy on whether or not security staff are supposed to use Mr. Jackson's gasoline for their own personal use?

A. I don't know if there's a policy, but of course you can't use his gasoline for your personal use. And as I said, sir, I did not use it for my personal use.

Q. You're not supposed to fill your tank with it, correct?

A. I didn't fill my tank. I put, what, three gallons of gasoline. I vaguely remember that, yes, that happened.

Q. All right.

A. I'm not denying it.

Q. Were you ever disciplined on any other occasion that you recall?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Okay. Do you know one way or another whether you were disciplined on any other occasion?

A. I don't recall. That one he told me, it even surprised me. I had forgotten about it. It was a nonissue as far as I was concerned.

Q. Now, you claimed in your lawsuit that you had been disabled because of what happened to you at Neverland, true?

A. Disabled -- emotionally disabled, yes.

Q. Yes. And you obtained a number of what are called disability certificates from a physician because of your disability, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And did you apply for state disability; do you know?

A. What is state disability? I --

Q. Well, there are various ways to file for disability, correct?

A. Well, like unemployment?

Q. Or disability. You claimed that you could not work because of all the emotional problems you had resulting from your work at Neverland, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, excuse me, I'm going to object that the question is vague as to whether he's talking about -- I don't want to go any further, but it's vague as to what point in time or what document he's referring to.

MR. MESEREAU: I'm not referring to a document, Your Honor.
MR. SNEDDON: Well, then it's vague.
MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase.
Q. It was your position when you filed the lawsuit against Mr. Jackson and the security guards that you should get millions of dollars because you had been emotionally disabled, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. You claimed you were so distraught and depressed that you couldn't work, true?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you were actually examined by physicians in that regard, true?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And at one point an insurance company refused to pay you any benefits because they said you weren't disabled, right?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. It's hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember TIG Insurance concluding that you, Mr. Abdool, are not medically disabled?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object and I'm going to ask the Court to admonish counsel. That's the same question, and he just asked it with a new start to it.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. The jury in your civil suit completely rejected your claims that you were emotionally or medically damaged by anything at Neverland, true?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. And you never got the millions you were seeking, correct?
A. That's correct, sir.
Q. Do you know approximately when that suit ended?
A. I know it was five, six months. I don't have the date, no.
Q. Now, as head of security at Neverland, you were concerned about media people coming on the property, true?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And one of your jobs was to try and keep media people away from Mr. Jackson, right?
A. Keep anybody away from -- from the property, any intruders.
Q. But you were particularly concerned about tabloid-type people, correct?
A. I would say generally anyone, any type of intruder.
Q. But weren't you particularly concerned about media attempts to get to Mr. Jackson?
MR. SNEDDON: Object; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I -- we were concerned -- I was concerned with any intruder on the property.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. And would that include the media?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Would that include people who write for tabloids?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And was it your understanding that Mr. Jackson was very concerned about his privacy when it came to the media?
MR. SNEDDON: Lack of foundation; object.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, sir.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you still employed at Neverland when you first spoke to representatives of the media about Mr. Jackson?
A. No, sir.
Q. How long after you left your employment did you talk to representatives of the media about Mr. Jackson?
A. I don't recall, sir.
Q. You talked to somebody named Gary from an organization called Splash, correct?
A. Right.

Q. And it was your understanding that you would be quoted in a tabloid called The Star, right?

A. It wasn't me. It was the attorney's office.

Q. But your understanding was that you were going to be quoted in an article in a tabloid called The Star, right?

A. Okay, yes.

Q. And you were interviewed along with Ralph Chacon, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You were interviewed with Adrian McManus, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How many meetings did you have with that tabloid?

A. I think it was just one meeting.

Q. Okay. Do you know what they paid for the interview?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did you ever hear they paid $15,000 for that interview?

A. I probably did. I don't recall that exactly.

Q. And what you chose to do was rather than not put the money in your pocket, you chose to use it to fund your lawsuit against Mr. Jackson where you wanted to get millions, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Obviously, it turned out to be a poor investment, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Objection, Your Honor. Argumentative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Does July 31st, 1994, sound like the approximate time you stopped working at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. How long after you stopped working do you think you and Chacon and McManus got together and met with the attorney about filing a lawsuit?

MR. SNEDDON: Object; assumes facts not in evidence.
MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase it.
Q. Did you and Ralph Chacon and Adrian McManus at some point get together and decide to jointly file a lawsuit against Mr. Jackson?
A. I don't recall Adrian McManus. I recall Melanie Bagnall.
Q. Do you know who Adrian McManus is?
A. Yeah, she -- she probably came on at some time after we spoke. That's my recollection.
Q. And all of you sued the private security people that you called "the OSS," right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you all claim that these people had terrorized you and caused damages to you, right?

A. Yes, sir.
Q. And that claim, again, was rejected completely by the jury, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Who were the other people that you claim were causing severe distress to you and Ralph Chacon and the others who joined in your lawsuit?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to the question as compound with regard to "other people."
THE COURT: I'm not sure what you meant, Counsel.
MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase.
Q. You testified earlier that one of the things you were concerned about was private security guards of Mr. Jackson consuming alcohol, correct?
A. One of them I saw drinking alcohol.
Q. One individual?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And who was that?
A. Van Norman.
Q. Okay. And you also complained about someone carrying a firearm, correct?
A. I -- I don't recall specifically. I probably did.
Q. Well, you testified that you saw somebody point a firearm at a fan, correct?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And who was that?

A. Van Norman. That's my recollection.

Q. Now, you never complained to Mr. Jackson about Mr. Van Norman carrying a firearm, true?

A. No. Never.

Q. And you never complained to Mr. Jackson about Mr. Van Norman drinking alcohol, correct?

A. Never. No.

Q. And you never complained to Mr. Jackson about any of these private security guards threatening anyone, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And, in fact, you never complained to Mr. Jackson about any of them doing anything wrong at any time, true?

A. True.

Q. Did you, if you remember, sign a confidentiality agreement when you went to work at Neverland?

A. Yes, I think I recall -- I think I did one, yeah.

Q. And was it your belief that as a condition of your working at Neverland, that you were not supposed to take information about Mr. Jackson's life and exploit it in the media?

A. That's correct, sir.

Q. Yet, when you left your employment, that's exactly what you did, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you and Ralph Chacon discuss what tabloid you were going to sell a story to?

A. I don't recall, no.

Q. Did you ever get together with Adrian McManus and discuss what information you and she were going to sell to a tabloid about Mr. Jackson?

A. Oh, I don't think so. I think we just gave an interview and she spoke and I think I probably spoke, too.

Q. Did you learn that any of the information you sold had actually been printed about Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you learn that?

A. I recall -- I think I saw the tabloid. I think I saw it, yeah.

Q. Now, you actually hired a guy named Gary to be an agent to get more tabloid opportunities, correct?

A. Yes, we -- we used him as a broker or something like that.

Q. Yeah, he was a broker to go to various tabloids around the world to see if he could sell stories, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, to your knowledge, did Gary get a commission from whatever he brought in; do you know?

A. No.

Q. But you did this with the approval of your attorney, right?

A. I wouldn't use "approval." But he explained to us that we needed the money. So if you say "approval," yes.

Q. And part of the reason for doing all this was to put pressure on Mr. Jackson to settle that case and give you people money, right?

A. No. I don't think so, no. We needed the money. We had no money to go ahead with the case.

Q. The plan was to do what you could to make Mr. Jackson want to get rid of this case, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Object as asked and answered, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And you actually had your photograph taken by Gary, true?

A. I don't recall. But probably, yeah.

Q. And the purpose of the photograph was to have that photograph appear in tabloids, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, did you and the other plaintiffs in that civil case have a nickname that you used for yourselves?

A. No, I don't think so. I don't recall that.
Q. Well, did you ever call yourselves "The Neverland 5" or something like that?

A. No.
Q. Did you ever see an article with a name like that?
A. I've heard that, yeah.
Q. But that's not a nickname you people were using yourselves, correct?
A. No, I didn't give myself that name.
Q. Okay. You also gave interviews about Mr. Jackson in front of this courthouse, true?
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as vague as to when in time.
MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase it, Your Honor.
Q. Around the time you were pursuing your civil lawsuit against Mr. Jackson, you had to come to this courthouse from time to time, right?
A. Yes. Yes, sir.
Q. And you did give some interviews to reporters at this courthouse, right?
A. I vaguely remember I think I spoke to reporters outside, yes.
Q. Okay. And do you remember meeting with your broker in a lawyer's conference room in this courthouse?
A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. Do you remember meeting with Gary in a lawyer's conference room here when your photograph was taken?
A. No, I -- I would think that the photograph was taken in our attorney's office in Santa Barbara.

Q. Okay.
A. It may have. I don't recall, but I would think it was Santa Barbara.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you a --
A. No, it's fine.
Q. -- a page of your deposition?

A. It's fine. If I said it, I said it, yeah.
Q. You remember your deposition being taken in that case, true?
A. Yes.
Q. In fact, there are volumes of that deposition, right?
A. What I'm saying is, if it's there, then that's correct, but I couldn't recall.
Q. Now, the plan initially when you hired the broker named Gary was to put together a fund of money to pay costs in the litigation, correct?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And to your knowledge, that's what your lawyer spent that money on, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Okay. Do you remember what you were interviewed about by the tabloids?
A. No, it's been a long time. I don't recall.
Q. Do you remember being interviewed about Mr. Jackson's relationship with Lisa Marie Presley?

A. Specifically me, I don't recall that, no.
Q. Do you recall being there when Chacon and McManus were talking about that?
A. I don't --
MR. SNEDDON: Object as immaterial, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I don't specifically recall exactly what questions and answers were given, no. It's been over 13 years. I don't recall. But, yeah, there was an interview.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was Gary at the interview?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Who else was there, if you remember?
A. I think Melanie Bagnall, Ralph Chacon, myself, Adrian McManus. I'm not sure about Sandy Domz. I'm not sure.
Q. Okay.
A. I don't recall anymore.
Q. And do you remember you were quoted in an article entitled, "Kinky Sex Secrets of Michael and Lisa Marie's Bedroom?

A. I don't recall being quoted in that article. But if it's there, the article -- it may not be me saying it, but if it's there, if it's quoted there, it's quoted there.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you the title?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object. It's immaterial. He stated he didn't have anything to do with it. Lack of foundation. It's hearsay.

THE COURT: Well, I will let him refresh his recollection with it, but we'll take a break first.

MR. MESEREAU: All right.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Abdool, you described for the prosecutor what you say you observed of Mr. Jackson's behavior with Jordie Chandler, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Now, when you saw what you've described, you did not automatically call any police officer, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you were a former police officer yourself, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. You had been a police officer in -- was it Trinidad?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How long were you a police officer in Trinidad?

A. Three, four years or so.

Q. Okay. And you were trained to use firearms, et cetera, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at one point you carried a concealed weapon, right?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Were you carrying a concealed weapon during the time you worked at Neverland?

A. No, sir.

Q. Approximately when do you recall seeing Mr. Jackson with Jordie Chandler? Can you tell me approximately when you say you saw this?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object as to which occasion. Vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let's take the first occasion you described - okay? - dealing with the Jacuzzi, all right?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Approximately when do you think you saw that?

A. I can't give an exact date, but I recollect when he came back from overseas. So it would have been probably around the middle of .93 or so.

Q. Okay.

A. I'm just guessing. I --

Q. And you described another incident.

A. Yes.

Q. The prosecutor asked you about the Peter Pan statue, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And approximately when do you think that happened?

A. I don't recall, but it would be in that time frame, you know, maybe after. I don't recall.

Q. Okay. This is sometime in .93, do you think?

A. .92, .93, yes. It's difficult for me to give you a date.

Q. Now, are you familiar with a -- an event at Neverland called Family Day?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is Family Day at Neverland?

A. Family Day is when the employees are invited to bring their family.

Q. And you participated in Family Day with your family, correct?

A. Yes. On maybe two, three occasions, yeah.

Q. You participated on Family Day at Neverland with your family in 1994, didn't you?

A. I don't -- I think it was Appreciation Day. Employee Appreciation Day it was called.

Q. Okay. And you brought your family to Neverland in 1994 to participate in that, correct?

A. Yes. Yes, sir.

Q. This was after the events you claim you saw that you have just described?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you know someone named Sandy Domz?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Who is Sandy Domz?

A. Sandy Domz used to work at the ranch administration office.

Q. And did you work with her?

A. I worked on the ranch, but not with her.

Q. Was she working at the ranch while you were working at the ranch?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. And you and Sandy Domz met with a T.V. show called Inside Edition, did you not?

A. It's possible, yeah.

Q. Do you remember doing that?

A. I know we gave interviews. Maybe television, yes. It's been about 13 years.

Q. I'm sorry?

A. It's difficult to remember.

Q. She was the spokesperson for a group, that included you, that gave various interviews, right?

A. I don't recall, but that's probably correct, yeah. I'm not going to deny that.

Q. And one of them was with the T.V. show Inside Edition, right?

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'm going to object to the question. It calls for lack of foundation that he was -- that he was involved.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, he said he was involved.

MR. SNEDDON: Well --

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer. Do you want the last question read back?

THE WITNESS: Yes, please.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: What I'm saying is, if that's a fact, yes, I don't deny it. But I don't recall specifically Inside Edition or who. But I'm saying --

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You recall various T.V. shows, correct?

A. T.V. shows or T.V. show, or newspapers or newspaper, I don't -- yes. But I gave interviews or interview, yeah.

Q. And you and Sandy Domz split some of that money, right?

A. What's the word? "Sweat"?

Q. You and Sandy Domz split some of the money that you got from television, did you not?

A. No, sir.

Q. Did it all go to the attorney fund?

A. As far as I know.

Q. But Sandy Domz was not -- excuse me. Did Sandy Domz arrange these meetings or did they all go through Gary, to your knowledge?

A. I don't recall.

Q. Okay. All right. Do you remember meeting for several days with a book author named Gutierrez?

A. I met once with him. Not several. Just once.

Q. It was a long meeting, was it not?

A. Probably, yeah. Two, three hours.

Q. Now, these meetings with various representatives of the media, were they going on during the lawsuit?

A. I don't recall the specific one, but -- I gave interviews during the lawsuit, yes. I don't deny that.

Q. While you were doing this in 1994, you knew that security guards at the Jackson family home in Encino had gotten $100,000 for selling stories, correct?

A. No, I don't recall that.
Q. You never discussed that with your cohorts?
A. No. I may have. I don't recall. I don't recall that one, no.
Q. Okay. You've indicated you never spoke a word with Jordie Chandler, right?
A. Yeah. I mean, I may have said -- you know, he asked for something, but conversation-wise, I don't recall having any conversation with him.
Q. Did you ever see his mother at Neverland?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you see her on a number of occasions?
A. Yes, she's been there on a few occasions, yes.
Q. You said you worked with Ralph Chacon, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And how long did you work with Ralph Chacon?
A. I worked most of my time at the ranch on the graveyard shift. Ralph Chacon may have worked a substantial time, too, graveyard shift. But he was on another shift, also.
Q. Was he a friend of yours?
A. Yeah, we got along pretty good. I would say a friend, yeah.
Q. You mentioned someone named Brett Barnes, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you ever see relatives of Brett Barnes at Neverland?
A. I don't recall. Maybe --
Q. Do you recall his mother?
A. -- maybe yes; maybe no. I don't recall.
Q. Do you recall ever seeing his sister?
A. No, I don't recall.
Q. Okay.
A. I may have.

Q. Now, you indicated that you didn't know if there were any rules should a child get out of line, or wild, or anything like that. You said there were no rules that you were supposed to follow?

A. I recall there were no procedure if a child -- I don't recall anything like that.
Q. Well --
A. Of course, if they're doing something really bad, you know, you have to stop that, but --
Q. Well, you said Jordie Chandler crashed a golf cart at one point, right?
A. Yeah, I remember he hit the golf cart at one --
Q. Did you take care of him?
A. I think there was an accident report written. That's what I -- vaguely.
Q. Well, what did you consider your responsibilities as head of security to be?
A. To provide security for Mr. Jackson and his guests, you know, the property and so on. Make sure that intruders don't come on the property. That type of thing.
Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you if you had been head of security, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And you answered yes, right?
A. Yes. For the last part of my employment, yes.
Q. And how long a part of your employment were you head of security?

A. Maybe three months. Three months, four months.
Q. Three months?
A. Yeah.
Q. So that would be the last three months that you worked in 1994, right?
A. Yeah.
Q. Okay. So you became head of security long after you claim you saw Mr. Jackson act this way with Mr. Chandler, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And before you were head of security, what was your position?
A. I was a sergeant, supervisor of the -- of a shift.

Q. Now, you said that the Jacuzzi is located outside the house, right?

A. The one I'm talking about. Maybe there's one inside. I don't know.

Q. But there's one outside the house?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that in the back of the house?

A. It's in the back of the house.

Q. Okay. And what else do you see near the Jacuzzi in the back of the house?

A. There's the Jacuzzi. There is a large swimming pool. On the other side, there is a huge barbeque area with a roof, but it's not, you know, boarded, no sides.

Q. That Jacuzzi is in open view, right? It's not hidden by anything?

A. There's some little shrubs in that area. But it's not hidden, no.

Q. Yeah. It's a pretty open area, isn't it?

A. Pretty much, yes.

Q. And guards who are walking around Neverland or driving, can see it, correct?

A. No. If you're driving, you probably cannot see it.

Q. But if you're walking around, you can?

A. Well, how can I answer you? We were told not to go near Mr. Jackson and his guests, so we would not walk where he was.

Q. There are hills above, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You could actually look down, can't you?

A. If you look down with binoculars or so, you could probably see.

Q. And there are offices on the hill, true?

A. Not in that area, no.

Q. Which area are you talking about when you say “a hill”?

A. You said Jacuzzi?

Q. Yes.

A. In relation to the Jacuzzi, if you go way down, maybe 2-, 300 yards, in that area, there is the administration office, the gardeners.

Q. Right.

A. But they cannot see the Jacuzzi area.

Q. They can see the pool area, can't they?

A. No.

Q. Can't see it at all, even if they look?

A. Even if they look. Because the arcade and the trees in that area are going to be blocking that area.

Q. The pool area is a pretty wide open area, isn't it?

A. Yeah, but there's a big building blocking it. You can't see through.

Q. But guards do walk around, do they not?

A. Yes, when -- but not when we have guests and stuff. They don't want us walking around when they're swimming.

Q. Okay. But you stay there when guests are there because you're supposed to protect the guests, true?

A. Generally if guests are around there, you don't stay close where -- you know, to watch them. You would stay maybe like in the breezeway or in a dark area. But you don't -- you know, you don't go close to the guests.

Q. But part of your responsibility was to make sure that guests are properly treated, true?

A. Yes, but we were instructed not to have close contact with Mr. Jackson or his guests, to keep away, give them distance.

Q. Well, to observe what you say you observed, you would have had to get close to Mr. Jackson, true?

A. Are you talking about the Peter Pan display?

Q. Talking about the Jacuzzi.

A. Yeah. Well, he called me for a couple of drinks, for a couple of sodas.

Q. Right.

A. I was walking and he says, “Security, security.” So I went to him, and he said, “Can you bring two sodas?” And I spoke to the chef about it.

Q. Obviously, Mr. Jackson didn't seem to be afraid to have you see what he was doing.

A. I did not go near him. I was a distance when he asked me for the sodas.

Q. He called you, right?

A. He called me, that's correct.

Q. Okay. Now, typically how many hours would you work on a shift?

A. How many -- pardon me?

Q. How many hours would you work on a shift?

A. Areas?

Q. No, hours, time.

A. Hours. Eight hours. Maybe a little bit more if it's needed, if we're short.

Q. And at the time that you say Mr. Jackson locked his house, what shift were you working?

A. The night shift, the graveyard shift. I think it was from like 10:00 to 6:00 in the morning.

Q. 10:00 to 6:00 in the morning?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, how often did you work that graveyard shift?

A. I worked that graveyard shift, I'm just estimating, pretty much all my employment. I would say 75, 80 percent of my employment.

Q. And do you recall ever seeing Mr. Jackson outside in the evening?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever see Mr. Jackson walking late at night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Ever see Mr. Jackson driving late at night?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And you would sometimes see Mr. Jackson at 3:00 in the morning, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Because Mr. Jackson's known to be by himself sometimes at 3:00 in the morning, right?

A. I don't recall seeing him by himself three o'clock in the morning.

Q. He would take walks or he would drive, correct?

A. I don't recall him by himself at three o'clock in the morning.
Q. But you've seen him late at night on his property, true?
A. Not alone, but with guests.
Q. Have you seen him late at night on his property?
A. That's correct.
Q. Have you ever seen him driving on his property alone late at night?
A. No, I don't recall. But I really don't recall Mr. Jackson driving alone.
Q. And you've seen him with guests late at night, right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. 3:00 in the morning was not unusual at times, right?
A. I would say not unusual. That would be unusual. Hardly ever. Maybe all my employment I've seen him outside that time maybe two or three times or so.
Q. And, sir, he has gone back into his house late at night and locked it, hasn't he?
A. That evening, that night? Before?
Q. He has done that at various times when he goes out late at night, hasn't he?
A. I don't recall that, sir.
Q. Okay.

A. He may have, but I don't recall.
Q. But you didn't check every time he went out late at night to see if he locked the door when he went back into the house?
A. Yes, you have to check. You have to check the whole property to make sure the property is secured.
Q. But he routinely locks that door when he comes back in the wee hours of the morning, sir?
A. No. No, sir, I'm telling you.
Q. Okay.
A. I know that is a fact.

Q. So when he brings guests back into his house at 3:00 or 4:00 in the morning, he never locks it, is what you're saying.

A. Mr. Jackson doesn't lock the property, even his house. We walk around and lock the house.

Q. Sir, you didn't check every time he went back into his house late at night to see if it was locked?

MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object as argumentative and asked and answered.

MR. MESEREAU: All right.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, where is the Peter Pan display in relation to the house?

A. If you have the -- you have the house, the main house --

Q. Yes.

A. -- there's a breezeway. On like a big archway, there's Mr. Jackson's office. So the Peter Pan display would be if you're driving to the back of the house, and you come around to the side of Mr. Jackson's office --

Q. Uh-huh.

A. -- the Peter Pan display, as far as I can recall, would be on that window. So it would be to the back of the house. Would be 10, 15 yards or so.

Q. Okay. Now, you indicated you had requested a raise several months before you got one, right?

A. That's what I recollect, yeah.

Q. And you had requested a raise to a Mr. Bray, correct?

A. I remember requesting a raise to the administration. I'm not sure if it's directly to Mr. Bray, you know, but to the head of Mr. Jackson's company. I knew he had put Mr. Bray in there.

Q. I'm sorry.

You had complained that you were very underpaid, true?

A. Well, I said I should be paid the amount that the last chief of security was being paid. That's what I recollect.

Q. Right. And didn't you also complain that others were getting paid more than they should, like the private security guards?

A. I don't recollect that. I recall telling them that some officers were working for more money than some, and they should come up to be equal. So the new officers were making more money than the old officers we hired on. I think it's fair that they should get the same amount of money.
Q. Did you put the request in writing?
A. I recall so, yes. I vaguely recall that.
Q. And were you interviewed about that request?
A. By Mr. Bray, yes.
Q. Okay. Now, people in your security group did not like Mr. Jackson's private security people, did they?
A. I can't speak for everybody. But in the beginning, I got along with them in the beginning.
Q. But didn't a lot of tension develop between the two groups?
A. Yeah. It developed as time went on, yes.
Q. And your group would not travel with Mr. Jackson, right?
A. No. We were just security for the ranch.
Q. The other group would travel with him when he went on tour, right?
A. That's correct. That's my understanding.
Q. They would travel with him to various cities, correct?
A. That's my understanding, yes.
Q. And when they returned -- excuse me. When

Mr. Jackson returned, they would come with him, right?
A. No, that's the first time they came on property.
Q. Well, sometimes one or two would travel on a flight with him, correct?
A. I don't know. I've never been on a flight with him. But I'm talking about Neverland Valley Ranch.
Q. Right.

A. When Mr. Jackson came back in .93 or .94, that's the first time I've seen any one of his OSS officers there.

Q. But he had security people in the past when he went on tours, throughout his life, providing security for him?

A. That's my understanding, yes.

Q. Okay. And he's had security problems his whole career because he's so famous, right?

A. Yes, I know that.

Q. Now, you said Van Norman pointed a gun at a fan; is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you watch that?

A. Yes. He, like, put -- like through the gate.

Q. And you were upset with that?

A. I was frightened, you know.

Q. And never made a complaint to anybody?

A. No. Who can you complain to?

Q. Well, you're a former police officer. You could call the local police, couldn't you?

A. Yes, I could have. But in the conditions there, you can't talk. When you're in that ring of that employment, you don't talk.

Q. Where were you living at that time?

A. Lompoc.

Q. On one of your trips back or forth to Lompoc, you could have called a police officer, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, do you remember in your civil trial a tape was produced that you claim had some threats on it?

A. I vaguely remember. I remember there was a tape, yes.

Q. And it turned out to be a tape involving your son and some music. Do you remember that?

A. Could be, yeah.

Q. There was no threat at all, correct?

A. Probably, yeah. I don't recall, but it's fine.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. SNEDDON:

Q. Mr. Abdool, with regard to those occasions where you saw Mr. Jackson out at night at 3 a.m., was he with little boys on any of those occasions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Mesereau asked you why you didn't complain to Mr. Jackson about certain events that were happening on the ranch with regard to these OSS individuals. Do you recall those series of questions?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Why did you not complain to Mr. Jackson about that?

A. I felt they were more like attached to him, because he'd be talking with them and they would go meet him personally and talk to him. So I was -- I was scared to, you know, go to him and complain about the people who were close to him.

Q. Now, Mr. -- Mr. Mesereau asked you about this gasoline incident.

A. Yeah.

Q. And do you remember he showed you the form, it was December of .93?

A. Yeah. Okay.

Q. And was it after that point, after this incident where you wouldn't sign for having done anything wrong, that you became -- they promoted you to head of security?

A. Yes, sir.

May I explain about the gasoline?

Q. Pardon?

A. May I explain about the gasoline?

Q. If you'd like to.

A. Yeah. What happened, I remember going to work that evening, and I had very little gas in my car. And I ran an errand, you know, to somewhere in Solvang with my personal car. And when I came back, I put three gallons of gasoline to -- you know, for whatever I used, because I had very little gas to go home after.

And I told Mr. Wegner about it. I told him about it. I told him I took three gallons of gas. I didn't hide it. And, you know, we had -- in the ending, we had -- our relationship was not good.

Q. But in any case, after that incident they still promoted you?

A. To head of security, yes.

Q. Okay. Now, with regard to some timing issues here, were you still employed at the ranch at the time that you testified before the Los Angeles County Grand Jury?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Mr. Mesereau asked you a lot of questions about interviews that you gave and your participation in a joint interview with some -- with a magazine.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you ever say anything during those interviews that you said that was untrue?

A. I don't recall the interviews. It's hard -- it's 13 years ago. It's hard for me to recall what I said or what was -- what I was quoted as saying.

Q. Well, I'm not interested in what you were quoted, because we all know how we can be misquoted. But with regard to what you have said, would you have said anything that was untrue?

A. No, no.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Do you have a recollection of ever saying anything to any of those people, interviews, that was untrue?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE WITNESS: I --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance;

foundation; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: That means you can answer.

A. Can you say the question again?

THE COURT: He said, "No," so --

MR. SNEDDON: So just leave the answer in, Your Honor? That's fine.

Q. And lastly, since this case has been in the news - okay? - the present case --

A. The .9 --

Q. This case.

A. Okay.

Q. The current case against Mr. Jackson.

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And before you were subpoenaed to testify in this case, were you approached by members of the press to give interviews?

A. Within the last year and a half, yes.

Q. And were you offered substantial amounts of money to do that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: People have not talked money figure. They have come to my house. They have called me at work. They want to do interviews. They want to write books. Many reporters in the last year and a half have approached me.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Have you talked to any of them?

A. I pretty much chase them away. I tell them, "I don't want to talk about it. I don't want to get involved in this."

Q. And you're here today because you were subpoenaed to come, correct?

A. Yes, sir.

MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Mr. Abdool, you're subject to a gag order in this case, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. You're not allowed to talk to the media, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. You were informed of the gag order by the prosecution, correct?
A. Yeah. About two, three months ago, yes.
Q. Well --
A. I'm talking about before that.
Q. Well, even before that, you knew that you were a potential witness in the case, didn't you?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you first talk to any prosecutor about your testifying in the case?
A. Mr. Sneddon called me about three weeks ago, I think.
Q. Did you ever talk to any sheriff about this case?

A. No. No.
Q. Never gave interviews at all?
A. Yes, I talked to sheriffs long ago. 12, 13 years ago, I think.
Q. Okay.
A. But recently, no. Mr. Sneddon called me about three weeks ago. That's the first contact I had with the sheriffs.
Q. Did he tell you there was a gag order on the case?
A. The officer that serve me --
Q. Yes.
A. -- the subpoena at my house told me there was a gag order.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.
MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: We'll call as our next witness, Your Honor, Lieutenant Jeff Klapakis.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, you may be seated. You're still under oath.

JEFF KLAPAKIS

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

//

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Lieutenant Klapakis.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. You've previously testified that you were assigned to the case of People v. Michael Jackson as the lead investigator?

A. I was the lieutenant in charge of the case, yes.

Q. All right. And I think where I left off questioning you, I asked you if, in the month of January, 2004, you served a search warrant on the home of Frederic Marc Schaffel?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what day was that?

A. I believe it was January 31st, .04.

Q. Who was with you when you served that warrant?

A. I had several of my detectives, John McCammon, Craig Bonner, Vic Alvarez, Sergeant Robel. They arrived at differing times. I believe Sergeant Robel was doing something else and he arrived shortly thereafter. Paul Zelis.

Q. And were you directed by the Court to seize certain documents pursuant to that search warrant?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object to the Court directing him. He was permitted by the Court to do that.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It was an order is what it is.

THE COURT: Well, you're both right. Next question.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you. If I may approach, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Lieutenant Klapakis, I show you a notebook that is marked as original exhibits 400 to 420, F. Marc Schaffel files. Under the Tab 400, there appears to be a single page that says -- entitled, "Work Agreement with Neverland Valley Entertainment." Can you identify that document for me, please?

A. Yes, this is a document we found pursuant to that search warrant at Schaffel's house, and it's a work agreement between Michael Jackson --

MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. That's nonresponsive. Motion to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And this document is noted as Exhibit 400 on the first page; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Where was this document seized from?

A. It was found in a master bedroom closet in Mr. Schaffel's house.

Q. Okay. Was there any box or file cabinet, anything of that nature that you located that file in?

A. No, I believe it was loose in the closet.

Q. And now I show you Exhibit 401. It appears to be a four-page document; has Exhibit Tab 401 on the front page, and there appears to be a fax sheet on the front of that to Tom Byrne.

A. Yes.

Q. Can you identify that document for me, please?

A. Yes. This is a document I found in a locked closet within a guest bedroom of Mr. Schaffel's house. And it was in a filing cabinet.

Q. Okay. Was there anybody living in that guest bedroom?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: Calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: Move to strike the answer.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Did you see anybody else's personal belongings in that room?

A. No.

Q. And you said that the closet was locked. Tell me about that.

A. It was -- I believe it was a deadbolt lock on a closet in that bedroom.

Q. How did you get into the closet?

A. One of my detectives is familiar with how to pick locks, and he picked the lock.

Q. And tell me about the filing cabinet that it was seized from.

A. There were, I believe, seven filing cabinets in this closet. And I believe it was in the sixth filing cabinet, one of the drawers.

Q. And can you identify for me the nature of documents that were found in those filing cabinets along with this document?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. Calls for hearsay.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm asking for a generality.

MR. SANGER: Then it's vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Were you able to determine the identity of the individual whose documents were in those cabinets based upon the totality of everything that you searched? And maybe I'll back away from that and ask, first of all, did you have occasion to peruse the contents of those various file cabinets?

A. Yes.

Q. And was there any indicia of ownership located in those file cabinets?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Calls for a conclusion.
Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Was there anybody's name associated with the documents in those file cabinets?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Objection. Vague; calls for speculation; lack of foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you have any indication that those file cabinets belonged to anybody other than the owner of that home?
MR. SANGER: Objection, Your Honor. This calls for speculation. There's a lack of foundation proven. It's an opinion or conclusion.
THE COURT: Well, I'll sustain the objection.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.
Q. Did you know if -- could you tell, based upon your -- well, let me strike that.
Did you do a walk-through of that house?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you locate any other occupants?
A. No.
Q. Any occupants whatsoever?
A. The house was vacant. Not vacant, but nobody was there. Unoccupied. Excuse me.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you. I have no further questions.
MR. SANGER: I'll let you take your stuff.
May I proceed, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Okay. Now, first of all, you said something in response to a question about a search warrant. Your office applied for a search warrant, correct?
A. Several.
Q. Okay. We're talking about this particular case.
A. Then yes.
Q. And what date was the search warrant applied for?

A. I believe it was applied for on the same date.

Q. What date was that?

A. I believe it was January 31st, .04.

Q. And at that time, when you applied for the warrant, you understood you were asking the Court's permission to search a private area, right?

A. A residential home.

Q. Which would be a private -- otherwise a private area, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And that is not -- you were not -- let me withdraw that.

It was not your understanding that any court, on its own volition, told you you ought to go search this area; is that right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Calls for a legal conclusion.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I'm not quite sure I -- could you repeat the question?

MR. SANGER: Okay. Could we ask it be read back?

THE COURT: All right.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: If I understand your question correctly, did the Court ask us to go do this? The answer is no.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. As part of law enforcement, you decide where you want to go, you ask permission, and you either get it or you don't when you ask for a warrant, correct?

A. Yes. That's an easy way to say it, sure.

Q. All right. Now, when you searched the -- these premises, approximately how many documents were ultimately booked into evidence?

A. Do you want a guesstimate?

Q. Your best estimate, yes.

A. Hundreds.
Q. Thousands?
A. It's very possible there were thousands.
Q. Now, you're the lieutenant in charge of this investigation, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And therefore, your -- part of your responsibility is to know what is booked into evidence, correct?
A. That's pretty vague. I mean, it's -- I'm not going to know everything that -- on every document that goes in, no. The answer would be no.
Q. But you have a general idea of how many documents were seized in January, correct?
A. Generally? And I said hundreds, possibly a thousand.
Q. Hundred, possibly a thousand?
A. Yes.
Q. Were any other documents seized from Mr. Schaffel on any other occasions?
A. Yes.
Q. And how many documents were seized?
A. No, actually we seized -- I'm not sure we seized documents, but we seized computers on a different occasion.
Q. All right. And when was that?
A. I believe it was a few days afterwards. But again, I'm not sure. I wasn't present during that search.

Q. And your understanding, as the lieutenant in charge of this investigation, that the computers contained tens of thousands of documents?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Beyond the scope, and relevance.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Now, based on your role as the lieutenant in charge of this investigation, were you aware from your investigation that Mr. Schaffel had employed other people?
A. I'm aware that he worked with other people, yes. Whether they were employed by him, that --

Q. Were you aware from your investigation that other people had been given office space within Mr. Schaffel's house?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Foundation; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I'm aware that Mr. Schaffel also used his home as an office at times.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: And he had other people working for him there in his house?

A. I believe that they did work out of his home at times, yes.

MR. SANGER: There you go. Thank you. No further questions.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I have no further questions.

THE COURT: You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Call Detective Craig Bonner as our next witness.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, you may be seated. You're still under oath.

CRAIG BONNER

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Detective Bonner.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Before I begin asking you about some files regarding a search warrant, I'm going to cover a couple of other items.

Pursuant to your -- you previously testified you're a detective in the People v. Jackson case, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And pursuant to your investigation, were you asked to compare a sheriff's office item number, a tape, Item No. 817, with a Court Exhibit No. 827?

This would be a phone call that has been admitted into evidence referred to as the "Frank/Janet phone call."
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you compare those items as to their similarity or identical -- the identical information on those two -- I shouldn't say documents. I believe they're two tapes, right? Or CDs?
A. That's correct. Well, the original is a tape. The exhibit is a CD.
Q. Okay. So the S.O. No. 817 is a tape that was seized pursuant to this case?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you compared that with the Court CD, Item No. 827?
A. That's correct.
Q. Are they one and the same, as far as the -- as far as the voices and information that's on those two audio medias?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. Same question for Sheriff's Office Item No. 818, and Court Exhibit No. 828, which is the Miller interview of the Arvizo family. Did you compare those two items?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Again, was 818 a tape?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. 828 is a CD?

A. Yes.
Q. And they're one and the same in terms of the information that's on them?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. Okay.
(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)
MR. SANGER: Could we have just a moment, Your Honor, please?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I need an exhibit number.
Q. Detective, pursuant to your duties in this case, were you asked to do a photographic documentation of grand jury exhibits?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. And what was the nature of that task?

A. On July 20th, I went to the Superior Court in Santa Barbara where the exhibits that were lodged into the court from the grand jury proceedings were being held. I then photographed certain exhibits at that location, including every page of magazines that were booked in.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And if I might approach again, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Detective, I show you a envelope with "Exhibit 53, GJ Pics" written on the outside. It appears to contain a document with Item 317 on the top. It is held together by a green paper clip and there's three pages to it.

And then there appear to be a number of photographs that are following that, along with photographs of the contents of Exhibit 470 face page.

Can you identify that for me?

A. Yes, I can.

Q. What is it?

MR. SANGER: Well, there's one problem. I think I missed the court exhibit number for what is being shown the witness.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Exhibit 843.

Q. All right. Can you please identify that for me, Detective?

A. Yes, I can. When I went to the court, specifically one of the items that I photographed the contents of was Item 317, the black briefcase. That's also the Grand Jury Exhibit No. 53. I did that with a digital camera.

All of those photographs were downloaded onto a CD. These pictures are the printed photographs that I took of the materials. This document corresponds to these pictures and tells the reader which picture corresponds to which item, and to what the current exhibit number is for this trial.

In addition to that, I also went in and I handwrote in the sheriff's department item number for each picture.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Ask to admit Exhibit No. 843 at this time, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object to it. Number one, it contains some extraneous material, other than the photographs of the grand jury exhibits.

Number two, that it's cumulative. These pages of these magazines have already been marked and shown to the jury countless times in different contexts or for different reasons. This being yet another set, it's cumulative.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And I'm willing to make an offer as to the specific reason for this, if you wish.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Shall we do it at sidebar?

THE COURT: All right.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: All right. Based on the offer of proof, I'll admit it.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. If I could have the Elmo, please.

Q. All right. So what was the date that you conducted this photo essay of evidence?

MR. SANGER: Asked and answered, and "photo essay" is vague and ambiguous.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When did you do these photographs?

A. July 20th.

Q. All right. All of them were taken on that day?

A. Yes.

Q. And I show you the first page of the three-page document that I previously identified. And if you'd tell me what this, explain this document to me, please.

A. This is -- I prepared this by order sequence of the pictures. It will tell you the evidence item number, that's the sheriff's department number, as well as the trial exhibit number for the item that is pictured.

Q. Okay.

A. That's by sequence of the pictures.

Q. All right. And there's three pages of that, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Two and a half? Well, almost three.

A. They're the same material. They're in different order for researching purposes.

Q. All right. I need you to explain that for me. I'll show you the first one again.

MR. SANGER: Actually, Your Honor, I apologize, I should have brought this up, but we have not been provided a copy of this, of these, of any of this, but specifically these three pages. And it appears that counsel's not familiar with them either. Could we please have a copy so we can look at them closely while we go through here?

THE COURT: Do you have a copy for them?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No.

THE WITNESS: I have an extra copy.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Detective.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May I proceed?

Q. Okay. Now, this one has the notation in the right-hand portion of the document, "Order by picture sequence"?

A. That's correct. So --

Q. And what does that mean?

A. It means that if you follow along with the pictures, this document is going to follow as the pictures go along.

Q. Do you mean in terms of the --

A. So if you start, page one, with the first picture, it's a picture of Item 317-J.

Q. Okay. And did you make that notation on each of the pictures that is in this exhibit?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. The second page, that's, "Order by S.B.S.O. item number." What does that mean?

A. It's the same data that has been reconfigured so that if somebody wants to go and quickly look based upon the sheriff's department item number, that they can do that, and they can correspond that with the trial exhibit number.

Q. Okay. And then lastly, you have, "Order by criminal trial exhibit number."

A. Again, the same data. This time it had been arranged so that you can quickly look, based upon a trial exhibit number, and know what the sheriff's department number is.

Q. Okay. So all of these three documents have the same information in different configurations?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. Now, I'm just going to show you the first page of this group of exhibits and just ask you to explain to me what you did.

Okay. These are an example of the photographs you took?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And explain this exhibit to me.

A. The easiest way -- it's a printout in order of the pictures as they were taken. You can't really see it too well, it's a little fuzzy, but 317-J is written above this picture.

Q. We're going to give you a laser pointer so it's a little easier for you, and I'll blow this up a little bit.

A. Okay. This is Item 317-J. I have notated that above the picture. Same thing for this one. If you were to -- I'll skip down to this picture right here. This is 317-A, and the order goes like this.

Q. And these are -- this is the -- I believe you testified to this, but this is the grand jury exhibit that was presented to the grand jury?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. Detective, did you participate in the execution of a search warrant in the case of People v. Jackson on January 31st, 2004?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And whose home did you serve that search warrant on?

A. Marc Schaffel or Frederic Schaffel.

Q. And did you seize documents pursuant to that search warrant?

A. Yes, I did.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If I might approach again, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Detective, I show you the notebook that I've mentioned as Exhibit 400 through 420. And showing you Exhibit 402, which appears to be a Neverland Valley Entertainment -- "What more can I give" is at the top of it.

I'm sorry. I'm a little ahead of myself here.

I'm going to first show you Exhibit 404, which appears to be a two-page document -- three-page document. The first page appears to be entitled, "Messages." Did you seize that document pursuant to the warrant?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Then there are two more pages attached to that or behind that, the first of which is entitled, "MJJ Productions Working Group List." Appear to be phone numbers.

Did you also seize those documents, those two documents?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did you seize those?

A. Those were seized from an upstairs bedroom closet. It was a small walk-in closet that was locked, and within that were a number of filing cabinets.

One of these cabinets in particular had a drawer that was pretty much filled with materials related to this case. We seized -- or I seized that entire drawer, and that is where this document came from.

Q. Did it come out of a specific file?

A. I believe it came out of the Stuart Backerman file.

Q. A file that had Stuart --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object to hearsay content. There's no foundation for any of this.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm just asking where it was located.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Moving to 405; let's see, it appears to be a one-page document with “Bell Yard” at the top of it.

Did you seize that pursuant to the execution of this warrant?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where was that document seized?

A. This came out of the same file drawer.

Q. Moving on to 406, it appears to be a 14-page document. The first document has “Hale Lane” at the top of it. Appears to be a fax sheet.

Did you seize this 14 -- these 14 pages?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where did they come from?

A. Again, out of the same file drawer.

Q. 407, it appears to be a ten-page document, and the first page appears to be an e-mail entitled, “Spain Deal.”

Can you look through those documents and tell me if you seized those pursuant to the search warrant that you've been discussing in this?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where were those documents seized from?

A. Those were on top of the filing cabinets.

Q. Okay. Were they located inside any particular file?

A. There was a file titled, “Ronald.”

Q. 408 appears to be four pages, and I think we've withdrawn that, so I'll move on.

409, that's my next witness.

410, did you seize that document? This appears to be a four-page document, starts off with a phone number sheet, two pages of yellow paper, lined paper, and then a -- looks like a fax.

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Were those seized pursuant to the warrant?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And where were they seized from?

A. They were seized from, again, on top of the filing cabinets and they were in a file-held address book.

Q. Moving on to 411. This is a two-page document. Appears to be some kind of a computer printout with "Enterprise Rent-A-Car" on the top page of each one. Did you seize those documents?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did they come from?

A. They came from that large filing drawer that we seized, and a -- specifically a file in that drawer that said, "Enterprise Rental."

Q. From the locked closet?

A. Yes.

Q. And the file said, "Enterprise Rental"?

A. Yes.

Q. Moving on to 412, it appears to be a five-page document, a Hale Lane fax sheet on the first one; "Gabriel Media" on the second one; "Appearance and Consent," third; "MJJ Productions" on the fourth. The fifth appears to be a signature page.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: They can't hear you, sir.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: The fifth appears to be a signature page.

THE WITNESS: I seized these documents.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Where did you seize them from?

A. These were seized from within that same file drawer. Specifically a file titled, "Artist Release," or "Artist releases."

Q. Okay. Moving on to 413, it appears to be a ten-page document. The first page -- the first five pages appear to say, "Appearance, Consent and Release" on them. The next page is a yellow lined page. And the next page appears to have six pages paper-clipped together, all contained in one plastic liner, all right? So we've got, looks like, 11 pages total in there.

Did you seize those documents?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Where did they come from?

A. They came from within that large filing drawer and in a file folder titled, "Model Releases."

Q. And showing you what's noted as page seven, there appears to be several documents that are paper-clipped together. Were those documents paper-clipped in that fashion when you found them?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. All right. Moving on to 414, it appears to be an eight-page document that -- and we have -- I believe we've withdrawn that.

So I'll go to 415, which appears to be 47 pages of various records. The first one appears to be -- has "Living with MJ, Take 2" at the top.

Did you seize those 47 pages, Detective?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where did those come from?

A. These were contained within a black binder which I found on a shelf above the filing cabinets.

Q. Moving on to 417, skipping 416, it appears to be a 12-page document, at least 12 plastic-lined -- or, I'll double-check this. It does appear to be 12 pages.

All right. Can you identify that for me, please? Or I should say, did you seize those pages from the home of Marc Schaffel during the execution of this warrant?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did they come from?

A. They came from that same locked walk-in closet in a folder that was up above the filing cabinets.

Q. And going now to -- oh, one question that I neglected to ask you. Did that come from a particular file?

A. I believe it was the David Gardner LeGrand file.

MR. SANGER: Can we just specify for the record what "that" meant?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: My question went to Exhibit 417. Its location was in the file drawer. My question was --

MR. SANGER: I understand. You pointed to a page, and I didn't know if you were singling out a page or you meant the whole exhibit.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No, I meant the whole exhibit.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry to talk directly to counsel, but we worked it out.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Is that clear to you --

A. Yes.

Q. -- that all those documents came from the David Gardner LeGrand file?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Skipping 419 for the time being, going to 420, which appears to be a 28-page document, or 28 separate pages, various -- look to be various e-mails, did you seize those documents pursuant to the warrant on Mr. Schaffel's home?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did they came from?

A. They came out of the same large filing drawer from the locked closet.

Q. Moving on to 421, it appears to be a ten-page document. First page says at the top, "Law Office" -- "Law Offices of Armstrong, Hirsch, et cetera." It appears to be a fax sheet with an agreement attached to it. Did you seize those items, Detective, pursuant to your warrant?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did they come from?

A. They came from on top of the filing cabinets.

Q. That were in the locked closet?

A. Yes.

Q. 422. It appears to be a letter of intent from Royalty Advanced Funding.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Still can't hear you, sir. You have to --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.

Q. It appears to be a letter of intent from Royalty Advanced Funding. Let's see. I'm going to have to count these pages. It appears to be 19 pages.

Did you seize those documents pursuant to your search warrant?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And where were they seized from?

A. They were also on top of the file cabinets.

Q. And same location, locked closet?

A. Yes.

Q. Did they come out of any specific file?

A. I believe they came out of a file titled, "Royalty."

Q. And lastly, 423, it appears to be seven pages. The face page looks to be an e-mail followed by various correspondence.

Did you seize those documents?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did they come from?

A. They came out of the large filing drawer that we seized.

Q. Okay. Once again, the locked file closet?

A. Yes.

Q. And were they associated with any particular file?

A. I believe it was called "Foreign Rights."

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Thank you, Detective. No further questions.

MR. SANGER: May I have one moment, please, Your Honor?

May I proceed, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Let's talk about the grand jury pictures here, first of all.

Are you aware that one of the fingerprints that was identified sometime ago in this trial was located on a magazine that was in that briefcase?

A. I don't know. I've heard that. I don't know which one.

Q. Okay. You've heard that?

A. Yes.

Q. And so you did not go through to compare your numbers to see if the 317 sheriff's exhibit number matched up with the particular item on which a fingerprint was identified?

A. No.

Q. Basically what you're saying here with regard to all these grand jury pictures that we've just heard about is, you went to the grand jury clerk, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And you had her pull out the briefcase, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And this -- this was theoretically the way the briefcase was delivered to her by the grand jury when they were through; is that right?

A. Theoretically, correct.

Q. And so if she did her job, she would have kept it intact, and then it would be there, you would open it up, and the contents would be the way that she got it from the grand jury, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. There was no way for you to know what was done with the briefcase at or during the grand jury proceedings; is that correct?

A. No.

Q. I'm sorry, I said, "Is that correct?" So that's my fault.

Was there any way for you to know what was done to the briefcase and the contents at or during the grand jury?

A. No, there's not.
Q. All right. And when you recovered the briefcase from the clerk, did you ascertain from her that she and staff members had gone through the exhibit without wearing gloves?
A. No.
Q. Did you do anything to, from that moment forward, preserve the exhibit so that fingerprints could be analyzed?
A. Yes, I wore gloves.
Q. And did you ask that the clerk wear gloves in the future when handling that exhibit?

A. I didn't know that she hadn't.
Q. Okay. All right. Very well.
Let me ask you -- Miss Frey, we're fine on that.
THE CLERK: Okay.
MR. SANGER: Thank you. Thank you for looking.
Q. Let me ask you about some of these exhibits that you had identified from the residence of Mr. Schaffel. And I want to ask you, first of all, if you were aware that persons other than Mr. Schaffel had been working out of his house.
A. Yes.
Q. Now, you identified most of the exhibits in this book that's placed before you; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And by that I mean, just now you went through and you said, "Sure enough, I seized those items," correct?
A. Correct.
Q. What percentage, if you can give us an estimate, of the materials that you seized does this book represent?
A. 5 to 10 percent.
Q. Okay. So there were thousands of pages --
A. Yes.
Q. -- that you seized, correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And you seized thousands of pages from tens of thousands of pages of documents and materials, maybe more than that, that were in these various offices or file cabinets or whatever the location was within this house, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, you indicated in your direct testimony -- for instance, if you would look at Exhibit 421, please. It's in front of you there. 421 in the book. You indicated that this was a fax with a number of sheets attached to it. The first thing I want you to do is ask you to turn to page two of that exhibit, 421, and note that there's a handwritten number on the top.

A. 8012?

Q. Yes, sir. Is that a number that was there, or is that something that was placed there?

A. That number has been there. We didn't put that there.

Q. All right. So that's a number that just was on the document. You seized it. There it was.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. The District Attorney asked you if the document was attached to the fax. Was the document, in fact, attached to the fax cover?

A. I don't know.

Q. Okay. In fact, if you look at it, can you tell whether or not the document actually belongs to that fax?

A. Being that it didn't get -- or it was not sent to me, I wouldn't absolutely know that. I know that I seized all of these documents from that file --

Q. All right.

A. -- in his residence.

Q. And I'm just trying to clarify the question about the document attached to the fax. It's attached as it's sitting there. You don't know whether or not it was physically stapled or attached at the time, correct?

A. No.

Q. And if you look, there's no fax header on the first page and there are fax headers on the subsequent pages, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, I want to go back to an exhibit. Let me just find it here. 414. Let me see if I have the right one. Yes. 414.

Now, the District Attorney indicated -- when you got to 414, he started to ask you about that and he said, “We're withdrawing that exhibit,” or “That's withdrawn”; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. I'd like to ask you about 414, and so I'm going to ask that it be marked for identification as 414. In other words, it's already been premarked by the prosecution, but I think I need to say on the record that we're asking this be identified on the record, if that's acceptable to the Court. And it starts out with what appears to be a Xerox of -- at least the one I have is a Xerox of two --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object to the admission of any evidence on that document on the basis of hearsay, including the document's name.

THE COURT: All right. As to 414, it is a marked exhibit, and it cannot be unilaterally -- how do you say that?

THE JURY: (In unison) Unilaterally.

THE COURT: All right. Let's take a break. Withdrawn.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: As for the rest of the objection, he's doing the same thing.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And I --

THE COURT: He's laying a foundation, which he's allowed to do.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And I have no objection to that. I'll just ask -- I'll stipulate to identification and ask --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your mike is off, sir.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Stipulate to identification and ask that counsel not read the name of the exhibit. The Court can look at that exhibit and appreciate my reasons for that.

MR. SANGER: Didn't the Court just rule I could do it? I'm confused.
THE BAILIFF: Is your microphone on?
MR. SANGER: It was, but I guess I wasn't close.
THE COURT: Say that again. You're confused?
MR. SANGER: I'm confused.
THE COURT: Okay.
MR. SANGER: And I think the District Attorney was going to stipulate to that. That's what he said.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So stipulated.
THE COURT: You may proceed.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you.
Q. The question pending was -- or I don't know if there was a question pending, but let me ask you, look at 414. The first page has what appear here to be copies of -- what do we call those these days? Floppy disks?
A. That will work.
Q. That's beginning to be like an 8-track these days, I suppose.
Anyway, it's -- you have the actual disk there; is that correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And there's a notation on those two disks that say --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And that's what I'm objecting to. I'll stipulate they're two disks that he found.

THE COURT: Actually, you are not allowed to proffer stipulations in open court if the --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.
THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Did the disk say on them "Janet expense backup" and "Janet cash expense"?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. That's followed by a number of pages that indicate "Register" at the top --
A. Correct.

Q. -- is that correct?

Now, as to 414 and the two disks, where did you locate those?

A. 414 -- well, the only thing I located was the two disks.

Q. I see. All right. Where did you locate the two disks?

A. They were in that same filing cabinet drawer that was seized from the upstairs locked closet.

Q. All right. And you see 414, the printed pages. Are those pages that were printed out from the disk subsequent to your seizure?

A. In a manner of speaking. They had to be imported into Quicken and bring it up as a check register, and then print that.

Q. Did you do that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. Good. So the rest of 414 -- you have the two disks, and then the rest of it, the printed pages, is it your opinion that these pages accurately reflect at least a part of the content of the two disks?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now I'm going to refer to Exhibit 416. That is another one, if I'm not mistaken, that the District Attorney indicated that he was not going to address. And let me ask you to take a look at 416. It's been marked for identification, and the first page on 416, it says, "Summary of petty cash expenditures"; correct?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. And that's approximately two pages. And then it appears that the subsequent pages are receipts and other evidence of expenses that were incurred; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you find these documents from 414 -- let me withdraw that.

Did you find these documents that are -- I'm going to withdraw that.

Did you find these documents which comprise 416 in your search?

A. No.
Q. Did somebody else find it?

A. No.
Q. Do you know where they came from?
A. I believe they came --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. That's a "yes" or "no" question.
THE COURT: That's true. "Yes" or "no."
Q. BY MR. SANGER: Do you know where they came from?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did they come from?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. No foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: How do you know where they came from?
A. In meetings that we've had, I've came to know where these items came from.
Q. Okay. As a part of your job being an investigator in this case, you've determined where these items were originally obtained; is that correct? Is that what you're saying?
Let's put it this way: Did you personally seize these from any location anywhere?
A. No.
Q. Did you witness them being seized?
A. No.
Q. So you were informed where they were seized from?
A. Yes.

Q. There you go. All right.
Now, you wanted to -- at the break, you indicated you wanted to clarify part of your testimony.
A. Uh-huh. Yes.
Q. And I believe it was with regard to we had made reference to Exhibit 421, and I believe you wanted to clarify part of your testimony with regard to Exhibit 421.
A. Correct.

Q. Are you turned to it there?
A. Yes.
Q. That's the exhibit where I asked if the cover went -- the fax cover went with the document.
A. Correct.
Q. And you were not sure. And then I had asked you about the numbers on the top of the document, number 8012, and then it seems to be successive numbers up to 8020, with a number sign in front; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Just handwritten at the top, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you determine, during the break, whether or not those numbers were in fact on the documents when you actually seized them?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And were they on the documents when you actually seized them?

A. No, they were not.
Q. Do you know who put those documents (sic) on?
A. District Attorney personnel.
Q. So you seized them, booked them into evidence; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. Sometime, apparently, they were withdrawn from evidence, from the booking -- I'm sorry, from the sheriff's evidence, right?
A. Correct.
Q. And the District Attorney at some point had them and wrote numbers on them; is that right?
A. Correct.
Q. And I take it, if you look at 422, there are numbers again written on the top, which are not necessarily in sequence. In fact, I could drop the word "necessarily." They're not in sequence at all, it appears; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. But there are numbers that I think all start with the number "8"?
A. Correct.

Q. Four-digit numbers. Were those numbers on those documents when you seized them?

A. No, they were not.

Q. And your understanding is that they were later added by the District Attorney's Office?

A. Correct.

Q. If we turn to 423, would that similarly be the testimony on 423?

I see that the first few pages do not have a number, but it appears that maybe starting on page five, there's a number starting with seventy -- well, it's actually 7802 is the number. And there's some numbers following that that are not in sequence.

Those numbers all starting with “7,” are those numbers that also were added in that same fashion, to your knowledge?

A. Correct.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. As far as those numbers go, Detective, do you know if those numbers were added to the original documents?

A. No, they were not.

Q. Okay. So these -- do you know if these documents were ever scanned into a CD format?

A. Yes.

Q. Were they assigned JPEG numbers, or numbers?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you know if those numbers coincide to the scanned numbers?

MR. SANGER: That's leading.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: “Do you know?”

THE WITNESS: I don't.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you know?

A. I don't.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. As far as Exhibit 420 goes, Your Honor, I spoke with counsel about this earlier. And I asked to have marked as an additional exhibit 420-A. I neglected to ask this witness about those particular changes that were made to that exhibit when I had him on direct, and with the Court's permission, I'd just like to ask a foundation about 420-A.

THE COURT: Okay.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Let me bring up the notebook as well, or you still have the original?

A. I have it.

Q. Okay. Detective, we've established that some of these documents are scanned duplicates of documents that were seized; is that correct?

A. This is the end of it.

Q. Did you hear my question?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And as far as 420 goes, do you know if 420 was also scanned into a CD format?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. Okay. And did you do that? Or, actually, not scanned. I believe pictures were taken. Do you know whether it was scanned or pictures?

A. Both.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object as leading and asked and answered, actually.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll -- well --

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you know if it was scanned or pictures?

A. Both.

Q. Okay. Some were scanned; some were taken pictures of?

A. Some were taken pictures of. All of them were scanned.

Q. Did you have anything to do with the picture-taking?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you have to do with that?

A. During a review of these evidence items after having seized them, I took photographs of certain ones which we thought were pertinent to the investigation.

Q. All right. Did you download those photographs to a CD?

A. Our forensics personnel did.

Q. Okay. Do you know if those were provided to the D.A.'s Office?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And when you took photographs of those documents, do you know if you photographed every -- for instance, let me give you an example. When you had a picture of -- or a document that comprised more than one page, did you always photograph each page of that document?

A. No.

Q. And why was that?

A. I would have only taken photographs of the ones that appeared pertinent. In other words, if there were multiple pages stapled together or multiple pages together and only one of them was pertinent, I only took a photograph of that one pertinent page.

Q. Okay. And during the course of the review of this notebook, did you look at 420 to see if each of those e-mails or documents that are in that exhibit contained all relevant pages for each of those documents? Do you understand the question?

A. Can you ask that again, please?

Q. The question is, did you review the -- these -- the evidence notebook in this case that deals with Exhibits No. 420 through --

A. Yes.

Q. I believe we've got 440; is that right? 420 through -- 400 through 422, I think, at this point.

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And did you find that Exhibit No. 420 had some pages missing?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you then go back to the evidence and cull out the missing pages so that it would be a complete exhibit?

A. Yes.

Q. I show you Exhibit 420-A. Can you identify that for me, please?

A. These are the pages that I went and pulled out of the actual evidence item to correspond with these photographs or images.

Q. Okay. So is 420 pretty much an identical copy of 420-A, except for 420-A has some additional missing pages?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Thank you.

I'd ask -- actually, we're going to hold off on admission of this additional evidence at this time. Those are all the questions that I have right now, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Do you want to take your book?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yeah. Thanks.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. 420-A is now what you feel to be a more complete set of documents than 420; is that correct?

A. Correct. And they are the original documents.

MR. SANGER: All right. May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I was given a copy.

Q. All right. So 420-A are original documents. In other words, they were documents that you found in the condition they were actually in --

A. Correct.

Q. -- during the search. They aren't photocopies. They aren't photographs.

A. Correct.

Q. They aren't scanned.

A. No.

Q. All right. There are paper clips on there. Why are the paper clips on them? Does that mean anything? Let me put it this way: Did you put the paper clips on them?

A. No, these paper clips aren't on the documents themselves. They're on the sleeve.

Q. All right. Did you put the paper clips on the sleeves?

A. Did not.

Q. Okay. Now, with regard to 420, how did you -- where did these come from? You photographed them? Or you scanned them, or what? I'm not clear.

A. These are either the photographs or the scans. All of the Schaffel evidence was scanned. We also took certain photographs of them.

Q. Okay. I must say, I looked in there, and maybe I'm wrong, but I didn't see anything that looked like a photograph of a document as opposed to a photocopy or scan. Am I wrong? In 420.

A. Well, I don't know what -- how these items -- this was done by the District Attorney's Office that put together the court exhibit book here.

Q. Okay.

A. What I did is, I went and found the actual evidence item that I seized to correspond with this exhibit book.

Q. Basically you're saying you don't know how 420 was generated at all; is that correct?

A. I know where the items came from. I don't know how they got into here.

Q. All right. And then you don't know what the paper clips mean on 420-A?

A. No.

MR. SANGER: All right. Thank you. No further questions.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Would you look at those documents and see if you can ascertain any reason for the paper clips to be on those documents?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to ask -- that calls for speculation and asked and answered. He says he doesn't know.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: He's reviewed the documents as far as completeness, and he's testified as to that issue as to whether the documents had missing pages, and I'm -- my question goes to that issue.

MR. SANGER: And I object to a speaking --

THE COURT: Yeah. I'll sustain the objections.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Anything further, Counsel?

You may step down.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Call Detective Vic Alvarez, Your Honor, and he will be our last witness today.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, you may be seated. You're still under oath.

VICTOR ALVAREZ

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

THE COURT: You may be seated.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good afternoon, Detective Alvarez.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. If I may approach, Your Honor.

Detective Alvarez, did you participate in the search of the home of Fred Marc Schaffel in Calabasas, California, on January 31st, 2004?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you seize certain documents pursuant to that search?

A. I did.

Q. Calling your attention to the black notebook which contains an exhibit that is marked as 402, there is a document that's dated 11-12-01 and appears to be a balance sheet. It's two pages. And as soon as I locate it, I'd like to ask you if this was a document that you seized.
A. Yes.
Q. And you tell me, where -- did you seize that pursuant to the warrant of Mr. Schaffel's home?
A. I did.

Q. Where did you seize it from?
A. It was in the upstairs office area of the residence.
Q. Okay. Was that area locked at all?
A. No.
Q. Okay. And from where in that upstairs office did you seize that document?
A. This was in the desk area of the upstairs office.
Q. Did it come from a file with any specific notation, if you recall?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Okay. Looking at Exhibit 403, which appears to be -- I believe we have 13 pages, plus a -- 12 pages, plus a -- looks to be a file divider. Did you seize that file divider and those documents pursuant to your search of Mr. Schaffel's home?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Where did they come from?
A. These were also on -- in the office area upstairs on the desk.
Q. There appears to be a file divider, a plastic file divider, with "Fires Brewing" on it. Did you seize that as well?
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object to that, because they already laid the foundation without bringing in content, so this is irrelevant, and no foundation for content.

THE COURT: Overruled. Proceed.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you seize that as well?

A. That's correct.

Q. And where did that come from?

A. This was also on the top of the desk in the office area, second floor of the residence.

Q. Do you know where the contents of that file -- were there documents inside that file?

A. Yes.

Q. And can you tell me their relationship to the documents that you just identified?

A. Yes. They appear to be e-mails.

Q. Do you know if those documents came from that file?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Okay. The one designated with that particular file marker?

A. Correct.

Q. That's my question.

A. Correct, yes.

Q. Moving on to 409, which appears to be a one-page document, that has at the top "Phone Number," singular. It appears to have some phone numbers on it. Did you seize that document, Detective?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And you seized that from Mr. Schaffel's home?

A. I did.

Q. Where did it come from?

A. This was also on top of -- in the office area, second floor of the residence, near -- on top of the desk, the desk in the room there.

Q. Okay. And then finally call your attention to Exhibit 419, which appears to be three pages of plastic sleeves with a check -- checkstub and check copy, it appears to be. Did you seize those documents at the search of Mr. Schaffel's home on that day?

A. I did.

Q. And can you tell me where they came from in Mr. Schaffel's residence?

A. They also came from the office, the second floor of the residence.

Q. Okay. Whereabouts?

A. These were also on the desk area of the residence, or of the room.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

Actually, I do have one additional question, I'm sorry.

Q. On a different matter, Detective, pursuant to your investigation in this case --

A. Yes.

Q. -- did you interview a witness by the name of Cindy Bell?

A. I did.

Q. Did you question her concerning her involvement as a witness in this case?

A. I did.

Q. Did you question her specifically about the issue of serving alcohol as part of her duties as a flight attendant for Xtra Jet?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she tell you whose idea -- well, first of all, let me ask you a question. Did she tell you anything about Coke or about wine in Diet Coke cans?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she tell you?

A. She said she serves white wine in a Diet Coke can for Mr. Jackson.

Q. When he's a client of Xtra Jet?

A. Correct.

Q. Did she tell you whose idea that was to put white wine or wine in a Diet Coke can?

A. Yes.

Q. What -- whose idea did she say it was?

A. She said it was either Michael Jackson's or Dr. Farshshian's.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

You know, I do have one additional question I neglected to ask.

MR. SANGER: I was going to say "No questions" so we can go home, so I'll have to wait and see what happens.

THE COURT: He was going to say "No questions."

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Oh, I'm sorry.

Q. I neglected to ask you the date of that interview, if you can approximate it.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you remember the approximate month?

A. I don't.

Q. Okay. Was it --

A. It's on -- it's documented on my report.

Q. Do you have your report with you?

A. I don't.

Q. You don't. Well, you might get to come back and tell us what date that was, then.

MR. SANGER: Move to strike, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Stricken.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll withdraw it. Okay. Thank you.

MR. SANGER: In light of those questions, Your Honor, I have no questions.

THE COURT: All right. Pretty good. That must end the day; is that right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's right.

THE COURT: All right. And you heard what they said this morning, that it will be -- the rest of the week will be a full week, so we'll see you tomorrow morning at 8:30. Remember the admonition.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:00 p.m.)

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good morning, Miss Montgomery.

A. Good morning, Mr. Nicola.

Q. There's some water right there. You were asking about that this morning.

A. Okay. Thanks.

Q. Could you scoot closer to that second mike there?

A. Better?

Q. Try to keep your voice up so everyone can hear you.

Could you tell the jury, please, what profession you're in.

A. I'm a travel consultant.

Can you hear me?

THE COURT: That was a little low.

THE BAILIFF: Actually, she needs to move closer.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: There you go. That's fine.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Move it up. Why don't we try that again.

What's your profession?

A. I'm a travel consultant.

Q. Okay. Do you have your own business?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And what is it called?

A. Class A Travel. Also Uniglobe Travel.

Q. Class A Travel and Uniglobe Travel?
A. Correct.
Q. You're still very soft-spoken.
A. I don't mean to be. Can you hear me now?
Q. Where are you based out of?
A. Las Vegas. Oops, excuse me.
Q. Is that where your family is?
A. My husband, yes.
Q. How long have you been a travel consultant?
A. 21 years.
Q. And what kind of clientele do you service?
A. 90 percent of my clientele is in the entertainment industry. Primarily musicians.
Q. We can still barely hear you.
A. Primarily musicians. My clientele is based on the entertainment industry.
Q. Okay. And has it always been based on the entertainment industry for clients?
A. For the last 15 years, 16 years.
Q. Do you have any experience arranging transportation outside of the United States?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Does that include air travel?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And do you have some amount of experience dealing with foreign embassies and securing visas and passports and things of that nature on behalf of your clients?

A. Yes, I do.
Q. Are you familiar with the entrance requirements, meaning the visa requirements, for a U.S. citizen to get into Brazil by air?
A. Yes, I do. Yes, I am.
Q. Have you arranged for accommodations for any of your clients in the past?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Okay. Do you know the defendant in this case?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Mr. Jackson?
A. Correct.
Q. And how do you know him?
A. Through Mr. Schaffel.

Q. Okay. I'd like to show you --
MR. SANGER: Tom.
MR. NICOLA: Oh, Mr. Mesereau?
MR. MESEREAU: (Nods head up and down.)
MR. NICOLA: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Showing you Exhibit No. 16, do you recognize that individual?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And who is that?
A. Marc -- Frederic Marc Schaffel.
MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, we'd move 16 into evidence at this time.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.
THE COURT: It's admitted.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Does Mr. Schaffel go by the names “Fred” or “Marc”?
A. Yes, he does.
Q. And what do you call him?
A. Fred.
Q. Fred. Okay. And how do you know Mr. Schaffel?
A. Through a man by the name of Steven Doolittle. They were business associates.
Q. How long have you known Mr. Schaffel?
A. I believe almost 20 years.
Q. 20 years?
Are you two friends?
A. Not anymore.
Q. Okay. Had you been friends for the majority of that 20 years?
A. Yes.
Q. And you met Mr. Jackson through Mr. Schaffel?
A. That's correct.
Q. At some point in time did Mr. Jackson become a client of yours?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. And around when was that?
A. The latter part of 2000.
Q. Okay. And what did you do for Mr. Jackson in that period of time, just very generally, please?

A. Arranged for his private jet transportation.

Q. Okay. And did you cease working for him in that capacity for some period of time in 2002?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And when did you resume your duties, your activities, with respect to arranging Mr. Jackson's private air travel?

A. I believe the latter part of 2002. I can't be certain of the date.

Q. Okay. Later in the year?

A. I believe so.

Q. During the period of time that Mr. Jackson was a client of yours, did you have occasion to meet any of his associates?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you meet a man named Dieter Weizner?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you know what his capacity was with respect to Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: How did you know Mr. Weizner?

A. I met him through Mr. Schaffel.

Q. Okay. Is it Weizer or Weizner?

A. Dieter Weizner, is the way I was told to pronounce it.

Q. Okay. And was he associated with Mr. Jackson, to your knowledge?

A. Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Do you know what the relationship was between Mr. Weizner -- Weizner. Weezner --

A. Weizner.

Q. -- and Mr. Jackson?

A. Could you repeat that? I'm sorry.

Q. Did you know what the relationship was between them?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer that question. It should be answered “yes” or “no.”

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. And how did you come to that knowledge?

A. By Mr. Schaffel and being around them.

Q. Okay. Did any of that information come from Mr. Weizner?

A. I was with Mr. Weizner on certain occasions.

Q. With Mr. Jackson present?

A. Twice.

Q. Okay. And did Mr. Weizner represent himself to you as having any business relationship with Mr. Jackson at the time?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was that?

A. He was -- he owned the merchandise company for Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. I'd like to approach and show you Exhibit No. 17 and 18.
Do you recognize the man in Exhibit 17?

A. I do.

Q. And who is that?

A. Dieter Weizner.

Q. In addition, do you recognize the man in Exhibit 18?

A. I do.

Q. And who is that?

A. Ronald Konitzer.

Q. How do you recognize Mr. Konitzer?

A. I met him in Las Vegas.

Q. Okay. And through whom did you know him?

A. Mr. Schaffel.

Q. Do you know a man by the name of Frank Cascio?

A. I do.

Q. Have you met him before?

A. Once.

Q. I'd like to show you Exhibit No. 20. Do you recognize the man in Exhibit 20?

A. I do.

Q. And who is that?

A. Mr. Cascio.

Q. Did you ever have occasion to meet a man by the name of Vinnie or Vincent Black?

A. No.

Q. Okay. How about Vinnie or Vincent Amen?

A. I don't recall meeting him. I know who he is.

Q. Did you ever make flight arrangements for Mr. Amen?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you ever make flight arrangements for Mr. Cascio?

A. I did.

Q. How about Mr. Konitzer?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. How about Mr. Weizner?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When you made these travel arrangements, were they in connection with flights that Mr. Jackson was also taking?

A. Sometimes.

Q. Okay. How about if they were by private jet?

A. Sometimes.

Q. Okay. And at other times what kind of arrangements did you make for those men?

A. Commercial flights.

Q. Okay. Now, with respect to the period of late 2002 and up to late September of 2003, did you have multiple occasions to make flights for Mr. Jackson where Mr. Konitzer or Mr. Weizner were also on the same flight?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Who made arrangements for those flights? In other words, who contacted you to set the flights up?

A. There would have been two people.

Q. Let's start with the first person.

A. Michael's assistant, Evvy Tavasci.

Q. And did she contact you through a company that she was working in? Was there a company name associated with Evvy Tavasci?

A. Yes.
Q. What was that?
A. MJJ Productions.
Q. Okay. So Ms. Tavasci would contact you and then what would happen?
A. I would arrange for jets or commercial flights per her instructions.
Q. She would send you instructions about where Mr. Jackson wanted to go?
A. Correct.
Q. And then you would do what?

A. I would make a phone call to reserve a jet for him.
Q. Okay. Was there a company that you worked with primarily in reserving a jet for Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was that company?
A. Xtra Jet.
Q. Okay. Did Miss Tavasci ever contact you to arrange travel for Mr. Amen, Mr. Cascio, Mr. Konitzer, or Mr. Weizner that did not involve commercial aircraft? Excuse me --
A. Yes.
Q. Excuse me, private aircraft.
A. No.
Q. Who was the second person that contacted you to arrange travel?
A. Fred Marc Schaffel.
Q. And did he work through a company?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was the name of that company?
A. Neverland Valley Entertainment.
Q. Okay. And was that his company, to your knowledge?
A. And Mr. Jackson's.
Q. A joint company?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Strike the answer.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Just a yes or no question:
Do you know who the principals of Neverland Valley

Entertainment were?

A. Yes.

Q. And how did you come to that knowledge?

A. Through Mr. Schaffel.

Q. Was it something Mr. Schaffel told you?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he tell you about the principals of Neverland Valley Entertainment?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay and foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR NICOLA: We'd be offering them under admissions, Your Honor, of agents.

THE COURT: Excuse me?

MR. NICOLA: We'd be offering them under admissions of agents, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. When Mr. Schaffel contacted you, was it always on behalf of Neverland Valley Entertainment?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

MR. NICOLA: Let me rephrase it. I'd like to clean that up, if I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: When Mr. Schaffel contacted you with respect to making flights or travel arrangements, was it always through Neverland Valley Entertainment?

A. Could you be more specific?

Q. Certainly. For travel arrangements -- did Mr. Schaffel ever call you to make travel arrangements for Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And did he do that through Neverland Valley Entertainment?

A. Most of the time, yes.

Q. Most of the time, yes.

Did he ever make those arrangements for Mr. Jackson through MJJ Productions?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Let's talk about how the arrangements were made.

If Mr. Schaffel or Miss Tavasci called you and wanted to arrange a flight for Mr. Jackson, who would be responsible for paying the bill for that flight?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Do you know how billing was arranged?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Okay. Please explain that to the jury.

A. Um --

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection. Foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: How -- do you know how the billing was arranged for the private flights for Mr. Jackson that you arranged?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation and assumes facts not in evidence, no personal knowledge.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Do you have personal knowledge of how the billing was arranged for the private flights that you set up for Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. Explain that for the jury, please.

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection. Foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Who was billed -- or did you do the billing for the private flights that you set up for Mr. Jackson?

A. I did the billing.

Q. You did the billing?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Who did you charge for those flights?

A. Two different accounts. Neverland Valley or his business managers, Whitman Fox.

Q. Neverland Valley Entertainment and who else?

A. Bernstein Fox & Whitman Company.

Q. Did you ever bill MJJ Productions?

A. I might have.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike. Speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Do you have any recollection of whether or not you billed --

THE COURT: I'll strike that. I'm sorry, I just wanted the record to reflect I struck that.

MR. NICOLA: Oh, I'm sorry, Your Honor.

Q. Do you have any recollection of billing MJJ Productions directly?

A. I might have.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike; speculation.

MR. NICOLA: Let me ask you a different question.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Did you ever pay for those flights prior to being reimbursed?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Could you explain how that would come about?

A. Well, I act as an agent, second party. I would be invoiced by Xtra Jet and, in turn, I would invoice one of the companies. I've --

Q. Okay. So Xtra Jet would send you the bill?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that's how you would know the billing was arranged?

A. That's correct.

Q. Then you would send an invoice to which companies to get payment?

A. Depending on which company I was instructed to bill. Either Neverland Valley or MJJ or Bernstein Fox.

Q. And who would --

A. -- invoice MJJ. Sorry?

Q. Who would you receive billing instructions from?

A. Either Mr. Schaffel or Miss Tavasci.

Q. As part of your responsibility in arranging flights for Mr. Jackson to keep the flight manifests as part of your records?

A. It's an FAA requirement.

Q. Okay. Could you tell us how a flight manifest is transmitted to you with respect to these flights that we're talking about?

A. Either verbally or via fax or e-mail.

Q. Okay. And was that the same as the reservations, the information came to you from Mr. Schaffel or Miss Tavasci?

A. Correct.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. If I may approach the witness again, Your Honor.

Mr. Mesereau, Exhibit 251, 253 and 254.

Now I'm going to approach.

Q. Mrs. Montgomery, I've placed in front of you a three-ring binder, which is opened to a page that has an exhibit sticker on the bottom right-hand corner, Exhibit No. 251; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you recognize that document?

A. I do.

Q. Okay. And can you please turn the pages and review each of the documents in that section labeled 251.

Did you go on to page 252?

A. Did I go to page 253?

Q. 252.

A. No, I did not.

Q. Okay. Do you recognize Exhibit 251, ma'am?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that?

A. It's a flight manifest. It's a bill from Xtra Jet, it's a passenger trip sheet, and it's a trip report from the pilots.

Q. Okay. How do you recognize those documents in Exhibit 251?

A. The first page is addressed to me from Evvy. The second page is the trip sheet from Xtra Jet, which I always get after a flight is terminated. I have an invoice here made out to my company. And I have the pilots' report.

Q. Are the items in Exhibit 251 records that are kept within the normal course and scope of your business as a travel consultant?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Okay. And do you regularly rely upon the contents of those documents in Exhibit 251 in the regular course and scope of your business?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And is the information contained within the documents in Exhibit 251 recorded at or near the time of the event purported?

A. Yes, they are.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. We'd move 251 into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation, hearsay, and authentication.

THE COURT: All right. It's admitted. It's a business record.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Now, with respect to the first page dated June 6th, 2003, of 251.

A. Yes. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: May I have "Input 4," Your Honor?

Counsel, do you object to this exhibit?

MR. MESEREAU: No.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Mrs. Montgomery, if you would take a look over your shoulder, please. And is that the first page of -- a copy of the first page that you have there in Exhibit 251?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. And is this an example of how Miss Tavasci would contact you with respect to setting up a flight for Mr. Jackson on a private aircraft?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And this particular request came to you on June 6th of 2003?

A. That's correct.

Q. There appears to be two columns with names, and that -- are those names provided to you by Miss Tavasci in the regular course of setting these flights up?

A. The normal course.

Q. Okay. The "M. Jackson" on the top and the "Marc Schaffel" on the bottom, are these typically the ways you would set the flights up for Mr. Jackson, using Marc Schaffel's middle name, "Marc," and Mr. Jackson's first initial, "M."?

A. It's the way Evvy would transmit it to me.

Q. Okay. Were there ever occasions when the flight instructions from Ms. Tavasci with respect to who's going to be on the flight, were there ever occasions when those instructions were changed?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. The flights again, please.

If you could turn the page, please, to Exhibit 253, please. And flip through the documents in Exhibit 253 and review them, please.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay. Do you recognize those documents?

A. I do.

Q. Okay. And do they relate to a flight that you arranged for Mr. Jackson and his entourage on September 12th of 2003?

A. I do. I recognize it.

Q. Okay. Are the contents of Exhibit 253 records of similar nature as Exhibit 251, kept within the normal course and scope of your business, et cetera?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you rely on these documents as well within the regular course of your business?

A. Yes.

Q. And are these copies of your actual records for this flight?

A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: We'd move Exhibit 253 into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation, hearsay, authenticity.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

MR. NICOLA: If I may have the Elmo again, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Can I ask you something?

If you're going to show the one with my address, can you block it out, please?

MR. NICOLA: The witness has asked that a particular address on this document be blacked out.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Microphone, sir.

MR. NICOLA: I had the mike off.

Do you object, Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: No.

MR. NICOLA: May I have a sticky, please?

Q. And is your business name up here on this exhibit?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. I'm sorry, Mrs. Montgomery. May I have “Input 4,” Your Honor? These are difficult to work, I'll tell you that right now. Okay. Now, Exhibit 253, this was a flight on September 16th of 2003, and the customer name up there appears to be Class A Travel Services. That's one of your companies?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. Did you receive a flight manifest for that particular trip?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. If you'd turn to page -- the second page of Exhibit 253. Is there a handwritten passenger list?

A. Yes, there is.

Q. Okay.

A. May I reiterate something? I no longer do business as Class A Travel, just for the record.

Q. You do business as a different company?

A. Now I do, correct.

Q. Okay.

A. It's a former company.

Q. But back in the period of time that we're talking about, late 2002 through September of 2003, you did business as Class A Travel and Uniglobe?

A. Back in that period of time, Class A Travel and Travel 21.

Q. Okay. Is Mr. Jackson's name on this list, obviously?

A. Yes.

Q. And was it uncommon for you to get a handwritten passenger list such as this?

A. This is from the pilot of the plane company.

Q. And these are records that you also keep for billing purposes?

A. There's times where I would have these records, yes.

Q. If you could turn to the fourth page. Let me show that, Your Honor.

Now, is this document the actual request from Miss Tavasci for you to set up a flight on the 16th?
A. Yes, it was. Yes, it is.
Q. And the names on her list, the passenger names are a little bit different; isn't that right?
A. That's correct.

Q. Would that happen on occasion?
A. All the time.
Q. Okay. And finally, if you'd turn to the next page, there appears to be yet another list of individuals for the same flight.
A. That's correct.
Q. And what is the purpose of this document?
A. It was for the U.S. Customs.
Q. Was this an international flight?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. Where did it go?
A. To Canada.
Q. Okay. And then it came back to the U.S.?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you see the bottom name written on there, Ronald Konitzer?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Is it uncommon for you to receive records from Xtra Jet with additional names on the list handwritten?
A. No, it's not.
Q. If you could turn to Exhibit No. 254, please, and page through those.
A. Okay.
Q. Do you recognize the contents of Exhibit 254 as records that you kept within the regular course and scope of your business?
A. I do.

Q. Okay. Was the information recorded in those documents recorded at or near the time of the events recorded in Exhibit 254?
A. Yes.
Q. And are they records that you normally rely upon in the course of your business?
A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: We'd move Exhibit 254 into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay, foundation, and authenticity.

THE COURT: They're admitted.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Now, 254 contains information with respect to two individual flights; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And the first three pages relate to a flight from Boca Raton to California on February 25th, 2003; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I'd like to show you the first page of that exhibit, if I may, with Input 4.

Now, is this an example that -- a flight that Mr. Schaffel set up for Mr. Jackson?

A. It appears to be that way, yes.

Q. Do you have a specific recollection of this flight from Boca Raton to -- is that Van Nuys, VNY?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. That's in California?

A. Correct.

Q. Do you have a specific recollection of this?

A. I do.

Q. How did that flight get set up, if you remember?

A. I received a phone call from Mr. Schaffel and -- saying he needed an airplane.

Q. Okay. From Florida to California?

A. Correct.

Q. On the 25th --

A. Right.

Q. -- of February of 2003?

A. Right.

Q. Did you receive a passenger list for that flight from anyone?

A. On the third page, it could be the manifest from Evvy. Yes, this is the passenger manifest for this flight.

Q. Okay. And did that come to you in a different format?

A. No. Normal procedure. E-mail.

Q. Okay. The passengers on this Xtra Jet flight were Mr. Jackson, appears to be two of his children, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know who Grace Ru -- I can't say that last name.

A. Rwaramba, I believe.
Q. Rwaramba?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know who that individual is?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. How do you know who she is?
A. I was told.
Q. Is she a frequent flyer with Mr. Jackson?
A. I believe so.
Q. How about Patricia Chavez?
A. Also I know who she is.
Q. Mr. LaPerruque, Mr. Crawford and Mr. Carter, are you familiar with those individuals?
A. With the exception of Daniel Crawford, yes.
Q. How do you know Mr. LaPerruque?
A. Because I was told who he was.
Q. Did he frequently fly with Mr. Jackson?
A. I can't be certain.
Q. Okay. How about Mr. Carter?
A. Yes.
Q. Did he fly with Mr. Jackson frequently?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you familiar with the names Marie Nicole Cascio and Aldo Cascio?
A. Yes.
Q. And are they related to Frank Cascio, to your knowledge?
A. Yes.

Q. Were they also frequently on Mr. Jackson's private aircraft?
A. I won't say frequently.
Q. Not frequently?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. Before we turn to the second flight that's contained within Exhibit 254, if we could discuss the bottom entry here where it says,

Catering.
Were you responsible for arranging the catering on Mr. Jackson's private aircraft?
A. Yes.
Q. How would you set the catering up?
A. I would call it in to -- I would call it in to Xtra Jet to the representative I worked with there.
Q. Okay. And were you familiar with what Mr. Jackson wanted on his flights?
A. Yes.
Q. He was your client?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. It was important for you to please him, I suspect?
A. Of course.
Q. Okay. Would you inform Xtra Jet in writing or verbally as to what should be catered for Mr. Jackson?
A. I would forward the manifest -- or the 7551 request from Evvy as well as verbally instruct them.
Q. Were there standard instructions that just were not relayed to you from Miss Tavasci in writing?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you describe one of those requests?
A. She always wanted --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
THE WITNESS: She told me --
THE COURT: Just a minute.
THE WITNESS: Sorry.
THE COURT: Just a minute.
MR. NICOLA: Just a minute.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. Without telling us the content of your conversation with Ms. Tavasci, she would relate the special needs, or any needs for the particular flight, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. With respect to serving alcohol on Mr. Jackson's private aircraft, Xtra Jet's private aircraft that you arranged for him, did you ever make arrangements for alcohol to be served to Mr.

Jackson?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading and foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I did.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. Did you ever make specific instructions as to how Mr. Jackson should be served alcohol?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. With respect to wine, did you ever instruct any Xtra Jet employees on how to serve Mr. Jackson wine?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Prior to making those instructions, did you receive information from a Lauren Wallace about how Mr. Jackson wanted his wine served to him?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And did you know Lauren Wallace as a flight attendant?

A. Yes. She is.

Q. Was she the primary flight attendant for Mr. Jackson during your period of service?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Yes, she was?

A. Yes, she was.

Q. Okay. And in what period of time did you receive the instructions from Ms. Wallace?

A. Through the course that we handled his private flights.

Q. Okay. Do you recall what Miss Wallace told you specifically about how Mr. Jackson was being served his wine?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Can you please relay that to the jury?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.

THE WITNESS: She told me --

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Could you speak up, please.

A. Lauren Wallace told me that Mr. Jackson had requested that his wine be put into soda cans, and then if she was ever unable -- you can't always ensure that we're always going to have the same flight crew. To respect his privacy and to relay the message to anyone other than her if she was not flying to -- how to serve him.

Q. Okay. So Ms. Wallace told you that was Mr. Jackson's request to her?

A. That's correct.

Q. Could we turn back to Exhibit 253, please? And the last page appears to be an invoice for a flight on March 25th of 2003.

A. You said Exhibit 253?

Q. I'm sorry, I meant 254.

A. Okay.

Q. Please turn to the last page of Exhibit 254.

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Are there handwritten notes all over that exhibit?

A. Yes, there are.

Q. Is that your handwriting?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. NICOLA: If I may have “Input 4,” Your Honor. Thank you.

Q. Now, in the upper left-hand corner, does that exhibit show a billing address for MJJ Productions of Provident Financial Management?

A. It does.

Q. Did you cross that out?

A. I did.

Q. And why was that?

A. He had terminated his relationship with them.

Q. And you were told to bill another entity; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you write that entity's name on the bottom of the document?

A. I did.

Q. And was that Bernstein, Fox & Whitman?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. Did you ever have occasion to keep a passenger profile for Mr. Jackson --

A. Um --
Q. -- in writing?
A. There is a document that I'm aware of in writing.

Q. Would you turn to Exhibit No. 252.
A. Okay.
MR. NICOLA: I believe I'm finished with the Elmo, Your Honor.
Q. Now, Exhibit 252 appears to be a passenger profile for Mr. Jackson?
A. That's correct.
Q. Did you generate that document?
A. Verbally.
Q. You verbally generated that document?
A. I did.
Q. And for what purpose?
A. For the purpose of his -- it would be on file for Mr. Jackson for his specific needs on board his flights.
Q. Now, are the contents of Exhibit 252 consistent with your instructions to the flight crews of Xtra Jet with regard to how Mr. Jackson should be taken care of with respect to catering?
A. Could you repeat that, please?
Q. Have you read through the exhibit?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Are the instructions in there consistent with the instructions that you gave Xtra Jet?
A. They're more specific.
Q. Okay.

A. Mine were general. These are specific.
Q. Is there a specific reference to putting white wine in Diet Coke cans in every flight?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Did you go by the name Cindy Greenberg?
A. I did.
Q. Back when Mr. Jackson was your client?

A. Some of the time.

Q. Okay. And were you listed as one of Mr. Jackson's contact people along with Evvy?

A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. If I may approach Madam Clerk.

This is next in order, and this is next in order.

THE CLERK: Mr. Sneddon has the stickies.

MR. NICOLA: Mr. Sneddon has the stickies?

MR. SNEDDON: They're right there.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: I'm off like a herd of turtles today.

I'd like to show you Exhibits 848 and 849, please.

A. Okay.

Q. Okay. Do you recognize the contents of Exhibit 848?

A. I do.

Q. And that appears to be a two-page document, front and back?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Is that a document that you generated?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you do that in the normal course and scope of your business?

A. I did.

Q. And are the entries -- let me ask you this a different way: Is the information in that exhibit recorded at or near the time that the information was recorded?

A. A little vague.

Q. I asked the same question two different ways.

Does the information accurately reflect the entries that you made? You actually entered this information, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And can you describe what the exhibit is for the jury? Just generally, and we'll get more specific.

A. It's called a PNR, a passenger name record.

It's a reservation made through an airline computer system reflecting someone's flights that they would take. A reservation, basically, with names, itinerary.

Q. You personally entered this information into the computer system and this is a printout of what you entered?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. Is it a record you keep in the -- that you keep and rely upon in the ordinary course of your business?

A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: We'd move 848 into evidence, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Are you looking for the document, Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me, Your Honor?

THE COURT: He made a motion to introduce 848 into evidence. I didn't know if you were looking for the document or....

MR. MESEREAU: No, it was produced this morning by the prosecutor. No objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. There's no objection. I'll admit it.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. With respect to Exhibit 849, is that also information that you entered consistent with 848 only with respect to a different client and a different flight?

A. Correct.

Q. Are those reservations for Mr. Fred Schaffel?

A. Correct.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. We'd move that into evidence as well, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

MR. NICOLA: May I have the "Input 4," please?

Q. I'll show you the first page of Exhibit 848. It works better that way.

With respect to generating this reservation, do you recall having a conversation with Mr. Fred Schaffel on or around February 25th of 2003?

A. I do.

Q. And how did that conversation begin; do you recall?

A. He called me and asked me to make --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. NICOLA: Statements in furtherance, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Well, the question was, “How did that conversation begin?” And the answer was, “He called me...,” and then she started to volunteer the information. So the objection is sustained.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. Did he ask you to do something for him?

A. Yes.

Q. And what did he ask?

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.

MR. NICOLA: Our offer of proof is in furtherance.

THE COURT: I'll admit this document under the previous instructions, limited to the use of conspiracy evidence. Remember those conditional instructions I gave you earlier?

All right. Go ahead. It's admitted under those provisions.

MR. NICOLA: Okay, Your Honor.

Q. You can relay what he asked you to do for him, please.

A. He asked me to make flight arrangements for four passengers to Brazil.

Q. Okay. And are the names of those four passengers listed on this document?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Did you personally highlight the lines within that exhibit prior to court?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. And are the names listed on this reservation easily available to you to read to the jury?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Please do so.

A. Arvizo, Janet; Arvizo, Davellin; Arvizo, Star; Arvizo, Gavin.

Q. Did Mr. Schaffel tell you where he wanted the Arvizos to fly to?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Where?

A. To Brazil, Sao Paulo.

Q. You're going to have to speak up.

A. Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Q. Okay.

A. South America.

Q. Did he make a specific request as to what kind of tickets he wanted --

A. Yes, he did.

Q. -- for the Arvizos? He did?

A. One-way tickets.

Q. Okay. Is it possible for U.S. citizens to get into Brazil with a one-way ticket?

A. No, it's not.

Q. Why is that?

A. For visa reasons, you must have a return ticket to enter the country.

Q. Okay. Did you make arrangements for return tickets for the Arvizos?

A. I did. I chose the date.

Q. You chose the date for their return?

A. I did.

Q. Was that done arbitrarily or did you discuss that with Mr. Schaffel?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I chose a date arbitrarily, and then I called him to tell him what I had done and the reason why I did it.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. When you finished making these arrangements for the Arvizos to travel to Brazil, how many days' notice did you give the airline before the flight?

A. Just a couple days.

Q. Okay. The flight was scheduled to leave on what date?

A. March the 1st of 2003.

Q. And you made the reservation on the 25th of February, 2003?
A. That's correct.
Q. What was the cost going to be for that flight?
A. For a party of four, 15,092.
Q. Were you flying them first class?
A. No.
Q. Those are coach prices?
A. Coach. They were open tickets, basically. You know, they're expensive.
Q. Did Mr. Schaffel ask you to do anything with the reservations once they were made?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. What did he ask you to do, please?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. NICOLA: Same offer of proof, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. I'm going to admit this for the limited purpose.
Go ahead.
THE WITNESS: To fax over the itinerary.
Because they needed passports.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: If you'd take a look at the board behind you, there appears to be in the far right, in yellow highlighter, an address for Miss Janet Arvizo that begins at least with 11520, what I believe is Trent. Do you see that on your original document?
A. I do.
Q. Okay. Was that information provided by Ms. Arvizo or Mr. Schaffel?
A. Mr. Schaffel.
Q. Did you ever speak to Ms. Arvizo about these flight arrangements?
A. Not to my recollection, no.
Q. Okay. How about any members of her family?
A. No.
MR. NICOLA: If I may have just a moment, Your Honor.
I just have a few more questions, if that's okay. I don't need the inputs anymore, Judge.
Thank you.

Q. Now, with respect to the reservations you made for the Arvizos to travel to Brazil on March 1st of 2003, assuming they made that flight that left on March 1st, 2003, was there any requirement for them to make the return flight on the date that you chose?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: To your knowledge, would they have been able to stay in Brazil indefinitely?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; calls for speculation; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained; foundation.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. I believe I have no further questions at this time, Judge.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.

If I may, Your Honor, I'm just trying to locate one book.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning, Mr. Mesereau.

Q. Miss Montgomery, we have not spoken before, correct?

A. No, we have not.

Q. And as you know, I'm Tom Mesereau, and I speak for Michael Jackson, okay?

A. I understand.

Q. If I say anything that's not clear to you, please don't answer it, just let me know you don't understand the question, and I'll try and rephrase it, okay?

A. Absolutely.

Q. All right. You are testifying under what is called immunity, correct?

MR. NICOLA: Objection. Misstates the evidence, Your Honor. It's use immunity.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Is that correct?

A. I believe I am, yes.

Q. And you received a grant of immunity yesterday, true?

A. Verbally, I believe I did.

Q. Okay. And immunity means you cannot be prosecuted for statements you make in court today, true?

A. Correct.

Q. Your position was if you did not receive a grant of immunity, you would not testify, correct?

MR. NICOLA: Objection; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Is that true?

A. Um, per my lawyer's instructions. That's what he requested.

Q. And who is your attorney?

A. Robert Moore.

Q. And he is from Los Angeles, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Your position, through your attorney, was that unless you were immunized from any prosecution based on what you said today, you would not testify as a witness, correct?

A. That's what he asked me to do, yes.

Q. And that's what you agreed to do, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. When your lawyer made that request in this court, you were present, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And to your knowledge, a legal grant of immunity means no one, particularly in the federal government, can come after you for anything you say today under oath, true?

A. To the best of my knowledge, yes.

Q. And the reason you wanted that legal grant of immunity is because currently there is an FBI investigation into allegations that you and others secretly videotaped Michael Jackson on an Xtra Jet flight, true?

A. I am a witness for that case, yes.

Q. My question to you is, the reason you wanted a grant of legal immunity was because you know the FBI is currently investigating allegations that you and others secretly videotaped Michael Jackson on an Xtra Jet flight, true?
A. I can't answer that yes or no.
Q. Are you saying that you've never heard of any FBI investigation into that subject?
A. No. I've spoken to the FBI voluntarily twice.
Q. Then you're aware of the investigation, correct?
A. Pertaining to the allegation, correct.
Q. Okay. How long have you known Frederic Marc Schaffel?
A. Approximately 20 years.
Q. Have you done business with him before?
A. Yes.
Q. What business have you done with him before?
A. Travel arrangements.
Q. Have you done that for him for 20 years?
A. No.
Q. How long have you made travel arrangements for Marc Schaffel?
A. I couldn't be certain of that.
Q. What's your estimate?
A. Whenever he needed a flight. Ten years, maybe? 15 years? 7568

Q. When did you last talk to him?
A. November 20th, 2003.
Q. Are you aware that Mr. Schaffel is currently suing Mr. Jackson for millions of dollars?
A. Yes.
Q. You also are currently suing Mr. Jackson, correct?
A. Not for millions of dollars. Yes.
Q. You also are currently suing Mr. Jackson, correct?
A. Yes. He's suing me.
Q. Mr. Jackson is suing you for invasion of privacy, correct?
A. I believe so.

Q. Are you represented by counsel in Mr. Jackson's suit against you for invasion of privacy?
A. I am.
Q. And who is your lawyer on that case?
A. Robert Moore.
Q. And who is representing you in your suit against Mr. Jackson?
A. Mr. Moore.
Q. Okay. Now, you're aware that if Mr. Jackson is convicted in this case, Mr. Schaffel will have a much easier time winning his suit, right?
MR. NICOLA: Objection. Calls for speculation and it's argumentative.
THE COURT: Sustained; speculation.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: If Mr. Jackson is convicted in this case, you would have an easier time winning your suit, wouldn't you?
A. No, I would not.
MR. NICOLA: Same objection, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. NICOLA: Move to strike the answer.
THE COURT: Stricken.
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone, sir. Your microphone, sir.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The lawsuit Mr. Jackson has filed against you has to do with an Xtra Jet flight on November 21st, 2003, correct?
A. No, sir. It's November 20th.
Q. Okay. My mistake.
A. But to answer your question, yes.
Q. So November 20th of 2003 was the flight?
A. Yes.
Q. That's the flight that is the subject of controversy in the litigation, true?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. And you said you last talked to Mr. Schaffel around that time; is that true?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Mr. Schaffel wasn't on that flight, to your knowledge, true?
A. Yes. No, he was not on that flight.
Q. But you're aware that Mr. Jackson was secretly recorded --

A. I learned that after.
Q. -- and videotaped on that flight, true?
A. I learned it after the fact.
Q. Are you the one who made arrangements for Mr. Jackson to fly on that particular flight?
A. I made arrangements like I normally do for him.
Q. And did you make arrangements for Mr. Jackson to fly on an Xtra Jet flight on November 20th, 2003?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you ever talk to Mr. Schaffel about those flight arrangements?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And you're aware that not only was Mr. Jackson secretly videotaped on the flight but someone tried to sell that videotape, right?
MR. NICOLA: Objection. Calls for hearsay and relevance and vague as to “someone.”
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The allegations against you in that case are that Mr. Jackson was secretly videotaped and recorded and that efforts were made to sell that for profit, true?
MR. NICOLA: Objection; calls for hearsay.
MR. MESEREAU: State of mind, Your Honor.
MR. NICOLA: Then relevance.

MR. MESEREAU: And bias.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled. I'm going to have the question read back so you can understand the question.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: I believe so. I have not read the suit against me.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The reservations for that flight were made through a company called Travel 21, Inc.; is that true?
A. Yes.
Q. Was that your company?
A. I was -- I leased space from that company.
Q. Okay. Well, was the reservation made through the company Travel 21, Inc., to your knowledge?

A. That's how I did the billing on that particular flight.

Q. But you made those reservations, true?

A. I did.

Q. You directly made those reservations with Xtra Jet, correct?

A. I did.

Q. And at some point before you made those reservations, you were asked to use a different company, correct?

A. A different billing company or a different plane company?

Q. A different plane company.

A. Yes, I was.

Q. You insisted on using Xtra Jet, correct?

A. I didn't insist. It was to my client's better -- for his better being.

Q. It was your recommendation that Mr. Jackson fly on Xtra Jet during the flight on November 20th, 2003, correct?

A. It was my -- I discussed it with Mr. Schaffel and we thought it was in the best interest of our client to use Xtra Jet, yes.

Q. So you and Mr. Schaffel made the arrangements for the flight, right?

A. I made the arrangements, but I had discussed it with Mr. Schaffel.

Q. Okay. When did you learn that -- excuse me. Let me rephrase that.

When did you first learn that Mr. Jackson had been secretly videotaped and recorded on that particular flight with Xtra Jet?

A. November 21st of 2003.

Q. To your knowledge, has Mr. Schaffel been involved in any efforts to sell that videotape or audiotape?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Mr. Mesereau, I don't believe there's audio.

MR. NICOLA: Objection, no question pending.

THE WITNESS: Sorry. Okay.

MR. NICOLA: Rules.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Were you going to say you don't believe there's an audio recording?
A. To the best of my knowledge. I don't know of any audio recording.
Q. But you know of a video recording?
A. I do.
Q. Have you seen it?
A. In the FBI building, yes.
Q. To your knowledge, how long will your grant of legal immunity last for?
A. I have no idea, sir.
Q. You haven't learned through your counsel --
MR. NICOLA: Objection.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: -- how long you'd be immunized from any prosecution based on what you say today?
MR. NICOLA: Objection, Your Honor, that is vague.
THE COURT: It violates a privilege.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: For -- let me rephrase that.
When did you begin booking flights for Mr. Jackson?
A. I believe in 2000 -- the latter part of 2000. May have been 2001.
Q. You said you met Mr. Jackson twice, correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And where did you first meet Mr. Jackson?
A. On his ranch.
Q. Approximately when was that?
A. September of 2003.
Q. Did you stay at the ranch?
A. Overnight?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. When was the second time you ever met Mr. Jackson?
A. In Las Vegas.
Q. And approximately when was that?
A. And it was several times. October of 2003.
Q. Typically any flights that were booked through you were arranged for someone other than Mr. Jackson. Excuse me, let me rephrase that.

Typically any flights that you arranged for Mr. Jackson came through, I think you said Evvy or Mr. Schaffel; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, how many flights do you think you booked at the direction of Evvy?
A. Ninety-nine percent of them. Private jets.
Q. How many flights do you think you booked at the direction of Mr. Schaffel?
A. One percent.
THE COURT: Do you want to take a break, Counsel?

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, yes, Your Honor.
(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Sorry for the delay. The court reporters are having a little problem with the computer that runs their court reporting equipment.

Go ahead, Counsel.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Miss Montgomery, I want to clarify a couple of questions I asked about your grant of legal use immunity, okay?

A. (Nods head up and down.)

Q. The kind of immunity you've been granted by the Court is called use immunity, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And use immunity means that anything you say in court today cannot be used against you, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You could, however, still be prosecuted for perjury, correct?

A. To the best of my knowledge, correct.

Q. And the grant of use immunity that you have grew out of concerns about a possible prosecution over the secret videotaping of Mr. Jackson on that Xtra Jet flight, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were sued by Mr. Jackson and others, correct?

MR. NICOLA: Objection. This has been asked and answered, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: No, it hasn't, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I sued him, and then he sued me back.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You also have been sued by Attorney Mark Geragos who was on that flight, correct?

A. I believe so. I have not seen, actually, the lawsuit.

Q. Is it your understanding that Mr. Jackson and his then attorney, Mr. Geragos, were secretly videotaped on an Xtra Jet flight?

MR. NICOLA: I believe that has been asked and answered. Object on those grounds.

MR. MESEREAU: Not with Mr. Geragos, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. And that is, in fact, the flight you booked, correct?

A. I booked the flight.

Q. That's the flight you booked with the assistance of Mr. Schaffel, correct?

MR. NICOLA: Objection, Your Honor, that has been asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Now, you indicated you met Mr. Jackson for the first time in approximately September of 2003, true?

A. Formally.

Q. Formally?

A. Correct.

Q. When did you first meet Mr. Jackson in person?

A. I've been introduced to him backstage at a concert.

Q. And when was that?

A. I don't recall. Many years ago.

Q. Okay. Do you know how many years ago that was?

A. I couldn't tell you that.

Q. You didn't really have a discussion with him at that point, did you?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And were you attempting to try and get Mr. Jackson's business at the time?

A. In September of .03?
Q. The first time you met him.
A. No.
Q. Were you in the travel business at that point?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it ever your goal to obtain Mr. Jackson as a client?
A. When Mr. Schaffel approached me with it, of course.

Q. And when did Mr. Schaffel approach you with the idea of booking flights for Mr. Jackson?
A. When he became an associate of Mr. Jackson's.
Q. When did Mr. Schaffel first approach you about booking flights for Mr. Jackson?
A. I couldn't recall specifically.
Q. Do you know approximately when it was?
A. It was sometime in the year 2000.
Q. Had you been booking flights for Mr. Schaffel before that date?
A. Yes.
Q. And I believe you said you have booked flights for Mr. Schaffel for approximately, what, 10, 15 years?
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. Now, are you the only one, to your knowledge, during that period that was booking flights for Mr. Schaffel?
A. No.
Q. Were other people booking flights for Mr. Schaffel as well?
A. In my office, or --
Q. Anywhere.
A. Well, I can only speak for my office. There was someone else that could have done them.
Q. And who else could have done it in your office?

A. One of my assistants.
Q. Would you have known about the flight if your assistant did it?

A. Absolutely.
Q. To your knowledge, during the 10 or 15 years that you booked flights -- excuse me. For the 10 or 15 years that you or your company booked flights for Mr. Schaffel, was it your understanding that you were the exclusive travel agent for Mr. Schaffel?
A. Absolutely not.
Q. Who else was booking flights for Mr. Schaffel at the time?
A. I'm not privy to that information.
Q. Well, how do you know someone else was?
A. I -- I didn't say that I did. I have no idea. I have no knowledge. Other than in my office, I said I have no knowledge.
Q. Okay. So as far as you know, during the 10 or 15 years that you or your office booked flights for Mr. Schaffel, you were the only people doing that, correct?
A. I don't believe that's what I said. I booked flights for him. Somebody in my office could have booked flights for him. I have no other knowledge if he went through another agency or directly through the airlines. I have no knowledge of that.

Q. And during those 10 or 15 years, you have booked flights for Mr. Schaffel to Brazil, have you not?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. You have booked many flights for Mr. Schaffel to Brazil, have you not?
A. I don't -- I mean, without looking at the documents, I'm sure I have.
Q. Why are you sure you have?
A. I recall a few trips.
Q. He has traveled to Brazil extensively through the years, has he not?
A. I believe he has.
Q. How close a friend were you of Mr. Schaffel during the time you had a friendly relationship with him?
A. We would socialize on occasion. Travel together.
Q. And would that be -- would the socializing be in Las Vegas primarily?

A. No.

Q. Where would it be?

A. Hawaii.

Q. Okay. Now, when you met Mr. Jackson at Neverland in September of 2003, Mr. Schaffel was there, correct?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. And you were there because Mr. Schaffel was conducting a fund-raiser, correct?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. And you were assisting Mr. Schaffel in that fund-raiser, correct?

A. I did.

Q. And Mr. Schaffel arranged for the fund-raiser to take place at Neverland, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then you say you met Mr. Jackson about a month later; is that true?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And approximately when was that? Was that October?

A. Yes.

Q. And where was that, if you know?

A. Yes, I do. The Four Seasons Hotel in Las Vegas.

Q. Okay. Have you ever spoken to Mr. Jackson on the telephone?

A. No.

Q. When you arranged the flights you testified about earlier, you have never spoke to Mr. Jackson in any phone call about arranging those flights, true?

A. That's true.

Q. And it was Mr. Schaffel who talked to you about the flight to Brazil that was supposed to involve the Arvizos, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Were plane tickets ever purchased for that flight?

A. No.

Q. When did you last talk to Mr. Schaffel about that proposed flight?

A. Sometime probably in February of 2001.
Q. Did you ever talk --
A. The year.
Q. I'm sorry.
A. The year. I'm sorry.
Q. Did you ever talk to any member of the Arvizo family about that flight?
A. No. Not that I'm aware of, no.
Q. And at some point you learned that that flight was going to be cancelled, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And you learned the flight was going to be cancelled before you had a chance to buy any flight ticket, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And certainly, it goes without saying, you never sent any bill for any tickets or anything related to that flight, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And that's because Mr. Schaffel talked to you about what he wanted, but the flight never happened, right?

A. He said he had a change of plans.
Q. Okay. Now, around the time the plans were changed, to your knowledge, did Mr. Schaffel go to Brazil?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you arrange the flight for Mr. Schaffel to go to Brazil?
A. I did.
Q. Did you arrange to purchase the tickets for Mr. Schaffel to go to Brazil?
A. Indirectly.
Q. Okay. To your knowledge, did Mr. Schaffel go to Brazil alone?
A. I don't know.
Q. Okay. And do you know approximately when Mr. Schaffel's flight to Brazil took place?
A. Around the same time. March the 1st.
Q. Okay. Do you remember whether you arranged a round-trip for Mr. Schaffel in March of 2003?
A. I did.

Q. And to your knowledge, did he then return to the United States at some point?
A. I can't swear that he actually took the flight.
Q. Okay. But you bought tickets for him, correct?
A. Indirectly. I made reservations for him.
Q. And to your knowledge, he actually did go to Brazil, right?

A. I can't testify to that, Mr. Mesereau. Sorry.
Q. Okay. Okay. You never learned one way or the other?
A. I can't recall if he did.
Q. Okay. Do you know someone named Cindy Bell?
A. I do.
Q. And who is Cindy Bell?
A. She's a flight attendant for Xtra Jet.
Q. And did you ever make arrangements for Mr. Jackson to fly anywhere with Cindy Bell?
A. Yes, I believe so.
Q. And what are you referring to?
A. A flight -- she was a stewardess on one of his flights.
Q. Had you met her personally?
A. No.
Q. Have you spoken to her on the phone?
A. I have.
Q. And you've also spoken to Lauren Wallace on the phone, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And have you met Lauren Wallace personally?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, I believe your lawsuit against Mr. Jackson has to do with your using your credit card to pay for the Xtra Jet flight that he was secretly videotaped on; is that correct?

A. No.
Q. What is your suit against Mr. Jackson for; how much money?
A. I believe the suit is for $50,000.
Q. Okay. And aren't you claiming in the suit that you charged on your credit card costs that were -- should have been borne by Mr. Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Well, what are you --

A. There's no credit card in question here.

Q. Did you pay for a flight involving Mr. Jackson?

A. I did.

Q. And how did you pay for that flight?

A. In cash.

Q. And was that the flight where he was secretly videotaped?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you actually go to Xtra Jet and give them cash?

A. I did.

Q. And where did you go to Xtra Jet and pay cash?

A. Santa Monica, California.

Q. Did you go to their offices?

A. I did.

Q. Okay. And you personally arranged for that flight, true?

A. I did.

Q. Did you get a receipt from Xtra Jet?

A. I -- I'm not sure. I probably did. At that time --

Q. Are you saying -- excuse me. Are you saying you handed $50,000 in cash to Xtra Jet?

A. No, I didn't say that. I hand -- the lawsuit is a different amount than what I gave Xtra Jet.

Q. Are you suing Mr. Jackson because you claim you should be reimbursed by Mr. Jackson for money you spent on his behalf?

A. Correct.

Q. And was the money you claim you spent on his behalf cash that you paid?

A. I have paid part of it, I did that day, part of it in cash.

Q. You say part of it in cash?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Did you give Xtra Jet that cash?

A. I did.

Q. Who did you give the cash to at Xtra Jet?

A. Jeffrey Bohr.

Q. And who is he?

A. The owner of Xtra Jet.

Q. Okay. And was he a friend of yours?

A. I would say more of a business associate.

Q. And you went to Santa Monica to have a meeting with him, true?

MR. NICOLA: Objection. Relevance, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you suing Mr. Jackson for money you paid in cash?

MR. NICOLA: Objection, Your Honor. This is -- asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you suing Mr. Jackson for charges you made on a credit card?

A. No.

MR. NICOLA: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled. Next question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. How long have you had a relationship with the company Xtra Jet?

A. Um, for a couple of years.

Q. And who has been your primary contact at the company called Xtra Jet?

A. Brian -- at the time it was Brian Kranitz.

Q. Okay. And it was your recommendation that Mr. Jackson fly with Xtra Jet, true?

A. No.

Q. Well, it was certainly your recommendation that he fly on Xtra Jet on the day he was secretly videotaped, true?

A. That's true.

Q. Now, on that particular day when Mr. Jackson was secretly videotaped on Xtra Jet, you also flew on a different Xtra Jet flight, correct?

A. I did.

Q. And on that particular day, Mr. Jackson was flying from Las Vegas to Santa Barbara, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And you flew on a separate Xtra Jet flight from Las Vegas to Santa Barbara; is that correct?
A. Yes. In part.
Q. And other people were with you on your particular flight on Xtra Jet on that day, true?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you arrange for those people to be on that flight with you?
A. Only one.
Q. Did you learn at some point that photographers were on that flight that you were on?
A. No.
Q. Okay. To your knowledge, were any media people on the flight that you were on?
A. No.
MR. NICOLA: Objection, relevance, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is in. “No.” Next question.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.
Q. Now, the prosecutor has showed you some itineraries that you've testified you used in your business of making flight arrangements for Mr. Jackson, right?

A. Yes.
Q. And I believe you said that 99 percent of the time Evvy would give you the information you needed to make those flight arrangements, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And your understanding was that you would make the flight reservations for Mr. Jackson, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You'd also make the reservations for others who traveled with Mr. Jackson, right?
A. I would -- she would give me the manifest with their names on it.
Q. Yes. And you would ensure that all of those individuals were allowed to be on the flight that you booked, right?
A. It was an FAA requirement. I had no -- I couldn't allow or disallow anything.
Q. Well, but the plans for Mr. Jackson and others to fly were primarily made by you, right?

A. I was -- I submitted -- I was given a list, I submitted a list, and I had no control of who was on that flight.

Q. Well, I don't mean to suggest that. But certainly if you were told by Evvy --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- that she would like you to make a flight reservation for whatever it may be, let's say five people, you would arrange for all those five people to be on a particular flight, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And would the cost billed by Xtra Jet go up the more people that were on the flight?

A. No.

Q. It was a set fee each time, true?

A. Correct.

Q. So if Mr. Jackson were with two people or six people, it made no difference in terms of cost, correct?

A. Other than the catering, it made no difference.

Q. Okay. And would you arrange the catering as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And are you the person who would arrange for a particular type of food to be served on the flight?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And how were you compensated for making these arrangements?

A. Xtra Jet would bill me back.

Q. Okay. And what was your understanding with Xtra Jet as far as what you would be billed?

A. It was discussed prior to making the reservations.

Q. Would you -- excuse me. Let me rephrase that.

Did you have a set fee that you would be billed by Xtra Jet or did you negotiate it differently for each flight?

A. Well, each destination carries its own price --

Q. Okay.
A. -- depending on where he was going.
Q. So there was a -- in effect, a form or schedule of what the cost of the flight would be, depending on where it went, true?
A. Absolutely.
Q. And how were you compensated?
A. I received commission.
Q. Okay. And would the commission be a percentage of the total cost of the flight?
A. Usually, yes.
Q. All right. Now, if Xtra Jet sent you a bill, would you then typically forward that bill to whoever you thought should pay it?
A. Yes.
Q. And you've indicated that you sent some bills to MJJ Productions, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you sent some bills to Neverland Valley Entertainment, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Now, the prosecutor asked you some questions about who owns those companies, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You don't have any idea whatsoever who actually owns stock or any other interest in Neverland Valley Entertainment, true?
A. I wouldn't say that that's true at all. I would say I was told about Neverland Valley Entertainment.
Q. Only by Mr. Schaffel, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And certainly it was always your understanding that Mr. Schaffel was trying to promote a relationship with Michael Jackson for his own benefit, true?
MR. NICOLA: Objection. Calls for speculation, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You never spoke to Mr. Jackson about whether he owned any interest whatsoever in Neverland Valley Entertainment, did you?

A. No.

Q. Your information about Neverland Valley Entertainment came primarily from Mr. Schaffel, true?

A. And one of the bookkeepers.

Q. How long would you say you were a friend of Mr. Schaffel?

A. I believe I said almost 20 years.

Q. Okay. Did you know whether or not Mr. Schaffel would try and get reimbursed for anything his company allegedly spent for Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Did you have knowledge that Mr. Schaffel would sometimes send bills to Mr. Jackson's accountants?

MR. NICOLA: Objection. Relevance; calls for speculation; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer “yes” or “no.”

THE WITNESS: Yes, I have knowledge.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And did you have any knowledge at the time that Mr. Schaffel was sending bills to Mr. Jackson's accountants for money allegedly spent on the Arvizos?

MR. NICOLA: Objection, Your Honor. That lacks a foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn whether or not Mr. Schaffel was sending bills to Mr. Jackson's accountants seeking reimbursement for money he claimed he spent on the Arvizos?

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, that calls for speculation. Lacks foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I know that he -- I'm sorry. I have some knowledge.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Pardon me?

A. I have some knowledge.

Q. Okay. When you sent bills to Neverland Valley Entertainment, your understanding was that Mr. Schaffel owned some interest in that company, true?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And you also knew that Mr. Schaffel was sending bills to Mr. Jackson's accountants on behalf of Neverland Valley Entertainment claiming he was owed reimbursement, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And you say, as you sit here today, you've never learned Mr. Schaffel has sued Mr. Jackson claiming he's owed millions?

MR. NICOLA: Objection, Your Honor. That's argumentative, calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: The prosecutor showed you some documents involving travel plans that came to you from Evvy Tavasci, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And your understanding was that Evvy Tavasci was a personal assistant to Mr. Jackson, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And she was employed by MJJ Productions, right?

A. As far as I understood, yes.

Q. And your understanding was that MJJ Productions was a company owned by Michael Jackson, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you would often make travel arrangements for Mr. Jackson and members of his family, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you meet other members of his family at any time, to your knowledge?

A. Um, cousins.

Q. And who were they?

A. Elijah Jackson. People that were in Vegas.

Q. And to your knowledge, who was Elijah Jackson?

A. I believe to be a cousin or a nephew.

Q. Okay. Did you ever meet Grace Rwaramba?

A. Yes.

Q. And where did you meet Grace Rwaramba?

A. Officially on the tarmac in Santa Barbara.

Q. And your understanding was that she was a nanny for Mr. Jackson's --

A. Correct.
Q. -- children, correct?
A. Correct.

Q. Did you ever meet his children?
A. I don't recall.
Q. How about Levon Jackson?
A. I can't recall that either.
Q. Okay. How about P.K. Jackson?
A. That's one of the children.
Q. P.M. Jackson? Never met them?
A. To the best of my knowledge, no. Best of my recollection, no.
Q. You met the nanny but not the children, right?
A. Right.
Q. And how about Patricia Chavez?
A. No.
Q. But you remember booking flights for these individuals, right?
A. The names are very familiar.
Q. Okay.
A. Sure.
Q. Do you recall making any special arrangements for the dietary needs of his children?
A. Diet -- special dietary needs. Just what Evvy would tell me to order.
Q. So pretty much she made those decisions, not you?
A. That's correct.
Q. She'd forward the information to you, you would then call Xtra Jet and arrange for it to happen; is that right?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. When did you last book a flight for Mr. Jackson, to your knowledge?
A. November 19th, 2003.
Q. Do you ever remember booking flights for the Cascio family?
A. I do.
Q. Did you ever meet the Cascio family?
A. Just the son.

Q. Okay. Ever meet the parents?
A. No.
Q. To your knowledge, are you the only one in your family suing Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. Is it you individually, or your company, or both?
A. As an individual.
Q. Okay. The company did not sue Mr. Jackson; is that true?
A. Yes, that's true.
Q. And when did you file that suit, if you know?
A. I believe 2004.
Q. Was it filed in Los Angeles?
A. Yes.
Q. To your knowledge, is the case currently going forward?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Are you familiar with an individual named Michelle Christina?
A. Not that I recall.
Q. How about a company called Oneness, O-n-e-n-e-s-s?
A. Yes.
Q. And when did you first become familiar with a company called Oneness?
MR. NICOLA: I'm going to object, Your Honor. It doesn't appear to be relevant. It's beyond the scope of direct.
MR. MESEREAU: I will -- I will tie it up, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You get involved in charitable fund-raisers from time to time, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is that part of what your travel company does?
A. I donate through my travel company.
Q. Do you ever help to arrange charitable fund-raisers?
A. Yes.
Q. And is that one of the things your company does?

A. Like I just said, I donate travel for charities.

Q. Okay. And you became familiar with a company Oneness while doing just that, right?

MR. NICOLA: I'm going to renew my objection, Your Honor, on relevance grounds.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Are you claiming that because Mr. Jackson owes you money, you're not going to pay a company called Oneness?

MR. NICOLA: Objection. Your Honor, there's --

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many fund-raisers have you been involved in for Marc Schaffel?

A. One.

Q. Just one?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Have you ever assisted in promoting Mr. Schaffel's company in any way?

MR. NICOLA: I'm going to object. Your Honor, this is not relevant.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you ever assisted Mr. Schaffel in any public relations efforts involving his company?

A. "His company" being Neverland Valley?

Q. Any company he owns.

A. Not that I -- I mean, I'm not sure I'm understanding where -- what the question is. Have I promoted his company?

Q. Yes.

A. I would say no to that.

Q. Okay. But the fund-raiser you claim you met Mr. Jackson at was a fund-raiser arranged by Mr. Schaffel, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were assisting him with that, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Were you assisting him in raising money?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you done that on other occasions?
A. Yes.
Q. How many times have you assisted Marc Schaffel in raising money, to your knowledge?
A. Just that one time.
Q. I'm sorry if I misunderstood.
A. Just that one time.
Q. Okay. Never on any other occasion?
A. Not that I'm aware of.
Q. Okay. Have you ever had any kind of a financial interest in any projects involving Mr. Schaffel?
MR. NICOLA: Objection, Your Honor. It's vague, lacks a foundation and not relevant.

MR. MESEREAU: Bias, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: No.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you ever done any business with Mr. Schaffel other than arranging flights and helping him with that one fund-raiser?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. When did you first meet with any representative of the prosecution about your testimony?
A. Sometime in the year 2004.
Q. Were you contacted by any representative of the prosecution for purposes of that meeting?
A. I received a phone call.
Q. Okay. And who called you?
A. I believe it was Lieutenant Jeff Klapakis.
Q. And how many meetings do you think you've had before today with any member of the prosecution to discuss this case?
A. Specifically the prosecution or the detectives?
Q. Let's start with the prosecution.
A. I met with them -- I just met them last week.
Q. For the first time?

A. Yes.
Q. Were you with your attorney?

A. No.
Q. When did you first notify the prosecution that you would not testify in this trial unless you were granted legal immunity?
A. I did not do that.
Q. Who did it?
A. My attorney.
Q. Do you know when he first did that?
A. I can't be certain of that.
Q. Okay. Do you have any idea at all?
A. I think it was Thursday maybe.
Q. Okay.
A. I have no idea.
Q. Okay. Did you ever personally, on your own initiative, call any sheriff to give information about Mr. Jackson?
A. I did.
Q. And when did you do that?
A. After I saw the 60 Minutes Ed Bradley special.
Q. Okay. Did you then meet with any representative with the sheriff's department?
A. Not at that time, no.
Q. How many times have you personally called the sheriff's department to volunteer information about Mr. Jackson?
A. About Mr. Jackson?
Q. Yes.

A. I couldn't tell you a number.
Q. How many interviews do you think you've had with any representative of the sheriff's department about Mr. Jackson?
A. Several.
Q. How many do you think?
A. In person, three or four.
Q. Have you ever had any discussion with anyone about what you were going to say in court today linked to the prosecution?
A. Yes.
Q. Who?

A. Mr. Nicola and the sergeant and the lieutenant.

Q. Did you discuss with Mr. Nicola what questions you were going to be asked in court?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you and he discuss what your responses were going to be?

A. To tell the truth.

Q. Say anything more than that?

A. Just tell the truth. Be honest.

Q. That's all he said, right?

A. To relax.

Q. Okay. So he went over questions he was going to ask you, and all you said in response was, “I'll tell the truth, I'll tell the truth,” right?

A. To answer the questions pertaining to the 7610 evidence that I am responsible for doing, correct.

Q. Did you ever discuss with Mr. Nicola of the prosecution the fact that you had legal immunity?

A. After my attorney called him, I did.

Q. And did you and he ever go over what legal immunity means?

A. Yes. We touched on it.

Q. And when did you do that?

A. I believe that day, Thursday.

Q. Okay. And that would be last Thursday, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Did you and he discuss any document that gave you legal immunity from being prosecuted for what you said in court?

A. No.

Q. Did you and your attorney ever meet with Mr. Nicola regarding your grant of legal immunity?

A. Mr. Nicola was introduced to my attorney yesterday morning for the first time. I wasn't privy to their conversation.

Q. So you'd never had a meeting with Mr. Nicola and your attorney present, correct?

A. Not a meeting, no.

Q. Okay. To your knowledge, have you ever been involved in any secretly recorded telephone conversations concerning this case?

A. Yes.

Q. How many conversations, to your knowledge, have you been involved in that were secretly recorded?

A. One.

Q. Did you know that conversation was going to be recorded?

A. I was asked to record it, yes.

Q. Was that by the representatives of the sheriff's department?

A. Yes.

Q. And did you call someone knowing that that call was going to be secretly recorded?

A. I did.

Q. Okay. And approximately when was that?

A. 2004, the beginning -- I'm not sure. I'm sorry.

Q. Do you have any idea?

A. Not without reviewing documents, no, sir.

Q. Okay. The round trip that you -- excuse me, let me try and find the right word.

You and Mr. Schaffel discussed a round trip to Brazil involving the Arvizos, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you put together an itinerary for that round trip, right?

A. I made a reservation for that trip.

Q. And in the course of making the reservation, you actually had an itinerary with dates, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. There was a departure date, true? And there was a return date, right?

A. True.

Q. The trip you were arranging was for how many people?

A. Four.

Q. You separately had arranged a Brazil trip for Mr. Schaffel, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You arranged a separate trip for Mr. Schaffel around the time that you and he discussed arranging a trip for the Arvizos, correct?

A. Yes.
Q. And when you used to get tickets for Mr. Schaffel, how would you typically arrange to pay for those tickets?
A. He would send me a check or put it on his credit card.
Q. Did he ever send you a check involving a trip for the Arvizos?
A. I couldn't tell you for sure. I'd have to look at documents.
Q. To your knowledge, was there ever a charge made on any credit card for a trip to Brazil involving the Arvizos?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Okay.

A. No.
Q. And at no time did you ever arrange any trip to Brazil for Mr. Jackson, right?
A. That's right.
Q. And at no time did you ever speak to Mr. Jackson on the phone about any trip to Brazil, right?
A. I've never spoken to Mr. Jackson on the telephone.
Q. And you've never spoken to him in person about any trip to Brazil at any time?
A. That's correct.
MR. MESEREAU: I have no further questions at this time.
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. NICOLA:
Q. Mrs. Montgomery, did you actually review the Judge's order granting you use immunity during the break?
A. I did.
Q. Okay. And do you understand use immunity does not protect you from lying on the witness stand; isn't that correct?
A. Absolutely.
Q. You indicated with respect to the events of November 20th of 2004 -- 2003. Thank you for that -- with respect to the events of November 20th, 2003, you've cooperated with the FBI?

A. I have on several occasions.
Q. Okay. And was it your idea to request immunity in this case?
A. No, it was not.
Q. It was your attorney's?
A. Absolutely -- yes.
Q. Were you present in court yesterday when immunity for you was discussed amongst all the attorneys and the Judge?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Did your attorney actually object to that?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Again, was that your idea or his?
A. It was his idea.
Q. You mentioned that you contacted law enforcement for the first time after seeing an Ed Bradley 60 Minutes interview?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Was that broadcast on television?
A. It was.
Q. Was there something about that that caused you to pick up the phone and call the police?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: You may answer.

A. Yes. A statement Mr. Jackson made.
Q. What was that statement?
A. That he was mishandled by the authorities upon his arrest.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled. It's redirect of questions you asked.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Would you answer that question again? I believe you were cut off.
THE COURT: I'll just have the question and statement read back.
Read the question and answer, please.
(Record read.)
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Were you present at his arrest scene?

A. I was -- yes. When he was put into handcuffs, yes, I was.
Q. Was that the tail end of that November 20th flight in 2003?
A. It was close to the tail end of it.
Q. Okay. And you witnessed the events?
A. I did.
Q. Felt what Mr. Jackson said on the television was not true?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Move to strike; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained. It's stricken.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Did you see Mr. Jackson being mishandled by anybody?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Could you tell us on approximately how many occasions you contacted Lieutenant Klapakis?
A. How many times I contacted him? Through the course of this investigation?
Q. Yes.
A. Many.
Q. You talk to him frequently, correct?
A. I do.
Q. And did you always relay to him information that you had firsthand knowledge of?
A. I did.
Q. Okay. Did you also relay to him things that you had heard from other sources?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you ever actively try to hide anything from Lieutenant Klapakis when he inquired with you about facts you may know about the case?
A. No, I did not.
Q. Did you hide anything from the FBI when they interviewed you about the November 20th flight?
A. No, I did not.
Q. I'd like to clean something up in your cross-examination. You actually testified that the flight arrangements you made for the Arvizos to Brazil occurred in 2001. That actually occurred in 2003?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Could you take a look at Exhibit No. 848 again, please, and just confirm that?

A. February 25th, 2003.

Q. And the day of their flight was March 2nd?

A. March 1st of 2003.

Q. And you indicated on cross-examination that at some point Mr. Schaffel called you and said there was a change of plans regarding the Arvizos' trip?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Do you recall his tone of voice when he spoke with you?

A. I'm not sure I recall his tone of voice.

Q. Do you recall anything about that conversation that caused you to take particular note of it?

A. Normal for Schaffel's behavior.

Q. Normal behavior for Mr. Schaffel?

A. Uh-huh. I would say yes to that.

Q. Is there anything that can help you pinpoint the date of when he contacted you and said there had been a change of plans?

A. I don't recall a date that he would have told me to cancel the reservations.

Q. Do you know even whether that occurred after the flight was scheduled to leave?

A. Reservations, if you don't ticket, will fall out of the computer system after -- 24 hours after the scheduled departure date.

Q. Is there any indication on Exhibit 847 of a cancellation date?

A. 848?

Q. 848, I'm sorry.

A. No. They were never physically cancelled.

Q. Okay. The information regarding the address for Mrs. Arvizo --

A. Yes.

Q. -- Mr. Schaffel give you that address?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you read that whole address into the record for us, please?

A. Ms. Janet Arvizo, 11520 Trent Court, Calabasas, California 91302.

Q. Okay. And he gave you each part of that address?

A. Yes.

Q. To your knowledge, and with your experience in dealing with securing visas for clients that travel outside of the country, do you know the different levels of visas that are available for travel into Brazil specifically?

A. You have to call each consulate every time you book into a country, find out the specific needs.

Q. And with your contact specifically with respect to Brazil and Mr. Schaffel traveling down there, did you have knowledge from your contacts with the consulate as to whether they issued 30- or 60- or 90-day visas?

A. I called to inquire at the time I made the reservations, yes.

Q. So you called to inquire on the Arvizos' reservation as well?

A. I called because they needed passports, so I needed to know how --

Q. Do you recall what the length of the visa was they were requesting?

A. I don't recall that.

Q. If you asked for a 30-day visa, but you overextend your stay, do you know what happens?

A. Well, if -- customs, if they catch you, they will kick you out of the country.

Q. Okay. But they have to catch you first?

A. Yes. They would catch you trying to depart the country, actually. They would see that your visa had expired, if it did expire.

Q. You mentioned that you secretly recorded one telephone conversation. Do you recall which detective asked you to do that?

A. Two detectives. One lieutenant, one sergeant.

Q. Okay. And was that something that you did willingly?

A. Yes.

Q. They didn't pressure you or threaten some kind of prosecution against you if you didn't do that?

A. No.

Q. Has anybody at this table, anybody you've met from law enforcement or the prosecution, ever threatened you or tried to coerce you and get you to say anything that was not truthful?

A. No.

Q. Does this grant of use immunity protect you from lying on the witness stand?

A. No, it does not.

Q. Do you understand if you do, you can be prosecuted for perjury, correct?

A. Yes, correct.

Q. Your suit against Mr. Jackson, you are suing for the cost of the flight from Las Vegas to Santa Barbara, plus other expenses?

A. Correct.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. Your Honor, I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. The prosecutor asked you questions about what your attorney said in court yesterday, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you were present yesterday when your attorney made those comments on your behalf, true?

A. Yes.

Q. Your attorney expressed a concern in open court that you might be prosecuted in Nevada, true?

A. I believe he said that.

Q. Your attorney also expressed concerns that you might be prosecuted in federal court, true?

A. I believe he said that.

Q. And because of his fear that you might be prosecuted, he didn't want you to testify at all,

correct?

A. It's his job to do that.

Q. Because of his fears that you would be prosecuted, he didn't want you testifying at all, true?

A. I've had a conversation with my attorney. I don't believe he has any fears of my prosecution.

Q. Did your attorney express concerns yesterday in this courthouse in your presence and on your behalf that you might be prosecuted in Nevada and also by federal authorities?

MR. NICOLA: Object. Objection, Your Honor, calls for hearsay and speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: It's a concern that you might be prosecuted that resulted in your demand for a legal immunity, true?

MR. NICOLA: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Your position yesterday in this courtroom was, "If I don't get immunity, I don't testify," right?

A. That was my attorney's position.

Q. But you had nothing to do with that?

MR. NICOLA: Objection, that's argumentative, Your Honor. Calls for hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.

MR. NICOLA: May I inquire, two, from here, Your Honor?

THE COURT: No.

MR. NICOLA: From here?

THE COURT: Yes.

FURTHER REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Is it your understanding that if you did something wrong on November 20th you can still be prosecuted either in Nevada or federal court?

A. Yes, it's my understanding.
MR. NICOLA: Okay. I have no further questions.
MR. MESEREAU: No further questions.
THE COURT: Thank you. May step down.
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, may the witness be subject to re-call?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Am I excused?
MR. NICOLA: Yes.
THE WITNESS: Thanks.
THE COURT: Call your next witness.
MR. NICOLA: I believe it's going to be Lieutenant Jeff Klapakis, Your Honor.
THE BAILIFF: He's on his way in.
THE COURT: You're still under oath. You may be seated.

JEFF KLAPAKIS
Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. NICOLA:
Q. Good morning, Lieutenant Klapakis.
A. Good morning.

Q. Do you recognize the document labeled 848 in front of you, Exhibit 848?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Were you present during a meeting with Cindy Montgomery, Cynthia Montgomery, where she explained the contents of that document for you?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Did she explain to you how the address for Janet Arvizo was placed on that bill and who the source of the information for that was?
A. Yes, she --
MR. SANGER: Objection.
MR. NICOLA: It's a "yes" or "no" question.
MR. SANGER: I'll withdraw it, as long as he goes no further.
Q. MR. NICOLA: Just "yes" or "no."
A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Are you trained to search for addresses and verify whether or not they exist?

A. Yes.

Q. Does the address listed on 848 for Janet Arvizo in Calabasas exist?

A. No.

MR. NICOLA: Nothing further.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. You were the officer who first had a formal interview with Miss Montgomery; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was on January 13th, 2004?

A. Well, my first contact with her was in November of .03.

Q. Oh, that's true. Okay. As far as a formal interview, though, you didn't have a formal interview until that time?

A. I've had several interviews with her. I'm not quite sure of the date, sir.

Q. You were aware that prior to that, she had called and volunteered some information. She had talked to somebody else in the sheriff's department; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And as a result of her calling and volunteering information, you then called and talked to her?

A. Yes.

Q. And you had a rather extensive interview with her; is that correct?

A. Phone interview, yes.

Q. Phone interview.

And following that, arrangements were made to meet with her on January 22nd, 2004, correct?

A. I believe it was in January. But I'm not quite sure of the date.

Q. And that was a date in which you met with her and with her attorney, Robert Moore; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And she then volunteered information about Mr. Schaffel; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And she volunteered information about other people associated with Mr. Schaffel; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And she offered to make a pretext telephone call to one of those people; is that correct?
A. She did agree to do that, yes.
Q. And she made the call and it was tape-recorded for the benefit of the sheriff's department; is that right?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. NICOLA:
Q. To your knowledge, Lieutenant, are members of police agencies investigating crimes or their agents - for example, citizens who agree to work with them - allowed to tape-record telephone conversations during the course of an investigation?
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object to the form of the question. Calls for speculation, and/or irrelevant information.

THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Yes, they are.
MR. NICOLA: Okay. Nothing further.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. All right. So just to clarify that, under -- your understanding of California law is that if law enforcement, a peace officer, authorizes somebody to make a call and tape-record it, that that permits them then to do so; is that right?
A. That is my understanding of California law.
Q. In other words, it would be unlawful otherwise for just an ordinary citizen to tape-record a telephone conversation without the consent of both parties to the conversation; is that right?

A. That's correct. You need law enforcement direction.
Q. Yes. So there's a law enforcement exception to that rule - all right?
A. Yes.
Q. -- that allows -- that allows law enforcement to tape-record in California, to tape-record a conversation without the consent of the other party, correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And that's been interpreted to allow a law enforcement officer to empower another person, a civilian, to make a call and tape-record it without the consent of the other party as long as law enforcement said it was okay; is that right?
A. That is my understanding of California law, yes.
Q. Okay. And in this particular case, did you -- did your office -- whether it was you in particular or not, did your office participate in making this pretext call that was tape-recorded?
A. I participated in it.
Q. Okay. So this wasn't just saying, "If you want to tape-record somebody, go do it." It was you actually sitting there getting the tape-recorder set up on the phone and having her place the call in your presence; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. And it was your understanding at that time that she was attempting to be helpful in the case against Mr. Jackson; is that right?
A. She was helpful in this investigation, yes.
MR. SANGER: Okay. No further questions.
MR. NICOLA: No further questions, Your Honor.
THE COURT: You may step down.
Call your next witness.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: People call Hamid Moslehi.

THE COURT: Come forward. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Right here, sir.
THE COURT: Face the clerk here and raise your right hand.

HAMID MOSLEHI

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Hamid Moslehi. H-a-m-i-d; M-o-s-l-e-h-i.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Moslehi.

A. Good morning.

Q. What is your occupation, sir?

A. I do still photography and video production.

Q. And what training and experience have you had that qualifies you to -- for that profession?

A. Training; like what do you mean by that?

Q. Well, I mean, what is your background that qualifies you for that position, to be a professional photographer and videographer?

A. Well, I majored in art directing, actually. But then now I started, like, experience hands-on in photography, and then I got into video production, so I became one.

Q. All right. How long have you been a professional photographer/videographer?

A. Since 1990 I would say.

Q. Okay. The microphone I'm going to have you use is the one on the left there, okay?

A. Sorry.

Q. And tell me a little bit about the type of photography that you do and the type -- we'll start with the type of photography that you do.

A. I do, like, documentaries. I do events. And kind of news style, too.

Q. Okay. When I say “photography,” I'll -- my intention will be to cover still photography as well as videography, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. When you say "documentaries," are you talking about videos?

A. That's correct.

Q. What about production of videos? Editing, this type of thing? Do you participate in that activity?

A. Sure. I do, like, pre-production, and then production, and post-production, which contains some editing work.

Q. Okay. What are the distinctions between pre-editing --

A. Pre-production is mostly planning for the production. Production, it's the shooting itself. And post-production is editing it and putting the final touches together.

Q. Do you have any employees for your business?

A. I hire, like, independent contractors.

Q. On an as-needed basis or --

A. That's correct.

Q. Have you ever -- well, let me back up. How do you work with an individual who hires you in terms of the legal arrangement? Do you ever act as an employee?

A. No. They're mostly independent contractor. Basically they work per project. So I give them a call, check their schedule. If they are available, then I book them.

Q. And what type of independent contractors do you use? What --

A. Freelance people mostly.

Q. But specifically what tasks do you assign them?

A. It could be sound, it could be assisting, it could be lighting, grip, all sort of thing.

Q. What's a grip?

A. A grip is the guy who put, like, stands together or, you know, carries heavy equipment around, and things like that.

Q. Have you ever been contracted by MJJ Productions for any of your photography work?

A. MJJ Production has used my services from 1996, I believe, till 2003.

Q. And what type of services have you provided to MJJ Productions?

A. Still photography and video production.

Q. How many projects have you worked on with MJJ Productions?

A. I would say between maybe 40 to 50 projects.

Q. And if you can tell me, give me an example, or a couple of examples, of the nature of the work that you do for MJJ Productions.

A. Could you be more specific to that? Like --

Q. Well, do you ever receive still photography assignments?

A. Sure.

Q. What type?

A. It could have been a birthday party. It could have been family portrait pictures. It could have been concert.

Q. Okay.

A. Or documentaries.

Q. Same question for videography.

A. Same.

Q. Same answers?

A. Same answers.

Q. Okay. When you work for MJJ Productions, how do you become aware that there is a job for you there? Who informs you that MJJ Productions wants to employ your services?

A. Typically I would get a call from Mr. Jackson's personal assistant at MJJ Production. And basically I would check my schedule. Upon my availability, I would book that job and take it from there.

Q. What do you understand MJJ Productions to be?

A. I believe it's Michael Joe Jackson Productions.

Q. Okay. Michael Jackson's production company?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. And when you say “Michael Jackson,” you're referring to the gentleman seated in -- at the table to my right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And when you shoot video work, what type of documentaries? You mentioned that you would shoot video documentaries. Give me an example.

A. For example, Mr. Jackson would take a trip to London to do -- for, like, a fund-raising event. And I would shoot basically fans, media, everything that goes around it. And including the event itself.

Q. Would Mr. Jackson ever personally call you to set up one of these contracts that you'd do for him?

A. Maybe a few times.

Q. Okay. And when I say "contract," I mean you're a contractor, contracted employment?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Did you ever do any public relations type of photography for Mr. Jackson?

A. In what sense? Like --

Q. Videos or still photographs that were going to be used for public relations purposes.

A. Sure.

Q. How many times, if you can approximate?

A. Maybe 20, 25.

Q. Did you interact with Mr. Jackson when you were shooting those projects?

A. Sure.

Q. Can you tell me what his level of interest was and involvement -- well, let's start with his interest. When you did those projects, can you characterize how involved -- let's strike that question. We'll go right to involvement.

How involved would Mr. Jackson be with you when you would be shooting a project that was for public relations purposes?

A. How involved? Like what --

Q. Would he interact with you?

A. Sure.

Q. And what would his level of interaction be in terms of what he wanted concerning the specific project?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you understand the question?

A. Please repeat that question one more time.

Q. My question is, what would his level of interaction be with you regarding the video project that you're shooting for public relations purposes?

A. Mostly technical. Like lighting, camera angles.

Q. He would talk to you about that?

A. Sure.

Q. All right. Would he tell you what angles he wanted?

A. He would look at the monitor and then make some suggestions as to what he likes it to be.

Q. What about the finished product? Would he be interested or involved with you concerning what the finished project would look like?

A. Sure. Sometimes.

Q. All right. Were you ever present when he was shooting a music video?

A. Yes.

Q. What was -- was he involved in that process, if you know?

A. Of the story? Or --

Q. The shooting of it. How involved would he be with the part of the project that you observed?

A. I'm sure he would be involved with the director as far as the story of the music video, and also with the director of photography for the look of the picture.

Q. As far as the finished product would go, can you characterize Mr. Jackson's level of interest in terms of how that finished product would come out?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Very perfectionist, I would say.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And why do you say he's a perfectionist?

A. Because he would make comments that would make sense, changes, and using a level of perfectionism I would say.

Q. Were you familiar with a project that was -- that involved Martin Bashir that was entitled, “Living with Michael Jackson”?

A. Say that, your question, one more time.

Q. Are you aware --

A. Oh, yes, I am.

Q. -- of a video called “Living with Michael Jackson,” a documentary?

A. I am.

Q. Do you know if Mr. Jackson was involved in the production part of that documentary?

A. Production of it?

Q. Yes.

A. Meaning --

Q. The cutting, the editing. I'm talking about the whole production. Do you understand the word “production”?

A. I do understand the word “production.”

Q. Okay.

A. When you say “involved,” because Mr. Jackson was the subject of this documentary.

Q. I know.

A. Now, technically, was he involved technically with it?

Q. Yes.

A. In some level.

Q. And what level was he involved?

A. Mostly the look of the camera and the picture.

Q. Okay. And did you participate at all in the making of that video production?

A. The Martin Bashir, right?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, I did.

Q. In what capacity?

A. I was called from Mr. Jackson's office to come to Neverland and supervise a production or a shoot that is taking place by Martin Bashir. I was -- usually my duties are to make sure that Mr. Jackson looks good in that monitor or a picture of it. That includes camera angles, lighting, other technical things. And that's what my involvement was for that documentary.

Q. Okay. What does the term “personal videographer” mean?

A. A personal videographer would be someone who creates video images for another person.

Q. And is it uncommon in the world of celebrities for celebrities to have their own personal videographer?

A. Actually, it's called a personal DP. This stands for Director of Photography.

Q. All right.

A. It is common that celebrities have their own DP that they bring on a shoot, because that person is familiar with that, with the image of that celebrity, and it could help to create a good-looking picture.

Q. And during the period of time that you worked as a contractor for Mr. Jackson, were you his personal DP?

A. I worked on certain projects that I acted as a personal DP for Mr. Jackson.

Q. Was there anybody else during that time who was working with him as a personal DP?

MR. MESEREAU: Vague as to time.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's fair.

Q. During -- I believe you said that you began working with him in .97?

A. 1996.

Q. 1996. And when did you finish, stop working with him?

A. I believe early 2003.

Q. Okay. So during that period, are you aware if he had any other personal DPs?

A. At the beginning there was another gentleman that also had the same kind of position.

Q. Uh-huh. And then at some point, did you become the only personal DP for Mr. Jackson?

A. That's correct.

Q. When did that occur?

A. I think towards .97. 1997.

Q. Okay. So from .97 to 2003, were you Mr. Jackson's personal DP?

A. That's correct.

Q. And did you ever travel with Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you ever go on tour with Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you ever go to places at Mr. Jackson's behest, at his request, to meet him and do video shoots?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. Okay. Now, as far as the Martin Bashir video, you said that you participated in -- well, let me strike that.
Did you participate as a personal DP in any of the video shoots involving Michael Jackson for the Martin Bashir special?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. How many?
A. I'm sorry.
Q. Help yourself.
A. I think three sessions.
Q. Do you know the dates?
A. To my best memory, I think it was July 30th of 2002, July 31st of 2002, and the last session was mid-January of 2003.
Q. And on these individual shoots, what were your duties?
A. The very first session, I took some still photographs and I hired a crew to do like a behind-the-scenes footage.
Q. Where was this first one that occurred on July 30th? Where did that shoot take place?
A. At Neverland Valley Ranch.
Q. All right. And you took some stills?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Any video shooting on that day?
A. Yes.

Q. Did you help out with that at all?
A. Well, I hired a crew to do video and sound as a behind the scene, so, yes, there was a video and the still photography that day.
Q. And as far as the videographer for the actual special, the Martin Bashir special, did you do the video for that?
A. I helped Mr. Bashir's crew for lighting purposes.

Q. Okay. So Mr. Bashir had his own crew for that shot -- that shooting, and you assisted with lighting?

A. Well, yeah, my duty were to light Mr. Jackson.

Q. Did you also help out with camera angles?

A. Yes.

Q. And what's your goal when you try to assist in lighting and camera angles? What are you trying to do?

A. I try to make my subject the best that they can look.

Q. Okay. What occurred on the 31st -- first of all, let me back up. Where did that shoot occur?

A. The 31st?

Q. Yes.

A. Neverland Valley.

Q. And what did you do at Neverland Valley on that date?

A. The second day, basically it was supposed to do just -- to be an interview only. So I helped Mr. Bashir's crew put up lighting. I did the lighting for Mr. Jackson. And I also recorded it on a separate camera.

Q. Did you record anything on a separate camera the first day?

A. Well, I had a crew the first day, which they were shooting behind-the-scene footage.

Q. So you had a separate camera both days?

A. They were different cameras, yes.

Q. Okay. And then you had another shoot in mid-January of .03. Where did that shoot occur?

A. Florida.

Q. Did you -- and I take it you flew to Florida to make that appointment?

A. That's correct.

Q. How did you become aware that that -- on the trip to Florida, how did you become aware that your services were going to be requested?

A. I believe I received a call from Mr. Jackson's assistant from MJJ Productions, and they informed me that there's going to be another interview with Martin Bashir of Mr. Jackson in Florida.

Q. Okay. And what did you do to help out on that particular shoot?
A. Mostly lighting for Mr. Jackson.

Q. Did you do any behind-the-scenes video footage on that?
A. Yes, I did some footage of behind the scene and still photos.
Q. During the course of your work for Mr. Jackson, have you ever shot any videotape of a family with the last name of Arvizo?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. On how many occasions?
A. Approximately three.
Q. Do you remember the approximate month and year that those three video shoots took place or --
A. Each of them?
Q. Yes.
A. I believe the first one was October of 2000. Or, I'm sorry, the first one was September 2000, if I remember correctly.
The second was -- the second one was October of 2000, if I remember correctly.
And I believe the last one was February 19 of 2003.
Q. Were you present -- well, let me ask you, first of all, did you see the Martin Bashir special?
A. "Living with Michael Jackson"?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
Q. Did you see the segment in which Gavin Arvizo appears in that documentary?

A. Well, there's two versions. There's an ABC version and a BBC version. I saw the ABC version.
Q. Okay.
A. And I saw Gavin with Mr. Jackson in a scene.
Q. Were you present when that scene was shot?
A. No, I was not.
Q. Okay. Let's go back to the first video that you did for Mr. Jackson on -- involving the Arvizo family. You said it was September 2000. What was that shoot about? First of all, tell me, if you can recall, who contacted you.

A. If I remember correctly, I received a call from MJJ Productions, Mr. Jackson's personal assistant, and they informed me that Mr. Jackson wants me to go to Neverland to shoot some footage.

Q. And you arrived at Neverland?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you have any crew with you?

A. I believe I had one assistant, if I remember correctly.

Q. And what did you do at Neverland on that particular occasion?

A. I was told by Mr. Jackson to get some footage of Gavin and him walking around at Neverland.

Q. Is that the first time you met Gavin?

A. I believe so.

Q. Did you meet any other members of the Arvizo family on that trip?

A. His brother.

Q. Do you recall his name?

A. Star.

Q. So tell me how you went about your task of getting video footage. How did that happen, specifically?

A. I believe I was told by Mr. Jackson to just get some coverage, footage of Mr. Jackson and Gavin walking around the Neverland.

Q. Were these shoots scripted at all?

A. No.

Q. How did you go about getting this video footage?

A. I would basically decide what angle, how, where, you know, to shoot this footage.

Q. And who would decide the arrangement of the subjects and what the subjects would be doing?

A. Sometime Mr. Jackson will direct me as far as what shots he wants. But most of the time he would leave it up to me.

THE COURT: All right. Let's take our break.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Mr. Moslehi, where we left off, we were talking about the September 2000 video that you shot of Gavin and Michael Jackson.

Now, my last question really deals with the -- dealt more with the subject -- what the individual subjects of that video were doing.

First of all, let me ask you, who were the individual subjects in that video?

A. Mr. Jackson.

Q. Yes.

A. Gavin. I believe there was a shot of three of them, with Star, the brother.

Q. All right. Anybody else who appeared in that video?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. And in terms of what Mr. Jackson was doing in that video, who decided that, what he was doing, in terms of whether he was standing in a place, walking, that kind of thing?

A. Well, Mr. Jackson asked me to shoot some footage, and while he was walking with Gavin, I will decide whether to get an over-the-shoulder shot, which is a back shot, or run in the front and get a front shot.

Q. Okay. I understand that you were in charge of shooting the photography, the video, and that you made a decision about camera angles, right?

A. Sure.

Q. And but in terms of what Mr. Jackson was doing when you shot those photographs, did you direct him, or did Mr. Jackson do that on his own?

A. You mean the video, right?

Q. Yes. What he was doing.

A. He was walking with Gavin, I guess.

Q. Did you understand my question?

A. No, I'm sorry. Go ahead.

Q. Who made that decision, what Mr. Jackson was doing, what he did in that video? Who decided --

A. Himself. Mr. Jackson himself.

Q. So you didn't tell him, “Go stand over there. And now I want you to walk across" --

A. No.

Q. Okay. He decided.

Let's talk about the second video. You mentioned that was in October of the same year; is that right? 2000?

A. As I remember, yes.

Q. Who were the subjects of that video?

A. Well, the video was a pilot. A pilot is like a little sample of an idea. Mr. Jackson -- well, I had a meeting with Mr. Jackson, and he informed me that he likes to do a program called "Neverland Channel."

Q. Okay.

A. Which is like --

Q. So this was a little pilot --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. I don't think the witness completed his response, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Then I believe we were getting nonresponsive. But --

THE COURT: Well, you can ask him another question. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. So going back to my original question, who were the subjects of that video?

A. The host of the video was Star, Gavin's brother.

Q. Okay. And who else appeared in that video?

A. Some other kids, including Gavin, and some animals.

Q. How long did that video take to shoot?

A. A good 16-hour day it was.

Q. 16 hours?

A. Yeah. One day.

Q. Did Star exhibit any natural talent in terms of his ability to host this program?

A. "Natural talent" meaning?

Q. Talent.

A. Was he be able to do this right, or --

Q. Correct.

A. Not really.

Q. Tell me what you mean.

A. Well, first of all, dealing with kids and animal in production is really tough.

Q. Uh-huh.
A. But when you deal with both of them, is just another situation that it's really tough to shoot.
Star did not have enough, I guess, rehearsal or talent to do this video right, so we had to take a lot of takes and that kind of thing. Is that what --

Q. Yeah, that's the question.
For instance, how many takes would it take -- how many different takes would you run before you got a good shot of Star doing what you wanted him to do?
A. Well, I -- if I remember correctly, I never ended up getting a really good shot that I was looking for. But it would take like 15 takes, maybe, just to get a little piece so I can probably fix it in editing and put a piece together.
Q. All right. What were Star's shortcomings, if you could characterize them, in his ability to be the host of this program?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: May I answer?
THE COURT: You may.
THE WITNESS: Well, the way he was basically acting in front of a camera, and, you know, just like his skills, I guess. It wasn't -- it wasn't professional.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Were you the producer of this particular video?

A. Yes, I was.
Q. Okay. Were there any other individuals who were involved in this, other than yourself?
A. Crew-wise? Like other --
Q. Any fashion.
A. Yes.
Q. Was there a crew?
A. Yes, I hired a crew to shoot this.
Q. What about in the production of it? Was there anybody else who was involved in the production of it?

A. Well, production is like really the crew who shoot the footage, or sound, that kind of stuff. Is that what your question --

Q. I mean pre-production --

A. Oh, pre-production.

Q. -- production or post-production. Anybody else involved in any production aspect?

A. Well, the pre-production was mostly me and Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay.

A. Production was me and my crew.

Q. Okay.

A. And post-production was me.

Q. Okay. Was Frank Cascio involved in this production at all?

A. Yes, he was.

Q. In what fashion?

A. Co-producer.

Q. And what does that mean?

A. Like somebody who coordinates things. For example, he would practice with the talent, in this case Star, go through his lines. That kind of thing.

Q. When you say Mr. Jackson helped you with pre-production, what did you mean by that?

A. As I said, we had a meeting with -- I had a meeting with Mr. Jackson, and Mr. Jackson explained to me what he wants to create for this look, or for the story of it. So that's part of the pre-production.

Q. Okay. Did you go through what was going to be said by Star or the individuals who were appearing?

A. With Mr. Jackson?

Q. Yes.

A. I -- I don't think so.

Q. Okay. Did you go through what the individual shoots would involve? Any specifics about what the program -- that program or pilot would be about?

A. We covered certain style of the coverage, if I remember correctly.

Q. Okay.

A. With Mr. Jackson.
Q. Who is Frank Cascio?

A. Frank is a friend/associate of Mr. Jackson.
Q. Do you know Frank Cascio?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. How long have you known him?
A. I believe I saw him at the tour, which was 1996.
Q. I'm sorry?
A. In 1996, Mr. Jackson did a tour. And if I remember correctly, Frank was there.
Q. Where was that tour?
A. It was a world tour.
Q. Were you present during the entire tour?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. And where did that world tour go?
A. We went to a lot of different countries. I would say 40, 50 countries. 40, 50 countries.
Q. How long did the tour take?
A. It was a year -- well, eight months in a year-and-a-half period.
Q. Was Mr. Cascio there the entire time?
A. On and off.
Q. What percentage of time would you say he was on the tour with Mr. Jackson?
A. I would say maybe 30 percent.
Q. All right. I'd like to show you some photographs at this time.
If I may approach, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.
Mr. Moslehi, I show you People's Exhibit 338. Can you identify that for me, please?
A. These are the Arvizo kids, or Star, Gavin and I believe Davellin.
Q. All right.
I show you People's Exhibit 844. Can you identify that for me, please?
A. Mr. Jackson and Frank.
Q. Did you take this photograph?
A. I believe I did, yes.
Q. When was that photograph taken?

A. If I remember correctly, December, November of 2002.
Q. People's Exhibit 27, do you recognize that individual?
A. Yes.
Q. Who is that?
A. I believe his name is Christian Robinson.
Q. People's Exhibit 41, can you identify that individual for me?
A. I believe he's Marlon Brando's son, Miko Brando.
Q. Okay. People's Exhibit 39, can you identify that individual?
A. I believe he's Joe Marcus, the property manager.
Q. Property manager for where?

A. Neverland.
Q. People's Exhibit 42, have you ever met this individual?
A. Yes. His name is Stuart Backum (sic). Something like that.
Q. Okay.
A. He was a spokesman of Mr. Jackson for a short period of time.
Q. Do you recognize this individual in Exhibit No. 23, People's Exhibit 23?
A. I believe he's Brad Miller.
Q. Okay. People's Exhibit 18, do you recognize that individual?
A. Ronald Konitzer.
Q. People's Exhibit 17, can you identify that one for me?
A. Dieter Ron -- Weizner.
Q. People's Exhibit 19?
A. I believe Vinnie Amen.
Q. People's Exhibit 16?
A. Marc Schaffel.
Q. People's Exhibit 845 appears to be a photograph of a number of individuals. Do you recognize this photograph?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is it a photograph of?
A. Marc Schaffel, Mr. Jackson, and I believe that individual in the back is Rudy. I'm not sure about his last name. Provencio.

Q. Do you know the other two individuals in the photograph?

A. No, I don't.

Q. Okay. People's Exhibit 846 appears to be a similar photograph. Can you identify that for me?

A. Yes. Michael Jackson. Nick Carter. Frank. Schaffel.

Q. Frank Cascio?

A. Frank Cascio. Or Schaffel. And Rudy.

Q. Okay. And the other two individuals who you didn't know?

A. I didn't.

Q. Okay. One final photograph of a similar subject. Please identify that. I should say the second -- the last one I showed was 846. This is 847.

A. I see Mr. Jackson, Marc Schaffel, Aaron Carter and Rudy. And I believe the other gentleman is Brad Buxer.

Q. Okay. These three photographs, 847, 846 and 845, were you present when these photographs were shot?

A. Actually, I think these are freeze frames of a video, if I'm correct.

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, I was.

Q. Okay. So you actually observed these shots as they were being taken?

A. That's correct.

Q. And Exhibit 193, can you identify that for me?

A. That's my house.

Q. Okay. That's one of the rooms in your home?

A. That's correct.

Q. Which room?

A. Well, it's a billiard room.

Q. All right. And 194?

A. That's like a living room.

Q. In your home?

A. In my house.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Your Honor, at this time I'd like to admit into evidence Exhibit 847, 846, 845, 16, if it hasn't been admitted, 42, 39, 41, 27 and -- I should say 27 and 844.

MR. MESEREAU: No objection.

THE COURT: All right. They're admitted.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. You mentioned a few names that I'd like to ask you some questions about.

And if I could have the Elmo, Your Honor.

First of all, I'll show you People's Exhibit 844. Is that the photograph that you said you shot of Mr. Jackson and Frank Cascio?

A. That's correct.

Q. And where was that shot taken?

A. I believe we were at Neverland Valley.

Q. All right. And do you know what the purpose of this shot was?

A. I think it was just documentary.

Q. I show you Exhibit No. 23. You've identified this subject as Brad Miller.

A. That's correct.

Q. Have you met Mr. Miller?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. Where did you meet Brad Miller?

A. At my house.

Q. And when did you meet Brad Miller?

A. I believe it was February 19, 2003.

Q. Exhibit 16, who is that, please?

A. Marc Schaffel.

Q. Exhibit 42?

A. Stuart. Again, I'm not sure what his last name.

Q. How did you meet Stuart?

A. At Mr. Schaffel's house, I believe.

Q. During what time frame? When did you first meet him?

A. I would say between February 10 -- approximately February 10 of 2003 till February 18 of 2003.

Q. Showing you Exhibit 39 at this time, who is that?

A. I believe it's Joe Marcus.

Q. And you know him to be associated how with Mr. Jackson?

A. I believe he's the property manager of Neverland Valley.

Q. Exhibit 41, who is that?

A. Miko Brando.

Q. How did you meet Miko Brando?

A. I believe I met him at Neverland.

Q. People's Exhibit 17 you've identified as Mr. Weizner?

A. Dieter Weizner.

Q. Okay. 18, is that Mr. Konitzer?

A. Ronald Konitzer.

Q. And 27, who is that?

A. Christian Robinson, I believe.

Q. All right. Finally, showing you People's Exhibit 845, you've identified this as a video still?

A. This is a freeze frame of a video.

Q. Okay. Can I have the laser pointer, please?

If you could use that laser pointer, Mr. Moslehi, and show us, identify for us -- we know Mr. Jackson. You identified Mr. Schaffel in that photo. And you've also identified two individuals that you could not -- that you did not recognize. Would you point the photo -- or the laser at those two individuals?

Indicating in the center and indicating to the right corner.

And the individual who you've identified as Rudy, indicating on the left side in the white T-shirt.

Showing you 847, please point out the various individuals in this photograph for us.

A. And name them?

Q. That you recognize.

A. Oh. Marc Schaffel.

Q. Yes.

A. Mr. Jackson.

Q. Yes.

A. Aaron Carter.

Q. Who is Aaron Carter?

A. He's an entertainer or a musician or a singer.
Q. Okay.
A. I believe that's Rudy.
Q. Yes.
A. And I believe that's Brad Buxer.
Q. Okay. Who is Brad Buxer?
A. Mr. Jackson's musical director.
Q. All right. Same question for Exhibit No. 846. Would you identify the subjects in that photograph?
A. Mr. Jackson.
Q. Yes.
A. Nick Carter.

Q. Who is Nick Carter?
A. Aaron Carter's brother, which is another musician or singer. Entertainer.
Q. All right.
A. I believe that's Frank.
Q. Yes.
A. I believe that's Schaffel.
Q. Uh-huh.
A. And I believe that's Rudy.
Q. Okay. Appearing in the left-hand corner with the T-shirt?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the individuals in the center of the photograph, you don't recognize them?
A. I do not.
Q. All right. Thank you. Okay. Mr. Moslehi, at some time during the early part of 2003, you said that -- well, let me strike that. In 2003, did you perform some video services for Michael Jackson in the early part of 2003?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And I believe you, first of all, characterized that you did some assistance in the Martin Bashir documentary in January; is that correct?
A. Mid-January of 2003.
Q. Okay. Subsequent to that, did you perform some more -- some additional video services for Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. And could you describe the first one? First, let me strike that.

How many projects or individual shoots did you involve yourself in at the request of Mr. Jackson for the remainder of 2003?

A. I would say five or six projects.

Q. Okay. Tell us about the first one. Tell me what -- first of all, what was the subject matter of the first shoot, the first of those shoots?

A. Well, I believe the very first project, if I'm not wrong, it was the Martin Bashir, which was --

Q. Yes.

A. -- mid-January of 2003.

Q. Yes. And what was the next one?

A. Next one, I believe, was a shoot in Florida which never took place.

Q. Okay. Let's start with that one. Well, let me ask you this, first of all:

Prior to that shoot in Florida, did you do any video -- any other video production between the shoot -- between going to Florida and the Martin Bashir documentary?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. All right. Do you recall doing a video shoot on February 5th, 2003?

A. I think there was an interview with Debbie Rowe.

Q. All right. Where did that interview take place?

A. At Marc Schaffel's house. Calabasas.

Q. When did you first learn that that was a project that Mr. Jackson wanted you to shoot?

A. Maybe a day before.

Q. Who informed you of that?

A. I'm not sure. Could have been Mr. Jackson's personal assistant or his new managers.

Q. Okay. Who were his new managers at that time?

A. Ronald and Dieter.

Q. When did you first learn that Ronald and Dieter were Michael Jackson's new managers?

A. I believe I had a meeting with them in late 2002. I would say November, December.

Q. Uh-huh.

A. And they informed me that they were going to take the management from, I guess, the beginning of the year.

Q. Did Mr. Jackson ever confirm that, that they were his new managers?

A. Not directly, but somehow indirectly.

Q. What do you mean?

A. Once I called Mr. Jackson to ask him a question, and he asked me to call Dieter.

Q. Okay. Did he indicate what -- who Dieter was, to why he wanted you to call Dieter?

A. Why Mr. Jackson wanted to know --

Q. Why Mr. Jackson wanted you to call Dieter. Did Mr. Jackson tell you?

A. Well, I think Dieter had the answer for whatever question I had.

Q. I'm not asking what you think. I'm asking you if Mr. Jackson told you why he wanted you to call Dieter.

A. He didn't specifically told me why, but he just advised me to call Dieter.

Q. Do you know what the subject matter was? Do you remember the subject matter of that conversation?

A. I don't remember.

Q. So you were instructed to do a video shoot of Debbie Rowe?

A. That's correct.

Q. And where did that shoot take place?

A. At Mr. -- at Marc Schaffel's house.

Q. Who told you to show up at Marc Schaffel's home?

A. It could have been either Mr. Schaffel or Dieter.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Just a moment.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Going back to this video shoot, what was the purpose of it?

A. The Debbie Rowe?

Q. Yes.

A. I believe it was like a response for what the Martin Bashir documentary was about.

Q. Had the Martin Bashir documentary aired in the United States at that time?

A. I don't think so. I'm not sure.

Q. All right.

A. If I remember correctly, that documentary was aired on the 6th of February.

Q. Okay. Did you see the Martin Bashir documentary?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Where did you see it? Where were you when you saw it?

A. I was in Florida.

Q. Do you specifically remember whether you shot the Debbie Rowe footage before you went to Florida?

A. I believe, yes. The day before.

Q. The day before?

A. The day before.

Q. All right. So whatever day you went to Florida, the day before that, you shot the Debbie Rowe footage?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, tell me, who was at Marc Schaffel's home at the time this footage was shot?

A. There was Debbie, another lady, the interviewer, which I forgot his name, Schaffel, Christian Robinson, me, and my crew.

Q. And what was Mr. Schaffel's role in this shoot?

A. I believe some sort of producer.

Q. Okay. And specifically what did he do?

A. He would have, like, a questionnaire in his hand to let the interviewer -- what to ask.

Q. What did this questionnaire look like?

A. Pieces of paper.

Q. Did the interviewer -- who was the interviewer?

A. I forgot his name.
Q. This is the fellow you can't remember his name?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the interviewer, did he have any paper in his hands when he was asking the questions?
A. During the interview, I don't remember seeing him having any paper in his hand.
Q. Would he ever confer with Mr. Schaffel about how this interview would proceed?
A. Prior to this shoot or during the shoot?
Q. At any time.

A. They had some interactions as far as, you know, what kind of questions to ask and so on.
Q. And how many times did they interact about how this interview was going to be conducted?
A. Approximately?
Q. If you can recall, yeah, approximately.
A. Six, seven times, maybe.
Q. How many times before the interview started did they have discussions of that nature?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. And this interview, after you finished shooting it, what did you do with the footage?
A. Mr. Schaffel took it.
Q. Did he take it on that day?
A. Yes.
Q. It was in video format?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. So you said the next day after that shoot, you went to Florida?
A. That's correct.
Q. What city in Florida?
A. Miami.
Q. And why did you go to Florida?
A. I was informed that there's going to be some sort of video shoot.
Q. Who informed you of that?
A. Either Mr. Jackson's personal assistant or Dieter.

Q. And when you say his personal assistant, do you mean Evvy?

A. That's correct.

Q. How long has Evvy been his personal assistant, as far as you know?

A. Years. Maybe 15 years. Something like that.

Q. Okay. She was his personal assistant when you began in .96?

A. That's correct.

Q. And were you informed of what the nature of this video shoot was going to involve in Florida?

A. No, I was not.

Q. Were you informed of what type of equipment you would need?

A. Video equipment.

Q. Anything else?

A. Well, I usually take, like, my still camera, too.

Q. Did you have any employees with you?

A. No.

Q. Okay. So tell me the arrangements that you made before you left for Florida, if any.

A. Since I couldn't take anybody with me, if I remember correctly, I called a rental house, which they rent equipment and -- video equipment, and booked some equipment so when I get there, I have the proper equipment that I need. Then basically I grabbed all my equipment that I could carry by myself and flew to Florida.

Q. Where did you go when you arrived in Florida?

A. I believe one of Mr. Jackson's drivers picked me up and they drove me to Mr. Jackson's hotel.

Q. Which hotel was that?

A. I don't remember the name of the hotel.

Q. And where did you go when you arrived at the hotel?

A. To my room.

Q. Okay. Did you meet with anybody at the hotel on that day?

A. I met with Dieter and Ronald that day.

Q. Where did that meeting take place?

A. I believe at their room.

Q. And what did that meeting consist of? What was it a meeting about?
A. Mostly about just them taking over the management; they're the new managers, and the way they liked to conduct business from now on.
Q. Okay.
A. And also we had discussion about my unpaid invoices.
Q. Okay. Did you have some unpaid invoices at that time?
A. I'm sorry?

Q. Did you have some unpaid invoices --
A. Yes, I did.
Q. -- that were owed by MJJ Productions?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What kind of figure are we talking about at that time? How much money was owed to you, approximately?
A. About $250,000.
Q. How long had you been owed that money?
A. Well, this was like a year and a half worth of unpaid invoices, so it kept adding up.
Q. Would you bill as the invoices would accrue?
A. I'm sorry?
Q. Would you make bills out and send them to Mr. Jackson's company --
A. That's correct.
Q. -- as the bills would accrue when you do the work?
A. Yeah, I would finish the work and render an invoice and mail it to Mr. Jackson's office.
Q. So, did you have any discussions with Mr. Konitzer and Mr. Weizner about what you were to do in Florida?
A. I asked them what the purpose is. I guess they didn't know or they didn't want to let me know, but I was never informed specifically why I went there. But at one point I was informed that it's not going to happen.

Q. When did that happen?
A. I believe was either the same day that I got there or it could be the same -- the day after.

Q. Who told you that it wasn't going to happen?
A. I believe Dieter.
Q. Did you see any other individuals there that you recognized from the previous shoot at Debbie Rowe's -- at Marc Schaffel's house involving Debbie Rowe there in Florida when you were there?
A. If I remember correctly, there were -- I only met with Ronald and Dieter and Mr. Jackson's bodyguard.
Q. Who was that?
A. At the time I believe it was Mike and another gentleman.
Q. What was the -- what was their involvement, the two bodyguards? What did they have to do with this meeting?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Maybe I'll start over again.
Q. Was the meeting with the bodyguards separate from the meeting with Mr. Konitzer and Mr. Weizner?
A. Well, it wasn't a meeting with them, but I met them there. I mean, I saw them there.
Q. Okay.
A. You know.
Q. Did you talk to them?

A. Yeah. Casually.
Q. Did you ever see the individual who was the interviewer in the Debbie Rowe shoot in Florida while you were there?
A. Not that I remember.
Q. Sorry?
A. Not that I remember --
Q. Okay.
A. -- seeing him there.
Q. Did you see Mr. Jackson while you were in Florida?
A. I don't believe I did.
Q. Did you receive any other instructions while you were in Florida from Mr. Weizner or Mr. Konitzer?
A. Well, I informed them about having some footage of Martin Bashir, behind-the-scene documentary. And after discussing certain matters, they advised me to call Marc Schaffel.

Q. Did you call Marc Schaffel?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. While you were in Florida?
A. I believe so.
Q. Did you receive any instructions from Mr. Schaffel?
A. He wanted me to come back to L.A. so I can show him the footage.
Q. Okay. Did you do so?

A. Yes, I did.
Q. When did that occur?
A. I believe the day after.
Q. So you fly back to Los Angeles. You didn't do any photography at all in Miami?
A. No.
Q. And then the next day you meet with Mr. Schaffel?
A. That's correct.
Q. And what did Mr. Schaffel -- what was that conversation about with Mr. Schaffel?
A. If I remember correctly, I explained to him that I have -- "I have certain footage of behind the scene that I shot during Martin Bashir production, and that I have made some agreement and arrangement with Dieter and Ronald in regard to usage of this footage, and they asked me to see you."
And then I showed him the footage, and that was it.
Q. Okay. Did you receive any further instructions from Mr. Schaffel during the month of February concerning any other shoots, video shoots?
A. Some additional footage of Mr. Jackson's family interviews, some of Mr. Jackson's archival footage and so on.
Q. I'm talking specifically about new video footage that you shot in the month of February --
A. Okay.

Q. -- at the request of Mr. Schaffel. Did you shoot any such video?
A. Well, there was some -- I mean, there were a few projects within the same one project --

Q. Okay.

A. -- which contained footage and creating a new footage of certain people.

Q. Let's begin with what the nature of this new one project was. What was the purpose of this new one project?

A. Was like -- was a rebuttal documentary of the Martin Bashir documentary.

Q. And who did you take new video footage of for purposes of that documentary?

A. I believe we shot Mr. Jackson's parents, including his brother.

Q. Where did that take place?

A. At the Encino place in California. Mr. Jackson's house. Joe Jackson's house in Encino.

Q. Okay. And do you know what date that video was shot?

A. Approximately February 15.

Q. All right. Any other video footage that you shot for this rebuttal film or this rebuttal documentary?

A. We're talking new footage, right?

Q. Yes. New footage.

A. Well, we shot some footage of the Arvizo family, but it never got used. Never got aired on the FOX.

Q. Okay. So let's talk about that. You were -- were you assigned to shoot video footage of the Arvizo family for purposes of this rebuttal video?

A. That's correct.

Q. Who assigned you to that task?

A. I believe was Marc Schaffel.

Q. Okay. Do you know?

A. I think it was Marc Schaffel.

Q. Okay. And were you instructed the nature of this video, what this video footage would be about involving the Arvizo family?

A. Well, this footage were supposed to be used in that rebuttal documentary that Martin Bashir basically originally did. So --

Q. Okay. Was this rebuttal film -- did this rebuttal film have a public relations purpose?

A. Sure.

Q. What was the public relations purpose?

A. Well, to make Mr. Jackson look good.

Q. Okay. And so what was the purpose -- or let me strike that.

Were you ever informed as to what the purpose of taking video footage of the Arvizo family was? What was the purpose for taking footage of the Arvizo family?

A. Well, in the Martin Bashir documentary there was a shot of Gavin, I believe, and Mr. Jackson holding hands, which it created some sort of controversy about it. And we were trying to show that basically there was nothing between Mr. Jackson and Gavin that they were saying on the media and news and stuff like that.

Q. I'm not sure I understand. There was nothing that -- that they were saying?

A. Well, just to rebuke (sic) that shot that -- basically Mr. Jackson holding the hand of Gavin. We were putting this family in front of a camera just to see what they have to say and use it in that rebuttal documentary.

Q. Did you discuss this video-shooting with Mr. Schaffel?

A. Of the Arvizo family?

Q. Yes.

A. Sure.

Q. Was it anticipated at all that this video would be a positive thing for Mr. Jackson?

A. Sure.

Q. How so? How was it anticipated that this was going to be good for -- make Mr. Jackson look good?

A. Well, the footage that I shot of Martin Bashir during Martin Bashir production, there were a lot of segments or scenes that Mr. Bashir was saying --

Q. I'm going to interrupt you as not --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection to interrupting the witness.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's nonresponsive.

MR. MESEREAU: It is responsive, I believe, Your Honor.

THE COURT: It is.

I'll allow you to finish the question -- or the answer. Do you want me to have the part read that you answered?

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry, say that again?

THE COURT: I'm going to allow you to finish your answer. Do you want to hear the first part of your answer?

THE WITNESS: I forgot what I was talking about.

THE COURT: Read him the part of his answer.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm sorry, Your Honor, my question dealt with the previous question of the video of the Arvizos. It was not a general question about the video, the whole video.

THE COURT: I'll let her read the question.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

(Record read.)

THE COURT: Now you can finish your answer.

THE WITNESS: (Continuing) -- that Mr. Bashir was saying good thing about Michael Jackson.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. I'm going to go back to my -- what I intended to ask or make. How was the Arvizo family footage anticipated -- how was it anticipated that this would help Mr. Jackson to look good, in your discussions with Mr. Schaffel?

A. Well, I mean, at that time, I don't think, there was no footage of the Arvizo, but we were supposed to shoot this footage.

Q. Right. I'm talking about the planning of it. You planned to shoot the Arvizo family, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. The plan was to do a video, a rebuttal video, that would make Mr. Jackson look good?

A. Overall, the plan of the rebuttal documentary was to make -- basically make Mr. Jackson look good.

Q. Was shooting the Arvizo family something you did to try and make Mr. Jackson look good in this rebuttal film?

A. Well, at the time, I didn't know how the final piece would look, because we were still in the production phase of this whole production. Once it's edited and you look at it, then you can, you know, basically decide whether that's going to make him look good or not.

Q. Let's just move on.

The -- where was this -- originally where was this video shoot to take place?

A. At Neverland.

Q. And whose idea was that?

A. I believe was Marc Schaffel.

Q. Okay. Did you ever go to Neverland to do this shoot?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When was that?

A. February 19, 2003.

Q. Did you bring any assistants with you, any assistants with you?

A. I took two people, crew, with me.

Q. What time did you arrive at Neverland?

A. I would say late afternoon, early evening. 7:00-ish, kind of. 6:00-ish.

Q. Did you contact any members of the Arvizo family at Neverland that day?

A. I saw the three kids at Neverland, and I told them that, "We're supposed to shoot an interview with you guys."

Q. Okay. The three kids, Gavin, Star and Davellin?

A. That's correct.

Q. Was Janet at Neverland that day?

A. She was not.

Q. Was there any plan to shoot this video with Janet in it?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. So did you make an effort to determine where Janet was?

A. I asked the kids where their mom is.

Q. Okay. What happened next?

A. They said, "She's not here."

Q. What did you do after that?

A. I asked them if they know where she is, because we're supposed to set up this lighting and camera equipment and do the interview. They -- I believe they told me that, “She's not here,” and they're going to -- I asked them if they can call her to see if she's going to do it or not, or what's the schedule.
Q. During that period, did you have any contact with Mr. Schaffel concerning this problem of the mother not being there?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence; move to strike.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Did I have any conversation with Schaffel? I believe so.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Tell me about it. Did you contact Mr. Schaffel?
A. I believe either he called me or I called him. I'm not sure. But there was a conversation saying that, “Janet, the mother, is not here.”
Q. And what was Mr. Schaffel's -- did Mr. Schaffel have a solution to this issue?

A. I guess not at --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Offered in furtherance.
THE COURT: First of all, that requires a “yes” or “no” answer.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Fair enough.
Q. Did Mr. Schaffel have a solution of this issue of Janet not being there where you intended to shoot the video involving the entire family?
A. Not at the time, I guess. It was just information going back and forth.
Q. Okay. At some point while you were at Neverland, did you talk to Janet Arvizo on the phone?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Had you previously met Janet Arvizo?
A. Yes, I believe I did.
Q. Okay. When had you previously met her?
A. Where?
Q. Where, let's say where?

A. At Neverland Valley.

Q. Okay. Was that during one of the shoots that you had done with the Arvizo family before, the Arvizo kids?

A. The year 2001?

Q. Yes.

A. I don't think so.

Q. Okay.

A. It was maybe a birthday party of Mr. Jackson's kids or things like that.

Q. Okay. Did you make any efforts to get Janet to come to Neverland to do the shoot?

A. If I remember correctly, I had a conversation on the phone with her.

Q. Yes.

A. And I asked her whether she was going to do it or not so that I know what my schedule would be for that day.

Q. Okay. Did she want to do this video shoot?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's offered --

THE COURT: Foundation; sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.

Q. Did she describe to you whether or not she was willing to do the rebuttal video shoot?

A. I believe at the beginning she was not happy to do this rebuttal video.

Q. Okay. Did she tell you why she didn't -- was not happy about it?

A. Um --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Offered for state of mind.

THE COURT: Well, the question is, did she tell you why she was not happy? But without telling us any more, did she? Did she tell you that, whether or not she was happy?

THE WITNESS: She told me that she's not happy.

THE COURT: Okay. So the Court will allow that for the limited purposes of her state of mind at that time.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So my follow-up question, did she tell you -- and this is “yes” or “no.” Did she tell you what she was unhappy about, why she was unhappy about doing the rebuttal filming or video?

A. I believe yes, she did.

Q. What did she tell you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Offered for state of mind.

THE COURT: I'll admit this, her statement, for the limited purpose of her state of mind, not the truth of the matter asserted in the statement. You may answer.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Go ahead and answer that question.

A. Did she tell me why she didn't want to do it?

Q. Yes.

A. She said since -- if I remember correctly, she said since the rebuttal documentary of Martin Bashir has aired, her life turned upside down because of the, you know, media and press following her, and that kind of stuff. And if I remember correctly, she said, “The last thing I want to do is do another video, you know, and expose myself to more hassle.”

Q. Did she want her children to be in another video?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Was that any part of her concern?

A. Yeah, yeah.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you make any efforts to persuade her to make this video?

A. If I remember correctly, I told her that we're doing this rebuttal documentary and --

Q. That's really a “yes” or “no” question.

A. I'm sorry, say that again, the question.

Q. Yeah. Did you make any efforts to persuade her to do the rebuttal video, the rebuttal video involving --

A. Yes.

Q. -- this segment?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was your purpose in doing that?

A. So I can get the production done.

Q. Okay. How long did you talk to her on the phone?

A. I would say 20 minutes, approximately 20.

Q. And was that 20 minutes largely -- did that deal with anything other than persuading her to agree to do the video? Did you talk about anything else?

A. She talked -- me or her or both parties?

Q. No, you said you were having a conversation. She's reluctant; true? You're persuading her. Was there anything -- any discussion, other than her coming to do the video, during that 20-minute phone conversation?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. All right. When you finished the phone conversation, had Janet Arvizo agreed to do anything?

A. I believe she agreed to do this video finally.

Q. Do you have a specific recollection whether she agreed to it or not?

A. I believe she did.

Q. What did she say? Did she say -- you tell me.

A. I believe she said that she's going to do it. I mean, after we hung up, my understanding was that this is going to happen at one point.

Q. Where was it going to happen?

A. I didn't know at the time.

Q. So she said she'd do it, but she didn't say she would do it that day?

A. Well, there was not specific conversation about how, when, where it's going to happen. But I think, if I remember correctly, the conversation end up that it's going to happen. My understanding, if I remember correctly at the time, was that she's coming to Neverland to get it done.

Q. Okay. So at the end of the conversation, you believe Janet's agreed and she's going to come to Neverland to do the film?

A. As I remember, yes.

Q. About what time is it at this point?

A. I would say 9:00-ish, 10:00-ish, at night.

Q. At some point did you learn or decide -- let me strike that, start over.

At some point did you decide that the filming was not going to take place that night at Neverland?

A. I'm sorry, say that again. Me deciding, or --

Q. Yes.

A. Well, I was informed it's not going to happen at Neverland.

Q. Okay. Who informed you of that?

A. I believe it was Marc Schaffel.

Q. You believe?

A. Well, Marc Schaffel, I think. It was Marc

Schaffel.

Q. And how did you hear from Marc Schaffel that that was not going to take place at Neverland that night?

A. I believe it was a phone conversation.

Q. So you had -- was this the first phone conversation? Second? You tell me.

A. I believe could be second.

Q. And did you receive some instructions from Mr. Schaffel regarding the filming on that second phone conversation?

A. If I remember correctly, he informed me that Janet, the mom, is going to -- is going to be in L.A. She's in L.A. Therefore, we're going to shoot this in L.A. He asked me if I can shoot that in my house. I respond to him that if we can shoot it at his house, but then he said he doesn't want them to remember where he lives. So we ended up shooting at my house.

Q. Mr. Schaffel said he didn't want who to know where he lived?

A. I believe the family.

Q. So what did you do then?

A. I informed my crew that this production will not take -- this shoot will not take place at Neverland. I let them know that they should pack the equipment. And then I got the three kids and we drove back to my house. 7687

Q. After you spoke to Mr. Schaffel and learned that the shoot was going to take place at your house, did you have a conversation with Joe Marcus, the Neverland Ranch manager?

A. If I remember correctly, I -- when I arrived at Neverland, I let him know why I'm there, to shoot this interview. Then later, I informed him that it's not going to happen here at Neverland, it's going to be at my house, and I'm taking the kids with me.

Q. Did you tell him that you were going to do the shoot with the mother and the kids?

A. I believe so.

Q. What was Mr. Marcus's reaction when you told him that you wanted to take the kids off of Neverland?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Offered in furtherance.

THE COURT: All right. I'm going to admit it for the limited purposes previously discussed on the conspiracy issue.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: What did Mr. Marcus tell you when you informed him that -- of your intent to take the children --

A. I believe he said --

Q. -- to your home?

A. I believe he said, "They're not allowed to leave the property." 7688

Q. You believe that or did --

A. I did --

Q. Do you remember what he said?

A. I remember he said, "They're not allowed to leave the property."

Q. At some point did you confront him with the intent or did you confront him with the necessity to have the children go down to your home to complete the video shoot?

A. Well, at one point I believe I informed him that the video that we were supposed to shoot at Neverland, it's not going to take place, and it's going to be at my house.

Q. Uh-huh.

A. So the kids are coming with me.

Q. Did he agree to anything at that time during that first conversation with you in terms of letting the kids off the property?

A. He agreed?

Q. Yes. Did he agree with you about anything during that first conversation you had with Joe Marcus where he told you that the kids are not allowed off of the property?

A. What do you mean, did he agree? Do you mean letting them go with me, or --

Q. Yes.

A. I don't remember hearing anything from him.

Q. Okay. What did you do then?

A. Then I let the kids know that within, like, 15 minutes we're going to take off, “So get your stuff ready.”

Q. What did you do in the next 15 minutes?

A. If I remember correctly, I went to help my crew so we can pack the car, the equipment back to the car, and take off.

Q. Did you see Joe Marcus again before you left Neverland?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Did you talk to him about getting the kids off the property?

A. I'm not sure if I had a conversation with him about that, but he saw me leaving.

Q. All right. So you were allowed to leave Neverland when you drove off the property, when you wanted to leave the property?

A. Yeah, that's right.

Q. And how much time went by between the time that you first told Joe Marcus -- or when Joe Marcus first told you the kids are not allowed off Neverland and the time that you actually drove off of Neverland?

A. I would say approximately half an hour.

Q. When you went down to the theater to collect your equipment, where was -- where did Joe Marcus go, or where was he?
A. I don't know.

Q. Did he come with you?
A. No.
Q. Do you know if he had any conversations with anybody during that meantime?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. All right. So you took the kids, personally you loaded them up in one of the vehicles?
A. That's correct.
Q. How many vehicles?
A. I took two vehicles of mine to Neverland.
Q. Okay. And which vehicle did the kids go in?
A. I had a Suburban for the equipment and the crew, and a BMW for myself, basically.
Q. Okay. Which one did the kids go in?
A. The BMW.
Q. And you drove that?
A. That's correct.
Q. And did you drive straight to your home?
A. That's correct.
Q. About what time was it when you ultimately arrived at your home?
A. Approximately 11:00-ish.
Q. And what did the children do during the drive down from Santa Barbara?
A. We had some little conversations, and they went to sleep.
Q. Your home is in Calabasas?
A. West Hills.

Q. West Hills. So you arrived at your home about 11:00. What did you do then?
A. I immediately started loading equipment to the area that I was going to shoot, and let the kids play with video games and things like that.
Q. Do you have some video games at your home?
A. Yeah.
Q. Some fancy ones?
A. Not really.
Q. Okay. So they played video games?

A. That's right.
Q. All three of them?
A. I guess the guys. She was -- I don't know what she was doing. I don't remember exactly. But she was there, too.
Q. Did they stay in one area of the house during that period?
A. Yeah.
Q. And were your two assistants still with you?
A. Yes, they were.
Q. Was there anybody else at the house when you first arrived, other than you, your assistants and the Arvizo kids?
A. No. Just us.
Q. Did someone arrive at the house shortly thereafter?
A. Yes.
Q. Who was that? Who was the first person to arrive?
A. I believe was Christian Robinson, and another gentleman by the name of Paul, which is an associate of Marc Schaffel.
Q. Had you met Paul before?
A. Yes.
Q. On what occasion?
A. In the year 2001, Mr. Jackson did the project "What More Can I Give?" And Paul was involved somehow with that production helping Schaffel.
Q. Did you set up your equipment for the shoot?
A. At my house, yeah.
Q. During that period, did anybody else show up at the house after Christian and Paul arrived?
A. Another gentleman; I believe was Brad Miller.
Q. Did he arrive by himself?
A. I believe so, yes.
Q. Had you ever seen Brad Miller before?
A. No.
Q. Have you ever seen him since that night?
A. No. On T.V., I guess, once.
Q. And he arrived by himself?
A. I believe so.

Q. Did you have any understanding of what Brad Miller was doing at your home that night?
A. No. And I remember asking Christian who this guy is, and they said, “Don't worry about it. It's just a private detective.”

Q. Have you ever done any video shoots where there was a private detective invited to watch at a home that the shoot occurred at?
A. No.
Q. Did you ever see Brad Miller do anything that evening?
A. He was walking around my house.
Q. Did anybody else arrive at your home?
A. Vinnie and the mother.
Q. Janet Arvizo?
A. That's correct.
Q. Do you know about what time they arrived?
A. I would say towards midnight.
Q. All right. So how was the preparation going at this point for the video shoot?
A. Well, me and my crew were setting up the lighting. Mainly I'm doing the lighting, background, sound and that kind of stuff. They're bringing the equipment in.
Sorry.
And Janet was getting her makeup done. And the kids were just, you know, playing with games and stuff like that.
Q. Did anybody do Janet's makeup for her?
A. I don't believe -- she did her own makeup.
Q. And how did you feel at this point about this scene, if you can characterize it in terms of the time, the people? Was there anything unusual about this?

A. Well, timing was a little -- you know, kind of getting late. Also having Brad Miller in my house, I didn't really feel comfortable.
Q. Had you met Vinnie before?
A. Yes.
Q. And prior to the shooting of the video, did you become aware of any problems that Janet had, any additional problems that Janet expressed concerning the shooting of the video?

A. I think there was a problem with the contract or the release that they were asking her to sign.

Q. Okay.

A. And if I remember correctly, Vinnie asked me to use my fax machine and that kind of things.

Q. And you say "they" were having a problem with her?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I believe you said, "...They were asking her to sign." Who were "they"?

A. I believe it was Paul and Vinnie and potentially Christian Robinson.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. So if I could have 7695 the Elmo briefly, Your Honor.

Q. I'm showing you again Exhibit No. 194 which you previously identified as your home. Can you identify that perspective for me?

A. Yeah, this is a view of my living room.

Q. And does this area -- does this photograph depict any area of the part of your home that was used in the video shoot?

A. That's correct.

Q. Which area? Explain it to me.

A. This is where I set up the background.

Q. Uh-huh.

A. I believe the family were sitting approximately in this area. And my camera was like -- it's off of this frame, but about this area.

Q. You've indicated the background was in the center of the carpeting, the carpet, or I should say rug?

A. Right about there.

Q. And then the seating area was at the front, between the two carpets?

A. About there.

Q. The two rugs. And then your camera was down outside the frame of the picture?

A. Outside this frame.

Q. Below it.

Okay. And where were the boys and Davellin during the period of the downtime when you were preparing the video shoot?

A. That's my T.V. set-up, so that's where they were sitting. It's like a little coffee table and a little video game stuff.

Q. Where was the discussion that was taking place between Janet, Paul, Vinnie and possibly Christian?

A. In the other room, which is out of this frame.

Q. Showing you Exhibit 193, would you identify that area?

A. That's, well, like a billiard room, kind of.

Q. Is that the area you're saying that the conversation took place in?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, you said you have a fax machine?

A. That's correct.

Q. Where is your fax machine in your home?

A. Upstairs. I have three rooms upstairs, and one of them's an office.

Q. Do you know which of those individuals went upstairs? I believe you said Vinnie went and used the fax. Anybody else?

A. Not that I remember. I think it was Vinnie.

Q. Thank you.

So how much time passed between the time that Janet arrived at your home and the time that you started shooting the video?

A. I would say a couple of hours, approximately.

Q. How much time went by in which Janet was -- how long did this discussion take place between Janet, Vinnie, Paul and possibly Christian?

A. I would say half an hour.

Q. How much time did it take for you to set up the video equipment?

A. I would say hour to hour and a half.

Q. Did you hear any of the conversation between Janet and these other parties about the consent form?

A. Did I hear any conversation?

Q. Yeah. You told us the general context of the conversation. Did you hear any specifics about what the issue was about signing this consent?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Can you tell me what Janet's demeanor was? What was her -- what was her mood like? How did she act about this?

A. About the --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, that's fine. I can lay a better foundation.

Q. You mentioned that Janet had a problem with signing the consent form.

A. That's correct.

Q. Why do you say that? What do you base that on?

A. Because I observed that they're looking at the contract, and she was going through it, and there was some, I guess, words that she was not happy with or the content of this contract. And then at one point Vinnie asked me to use my fax machine, I guess to get faxed in or out, to redraft that contract, some sort.

Q. During that period of time that you were observing Janet and these individuals, did you have a chance to see what her demeanor was like? Do you know what I mean by “demeanor”?

A. Yeah, like an attitude?

Q. Yeah. What was her attitude like?

A. Um --

Q. Did you have a chance to notice that?

A. I was very busy setting up equipment, so I didn't really pay attention to each individual's, you know --

Q. Right.

A. -- attitude or whatever. She was, I guess, normal. I guess. I don't know.

Q. Did she seem happy about it?

A. Um --

Q. About this thing they wanted her to sign?

A. She wasn't happy about the assignment, or I mean the contract that she wanted to sign, as I understood.

Q. So ultimately you do the video shoot?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know if she signed anything that night?

A. I believe she did.

Q. Did you see her sign something?

A. No, I did not.

Q. Okay. Why do you say you think she did?

A. Because it looks like Marc's people were happy.

Q. Okay.

A. So --

Q. So you do the video shoot. Was it a continuous shoot or were there segments?

A. I believe we shot one-hour interview, and each of these professional tapes are 30 minutes. I don't believe there were so many cuts in it, so we continued rolling camera, basically. Maybe one or two cuts in between, if any.

Q. So how much video footage did you shoot total?

A. I would say approximately an hour.

Q. At the conclusion of the -- of this project, when you finished shooting it, what happened? After you finished it, you've got the videotape. What happened next?

A. Well, we wrapped equipment and everybody left.

Q. Okay. Did you see who left with whom?

A. Not specifically, no.

Q. Did you provide the videotape that you had shot to anybody, any member of the group that had come from -- well, did you give that tape to anybody that night? Let me just put it that way.

A. No, I didn't.

Q. Did anybody want that tape?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation; vague; foundation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I can ask the question a little better.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did somebody ask you for that tape?

A. I believe Paul, Marc Schaffel's associate.

Q. Was there a discussion with Paul about him getting the tape that night?

A. He asked me to turn him -- turn over the tapes to him.

Q. Yes.

A. And I refused.

Q. Did anybody else ask you to turn those tapes over, other than Paul?

A. Maybe Christian.

Q. Okay.

A. I'm not sure.

Q. Why did you refuse to turn the tapes over?

A. Well, first of all, I wanted to make a copy so in case -- as insurance, to have a second copy of that tape. Also, there was some other issues that were not resolved by then, so I kind of kept the tape for that.

Q. At the conclusion of the evening, did you spend some time with Janet, any time privately with Janet?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. When did that occur in relationship to the end of the video shoot and everybody leaving?

A. It was towards the end of when everybody was leaving. At the end of the shoot.

Q. Do you remember who was still at the home at that time?

A. Everybody was there.

Q. Did you have a purpose in meeting her separately?

A. Yeah.

Q. What was your purpose?

A. I -- I remember I gave her, like, a loan.

Q. Okay. What was -- let me back up.

During the period of time that you first became acquainted with the Arvizos to the time of this shoot, how many separate meetings would you say you had with the Arvizo family?

A. Including the kids?

Q. Yeah.

A. Six, seven.
Q. Did you get to know them?
A. Yeah.
Q. How did you feel about the Arvizo family?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague; foundation; relevance.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you at some point that night decide to give Janet Arvizo a loan based on your own desire?
A. Did I decide?
Q. Yeah.
A. Yeah.
Q. You did.
A. Yeah.
Q. Did Janet Arvizo ever ask you for any money?
A. No.
Q. Did she ever request anything from you?
A. No.
THE COURT: All right. We'll take our break now.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.
(Recess taken.)
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. I think where we left off, we were talking about --
THE BAILIFF: Is your microphone on?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It is now, yeah.
Q. We were talking about the end of the video shoot and your having this private conversation with Janet. When you had that private conversation with Janet, did you give her some money?

A. That's correct.
Q. And I think I've already asked you, did she ever ask you for that money?
A. No.
Q. Whose idea was it to give Janet some money?
A. It was mine.
Q. During that period of time that you were with the Arvizo family, did you form any kind of affection for this family during this period of time?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Goes to his --

MR. MESEREAU: And leading.

THE COURT: All right. The objection is overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I kind of felt sorry when I -- about the whole family, about Gavin being -- you know, being sick, and, you know, close to dying from cancer, and that kind of thing.

So -- and then over the video shoot that we had in, I believe, October 2000, I worked with Star and Gavin very closely, so we became kind of, you know, buddies --

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.

A. -- in a way.

Q. Okay. Were those the reasons why you did this act?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll strike that.

Q. Did what you have just described have anything to do with your decision to give Janet some money?

A. I'm sorry. Repeat that question one more time.

Q. You just described that you had some affection for Gavin and Star and you were sad about the hardship of Gavin's cancer.

Did your feelings towards the Arvizo family have anything to do with your decision to give them -- give Janet some money?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. And how much money did you give Janet?

A. $2,000.

Q. Did you envision that she would pay this back some day?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Can I answer that?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, you can answer it.

A. Well, I told her that, "This is a loan, a personal loan, from me to you, and pay me whenever you have the money.”

Q. And did you have a date that you envisioned getting this money back by?

A. No. I left it up to her.

Q. During the period of time that you were working on this rebuttal film, and I mean the entire film, not just the portion with the Arvizos, did you work with -- did you spend any time at Mr. Schaffel's home?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. What did you do at Mr. Schaffel's home?

A. Mostly rough editing, meaning I would go through Mr. Jackson's archival footage, find certain footage from concerts to some other material. And while we were creating this new footages for the interviews, then I would make a rough cut. And then the production company who was assigned to do this entire video, Brad Lachman Productions, would do the final editing.

Q. During this period of time, did you ever have an opportunity to overhear Mr. Schaffel talking on the phone?

A. As I remember, there were a couple of times that I had, like, questions that I wanted to ask Marc Schaffel, and I would walk from the room where we set up the equipment, like the editing equipment, to his office, and, you know, he would be on the phone or things like that.

Q. Did you ever hear him making any remarks concerning getting people out of the country?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation; move to strike.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: If I remember correctly, one occasion I walked into the room, and I think I heard Schaffel saying, “We're going to get them out of the country.”

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you remember hearing that?

A. To my best recollection, yes.

Q. Was there anything about the context of that conversation that struck you as unusual?

A. Not at the time.
Q. Did you know what he was talking about?
A. Not at the time.
Q. Did you know who he was talking to?
A. No.
Q. So at some point you said that during 2003, you were -- you ended your relationship as Mr. Jackson's personal DP; is that correct?
A. Well, Mr. Jackson stopped calling and using my service.
Q. Okay. Was there a specific date that was associated with that change?
A. I think after that rebuttal documentary,

“The Footage You Were Never Meant To See” --
Q. Yes.
A. -- I guess after that, basically that was the last project that Mr. Jackson used my services.
Q. Were you ever terminated?
A. Terminated -- well, they just stopped using my service.
Q. Were you ever informed that your services were no longer required?
A. I received a letter from --
Q. That's “yes” or “no.”
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So tell me, do you remember what date that was?
A. I believe it was February 21st of 2003.
Q. And when did “The Footage You Were Never Meant To See,” that rebuttal video, when did that air on the network?
A. I believe it was February 20th of 2003.
Q. Did you watch it on T.V.?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did Mr. Jackson ever contact you after that?
A. If I remember correctly, the day after, he called me. Mr. Jackson called me.
Q. And what was the substance of -- what was the purpose of that phone call?
A. He thanked me for my good work.
Q. Did you have any conversations with him --

well, let me strike that.

Does Mr. Jackson still owe you the $250,000 that had been promised?

A. Part of this is paid, but there's still a substantial amount of unpaid invoices that has not been paid yet.

Q. Did you bring that up with Mr. Jackson?

A. I -- I believe I had one conversation to him about my invoices not being paid. But I had hundreds of conversation with his personal assistant, his accountant, all his agents, including his managers, and his lawyers.

Q. Okay. My question is, did you bring that up to Mr. Jackson on the 20th when he called you -- or was it the 21st --

A. The 21st.

Q. -- the 21st when he called you and said you did a good job on the rebuttal video?

A. I believe I mentioned that for the very first time that my invoices are not being paid.

Q. Okay. Later that day, did you receive a communication from Mr. Jackson's attorney?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Yes, go ahead.

THE WITNESS: Yes, I did.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: What was his name?

A. David LeGrand.

Q. And can you tell me what the substance of that communication was?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Can you tell me....

It's offered in furtherance, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Is that the day that you were terminated?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence; move to strike.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's fair.

Q. Is that the day that you were informed --

THE COURT: Stricken.

Go ahead. Next question.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Is that the day that you were informed that your services were no longer required by Mr. Jackson?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Were you ever informed that your services were no longer required by Mr. Jackson?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: When were you informed that your services -- when were you informed that Mr. Jackson no longer needed your services?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence; leading; move to strike.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I believe was February 21st, by a letter.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. How did you receive that letter?
A. By fax.
Q. Was it before or after you spoke with Mr. Jackson on the phone?
A. After.
Q. Did you continue to make any efforts to have your outstanding bill paid by Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. What did you do?
A. I made several communications between Mr. Jackson's accountant, managers, personal assistant, and his lawyer, David LeGrand. I have provided them with my invoices, and I basically let them know that, you know, my invoices are not being paid and they are due immediately. And it was failed.
Q. Did you ever make an attempt to contact Mr. Jackson again personally about your outstanding invoices?
A. I remember I made a conversation with Mr.

Jackson's personal assistant, Evvy, and I explained to her that my invoices were promised to be paid at certain date, and they are not, and that I'd like to make a meeting with Mr. Jackson to discuss these matters.

Q. So did you attempt to meet with Mr. Jackson?

A. I did.

Q. When was that?

A. The meeting was supposed to be, I believe, February 26th of 2003.

Q. And how did you go about attempting to contact Mr. Jackson on that date?

A. I believe I spoke to Evvy, Mr. Jackson's personal assistant, and I was informed that Mr. Jackson will come to L.A. from Florida at certain date, and that I can meet with Mr. Jackson, have a meeting with him and go through these issues.

Q. Did you go to Neverland that day?

A. I did.

Q. And was Mr. Jackson there?

A. When I arrived at Neverland, Mr. Jackson was not there.

Q. What did you do?

A. I talk -- I spoke to, I believe, Joe Marcus, and I told him the reason I'm in Neverland, to meet with Mr. Jackson. And he informed me that Mr. Jackson is on his way, coming home right now, so why not just wait for him.

Q. Did you wait for him?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did Mr. Jackson show up?

A. I saw Mr. Jackson arriving, yes.

Q. Did he arrive with anybody?

A. I believe with his entourage, like Miko and bodyguards, and I think maybe his own kids.

Q. You previously mentioned Miko, identified his picture. Is he a part of Mr. Jackson's entourage?

A. Sometimes he travels with Mr. Jackson.

Q. Do you know what his relationship is with Mr. Jackson?

A. I would say friend/associate, some sort. Personal assistant kind of.

Q. All right. So where were you when Mr. Jackson arrived at Neverland?

A. I was waiting for Mr. Jackson outside the main house in the little catering area, and just waiting for him so he can -- you know, so I can have this meeting with him.

Q. And did you see him?

A. I saw Mr. Jackson coming in.

Q. Did he see you?

A. I believe he did.

Q. Could he have missed you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; calls for speculation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's fair.

Q. Where were you standing in relationship to Mr. Jackson when he walked in his house?

A. Again, I was behind the main house on the north side of the main house. There's a little catering area, kind of, a little bar kind of. It's not like a liquor bar, but like a little catering bar area.

Q. Okay.

A. I was just waiting. There were two tables there. I was just sitting and waiting.

Q. Was that in clear view where Mr. Jackson walked?

A. I believe, yeah.

Q. You could see him clearly?

A. Yeah.

Q. How far away were you from him?

A. I would say 30 feet, 40 feet.

Q. Did he acknowledge you?

A. Um, that I'm there?

Q. Yeah. Did he even -- did he acknowledge that you were there in any way?

A. Mmm --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I don't remember whether he saw me, I mean eye contact or not, but I felt like that he knows that I'm here.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Did he wave, say anything to you, do anything to acknowledge your presence?

A. Not at that moment.
Q. Did he do it at some other time?
A. Well, I -- I received a call.
Q. Okay. So Mr. Jackson walks inside -- did he go inside his house?
A. He was going inside his house.
Q. Okay. And you were still sitting where you were sitting?
A. That's correct.
Q. What happened after that?
A. They informed me that there's a phone call for me.
Q. How much time passed between the time that Mr. Jackson walked into his house and you were informed that there was a phone call for you?
A. I would say five to ten minutes.
Q. Did you go inside and take this phone call?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Who was it from?
A. Evvy called me, Mr. Jackson's assistant.
Q. And what was the purpose of this call?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you do something after you talked to Evvy?
A. I left the property.
Q. Has Mr. Jackson ever paid you the money he owes you?
A. Not in full.
Q. Have you had to take legal action to try and get your money?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; assumes facts not in evidence.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Yes, I have filed a lawsuit.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: After you terminated or after you stopped working the last time for Mr. Jackson, did you become aware that you were -- at any time that you were being -- that there was surveillance on you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Did I know about surveillance being conducted on me? No.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you give anybody permission to take your video, take videotapes of you?

A. No.

Q. And prior to your testimony today, did you review a DVD on this computer to my left of an Exhibit No. 815? Did you review that?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Is that image an image of you?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Is that an image that you permitted or allowed anybody to take?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: No, I did not give permission to anybody to follow me or take pictures of me.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, there's one last unpublished portion of 815 that I'd like to publish for the jury at this time. We've previously admitted the rest of that DVD.

THE COURT: All right. Is that on the computer, or is it on --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's on the computer, so I'd ask for "Input 1."

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Mr. Moslehi, whose vehicle is that? We're looking at a -- appears to be a large SUV in the center frame of this picture.

A. It seems to be my vehicle.

Q. And who is the individual that I've stopped -- where I've stopped this video at? Who is the individual that seems to be approaching that vehicle?

A. It seems to be me.

Q. Okay.

(Whereupon, a portion of a DVD, Plaintiff's Exhibit No. 815, was played for the Court and jury.)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: That's it.

Thank you, Mr. Moslehi. No more questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Mr. Moslehi, my name is Thomas Mesereau, and I speak for Mr. Jackson.

A. Nice meeting you.

Q. Same here.

You gave an interview on April 23rd of this year with Sergeant Steve Robel, correct?

A. Where was this?

Q. I'm not sure where. My understanding is that you were with your attorney, Mr. Dowling, correct? And you met with Sergeant Steve Robel of the Santa Barbara sheriffs. Do you recall that recent interview?

A. You said the 24th of 2004?

Q. The date that I have is April 23rd. Do you recall a recent interview with a Santa Barbara sheriff?

A. Of this year, 2005?

Q. Yes.

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. And your lawyer was present, correct?

A. I don't remember my lawyer being present.

Q. Is your lawyer's name Mr. Dowling?

A. Alan Dowling.

Q. Alan Dowling, okay.

And when -- let me restate all this.

You recently interviewed with a Santa Barbara sheriff, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And when do you think that interview was?

A. Recent-recent or --

Q. The most recent interview you gave to a Santa Barbara sheriff.

A. The most recent was, I guess, two days ago.

Q. Right. Okay. And to your knowledge, was that with a Sergeant Steve Robel of the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Office; do you know?

A. I believe I was talking to another gentleman. Maybe he was present in and out or -- kind of things.

Q. Okay. Where did the interview take place?

A. This interview took place at Santa Barbara District Attorney's Office.

Q. Okay. Do you know if any representative of the Santa Barbara District Attorney's Office was present at the interview you gave?

A. Yeah. I think, again, at the beginning, I was talking to Mr. Auchincloss. Then Mr. Robel came in and out.

Q. Okay.

A. And, yeah, Mr. Alan Dowling was there, too.

Q. Right. Okay.

A. Yeah. I'm sorry.

Q. And the purpose of the interview was to inform the prosecution for the first time that you had given money to Janet Arvizo, right?

A. The purpose of the interview was I guess an overall of what's going to be taking place in this courtroom --

Q. Okay.

A. -- when I take the stand.

Q. And in the interview, you admitted that you now recalled that you had given $2,000 to Janet Arvizo, right?

A. During that interview, yes.

Q. Yes. And you indicated to the Santa Barbara sheriffs that Janet had not ever directly asked you for money, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. But you also indicated with your attorney that Ms. Arvizo had described to you her financial situation from time to time, correct?

A. If I remember correctly, I had one conversation with Janet Arvizo which took place at Neverland, and this was right after the Martin Bashir documentary.

Q. Yes.
A. And at that time, there were some discussions as to her life is upside down, and, you know, she can't work and things like this.
Q. But at some point she led you to believe that her family was having some financial difficulties, true?
A. What I understood from that conversation is that she couldn't work and that they had to, you know, move around because of the media and the press following them.
Q. Right. She led you to believe at one point that she was out of money, right?
A. We never discussed money with her. I mean, she was just explaining to me what has happened to her since the Martin Bashir documentary.
Q. But you got the impression at one point that she needed financial assistance, correct?
A. Um, that she needed financial assistance?
Q. Well, let me restate the question.
A. Yes.
Q. In that interview you had with the Santa Barbara sheriffs on April 23rd, 2005, your lawyer spoke to Sergeant Robel, correct?

A. That's correct. Alan Dowling.
Q. And he did so in your presence, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And on your behalf, your lawyer indicated that you had learned about Janet Arvizo's dire financial circumstances, correct?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object -- I'm going to object as to any comments about this lawyer as hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was one of the --
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And I'll move to strike the question.
THE COURT: It's not necessary. Go ahead.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Was one of the purposes of that meeting for you and your lawyer to explain why you gave $2,000 to Janet Arvizo?
A. One of -- yes.
Q. And on your behalf, your lawyer did at one point explain why, true?

A. I believe so.

Q. And at some point, it was your belief that Janet Arvizo was out of money, right?

A. Again, if I remember correctly, we didn't specifically talk about money. She was mainly complaining about her life being upside down because of this Martin Bashir documentary, and not being able to work.

Q. And the impression you got was that she needed some financial assistance, right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Could you repeat that again, please?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes. You got the impression that Janet and her family could use some financial help. That's why you made a loan, right?

A. Sure.

Q. Okay. You based your conclusion that Janet needed financial help on what she had said to you from time to time, right?

A. Could you repeat that one more time?

Q. Sure. Let me restate it completely.

You didn't just give her $2,000 for no reason, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. You thought she could use it, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. You thought she needed it based on things she had told you about she and her family, right?

A. Sure.

Q. She didn't directly ask for it at any time, right?

A. No, she never asked for it.

Q. But she led you to believe that their lives had been turned upside down and she needed some financial help, right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Compound; misstates the evidence; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Could you repeat that one more time? I'm sorry.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes, okay. At some point -- let me restate the question. I'll withdraw the previous question.

A. Okay.

Q. At some point after numerous discussions with Ms. Arvizo, you formed the conclusion that she and her family could use some financial help from you, right?

A. After one conversation with her that night, February 19th, on the phone, I felt that they could use some financial assistance.

Q. Okay. And because you had reached that conclusion, you gave her $2,000, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. You called it a loan, but you didn't expect to be repaid, correct?

A. Well, actually, I've been expecting to be paid. But if not, I can live without it.

Q. Okay. I mean, realistically when you gave it to her, did you expect her to repay it?

A. I did.

Q. Did you --

A. I mentioned, "This is not a gift. It's a loan. It's from me."

Q. Okay.

A. "And pay me whenever."

Q. Okay. And has she ever repaid it?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, is the conversation where you spoke to her and then concluded she could use some financial help the 25-minute conversation?

A. Approximately.

Q. Okay. And to your knowledge, where was Janet Arvizo when you had this approximately 25-minute conversation?

A. At what location she was, you mean?

Q. Yes. If you know.

A. I don't remember.

Q. And did she call you?

A. No.
Q. Did you call her?
A. No.
Q. Where were you when you had the 25-minute conversation?
A. At Neverland.
Q. Okay. And do you know approximately what date that conversation took place?

A. I believe it was February 19, 2003.
Q. Okay. So the impression you got that Janet could use a little help was formed before the rebuttal video was filmed at your home, true?
A. That's true.
Q. The rebuttal video was filmed at your home the next day, right?
A. Well, the morning after.
Q. Okay.
A. Once, you know, it goes over midnight, the date changes.
Q. Now, are you familiar with a company called I Films, Inc.?
A. That's my company.
Q. Is that still your company?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. And the services you provided to either Mr. Jackson or Mr. Jackson's company has been on behalf of I Films, Inc., right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. And that's a corporation, obviously, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. And I believe you said you've been providing services for Mr. Jackson for a long time, correct?
A. From 1996 to 2003.

Q. Okay. All right. And when you've provided services for Mr. Jackson, you have periodically gone to different locations to provide the service, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you have typically sent an invoice not long after you provide the service, right?

A. That's correct.
Q. All right. At some point you dealt with a company called Brad Lachman Productions, Inc., right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And to your knowledge, who is Brad Lachman Productions, Inc.?
A. It's a production company that FOX hired to put the rebuttal documentary together.
Q. Okay.
A. Final editing.
Q. And was it your understanding that that rebuttal documentary was being done by FOX Television?
A. What do you mean, "by FOX Television"?
Q. Well, you mentioned FOX, correct?
A. Yeah, it was supposed to be aired by FOX.
Q. And to your knowledge, was FOX involved in the production in any way?
A. Could have been.
Q. Okay. When you were doing the filming, was it your belief that FOX was somehow involved at that point?

A. Well, I never met anybody from FOX Television to discuss certain matters, but most of the communications came from Brad Lachman Productions.
Q. Okay. And you signed an agreement with Brad Lachman Productions on approximately February 14th, 2003, right?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you that document?
A. Sure.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?
THE WITNESS: Okay.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that document?
A. I never been provided with that document.
Q. But do you see your signature on the document?
A. It seems to be my signature.
Q. Okay. Do you recall what the purpose of that document was?

A. There was an interview of me being used in that rebuttal documentary.
Q. Okay. And when you were interviewed, who did your interview, if you know?
A. Brad Lachman Productions.

Q. Okay. Did they choose an interviewer to actually interview you?
A. I believe they did.
Q. And do you recall where your interview took place?
A. In a hotel.
Q. Okay. And was that prearranged by somebody?
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. And I gather the purpose of that interview was to allow you, who had known Michael Jackson, to say good things about him?
A. Well, actually that interview was supposed to be the rebuttal, to be used for the rebuttal documentary that we were working on titled, "Footage You Were Never Meant To See."
Q. Right.
A. To respond to some of the comments that Martin Bashir made.
Q. And the reason you were interviewed was that when Martin Bashir was filming his interview with Michael Jackson, you were also filming that interview, true?
A. That's correct.
Q. And Bashir had arranged to film the interview separate and apart from what you were doing, right?
A. There were two different cameras and two different angles.

Q. Yes. And you were filming it at the request of Mr. Jackson, right?
A. No.
Q. Who were you filming it at the request of?
A. Myself. There was no request as far as me recording it. I decided on my own.
Q. But certainly Mr. Jackson knew you were there, right?

A. Yes.
Q. And you were right next to Mr. Jackson doing your filming while Bashir was doing his filming of Mr. Jackson, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And your intention was to make sure you had a full copy of all the questions and answers between Bashir and Michael Jackson?
A. Repeat that question one more time.
Q. Yes. Maybe I wasn't clear on that. Your intent was to try and film a complete copy of the interview between Bashir and Michael Jackson, right?
A. Actually, my intention was just to document this interview on my camera.
Q. Yes, okay. And one of the purposes was not to allow Bashir to have exclusive possession of what he had done in that interview, right?
A. Would you repeat that one more time?
Q. Sure. I'm sorry if I'm unclear.

If you hadn't filmed Mr. Bashir's interview with Michael Jackson, logic suggests that the only person that would have had a copy of that interview would have been Bashir, right?
A. Well, you see, there were like two different cameras, one single scene. So meaning if there was not my camera in there --
Q. Yes.
A. -- the only other camera that would have been in there would have been Martin Bashir's camera.
Q. Yes. And if that had been the case, Mr. Bashir could have selectively used, or not used, whatever parts he wanted and he would have had control of all the product, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you saw the Bashir documentary, you knew that there were parts where Mr. Bashir had said positive things about Michael Jackson that he had left out of his documentary, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the reason you were being interviewed by Brad Lachman Productions was because the intention was to have some of those parts that you had filmed appear in the rebuttal video, right?

A. That's --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm going to object; relevancy and beyond the scope.

MR. MESEREAU: I believe he opened the entire door, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The objection's overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In fact, the title of that documentary on television was, "The Michael Jackson Interview: The Footage You Were Never Meant To See," right?

A. That was the title of the rebuttal video, that's correct.

Q. And the words "The Footage You Were Never Meant To See" were supposed to apply to footage you had?

A. That's correct.

Q. That Bashir had never used, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. That included footage where Mr. Bashir was complimenting Mr. Jackson on what a parent he was, right?

A. That's right.

Q. Complimenting Mr. Jackson on what a good person he was, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. He was complimenting Mr. Jackson on his wonderful role in the world involving children, right?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Right?

A. Do I answer?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Yeah.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: He had footage about Mr. Jackson wanting an international day in honor of children, right?

A. I'm sorry. Say that again.

Q. Mr. Bashir, in his interview, talked to Mr. Jackson about Mr. Jackson's desire to have a day around the world in celebration of children, right?

A. Yeah.
Q. And your belief at that time was that Mr. Bashir had presented a very distorted view of that interview with Mr. Jackson, correct?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; calls for a conclusion.
MR. MESEREAU: State of mind, Your Honor.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Relevance.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Say that one more time.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yeah, I'm sorry. Sorry.
Your role in the television show titled, "The Michael Jackson Interview: The Footage You Were Never Meant To See," was to talk about the footage you had in that interview that Bashir didn't use, right?
A. That's correct.

Q. And that was footage that was very positive about Mr. Jackson, true?
A. Most of Martin Bashir's comments were positive.
Q. Yes. And the agreement you signed with Brad Lachman Productions related to the fact that you yourself were going to appear in that documentary, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. So your role in that documentary was not just filming people. It was actually appearing yourself, right?
A. At one point, yes. I basically did an interview to appear in that with the permission of Mr. Jackson.
Q. Okay. That's why you signed an agreement with Brad Lachman Productions, Inc., right?
A. Just for that interview.
Q. Yes.
A. For my interview, yes.
Q. Okay.
A. Not the footage.
Q. But the consent was to use your likeness and your words in the show, right?

A. My image, my voice in the show.

Q. Yes. Okay. And you signed that on February 14th, 2003, right?

A. Again, I don't -- I don't think I have the copy of that, but if that's what it says, I believe so.

Q. Okay. And that is what it says, and you think that's accurate?

A. I'm sure. If you tell me, I believe you.

Q. Okay. You believe that's accurate, the date I showed you, right?

A. I didn't pay attention to the date. I was just looking at my signature.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection just to see the date?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Sure.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at the document?

A. No.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: Oh, right now? Oh, I'm sorry. I thought you were talking about the entire thing.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Have you had a chance to look at the date on the document?

A. I looked at the date of the document just right now, yes.

Q. And does it refresh your recollection that it was signed on February 14th, 2003?

A. I believe so.

Q. All right. Now, I gather from what you've said that you decided at some point that your role in this rebuttal documentary titled, “The Michael Jackson Interview: The Footage You Were Never Meant To See,” was to be both participant and help film portions of it, right?

A. Would you repeat that one more time?

Q. Yeah, and I think -- I think you've said this. You were both interviewed to appear in it, and you also were doing footage yourself?

A. Sure.
Q. Okay. Okay. And I believe you told the prosecutor that the footage you took of the Arvizos you decided to retain yourself at some point, right?
A. Well, I -- well, what happened is, it remained in my possession and it was not turned over that night.
Q. Okay. Okay. And one of the reasons was you wanted to make sure you got paid, right?
A. One of the reasons, if I remember correctly, was that Mr. Jackson's managers, his agents, they promised me certain things.
Q. Right.
A. And they did not fulfill their promise.
Q. So you thought you would get paid either that night or the next day, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And that didn't happen?

A. That didn't happen.
Q. So you were retaining control of the video to make sure you were paid properly, right?
A. Well, I figured I did everything that I promised them, but they not fulfill their promise, so I'm going to stop doing whatever I was doing until I get paid.
Q. Okay. Now, how many interviews did you do yourself to help prepare the rebuttal show?
A. How many interviews I shot, or --
Q. Yes, how many did you shoot? You, yourself.
A. Of other people?
Q. Yes.
A. For that rebuttal documentary?
Q. Yes. You did the Arvizos, obviously.
A. We did Arvizos. We did Mr. Jackson's parents. I believe Debbie Rowe.
Q. Okay.
A. Mr. Jackson's makeup artist.
Q. That's Karen Faye?
A. Karen Faye.
Q. Okay.
A. That's what I remember right now.
Q. Do you recall whether or not you did an interview with Mr. Jackson's physician? Pardon me,

I'm sorry, that's not -- that's not phrased well. Do you recall whether or not you filmed any footage of an interview with Mr. Jackson's physician?

A. Do you have a name? Because Mr. Jackson has a lot of physicians.

Q. Do you recall doing anything like that?

A. No.

Q. Okay.

A. Not any physicians that I remember.

Q. And were you involved with Brad Lachman Productions while you were doing these filmings?

A. I had some involvement with them.

Q. Okay. And what was the involvement you had with Brad Lachman Productions?

A. Providing footage to them from Mr. Jackson's archival office and some new footage that we were shooting.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, was it your understanding that you would be paid for the actual interview you did?

A. No.

Q. Okay. You were expecting payment for the film footage that you did, right?

A. For my services.

Q. Yes, okay. All right. And I believe you testified that the footage of the Arvizos that you did never appeared in that television documentary, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you, yourself, deal with anybody from FOX when it came to preparing this documentary?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you recall at one point complaining that Martin Bashir had used footage of you in his televised interview with Mr. Jackson?

A. Did I ever complain?

Q. Yes.

A. To who?

Q. To anyone, that you had appeared in this documentary without your permission.

A. I discussed with some people that I was in that documentary without my permission, but I wasn't really complaining, because, you know, it's just --

Q. But your position certainly was that you had appeared in the Bashir documentary without any permission from you, right?

A. I did not sign anything to Martin Bashir to use me in that video, but then he did and -- you know, it was okay with me.

Q. Did you ever send a letter to anyone complaining about the fact that Bashir had used you in his documentary without your permission?

A. Send any letter?

Q. Yes, about the unauthorized use of your likeness by Bashir.

A. I received a letter from Mr. Jackson's lawyer asking me to sign that document that you're talking about.

Q. Okay.

A. But I never did.

Q. You never did, okay.

A. I never did.

Q. Okay. But your position at the time was he had used your likeness without any authorization from you?

A. He never ask me if we can do that, but he used it.

Q. Now, he was not some friend of yours, was he, Mr. Bashir?

A. We became friends, kind of.

Q. Okay. Did you remain friends?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Did you remain friends?

A. After the air -- after the airing it?

Q. Yes.

A. I guess not.

Q. Okay.

A. I've never seen the guy again.

Q. Okay. All right. Around March of 2003, you were represented by a law firm named Greenberg Traurig, correct?

A. March 2003, that's correct.

Q. And Greenberg Traurig is a large law firm with different offices around the country, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And they were representing you in your desire to get paid, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And you were asking to be paid for the work you did, right?

A. For my services and out-of-pocket expenses.

Q. But you were also asking for more money than that, correct?

A. What do you mean by that?

Q. Well, your lawyer claimed that you were promised you would be compensated above and beyond the moneys set forth in your invoices, right?

A. Mr. Jackson's managers, Ronald and Dieter --

Q. Right.

A. -- they promised me percentage of the net profit of this -- of this documentary.

Q. Yes. So your position was that you not only should be paid what was in your invoices, but that you should be given a profit percentage of what was made on the whole show, right?

A. They promised me that all my invoices for the last year and a half that has not been paid at the time, approximately $250,000 --

Q. Right.

A. -- will be paid in full, plus a percentage of the net profit.

Q. Yes. And obviously they never came through with that, did they?

A. They never fulfilled their promise.

Q. Okay. And at some point did you learn that they had been caught stealing close to a million dollars from Mr. Jackson?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At some point did you ever learn that they were stealing anything from Mr. Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Okay. But you were dealing with -- excuse me, I'm going -- sorry.

Your lawyers were dealing with a lawyer for Mr. Jackson named David LeGrand, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And to your knowledge, Mr. LeGrand had an office in Las Vegas?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Did you ever talk to him personally yourself?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And at some point you turned that over to your lawyers, right?

A. To my lawyer, yes.

Q. To deal with him directly?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, when you say that Dieter and Konitzer promised you a net profit's interest in that rebuttal documentary, what did you believe "a net profit's interest" meant?

A. A percentage of, like, the gross sales or net profit of it, some sort.

Q. Is that what Dieter and Konitzer promised you?

A. That's correct.

Q. The two of them?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And you took the position that you owned a copyright interest in the footage you had done, right?

A. What footage?

Q. The footage that you did to put together the T.V. documentary about "The Footage You Were Never Meant To See," right?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And what did you mean by your having a copyright interest?

A. I'm the author of this footage, and because no payment has ever made for those, I'm claiming ownership of it.

Q. Okay. Okay. So you claim that you owned an interest in footage that was used in that television documentary, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And did you ever see that television documentary?

A. "The Footage You Were Never Meant To See"?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. And that was narrated by Maury Povich, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. When did you first meet Dieter?

A. The very first time?

Q. Yes.

A. 1996.

Q. So you knew Dieter before he was doing anything for Mr. Jackson, correct?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; assumes facts.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I met Mr. Dieter during the History tour, Mr. Jackson's world tour, and his position was merchandising.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. He said he was trying to merchandise something involving Mr. Jackson, correct?

A. He was doing the merchandising of that tour, I believe.

Q. Okay.

A. With a promoter.

Q. With a promoter you said?

A. Yeah.

Q. And who was the promoter, if you know?

A. Avram.

Q. Okay.

A. Forgot his name. Mr. Avram.

Q. After you met him in 1996, did you do any business with Dieter, other than what you have described today?

A. After 1996?

Q. Let me rephrase it. Bad question.

You met him in 1996, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. After you met him in 1996, did you do any business with him?

A. Until like from 1996 till sometime -- I mean, are you giving me a time frame or --

Q. Yes. Between the time you first met Dieter in 1996 --

A. Okay.

Q. -- and the events you've described today --

A. Okay.

Q. -- did you personally do any other business with him?

A. "Business" meaning financial business-type of -- no. No.

Q. Did you have any involvement with him at all between the time you met him in 1996 and the events you've described today?

A. When you say "involvement," what do you mean by that?

Q. Were you in communication with him at all?

A. Sometimes.

Q. And when did you start communicating with him after you first met him in 1996?

A. Well, just an example would be we're on the tour, and he's doing merchandising --

Q. Right.

A. -- and we will just see each other and say "Hi" at a venue, let's say, and he would show like the new jackets that he designed and things like that.

Q. Okay.

A. Basically that kind of -- that kind of, you know, interaction.

Q. Right. After the tour ended, when did you next communicate with Dieter?

A. I would see Dieter once in a while --

Q. Okay.

A. -- with Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. And that would be in Los Angeles?

A. Various locations.

Q. And your understanding was that he was trying to merchandise memorabilia, jackets, things like that, involving the name "Michael Jackson," right?

A. For the tour.

Q. Yes. Okay. Your understanding was he was trying to merchandise products, correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. Products like jackets, right?
A. Sure.
Q. Jackets that were supposed to be associated with Michael Jackson, right?
A. Sure.
Q. Okay.
A. Mr. Jackson's name would be on it.
Q. Right. Right. And when did you first meet Konitzer, if you know?
A. I believe late 2002. I would say in November, December 2002.
Q. Okay. You didn't meet him when you first met Dieter, right?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Okay.
THE COURT: All right. Let's take our afternoon recess.
8:30 tomorrow morning. Remember the admonitions.

PLAINTIFF'S WITNESSES	DIRECT	CROSS	REDIRECT	RECROSS
MOSLEHI, Hamid	7752-M (Contd.)

Santa Maria, California
Wednesday, April 27, 2005
8:30 a.m.

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.
COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.
THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.
THE COURT: Counsel, you may proceed.
MR. SANGER: Can we have just one second, Your Honor, for a technical matter?
MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

HAMID MOSLEHI
Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

CROSS-EXAMINATION (Continued)
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Mr. Moslehi, yesterday you mentioned that you had decided to give Janet Arvizo a $2,000 loan on approximately February 19th, 2003, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you said you did that based upon a phone conversation with Ms. Arvizo that lasted about 25 minutes, right?

A. That's correct.
Q. You didn't give her the actual check till the next day after you had filmed the Arvizo family in what is often referred to as the rebuttal portion, right?
A. Towards the end of it, after the interview, yes.
Q. Yes. Now, obviously, if you were filming the Arvizo family in that tape, you heard what Janet was saying, correct?

A. Oftentimes I wasn't paying fully attention to what she was saying because I was mostly concerned about, you know, lighting, camera, that kind of stuff. But, yeah, I heard some.

Q. But you heard a number of the things that Janet Arvizo said in that footage, correct?

A. Some, yes.

Q. And did you hear her saying words to the effect that her family had been spat upon and abused and not treated properly by various people?

A. I believe so.

Q. And would it be accurate to say that your phone conversation with her the previous day plus what you heard her say in that tape-recording influenced you to give her $2,000?

A. In some effect, yes.

Q. Okay. Now, in your phone conversation with Ms. Arvizo on February 19th, 2003, did she ever tell you that she was living with and being supported by a Major Jay Jackson?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object as assumes facts not in evidence. Compound, as well.

MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase it if the Court would like.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When Ms. Arvizo on the 19th of February 2003 in your approximately 25-minute phone conversation discussed her financial situation, did she ever tell you she was living with Major Jay Jackson?

A. I don't remember her making a comment as far as where she lives and who she lives with.

Q. In that conversation, did she ever tell you that she was being supported by a Major Jay Jackson?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object as assuming facts not in evidence.

MR. MESEREAU: Strictly a question.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Um, did she mention whether she lives or being supported by Jay Jackson?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: My first question was, did Janet Arvizo in your phone conversation on February 19th, 2003, ever mention to you that she was living with a Major Jay Jackson, and I believe you said, "No."

A. I believe -- I don't remember having that conversation.

Q. My next question is, in that same phone conversation did Janet Arvizo ever mention that she was receiving any financial support from a Major Jay Jackson?

A. I don't remember having that conversation.

Q. In that phone conversation, did Ms. Arvizo ever mention that her family had obtained an approximately $152,000 settlement from J.C. Penney?

A. No.

Q. In that phone conversation, did Miss Arvizo ever mention that her family had received any money from fund-raisers at The Laugh Factory?

A. No.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll object and move to strike, as to the last question, as vague as to time.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In that phone conversation of February 19th, 2003, did Ms. Arvizo ever mention that any celebrities had at any time given her family money?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; vague as to time.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Do I answer? No.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: And in your phone conversation on February 19th, 2003, did Ms. Arvizo ever mention that she had set up a bank account for the benefit of her son Gavin from which she withdrew thousands of dollars?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: In that phone conversation on February 19th, 2003, did Ms. Arvizo ever mention that she had set up a bank account for the benefit of her son Gavin?

A. No.

Q. And in that same phone conversation, did she ever mention that her family had ever obtained any vehicle from Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever say in that phone conversation any benefits, financial or otherwise, that she or her family had received from Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever say anything about someone named Louise Palanker giving the family $20,000?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever say anything about Fritz Coleman, a newscaster in Los Angeles, trying to raise money for the family?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever say anything about Chris Tucker giving $2,000 to the family?

A. No.

Q. Did she ever say anything about Chris Tucker giving the family the use of a vehicle at any time?

A. No.

Q. Now, you indicated that when you went to Neverland to pick up the family -- excuse me. Pardon me. Let me rephrase that. Poor question.

You indicated that you drove to Neverland for the purpose of filming the family at Neverland, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you indicated that when you got there, to your knowledge, the children were there but Janet Arvizo was not, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And I believe you said you spoke to Joe Marcus about your desire to take the children to Los Angeles to do the filming, correct?

A. After Janet not being there, there was a decision made that the interview will take place in

L.A.

Q. Okay.

A. And I informed Joe Marcus about that decision.

Q. And to your knowledge, who was Joe Marcus?

A. Joe Marcus is Neverland Valley property manager.

Q. And had you met him before?

A. Yes.

Q. And was it your understanding he had worked at Neverland for a long period of time?

A. That's correct.

Q. And your understanding from Mr. Marcus was that he didn't have the authorization to let the children get in your car and drive off to Los Angeles, correct?

A. What I remember is that I told him about the plan of taking the kids to Los Angeles for an interview, and if I remember correctly, he said that they're not allowed to leave the property.

Q. And at some point, he came back to you and said he had the authority to let you drive the kids to L.A., correct?

A. If I remember correctly, it just happened that I took the kids and I don't remember having any more conversation. But he was aware of me taking the kids with me.

Q. Okay. So did you assume at the time that Mr. Marcus knew the children were on the property, without the mother, and that Mr. Marcus needed some type of authorization to just let them go off with you?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; requires speculation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How much time elapsed between Mr. Marcus telling you that he didn't have authority to let the kids go and your actually taking the kids with you?

A. Approximately 30 minutes.

Q. Okay. And did you assume that within that 30-minute period Mr. Marcus telephoned someone to find out if he could let these children leave the property?
A. I assume that's what he did, yes.
Q. Okay. And you then, approximately 30 minutes later, put the three children in your car and drove them to Los Angeles, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Had you ever had those three children in your car before?
A. No.
Q. Now, when you went to Mr. Marcus and told him you wanted to take the three children to Los Angeles, did he ask you if you had the authority to do so?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Did you tell him you had the mother's permission to put her three children in your car and drive them to Los Angeles?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. But I assume at some point you thought you had the mother's permission to do that, correct?

A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. And at some point in time, you learned that Janet Arvizo did not want to return to Neverland for the filming, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. You learned that Janet Arvizo wanted the filming to take place somewhere in Los Angeles County, correct?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; assumes facts.
THE COURT: I'll sustain the objection as vague.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. At some point before you put the three children into your automobile and drove them to your home, was it your understanding that the mother approved your doing that?
A. Yes.
Q. And I gather you then drove the children directly to your home; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. When you got to your home, was Janet Arvizo there?

A. No.

Q. At some point after you arrived at your home with the three children, did Janet Arvizo arrive?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And as you testified, the filming then took place at your home, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, you indicated that an investigator named Brad Miller was there, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And did you learn that he was working for Attorney Mark Geragos?

A. I did not know who he was working for.

Q. Okay. Did you assume he was investigating somebody?

A. I didn't know why he's there.

Q. Okay. Did he ever explain to you why he was there?

A. No.

Q. Okay. But he must have identified himself as a private investigator, right?

A. No. What happened is I asked one of the gentlemen of Marc Schaffel's people who this guy is, and they said he's a private investigator.

Q. Okay. But you never really knew if he was investigating the Arvizos, or Schaffel, or you, or anybody, right?

A. I didn't know.

Q. Okay. Now, you've been interviewed by representatives of the District Attorney's Office, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And have they ever discussed with you who Mr. Miller is in those interviews?

A. On November 18, 2003, I was served with a search warrant. On that search warrant, it says that any document that could show any relationship between me and Brad Miller.

Q. Okay.
A. And there were some other questions about that.
Q. And other than him being at your house that night, you really had no relationship with him, right?
A. No.
Q. And if he was putting anyone under surveillance, you weren't aware of it, right?
A. No.
Q. Okay. And at some time you learned that he had actually done a few minutes of surveillance on you, right?
A. Recently I learned that.
Q. You learned that from the prosecution, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Now, obviously yesterday, the prosecutor played that little bit of footage, and you identified yourself and your automobile, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And where did that footage take place, if you know?

A. That's what I was wondering yesterday. I don't --
Q. It was not at your home, right?
A. No.
Q. It was somewhere else?
A. That's correct.
Q. It appeared that you were going to a parked vehicle that you owned?
A. I believe so.
Q. But you're not sure where that was?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Okay. Did you ever see Investigator Brad Miller after that evening you filmed the Arvizo family?
A. Did I see him again?
Q. Yes.
A. No.

Q. So that was the first and only time you've ever seen the guy?
A. That was the first and the last time I ever saw him.
Q. Did he ever call you after that and ask you anything, to your knowledge?
A. No.
Q. Okay. But you're saying Marc Schaffel told you he was a private investigator?
A. One of his guys.
Q. Okay. Not Schaffel himself?

A. Not Schaffel himself.
Q. Okay. Okay. But whoever told you that didn't tell you that he was employed by Attorney Geragos, correct?
A. No.
Q. All right. Did you learn that at some point, that Mr. Miller was a private investigator hired by Attorney Mark Geragos?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I heard on the T.V.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Okay. All right.
Let me get back to the financial disagreement you had regarding your filming the Arvizo family, okay?
A. I'm sorry, repeat that, please.
Q. The concerns you had about being properly compensated for the work that you had done, okay?
A. Unpaid invoices?
Q. Yes. I want to ask you some questions about that.
At the time you filmed the Arvizo family for purposes of the rebuttal documentary, did you know when the documentary was supposed to air on television?
A. Yes.
Q. And what was your understanding about when that rebuttal documentary with Maury Povich was supposed to air on television?

A. February 20th of 2003.

Q. That didn't give you much time to get the footage you filmed to the network that was going to actually air the show, did it?

A. No. In fact, we missed the deadline.

Q. Yes. Originally, was the plan for you to film the family, get immediately paid and get it to the network? Was that the initial plan?

A. The initial plan was to finish this rebuttal documentary by midnight of 19 -- February 19 of 2003, to be aired for the 20th. And the day after it's aired I was supposed to get paid in full.

Q. Okay. And I believe you testified that you withheld the footage because you hadn't been immediately paid, correct?

A. Well, I held the footage because of other reasons. I had to make a copy of it. And also, since we missed the deadline, there was no reason to rush to deliver these tapes anyway.

Q. But by withholding the footage, it was clear to you that it could never be on the televised documentary, right?

A. Sorry, say that again?

Q. By withholding the footage the way you did for the reasons you've expressed, it was obvious to you that it could never appear on the documentary, right?

A. Well, as I said, we missed the deadline anyway, so there was no way that those footage could have been used in the rebuttal documentary.

Q. But your understanding about why you were to film the family was that there was a desire to possibly use that footage in the T.V. documentary, correct?

A. Well, originally we were supposed to shoot this on 19, February 19, to be delivered by midnight to the production company. Since we passed that deadline, I knew that it's not going to be used for the rebuttal documentary.

Q. Now, yesterday, you testified that Dieter and Konitzer had promised you a profit participation in the televised documentary, correct?

A. A percentage of the revenue.

Q. Now, correct me if I'm wrong, I think yesterday you used the firm -- used the term, excuse me, a percentage of gross profits; was that true?

A. Yeah, gross profit.

Q. Okay. Because there is documentation that talks about your claim that you had a net profits interest as opposed to a gross profits interest?

A. Well, maybe I'm not qualified to distinguish the difference between the two, but there was an agreement that once -- once this documentary is aired, there would be a percentage of the sales, amount of the gross sales, to me for my work.

Q. And was that percentage of gross sales supposed to include gross sales all over the world?

A. That's correct.

Q. And in your mind, that could be many millions of dollars potentially, right?

A. At the time, I didn't know what was the sales.

Q. Okay. And you're saying that Dieter and Konitzer gave you an oral agreement to that effect, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. There was nothing ever reduced to writing about your having a percentage interest in profits associated with that show, right?

A. They promised me that they will put this in writing, but they never did.

Q. Okay. Now, in light of the fact that the footage of the Arvizo family could not appear in that documentary, did you still think you were entitled to that percentage interest?

A. Sure.

Q. In light of the fact that the footage could not appear in that documentary, did you still feel you were entitled to your normal fees and costs?

A. Well, the Arvizo family footage was not the only one, the only footage to be used in that rebuttal documentary. There was some other footage created by me that was supposed to be used in there.

Q. And an example of that footage was your own personal interview, right?
A. As far as profit goes?
Q. Yes.
A. Could you be more specific?
Q. Sure. Sure. Let's talk about all the work you did on the rebuttal show that was hosted by Maury Povich, okay?
A. Okay.
Q. The work you did was a personal interview, right?
A. Personal interview of --
Q. You.
A. I did not do that myself.
Q. But you spoke yesterday about a personal interview --
A. No, I did not shoot that interview. In other words, I did not shoot myself to be interviewed. Somebody else shot me.
Q. Yes. But certainly you did grant an interview that somebody else shot for purposes of that documentary, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And you also obviously did a shoot of the Arvizo family for the purposes of that documentary, right?
A. Sure.

Q. What else did you do for the purposes of preparing that documentary?
A. As I remember correctly, I put 250 hours in a matter of 11 days, 250 hours in a matter of 11 days, oftentimes 20 -- 20 hours a day to finish this rebuttal documentary.
Q. And that included footage of other family members of the Jackson family, correct?
A. The Jacksons' family members interview, other footage that I provided, and edited for --
Q. Right.
A. -- for the purpose of this documentary.
Q. All right. Now, other than the Arvizo footage, did you provide the other footage you did to the network?

A. Other footage of?

Q. Family members. Did you provide that in a timely fashion so it could be used in the documentary?

A. When you say “family members,” are you talking about Mr. Jackson's family members?

Q. Yes.

A. Okay.

Q. So that was given in time to be included in the documentary, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. The only footage you did that was not provided in time to include in the documentary was the footage of the Arvizo family, right?

A. The only footage that was not provided?

Q. Well, let me -- I'm probably confusing you. Don't intend to.

The Arvizo family footage never got there in time, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. The other footage you did did get there in time, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. If you knew that the footage of the Arvizo family was not going to get there in time, why did you continue to do it?

A. Well, since we set up all the equipment and everything, might as well shoot it.

Q. Okay. And your position after you shot it was, “I want to make a copy of it, and I'm not handing it over to anybody till I'm properly compensated,” right?

A. No, first my thought was I'm making a copy of it, just for insurance. In case something happens to the tapes, there's a copy of it.

But the morning after when Ronald and Dieter and other of Mr. Jackson's agents refused to talk to me about this unpaid invoices issue, I decided that I'm not going to do anything until I get paid.

Q. Uh-huh. Okay. Your position was you weren't going to do anything until you got paid your normal fees and costs that were owed, plus you had a documented percentage interest in profits coming from the show, right?

A. All the unpaid invoices and the percentage that they promised me.

Q. Yes. Okay.

Now, your lawyers at Greenberg Traurig, the law firm you retained, wrote a letter to David LeGrand on March 5th, 2003, that I showed you yesterday, okay?

A. I don't think you showed me a letter of my lawyer.

Q. Oh, may I -- would it refresh your recollection if I just show it to you?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: No, you haven't asked him a question that requires any refreshing of memory.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Do you recall a letter from your lawyers that was written to David LeGrand on March 5th, 2003?

A. There was a lot of letters wrote. I don't recall which one you are referring to.

Q. Do you recall one written on March 5th, 2003?

A. I don't remember a specific date.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you a copy of that letter?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach?

THE COURT: No. You haven't asked him a question that requires refreshing of memory.

MR. MESEREAU: I thought -- he doesn't know the date, Your Honor. I was just going to refresh him on that. All right.

Q. How long after you completed the footage of the Arvizo family did you retain a law firm to represent you?

A. Could you repeat that again?

Q. Yes. You filmed the Arvizo family on the 20th, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You withheld the footage - okay? - for various reasons that you've identified?

A. Sure.

Q. And you went to a law firm to represent you shortly after that, correct?

A. What do you mean "shortly after"?

Q. Well, within a couple of weeks, true?

A. Approximately.

Q. The law firm was a firm by the name of Greenberg Traurig, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And Greenberg Traurig wrote a letter to Attorney David LeGrand, who you have spoken about before. They wrote him a letter on March 5th, 2003, identifying your position on compensation, right?

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. Do you know for sure?

A. Well, again, I don't have my records here, so I don't know what -- what letter you're referring to.

Q. Okay. Would it refresh your recollection if I show that to you?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: The letter of March 5th, is that permitted, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: So what number?

THE WITNESS: Okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that document?

A. Well, my lawyer was in touch with Mr. LeGrand, so most of the communications were between my lawyer and Mr. LeGrand.

Q. But you've looked at that document I showed you, right?

A. Right now I looked at it.

Q. And you see a date of March 5th, 2003?

A. It says March 5th.

Q. Okay. Do you know approximately when you hired a lawyer to represent you on this particular issue?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. It was shortly after you filmed the Arvizo family, correct?
A. When you say “shortly,” what do you mean?
Q. Within a couple weeks? Within two weeks?
A. Approximately.
Q. And had you made any verbal requests to Dieter and Konitzer to fulfill what you say their promises were before you went to a lawyer?
A. I'm sorry, say that again?
Q. Had you spoken to Dieter and Konitzer between the filming of the Arvizo family and the time you retained the law firm of Greenberg Traurig?
A. Yes, I spoke with them.
Q. Did you try to get things resolved with them?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And I gather you could not do that?
A. Negative.
Q. Okay. Now, you were asking to be compensated for projects you had done since 1999, right?
A. There were unpaid invoices --
Q. Yes.
A. -- from .99, 2001, and I believe 2002 and 2003.
Q. Right. One of them had to do with your filming the Air Force visiting Neverland, correct?
A. I don't have my records, but it could be.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you your outstanding -- a record of your outstanding invoice?
A. Is that one of the outstanding?
Q. Yes.
A. It is, for sure? Okay. I mean, I don't have my records. I do have records that shows what has been paid, what has not been paid.
Q. Okay.

A. But right now I don't have nothing in front of me to be able to tell you whether that specific invoice has been paid or not.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection if I just show you a record of your invoices?

A. Please.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: What number, Counsel?

THE WITNESS: Are you referring to this one? Okay.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you had a chance to look at that document?

A. Yes.

Q. Does it refresh your recollection about your outstanding invoices at that time?

A. What you showed me, it's a summary of all the unpaid invoices at the time.

Q. Okay. And some of the work you had done you had provided and some of it you had withheld pending payment, true?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Well, the -- you had done an interview with Michael Jackson, correct?

A. I did an interview with Michael Jackson?

Q. Well, you, in your invoices, refer to the Bashir interview with Michael Jackson in Florida, correct?

A. Okay.

Q. You had filmed that interview yourself, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you were withholding that footage until you were paid, correct?

A. No.

Q. Well, the schedule your lawyer provided indicated that, didn't it?

A. Well, this footage that you're talking about, it's been aired already. So that means I have provided that.

Q. Okay. Do you recall your lawyer saying you were going to withhold that footage until you were paid on March 5th, 2003?

A. Do I recall if my lawyer were saying that I'm going to withhold --
Q. Yes.
A. -- the footage until I get paid?

Q. Yes.
A. That footage was not withheld.
Q. Okay.
A. Because it was aired already on February 20th --
Q. So that --
A. -- by FOX.
Q. So you weren't withholding anything in that regard?
A. Well, that footage, no.
Q. The only footage you say you're withholding is the footage of the Arvizo family?
A. Again, I don't have my records, but if you tell me, I'll take your word.
Q. Do you recall filming in London, in New York, some footage dealing with Sony?
A. I do remember that.
Q. And were you withholding that footage until you were paid?
A. Again, I don't have my records to tell you whether I have turned over those footage or not.
Q. I'm talking about March 5th, 2003. Do you recall whether your position was you were going to withhold footage dealing with Sony in New York and London until you were paid?
A. I don't understand your question.
Q. Okay. Let me rephrase it. As of March 5th, 2003 --

A. Okay.
Q. -- the Arvizo footage that you have described was not the only footage you were refusing to deliver until you were properly paid, right?
A. Well, I mean, I -- can you refresh my memory by making an example of it?
Q. Would it refresh your recollection to look at this summary of invoices your lawyer sent?

A. Sure.
MR. MESEREAU: May I approach?
THE COURT: Yes.
THE WITNESS: When it says, “No,” not necessarily means nothing has been turned over. Maybe not like the original copy, but there has been copies that has been delivered already.
In fact, if you look at that summary, you'll see under the Martin Bashir footage, it says, “No,” but it was provided, a copy of that footage anyway.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
A. Because it was aired on February 20th.
Q. Okay. Do you recall any money ever being wired to you in partial payment of what you felt you were owed for the work you did?
A. There was one payment made after -- I believe a month after what they promised me.
Q. Do you know how much that was?
A. 200,000.
Q. Okay. Who wired you the 200,000; if you know?

A. I believe it was from David LeGrand's office.
Q. Okay. And do you recall how much you felt you were still owed after you received the 200,000?
A. I believe my invoices were over $300,000.
Q. Okay.
A. For a period of a year and a half, which 200,000 was paid.
Q. Okay. And you, to this day, never turned over the Arvizo footage to anyone, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The Arvizo footage was seized by sheriffs representatives when they did a search of your home, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now, when did you last talk to Janet Arvizo?
A. February 20th of 2003.
Q. Okay. So that was the last day you saw her or spoke to her, right?
A. As I remember, that's correct.

Q. Okay. Have you ever spoken to any of her three children since that day?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Now, the prosecutor asked you questions about Dieter and Konitzer claiming they managed Mr. Jackson's affairs, right?

A. I was informed by Mr. Ronald and Dieter, Konitzer and Weizner, that sometime in probably approximately December of 2002, they going to take over the management of Mr. Jackson.

Q. And you were instructed by Konitzer not to call Michael Jackson, right?

A. At one point, yes.

Q. He asked you to only call him and not call Michael Jackson or Evvy, correct?

A. That's correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, it's in response to the doors opened by the prosecution on that issue.

THE COURT: The objection's overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Approximately when did Konitzer tell you, "Don't speak to Michael Jackson or Evvy"?

A. I believe was like approximately February 21st.

Q. Okay.

A. Late February, I mean of 2003.

Q. And did he do that in person or on the phone?

A. I believe there was an e-mail and a phone.

Q. Okay. And he told you that he was going to clean up the mismanagement in Mr. Jackson's business affairs, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. He told you he was in charge of all restructuring, right?

A. They told me that they going to take over, and, you know, make things smoother.

Q. Right.

A. Operation.

Q. And did you honor his request that you not contact Mr. Jackson?

A. Um, I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Do you remember whether or not you ever telephoned Mr. Jackson after Mr. Konitzer told you, “Don't call him; just talk to me”?

A. I believe I spoke to Mr. Jackson.

Q. Okay. And do you know when that was?

A. I believe it was February 21st of 2003.

Q. Okay.

A. I believe.

Q. And you think that was after Konitzer told you, “Don't ever call Mr. Jackson; just contact me”?

A. Could have been.

Q. Did you talk to Mr. Konitzer after he made that request?

A. Yes, I believe I did.

Q. Okay. Did you ever see him in person after he made that request to you?

A. I believe I did.

Q. Okay. Do you know where that was?

A. In Santa Monica in a hotel.

Q. Okay. Now, at some point did you learn that Weizner and Konitzer had been fired?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection. Assumes facts; hearsay; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained on assumes facts.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever learn whether or not Ron Konitzer continued to be involved in Mr. Jackson's affairs?

A. After --

Q. The 20th.

A. Yeah. That was my belief, that he still continued.

Q. And did you ever learn from him at any point that he was no longer involved with Mr. Jackson's affairs?

A. Not from him.

Q. Did you learn from someone else?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Okay.
Q. Do you recall a lawsuit in England that was filed by attorneys representing Mr. Jackson over the Bashir documentary?
A. I have heard about it, but I've never seen the lawsuit itself.
Q. Was it true that after Bashir did his footage, you asked him to provide you copies of his footage?

A. Repeat that question one more time?
Q. Yes, I'm sorry if it's unclear.
Did you ever ask Bashir or any agent of Bashir to provide you copies of Bashir's footage?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And when did you do that?
A. The very first day I met him.
Q. Okay. Now, it was understood that you were going to do your own footage at the same time, right?
A. That's -- well, the first day.
Q. But you were also asking Bashir to give you some of his footage, right?
A. All his footage.
Q. All right. And did he respond to you?
A. He said -- he promised he will.
Q. Did he ever do that?
A. No.
Q. Did you ask him verbally or in writing; do you know?
A. Verbally.
Q. And that was face to face?
A. That was face to face.
Q. All right. And was that at Neverland?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. And was that before any of the filming began?

A. That's correct.
Q. Now, he never objected to you doing your filming, correct?

A. He wasn't happy, but he had no choice.

Q. Okay. How much of Bashir's footage -- excuse me, let me rephrase that. How much of the material that Bashir filmed did you film as well? Did you film everything that he filmed?

A. No.

Q. Okay. What did you actually film yourself?

A. Two interviews and one sightseeing at Neverland.

Q. To your knowledge, what did Bashir film that you didn't film yourself?

A. Well, since I was not present at all the sessions that Mr. Bashir did, I really don't know how much he shot.

Q. Okay. But other than your request that he give you some of his footage, you didn't participate in any litigation involving Bashir, right?

A. Legal litigation?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Okay. And you knew litigation was going on in England, did you not?

A. I have heard from Mr. Jackson's personal assistant that there's going to be a lawsuit against Martin Bashir and Granada T.V. in regard to this documentary.

Q. Okay. During the filming of the Arvizo family at your home, you said you were sort of in and out of the room where the filming was being done?

A. While I was setting up, yeah, I was going from garage to the place where the interview was supposed to take place.

Q. But while the interview was actually conducted, were you present at all times?

A. During the filming, yes.

Q. Okay. And approximately how long did that filming last, if you know?

A. Approximately an hour.

Q. How long were the children at your house before the filming actually began, approximately?

A. Two to three hours.
Q. And how long was Janet Arvizo at your house before the filming actually began?
A. Approximately one hour.
Q. Who did the questioning during the interview?
A. Christian Robinson.
Q. Had you worked with him before?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. How many times had you worked with Christian Robinson before?

A. On one project.
Q. All right. And was it your understanding that he had a list of questions he was going to ask during the interview?
A. I saw him having a list of questionnaire, yes.
Q. And was it your understanding that he was asking questions from the questionnaire?
A. I believe so.
Q. Okay. And you observed the Arvizo family responding to those questions, true?
A. That's correct.
Q. Before the filming began, did you see Mr. Robinson meet with any member of the Arvizo family?
A. I'm sure he did. But I did not observe that.
Q. Did you see him going over the questions with any member of the Arvizo family?
A. Could have been.
Q. You're not sure?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. Okay. Typically when you film an interview like this, the person doing the interview has a list of questions, correct?
A. Most of the time.
Q. And you've filmed numerous interviews like this in your career, right?
A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. During the two to three hours that the Arvizo children were at your home before the interview, you never watched them memorizing anything, did you?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; requires speculation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Repeat that again.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes. During the two to three hours that the Arvizo children were at your home prior to the start of the interview, you never saw them memorizing words, did you?

A. No.

Q. In fact, what you saw them doing was mostly playing and having fun, right?

A. As I remember.

Q. Before Janet Arvizo started the interview, you didn't watch her memorizing words, did you?

A. No, I didn't.

Q. You said that Janet was there for about an hour, right --

A. Approximately.

Q. -- before the taping began, okay?

And I think you said that she was in a discussion about some type of contract, right?

A. I believe there was a release that she had to sign.

Q. Okay. And was she talking to someone about that release?

A. Yeah.

Q. Who was she talking to, if you know?

A. I think she was talking to a few people. Vinnie, Christian Robinson, and possibly Paul. There's a gentleman by the name of Paul, I believe it's Hugo or something like that. I don't know his last name, but --

Q. And did you see a document that you thought was a contract or a release?

A. I saw a document, but I never looked at it.

Q. Okay. And did it appear that Janet and these other individuals were discussing the document?

A. Yes. They were discussing the document.

Q. Did you actually hear Janet and these individuals discussing this document?

A. Did I hear or see?

Q. Yes. Well -- excuse me, let me rephrase. Did you hear what you believed was a discussion between Janet and these individuals about that document?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Did you see Janet and these individuals discussing that document?

A. I believe I saw some.

Q. Okay. Did you ever see Janet on the phone during that period of time?

A. Could have been. I'm not sure.

Q. Okay. At some point, did you watch Janet sign that document?

A. I don't remember seeing her signing it. But it was towards the end of the interview, and I -- my understanding was that she signed it.

Q. Okay. And correct me if I'm wrong, but did you say something yesterday about there being changes made to the document?

A. I believe there was some changes being made to the document.

Q. And what made you believe that?

A. Because Vinnie asked me to use my fax machine so he can fax some documents back and forth I believe with Schaffel.

Q. Okay. And why did you think Janet at some point signed the document?

A. Because there was no other discussion about it.

Q. Okay. Did you see -- but you never saw anybody actually sign it, true?

A. I didn't see her sign it.

Q. Okay. Now, did you say at some point Schaffel told you he didn't want the Arvizos to know where he lived?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did he tell you he was suspicious of the Arvizos?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Schaffel ever discuss with you why Investigator Brad Miller was there?

A. Schaffel himself?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Did anyone else there ever tell you that the investigator was investigating the Arvizo family?

A. No.

Q. What did you see Brad Miller doing while the taping went on?

A. Well, during the taping I was paying attention to, you know, my work. But before that, he was walking around my house.

Q. Okay. Did he appear to be taking notes at all, to your knowledge?

A. During the filming?

Q. Let me start again.

At some point Miller arrived at your house, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And did he knock on the door?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. And did you answer the door?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did he identify who he was at that point?

A. I said, “Who are you?” And he said, “I'm for the interview.”

Q. Okay. Did he say he was a private investigator?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Did he give you his card?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Okay. And why did you let him in?

A. Um, because I -- why did I let him in? Um, I thought he was with Marc Schaffel's people, and since they were there already, I thought they were expecting him. Maybe it's delivering something or -- I don't know. But being kind and polite, I let him in.

Q. Yes. Okay. So he was there the whole time, as far as you know?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know when he left?
A. At the end of the interview.
Q. Okay. Do you know if he left with anybody?
A. I did not see him leaving with who -- with anybody.
Q. Did you ever see him recording anything in your house?
A. No, I did not see him recording anything.
Q. Did you ever see him writing anything down?
A. I did not. Could have been. I don't know.

Q. And did you ever see him photographing anything while he was in your house, to your knowledge?
A. Not to my knowledge.
Q. Okay. Now, when Janet -- excuse me. Before Janet Arvizo was filmed, she used your rest room and began to apply her own makeup, right?
A. She used my --
Q. Rest room --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- and applied her own makeup for the filming, correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. And you never saw anybody coaching Janet on what to say, correct?
A. No, I did not.
Q. You never saw anyone coaching the children on what to say in the interview, right?
A. I did not see anything.
Q. I believe you testified yesterday that, in your opinion, Janet Arvizo had a problem with a draft contract, right?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection to the use of the word "contract."
MR. MESEREAU: Well, I'll change the -- I'll rephrase it.

Q. You recall Janet looking at a three-page nondisclosure contract, right?

A. I never --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll make the same objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you ever tell a representative of the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department during an interview that Vinnie brought a three-page nondisclosure contract for Janet to sign?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Calls for a legal opinion.

THE COURT: No, he's asking if he told the sheriff that, so the objection is overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: I don't remember being so specific about "three-page" or "nondisclosure agreement." If I had said anything about that, about that document, it would have been a release. I don't remember saying that it was a three-page confidentiality or some sort of title for the document.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Would it refresh your recollection to just show you a police report summary of your interview?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: Um, I don't --

MR. MESEREAU: I have to first ask you a question.

Q. Have you had a chance to review that document?

A. No, I never have, that document.

Q. Have you had a chance to review the document that I just showed you?

A. No, I did not, I never obtained that document that you just showed me.

Q. Okay. Did you just look at that document?

A. I looked at that document. I do not remember saying three pages nonconfidentiality contract.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, Vinnie at some point asked you to sign a document, did he not?

A. I believe so.

Q. And you refused to sign a document presented to you by Vinnie, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Do you know what that document concerned?

A. That was a three-page non -- a confidentiality document, which he left it at the house.

Q. The FOX TV special, “The Footage You Were Never Meant To See,” appeared on February 20th, 2003, on television, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you watch that show?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Did some of the footage you had done of the Bashir interview appear on that documentary?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Did your interview, your personal interview, appear in that documentary?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Was it your understanding that additional documentaries were going to be made to put Mr. Jackson in a favorable light?

A. Another after “The Footage You Were Never Meant To See,” I had no knowledge of that.

Q. You never understood there was to be a two- or three-part series in that regard?

A. No. Nobody informed me anything on that.

Q. Okay. Do you recall being at Neverland on approximately February 8th, 2003, to meet people from 60 Minutes?

A. I believe so. I think it was a Saturday, if I'm not wrong.

Q. Do you remember meeting someone named Ed Bradley at Neverland?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you remember meeting Mr. LeGrand on that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you remember meeting other people from CBS on that day?

A. Yes.

Q. And why were you at Neverland on February 8th, 2003?

A. I was there as a personal DP, which stands for Director of Photography, for Mr. Jackson, for his lighting and the look of his picture.

Q. Was anything filmed on February 8th, 2003?

A. I don't believe so.

Q. Do you know why?

A. No.

Q. Okay. How long were you there that day, if you remember?

A. A few hours.

Q. Do you remember seeing Janet Arvizo there that day?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Would it refresh your recollection just to look at the police report summary of your interview?

A. Sure.

MR. MESEREAU: May I approach, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

THE WITNESS: I don't remember making that statement about Janet.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many times do you think you have seen Janet Arvizo at Neverland?

A. I would say two or three times.

Q. Okay. Do you know approximately when?

A. At various times.

Q. Okay. Approximately when do you think the first time you saw Janet Arvizo at Neverland was?

A. Between 2000 and 2003. It could have been 2001. I don't know.

Q. Okay. Did you meet her for the first time when the 60 Minutes crew was at Neverland?

A. I don't remember seeing her that day.

Q. Okay. When do you think you first saw her, ever?

A. It could have -- again, it's between the year 2000 and 2002, I would say. It could -- like approximately 2001. I don't know.
Q. And was your first meeting with her at Neverland, to your knowledge?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And do you recall whether or not her children were there when you met her the first time?
A. I think they were.
Q. Okay. And you indicated in response to the prosecutor's questions you developed a friendship with the Arvizo family?
A. Well, as I said, in the year 2000, I did two projects that Arvizo kids, David or Star and Gavin, were involved. One of the project I was directing. And within that project I had a lot of conversations and interactions with David and Gavin. So I kind of got to know them.
Q. Did you stay in touch with them on a social level?

A. No.
Q. When you weren't talking to them at Neverland, did you call them on the phone?
A. From Neverland, calling them?
Q. Let me rephrase it. I'll ask a better question.
Aside from the instances where you saw them in person, did you have a relationship where you would call them from time to time?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Did they call you from time to time?
A. I don't think so.
Q. Okay. So your only involvement with them was either at Neverland or when they came to your home; is that right?
A. That's correct.
Q. You didn't see them during your trips to Florida, right?
A. No, I didn't.
Q. Okay. Now, you indicated that you had met one of Marlon Brando's sons; is that correct?
A. Yes.

Q. And who did you meet that was a son of Marlon Brando?

A. Miko Brando.

Q. And when did you first meet him?

A. .97, .98.

Q. Did you see him often at Neverland?

A. Sometimes.

Q. Was it your understanding that he was a friend of Michael Jackson?

A. Friend and associate.

Q. Okay. And when did you last see him?

A. Last time, end of February of 2003.

Q. Okay. Now, you did an interview with a woman named Debbie Rowe, didn't you?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that was footage that you filmed for purposes of the rebuttal documentary, right?

A. At the time I don't think there was a rebuttal documentary. My understanding was she was responding to some of the comments that Bashir made on his documentary.

Q. And that interview took place at your home, correct?

A. No.

Q. Where did that take place?

A. At Marc Schaffel's house in Calabasas.

Q. Oh, okay. Okay. Do you know approximately when that interview took place?

A. I believe early February 2003.

Q. So it took place before you filmed the Arvizo family, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did you meet Ms. Rowe at Marc Schaffel's house?

A. I met her at -- well, not for the first time, but, yeah, I saw her.

Q. But when you filmed her for purposes of responding to the Bashir documentary, you traveled to Schaffel's home, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And when you got there, was Debbie Rowe present?
A. Or she came afterwards.
Q. You didn't bring her there, right?
A. No.
Q. So your understanding on February 20th was that Schaffel had no problem with Debbie Rowe knowing where he lived, but he didn't want the Arvizos to know where he lived, right?
A. That could be so, yeah.
Q. But he never told you why he didn't want the Arvizos to know where his house was?
A. No.
Q. Now, it was no secret that the purpose of the rebuttal documentary was to put Mr. Jackson in a positive light, right?
A. Sure.
Q. Everyone knew that was the purpose, right?
A. Yeah.
Q. It was meant to be a response to the Bashir documentary, right?

A. That's correct.
Q. It was meant to show things that Bashir had left out of his documentary that were positive about Michael, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. You actually had volunteered to provide footage that Bashir had left out of his show, right?
A. Did I volunteer?
Q. Yes. It was partly your idea to include your footage in the response to Bashir, right?
A. Um --
Q. Let me rephrase it if it's unclear.
A. Please.
Q. At some point following the airing of Bashir, you came forward and said, "I have footage of what positive things Bashir said about Michael," right?
A. This, I believe, was prior to the airing it. Prior to the airing the ABC version of Martin Bashir in the United States.
Q. Yes. Okay. Let me restate the question.

You saw the Bashir documentary at some point, right?
A. At one point, yes.
Q. When you saw it, you realized he had left out a lot of footage where he praises Michael Jackson, right?
A. No.

Q. Well, he had footage where he praised Michael Jackson for being a good parent, right?
A. Well, I mean, let me correct --
Q. Sure.
A. Okay. The timing of how you're putting it is kind of off.
Q. Oh, okay.
A. I was told by Mr. Jackson's personal assistant at one point, before this documentary, the ABC version of the Martin Bashir was aired in United States; that Martin Bashir is going to air his own version in London through BBC, I believe. At that point I brought up the fact that I have some footage of the behind the scenes. So at that time I have not seen the Martin Bashir footage yet.
Q. Okay.
A. Am I clear?
Q. At that particular time, you were the only one that had a copy of your footage, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. And did you talk to representatives of FOX about including your footage in the FOX documentary?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Who did you talk to about including your footage in that show?
A. Well, this is how it happened: I talked to Mr. -- Miss Evvy Tavasci, which is Mr. Jackson's personal assistant. I informed her that I have footage of the behind-the-scene and other footage of the interview.

Q. Uh-huh.
A. And I offered her to look at it. And she refused. She said, “It's okay. Don't worry. Mr. Jackson has obtained lawyers and they're going to take care of this matter.”

I took the footage with a video camera and a play-back machine to the office of Miss Tavasci to show her what I have. She still refused to look at them, and she indicated that I should not be worried about it, and Mr. Jackson's lawyers will handle the situation.

Then --

Q. And what did you do next?

A. Next, I believe I spoke to Mr. Jackson and he asked me to call Dieter --

Q. Okay.

A. -- about the matter.

Q. Right.

A. I spoke to Dieter, and I told him what I have, and he informed me that I'm going to go to Florida for another type of filming, and we're going to discuss this matter with him.

Q. And it was after that that you flew to Florida, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And you flew to Florida expecting to do some filming, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And at some point in Florida you learned that there was a change of plans and there would be no filming; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. How long were you in Florida for that trip?

A. I think a day, one day maybe.

Q. Do you know approximately when that was?

A. I don't have my records here. But I believe it's like February 6th and 7th. Something like that.

Q. Do you remember hearing anything about a press conference that was cancelled in Florida?

A. Did I hear that there was a press conference that was cancelled?

Q. Yes.

A. No.

Q. Okay. Do you recall any talk about a press conference in Florida?
A. I asked what is the purpose of this filming --
Q. Yes.
A. -- and they never give me a specific answer. But my understanding was that it could have been either a press conference or a response in a video format from Mr. Jackson to Martin Bashir documentary.

Q. Okay. Now, how long after you got to Florida did you find out there was a change of plans and you were not going to be filming anything?
A. I think hours after that.
Q. Okay. Did you spend the night in Florida on that trip?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Where did you stay?
A. At the hotel.
Q. The Turnberry?
A. I don't remember the name of the hotel.
Q. Okay. And did you fly back on your own the next day?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And when you were in Florida for that trip, did you see Mr. Jackson?
A. No.
Q. Did you see any of the Arvizos?
A. No.
Q. Did you see Chris Tucker?
A. No.
Q. Did you see Dieter or Konitzer?
A. Yes.
Q. And where did you see them?
A. In their room.
Q. Okay.

THE COURT: Okay, Counsel. Let's take a break.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: Yes, Your Honor, if I may address the Court.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

We would -- first of all, it's a good time to do this on the record. There were four DVDs which were lodged with the Court on a previous occasion for a pre-trial matter that were numbered 913, 1011 and 12, and also 1315, and I don't think they were given exhibit numbers at the time.

I believe the Court has allowed the clerk to now mark the Exhibits 913, 1011 and 12 as 5009-A, -B, and -C. And then the item marked 1315 has been marked as 5010.

So we'd just like the record to reflect that, if we can, Your Honor, first of all.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SANGER: Now, having said that, we would like -- as a part of the cross-examination of this witness, we would like to play Exhibit 5009-A, -B and -C, which are the outtakes or Mr. Moslehi's footage of the Bashir interviews. And they're offered for the purpose of showing the context and the complete statements made by Mr. Jackson at the time that certain statements were edited out and placed in the Bashir video.

And as the Court recalls, statements in the Bashir video were admitted for the truth of the matter as admissions of the party. And these videos show the context in which those statements were made, not just the particular words, but the whole context in which Mr. Jackson was led to make those statements. So that's our offer.

Now, I've talked to the District Attorney, Mr. Auchincloss. I asked him if he would agree that we could play this in open court without first showing Mr. Moslehi to authenticate it, and he is considering that; I think probably will agree to that.

The question that he asked that we address right now was the admissibility of this, so I asked the bailiff to ask Your Honor to come out so we could talk about --

THE COURT: I already ruled that it wasn't admissible in the direct part of the People's case, because the Bashir case -- the Bashir tape was introduced for the limited purpose of showing that Mr. Jackson had some motive to be doing certain acts that the People claimed that he did, and it had nothing to do with the truth of the matter in the tape, although the tape was admitted under certain circumstances for the truth of the matter.

So your request is denied. That's the second time I've denied it.

All right. Let's bring in the jury.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could I --

THE COURT: No.

MR. SANGER: I don't mean to argue -- okay.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: You may proceed.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Moslehi, I believe you testified that you had approximately six or seven meetings with the Arvizo family at various times. Does that sound right?

A. Approximately.

Q. Okay. And I believe you testified that Janet Arvizo told you in the phone conversation of the 19th of February, 2003, that she was being hassled by the media; is that right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And she was not happy about that, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And in your interviews with representatives of the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department, you have discussed your various discussions with Janet, correct?

A. Could you refresh my memory?

Q. Sure. Sure. Maybe I'm not being clear.

In your interviews with representatives of the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department, you have discussed conversations you had with the Arvizos, correct?

A. Janet and the kids?

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah.

Q. And in your discussions with representatives of the prosecution, you have discussed conversations you had with the Arvizos, right?

A. Sure.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo tell you she thought she was going to be murdered, right?

A. No.

Q. She never said that to you, right?

A. No.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo tell you there were death threats on she and her family, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo tell you she or her family were being falsely imprisoned, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo ever complain to you that Mr. Jackson was giving alcohol to her children, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo ever complain to you that Mr. Jackson was improperly touching any of her children, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo tell you her children were being abused by Mr. Jackson, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. At no time did Janet Arvizo ask you to call the police on her behalf, right?

A. That's correct.
Q. Now, you testified that at Mr. Jackson's request, you did a video at Neverland called "Neverland Channel," right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And was it your understanding that was supposed to be a videotape featuring Star Arvizo as sort of the narrator?
A. Well, initially my understanding was that we're going to do a pilot - a pilot is like a sample of an idea in a video format - of an idea that Mr. Jackson have.
Q. And you did film that entire video, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And the understanding was that Mr. Jackson would pay for your services in filming that video, right?

A. That's correct.
Q. You also testified that you did a video of Mr. Jackson with Gavin, right?
A. The 2000?
Q. Yes.
A. Yeah.
Q. And it was your understanding Gavin was recovering from cancer, correct?
A. Well, Gavin had cancer. I'm not sure whether he was recovering or not, but --
Q. But your understanding is he was ill?
A. Yes.
Q. And your understanding was that Mr. Jackson also agreed to pay for your services in doing that video, right?
A. Customary, sure.
Q. Yes. At no time was it ever your belief that the Arvizos were supposed to pay for any of these videos?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Now, you currently have a lawsuit against Mr. Jackson, right?
A. Unpaid invoices, yes.
Q. Right. You're seeking unpaid invoices and some other benefits, right?

A. Like?
Q. Well, you're asking that invoices be paid. You're also --

A. Damages.
Q. Yeah. You're also talking about a profits interest that you claim Dieter and Konitzer promised you, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now, in your lawsuit, you're also asking for damages related to a -- excuse me. You're also seeking damages related to some footage of what you call “Michael Jackson's Private Home Videos,” correct?
A. I believe so.
Q. And that was another FOX special that was done about Michael Jackson, right?
A. I believe so.
Q. And it's your belief that some of your work appeared in that show as well, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And it's your belief that you should be paid for your services in that regard, right?
A. For -- sure.
Q. Yes. Was it your belief that footage you did was going to appear both in the Povich documentary and in another show done by FOX called “Michael Jackson's Home Videos”?
A. No. I was never been informed that there is a second documentary.
Q. Do you know, as you sit here today, whether or not there was a second documentary?

A. I did not know there was a second documentary. Meaning nobody informed me that there's a follow-up, .nother piece of documentary called “Michael Jackson's Home Videos.”
Q. Did you learn at some point that that had happened?
A. Yes.
Q. When did you learn that there had been a second documentary called “Michael Jackson's Private Home Videos?

A. I believe I've learned that watching T.V., been advertised.

Q. Okay. And that show appeared in approximately April of 2003, right?

A. Approximately.

Q. Did you watch that show on television?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Okay. Your belief is you're entitled to a profit participation in whatever revenues were generated from that show as well, right?

A. Well, I guess we have to talk to my lawyer in regard to that.

Q. Okay.

A. Because that's a technical question. I'm not a lawyer to make that kind of --

Q. Okay. But your lawsuit is currently active, right?

A. It is.

Q. Okay. And your claim is that the agreements you had about being compensated for your services and having a profit participation in these television shows were primarily based on what Dieter and Konitzer told you, right?

A. Well, the invoices, it's part of customary transactions between me and MJJ Productions.

Q. Right.

A. But the percentage was between Ronald, Dieter and me.

Q. Okay. And you don't know whether Dieter or Konitzer ever discussed a profit participation with Michael Jackson, right?

A. With Mr. Jackson himself?

Q. Yes.

A. I'm not sure.

Q. They just told you talk to them and don't talk to Mr. Jackson, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Now, I believe you said that approximately February 21st, 2003, Michael Jackson called you to thank you, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, obviously when he called you to thank you, he hadn't seen what you had filmed, right?
A. Filmed what?
Q. Well, the footage you did of the Arvizos, he could not have seen, true?

A. Oh, of the Arvizo family footage.
Q. But nevertheless, he called you and thanked you for what you had done, right?
A. After seeing “The Footage You Were Never Meant To See,” I believe that's why Mr. Jackson called me, to thank me.
Q. He was talking about the Bashir footage that you had done; is that correct?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; requires speculation.
MR. MESEREAU: I'll rephrase it.
Q. When Mr. Jackson called you to thank you on February 21st, was it your understanding that he was thanking you about what you had done in the Bashir interview?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; speculation.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: My understanding for that thank-you call was that Mr. Jackson saw the rebuttal documentary, the entire “Footage You Were Never Meant To See,” and because of what I've done --
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Yes.
A. -- he's calling to thank me.
Q. But he obviously, at that point, had never seen your film of the Arvizo family, right?
A. No.
Q. Because you had control of that, right?

A. That's correct.
Q. You had never released that, right?
A. That's correct.
Q. And he was thanking you for what was on that Maury Povich documentary, true?
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS:

Q. During the period of time that you were working with the Arvizos on this rebuttal film, you've told us about Christian Robinson, Brad Miller, Paul being present, Vinnie being present, you and your crew.

As far as you know, was anybody else involved in this rebuttal video?

A. Being involved or being present at my house?

Q. That's a good question. Let's add a few names.

You mentioned that Frank was involved in it; is that correct?

A. He was involved with it, yes.

Q. And Mr. Schaffel was involved in it?

A. That's correct.

Q. And Mr. Konitzer was involved in it?

A. I'm -- sure.

Q. He talked to you about it, right?

A. I think most of the conversation was going through Dieter than Ronald in regard to that.

Q. Was Ronald present in that conversation?

A. It was a phone conversation, so I don't know whether Ronald was listening to that or not, or whether they had conversation within themselves.

Q. Okay. But you also mentioned a conversation you had in Florida with Ronald and Dieter?

A. That's correct.

Q. Did they discuss filming the rebuttal film at that time?

A. At that time, the discussion was about what I had already filmed of Martin Bashir.

Q. Okay.

A. There was nothing on the table as far as project goes.

Q. Okay. So as far as the project goes, they just told you to talk to Mr. Schaffel?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; assumes facts not in evidence.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll strike the question.
Q. So as far as the project goes, what did they direct you to do?

A. Once we discussed what I have as far as the footage that I shot of Martin Bashir interview with Mr. Jackson, and once we agreed to certain terms, they informed me and advised me to go to L.A. and talk to Marc Schaffel.
Q. Okay. And the purpose of this, you've testified, was to make Michael Jackson look good ultimately, the whole rebuttal film?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. So other than the names I've mentioned, were -- were there any other people involved in this enterprise of making the entire rebuttal film, as far as you know?
A. Um -- okay, can we go through those names one more time? Just so I don't misunderstand.
Q. Okay. Mr. Jackson, Ronald, Dieter. We've got Mr. Schaffel, Frank, Vinnie, Christian, Paul --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection to the question. I don't think it's -- I think it's a compound question.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm asking him for other names.
THE COURT: He's clarifying an earlier question. Overruled. Go ahead.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Paul. Brad Miller. You and your crew.
A. Well, there was another production company called Brad Lachman Productions --

Q. Okay.
A. -- which FOX hired to put the final editing together.
Q. Very good. Anybody else other than that?

A. Not that I remember right now.

Q. When you were engaging in the production or the putting together the various videos that were going to make up this rebuttal film, what were the issues that you were trying to address specifically?

A. Comments that Martin Bashir made on his own documentary.

Q. Were there comments that Mr. Jackson himself made that you were attempting to address?

A. On the Martin Bashir documentary?

Q. In your rebuttal, yes.

A. Well, we tried to clarify certain statements that Mr. Jackson made which, for example, if Martin Bashir would have continued rolling, I mean, or editing that -- let me try this again.

Q. Sure.

A. There were certain statements that were made by Mr. Jackson in the Martin Bashir documentary --

Q. Uh-huh.

A. -- that the way it was edited, what happened is Mr. Jackson sounded different than if they would have continued another two or three seconds of that statement.

Q. Give me an example.

A. Um -- um --

THE COURT: Counsel, I have to ask a question. Why are you going into an area that I told the defense they couldn't go into? My objection's sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor. I'll move on.

Q. What was the level -- well, let me ask you this: Was there any sense of urgency in the creation of this rebuttal film?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Overruled. You may answer.

THE WITNESS: We tried to get it as soon as possible.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. And why was that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: All right. I'll sustain the foundation objection.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay.

Q. Do you know why there was a sense of urgency in creating this film?

A. My opinion? Or was there any discussion from any party?

Q. Did you discuss the timing issues of this film with any of the people that I've mentioned previously that were involved in it?

A. Well, once this project was sold to FOX, they set up a date, deadline to be aired.

Q. Okay.

A. So basically, based on that date, we'll try to squeeze everything in there and finish it.

Q. And that date was?

A. February 20th.

Q. Midnight February 20th; is that right?

A. Well, the deadline to provide the footages was I believe the 19th, February 19 of 2003, to be aired on February 20th, 2003.

Q. In terms of the Martin Bashir special, was there any editing done by Mr. Bashir that was problematic, that you saw, that misrepresented Mr. Jackson's statements about him sleeping with children?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; leading; Court order.

THE COURT: The objection is sustained. It's the area I told you not to go into.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

Q. Was that area one of the areas that you felt you needed to work on?

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

Q. As far as the -- I want to talk now about the activities that occurred at your home when the Arvizos were being filmed.

You mentioned that Janet was -- expressed some reluctance to sign this release; is that correct?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did Janet express any reluctance to sign this release?

A. What I saw is that there was a con -- a conversation and a discussion between Janet and Vinnie and other parties about this release or document that was presented to her.

Q. Did that discussion cause any delay in the shooting of the filming?

A. A little bit. A little bit.

Q. How many minutes of delay, would you say, if you can characterize it?

A. I would say 15 minutes.

Q. And you said that Vinnie used your phone number?

A. My fax.

Q. Your fax number.

A. Or they could have used my phone, too.

Q. Do you know if he used your phone number?

A. To call somebody?

Q. Yes.

A. I remember my phone being used, but I didn't know who's calling who or what. But I remember my phone being used.

Q. Do you know the number (310) 283-5866?

A. That's my cell phone number.

Q. That's your cell phone number, okay.

As far as the use of your fax machine, do you know if Vinnie made any documents that came from your fax machine?

A. I believe that he either received or send some faxes through my machine.

Q. When Janet had finished with negotiating or talking with Vinnie, Christian and Paul, you mentioned that Vinnie, Christian and Paul seemed happy previously, correct?

A. It seemed to me that the matter has been resolved, but --

Q. Did Janet seem happy, or could you tell? You tell me.

A. Well, when we started filming, she appeared happy. But I don't know, prior to, whether or not she was happy or not. I don't know.

Q. Was there a change in her demeanor from before filming to when the cameras started rolling?

A. Repeat that one more time.

Q. Was there a change in her demeanor from before the cameras were rolling and she's in your home for this however -- I guess you said it was over an hour -- to the time the cameras started rolling, was there a change in Janet's demeanor?

A. She seemed more energetic when the cameras are rolling.

Q. You were asked if you saw any coaching, and you said, “No.”

A. Not that I remember seeing any coaching.

Q. Do you know if she was coached?

A. I don't know that.

Q. Do you know whether or not -- did you keep your eye on her the entire time that she was in your house?

A. The entire house? No.

Q. Was there an opportunity for her to be coached?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation.

THE COURT: Calls for a conclusion. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: You mentioned that you went to Neverland at one time for the filming of 60 Minutes, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And was that cancelled?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know why?

A. I don't.

Q. As far as the entire documentary, this rebuttal documentary, you mentioned that you were to receive some points?

A. Percentage.

Q. A percentage?

A. Yeah.

Q. When you spoke to Ronald and Dieter, was it contemplated that this documentary was a for-profit enterprise?

A. For profit?

Q. Yeah, would make money.

A. Sure.

Q. Do you know if it made money?

A. I think it did, yes.

Q. Do you know how much it made?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Do you know how much -- was there any discussion about how much this documentary was anticipated to make with Dieter and Ronald?

A. Well, FOX --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Did you have a discussion with Dieter and Ronald about the profitability or the amount of money that this documentary or rebuttal could make?

A. Did I have any conversations with them that this documentary will make -- well, we knew there was going to be some money made off of it.

Q. Yes.

A. But we didn't know how much at the time.

Q. Did you have an idea?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation and Court order.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's a “yes” or “no.” That's fine, Your Honor. I'll move on.

Q. Now, as far as the -- the Arvizos being taken off -- the Arvizo children being taken off of Neverland, you answered a few questions for counsel concerning that issue when you took the children off Neverland.

And you said there was a period of time, I believe it was about a half an hour, between when you first talked to Joe Marcus and he said the children were not allowed off the property and the time when you actually left; is that right?

A. I believe so, yeah.
Q. Did you see where he went during that half hour at all?
A. No, I didn't.
Q. If you wanted to contact Mr. Jackson when he was away from Neverland, how would you do it?
A. I would either call his bodyguards or his office.
Q. Okay. Why would you call his bodyguard?

A. Well, that's the fastest way to get to Mr. Jackson.
Q. Does Mr. Jackson carry a cell phone?
A. I don't believe so.
Q. Do his bodyguards carry cell phones?
A. I think they do.
Q. Have you seen this?
A. Yes.
Q. If he wants to make a call, do you know what he does in terms of use of a cell phone?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Have you seen Mr. Jackson ever use a cell phone?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; calls for speculation; beyond the scope.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Have you seen Mr. Jackson ever use a cell phone over the years you've known him?
A. Dialing it, or just talking on it?
Q. Talking on it.
A. I've seen him talking on the cell phone.
Q. Whose cell phone would he use?
A. I'm assuming his bodyguards', but I can be wrong.
Q. Okay. So after this half hour passed and you left the property, did Joe Marcus offer any resistance?

A. No.

Q. Did he seem to be okay with you taking the children off property?

A. Sure.

Q. You said that you had a conversation at Neverland with Mrs. Arvizo, and your sense was that she approved of you taking the children to your home. I believe that was your testimony. You correct me if I'm wrong. Is that accurate?

A. If I remember correctly, after I had a conversation with her, my understanding was that she's going to participate in this rebuttal documentary, but she's not going to be at Neverland, so therefore we went to L.A.

Q. Okay. So that was on the evening of February 19th?

A. That's correct.

Q. And your deadline was midnight on February 19th; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Was an arrangement made with Brad Lachman Productions that if you got the Arvizo film to them by midnight, they would still be able to incorporate it into the final production of the rebuttal film?

A. If I remember correctly, if we had any additional or new footage that we wanted to put into this documentary, should be delivered no longer than midnight 19 -- February 19.

Q. Okay. If you delivered it on February 19th before midnight, was it your understanding there was still time to get it into the final version?

A. Yes.

Q. And your testimony is that you didn't make that deadline?

A. Yes, we missed that.

Q. When you originally talked with Dieter and Ronald about being paid the money that you were owed, was it understood that upon the completion of the Arvizo film, you would be paid, the filming of the Arvizos?

A. Upon airing “The Footage You Were Never Meant To See.”
Q. Okay. And the Arvizo footage was just part of that?
A. That's correct.
Q. All right. Did you anticipate that you would be getting a payday - in other words, a payment of all the money that was owed to you - after the 20th of February?
A. I was expecting the 21st, by midday, I would receive my payments in full, plus what they promised me.
Q. Okay. Are you aware of whether or not this documentary was also sold all over the world?
A. It is sold all over the world.

Q. Okay. This rebuttal film was sold all over the world?
A. That's correct.
Q. In terms of the filming of the Arvizos, the footage that you obtained, is this footage -- was this footage at the time, did you consider it to be valuable?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: At the time that this footage was filmed, you understood that it was not going to make it into the Brad Lachman production, correct?
A. Well, I was hoping that I can get it done by midnight.
Q. Okay.
A. But once we passed the deadline, I figured it's not going to happen.
Q. And you shot it anyway because of what?
A. Well, because I was told to, and also I wanted to do my job. I mean, I had a responsibility and I wanted to do that.
Q. And who specifically told you to shoot that footage?
A. I believe it was arranged through Marc Schaffel and Dieter, those people.
Q. Did you discuss with anybody the fact that you weren't going to make the deadline and that you should go ahead and shoot it anyway?

A. I don't remember discussing the deadline with anyone. This was just in my mind.

Q. Okay. So that was your decision to go ahead and shoot it anyway?

A. Well, I figured since I had my crew and equipment ready, if they are happy to participate, get it done at least.

Q. Was there a discussion at the shooting about the deadline; that it had to be done by midnight?

A. I think I mentioned to one of these guys that, "Guys, we're not going to make it anyway." But --

Q. Do you know if either Christian or Paul or Vinnie knew about the deadline?

A. I'm not sure about Vinnie, but I'm sure Christian and Paul should have known about the deadline.

Q. And I believe your testimony is that Christian wanted the video to take with him?

A. They wanted to take the tapes that night, yes.

Q. Even though it was too late to put it on the --

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. If you -- are you familiar with the value of footages such as this, you know, footage concerning a family that is of public interest on the open market?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague; Court order.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm unfamiliar with the Court order, but --

THE COURT: I'll sustain the objection. It's the restrictions I've placed on financial information.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right.

Q. You testified that you gave Janet Arvizo $2,000, considered it a loan, and were asked a number of questions about financial conditions involving Janet Arvizo.

Would it have made any difference to you in giving Janet Arvizo this $2,000 if you learned that some people gave her some money three years earlier based upon Gavin's illness? Would that have made any difference to you?

MR. MESEREAU: Calls for speculation and misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Um, can you repeat the question one more time?

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: My question is, you gave her this $2,000.

A. Okay.

Q. You previously stated you were concerned about Janet. Her world was upside down is what you've said.

Would it have made any difference, would it have prevented you from doing this act of generosity or kindness if you knew that years earlier she had received some money for charitable -- from charitable individuals to help Gavin? Would that have made any difference?

A. I believe, depending on the timing and the amount of money, it could have been.

Q. Okay. So let's say she got $20,000 to help Gavin with his illness in terms of creating a safe room for him, that type of thing.

A. Three years prior?

Q. Yeah. Would that have made any difference to you?

A. For 20,000 three years prior, no.

Q. And what about if she got a civil judgment for about 30,000 three years prior, would that have made any difference?

A. Three years --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; misstates the evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Three years, 30,000, no.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. You were asked if she told you some things about her circumstances at the time. Did Janet confide in you anything other than the fact that her world was upside down at that time?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. Did you have a relationship with Janet where she would sit down and confide with you details about her problems, other than what you've stated?

A. Did I have a relationship? Such as --

Q. Is she the type of person that would sit down and confide in you personal things?

A. I believe because I worked with her kids a lot during a few other productions, she kind of felt comfortable to just empty herself of whatever she had in mind, I guess, at that time.

Q. And did she do that in that phone conversation with you at Neverland?

A. Did she did that on that conversation?

Q. Yeah. That you had when you were at Neverland.

A. I believe the way she was expressing her, you know, personal life matters, in this case being upside down because of the media, I felt like, you know, she needs a shoulder to cry, kind of things.

Q. Did she do that any other time?

A. No.

Q. When you were -- well, I want to go through this time period of February 20th to the 21st. And I want to talk particularly about your conversation with Mr. Jackson on that.

First of all, when you talked to Mr. Jackson after the filming -- or after the airing of the rebuttal film, you mentioned that you talked to him about some financial problems that you were having with him and his production company.

A. I believe what I discussed with him is that my invoices are not being paid.

Q. Yes.
A. And also some other issues.
Q. Did you talk to him about the fact that you were also promised some -- a percentage of the rebuttal film?
A. I don't think I went that far. But I just wanted to keep it simple and, you know, short with him, just so, you know, whomever he needs to call, please call, because I'm not being paid.
Q. Did you explain that you hadn't been paid in years, or over a year, I guess it was?
A. I'm not sure whether I mentioned the period of time that I'm not getting paid, but I said that my invoices are not being paid, and I --
Q. Did you mention the amount of money that was owed to you?
A. I don't remember.
Q. Okay. And what did he tell you to do about these problems?

A. He asked me to call David LeGrand, his lawyer.
Q. And did you call David LeGrand?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. And you told him about the problems?
A. Well, he knew the problem. I told him that, “Mr. Jackson wants to talk to you, so why don't you call Mr. Jackson.”
Q. Okay. Did you mention to him that it was about finances?
A. I -- well, I don't remember specifically on that conversation whether I spoke or not. But during the day, during the whole entire day, I'd been calling them and asking, you know, “What is it with my payment?” So they were well aware of that I'm not being paid, that they have not made the payment.
Q. Sometime later in the day, did you receive a fax from David LeGrand that same day?
A. I believe it was the 21st, yes.
MR. AUCHINCLOSS: If I may approach, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Is that a marked exhibit?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes, it is.

Q. Mr. Moslehi, I show you Exhibit No. 851. Appears to be a two-page document with a fax page on the first, and the top being -- at the top of each page are the words “Hale Lane.”

Do you recognize that document?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is it, please?

A. This is a letter from David LeGrand dated February 21st, 2003. It was faxed to me. And is telling me that my services are no longer required. And then also Mr. Weizner and --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. I'll ask you, is this the document that you received from Mr. LeGrand in response to your conversation with him that he should call Mr. Jackson?

A. That's correct.

Q. And was a copy of this letter -- does this letter indicate a copy was sent to Mr. Jackson?

A. Um --

MR. MESEREAU: Foundation.

THE WITNESS: It says carbon copy --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: This is offered as foundation.

THE COURT: All right. Overruled.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Does it indicate that a copy was sent to Mr. Jackson?

A. This letter is signed by David LeGrand and it's carbon copy, cc, to Michael Jackson, Ronald Konitzer, John Genga.

Q. And the facsimile page on the front, the first page, does it also indicate that copy was sent to Mr. Jackson at Neverland Valley Ranch?

A. That is correct.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. Offer 851 into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation and hearsay.

THE COURT: I need to see the document.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes. It is offered as an authorized admission, as well as it is offered for nonhearsay purposes to show knowledge on behalf of the defendant.

There is one further authentication issue that I will mention; that this is defense discovery to the People, so this is a copy of a document that's in the defendant's possession.

THE COURT: That doesn't authenticate anything.

The only foundational issue that I just have a quandary about is how he knows that this is from -- who it purports to be from.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: It's a response to --

THE COURT: No, how the witness knows, not how you know.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No, I mean his testimony is that he called Mr. LeGrand that day and received this letter.

THE COURT: I'd like to hear from -- I'll allow you to -- before I rule on the foundation issue, I'll allow you to ask him any other questions you have on that issue to --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you.

THE COURT: -- authenticate that.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Mr. Moslehi, how long after the conversation with Mr. LeGrand on the 21st -- first of all, let me ask you, did you receive this communication, Exhibit 851, before or after you spoke to Mr. LeGrand on the phone?

A. After.

Q. How much time after?

A. A few hours.

Q. And this document references a communication regarding future -- your business affairs that is -- that you are to have with Dieter Weizner and Ronald Konitzer on February 24th, 2003. Are you aware of that?

A. I'm sorry, um --

Q. If I may show you the exhibit again. Page two, paragraph two.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. I'm not sure what the procedure is.

THE COURT: Excuse me.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Well, I'm --

THE COURT: Why are you showing him the document?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm sorry. I'm sorry. I'll go about it the proper way.

Q. Would -- does this letter have a paragraph in this indicating that you are to communicate with Ronald Konitzer and Dieter on February 24th, 2003?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Did you communicate with them on that date?

A. And prior, yes.

Q. Did you discuss this letter with them?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did they appear to understand and know about it?

A. They were playing games with me.

Q. Okay. But did they pretend that they didn't know about this letter, or did they --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'll strike the question.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: May I ask the next question?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. AUCHINCLOSS: What do you mean they were playing games with you?

A. I would call Dieter, and Dieter would say call Ronald, and they were not responding to my phone calls properly. And they told me this was probably a misunderstanding, or -- you know, games.

Q. All right.

A. They were not sincere about their statements or, you know, whatever they had in mind.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I would offer 851 into evidence at this time.

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.

THE COURT: How did you know that that letter came from Mr. LeGrand?

THE WITNESS: Because it was faxed from his office, and it had a cover sheet and it's signed by Mr. LeGrand.

THE COURT: Did you recognize that signature?

THE WITNESS: I believe it was the first time I saw Mr. LeGrand's signature, but I had every reason to believe that that was from Mr. LeGrand.

THE COURT: All right. I'm going to reserve ruling on that. I have some problems with your foundation.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. I'll ask a couple more questions along those lines.

Q. Have you subsequently received any faxes from Hale Lane, Attorneys at Law?

A. After that?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Did they look identical in terms of the appearance of the fax letterhead?

A. Yes, they did.

Q. Have you subsequently received letters from David LeGrand?

A. After that one?

Q. Yes.

A. I believe maybe I received one or two, and then he started communicating with my lawyer.

Q. Okay. As far as those letters go, did they match, did the signature match?

A. I never tried to look into the signature, see if it matches. Once I received that letterhead, I had every reason to believe that it's coming from David LeGrand.

Q. Did you -- this is a fax letter with a fax letterhead. Did you subsequently receive this letter by way of U.S. Mail?

A. I don't believe so.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: May I see that exhibit?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Uh-huh.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Mr. Moslehi, if you had known that Janet Arvizo was living with someone who earned close to $80,000 a year, would you have loaned her that $2,000?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Objection; assumes facts.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: If I knew that Janet Arvizo was living with another husband or just a person that has $80,000?

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Who was supporting her and who earned close to $80,000 a year, would you have loaned her the 2,000?

A. Well, at the time, my state of mind was different. I don't know. Today, probably not.

Q. Okay. Now, the letter that the prosecutor just showed you, which purports to be from the Hale Lane law firm, is dated February 21st, 2003, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And you claim you did receive this letter, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. And in the letter, you were asked to return tapes, photos and other property of MJJ Productions by a certain date, correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. The date you were supposed to return those properties was February 24th, 2003, correct?

A. I -- I'm not sure. I don't have it in front of me, but if you say so, I take your word.

Q. Okay. And the letter suggested that your invoices will be addressed, correct?

A. I'm not looking at the document, but if you say so, I take your word.

Q. And at some point after this letter was received, you obtained or received payment of $200,000, correct?

A. I believe a month after I received that letter, approximately a month after, I received.

Q. So approximately late March 2003, you received payment of $200,000, true?

A. That's correct.

Q. You never returned the tapes or photos referred to in the letter, true?

A. What does it refer in the letter?

Q. Any tapes, photos or other property of MJJ Productions, or Michael Jackson or his affiliates.

A. I don't -- after 21st, I don't believe so.

Q. Okay. To date, you haven't turned over all the tapes you did for Mr. Jackson, true?

A. Since my invoices were not paid in full, no.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. No further questions.

THE COURT: Was that 851 that you were quoting from?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. I'll admit it.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No further questions.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, we do have a motion, and it probably ought to be heard before this witness leaves the general vicinity.

THE COURT: You have no other questions of this witness?

MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: And you have no other questions?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: No.

MR. SANGER: Depending on the ruling on the motion.

THE COURT: Is it a motion that you already tried to make this morning?

MR. SANGER: No. No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Why don't you approach and tell me what it is.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: What I'm going to do is require that the witness remain at the courthouse, and call your next witness.

I think the way we'll handle this, the motion that the defense wishes to make, is that we'll stop a few minutes early so the jury gets a longer lunch, and we'll listen to the motion.

Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, remain standing.

Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

TERRY PAULSEN

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Terry Paulsen. T-e-r-r-y; P-a-u-l-s-e-n.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. Would you mind scooting up by that microphone, please?

A. Okay.

Q. And swivel that towards your mouth so that everybody can hear you.

How are you this morning?

A. Fine.

Q. Ms. Paulsen, who are you employed with?

A. Huntel Systems.

Q. What is your position with Huntel Systems?

A. I'm a senior billing analyst.

Q. How long have you been working in that capacity with Huntel?

A. 27 years.

Q. And are you here today as the custodian of records for some documents from Huntel Systems?

A. Yes.

Q. What kind of documents?

A. They're phone calls made from an aircraft, telephone calls.

Q. Air-to-ground telephone calls?

A. Yes.

Q. Pursuant to a search warrant, did you provide the documents that I'm going to hand you marked as Exhibit 850, previously shown to counsel?

A. Yes, these are ones I provided.

Q. Could you describe those documents briefly for the jury, please?

A. It's phone calls made from an aircraft on February 7th, 2003.

Q. And the company that bill was sent to?

A. It was sent to Xtra Jet out of Santa Monica, California.

Q. With respect to the contents of that exhibit, is that generally a phone bill?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. And is your company a company that bills for phone calls made from aircraft to the ground?

A. Yes.

Q. Does the document reflect information that's made in the regular course of the business of Huntel?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And Huntel is a telecommunications provider?

A. Huntel is -- we're the billing vendor.

Q. Okay. Is it part of your business to keep track of the kind of records that you're --

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. Now, the entries in the phone record, do they begin on a particular page in that exhibit?

A. They begin on page four.

Q. Okay. Is there a page two or a page three in Exhibit 850?

A. No, there is not.

Q. Okay. Do you recall what is actually contained in the record of page two and three?

A. One of it is just information on paying your bill by a credit card. The other was phone calls that did not pertain to the date that we were requesting to provide.

Q. Is it customary to provide only what is reflected in the search warrant, as far as your company is concerned?

A. Yes.

Q. And their request was for February 7th, 2003?

A. February 7th or 8th, but there weren't calls on the 8th.

Q. Is the information on that document relied upon by your company in the regular course of its business?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. And do you rely on it being accurate?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And briefly describe for the jury how the information in those phone records is generated.

A. When a customer makes -- or is flying in an airplane and they make a call, it goes from the airplane to a ground station, out a landline to the party that's being called. And when the call's completed, then the ground station records that in its memory.

And once a week, we go into the system, we -- through a modem telephone line, computer program, we get that information out. And once a month, we process that into a telephone bill so it puts it in a format that can print on a bill, reads the information that's taken from the ground station.

Q. Does the ground station have an identifying number that shows up on the bill?

A. Yes, it does.

MR. NICOLA: And, well, Your Honor, at this time I would offer 850 into evidence as a business record.

MR. SANGER: No objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: What I'm going to do, Miss Paulsen, is use the Elmo.

"Input 4," if you don't mind, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: If you would turn to line 25, I would just like to show you a sample line from this. If you could just start with the number 25 and explain to the jury what the items mean as you go from left to right as you look at the exhibit, please.

A. Okay. Each call has its own item number. The date would be 2-07; would be it was made February 7th. They called El Monte, California. The phone number, the 626 number, is the number that they called. 6:57 p.m. is the time that they hung up from the call. So the call was made one minute prior to that, and one minute tells you how long the call lasted.

"CCD" just means, years ago when these numbers were issued to companies, they were called calling cards. So it just -- "CCD" is calling card.

Then the -- there's two charges per phone call, or the call's broken out into two different sections. One is the land time, and that's from the time, if I called you, you picked up the phone. From the time you pick up the phone till you hang it up, that's the land time.

The air time is what is actually charged, and that's the time from when I pick up the phone in the airplane and I hang up the phone. That's the air time. So there's two different times.

And you can tell by the time of day or by the number called which two calls go together. So in this case, Call 25 and 26 would go together. It was made over Troy, Alabama, and the phone number under that would be the phone number for Troy, Alabama.

Q. Is the number for the Troy, Alabama, place a ground station?

A. Pardon?

Q. Is that what you would call a ground station?

A. The ground station phone number.

Q. How does the wireless phone on the aircraft decide which ground station it's going to repeat at;

do you know?

A. Okay. As you're flying, the transmitter in the phone will pick up the strongest signal on the ground station. The ground station sends up signals, and it picks up the strongest one. So you don't have a choice of what station you're going through. It just picks it up and places a call. So if you're flying near Troy, it's going to pick up the Troy, Alabama, ground station.

Q. Now, with respect to the date stamp specifically on Item 25, it says 6:57 p.m. Is that 6:57 p.m. in any particular time zone? Or can you explain that for the jury, please?

A. The time zone is the time zone that the ground station is located in. So if you're flying over Troy, Alabama, that would be the time of day at Troy, Alabama. If you're flying over Los Angeles, California, it would be the Los Angeles time, so there could be a difference in the time zones.

Q. Okay. Miss Paulsen -- I wasn't done with the Elmo. If I could direct your attention, please -- and if I could have "Input 4" again, Your Honor -- to Line No. 40.

A. Okay.

Q. And is that a call placed to Santa Ynez, California?

A. Yes.

Q. You can read the area code and the number, please.

A. The area code is (805) 688-9979.

Q. And the time of that call, please?

A. Is 8:39 p.m.

Q. And where is the aircraft now?

A. The aircraft is over Artesia, New Mexico.

Q. Okay. Could you please flip to the second page of the exhibit?

A. Page five?

Q. Yes. And just tell the jury what time the last call was recorded from that aircraft.

A. Line Item 71?

Q. Yes, please.

A. It was placed at 9:28 p.m. on February 7th over Grand Canyon, Arizona.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. Thank you, Miss Paulsen. No further questions, Your Honor.
MR. SANGER: Could I have that?
MR. NICOLA: Certainly.
MR. SANGER: Just leave it up on the thing.
MR. NICOLA: Oh, on the --
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I'm going to put this back up on the Elmo and....

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Okay. It's your understanding that this reflects telephone calls made from an airplane that are eventually connected through to some landline somewhere, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And when I say "landline," it could be connected to a cell phone ultimately; is that right?
A. It would still go through a landline to a cell phone. I mean, it goes out the ground station, however the ground station sends it out.
Q. When you're talking about Troy, Alabama, there's some ground station there, and essentially you're now hooked up with the phone system that we would hook into if we pick up the kind of phone we pick up in the courtroom, right?
A. Right.

Q. And wherever that phone system then directs the call is the ultimate destination, right?
A. Right.
Q. All right. And so just so we're all clear, you got two lines per call, right?
A. Right.
Q. And the one line shows the number that's called -- actually both lines show the number that's called, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And then the second line shows the charge to the airline; is that right?

A. Right.

Q. Now, first of all, the billing goes to a particular airplane or a particular company?

A. Particular company.

Q. And so the company that owns the airplane will get the bill?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Can you tell which airplane that belongs to that company was the source of the telephone call?

A. No, I cannot.

Q. So if an airplane -- private charter airplane company might have several planes, and their phone bill will not distinguish between one airplane and another; is that correct?

A. It will distinguish between one phone number and another, but not one airplane and another.

Q. All right. And on the airplane, you have no idea how big these airplanes are; is that true?

A. They're private aircraft. I'm -- I would assume like a jet or something, but I do not know, no.

Q. Yeah. So you're making some assumptions, but you don't know how many people, for instance, would be on the airplane, right?

A. No.

Q. And you have no way of determining what person on the airplane made the call, correct?

A. No, I don't.

Q. So let's assume hypothetically that an airplane had two pilots, 11 passengers, and a crew member. Assume that as a hypothetical. Of those 14 people, would you have any way to determine from your records who made these phone calls?

A. No.

Q. Now, I do note that there are some phone calls, a number of them that are -- if we look at the exhibit, and this is Exhibit 850, I believe; is that correct? You have the actual exhibit in front of you.

A. Yes.

Q. And what's on the board is a copy of the same exhibit?
A. Yes.

Q. So if we look up at the top there where it says, "Minute," or "M-I-N" --
A. Uh-huh, yes.
Q. -- what is the minimum unit of time that will be recorded on your bill?
A. The minimum is -- you'll see there's a couple that are short-term charges that are 20 to 30 seconds. But the minimum usually is 30 seconds. But 20 seconds on.
Q. Okay. So on this particular bill, the minimum that we see on that page -- and I'm taking this off so I can see it up close. The minimum charge -- or, I'm sorry, the minimum recorded in the columns on this exhibit is one minute; is that right?
A. Right. So it rounds up to a minute.
Q. All right. So if there's a shorter call, it's still going to show up as one minute on the -- in that column there; is that correct?
A. Anything over 30 seconds will.
Q. And you also, from this bill, do not know if two people were actually able to talk to each another during these phone calls; is that correct?
A. It will connect. If it doesn't connect, it doesn't register.
Q. Okay. It connects to another phone, right?
A. Right.
Q. Now, this is basically a cell phone in the air, right?

A. Similar to a cell phone.
Q. And when you're flying and using one of these phones, you have to basically hit the repeater down on the ground in order to make a connection, correct?
Do you know what I mean, or am I using the wrong word?
A. If you can, yeah, rephrase that for me.

Q. Well, you said it's like a cell phone in the air.
A. Right.
Q. So while you're flying along, your signal from the cell phone in the air has to hit --
A. A ground station.
Q. -- the ground station.
And that's called a repeater, is it not, or do you know? Or a cell site?
A. I have no idea.
Q. Okay. Whatever it's called, you got to hit that thing, otherwise it doesn't work, right?
A. Right.
Q. And when you hit it, there are places where you will -- you'll hit it and you'll make a connection, but you will not have a clear enough connection to actually talk; is that correct?
A. There's that possibility, yes.
Q. So it's, in that sense, like a cell phone; 7863 that you can have bad reception, and you can be saying, “Can you hear me now?” And somebody on the other side is saying, “What?” Right?

A. True.
Q. Okay. So you do not know, from all these phone calls, how many actual conversations occurred between human beings where they could hear each other and communicate; is that correct?
A. No.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you very much.
No further questions, Your Honor.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. NICOLA:
Q. You mentioned that sometimes the airline charges will be together and you need to look at the actual time of a call that goes out?
A. Uh-huh.
MR. NICOLA: If I could have the Elmo just one more time, Your Honor.
THE WITNESS: Excuse me.
MR. NICOLA: I think we have an example here, line --

THE COURT: I'm going to break now for the argument.

(To the jury) Go ahead and take your recess.

MR. NICOLA: Oh, the motion.

THE COURT: You may step down.

MR. NICOLA: Step down.

THE COURT: (To the audience) All right. Please remain seated. There's a motion that's going to be made.

All right, Counsel. Go ahead. Do you want to make your motion?

MR. SANGER: Yeah. (Indicating.)

THE COURT: Oh, I'm sorry.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Your Honor, would you like the witness to leave the courtroom?

THE COURT: No. She may well want to. She's free to do so, but she doesn't -- she's not required.

MR. NICOLA: Are we back in session at 11:45, Your Honor?

THE COURT: At the end of our break, yes. Go ahead.

MR. SANGER: On behalf of Mr. Jackson, we are making a motion for mistrial based on prosecutorial misconduct. And the grounds for that motion for mistrial are that the Court ruled, as Your Honor reminded me, at a 402 motion that we would not be allowed to play this tape in its -- in the prosecution's case-in-chief.

THE COURT: Correct.

MR. SANGER: I made another motion contemporaneous in time, having felt that it was appropriate to do so. The Court summarily, and I think clearly, denied the motion.

THE COURT: And correctly. No, all right, go ahead.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: You don't have to say that.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to assert my Fifth Amendment rights on that.

I said that humorously, for the record.

THE COURT: I took it humorously, for the record.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

The serious part here, though, is that Mr. Auchincloss deliberately overreached. And the harm is, that having -- the Court having made such a clear ruling, he attempted to gain benefit from the Court's ruling that he wasn't entitled to.

Your Honor said we couldn't go into it, so he got up and went into it, and that was clearly inappropriate to start with. And it seemed calculated and intentional. Now, I can't read his mind. But I can't figure out how he could have missed that, after we just had a hearing on it.

Your Honor made an admonition -- and unfortunately my Livenote is not hooked up today, so I can't quote verbatim, but Your Honor has it. You gave an admonition to Mr. Auchincloss not to do that, and you explained to him exactly why; that you had just ruled, and it's not appropriate for him to go into that same area. He persisted and asked at least two more direct questions that just flew right in the face of the Court's ruling.

And the questions were not innocent questions that were going around to try to get to something else. They were even more focused, to telegraph to the jury exactly what he wanted them to hear. And he wanted them to hear that, in his opinion, the issue with regard to, as I think he said, something like sleeping with boys was not one of those areas that this witness felt was unfairly portrayed.

And he knew that he could get away with that because the Court was, at the very least, going to sustain the objection. We already couldn't go into it. There's nothing we could do about it. The bell has been rung, and this jury heard it.

I think the harm is particularly significant, because it's been our position that clearly those statements were the statements that were grossly misrepresented by Mr. Bashir in the way he edited the film.

So as a result of that, a tremendous amount of prejudice has occurred. It was deliberate on the part of the prosecutor. I say that, and that's my interpretation of what I saw. I don't think there's another reasonable interpretation. It's -- there's no other remedy, other than to grant a mistrial and say this is prosecutorial misconduct. It shouldn't have been done. As a result of their willful misconduct, a mistrial has to be granted. And that's our motion.

If the Court denies that, then we would of course ask the Court to entertain some other remedy which I'd ask to be heard on later, but I'm making a motion for mistrial, and I think it should be granted.

Thank you.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: To begin with, the questions that I was asking this witness about did not focus upon the material that was produced in the video, "The Footage You Were Never Meant To See." And those questions were not designed and obviously were not intended to ask him about what was on that final production.

My question went directly to an issue that defense counsel spent five pages questioning this witness about on cross-examination yesterday. And I have a couple of those items highlighted, and if the Court would allow me, I'd like to project them from the official transcripts.

THE COURT: Just read them to me.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: All right. First of all, Your Honor, counsel started by asking the question of this witness:

"And the reason you were being interviewed by Brad Lachman Productions was because the intention was to have some of those parts that you had filmed appear in the rebuttal video, right?"

And I objected. I say, "I'm going to object. Relevancy and beyond the scope.

"Mr. Mesereau: I believe that he opened the entire door, Your Honor.

"The Court: The objection is overruled.

"Mr. Mesereau: In fact, the title of that documentary on television was, "The Michael Jackson Interview: .The Footage You Were Never Meant To See,' right?"

We go on. He questions him extensively about "The Footage You Were Never Meant To See," including charities and Mr. Bashir's remarks.

We get to an area here that's particularly interesting in which counsel says:

"And your belief at that time was that Mr. Bashir had presented a very distorted view of that interview with Mr. Jackson, correct?

"Mr. Auchincloss: Objection; calls for a conclusion.

"Mr. Mesereau: State of mind, Your Honor.

"Mr. Auchincloss: Relevance.

"The Court: Overruled."

Now, this is an area that was clearly gone into by the defense, and my questions went directly to that question that defense counsel asked of this witness, that the -- that Martin Bashir presented a very distorted view, and my questions went directly to those remarks.

THE COURT: You went from the general concept, which I allowed, to the specifics, which I was not allowing.

The motion for a mistrial is denied.

All right. We'll take our break.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, just -- if I may --

THE COURT: I'll let you address the issue of alternative remedies. I thought you said you wanted to do that later.

MR. SANGER: Well, later. Whenever you want.

THE COURT: I will. I'll let you do that.

MR. SANGER: Okay.

(Recess taken.)

MR. MESEREAU: I don't think Mr. Sanger is here, Your Honor. I think he was intending to present some potential remedies to the Court.

THE COURT: Yes, that's what I thought he was going to do.

They're waving at you.

MR. MESEREAU: Oh, okay. No, I said Mr. Sanger doesn't appear to be here, and I think he wanted to present some alternative remedies to the Court. And unfortunately, I don't know where he is.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Perhaps we should just call the jury in and we could take up that issue later.

Maybe he's doing some research on that.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. Thank you.

MR. NICOLA: He may wish to recross after I redirect Miss Paulsen. He may wish to recross.

THE COURT: This is his witness?

MR. NICOLA: Yes.

THE COURT: So we have to wait for him no matter what.

MR. NICOLA: If you say I could be back on Friday, I'll go look for him right now, Judge.

Maybe he's in the law library?

MR. MESEREAU: I really don't know.

A VOICE FROM THE AUDIENCE: There he is.

THE BAILIFF: Yea.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: I'm sorry. I came out; I didn't know you were not here yet.

MR. SANGER: I apologize. I had to go back to my office and get something here.

THE BAILIFF: I'm sorry, I thought he was here. Sorry.

MR. SANGER: Do you want to address the --

THE COURT: If you're prepared. I came on so that you could do that. I don't know if you wanted to do it now or later. I misinterpreted what you had said earlier, so....

MR. SANGER: That's fine, Your Honor.

The reason I wanted to bring it up sooner rather than later is that if the Court fashioned a remedy that involved Mr. Moslehi, he would be here; and if you didn't, he could leave. So let me just address it quickly.

The motion for mistrial having been denied, and without conceding anything in that regard, our alternative request would be to either have, number one, an admonition to the jury that it was inappropriate to continue to ask those questions and that you had precluded the defense from getting into it, and make it very clear that those -- the questions, as the jury's been instructed, are not to be considered unless there's an answer.

But in this particular case, because you had already made rulings very clearly, you want to make sure that there's no unfair inference drawn, even if it's a subconscious or subliminal one. So some instruction to that effect, a curative instruction of some sort to try to get us back to square one and unring the bell.

Absent that --

THE COURT: "You're to disregard any subliminal messages you received during the last session?"

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: I'm sure we could word something more artfully than the concept that I just floated there, but I think there is something that could be done by way of a curative instruction to try to unring that bell. And I think it was unfairness and it was a matter of seizing on what the Court has just ruled on, and I think that's the big harm. It's not a matter that -- it's a matter that the prosecution had objected to our bringing that tape in and then sought to gain the benefit of the Court's continued ruling.

If the Court does not do that, then I would ask -- or in the alternative, either way, I'd ask the Court to allow us to now just play the outtakes, and that's --

THE COURT: That's where I thought you were going.

MR. SANGER: I didn't want to disappoint.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: And it's a fair way to do it, Your Honor. The outtakes are the outtakes. And if the jury sees that, they'll be able to form their own opinion and they won't be dealing with subliminal matters. They'll be dealing with liminal matters.

I'll submit it.

THE COURT: (To Mr. Auchincloss) You can sit down.

You know, I don't believe that Mr. Auchincloss seized the moment to take advantage of you after objecting. You know, I think there was a disconnect from -- in his brain somewhere about -- because he was worried about the earlier examination that had been done. And I just don't believe he was trying to do something to confront the Court or affront the Court.

And I think I, you know, saved the day by objecting myself, stopping it. So the jury has -- knows that I did not think that was proper. They got the message loud and clear. I've never done that before in this trial, so it was a very loud message I sent. So I think that's sufficient in this case.

So, do you have your witness here if we bring in the jury?

MR. NICOLA: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. And, you know, the issue of the playing those tapes still remains for your part of the case. That may well be. So if there's a foundational issue here, you had suggested that the prosecution might agree. I would like that out of the way, because I don't think -- if all we need is to have him come back, when all you want to do is play the tapes, we wouldn't want to have to do that.

You may want him back, too. I don't know.

But if that's something we could agree on, playing those outtakes without a further foundation from him, if either of the parties desire, I think that would be a good thing to do. But you can talk to each other about that.

MR. SANGER: Very well, Your Honor.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: And is it permissible for Mr. Moslehi to leave? He's waiting for us.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: Thank you.

THE COURT: But you understand my issue on --

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I do. And I think that's something --

THE COURT: -- whether you want to agree to a foundational issue that he took those tapes. We've all watched them.

MR. AUCHINCLOSS: I'm certain if it's merely authentication, we can come to some agreement.

THE COURT: Okay. I'll leave while you bring the jury in.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right, Counsel. Proceed, please.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.

May I have -- Input 4 is already on.

Q. Miss Paulsen, if I could direct your attention to Item 29 and 30. There appear to be two air link charges right behind each other.

Is that an example of what you testified to on direct as having to look for the corresponding number to figure out which charges go together?

A. Yes, it is. Item 27 and 29 would go together. And Item 28 and 30 would go together.

Q. Okay. And Item 27 is registered in the bill as a two-minute call to the same telephone number as Item 25; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Once a call gets past one minute, does it register automatically in your system as a two-minute call?

A. Anything over one minute, if it goes over a minute, it registers as two minutes.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Mrs. Paulsen. I have nothing further.

MR. SANGER: Nothing further, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. NICOLA: The next witness will be Gabe Dominguez, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: Which exhibit?

MR. NICOLA: With T-Mobile.

Stop that witness.

Oh, he got it. Never mind.

THE COURT: Raise your right hand, please.

GABRIEL DOMINGUEZ

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Gabriel Dominguez. G-a-b-r-i-e-l; last name D-o-m-i-n-g-u-e-z.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good morning, sir. How are you?

A. I'm fine.

Q. Are you here as a custodian of records for the telephone company T-Mobile?

A. Yes.

Q. How long have you been employed with T-Mobile, please?

A. For over four years.

Q. And have you testified before as a custodian of records for T-Mobile?

A. Yes.

Q. Approximately how many occasions?

A. Over 60 or 70 times.

Q. Is that your primary role with T-Mobile?

A. It is one of them.

Q. You go to court and authenticate the records that were asked for pursuant to subpoena and search warrant?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. With respect to this particular case, did your company send records pursuant to search warrant for phone records for the following individuals: Christopher Carter; Franchesco Cascio; Vincent Amen; Evelyn Tavasci; and Christian Robinson?

A. Yes.

Q. In front of you is Exhibit 452. Do you recognize that?

A. Yes.

Q. How do you recognize that?

A. I recognize this to be subscriber information and billing records, or called detail records, for the people you just mentioned.

Q. Is there a table of contents in that exhibit?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you compared the contents of the exhibit with the table of contents?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you looked through the entire exhibit prior to your testimony today?

A. Yes.

Q. Generally, and I mean this with respect to all the documents in that exhibit, save the table of contents, are they records that are made in the regular course of T-Mobile business?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, with respect to the specific subscriber information within those exhibits, is the information recorded on the subscriber report made by persons under a duty to record the information accurately at or near the time that the information is relayed to them?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you explain to the jury what a subscriber record is?

A. A subscriber record is a customer's name, address, Social Security number, and any identifying information for that customer.

Q. Why do you need that information?

A. For billing purposes.

Q. I'd like you to turn specifically to Tab No. 1, and is that the information for one Christopher Carter?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And Tab No. 2, please, is that the information for Franchesco Cascio?

A. Yes.

Q. Tab No. 3, please, is that the information for Vincent Amen?

A. Yes.

Q. Tab No. 4 and Tab No. 5 respectively, Evelyn Tavasci and Christian Robinson?

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. That's compound.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Okay. With respect to the contents of Tab 1, the records pertaining to Christopher Carter, are there also bills which include phone tolls?

A. Yes.

Q. Are those records also kept in the regular course of T-Mobile business?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you regularly rely upon those records in generating revenue?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you rely on their accuracy?

A. Yes.

Q. Mr. Dominguez, with respect to Christopher Carter, is the phone number listed on the table of contents the same phone number that appears on the record within Tab No. 1 of Exhibit 452?

A. Yes.

Q. And with respect to Franchesco Cascio, is the phone number listed on the table of contents the same as the phone number listed on the pages of Tab 2?

A. Yes.

Q. How about with Vincent Amen; same question with respect to Tab 3?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And I have the same question for Evelyn Tavasci, Tab 4.

A. Yes.

Q. And Christian Robinson, Tab 5?

A. Yes.

Q. Do the phone tolls for each of the individuals that we've just named extend from a period of January through March of 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. With respect to the Christian Robinson subscriber information in Tab 5, is there also another name in the subscriber report?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is that, please?

A. Site LLC.

Q. Is there another document right behind that that has the name Christian Robinson on it?

A. Yes.

Q. And what is that document?

A. That is the front page of a bill.

Q. Okay. What does it say on the top left-hand corner?

A. The top line says, “Site LLC.” Second line says, “Attention: Christian Robinson.”

MR. NICOLA: With the Court's permission, we'd offer this into evidence so we can project it.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, before you rule --

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: -- my understanding is they're offering the entire book as an exhibit. Is that correct?

MR. NICOLA: That is correct.

MR. SANGER: And I object, because the entire book -- there's material in at least the book that was given to me that has not been covered by the prosecution, and I would like an opportunity to approach the witness and see what is in that book.

THE COURT: You may.

MR. SANGER: Thank you. Your Honor, can I have a moment to speak with counsel for just a --

THE COURT: Yes.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. NICOLA: We're having a -- trying to explain the different table of contents, Your Honor.

THE COURT: That's fine.

MR. SANGER: It's more than that. There are things that were removed from the book and we're just trying to figure out which book is right. And there we go. Based on what I've now seen, I will withdraw -- if I objected, I'll withdraw it. Otherwise, I'll submit it.

THE COURT: All right. I'll admit it.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor. May we have "Input 4," please?

Q. If you could turn to the subscriber record for Christopher Carter located under Tab No. 1, and is this the account information that it contains for Mr. Carter for the phone number that appears at the very top of the exhibit, (702) 234-9059?

A. Yes.

Q. And is the work telephone number gathered at the time that the account is opened?

A. Yes.

Q. And for this exhibit, it is -- or for this account, it is (818) 910-5505?

THE COURT: I just cut the screen on this. You're showing a person's Social Security number and address, and I don't think you should be doing that.

MR. NICOLA: A little brain dead right now. I apologize.

Q. Can you turn to, in your book, the exhibit that begins with -- I believe it's 29 of 32 for Chris Carter's number. Okay. It's the exhibit in Mr. Carter's bill that begins with roaming charges, 29 of 32. Do you have it in front of you?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the first entry on that dated 1-31-03, Miami, Florida?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Just one second before we do this. Before we do this, let me just have a moment.

MR. NICOLA: Maybe we should kill that.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Now, having resolved that, I guess I have a belated question. We had raised it earlier with regards to Mr. Jackson's phone numbers. I mean, we are putting everybody's phone numbers up on the board.

MR. NICOLA: May we approach so we can -- I have a solution for that that will take two seconds to discuss at sidebar.

THE COURT: All right.

(An off-the-record discussion was held at sidebar.)

MR. NICOLA: May I proceed with the Elmo, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. NICOLA: Excuse me, the “Input 4.”

Q. We were talking about the -- this document in the T-Mobile exhibit. If you could just explain generally the highlighted area and what they mean for the jury, please.

A. The first column shows the date that that call took place. The following column under "Call Destination," that shows the city called. And that's also an outgoing call. Column after that shows the time that that call took place. The "Number Called" is either the number called or received. And then the duration.

Q. Okay. How do we know if a call has been received?

A. If a call has been received, it would show "incoming." So if you look at where it says, January 31st, 2003, at 6:27 p.m., that's an incoming call, and that's how you can tell it's an incoming call, because it says so.

Q. Sometimes the incoming call will record in there and sometimes it will not?

A. Um -- explain.

Q. Well, if it's an incoming call, will the --

A. Where the number doesn't show up, it's because the person is blocking their number or our system did not catch a date and incoming number.

Q. Let me ask you about the code highlighted parentheses "A." What does that mean?

A. If you were to look at the bottom of the page, there's a legend that displays the call type and what the "A" would stand for. "A" stands for call waiting.

Q. Okay. Let me move that up.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I'm very sorry. This is -- this is -- yeah, I understand. This is somewhat piecemeal here.

THE COURT: Did you want me to black out the screen while you --

MR. SANGER: Could you please, Your Honor? This -- this -- I don't want to argue in front of the jury, but the availability -- this witness is not being called, as I understand it -- I don't think there's relevance to these phone records. And I know I submitted it. And now that I'm hearing what is being presented from these records, I think I should object to this exhibit or move to strike this exhibit based on irrelevancy, at least this Tab No. 1, unless there's something that's going to connect it up at some point in this case.

THE COURT: I assume you are entering this information for a purpose.

MR. NICOLA: We are, Your Honor. And I don't want to argue this in front of the jury.

THE COURT: Okay. I'm going to allow -- I'm going to deny the motion to strike and go forward.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you.

Q. Okay. The different call types are listed on the bottom of the billing page?

A. Yes.

Q. And "A" is for call waiting?

A. Yes.

Q. For those of you who don't know how call waiting works, can you explain that real quickly for us?

A. When someone receives an incoming call, they'll hear a tone telling them then there's a call on the other end. What they would do then is they would switch over to the other line, and they could speak to the other person. And when they're finished, they can terminate that call and continue with the phone call they -- they initially originated or whoever called them originally.

Q. So the subscriber is on the phone?

A. Right.

Q. Another call comes in; he hears a beep?

A. Right.

Q. Pushes a button; can talk to the other person on the phone without hanging up on the first one?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. What about call forwarding?

A. Call forwarding. Call forwarding works -- if you wanted to receive a call, but you wanted to forward it to a different number, someone calls you, that number, then that call then goes to the number that you forwarded it to.

Q. Okay. Say, someone has their home phone number forwarded to their cell phone. Would that register as an incoming call on the cell phone?

A. It would -- on the record, it would show the incoming number from the person that's calling. It wouldn't show the number where it's being forwarded to.

Q. And if you forward your cell phone to a different number, will the number that called, that was forwarded, show up on the bill?

A. No.

Q. With respect to the "G" in parentheses, what is that code for?

A. Voice mail.

Q. So if somebody is checking their voice mail, it will show up on the bill as voice mail retrieval?

A. Yes.

Q. And then get charged for that?

A. Yes, if they go over their allotted minutes.

Q. Are there different sections of this particular bill for Mr. Carter? For example, this one here has a header called "Roaming Charges."

A. Yes. There would be another bill, just the regular billed charges of calls that he made while he was in his home area.

Q. Okay. And with respect to the charges listed under this heading, "Roaming Charges," can you tell us where the phone that was being used to dial out, say, to this number here, the 305 number, where that phone was?

A. In the Miami/Dade area, or Southern Florida.

Q. And how can you tell that?

A. On the top left-hand corner above the date, it says, "Miami/Dade."

Q. Right there where I'm pointing?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, if it is not under a "Roaming Charges" section in the bill, where does "Call Destination" correspond to?

A. The "Call Destination" doesn't actually correspond to the physical location of the outgoing number that they're calling. A few years ago the area code and prefix used to correspond to a specific geographic area. Now, with cell phones, they can be pretty much anywhere.

Q. Okay. If you could turn to page 4 of 23 on the March 5th bill. Are we looking at the same page here?

A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So where it says, “2-9-03, Santa Ynez, California,” the time and the phone number, is that under one of the regular billing headers?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. So the call was not placed from Santa Ynez, as far as the bill is concerned?
A. Right.
Q. Okay. And, now, is Santa Ynez a region that just shows up on the bill because of a --
A. Because of the area code and prefix.
Q. And that destination tied in with the phone number that was dialed?
A. No.
Q. How does that work?
A. The area code and prefix are the first six numbers. The area code, being 805 the prefix being 688, that belongs to Santa Ynez.
Q. Okay.
If you can move on, please, to the documents in Tab 2 for Franchesco Cascio, do those records show a work telephone number for him of Area Code (818) 905-0386?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. If you'd turn to page -- or Tab 3, please, for Vincent Amen. If you could turn to the bill dated February 21st, 2003.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: I'd like to show you an example of an incoming call with respect to the phone call which registered 2-11-03, 2:30 p.m, that's highlighted. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. What does the "F" mean?

A. "F" means mobile-to-mobile. The number that is being dialed or received is another T-Mobile customer.

Q. Okay. Does that work outside of your calling network?

A. Yes.

Q. So if someone with AT&T Wireless on a mobile phone dials the owner of this cell phone, will their number show up here?

A. Yes, but it wouldn't have an "F" behind it.

Q. So this is within the same calling area?

A. No, it's within the same company. They're both T-Mobile customers.

Q. So there's no charge?

A. There's no charge, because they can either be within their allotted minutes, or if they have part of their price plan all T-Mobile to T-Mobile, calls can be free.

Q. Okay. I'd like you to turn to the next tab, please, the records for Ms. Evelyn Tavasci. I'm going to take this down.

On the subscriber record, do you see the home telephone number of Miss Tavasci?

A. Yes.

Q. And is that the same number that is listed in Christopher Carter's subscriber information as being a work number?

A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Mr. Dominguez.

Your witness, Mr. Sanger.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Good afternoon.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. We always have to look at the clock when we say that, because we don't know when it's noon around here.

THE COURT: Some of us.

(Laughter.)

MR. SANGER: Oh. Some may be painfully aware, I suppose.

Q. All right. You have testified to some records that are in front of you there, and the fact that -- let me withdraw that.

These particular telephones are mobile telephones. They're cell phones, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So these are not phones that are associated with a particular address. I mean, you have a billing address and that sort of thing, but they're not stuck someplace, right?

A. No.

Q. Secondly, you mentioned that the Tab No. 4, Evelyn Tavasci phone, and the Tab No. 1, Christopher Carter phone, have a similar -- or have the same number on the - what would you call it? - subscriber database; is that right?

A. Yeah, the one has the number for being the work, and the other has it for their home telephone number.

Q. Just to make this a little more clear, the actual telephone number for the records -- in other words, you have billing records behind each tab, right?

A. Right.

Q. Are the billing records for Tab No. 1 for the same telephone number as Tab No. 4?

A. No.

Q. Okay. And all that you show there is that in the subscriber database where you have other telephone numbers for people, this telephone number ending in 5005 shows up in both of those bases; is that correct?

A. One shows up in the work telephone slot, because that was the number that they gave when they signed up for their account as to what their work telephone number was.

The other one shows that number as being their home telephone number, because that was the information they gave when they set up the account as that being their home telephone.

Q. And obviously you're here as custodian of records. You weren't there when these were signed up. You don't know who did it, right?

A. No.

Q. Is it common for a company or an organization to purchase a number of telephones from your company?

A. Yes.

Q. And they would have similar subscriber information for more than one telephone on occasion; is that correct?

A. Yes. For a large corporation, yes.

Q. All right. And finally, the fact that these phone records -- these billing records are billed to a particular person, it says, "Statement For" up in the right-hand corner; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The fact that it says, "Statement For," Christopher Carter or Franchesco Cascio or any of the others, does that the mean that those particular individuals were using the telephone on that day?

A. No, it does not.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. NICOLA: Nor do I, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. NICOLA: Pacific Bell, Anne Marie Sims, Your Honor.

THE COURT: On Exhibit 452, I'll order that the District Attorney provide redacted pages for those pages that have home addresses, Social Security numbers, and unrelated phone numbers on them.

MR. SANGER: Just to clarify while we're waiting, I take it that your ruling on the motion to strike is without prejudice to renewing it if it isn't connected up.

THE COURT: It is, correct.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: Come forward, please. When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk. Raise your right hand.

ANNE MARIE SIMS
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: Anne Marie Sims. A-n-n-e; M-a-r-i-e; S-i-m-s.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. NICOLA:
Q. Good afternoon, ma'am.
A. Hello.
Q. What company do you work for?
A. SBC.
Q. You're here about telephone numbers.
A. Yes.
Q. Surprise.
How long have you been with SBC?
A. It will be 25 years in May.
Q. We placed in front of you Exhibit 451, I believe; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And are you familiar with the contents of Exhibit 451?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now, with respect to your role here as custodian of records for Pacific Bell, how long have you been working for them in that capacity?
A. Two years.
Q. And have you testified on a number of occasions as a custodian of records?
A. Yes.
Q. Have you had an opportunity to look at the records contained within Exhibit 451 prior to today's date?

A. Yes.
Q. And is there a table of contents in the front portion?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Have you compared the information under the subscriber name and the subscriber phone number with the records which are contained within that exhibit?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you find that they corresponded?
A. Yes.
Q. And is the table of contents accurate?
A. Yes.
Q. With respect to generally the entire exhibit, are the records in there, save the table of contents, records which are made in the ordinary course and scope of the business of Pacific Bell?
A. Yes.
Q. And is the information contained within Exhibit 451 recorded at or near the time of the events that they purport to relate?
A. Yes.
Q. And is this exhibit -- excuse me, are the contents of this exhibit records that you normally rely upon in conducting the business of Pacific Bell?
A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: We'd move this into evidence at this time, Your Honor.
THE COURT: It's admitted.
MR. SANGER: Excuse me, Your Honor. I was going to ask counsel and he started too soon. May I just approach and --
THE COURT: I'll withdraw my ruling until you've had an opportunity to look at them.
MR. SANGER: Just take a quick look at them. Thank you.
MR. NICOLA: Ahh.
MR. SANGER: May I borrow that for a second? I'll submit it, but again, relevance has not been demonstrated as yet.
THE COURT: All right. They're admitted,

subject to that same proviso.
MR. SANGER: Thank you.
MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. In Tab No. 1, I believe there are the records of Ms. Evvy Tavasci.
A. Yes.
Q. Is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the phone lines that you'll be referring to contained within Exhibit 451, are they cellular phones or are they hard lines that go into houses, business lines?
A. They're landlines, wire lines.

Q. Do you have two phone numbers listed for Ms. Tavasci's home? You don't have to tell us what they are. Are they within the table of contents?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And is the one ending in 0088 the second line into that home?
A. Yes.
Q. And the one ending in 5005 the primary line?
A. Yes.
Q. Are there specific billing information records within the exhibit for Evvy Tavasci, Tab No. 1, for the period between approximately January and March of 2003?
A. Yes.
Q. If you could move to Tab No. 2. Are those the billing and subscriber information records for Ms. Aja Pryor?
A. Yes.
Q. And if you could move to Tab No. 3. Contained within that tab, do you find the billing and toll information for a business entitled, "Neverland Valley Entertainment"?
A. Yes.
Q. And are there five separate phone lines going into that business that you have record of?
A. Yes.
Q. And are all those phone numbers reflected in the records within Tab No. 3?

A. Yes.

Q. I have the same question about exhibit number -- excuse me, Tab No. 4 in Exhibit No. 451. Is that the subscriber and billing records of one Miko Brando?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Moving on to Tab No. 5, please, subscriber and billing records for David Ventura?

A. Yes.

Q. I would like to show you a page from that, if I may.

If you could turn to the March 12th section of the bill. It would be a long-distance call.

Okay. Do you have a call to Santa Ynez on that date?

A. On what date?

Q. Did I say March 12th? March 14th.

A. March 14th, yes. On March 14th?

Q. Yes.

A. Oh, yes.

Q. You do?

A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: If I may have the "Input," Your Honor.

Q. Okay. Is that the page you're looking at in the exhibit?

A. Yes.

Q. Perhaps we can just go over this one page.

Is the phone number connected to David Ventura (626) 575-6162, this one up here?

A. Yes.

Q. On this bill, can you explain these groups of numbers up here? The 8-1 of 9, what does that mean?

A. When we're looking at telephone accounts or bills in the computer, the screen can only show a third of the page, so -- or, you know, just a portion of the page that prints out on the actual customer's bill. So this would be like eight -- the eighth page, the first part of the screen in the computer.

Q. Okay. So --

A. And then there would be nine pages altogether.

Q. So this is part of page nine of the bill; is that right?

A. It would be, I believe, page eight. I don't know.

Q. Page eight out of nine pages, I'm sorry.

A. Right.

Q. It's confusing. That's why I'm trying to --

A. You're confusing me.

Q. Okay. So this is the eighth page, first computer screen --

A. Right.

Q. -- out of nine pages?

A. Right.

Q. Now, the call you were referring to, is that Item No. 10 listed down here?

A. Yes.

Q. So on "MR14," is that March 14?

A. Yes.

Q. This is the 2003 bill at 2:15 p.m. A call was placed to that number down there?

A. Yes.

Q. That's (805) 688-9788?

A. Yes.

Q. Would you please turn to the page immediately preceding that in the exhibit? Is that page No. 7-4 of 9?

A. Yes.

Q. On the Ventura bill there appear to be calls both on February 13th and February 14th to a number in Morristown. And does that "NJ" stand for New Jersey?

A. Yes.

Q. And the number dialed was (201) 213-0763?

A. Yes.

Q. Can you tell over here under the "Minutes" column whether those are completed calls or not?

A. Yes.

Q. How can you tell that?

A. Because they were printed on the bill.

Q. Okay. So if I call this number but hang up before someone else picks up the phone, it's not going to show up on my bill?

A. Correct.

Q. Okay. And do you use the round up, take-whatever-you-can-get-from-the-consumer system of counting minutes?

A. Yes.

Q. So a two-second call -- excuse me. I couldn't resist.

A two-second telephone call with this company, completed, will cost a minute, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. So it's a little different than some other systems?

A. Yes.

Q. A three-minute one-second call will register as four minutes, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The most you can say about any of these numbers over here under "Minutes" is that this call, Item No. 9, lasted between three and four minutes; is that accurate?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. If we could go back to the table of contents, please. And Tab No. 6, are those the records for one Jay Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And is the telephone number for Jay Jackson (213) 739-9279?

A. Yes.

Q. Moving on to Tab 7, MJJ Productions, is the phone number for MJJ Productions listed as (310) 278-3383?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And how about the information for one Chris Tucker in Tab No. 9? Without telling us the phone number, is his information within Tab No. 9, is that information accurate?

A. Yes.

Q. I'm going to ask you now about, in order, The Country Inn at Calabasas. Oh, yes. I'm sorry. Is their subscriber information under Tab 10?

A. Yes.

Q. How about the next tab, Number 11, the L.A. City Board of Education, specifically Burroughs Junior High School? Is the subscriber information and telephone number in there as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And finally, No. 12 and 13, Kaiser Foundation and Enterprise Rent-A-Car respectively.

A. Yes.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. I have no further questions, Your Honor.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Good afternoon. Let's start with Tab No. 9, and -- yeah, let me borrow that. And I'm going to ask you if you correlate a particular telephone number to Chris Tucker.

A. Yes.

Q. Yes? And does that number end in 1861?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And in fact, it's (818) 757-1861. That's Chris Tucker's number; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And I'm going to ask you to turn now to Tab 9. And with the Court's permission, I'm going to put up on the board -- I'm sorry, wait a second. Tab 6. Tab 6. With the Court's permission, I'm going to put up on the board a page from that exhibit, which appears to be February 8th at the top and then it says, “3-3 of 6.” Let's see if we have the same thing there. Are you looking at that page in the book?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. So we're on the right page. Okay. Just a second. Oop, there it goes. All right. Sorry. This -- first of all, page six would be the phone number for Jay Jackson up in the upper left-hand corner; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And that shows his phone number right up here, the upper left-hand corner above his name, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. The entry on line 16 is for February 4, 2003, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And at 6:11 p.m., it appears that a call -- is this made to or was received from?

A. Made to.

Q. Okay. So the call was made to Reseda, California, to Chris Tucker's phone number, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And it lasted -- is that the amount of time right there, four --

A. Yes.

Q. Four-minute call? All right. And then it appears that at 6:14 p.m., another call was made to Chris Tucker on February 4, that same number, that lasted about four minutes, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, you could not tell from the billing records, from this billing record, whether or not this particular billing record -- whether or not Chris Tucker called -- well, let me withdraw that. On this record, we see the two calls are made to that Chris Tucker number, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. I'm going to ask that -- if you leave it on for a second, Your Honor, I'm going to flip to another page. I'm going to ask that you go back to Tab 5, and I'm going to go to the page -- it's actually the first page that was shown to you by the prosecutor and the two pages after that. So it will be the March 26th, 2003, 8-1 of 9, 8-2 of 9. And then we'll go to the next page in the exhibit, in the way mine's organized anyway, which is the April 26th, 2003, 5-4 of 5.

Is that the next page in your exhibit?

A. I -- I have 2-1 of 5 and then 5-4 of 5.

Q. Okay. Well, I'm going to go to 5-4 of 5.

So we've got those three?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's start with the first one.

If I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I'm going to put up this page. And this shows us that this is the telephone of David Ventura, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And it appears that on March the 12th -- and I'll just note that apparently there's some pen marks here that aren't on the actual exhibit, if I can be excused for that, but it's on my copy. Quite frankly, I must have done it, or somebody did.

Other than that, look -- just look at the printed page here. On March 12, somebody at David Ventura's number is calling a number in Buellton two different times, at 5:08 p.m. and 7:02 p.m., right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then there's a number on March the 12th at 11:25 p.m. That's 35 minutes before midnight, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And somebody, at half an hour or so before midnight, is calling Guadalupe, California, and calling a number there, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And talking for 35 minutes, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. There are a couple more calls on the 13th to Santa Ynez. And then on the evening of the 13th at 6:45 p.m., somebody at David Ventura's number is calling that same number in Guadalupe again. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And talking for 64 minutes. Right?

A. Yes.

Q. And when it's 8:45, that's the start time of the call, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So that call went on from 8:45 in the evening to 9:49, if I add it correctly, in the evening; is that right?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Thank you. You have to say “yes” or “no” for the court reporter there.

Okay. Now, I'm going to -- and then the District Attorney already asked you about the last one, a call to Santa Ynez at 2:15 p.m.

Let's go to the next page, if we may, with the Court's permission. And this is the next page of the phone bill, or the next computer screen of the phone bill; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And again, this is David Ventura's telephone. Somebody in David Ventura's house on March the 14th, at 8:12 p.m., calls that same number in Guadalupe, talks for -- or is billed for a minute. So it was connected and it lasted less than 60 seconds, right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And then at -- on the 16th, which would be one minute after midnight on the early morning of March the 16th, there's a call to the same number from David Ventura's phone to that

Guadalupe phone number, same number, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Lasts 26 minutes, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then March the 16th, that was just one minute after midnight, the first thing in the morning. The next one is later that night at 10:14 p.m. on March the 16th. Somebody's calling that same number in Guadalupe, California, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Six minutes.
A. Yes.
Q. Right?
A. Yes.
Q. And then on the 17th, there are three telephone calls here that I'm pointing to, on lines 14, 15 and 16, and they are respectively at 6:28, 8:51 and 8:57 p.m.
So somebody's trying to call someone at that same number in Guadalupe, and apparently concluding the call within a minute?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. And then on March the 18th, somebody from Mr. Ventura's phone calls Guadalupe at 3:26 p.m., talks to someone at that same number, presumably, for 22 minutes, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And then at 9 -- almost 9:30, 9:29 p.m. on 7910

the 18th, there's another call to that same Guadalupe number for 26 minutes; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. Now I'm going to go to the next page I referred to. I'll put it up and I'll describe it.
It's the next page in my book, but wherever it is in the official book it is. It's identified by the number at the top, April 26th, 2003, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And 5-4 of 5, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And this is David Ventura?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, here it shows a series of calls on 3-19 and 3-20 and 3-21. So March 19th through March 21st, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And this is still 2003, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And somebody is calling from the Venturas' telephone, calling that very same number at Guadalupe; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And without going too laboriously through this, the calls are in the evening of 3-19 at 7:10 p.m. for 36 minutes?

A. Yes.

Q. And then that would have taken it from 7:10 to 7:46. So about 15 minutes later, at 8:01 p.m., there's another call to the same number for another 17 minutes, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then at 10:50 p.m. is another call for three minutes --

A. Yes.

Q. -- correct?

And the next day, at 2:57 p.m., there's a three-minute call?

A. Yes.

Q. And later that evening, at 7:52, there's a three-minute call, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then on 3-20, at 7:55 p.m. So it -- if I'm right, it looks like that three-minute call, there was a hang-up and a call right back; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. So -- and that call then lasts for 20 minutes; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And then the next day, at 9:37 at night, there's a call to that same number in Guadalupe from the Ventura residence for one minute; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. Thank you.

Oh, and before I leave, all -- I think the District Attorney asked you this, but just to be sure. All of these phones are landlines, so they're -- they're all connected by a wire to the wall?

A. Yes.

Q. So the location that's indicated for the telephone is the location where that telephone actually is?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. NICOLA: No redirect, Your Honor. Oh, I'm sorry. I do have one question.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. With respect to a completed call on the phone bill, is there any way to -- any way to tell whether the call actually went to voice mail or whether it was live conversation?

A. No.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. Thank you.

THE COURT: You say "yes" better than any witness I've ever had.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

THE COURT: You're excused.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor. Joseph Shebroe.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing. Face the clerk over here, and raise your right hand.

JOSEPH SHEBROE

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name's Joseph Shebroe. J-o-s-e-p-h; S-h-e-b-r-o-e.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Any chance you're here to talk about phones?

A. I am.

Q. Which company, please?

A. Verizon Wireless.

Q. Are you here as the custodian of records for Verizon Wireless?

A. I am.

Q. How long have you been with Verizon Wireless?

A. A little over seven years.

Q. What is your current position?

A. I currently supervise a specialty customer service group called the Executive Relations Team.

Q. Okay. With respect to this particular case, were you sent here by your agency to testify about search warrant information that you sent to the court in People vs. Jackson?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Do you recognize the contents of Exhibit No. 456?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Go ahead and look through that, please. Have you had an opportunity to see Exhibit 456 prior to your testimony today?

A. I have.

Q. Okay. And is there a table of contents?

A. Yes, there is.

Q. Okay. And is that a two-page table of contents?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you compared the information contained within each of the tabs with the corresponding information on the table of contents for each entry?

A. I have.

Q. And is the table of contents accurate with respect to what is actually within Exhibit 456?

A. It is.

Q. Does Exhibit 456 contain subscriber information for the following individuals under Tab

No. 2: Deborah Rowe?

A. Yes.

Q. Jesus Salas?

A. Yes.

Q. Franchesco Cascio?

A. Yes.

Q. Paul Hugo?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Does Exhibit No. 456, Tab 2, accurately reflect the telephone numbers for each of those subscribers?

A. It does.

Q. Okay. Moving to Tab No. 3, does Tab No. 3 include the billing -- excuse me, the account summary for Mr. Cascio for the billing period of February of 2003?

A. Yes, sir, it does.

Q. Okay. Is that a phone number, (201) 213-0763?

A. Yes.

Q. Tab No. 4, does that contain what is -- what we put on the exhibit as an incoming/outgoing February 2003 heading for the number 213-0763?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that actually a document that's a switch 7916 record?

A. Yes.

Q. Could you explain what a switch record is for the jury?

A. Sure. A switch record is basically more -- it's not like a billing statement. It's the record that -- that the cell towers produce when a call is placed that we use kind of as a back end.

Q. I don't think they heard the last part of that.

A. Kind of as a back end. It's not something that's produced for the customer. It's the records that we use internally that then feeds to the billing system, which then generates a particular bill.

Q. Do you keep those particular records for a period of time?

A. Yes, although I'm not sure of the exact amount of time we keep those for.

Q. Is it longer than a couple of weeks?

A. Absolutely.

Q. Okay. Tab No. 5 are the contents of Mr. Cascio's March 2003 bill for the same phone number, 213-0763?

A. Yes.

Q. And the Tab No. 6 , does that contain the switch records for the same period of time?

A. Yes, the same time.

Q. And Tab No. 7, does that include Mr. Cascio's account summary for April of 2003, the same phone number?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Moving down to the next entries are Tab 10?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Is there a Tab 11?

A. Not in the table of contents. There is in here.

Q. Are there two Tab 10s on the table of contents?

A. Yes, there are.

Q. Would you take a look at the second Tab 10 and see if the contents should be marked as Tab 11, please?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Would you change that on the table of contents? Do you have a pen? So we do go now Tab 10 and Tab 11?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. And is that the account information for one Ms. Deborah Rowe?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. For February and March respectively?

A. Yes.

Q. Are the contents of Exhibit 456 records which you keep in the ordinary course of Verizon Wireless business?

A. They are.

Q. Is the information contained within Exhibit 456 recorded at or near the time of the events purported to be --

A. Yes, they are.

Q. -- purported to be in the exhibits?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. All right. And does Verizon Wireless regularly rely upon the documents within 456 to conduct their business?

A. We do.

MR. NICOLA: We move that this exhibit be moved into evidence, Your Honor.

MR. SANGER: May I approach and take a look?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Subject to a motion to strike if it's not connected, based on the prior ruling to the Court, I'll submit it.

THE COURT: I'll admit it with that proviso.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Would you please turn to Frank Cascio's February billing statement, please, under Tab 3?

A. Okay.

Q. And could you please turn to what is marked as page 23 of 35?

A. Okay.

Q. This blacked-out section up above, is that something that your company does prior to sending the records in?

A. Yes.

Q. Makes it hard for us to do this. Can you read what the fourth column header is? Is that called “Origination”?

A. Yes, it is. Yes, it is.

Q. If I go back down to the fourth column --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- the number 926, is that a telephone call item number?

A. It's actually 936.

Q. Okay.

A. But, yeah. Yes, it is.

Q. Could you just read for us what, going from left to right, what these columns mean?

A. Sure. Item No. 936, the date the call was placed was February 1st at 12:16 a.m. The "O" under "Rate Period" is for off peak, meaning a night or a weekend. "Call Origination" is Miami, Florida. Then the phone number that was called. Would you like me to read the number?

Q. No. We can see it.

A. Okay. The phone -- the location of that phone number is Beverly Hills, California. The duration was ten minutes. It was placed on a weekend. The "Home Air Time Charges Included," that's basically in relation to the calling plan that was chosen. And then the two charges on the right are both zero.

Q. Okay. So the first geographical location is where the call was placed from?

A. That's correct.

Q. And the second geographical location is where the phone number is registered to?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Could you explain what the -- the codes beginning with "W," "RMW" and "CW" mean?

A. Sure. The "RMW" is a voice mail retrieval. You can also tell that just to the left of that, where it says "Voice Mail." That's another way. And the "C" -- the "W" under the "CW" is the weekend. The "C" I'm not exactly 100 percent sure of.

Q. Is there a legend in the phone bill that would assist you?

A. Yeah. There should be. There is. It's call waiting.

Q. Okay. Do you find that on page 34 of 35 on the February 7th, 2003, bill?

A. 34 of 35, yeah.

Q. Okay. Is that what you're looking at?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is there a three-way calling feature with Verizon Wireless?

A. Yes.

Q. Is that encoded somewhere on this legend, or does that have a separate --

A. It would have a separate, but it's not on the legend that you have up there, though.
Q. What is the code for three-way calling?
A. I'm not sure.
Q. Can you find that for us? I think we're going to probably take a break here in a couple of minutes.
A. Okay. Thank you.
Q. Go ahead, if you can look through the record. If you'd like, we'll move on to something else, and during the break you can find that code for us, okay?
A. Okay.
THE COURT: We'll take a break.
MR. NICOLA: Now?
THE COURT: We'll go ahead and take a break.
MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Judge.
(Recess taken.)
THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.
MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.
Q. Mr. Shebroe, just prior to the break, I asked you if you knew what the code was for the three-way calling off the top of your head.
Did you find your cheat sheet to help you?
A. Yeah.
Q. What is the code for three-way calling?
A. The code letter "O." 7922

Q. Is there a code for call forwarding?
A. For call forwarding? The letter "F."
MR. NICOLA: I believe that's all I have.
THE COURT: Mr. Sanger?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. Okay. Mr. Shebroe, how're you doing?
A. Good. How are you?
Q. I'm fine.
All of these phones are cell phones; is that correct?
A. That's correct.

MR. SANGER: Okay. No further questions.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: But you couldn't say, "No questions," could you?

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: You came that close.

MR. NICOLA: May the witness be excused, Your Honor?

THE COURT: You may. You may step down. Just so the jury knows, the short delay, our court reporter is still having problems with her computer, so in case nobody told you that, that's why we're having some lengthened recesses. It's not because I care about your recesses.

Call your next witness.

MR. NICOLA: Here she is. Jeanne Mulcahy.

THE COURT: Please remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

JEANNE MULCAHY

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Jeanne Mulcahy. J-e-a-n-n-e, M--u-l-c-a-h-y.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good afternoon, ma'am. And which phone company are you here to testify about?

A. I'm with Cingular Wireless, and we also acquired AT&T Wireless, so both companies.

Q. You purchased that with cash, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Because two seconds equals one minute?

A. Sure. Yes.

Q. I placed in front of you Exhibit No. 53 and Exhibit No. -- excuse me, 453 and 454?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Have you been through those two exhibits prior to coming to court today?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Okay. And what is Exhibit 453, please?

A. They're the records that were requested from AT&T Wireless.

Q. Pursuant to search warrant?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Have you been through the contents of Exhibit 453 to check it for accuracy?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Within Exhibit 453, Tab No. 3, do we find the billing information, the bill, for one Paul Hugo?

A. Yes.

Q. And within Exhibit 453, Tab 4, do we find the billing information for MJJ Productions, Miko Brando?

A. Yes.

Q. And under Tab 5, is the account information there for Rudy Provencio?

A. Yes.

Q. Under Tab 6, is there subscriber information for MJJ Productions/Paul Hugo and Rudy Provencio?

A. Yes.

Q. And under Tab 7, those -- are those records for tolls of MJJ Productions/Miko Brando?

A. Yes.

Q. And under Tab 9, do we find some billing and financially labeled party information for the following people or entities: MJJ Productions/Miko Brando?

A. Yes.

Q. MJJ Productions with five telephone numbers associated?

A. Yes.

Q. And three entries for one Evvy Tavasci with telephone numbers ending in 8984, 4676 and 9111?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Are the records contained within

Exhibit 453 kept in the normal course of business?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Are the entries within Exhibit 453 made at or near the time of the events they purport to record?

A. Yes.

Q. And does AT&T Wireless rely on these documents in the performance of their business?

A. Yes.

Q. With respect to Exhibit 454, are the documents contained within 454 Cingular Wireless records?

A. Yes.

Q. And are they records for the following two individuals, Ann Kite under Tab No. 1?

A. Yes.

Q. Evvy Tavasci at Tab No. 2?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Now, prior to the merger of AT&T and Cingular -- well, excuse me, one bought the other, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Which agency did you work with?

A. AT&T Wireless.

Q. AT&T Wireless, okay. Are you familiar with the Cingular Wireless records?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And their billing cycle?

A. Yes.

Q. And is it with respect to that knowledge that you come here and testify as a custodian of the records that have the Cingular label on them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Okay. Are these records also kept within the normal course and scope of the business of AT&T Wireless/Cingular?

A. Yes.

Q. And with respect to the documents in 454, are they recorded at or near the time of the events?

A. Yes.

Q. And does Cingular/AT&T rely on these documents in the regular course of their business?

A. Yes.
MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, at this time we would offer 453 and 454 into evidence.

MR. SANGER: Same request, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. They're admitted with the same provision.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: If you could please turn to Exhibit 454, Tab No. 1, and what appears to be labeled "Field Usage" for one Ann Kite.
May I have the Elmo, please, Your Honor? I'm just going to lay this on the projector.
MR. SANGER: I think you have to open it.
MR. NICOLA: I keep thinking it's a copy machine.
Q. Okay. Can you just give us an example of how you would read this bill across, from left to right, please, top line?
A. The first area is the number; and then the electronic serial number; rate plan; an abbreviation of the amount; called locations; description, whether it's incoming, or the number that was dialed if it was outbound; the date; the time; duration; and charges; and the roamer system that was being used to processed calls.
Q. Okay. Do you know what the codes are for three-way calling if they're available for these mobile phones?
A. I believe it's usually 3 -- 3W.
Q. 3W; three-way?
A. Yes.
Q. Makes more sense than an "O," right?

A. Yes.
Q. I'd like you to turn to Exhibit 453, please. I'd like to show you a different format bill. Why don't you turn to page one of the Paul Hugo account under Tab 3.
I'll lay this on the Elmo. And these records appear to be in a different format, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Could you explain to us, please, just starting at Item No. 1, what the columns mean across?

A. Sure. It's the date; the time of the call; the number called; the general area that the call was placed to; quantity of minutes; the rate that was charged; and just the charge description.

Q. And the calling plan?

A. Uh-huh, yes.

Q. Is the code for a three-way call on this bill also "3W," or is that different?

A. I believe so.

Q. Okay. Could you please turn to the next page on the Paul Hugo exhibit?

A. Yes.

Q. Are there sections of your bills which indicate where a party may be while they're placing phone calls using these wireless phones?

A. I don't believe on this bill.

Q. Are you looking at what I'm looking at?

A. Oh, I'm sorry. Under the "Roamer Usage," yes, that's the detail of when you're roaming. Sorry.

Q. Okay, I'm going to guess this means the phone was in Brazil.

A. Correct.

Q. And on Item No. 2, does that entry mean that while in Brazil, this number called, on March 2nd at 6:05 p.m., the phone number (201) 233-0063?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. If I could show you just one more format bill. Please turn to Tab 4. And is that the service information and toll record for MJJ Productions, Service User Miko Brando?

A. Yes.

Q. If you could turn to what is marked as page 48. I believe it's the first page in that exhibit.

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And yet another way to track phone calls. Is that in the same format, just spaced differently?

A. Yes, it's the same format.

Q. And is the first group of numbers the phone number of the user?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And then the fourth column in from the left, or, actually, the next phone number you would see would be the number dialed, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And then the date and the time entry in the middle of this bill now, right?

A. Correct.

MR. NICOLA: Okay. Thank you, Miss Mulcahy.
Your Honor, I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. SANGER: No questions.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Doesn't get any better than that.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: Call in your next witness.
Thank you. You're excused.

MR. ZONEN: Call Deborah Rowe to the stand.

THE COURT: Come to the witness stand, please.
When you get to the witness stand, please raise your right hand, face the clerk.

DEBORAH ROWE JACKSON

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: Yes, I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Deborah, D-e-b-o-r-a-h; Rowe, R-o-w-e; Jackson, J-a-c-k-s-o-n.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

MR. ZONEN: May I proceed?

THE COURT: You may.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Do you refer to be called Miss Rowe?

A. Debbie, please.

Q. All right. But in court, we're a little more formal.
A. Oh.
Q. In terms of surnames, do you go by Miss Rowe?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you know the defendant, Michael Jackson, seated to my right with the long, dark hair?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. How do you know Mr. Jackson?
A. We've been friends and we were married.
Q. When were you married to Mr. Jackson?
A. From 1997 to 1999.
Q. All right. We've --
A. Sorry.
Q. The acoustics are not quite what they could be in this courtroom, so you have to stay close to the microphone and keep your voice up. Is that all right?
A. Okay.
Q. All right. You were married to Mr. Jackson between which periods of time again, please?

A. I believe 1997 to 1999.
Q. For what period of time did you know Mr. Jackson prior to that?
A. Probably 20 years or more.
Q. Were you friends with Mr. Jackson?
A. Yes.
Q. Are you the mother of his two children?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. The two oldest children?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. And their names are what?
A. Michael Joseph Jackson, Jr., and Paris Michael Katherine Jackson.
Q. And when were you divorced from Mr. Jackson?
A. October -- I believe October 1999.
Q. Did you have -- did you ever live with Mr. Jackson during the course of your marriage?
A. We never shared a home.
Q. Did you live with Mr. Jackson prior to that marriage?

A. We never shared an apartment.

Q. At the time that the marriage was dissolved, was there an understanding or an agreement as to child custody?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Was there an understanding or agreement as to child custody?

A. Yes.

Q. And who had custody of the two children?

A. Michael did.

Q. Did you have visitation of the two children?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And what was the extent of the visitation as determined by that divorce?

A. Every 45 days for eight hours.

Q. All right. Did you, in fact, see the two children every 45 days for eight hours?

A. I tried.

Q. All right. Were there difficulties in being able to do so?

A. Yes.

Q. What kinds of difficulties?

A. There were times that the children and Michael would be out of the country, and I was working at the time, and if they were in South Africa, I would not have enough time to fly to where they were and then return home in time to be at work.

Q. Were you able to make up that eight-hour period when they returned?

A. No. It was pushed off until the next 45 days.

Q. For what period of time did that continue, that custody arrangement?

A. I believe a year and a half.

Q. At some point in time did you voluntarily agree to give up parental rights as to those two children?

A. Yes.

Q. And when was that, can you tell us?

A. I believe 2001.
Q. And why did you do that?
A. The visitations were not comfortable. We were hooked up at a hotel. I was -- when I would bring things to do, finger-painting, coloring or whatever, the nanny was always very concerned with the children getting dirty. I would bring T-shirts or something to put over their clothes, and the environment was very sterile. It wasn't a quality relationship.
Q. Did you ask to have more time with the kids?
A. Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, “Yes.”
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.
THE COURT: Next question.
That's all right.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And was that request granted?
A. No.
Q. And tell me why you made the decision to give up parental rights as to the two children at that time.

A. I didn't believe that --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; opinion.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: At some point in time -- when was the last time that you saw the two children?
A. Two and a half, three years ago. I'm not sure. I don't remember the dates.
Q. Did you receive a call from anybody in the early part of February of 2003 requesting your assistance on behalf of Michael Jackson?
A. Yes.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may -- it's answered, “Yes.” Next question.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: From whom was that telephone call?

A. Originally --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: I asked who it was.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer as to who it was.

THE WITNESS: Originally my former boss's partner called me and said that I needed to call my old boss; that he needed to speak with me; that Michael needed my help with something.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Who was the old boss you're referring to?

A. Arnold Klein.

Q. What kind of work was that that you were doing for Mr. Klein?

A. He's a dermatologist. I was an assistant for him.

Q. For what period of time were you his assistant?

A. From 1979 to 2000 or 2001.

Q. What kind of work did you do for Mr. -- Dr. Klein?

A. I assisted him with surgeries and patients.

Q. Without getting into the content of that telephone call, did you, in fact, call Dr. Klein?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you have a conversation with him?

A. Very brief.

Q. Did that conversation lead to a conversation with yet another person?

A. Yes. He wanted me to speak with Marc Schaffel.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: Move to strike.

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: That conversation led to a conversation with yet another person; is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Who was that person with whom you then had a conversation?

A. Marc Schaffel.
Q. Do you know Marc Schaffel?
A. Not before this conversation.
Q. Was that the first time you had ever spoken with Mr. Schaffel?
A. Yes.
Q. Prior to that conversation, did you know who he was?
A. No.
Q. Had you -- had you ever heard his name prior to that day?
A. No.
Q. Did you, in fact, call Marc Schaffel?
A. The call was placed between Dr. Klein and myself.
Q. All right.
A. I don't hand out my phone number.
Q. Ultimately, Marc Schaffel contacted you, or Dr. Klein arranged the conversation? How was that?
A. Correct. Dr. Klein arranged the conversation. I did not feel comfortable with a three-way, and told Mr. Schaffel that I would call him if he gave me his number.
Q. All right. Did Mr. Schaffel, in fact, have a conversation with you?

A. Yes, he did.
Q. Do you recall when that conversation took place?
A. It was early in February, in the morning.
Q. And what was the nature of that conversation?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection, hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Would you tell us if -- prior to that conversation, were you aware of a documentary that was titled, "Living with Michael Jackson"?
A. No.
Q. Were you aware of a person by the name of Martin Bashir?
A. No.

Q. As a consequence of this conversation with Marc Schaffel, did you then have a conversation with the defendant?
A. Yes.
Q. And how long after your conversation with Mr. Schaffel was your conversation with Michael Jackson?
A. Probably 30 minutes.
Q. Who called who?
A. They called me back, because they could not get ahold of Michael immediately.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; hearsay; move to strike.
THE COURT: Nonresponsive. Who called who is the question?
MR. ZONEN: Right.
THE COURT: I'll strike the answer.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you contacted by somebody with regards --
A. Marc Schaffel, yes.
Q. Marc Schaffel called you?
A. And Ronald Konitzer.
Q. You then had a conversation with Ronald Konitzer as well?
A. For a brief moment. Michael was with him.
Q. Did Michael Jackson then get on the telephone?
A. Yes, he did.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did Mr. Jackson say to you in the course of this conversation?
A. He told me there was a video coming out, and it was full of lies, and would I help. And I said, as always, yes. I asked him if he was okay. I was very upset.
Q. When was the last time you had talked with Michael Jackson?
A. The day of our divorce.

Q. And how long prior to that, to this conversation you're now referring to, was that day of your divorce?

A. October 12th.
Q. Of what year, please?
A. .99.
Q. All right. So we're now talking about February of 2003; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, he asked you for some kind of assistance; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. What exactly did he ask you to do, if anything?
A. He asked if I would work with Ronald and Dieter to help him, and I said yes. And I asked him how he was. I asked him how the children were. And I asked if I could see them when everything settled down.
Q. What did he tell you?
A. He said yes.
Q. All right. Had you had any communication with Mr. Jackson in the preceding period of time with regards to the children?
A. No.
Q. Had you sent any letters to him at all requesting that you be able to see them at some point in time?

A. No.
Q. Did you want to see the children?
A. Very much.
Q. All right. The conversation that you had with Mr. Jackson over the telephone, did he tell you from where he was calling?
A. No. I was told by Marc that they had to call Europe.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; nonresponsive; move to strike.
THE COURT: It's nonresponsive. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You had mentioned that Ronald Konitzer had called back; is that correct? Did I get that right?
A. Marc Schaffel called me back. Ronald had called Marc, or Marc had called Ronald. I don't know who placed that call.

Q. At some point in time you actually spoke with Ronald Konitzer?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you know Mr. Konitzer prior to that day?

A. I think I met him years ago when Michael was on tour. I don't -- he said that I had met him. I didn't remember. I didn't have a face and I didn't recognize the voice.

Q. All right. And did you carry on -- without getting into the content of the conversation, did you, in fact, have a conversation with Mr. Konitzer before your conversation with Michael Jackson?

A. He just said, “Michael needs your help” --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; hearsay.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The question is “yes” or “no.”

A. Yes.

THE COURT: Sustained.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The conversation that you had with Michael Jackson was approximately how long in length?

A. Two and a half minutes, maybe.

Q. Were you at home at that time?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. You said that you had asked him how he was and how the children were?

A. Yes.

Q. What did he tell you specifically about the -- whatever it was, the performance that was coming on television or the documentary, how did he describe it to you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading and assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained as to assuming facts.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did he tell you about what was going to happen?

A. That there was a bad video coming out. I did not -- he didn't go into any more detail about that.

Q. Did you ask him what it was about?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask him if it dealt with him personally, Mr. Jackson?

A. I assumed it did.

Q. Okay. Now, he asked you for some assistance; is that correct?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And did he describe to you in any detail or particularity what it was he wanted you to do?

A. No, he did not.

Q. Okay. Did he tell you to follow anybody's direction?

A. He asked me --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE WITNESS: I'm sorry.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did he tell you to do?

A. He asked me to work with Ronald, Dieter and Marc.

Q. All right. You just told us about Ronald. Is Dieter somebody you knew prior to that day?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know Dieter's last name?

A. Weizner or Weizer.

Q. Okay. And you don't recall at this time whether you had ever met him prior to that date, the time of that phone call?

A. No.

Q. Now, did you ask any directions as to how you were going to work with him or what you were going to do?

A. I told them that I needed a release of confidentiality, and that until that was done, I wouldn't be able to do anything.

Q. You told Mr. Jackson that?
A. No, I'm sorry, I told Marc Schaffel, Dieter and Ronald.
Q. All right. Let's go back to the conversation again with Mr. Jackson --
A. Okay.
Q. -- before you hung up the phone or before your telephone conversation ended.
You said specifically about the children.
Tell me what it was that he told you about the children with regards to visitation.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.
A. When -- when -- I said, “Are you” -- “Are you okay? Are the children okay?” And he said, “Yeah, we're okay.” And I said, “Can I see you when everything -- and the children when everything is over with?” And he said, “Yes.”
Q. Did you want to see Mr. Jackson and the children?
A. Absolutely.
Q. Did he give you any other direction as to when that might be?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: No.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did that conversation end at that time, or was there anything else that you discussed in the course of that conversation?
A. Michael and I?
Q. Yes.
A. No, we didn't discuss anything else. The phone was handed back to Ronald.
Q. All right. Your conversation then continued with Ronald?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. What was asked of you at that point by Ronald?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: As explaining her conduct thereafter, not for the truth of the matter.

THE COURT: All right. I'll allow the hearsay for that limited purpose.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What was explained by Ronald thereafter?

A. That they were going to do a special - I don't know if they used the word "rebuttal" - to counter whatever this video was.

Q. And what was asked of you?

A. Would I help.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. MESEREAU: And leading.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was anything said by Mr. Weizner as to your involvement?

A. What -- I don't understand. What do you mean by that?

Q. Well, in the telephone call that continued -- maybe I'm confused. Was it Konitzer or was it Weizner?

A. Konitzer.

Q. It was Konitzer, all right. Ronald Konitzer. What exactly was it that Mr. Konitzer then said to you about what you were supposed to do?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE WITNESS: To --

MR. MESEREAU: Assumes facts not in evidence.

MR. ZONEN: Again, to explain --

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Was there a conversation with Mr. Konitzer at that point about anything that you were then going to do?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. ZONEN: That was overruled?

THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and answer.
A. What was the question? I'm sorry.
THE COURT: I'll have the court reporter read it back to you.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: I was supposed to work with Marc Schaffel, and that was when I told them that we had to have the paperwork done --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; nonresponsive.
THE COURT: The second part of the answer I'll strike. Leave the first part in.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. With regards to working with Marc Schaffel, was there any other statement that was given to you by Mr. Konitzer at that time?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
MR. ZONEN: Hardly suggests the answer.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: That I would be working with Marc on whatever project that had been decided.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Did you, in fact, then have a conversation with Marc?
A. Yes.
Q. When did that conversation take place? Marc Schaffel.
A. After the connection was broken between Michael and Ronald and myself.
Q. That same day?
A. It was the same conversation. Marc had us on two lines. So when he hung up the one line, Marc and I were still on another line.
Q. Was Marc Schaffel part of the conversation that you had with -- in other words, was it a conference call between Marc and you and Ronald Konitzer?
A. Correct.
Q. So he was privy to the conversation that was taking place at that point?
A. He set it up.

Q. All right. Was he part of the conversation while you were talking with Mr. Konitzer? In other words, did he periodically say things as well?

A. I don't remember.

Q. What did Mr. Schaffel want you to do?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Hearsay; assumes facts not in evidence.

MR. ZONEN: Same exception.

THE COURT: Foundation, sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: In the course of this conversation, did Mr. Schaffel make requests of you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Nothing specific. I couldn't discuss anything at that point.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you advise him that you needed to do something?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was that?

A. We needed to agree on a confidentiality release between Michael and myself.

Q. Was there such an agreement that you had between you and the defendant?

A. Eventually.

Q. Well, prior to this conversation, was there some kind of a confidentiality contract that you had with Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes.

Q. And when did you and Mr. Jackson enter into that agreement?

A. At the time of our divorce.

Q. And did that restrain you from having conversations with people about something or other? What did it restrain you from doing, this confidentiality agreement?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; leading; relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know what the confidentiality agreement was? Have you ever read it?

A. Yes.

Q. And you read it at or about the time that you entered into this divorce with Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. All right. Did that confidentiality agreement keep you from doing something?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. What did it keep you from doing?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; leading; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

MR. MESEREAU: 352.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and answer the question.

A. The confidentiality agreement said that I could not speak with the press, public, anyone, regarding Michael or the children or our lives together.

Q. Were you able to get an exemption from that agreement?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have an attorney working on that?

A. Yes.

Q. What is your attorney's name?

A. Iris Joan Finsilver, F, as in Frank, i-n-s-i-l-v-e-r.

Q. Has Miss Finsilver been your attorney for some time?

A. Yes.

Q. Did she represent you in your divorce with Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, she did.

Q. Ultimately when that exemption was executed, were you then able to speak with Mr. Schaffel about what you were expected to do?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was it that you were expected to do?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Did you have a conversation with Mr. Schaffel after the execution of this exemption?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. In the course of that conversation, were you told things by Mr. Schaffel with regards to doing something on behalf of Michael Jackson?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did Mr. Schaffel tell you in this conversation?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
MR. ZONEN: For the same exception.
THE COURT: All right. Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.
A. That we would be doing an interview.
Q. Did he tell you where or when?
A. He said that it would probably be at his home in Calabasas and within two or three days of when everything was settled.
Q. All right. Now, when was it exactly that you had this conversation with Mr. Schaffel about doing the interview relative to this first phone call from Mr. Jackson?
A. Do you mean when we were going to do it? Or when we scheduled it?
Q. When you scheduled it.
A. We didn't schedule it till after the documents had been signed.
Q. Okay. And how long did that take before you were able to create and sign documents?

A. I would like to say that it was probably only two days. It seemed a lot longer. There was a lot of faxing back and forth.
Q. Was there some urgency in doing it soon?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did anybody ask you to do it at a particular time?

A. Mr. Schaffel.

Q. What did he say with regards to that?

A. As soon as he could arrange --

MR. MESEREAU: Hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: Same exception.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: As soon as he could arrange to have whatever he needed, I believe, for the interview.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And was there a date finally set for the interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know what that date was?

A. I don't know exactly. Beginning of February, I believe.

Q. Are you aware as to when or if the screening of “Living with Michael Jackson” ever actually aired in the United States?

A. I know that it aired. I don't know when it aired. I didn't watch it.

Q. Do you know when, relative to the airing of that production, your interview took place?

A. I know in relation to when it took place in Europe, but not here.

Q. When did it take place relative to the European airing?

A. The day before I gave my interview.

Q. Did that interview take place at Mr. Schaffel's residence?

A. My interview?

Q. Yes, your interview.

A. Yes, it did.

Q. Can you tell us who was present during that interview?

A. Hamid, who is Michael's photographer; Rudy; Christian; Marc; Stuart Backerman, who I think was Michael's PR person; and Iris came with me.

Q. Up until the time that you arrived at Mr. Schaffel's home to do this, had Mr. Schaffel told you that you would get any benefit from doing this interview?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading and hearsay.
MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry?
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you going to be paid for this interview?

A. No.
Q. Were any promises made at all?
A. Just that I --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading and hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: And vague.
THE COURT: Hearsay, sustained. Hearsay.
MR. ZONEN: On hearsay. We would offer it again as to tending to explain her actions and her response, and not for the truth of the matter stated.
THE COURT: The objection's sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did anybody offer you anything in response to your doing this?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: Do you mean quid pro quo?
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Yes.
A. No, I was excited to see Michael and the children when all this was over.
Q. Why did you do this interview?
A. I promised him that I would always be there for him and the children.
Q. Did anybody mention your children in the course of either doing this interview or leading up to the interview?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Asked and answered and leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You can answer that question.

A. Can you explain what you mean?

Q. Did anybody mention anything about your children with regards to -- relative to this interview --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: -- leading up to the interview or during the course of the interview?

MR. MESEREAU: Vague; compound; and leading and foundation.

THE COURT: Rephrase. It's an extended question now.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Specifically, you had conversations with Mr. Schaffel, did you not --

A. Yes.

Q. -- prior to the interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have a number of conversations prior to the interview?

A. No.

Q. How many conversations did you have with him prior to the interview?

A. One to set up the day and time, and one for directions on how to get to his house.

Q. All right. Prior to actually arriving at his house, did he talk to you about your children at all?

A. He said the kids were fine; that Michael was going to be okay.

Q. All right. Did he make any representations to you about visitation?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: When I expressed excitement for seeing the children and for seeing Michael again and possibly reconnecting, he seemed to be very happy.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. During the course of your being at the house conducting this interview, did you talk with Mr. Schaffel any further about your children?

A. Yes.
Q. All right. What did he say with regards to your children while you were at his house?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.
MR. ZONEN: Same exception. I will add also it's a statement in furtherance.
THE COURT: I reject that as a reason, but let me look.

All right. I'll allow the question for the limited purpose of explaining her action after that. Do you want the question read back?
THE WITNESS: I can't see that far, yes, please.
THE COURT: Okay.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: That they were fine; that Michael was going to be okay; that it was -- he was happy for me that we were all going to get to see each other again, and how big the kids have gotten, and how beautiful they were, and how strong-headed Paris is and -- about like me.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What was your expectation with regards to your children in terms of your completing this interview?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you have any expectations with regard to your kids at all?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What was that? What were your expectations?
A. To be reintroduced to them and to be reacquainted with their dad.

Q. You wanted to be reacquainted with Mr. Jackson as well?
A. Yes.

Q. Why?

A. He's my friend.

Q. Let me ask you about the interview. For what period of time were you at Mr. Schaffel's home?

A. I was at his house about ten and a half hours, but the taping was about nine.

Q. Was your attorney with you?

A. Yes.

Q. The entire time?

A. She stayed downstairs when Ian Drew arrived. And I was concerned about someone being able to say that --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive and hearsay.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The question was whether or not she was there the entire time. Was there a period of time --

A. She was in the house.

Q. Okay. She was in the house, but at some times not with you?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, prior to the start of this interview, had you talked with anybody about the content of this interview, in other words, what was going to be asked of you?

A. No.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence, leading and foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: No. No, I did not want that.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know what it was you were going to be saying?

A. No.

Q. Did you know what it was -- the questions, what questions would be asked of you?

A. No.

Q. Did you know whether or not it had anything to do with this video or this television show?

A. All I knew, it was whatever was being put out about Michael could be hurtful to him and the children, and I don't know if I was supposed to run interference. I don't know what the basis was for my interview.

Q. Did you ask him about the content of the television show?

A. No.

Q. Did you ask anybody about the content of the questions that would be put to you?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Did you know that it would be questions put to you? In other words, it would be in the format of an interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Who had told you that?

A. Mr. Schaffel.

Q. Who was present at the time when this interview commenced?

A. Iris. Stuart. Rudy. Christian was in and out. It was either Christian or Rudy that was in and out. Marc. Myself. And Ian Drew.

Q. Iris is Iris Finsilver, your attorney?

A. Yes.

Q. Stuart is who?

A. Stuart Backerman, I was told, was a spokesperson for Michael.

Q. Had you ever seen Mr. Backerman prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. Had you ever heard his name prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. Were you introduced to him that day?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you actually have a conversation with him?

A. Nothing other than, "Nice to meet you," and very casual. Nothing important to say.

Q. You said Rudy. Who is Rudy?

A. He was Marc's go-fer boy.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Marc's -- say that again?

A. Go-fer boy.

Q. Go-fer? Somebody who did things for Mr. Schaffel?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know Rudy's last name?

A. No, I don't. I'm sorry.

Q. Do you recall if you were told his last name at any time?

A. No, I was -- I was introduced to everyone on a first-name basis. I knew Hamid from before.

Q. All right. Rudy was or was not somebody you knew prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. Christian, if I'm reading my handwriting correctly --

A. Yes.

Q. -- was the name you mentioned?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Christian somebody you knew prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. Was his name given to you at that time?

A. I don't remember if I was introduced to him or if someone had said, “Christian will get it.” I knew it was his name, because -- I don't remember being formally introduced to him.

Q. All right. You don't recall an acquaintance with him prior to that day?

A. No.

Q. You mentioned Ian Drew.

A. Yes.

Q. Who is Ian Drew?

A. He was someone that was going to interview me.

Q. And was he somebody you knew prior to that day as well?

A. No.

Q. Did you have any preliminary conversation with him prior to the commencement of this interview?

A. Absolutely not.

Q. Was that by your choice?

A. Yes.

Q. And why is that? Why was that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; 352; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

A. Because I didn't want anyone to be able to come back to me and say that my interview was rehearsed, that someone told me what to say. Mr. Jackson knows no one can tell me what to say. I tend to speak my own mind, and I didn't want the interview to be construed as something other than what it was, which was a cold interview.

Q. At some point in time, were you given any kind of a list of questions?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: It was offered to me and I declined it.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Who offered you the list?

A. Ian Drew.

Q. Why did you decline it?

A. Again, it was a cold interview, and I wanted to keep it that way.

Q. Was anyone else in the room during the course of the interview?

A. Everyone was. Rudy and Christian were in and out, but the main people who were there was Hamid, Iris, Stuart, Marc and myself.

Q. All right.

A. And Ian.

Q. Did you know Hamid prior to that?

A. Yeah, I did.

Q. Was that Hamid Moslehi?

A. Yes.

Q. And you recognized him when you got there?

A. Oh, yes.

Q. He had been Mr. Jackson's videographer for some time?

A. Yeah, for a long, long time.

Q. Was the location of this interview in Calabasas, California?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you happen to know the date?

A. It was the day before that documentary was to air. I don't know the date.

Q. Miss Rowe, in the course of the interview that took place, I think you said over about the next nine hours --

A. Yes.

Q. -- were you truthful in the answers that you gave?

A. Can you rephrase that?

Q. Did you tell the truth? Did you answer all those questions truthfully and honestly?

A. No.

Q. All right. Why is that?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; opinion; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Why is that?

A. Because my personal life is my personal life and no one's business. And it pretty much doesn't matter. I could call something black. In the media, it will be called white.

Q. Do you remember the questions that you were asked?

A. Not all of them.

Q. Do you remember some of the questions that you were asked?

A. I would have to see the tape again.

Q. Did you have an opportunity to review the tape recently?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. How many hours of tape did you review?

A. To scan over? It was probably two and a half hours of it, but I wasn't really paying attention. I found myself very boring and dull.

Q. Do you mean as the subject matter of the tape?

A. Yeah.

Q. It went for, I think you said, about two and a half hours?

A. That I -- that I saw, I think it was a three-hour tape, but I didn't watch the entire video.

Q. Do you have a belief as to whether or not it was an edited version of what had taken place?

A. It had to be. It was a nine-hour interview. And if there's only three hours, there's six hours someplace.

Q. Were you asked questions about Mr. Jackson?

A. Yes, I was.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What questions that were asked of you about Mr. Jackson did you not give honest answers to?

A. Can you be more specific?

Q. I can. Did he ask -- were you asked questions about Mr. Jackson and his parenting of your two children?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; move to strike.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you understand the question? Would you like to hear it again?

A. Yes, I was asked the question.

MR. ZONEN: May the court reporter repeat the question, Your Honor?

THE COURT: I think she understood the --

THE WITNESS: I understood the question, and I said, “Yes.”

MR. ZONEN: Oh, I'm sorry.

THE COURT: She answered your question.

MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry.

Q. Were those the questions, or among the questions, that you did not answer honestly?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: When was the last time you had actually seen Mr. Jackson related to your two oldest children?

A. The day that we signed our divorce papers.

Q. Did you have any information at all about his parenting skills with your children?

A. Just -- yes, I did. I -- when I was seeing the children, I spoke with the nannies before we divorced. I saw him with the children. I've seen him with the kids the whole time I've known him.

THE COURT: Counsel, we'll take our afternoon break.

Before we break, I just want to ask you a question, Mr. Sanger.

MR. SANGER: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: Would you stipulate that the phone records could be released so they can be redacted as I ordered?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, sir.

THE COURT: All right. I'll release the phone records that went in evidence today to the District Attorney so they can be redacted and returned to the Court immediately.

MR. SANGER: I take it they'll give me the copy of the redacted --

THE COURT: And you're ordered to give the defense a copy of the redaction.

Thank you. We're in recess until tomorrow morning. And I'll see you at 8:30.

MR. NICOLA: Mr. Sanger -- can we talk with him for a second?

MR. SANGER: If the Judge wants us.

(The proceedings adjourned at 2:30 p.m.)

PLAINTIFF'S WITNESSES	DIRECT	CROSS	REDIRECT	RECROSS
JACKSON, Deborah Rowe (Contd.)	7977-Z	7988-M

Santa Maria, California
Thursday, April 28, 2005
8:38 a.m.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning, everyone.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning.

THE COURT: The reason I came in without the jury is I was provided with a motion to strike the testimony of Debbie Rowe this morning.

I assumed you anticipated I would take that up at this moment. Or did you not?

MR. SANGER: We hoped you would, if you would give us the time to do it, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Here's my sense of it: She hasn't testified long enough for me to know, really, what she's going to say, or anyone else. And your motion might be well-taken. It might not. But I -- I understand what she said yesterday, but I don't really understand what she has to say today. So I would want to really hear more testimony, I think.

MR. SANGER: Very well. Well, we briefed it, and Your Honor understands our position.

THE COURT: I understand your position.

I just think the -- she barely got started yesterday. I mean, I really -- I think I'd have to let it -- well, I would have to know more about what she says than what I know already to know whether or not your motion is well-taken.

MR. SANGER: Well, my concern was -- if I may, my concern was to raise it at the earliest possible moment --

THE COURT: I know.

MR. SANGER: -- because if it goes too long, then we get into a position where it's hard to undo it. And if --

THE COURT: I understand that, but --

MR. SANGER: I'm not arguing with the Court.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: I just want to let you know why I think -- whenever you feel --

THE COURT: There is another side of the coin, though. I let the testimony in based on their representations in their written materials, which -- if the testimony is the exact opposite, I mean, isn't that the testimony that would be relevant to your side of the case?

MR. SANGER: Yes and no. And the problem -- I understand that. And we thought about it, but the problem is that this will then lead to a tremendous amount of other collateral testimony to put whatever it is in context.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: And that's my concern. If we go too far down the road, then we pretty much are committed to doing the whole thing.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, let's go further down the road before --

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: Is there anything you -- you didn't get to say anything. I assume --

MR. ZONEN: Nor am I requesting to.

THE COURT: Huh?

MR. ZONEN: Nor am I requesting to.

THE COURT: Okay.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: I already said good morning to everyone else, so I'll say good morning to you.

THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

THE COURT: You may proceed.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION (Continued)

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Miss Rowe, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. We left off, we were discussing the interview that you had back in February of 2003 at Marc Schaffel's home in Calabasas. And you recall that interview, do you not?
A. Yes.
Q. And I believe that you had testified yesterday that you were at his residence for some time over nine or ten hours; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Approximately how long were you at his residence?
A. We started early in the morning and finished around 9:00, 10:00 at night.
Q. Was your attorney there the entire time?
A. Yes.
Q. Was she in your presence the entire time?
A. No, she was not.
Q. Were there times when you were separated from her?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. What was the purpose of that?
A. To -- I didn't want to see the interviewer before the interview. And the best way to do that was to leave where everything was that was happening in the living room off to the side of the main entrance of the house, so Mr. Schaffel and I went upstairs in his office.
Q. And did you have a conversation with Mr.

Schaffel at that time?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you discuss the interview?
A. No.
Q. At some point in time, did you take a look at a script?
A. No.
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, "No."
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. At some point in time, did you see one in somebody else's possession?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Mr. Drew had questions; I assume they were questions. He had a number of pages and asked if I wanted to see them. And I said no.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know how many questions were on that script?

A. He told me 105.

Q. Do you know if he went over all of those questions during the course of that interview?

A. My understanding is we did.

Q. And the number of hours that you spent in actual interview was approximately what?

A. Nine.

Q. Was Mr. Schaffel there the entire time?

A. Yes.

Q. Was Mr. Schaffel saying anything during that time?

A. He was hearing sounds in the background, thought it was being picked up on audio, wanted to change what the back --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

A. Wanted to make sure what the background looked like and everything. He occasionally -- not "occasionally," frequently would interject to rephrase a question or an answer. And I told him if that did not --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Nonresponsive; narrative.

THE COURT: Sustained at this point.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Tell us specifically what he said to you with regards to either questions or answers.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for a narrative; hearsay; foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained as to narrative.

MR. ZONEN: All right.

Q. Tell us if he -- let me change that. With regards to answers to your questions, did he make any comments as to answers to your questions?

A. Yes.

Q. What kinds of comments did he make?

A. He --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Vague; foundation; calls for a narrative.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead and answer the question, if you recall.

A. He would ask me if I would rephrase an answer or he would ask Mr. Drew to rephrase a question.

Q. And what types of questions or answers would he ask you to rephrase?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you remember any specific questions that he asked you to rephrase?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence and vague.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You can answer.

A. I don't remember a specific -- there were so many, I don't remember any specific. I remember at the end he wanted us to add stuff to clarify what he thought might be misunderstood or something.

Q. And did you, in fact, make changes in your interview in accordance with his request?

A. Only if it didn't change the meaning of what I had to say.

Q. And what was the meaning of what you had to say?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; vague.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. What is it that you were intending to represent in this interview?

A. Michael as a wonderful person and as a great father and generous and caring.

Q. All right. Did you have information as to Michael Jackson as a wonderful father?

A. As I've known him?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. When was the last time you'd actually talked with him?

A. In 1999.
Q. All right. This was in early 2003; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. When was the last time you saw him interact with the children?
A. 1991. I'm sorry, 1999.
Q. In the course of this interview, did you represent yourself as still being part of the family?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Was that true?

A. No, it was not.
Q. Why did you do it?
A. To protect the children and to try to keep the media and questions away and out of their focus. And to make sure that I could do whatever I could even at a distance.
Q. Did you feel that you were enthusiastic during this interview?
A. I --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: How did you approach this interview in terms of your affect?
A. I was excited to do it.
Q. Why?
A. Because I would get to see my children and possibly renew a relationship with Mr. Jackson.
Q. Why did you want to do that?
A. They're my family.
Q. Did you consider them your family?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you consider Mr. Jackson to be your family to the same extent as your children?
A. I don't think anyone is as much as your children, but, yes.
Q. How long had it been since you had seen your children?
A. About two and a half years.

Q. At the conclusion of the interview, did you have a conversation with anybody about when you would be able to see your children?

A. Mr. Schaffel said that he was excited, and that we'd be going up to Neverland soon. And I said, "Fine." I said, "Let me know as soon as you can."

Q. Was that something that you wanted to do?

A. Very much. Very much.

Q. When was the last time you had been to Neverland?

A. Years. I couldn't tell you. Probably .99, .98.

Q. Did you make any contact with anybody about seeing your children within the next, say, 30 days or beyond?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Mr. Schaffel. I would call --

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: How often -- I'm sorry?

A. I would call him almost weekly. I didn't want to be a noodge, or piss him off, so I would call him and chat him up, and say, "By the way," you know, "Are they back?" You know, "When can I see them?" Because it was my understanding they were out of town.

Q. For what period of time did you continue to contact Mr. Schaffel about that?

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, we object. Make a motion to exclude.

MR. ZONEN: I'd like to respond to it, even if at sidebar.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

A. About nine months.

Q. Did you ever see your children?

A. No, I did not.

Q. To this day, have you seen your children?

A. No, I have not.

Q. Have you gone back to court?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you reinstated parental rights --

A. Yes.

Q. -- for yourself?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
MR. MESEREAU: Relevance.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What did you accomplish in court?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; foundation; relevance; vague; and calls for improper opinion.
THE COURT: The objection to "What did you accomplish..." is sustained as vague. That question is vague.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Were you able to get a ruling in regards to your custody of your children?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; relevance; motion to exclude.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.
A. Not regards to custody, but my parental rights were reinstated.
Q. At this time you have parental rights again, is that right?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. Have you seen your children?
A. No, I have not.
Q. Are you still in court making an effort to do so?
A. Very much so. Actively.
Q. Have you ever seen yourself on television or any part of that interview that was conducted at Mr. Schaffel's house?
A. Yes.
Q. Where did you see it?
A. I reviewed it last night. I hadn't seen it. I didn't watch it when it was on television, so I saw a video last evening.
Q. All right. That was the same video that you had reviewed once previously?

A. Yes.
Q. But on the occasion last night, you viewed it with greater detail?

A. Yes.
Q. Did you ever see the Maury Povich film that was featured at a later time?
A. I don't remember watching it.
Q. Did you ever receive any money for your participation --
A. No.
Q. -- in this interview?
A. No.
Q. What was your motivation to participate in this interview?
A. To see my children.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?
MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, we'd like to renew our motion to exclude testimony into these areas.
THE COURT: I'll give you an indicated, subject to full argument, but at this point I would probably not grant that motion.
THE WITNESS: Good morning, Mr. Mesereau.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. MESEREAU:
Q. Good morning, Ms. Rowe.
We've never spoken before, correct?
A. No, we have not.
Q. Okay.
A. I'm Debbie.
(Laughter.)
Q. The prosecutor asked you some questions about your, for lack of a better word, current dispute with Michael Jackson in Family Law Court, correct?
A. I wouldn't call it a dispute, but if that's the legal term, okay.
Q. Well, the prosecutor asked you about whether you obtained rights or not - okay? - and I believe you said you have obtained parental rights but not custody rights; is that true?

A. I corrected him, and said that my parental rights had been reinstated --

Q. Okay.

A. -- when he mentioned custody.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, when did you first meet Mr. Schaffel?

A. When Mr. Jackson asked me to do the interview.

Q. Okay. And did you first meet him at the interview?

A. Yes. Personally -- I had spoken to him on the phone. But personally, yes.

Q. And I gather you developed some type of friendship with him; is that true?

A. I wouldn't call it a friendship. More of an acquaintance. More than an acquaintanceship, but not a friendship.

Q. And you were calling him approximately every week; is that true?

A. For about three months, yes.

Q. Okay. And at some point you were in contact with the Santa Barbara sheriffs about this case, correct?

A. They had called me, yes. And I did not return the first call.

Q. And eventually, you developed somewhat of a dialogue with Santa Barbara sheriffs about this case, right?

A. When they caught me on my cell phone on my way home from Palm Springs, yes, the number they got from Marc Schaffel.

Q. And you agreed to make what you called some pretext phone calls for the sheriffs, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And a pretext phone call means basically you agreed to work with the sheriffs, telephone people and talk to them while the sheriffs were recording those calls; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the idea was that the people you would call would not know they were being recorded, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Only you and the sheriffs would know there were recordings, right?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, how many of these pretext phone calls do you think you made with or for the sheriffs?

A. I think there were a total of four to six. I'm not sure.

Q. And who were those pretext phone calls with?

A. Marc Schaffel. Ian Drew. And I think I may have tried to do one with Dieter.

Q. Were you able to do that one?

A. I don't remember.

Q. Okay. So the only people you recall actually speaking with when they didn't know the call was being recorded are Schaffel and Drew; is that right?

A. And Dieter, if I did one with him, he wouldn't have known.

Q. Now, Schaffel and Drew were there when you were interviewed?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And when you arrived for the interview had you ever spoken to Mr. Drew before?

A. No, I had not.

Q. Did you meet him for the first time at the interview?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. So you met Ian Drew for the first time at Marc Schaffel's home, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And after you met him, did you develop an understanding as to whether or not Mr. Drew would have a role in your interview?

A. I was told he was the one that would be doing the interviewing.

Q. And did he, in fact, do that?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. Okay. And is he the one that had the list of questions you've described?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. And I believe you said you thought there were about 105 questions, right?

A. He told me there were 105.

Q. Mr. Drew told you that?
A. Yes, he did.
Q. Did he ever show you the list of questions?
A. He offered to.
Q. And you refused, right?
A. Correct.
Q. You refused because you wanted to give a spontaneous type of response to whatever he asked you, right?

A. Correct.
Q. Okay. And I think it's fair to say that your responses were very favorable about Michael Jackson, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You answered questions for approximately nine hours; is that true?
A. Yes. It was a very long day.
Q. And you were asked all sorts of questions about what kind of person Mr. Jackson was, right?
A. Yes.
Q. You were asked about what kind of a father he was --
A. Yes.
Q. -- right?
You were asked whether or not he was a good family person?
A. Yes.
Q. You were asked about whether he was a good friend of yours, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you, throughout that nine-hour period, were very positive about Michael Jackson, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And when you got there for the interview, your understanding was you were going there to help do a very positive, favorable piece about Michael, right?

A. Correct.
Q. And your understanding was that one of the purposes of this interview was to counteract the negative stuff that appeared in the Bashir documentary, right?

A. I didn't know what the video was. I had never heard of Bashir. It was regarding something that had played in Europe and was going to be played in the United States. I didn't want to see the video. I didn't want to see the transcripts from the video. I didn't want to know anything about it.

Q. Okay. Okay. But you knew there was -- the purpose was to respond to something in the media that had been negative about Michael, right?

A. Negative, twisted, misunderstood, whatever it was.

Q. Okay. And I believe you testified you were more than eager to help Michael in this area, right?

A. Absolutely.

Q. And as far as you're concerned, you did help him, right?

A. I hope I did.

Q. You spoke favorably about him and some of your comments were placed on a T.V. documentary, right?

A. The show that -- whatever it was that aired for it, yeah. I think they said the Povich thing.

Q. And you kept calling Mr. Schaffel for a number of months?

A. Yes.

Q. And you would see him from time to time, right?

A. No, I never saw him. I saw him one time --

Q. You had lunch with him one time?

A. He set me up. Yes, I had lunch with him one time.

Q. Where was that?

A. The Ivy.

Q. Okay. And you say Schaffel set you up?

A. Yeah.

Q. And what do you mean by that?

A. Apparently there was a meeting going on with Michael and some of his people, and I later found out that Schaffel and Dieter were not included. And so Marc had called me up and said, "Do you want to go to lunch?" And I said, "Sure." I said, "Do you want me to meet you in the valley halfway? Do you want to come over here? I'll pick you up." You know, “What do you want to do?” And he said, “Well, why don't I pick you up.” And I said, “Fine. Where are we going to go?” And he said, “The Ivy. Is that okay?” I said, “Sure.” I never had any problems at The Ivy before. So we went to The Ivy.

Q. And would Schaffel call you from time to time?
A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And you have previously commented that you thought Mr. Schaffel was using Mr. Jackson, true?
A. Oh, yeah.
Q. You thought he was using him, manipulating him?
MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as lack of foundation. She said she just met him. Also improper opinion.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You told the sheriffs that, in your opinion, Marc Schaffel was continually trying to take advantage of Michael Jackson, true?
A. Correct.
Q. And you thought he was manipulating Michael Jackson to make lots of money, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, you met Dieter at some point, true?
A. Yes.
Q. And when did you meet Dieter?
A. I don't remember if I met him anytime before The Ivy incident, but I met -- he was with us at lunch.
Q. Okay. And did you meet Konitzer at some point?
A. Years ago on tour, when he was doing “Those Cool Sunglasses.”
Q. During the period of the interview -- I say

“during the period.” That's a little bit vague. Let me withdraw that.
Around the time of the interview, did you talk to Konitzer at all?
A. I spoke with him when I spoke with Mr. Jackson to arrange it. And he and Dieter and Marc had been on the phone. They had been on the phone to tell me about problems that were going on, yes.

Q. And you've also made statements to the sheriffs that you thought Dieter and Konitzer were manipulating Michael Jackson, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. You thought Dieter and Konitzer were taking advantage of Michael Jackson, true?

A. Yes.

Q. And you thought they were trying to manipulate Michael Jackson to make a lot of money, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Was it your perception, based upon what you observed of Schaffel, Dieter and Konitzer, that those three were working together?

A. Oh, yeah.

Q. You definitely got that impression?

A. Oh, yeah.

Q. Okay. And was it your impression that those three were working together to find ways to use Michael Jackson's name so they could profit?

A. Yes.

Q. And at one point you told the sheriffs that you thought Michael Jackson was, in some ways, very removed from what those guys were doing, right?

A. In my past knowledge, he's removed from the handlers, the people who are taking care of business, and they make all the decisions. There's a number of times they don't consult him.

Q. And you thought these three guys, Schaffel, Dieter and Konitzer, were doing just that, didn't you?

A. Very strongly.

Q. Do you recall if around this time you ever tried to warn Michael Jackson about Schaffel, Konitzer and Dieter?

A. I did. I tried to go through my -- my -- I'm sorry, my old boss. And actually, when I did call, I was told that, "Be careful of Marc."

Q. And your old boss was Dr. Klein?

A. Arnold Klein, yes. K-l-e-i-n.

Q. What you're saying, you tried to communicate with Michael, through Dr. Klein, to warn him about what these three characters were doing to Michael?

A. Or to look and see if he was aware of what was going on, if he even knew that I was still trying to see the children.

Q. Okay. And one of the problems you had was that because of the custody issues, you were supposed to talk through attorneys, right?

A. Correct.

Q. And that created a problem in your ability to communicate with Michael, right?

A. It was difficult, yes.

Q. Okay.

A. It was easy with Mr. Spiegel, Lance Spiegel.

Q. And Mr. Spiegel was a prior lawyer for Mr. Jackson?

A. For family, yes.

Q. Okay. Okay. Now, approximately when did you -- when were you divorced from Mr. Jackson? Was it 1999?

A. Yes.

Q. And at that point you gave up custody of the children?

A. No, not at that point. A year and a half later.

Q. Okay. A year and a half later you gave up custody of the children, and you had the visitation rights that you identified yesterday, right?

A. Right. No, I'm sorry, I misunderstood. I gave up custody at the divorce. I gave him full custody. I had visitation - I'm sorry, I misunderstood - every 45 days.

Q. Approximately how long was your marriage to Mr. Jackson?

A. Three and a half years.

Q. Okay. And I believe you said yesterday you've stayed his friend, right?

A. I've always considered him my friend.

Q. And you still do, right?

A. Yeah. If he'd talk to me. Sorry.

Q. And without question, the communicating through lawyers has created problems with --

A. Have you met Mr. Hall? Extreme problems.

Q. Okay. Okay. You're blaming the lawyers for a lot of that, right?

A. Have you met Mr. Hall? You don't want to.

Q. Okay. All right. How many times did you meet Dieter personally?

A. Like -- I know for sure the one time.

Q. Did you talk to Dieter on the telephone?

A. Yes.

Q. How many times do you think you talked to Dieter on the telephone?

A. I think once or twice.

Q. Okay.

A. I don't remember. They weren't eventful calls.

Q. Did he call you or did you call him?

A. He's -- I know he called me once, and I believe I called him.

Q. Now, did you learn at some point -- excuse me. Before I get into that, how many calls do you think you had with Drew, if any?

A. From when to when?

Q. Oh, around the time of the interview.

A. I met Mr. Drew, he went back to Florida, I didn't see him for about a year. When he came back to Los Angeles, he called me and said he was back in town.

Q. Did you develop a friendship with him?

A. Yeah.

Q. Okay. Now, did you learn at some point that Schaffel was trying to make millions of dollars from the footage of your interview?

A. Yes, I --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Yes.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How did you learn that Schaffel was trying to make millions of dollars from the footage of your interview?

A. He told me he was paid for it. He told me that part of the money that was made from it went for a debt that Mr. Jackson had owed him. I later found out that he took -- he told Ronald and Dieter that I wanted $100,000 for doing the interview. And I believe a check was cut - not to me. I wouldn't have taken it - and he kept it.

Q. And how did you learn this information?

A. Some of it was from Ian. Some of it was from Marc himself.

Q. And at one point Schaffel told you he was going to sue Michael Jackson, didn't he?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. He told you he wanted over a million dollars from Michael Jackson, true?

A. He said Michael owed him a million dollars.

Q. And approximately when did Marc Schaffel tell you he was going to sue Michael Jackson?

A. Six months ago maybe. It may have been longer than that, but I'm not really good with -- if you could give me something to refer to at a time, I could say yes, it happened then. But I think it was about six months ago. And then he told me, about three months ago, that he and his lawyer were filing papers.

Q. And did you ever learn at some point that he had actually sued Michael Jackson?

A. He told me that they'd filed the papers.

Q. Okay. Did Schaffel ever ask you for assistance in his suit against Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. Did he ever ask you for information to help him in his business dealings with Michael Jackson?

A. I wouldn't have given it to him.

Q. Okay. Did he ever ask you for help, though?

A. I'm sorry?

Q. Did Schaffel, in your mind, ever ask you to help him in his business dealings with Mr. Jackson?

A. No. He just bragged about either how he took advantage of an opportunity that I'm sure he knew nothing about or how he was going to do this, that or the other thing to make sure that Michael's career was saved, and things of that nature.

Q. Did Schaffel tell you that he was involved in business matters with Dieter?

A. Yes.
Q. Did Schaffel tell you he was involved in business matters with Konitzer?
A. Yes. In Europe.
Q. Okay. And did you ever get the impression he was not giving Michael Jackson all the information about what he was up to?
A. He was like everybody else around Mr. Jackson. Yeah, he wasn't telling him everything.
Q. Why did you think Schaffel was calling you?
A. To placate me. To say that, "Oh, no, I'm working on it. You'll be seeing the kids. Michael's very excited about it. Everything's going to be great. They're still in Florida." You know, "As soon as they get home you guys will be together."
Q. And you didn't think he was being truthful, right?
A. Obviously he's full of shit. Sorry. I'm sorry, Your Honor.

Q. You consider Marc Schaffel a liar, don't you?
A. Yes.
Q. You consider Dieter a liar, don't you?
A. Yes.
Q. You consider Konitzer to be a liar, don't you?
A. Yes.
Q. Did Mr. Drew appear to you to want to interact with Schaffel?
MR. ZONEN: I'll object as speculative.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You met Mr. Drew at Schaffel's residence, right?
A. Yes.
Q. And you were introduced to him through Schaffel, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Was it your belief at that time that the two of them had some type of business relationship?
A. Marc told me that Ian was a plant at one of the tabloids to run interference for bad publicity for Michael.

Q. And did you believe that?

A. I didn't know, didn't care, didn't want to be there, but was there for the kids and for him. I -- you know, I wanted to get in and get out. I'm having about as much fun here as I had there.

Q. Was it your understanding that Schaffel was using Ian Drew for a particular purpose?

A. Yes.

Q. And that purpose was to sew publicity that he wanted in the tabloids?

A. To get information out. I don't know if I knew that it was -- if I knew that it was The Globe then that he was the plant for, or if Marc told me shortly thereafter. I think Marc told me at the day, the day that it was, so I knew that I was supposed to expect something coming out in the tabloids.

Q. Right.

A. "Shockingly" was misinterpreted.

Q. And was it your impression that Schaffel was using Drew to promote Schaffel's business interests?

A. If I'm considered a commodity to Mr. Jackson, then yes.

Q. And as far as you were concerned, Schaffel was using you as a commodity, right?

A. Schaffel was talking out both sides of his mouth, telling me one thing, telling Mr. Jackson something else.

Q. You thought he was using the two of you, didn't you?

A. Yes.

Q. Schaffel bragged to you about the large sums of money he was going to make off of Michael

Jackson, didn't he?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. He bragged about making millions of dollars off of Michael Jackson, didn't he?

A. Yes, he did.

Q. He did that many times, didn't he?

A. Constantly.

Q. Did Dieter brag as well about the millions he was going to make off of Michael Jackson?

A. He wasn't as -- he was more subtle about it and spoke of it as plans for Michael, not actually to take from Michael. So it's a matter of semantics, I'm saying, you know, “I'm going to do it for Michael.”

Q. Did Konitzer brag about all the money he was going to make off of Michael Jackson?

A. He had big plans. So -- but they -- I didn't speak with him as often as I spoke with Marc. So those conversations weren't about that with Ronald. It was getting this project started and how they were going to -- how everything was going to be much better.

And then I think I had another conversation with Ronald and Dieter afterwards when they called to say that everything was fine with the video, and “Thank you,” and “Things will be fine. We have big plans,” and stuff like that. I think there's only two times I spoke with Konitzer.

Q. Did Dieter ever tell you that he and Konitzer were going to take over all of Michael Jackson's affairs?

A. That was their plan, because he'd been mishandled.

Q. Did Dieter ever tell you, “Don't call Michael Jackson. If you have any question about him, talk to me”?

A. I wouldn't be allowed to call him. But if I had any concerns I would -- he said, you know, “Please call me.”

Q. Did Schaffel ever show you any written agreements that he said concerned projects he was going to do with the Jackson name?

A. The song. Didn't show me the contract, but that was one thing that he spoke to me about is that they were doing a song for Clear Channel or something.

Q. How many times have you been to Schaffel's home?

A. Once for the interview, and once to pick him up, and I have to remember where we were going. We had to drop a friend of his off in Hollywood someplace. Oh, we went to see Parviz, this guy

Parviz. That's what we did.

Q. Okay. And did Schaffel talk to you about an attorney named Mr. Geragos?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Did he tell you that he had picked Mr. Geragos?

A. I don't know who picked him, but whoever did made a huge mistake. Come on. He pleads out or loses.

Q. Well, in your discussions with the sheriffs, you made negative comments about Mr. Geragos, didn't you?

A. Oh, yeah.

Q. And didn't you also comment that you thought Mr. Geragos was doing --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as hearsay and speculative and irrelevant and beyond the scope of the direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know why you were asked by the sheriffs to record phone conversations with Ian Drew?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; speculative.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did any representative of the sheriff's department ever tell you why they wanted you to record phone conversations with Ian Drew?

A. It was very frustrating working with the sheriff's department. They don't give you any information. That's why I wanted to find out for myself what was going on.

Q. And did you ever record conversations yourself and then just give those recordings to the sheriff?

A. No, that's illegal.

Q. You just did it always with a sheriff involved with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. When did you last talk to Mr. Schaffel?

A. Conversation-conversation? Probably two weeks ago. Probably right before he got the transcripts from the conversation. But he had sent me e-mails that I had not opened. They're still on my account before I came up here.

Q. So a couple of weeks ago you talked to him?

A. Spoke with him, yes.

Q. Okay.

A. He was out of town and wouldn't be back for a couple of weeks. He said there was a family crisis or something. I was hoping his family wasn't ill.

Q. Did you call him?

A. I don't have a cell phone number for him anymore. I lost it. So when he was in town, the conversations were less and less after I had spoken with the sheriff's department and found the information out that I had found and the way I had been treated. And it's a little difficult for me to be civil to someone that I dislike.

Q. Well, I gather you tried your best to let Mr. Schaffel think he could still communicate with you?

A. Yes.

Q. Up until two weeks ago, right?

A. Yes.

Q. Was that at the request of the sheriffs?

A. No, that was more me. If he did get in touch with me, I did tell them.

Q. And when did you last talk to Ian Drew?

A. He got promoted from his job just after the first of the year. I had dinner with him. There's a group of us that go out on Wednesday nights, and I think it was a month ago that I last talked to him. It was getting close to my uncle's birthday, so we did -- everybody has to come on this Wednesday night to not miss my uncle's birthday.

Q. Your last communication with Dieter was when?

A. Oh, a long time ago. Not within the last year, I don't think. Well, I think The Ivy incident was the last time that I spoke to him. I may -- oh, no, no, no, no. I did try to call him. Sorry. I did try to call him afterwards. And I may have made the one phone call. I don't remember if I made it or not. I haven't seen any of the stuff. So if there's something there, I'd be happy to look at it and tell you what was done and what was said and what was meant, if you'd like.

Q. I'm just asking you.

A. Blonde.

I don't remember the day, you know. I think I did, but I can't totally swear to it.

Q. How about Konitzer. When do you think you last talked to him?

A. If I did, it was very shortly after the video.

Q. Okay. Would it be accurate to say that your impression was that Schaffel, Konitzer, and Dieter were trying to profit off problems Mr. Jackson had?

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object again as speculative and lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Schaffel tell you that he and Dieter and Konitzer were going to make a lot of money off of the problems that came out of the Bashir documentary?

A. They said they were going to fix the problem and bragged that they had made money.

MR. ZONEN: Objection; nonresponsive. "They said."

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: That bothered you, didn't it?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did you ever tell Schaffel, "I don't like what you're doing to Michael," or words to that effect?

A. If I had said that, then I wouldn't have been able to find out what he was doing and try to get word to whoever was handling him, "You guys are going to get screwed."

Q. So what you were trying to do was make Schaffel think he could maintain a friendship with you, but what you really wanted to do was get information from him?

A. Yeah. He was out to hurt Michael, in addition would hurt my children.

Q. And did you feel Dieter was trying to hurt Michael and also your children?

A. I think they're opportunistic vultures.

Q. Would that be Dieter, Konitzer and Schaffel?

A. Okay. You can do them alphabetically if you'd like.

Q. You're talking about the three of them, right?

A. All of them.

Q. Who else are you referring to as vultures, besides those three?

A. If it's a personal opinion, does it count?

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as beyond the scope of the direct examination and speculative and improper opinion.

THE COURT: Sounds like she's got a long list. I think I'll sustain the objection.

(Laughter.)

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Ms. Rowe, at some point, did you learn that Santa Barbara sheriffs had recorded a discussion with you?

A. You did? You did? No, I didn't know that.

Q. Okay.

A. Damn you guys. You don't share anything.

Q. Did you ever learn that any discussion you had with the Santa Barbara sheriff was, in fact, recorded?

A. Well, if -- if you're referring to I was with them and, yeah, they were recording, so that's what I thought was recording. Did you bug my phone?

Q. So at some point you knew they were recording -- at some point you knew they were recording a discussion with you --

A. Yes.

Q. -- right?

A. It was a discussion with me with Marc Schaffel or with Ian Drew.

Q. Okay. How about with you just alone with an officer?

A. Oh, when I was speaking with an officer, yes, there was a -- an interview that was done.

Q. Okay. And where did that interview take place, if you know?

A. Calabasas. And I can't give you the name of the place because I don't remember.

Q. Do you know what officer that was?

A. Officer Steve Robel. Sergeant Steve Robel, actually.

Q. Do you know approximately when that interview took place?

A. Not off the top of my head, no.

Q. Do you recall, at one point, you mentioned the possibility of going to The Enquirer? Do you remember that?

A. Me?

Q. Yes. I don't know if it was -- you were joking or not, but do you recall saying something like that?

A. It would have been totally joking and sarcastic and, "Let's see if we can mess with them."

Q. Well, you talked about at one point Ms. Arvizo's orchestrating lawsuits. Do you remember that?

A. Yeah.

Q. And you referred to the J.C. Penney case, correct?

A. Probably.

Q. Did you do your own research into what Janet Arvizo had done in the J.C. Penney case?

A. Just by asking people who had heard something on the news. And I hadn't sat down at the computer and actually properly researched it, no.

Q. And you told the officer that you --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as hearsay and irrelevant, exceeding the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you spoke to the officer in that interview, were you trying to in some way protect Michael from the Arvizos?

A. Yes.

Q. And that's because you thought the Arvizos were taking advantage of Michael, right?

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as lack of foundation, exceeding the scope of direct.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: At one point you told Officer Robel that Schaffel had made seven and a half million dollars off your interview. Do you remember that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Schaffel tell you that?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you have any reason not to believe that he'd made seven and a half million?

A. I don't know what shows go for. Michael doesn't do interviews, so I'm sure that anything that was televised or produced was worth a lot of money.

Q. Did Schaffel offer you any of that money?

A. No, and I wouldn't have taken it.

Q. Did you know -- did you have any idea why Schaffel told you he made seven and a half million off your interview?

A. He likes to brag. “Look what I have. Look what I've done.”

Q. Did Schaffel tell you any of that money went to Dieter?

A. He didn't. The way he spoke about it was all him.

Q. Did he tell you any of that money went to Konitzer?

A. No, again, all to him.

Q. Was it your understanding that Schaffel, Dieter and Konitzer worked together or -- what was your understanding of their relationship?

A. Michael had a previous relationship with Dieter and Ronald, so if Marc wanted to get in touch with Michael he could go through them, if he couldn't get ahold of him himself. But I think Marc felt that he handled everything in the United States. And that they were involved in the European things and in marketing or something.

Q. Did you think Dieter, Konitzer and Schaffel were competing with each other at all?

A. There was some --
MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as irrelevant, exceeding the scope of direct.
MR. MESEREAU: Sustained.
Q. Did Schaffel ever tell you he was in any company with Dieter and Konitzer?
MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as exceeding the scope of direct and hearsay.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you remember telling the officer who interviewed you, "Michael is very, very easily manipulated especially if he's scared"?
A. Yes.
Q. You were trying to tell the officers that Michael was being taken advantage of by these people, weren't you?
MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
THE WITNESS: I'm sorry?
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You were trying to tell the officer that you thought Michael was being taken advantage of by these people, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, you indicated in your interview you were there for about nine to ten hours, right?
A. Yes.
Q. How much of that time do you think you were answering questions?

A. It was -- we were on that stupid couch for seven hours, with no breaks except to change film.
Q. And was that you and Mr. Drew?
A. I was on the couch. Drew -- Ian was opposite me, either in a chair -- I think he was in a chair.
Q. Okay. So if you think you know, how many hours of actual interview do you think there was with you?
A. The full seven hours. Except for the -- the time that it took to change videotapes.
Q. Okay.

A. I'm sorry. We didn't break for anything.

Q. And you have before today, I believe you said last night the most recent time, seen a DVD of what purports to be that interview, right?

A. It's not the whole interview.

Q. And is that about two and a half to three hours long, the one you saw?

A. It was about three hours.

Q. And who gave you that DVD to watch?

A. I asked for a copy from Mr. Zonen.

Q. And you watched it last night, right?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And correct me if I'm wrong, I think what you're saying is that many hours of your interview don't appear in that DVD, right?

A. I don't see how I could have sat there for seven hours and only had three hours on tape. I don't remember any breaks except for when the cameras were -- the film was being changed. I interrupted the interview to tell them the film was -- the camera was blinking, the light. I didn't want to be in the middle of the statement and have to start over again, to tell them that the lights were blinking, to change the film.

I saw cuts in that film, in that tape, that were -- had nothing with me saying, "It's blinking, take it off," so there's -- there is stuff missing from that video.

Q. When Schaffel told you he'd made seven and a half million dollars off your interview, did he ever tell you who he made the money from?

A. I think he said it was FOX Network. And someone in Europe. But I don't remember who it was in Europe.

Q. And was it your understanding that he kept all the footage of your interview?

A. Yes. It was all taken upstairs to a bedroom where they did the editing that night.

Q. Okay. How did you know they did the editing that night?

A. I was there for about an hour when they were doing it.

Q. Were you upstairs in the bedroom while they were doing it?

A. Yes.
Q. And who is “they”?
A. Marc was in and out. I don't remember --
I think it was Christian that was doing the editing.
Ian told me he was going to be there all night to get the video done.
Q. Now, Mr. Jackson wasn't there for any of that interview, was he?
A. No.
Q. Were you being asked to assist in the editing upstairs?
A. No, I wanted to see what they were putting down. I'm a bit of a control freak.
Q. So did they ever object to you being upstairs and watching what they were doing?
A. No, it just got to be too late and too long a day and I had to go home. I had school.
Q. But during the hour that you were upstairs watching the editing, what did you see them do?
A. The very beginning of the interview talking about Michael, me speaking about Michael and what kind of a person he is. And the -- I gave them a list, not a written list, but a verbal list of things that I wanted included to make sure.
Q. In that interview, what kind of a person did you say Michael was?
A. Generous. To a fault. Giving and kind.

Q. Anything else do you recall saying?
A. Good father. Great with kids. Put other people ahead of him. Things like that.
Q. If you can, do you remember anything else
you said about Michael?
A. He's a brilliant businessman. There's different Michaels. There's, like, my Michael.
Q. Do you want some water?
A. And the Michael that everyone else sees.
Q. And that would be the public Michael?
A. Yes.
Q. That would be Michael the entertainer,
right?
A. Michael the entertainer, yeah.

Q. When did you first meet Michael?

A. In the .80s.

Q. And how did you meet Michael?

A. Through my office when I worked with Dr. Klein.

Q. Okay. And what was your position with Dr. Klein at the time?

A. I was an assistant.

Q. And Michael went to Dr. Klein for various treatments, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And do you recall when he first went to Dr. Klein?

A. Yes. The very first day, yes. I was not his nurse then.

Q. And what was the treatment he was receiving; do you know? Was it a skin condition he had?

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object at this point. The question is, What was the treatment he was receiving?"

MR. MESEREAU: I'll withdraw it. I'll withdraw it.

THE COURT: All right. It's withdrawn.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You met him in the early .80s?

A. Yes.

Q. And you continued to know him through the .90s until you were married, right?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long did you work for Dr. Klein?

A. From .79 to 2001, I think it was, or 2000.

Q. Okay.

A. I don't remember the exact dates.

Q. Okay. Do you recall ever going on tour with Michael?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And when did you first go on a tour with Michael?

A. What was the tour after "Bad"? Was it the "History" tour, or "Dangerous"? It was the "Dangerous" tour, I'm sorry.

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object to communications between the witness and the defendant and ask that that be stricken.

THE WITNESS: Sorry.
THE COURT: Stricken.
Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Let me try and ask it again. What was the first tour that you went on with Michael?
A. “Dangerous.”
Q. And approximately when was that?
A. I don't remember. That was -- all those tours. And they all just ran together, because it was a long schedule.
Q. Okay. Was it in the .80s or .90s; do you know?
A. I think it was in the early .90s.
Q. Okay. And where did that tour go to?
A. I think it started in Bangkok, and went throughout Asia, Japan, Singapore. Then there was a break. And then it went to Europe.
I did go to the last concert in Gutenberg, I think on the tour previous to that. Because Gutenberg wasn't on the “Dangerous” tour.
Q. And were you traveling with Michael along with his physician?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And you then went on another tour after that?
A. Yes.

Q. And what tour was that?
A. “History.”
Q. Okay. And approximately when was that?
A. It seemed like it was right after “Dangerous,” within a year or two after “Dangerous.” It could have been a little bit longer than that.
Q. And you were on that tour along with the physician as well, right?
A. We were married when that was going on.
Q. Okay.
A. So, no. Klein would come every once in a while, but I was there every three weeks to see little Michael and Michael and to see how everybody was, because I was still working. I couldn't more often than that.

Q. When did you first meet Mr. Sneddon?

A. The day before yesterday. Two days ago. When did I come up here? I came up here Tuesday. Today's Thursday. I came up here Tuesday.

Q. I mean, your first time you ever met Mr. Sneddon was the early .90s, wasn't it?

A. I don't remember. I remember I did a deposition. I thought it was for a woman. I don't remember. I don't remember any of that part. I tend to block out unpleasantries. I don't remember any of that part. I don't remember if Mr. Sneddon was there or not.

Q. Okay.

A. I think -- I think I just met him.

Q. Okay. Do you know when you were first contacted about this particular case by anyone associated with the sheriffs or the prosecution?

A. It was -- there was a voice mail on my car phone, which I don't give out because it's stupid to give out a car phone if you're not in the car all the time. And they had gotten it through -- somehow probably through Schaffel, because that's how the tabloids got it. Because Marc Schaffel handed out that phone number, because that was the only one he had, because I had to call release from that line to call his house. So there was a message left, and I did not return the call.

And then on a trip back from Palm Springs, probably eight or nine o'clock at night, it was dark, I'm going to guess it could have been a little bit later, but eight o'clock or 9:00 the phone rang, and I thought it might have been someone -- something wrong with one of my animals or something. And I answered it, and it was Sergeant Robel.

Q. Okay. And do you know approximately when that was?

A. I don't. I'm sorry.

Q. Was it like a year ago?

A. Oh, yeah. Yeah. Yeah.

Q. Now, you said Schaffel was giving information to the tabloids?

A. Yes.

Q. Was he giving information to the tabloids about Michael Jackson, to your knowledge?

A. He was leaking information.

Q. To your knowledge, was he trying to profit from the tabloids with information about Michael Jackson?

A. I don't think monetarily. I think maybe through manipulation, you know, “Maybe I can stop this,” or “I can talk to so and so and fix it.”

Q. Has it been your belief that Schaffel has been trying to create problems for Michael Jackson so he could profit from them?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Asked and answered and speculative, lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did Schaffel ever tell you in your conversations that he was going to generate crises around Michael Jackson so he could then find ways to profit?

A. Just this lawsuit. And I don't know the details of the lawsuit.

Q. Did he tell you he intends to make millions from his lawsuit against Michael Jackson?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did he tell you whether or not Dieter or Konitzer are still doing business with him when you last talked to him?

A. When I was speaking with him, he didn't say anything about business.

Q. But he said --

A. He was more concerned about self-preservation at this point.

Q. He said he's still talking to them?

A. I think he is, yes. I think he is. I don't know.

MR. ZONEN: The question is did he say.

THE WITNESS: I don't --

THE COURT: Is that an objection?

MR. ZONEN: That's an objection, nonresponsive.

THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You met with Mr. Zonen

last night; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you have a long meeting with him?
A. I watched the video there. And I spoke with him for maybe 20, 25 minutes.
Q. Did Mr. Zonen talk to you about what he was going to ask you today?
A. No.
Q. He just asked you pretty much to watch the video?
A. Yes.
Q. And where did this meeting take place?

Don't give me an address, if it's where you were --
A. Oh. It's in an office that they had.
Q. That's the District Attorney's Office?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay.
A. I don't know the address. So I'm lost.
Q. When was the last time any representative of the sheriff's office asked you to record somebody?
A. I want to say last year.
THE COURT: Let's take our break.
MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.
(Recess taken.)

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor. Your Honor, we have no further questions, and we withdraw our motion.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. How many conversations did you have with Ronald Konitzer?

A. One or two.

Q. Over the telephone?

A. Yes.

Q. And the length of each of those conversations?

A. Minutes.

Q. Minutes? Did you ever see Ronald Konitzer interact with Michael Jackson?

A. Not since I had met him in Europe on tour years before.

Q. So you're talking about conversations that may have taken place when, in the early .90s?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Since the early .90s, have you seen him interact with Mr. Konitzer?

A. Physically, no. Just on the phone.

Q. Did you hear him interact with him on the telephone, in other words, conversations where you were present?

A. When Mr. Schaffel was setting up the interview --

Q. Yes.

A. -- Ronald was there with Michael.

Q. Was that the only conversation that you had, were party to --

A. No.

Q. -- involving Mr. Jackson and Mr. Konitzer?

A. No. There was one or two after that. Just -- after the interview, thanking me, saying everything was going to be fine, and I don't recall if there was another one after that.

Q. Was Mr. Jackson involved in those conversations?

A. No, he was not.

Q. That was just a conversation with you and Mr. Konitzer?

A. No, Marc would have been on the phone. He did not have my phone number.

Q. All right. So it was a conversation involving you, Marc Schaffel and Ronald Konitzer?

A. Yes.

Q. And the subject of that conversations was what?

A. Superficial. About the video.

Q. Nothing about Mr. Jackson's business affairs?

A. No. Not with Michael on the phone, no.

Q. Did any of them talk to you about issues dealing with the Martin Bashir video?

A. Before or after the interview?

Q. After the interview.

A. When the interview aired, it did, and they said that the interview that I had done would help deflect and do damage control.

Q. Did they say that to you more than once?

A. Yes.

Q. Did Mr. Konitzer say positive things to you about your involvement in this interview?

A. About my possible involvement?

Q. No.

A. I'm sorry.

Q. Did he say positive things to you about your involvement?

A. Yeah. Yeah.

Q. Did he say that you were helpful?

A. Yeah.

Q. Did you believe that you were?

A. Yeah.

Q. Was that your intent?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Do you still like Michael Jackson?

A. I have very strong memories and feelings for the Michael that I have known but haven't seen since 1999. But those are based on my feelings. We haven't spoken.

Q. All right. Is it the case that the sum total of your communication with Mr. Jackson since 1999, six years ago, was a two-and-a-half-minute conversation that you described?

A. Correct.

Q. And that was a conversation where he asked you to participate in this video; is that correct?

A. To work with Ronald, Dieter, and Marc.

Q. Is it clear to you that he understood that you wanted to see your children?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did he ever call you to say that --

A. No.

Q. -- or to invite you up to come see the children?

A. No, he didn't.

Q. Who do you believe is responsible for your not being able to see the children?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You can answer the question.

A. He's their father. Ultimately it's his decision. I don't want to believe that. I want to believe that it's other people. I want to believe it's Marc Schaffel threatening him that I want to take the children, things like that.

Q. How long has Marc Schaffel been involved with Michael Jackson? When do you believe was the end of Mr. Schaffel's involvement with Michael

Jackson?

A. I think The Ivy incident was probably what tore it.

Q. All right.

A. Marc told me he was on the outs and wanted to do what he could to get back in.

Q. When did he file the lawsuit against Michael Jackson?

A. I don't know how long it takes to actually get to court when you file a paper, or whatever, but he had talked about it about three months ago.

Q. All right.

A. So I don't know if he was filing the papers then, if he was getting ready to file the papers.

Q. All right. But your understanding is that Marc Schaffel hasn't had anything to do with Michael Jackson for a number of months now; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. And yet you're still being denied access to your children?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; relevance; foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that true?

A. We're -- yes, yes.

Q. All right. Well, then who do you think is responsible for that, if it's not Marc Schaffel?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance; foundation; leading; and opinion.

THE COURT: It's argumentative. Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Tell us, in your opinion, who is responsible at this time for your not being able to have access to your children?

MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: When I was first promised to see the kids, when Michael -- he called me, for me to show up when they were at that age of three and four, four and five, I could be introduced as a friend, as a friend of daddy's. And you don't confuse a child by saying, "Oh, this is your mother."

I can't do that now. They're too old. To do something like that, it would be too traumatic. I would not walk in and say, “Hey, I'm your mom,” you know, “Want to go out?” It's -- it's so much more complicated than that when reintroducing yourself to children who may or may not remember me.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you saying that you believe that Mr. Jackson is amenable to your seeing your children; it's just a question of how?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; argumentative; no foundation.

MR. ZONEN: It's impeachment, Your Honor, as to the leading issue.

MR. MESEREAU: Improper opinion.

THE COURT: The objection is overruled. Do you want the question read back?

THE WITNESS: No. Thank you. I'm hoping in my heart that he is. But we haven't spoken, so I don't know. I get to deal with Abrams and Hall.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Why do you believe he hasn't spoken with you?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Leading; argumentative; foundation; relevance.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: I don't know if he is concerned about this case. I don't know what his concerns are, if he thinks I'm going to take the children from him. I don't know. I haven't spoken to him. I don't know.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: How many conversations have you had with Dieter Weizner?

A. The last conversation I had with Dieter I think was at The Ivy.

Q. And how many conversations prior to that?

A. One or two.

Q. You said that you were set up, is that correct, at that --

A. In my opinion --

Q. -- lunch?

A. -- yes.

Q. What does that mean, “set up”?

A. You don't go to lunch and then call the paparazzi to come and take a picture of you while you're trying to have a salad, and then someone runs across the street and almost gets hit by a car because they're taking my picture.

Q. You didn't mention that in cross-examination when you said that to Mr. Mesereau.

A. Oh, sorry. I thought --

Q. Is that what it was that you believe to be the set-up?

A. Yes, because Michael was having a meeting with his -- some group of people at the Beverly Hills Hotel or something. And Marc and Dieter were not included. So they were going to show him.

Q. All right. What does the presence of paparazzi have to do with that?

A. I'm assuming because Marc Schaffel could not get to Michael, that if someone were to see it on T.V. or something, then it would be detrimental to him.

Q. How long has Michael Jackson had an association with Ronald Konitzer?

A. I know that he knew him in the .90s doing marketing and things like that in Europe. I don't know, I haven't -- I haven't had any involvement with Michael since .99, so I don't know.

Q. All right. You offered the opinion that you believe that this group of people are taking advantage of him.

A. Yes.

Q. Have you ever actually seen them interact with him?

A. No.

Q. Are you aware of any of the transactions that have taken place between Mr. Konitzer and Michael Jackson?

A. Just when Konitzer was on the phone with Michael to tell me that it was okay to work with these people to do what needed to be done for the project.

Q. And would you consider that to be a conversation for Mr. Jackson's benefit?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation;

vague.

MR. ZONEN: It's her opinion.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: The conversation that you had over the telephone with Mr. Konitzer involving your involvement in a rebuttal was supposed to defuse a difficult situation that Mr. Jackson was in; is that correct?

A. That was my understanding.

Q. So that was for his benefit, for Mr. Jackson's benefit?

A. Correct.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; argumentative. Same objection. Foundation; opinion.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Correct.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: And that's correct. How many conversations have you been party to between Mr. Konitzer and Mr. Jackson?

A. Just the one.

Q. That was the only one?

A. Yes.

Q. So you don't really know what extent of communication they had between each other; is that correct?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation; move to strike.

THE COURT: Overruled.

THE WITNESS: Only what I was told.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Ahh. And told by whom?

A. By Marc.

Q. Only Marc; is that right?

A. And Dieter.

Q. Okay. Marc is the person you believe to be an inveterate liar; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. He told you that he was making seven and a half million dollars off of this production, the Maury Povich production?

A. Correct.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; assumes facts not in evidence.

THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Is that correct?
A. Yes, that's what I was told.
Q. Did you believe he was profiting from that production?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you understand that production to be a production for profit?
A. I didn't care.
Q. But did you understand it to be a production for profit?
A. If I assumed that, you know, if you're going to make it and sell it, yes, it's for profit.
Q. And you understood it was being sold?
A. Yes.
Q. You understood it was being marketed?
A. Yes.
Q. And that, in fact, was Marc Schaffel's job, was to market that film?
A. Yes.
Q. And your involvement in it was to make it more marketable; is that true?

A. Correct.
Q. Do you think it was inappropriate for Marc Schaffel to make a profit off that film?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Improper opinion; calls for speculation; foundation.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: In your opinion, should he have made some profit off that film?
MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you have any reason to brief that Michael Jackson didn't receive any profit off that film?
MR. MESEREAU: Same objection.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Are you aware that Michael Jackson was given over a million dollars in cash by Marc Schaffel during that period of time?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Assumes facts not in evidence; foundation; move to strike.
THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Now, I'd asked you your number of conversations with Dieter Weizner. Is Weizner somebody you knew back in the early .90s as well?

A. He said I'd met him. I don't remember. I met a lot of people when Michael was on tour.

There was a ton of people involved.

Q. Did you have a face-to-face conversation with Dieter Weizner in 2003?

A. For the inter -- at The Ivy. Not for the interview or anything.

Q. And The Ivy was just the lunch that you had with them?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you stay and actually have a lunch?

A. I was -- yeah, I was a wreck. They moved us inside until it was completely out of control, and it had -- I had to leave.

Q. So you didn't really have a conversation with him?

A. We did talk.

Q. About what?

A. About how they were going to -- that the people that were on the other side of town were inching them out and not including them, and that this would show them and get their attention because I was with -- with them.

Q. All right. Now, this was in 2004; is that right?

A. I think -- I don't remember the date.

Q. This is well after the Indictment was returned against Mr. Jackson; is that correct?

A. No. It was -- I believe it was before.

Q. Were you --

A. I don't -- I don't remember the date.

Q. Were you already involved in having given information to law enforcement regarding this investigation?

A. I think so. I don't remember.

Q. You described Mr. Jackson as a brilliant businessman.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a true statement?

A. In my opinion, yes.

Q. During the years that you knew him, you understood him to be very talented at the business end of his career; is that correct?

A. I thought so.

Q. He was successful in making an awful lot of money during the years you knew him; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And he knew Mr. Konitzer and Mr. Weizner for over ten years, didn't he?

A. I don't know how long they'd known each other. I don't remember when they met. I remember meeting -- like I said, I remember meeting Ronald when he was showing marketing things to Michael. I don't even remember what city we were in.

Q. But it was the early .90s, was it not?

A. Yeah. Yeah. It would have had to have been. So, yeah, I guess that would be ten years.

Q. Would the same be true as to Dieter Weizner?

A. I don't remember meeting Dieter. Even though he said I did, I don't remember.

Q. So when did you understand Mr. Weizner's involvement with Michael Jackson to begin?

A. The man carried six cell phones. I wasn't quite sure what -- I wasn't sure if he was a liaison, if he was doing the European marketing and working with Marc Schaffel doing the American things. All I knew is that the three of them were --

Q. Who are we talking about right now?

A. Ronald, Marc and Dieter were involved in -- directly in the video and saving Michael after this documentary came out.

Q. All right. Is there anything that you saw that was put out to any of the tabloids or any of the newspapers by any of the three of them that you felt was negative to Michael Jackson?

A. What do you mean?

Q. Well, you talked about Mr. Schaffel giving information out to the tabloids; is that right?

A. Yes, but he did it to -- he said he could run interference. That was why he had Ian Drew as a plant at The Globe, to run interference, because -- I didn't know this, but I guess the magazines are all owned by the same company and they shuffle the stories around.

Q. What kind of interference?

A. To keep bad stories or gossip, or whatever, out, so he would release good information to someone he thought was more reputable.

Q. Bad stories about whom?

A. Michael.

Q. All right. So the work that they were doing was trying to boost his reputation?

A. Correct.

Q. And improve his reputation?

A. Correct.

Q. Not destroy him.

A. After this documentary, correct.

Q. All right. Was it your understanding that the more money Michael Jackson was capable of making translated to the more money those three men were capable of making?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Foundation; relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know Frank Cascio?

A. Yes.

Q. How did you know Frank Cascio?

A. I met his family years ago.

Q. Years ago?

A. Yeah.

Q. How old was Frank Cascio when you met his family?

A. It was just after little Michael had been born. He must have been middle teens maybe. He was the oldest of the boys.

Q. You didn't know him as a person who was involved in Mr. Jackson's relationships or business affairs?

A. No.

Q. He was a teenager?

A. This is years ago. We're talking --

Q. Yes.

A. Yeah. No, no, no.
Q. Did he visit Mr. Jackson regularly?
A. The family came up -- I knew him with the family, when Mr. and Mrs. Cascio were there with the kids, with the boys.
Q. Did you understand Frank Cascio's relationship with Michael Jackson to be very close?
A. He was close with all the Cascios.
Q. Did you know Vinnie Amen?
A. No.
Q. You made the statement, “If I'm considered a commodity of Mr. Jackson.” What did that mean?
MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Misstates the evidence. She was talking about Mr. Schaffel.
THE COURT: Overruled.
You may answer.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you remember making that statement?
A. Yes.

Q. What did that mean?
A. I was sellable.
Q. Do you mean in conjunction with your giving this interview?
A. Yeah. I don't do interviews.
Q. Did you ever give an interview for the press?
A. I did a couple of things with Chuck Henry in the late .70s. He was a newscaster for NBC in Los Angeles.
Q. You've given no interviews other than that?
A. Not personally, no.
Q. Did you believe that made you more marketable?
A. To do the interviews?
Q. Yes.
A. I don't want to be marketable.
Q. I didn't ask that. I said, do you believe that it made you more marketable; in other words, for somebody else?
A. Yeah.
Q. Do you believe that you were asked to participate in this interview because it would make the film more marketable?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Calls for speculation; foundation.

MR. ZONEN: It's her opinion.

MR. MESEREAU: And improper opinion.

THE COURT: Sustained for speculation.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did any of the three of them, Konitzer or Weizner or Schaffel, talk to you about your participation in this video in terms of mentioning that it would make the film more marketable?

A. Yes, and that it would help Michael.

Q. Help Michael Jackson in terms of its marketability?

A. Of the damage control from the Bashir document -- documentary thing, show.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: No further questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, Judge.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. ZONEN: Iris Finsilver, please.

Your Honor, I'm sorry, I believe this may take a moment. I believe she's upstairs.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Remain standing.

THE COURT: Please remain standing.

THE WITNESS: Oh, yes, Your Honor. I'm sorry.

THE COURT: Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

IRIS JOAN FINSILVER

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Iris Joan Finsilver. I-r-i-s.

J-o-a-n. F-i-n-s-i-l, V as in "Victor," e-r.
THE CLERK: Thank you.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Miss Finsilver, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. You're not used to being on that side of the witness stand, are you?
A. No, I'm not.
Q. What is your occupation?
A. I'm a lawyer.
Q. How long have you been an attorney?
A. I was admitted to the bar of Michigan in or about 1986.
Q. In then California?
A. In California, I believe I was admitted in 1989.

Q. What kind of a practice do you have?
A. Family law.
Q. And family law means what?
A. Divorce, custody, child custody, support, family matters.
Q. All right. Is Debbie Rowe Jackson your client?
A. Yes.
Q. How long has she been your client?
A. Since in or about 1996.
Q. Did you represent her in her divorce with Michael Jackson?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Do you continue to represent her?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you present at the filming of an interview that took place in Calabasas at the residence of Marc Schaffel back in February of 2003?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Prior to doing that, had you engaged in any legal work to be able to allow Deborah Rowe to participate in that interview?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. What was the purpose of that?

A. It was -- she had signed a confidentiality agreement, and in order for her to speak of Mr. Jackson, she would have to be released from the confidentiality agreement for the express purpose of speaking about Mr. Jackson.

Q. Did you draft that waiver of confidentiality?
A. I think it was a mutual effort between Mr. Jackson's lawyers and myself. It was in fact, yes.
Q. But it was one that was drafted as a document?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And was it one that required signatures?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Whose signatures were required on that document?
A. Mr. Jackson's and Deborah Rowe Jackson's.
Q. And did Debbie Rowe sign the document?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And to your knowledge, did Mr. Jackson sign the document?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. And following the signing of that document, did Miss Rowe participate in an interview?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Were you present during the interview?
A. Yes, I was.
Q. Were you present during the entirety of the interview?
A. Yes.
Q. Approximately how long did that interview last?

A. Well, I can tell you the whole day was about nine hours. And I can't exactly tell you how long the filming took place. It was many hours of filming throughout a nine-hour day.
Q. All right. Was there a man by the name of Marc Schaffel present?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Did you know Marc Schaffel prior to that day?
A. I had never met him prior to that day.

Q. Did you know his name prior to that day?

A. I believe I did.

Q. In what context?

A. In that he would be --

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Relevance and foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Oh, you don't need to be told that, do you?

A. In that he would be part of the interview that was going to be taking place, so that's how I heard of his name. And I knew that we were going to be going to Marc Schaffel's home, where the filming was conducted.

Q. And was that where it was conducted, at his home?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he present during the interview?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Was he present during the entirety of the interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Did he periodically make comments with regards to the answers or questions that were given?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you hear any representations from Mr. Schaffel at any time during the course of the filming that dealt specifically with the subject of Ms. Rowe's children?

A. Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled. The answer was, "Yes." Next question.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What were those representations?

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: Relevant for prior stated

purposes.
THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.
A. I heard him, in connection with her answers, when she would give a favorable answer, “Oh, Michael will be very, very pleased about this. You're really helping him out of a big jam, and you'll go to Neverland and you'll see Michael and your kids.”
Q. On how many occasions did he give an answer of that nature?
A. I recall two specific times. There may have been more. I just --
MR. MESEREAU: Objection; move to strike.
THE COURT: The last sentence is stricken.
MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Mr. Mesereau?
MR. MESEREAU: No examination, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.
THE WITNESS: Thank you, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Call your next witness.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I want to get an exhibit book.
THE COURT: All right.
MR. SNEDDON: I was going to ask permission to go between there, but I'll....
MR. ZONEN: I apologize, Your Honor.
I thought it would be a little faster than we expected, but we are moving ahead of schedule.

THE COURT: That's fine.
MR. SNEDDON: Call Andrew Dietz, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Come forward, please.
When you get to the witness stand, remain standing. Face the clerk and raise your right hand.

ANDREW R. DIETZ
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Andrew R. Dietz, D-i-e-t-z.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. Mr. Dietz, you have a business -- you're going to have to lean into that mike. Okay?
A. Good morning.
Q. Good morning. Do you have a business?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And what is the name of your business?
A. Air Apparent, Inc.
Q. And where is your business located?
A. Los Angeles, California.

Q. And what is the nature of the business?
A. It's a retail travel agency.
Q. And basically could you describe for us what that means? What's a retail travel agency do?
A. We arrange transportation.
Q. And any other services you provide in addition to transportation?
A. Not that I can think of.
Q. In connection with that transportation, you make reservations at hotels and things like that?
A. Yes. Certainly.
Q. Now, in that particular business, what is your position?
A. I'm the president.
Q. And how long have you been associated with that business?
A. Since 1980.
Q. Now, is one of your clients MJJ Productions?
A. Yes.
Q. And how long has MJJ Productions been a client of yours?
A. I believe around 15 years.
Q. And what is the nature of the business services that you provide to MJJ Productions?
A. We arrange hotel, air transportation, commercial air transportation, car reservations for many of the people that he employs and engages in work for himself.

Q. What is the -- can you describe to the jury what the business relationship is in terms of how the services, once they're provided, how they're invoiced and paid and how that works?
A. A call -- I think if you're asking how is business conducted --
Q. Yes.
A. -- a call's typically made and a reservation is usually made, a ticket is usually generated. It's then invoiced and sent to the client.
Q. Now, at the time that the ticket is made, do you have to -- do you have to pay for the ticket yourself?
A. The minute the ticket is issued, it's my obligation to pay the carrier.
Q. Okay. I guess that was the question. And then you pay it and then invoice the client?
A. Correct.
Q. And then the client repays you?
A. Correct.
Q. Was that the type of business arrangement that you had with MJJ Productions?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, at some point back in 2004, did members of the sheriff's department come to your business and execute a search warrant with regard to your records?
A. Yes, they did.

Q. And those records involved MJJ Productions; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the time period covered by that was March -- February and March of 2003?
A. I believe that's correct.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, may I approach the witness?
THE COURT: Yes.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. Mr. Dietz, I'm going to hand you a book, and there are a number of exhibits in the book. And the first exhibit I'd like you to look at begins with 223 and I'd like you to look just quickly through 249, and ask you if you examined those documents yesterday, just to ensure they're the documents that you examined.

A. Through what number?
Q. 249.
A. Did you say 239?
Q. 249.
A. I believe these are all the records that we reviewed last night.
Q. And those records are records from your business; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Excuse me, sir.
THE WITNESS: That is correct.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And these records generally deal with what type of transactions?

A. Airline reservations, or airline tickets.
Q. And are they records dealing with your business relationships with MJJ Productions?
A. They are invoices which reflect transactions that we did.
Q. I think you're going to have to lean into that mike a little bit.
A. Those are invoices that relate to tickets that were issued to MJJ Productions.
Q. Now, are these generally the records that are kept in the regular course of your business?
A. Yes, but not in the manner in which they were given to you.
Q. What do you mean by that?
A. I mean the invoices are separated from the copies of the tickets.
Q. Okay. We'll get to that. But both of those documents are kept in the regular course of your business; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And the transactions that are reflected in those documents, do those reflect transactions that were made at or about the time that those events occurred?
A. I believe they do.
Q. By people who are in your organization who are responsible for documenting those?

A. Yes.

Q. Let's turn -- if you could get that exhibit book and put it back in front of you, I'm going to ask you a couple of questions.

A. Okay.

Q. With regard to -- let's turn to Exhibit No. 224, if we can.

A. Okay.

Q. All right. On --

A. 2-2-4?

Q. Yeah, 2-2-4. 224.

A. Gotcha. All right.

Q. 224 has two pages in it, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, with regard to the first page, what is the title of that document?

A. It's called an “Itinerary/invoice number.”

Q. Do you recognize that document?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Can you explain to us how that document's generated?

A. An agent in the office will book a reservation. The reservation system will then, at the agent's queue, ticket the reservation for the itinerary in question, and then an e-ticket is basically created for a passenger to be picked up at Los Angeles International Airport.

Q. And then with regard to that particular 8063 document, how do you use that in your business?

A. To collect money.

Q. To collect money. That's the invoice part of it?

A. That's the invoice part. The itinerary part is related to the -- for the accountant, business manager, to see the nature of the -- see the actual details of the flight, as would the ticket show you the same things, as relates to dinner or how long the flight was, things like that.

Q. All right. So these are generated at or about the time of the transaction, contemporaneous with the transaction?

A. Yes. In most cases.

Q. And you say the invoice part of it. How does it serve as an invoice? How do you use that in your business practice?

A. I mail them out for my services, and I expect them to get paid in a timely manner.

Q. Okay. Now, the second part of that Exhibit 224 has what is called an agent coupon, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Would you explain to us what the agent coupon is?

A. The agent coupon I believe represents our copy of the transaction for purposes of maintaining it for our regulatory people. In the airline business, you have to report your weekly sales of airline tickets.

Q. So that would be a record used by you to be audited --

A. We present the, quote, “auditor's coupon,” and we retain the agent coupon. A ticket has many different -- has flight coupons, as well as agent coupons, passenger coupons, and auditor coupons.

Q. And how is the document -- agent coupon generated or prepared?

A. It's one of -- as I just stated, it's I think a five-part document.

Q. But internally that document is generated within your business?

A. Within our reservation system.

Q. Now, within your company, with regard to the agent coupon document, are those located in a separate place in your business?

A. Yes.

Q. So they're not located exactly with the invoice and the itinerary information?

A. Definitely not.

Q. But they're both located and kept for business purposes?

A. Correct.

Q. And are the exhibits contained in the ones that you reviewed, 223 through 239 (sic), are those records regularly relied upon by you to conduct business?

A. I believe they are, yes.

MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I'd move to admit 223 through 249 into evidence as business records.

MR. SANGER: No objection.

THE COURT: All right. They're admitted.

MR. SNEDDON: And with the Court's permission, I'd like to remove a couple of the documents to publish.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: To ask some further questions.

I don't need the lights just yet, Your Honor.

Q. There are two other documents that I want to show you before we go through the publication process. And I'm showing them to counsel.

These have been marked, Your Honor, as 852, which is a three-page document from Air Apparent, and 853, which is a five-page document, or five pages in the document, which is also an Air Apparent record.

And may I approach?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Dietz, I'm going to hand you the exhibit marked as Exhibit 852. I'd like you to take a look at that for just a moment.

A. Okay.

Q. Go ahead and take a look at the pages in that document. They're multiple pages.

Do you recognize those?

A. Yes.

Q. Those are also documents that were obtained through the search warrant?

A. I believe so.

Q. And those are also records that are kept in the normal course of your business?

A. I believe so.

Q. And it is also, just for the record, an itinerary/invoice record, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And let me show you 853 and ask you if you recognize that. And the pages attached, there are five pages.

A. Yes.
Q. Do you recognize those documents?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. And you were able to compare those documents to your actual business records to ensure that they were part of the records that were taken pursuant to the search warrant, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. And with regard to those records, they were also made at or about the time of the transaction?
A. Yes.
Q. By personnel --
A. Yes.

Q. -- in your office and kept in the normal course of business?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Thank you.
Your Honor, I'd move to admit 852 and 853.
MR. SANGER: No objection.
THE COURT: They're admitted.
MR. SNEDDON: All right. Now, Your Honor, if we could have the Elmo, I'd appreciate it.
Q. The document that's up there is 223, which is in evidence, okay? Now, do you recognize this document?
A. Yes.
Q. Now, at the top of the document I'm indicating a customer number. Are the individuals that you service assigned a customer number?
A. Yes.
Q. And that number carried over to all the business transactions that you conduct with that particular individual or company?
A. Several accounts have different companies -- there is different -- there are some accounts that have different customer numbers.
Q. In other words, an individual or a business may have more than one account with you?
A. Correct.
Q. Okay. But wherever they are billed to, that number is used, either on one of the accounts or on another account with regard to that business or individual?

A. The MJJ Productions had more than one account.

Q. Correct. Now, the information at the top, it says, "MJJ Productions." What is that information in terms of how you conduct your business?

A. That's the mailing -- that's the mailing address that we've been requested to send invoices to.

Q. And with regard to the next line down, it says "For," and has "Gavin Arvizo, Star Arvizo, Janet Arvizo." Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And what does that information reflect?

A. I believe it reflects the passengers' names.

Q. And obviously the next says, "Travel Itinerary." This is the itinerary that was explored for these individuals; is that correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And lastly, it indicates whether the ticket is a one-way ticket or a round-trip ticket, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. In this case, this particular itinerary that was looked into was a one-way ticket for those individuals?

A. Correct.

Q. Now, with regard to this particular document -- look in the book, if you would, to the document in front of you that's 224, okay?

A. Yeah.

Q. On that particular document, the heading on it is "Itinerary and Invoice," correct? On 224?

A. Yes.

Q. And this particular document only reflects the itinerary on the date of February the 5th, correct, of 2003?

A. Correct.

Q. What is the difference, if there is one, in the use between the document reflected in 223 and the document that you just spoke about in 224?

A. Well, the itinerary typically is a document which you would fax to somebody or e-mail somebody to inform that -- to more or less confirm with the person that requested the transportation that, "This is the itinerary request" --

Q. Okay. And --
A. -- "correct?" And then we expect, you know, "That's right. Ticket it."
Q. And with regard to the travel itinerary, I want to go back to the date underneath where it says, "Travel Itinerary," on 223, it says, "05 February, .03." That would be the date of travel?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. We can take that one down.

All right. This is Exhibit 852, all right?
A. Yes.
Q. Could you explain to us what this particular document is that is displayed as 852 and that has the heading "Itinerary/Invoice Number"?
A. This is primarily what I refer to as an invoice. And as I was relating before, besides showing you how much the tickets cost, it also provides an itinerary for the passenger, or for the person paying the bill, so that they can see that -- whatever flight information they want to see from that.
Q. All right. Now, in this particular document, 852, it reflects that the customer -- it has a customer number, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Is that the customer number for one of the accounts for MJJ Productions?
A. Yes.
Q. And then the "To" section on this particular document, 852, is where you would send the bills to?
A. That's correct.
Q. Right below are a couple of names. What are those names? Why are those names on that itinerary?
A. That probably represents the passengers flying.
Q. And then under "Travel Itinerary," then that is the flight information, correct?

A. That is correct.
Q. And then on the Travel Itinerary it has,

above -- on the line where I'm showing, it shows air -- "American Airlines Flight 1245," and then it has across there "Business." What does that reflect?

A. The type of service. Business class.

Q. Business class. And to your knowledge, how many types of services or classes are there on ordinary domestic flights?

A. Primarily coach and first class. They throw in business as well.

Q. And then down at the bottom it would be the total amount due on this particular invoice?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. The second page of the Exhibit 852, what is that?

A. That's a copy -- that's the agent coupon.

Q. This is what you told the jury about earlier in your testimony?

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to this particular document, the information that is on this document, does it give flight information?

A. Yes.

Q. And does it give the name of the individual on it?

A. Certainly.

Q. So in this case, it says, "Christopher Carter," correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And it also contains the amount of money that's paid?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. The third and last document of page 852 is another agent coupon, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. It reflects a different name on it; is that right?

A. Correct.

Q. And the name being?

A. "Danny Crawford."

Q. And these two names are the same names that are on the front page of the invoice/itinerary that you earlier talked about as Exhibit 852. I don't know if you have that in front of you. We can put that back up. Here it is.

Same two names under the "For" section, F-o-r, in 852, correct?

A. The first one said Christopher Carter. That makes sense. The second one said Danny Crawford.

Q. And they correspond to the agent coupons that go with this document?

A. Yes.

Q. The flight information matches up; is that correct?

A. That's -- hold on one second. If you go back to the ticket, I can tell you.

Q. All right. Put the agent coupon back up.

You may want to heighten that up a little bit.

A. I'm trying to look first.

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Okay.

THE WITNESS: Can't see the flight information. J. American Airlines. I'm sorry, I'm not that familiar with these documents.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, excuse me. I'm sorry.

MR. SNEDDON: Let me --

MR. SANGER: I couldn't hear the witness's last answer.

MR. SNEDDON: There was no question pending, I don't think.

MR. SANGER: He was asked to look at the -- he said something about, "I'm not" -- sounded like he said, "I'm not familiar," and I couldn't hear what he said.

THE WITNESS: I said -- do you want me to answer?

THE COURT: He said that he wasn't that familiar with the document.

MR. SANGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: What are -- what do you want me to tell you about this document?

MR. SNEDDON: Let me just put that down.

Let's put 852 back up. This is....

Q. All right. On the document, 852, it has two airline ticket numbers, correct, in the lower left-hand corner?

A. I can tell you if they're the same ticket numbers for sure --

Q. You have to turn into the microphone.

A. I can tell you if they're the same numbers if you go back.

Q. You got ticket numbers on the invoice and itinerary.

A. That I can see. 465, 466.

Q. Okay. And then if you put up the other two --

A. 466 and 465.

Q. They match?

A. That matches.

Q. So they go with that flight?

A. I believe they do.

Q. All right. Wasn't supposed to be that hard. It's hard to see from here. No problem. Let's try 853. All right. Now, this 853 is another document that's an itinerary/invoice, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. For March 2nd?

A. Right.

Q. And it reflects that there are four people who are supposed to travel under this invoice?

A. Yes.

Q. And four tickets issued down in the lower left-hand corner, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. With ticket numbers associated with that flight?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Now, I'm going to put up the first agent coupon for that flight. And I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to come up there and hand you 852, the first page. Make this easier.

A. Yes. Thanks.

Q. Now, looking at 852, and the front part of it that has the ticket information for it, and looking at the exhibit -- agent coupon, which is part of that exhibit, does the ticket number on the front of that invoice match the agent coupon on the Exhibit 853? Or -- 853, yes.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let's put the second one up. And -- excuse me. That was for an M. Jackson, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let's put the second one up, the second agent coupon.

Now, this particular agent coupon has stamped in the middle of it “Void,” v-o-i-d, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And could you look at the front of the document, the first page with regard to the ticket number? Does the ticket number on the agent coupon for a Michael LaPerruque match the ticket number on the front of the invoice for this particular document, 853?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, with regard to your business practices, what does it mean when you have an agent coupon that has “Void” on it?

A. The ticket was not used.

Q. And how is it that you become informed, in your normal business practices, that the ticket was not used?

A. In our normal business practices?

Q. Right.

A. Either they don't show up at the airport, or somebody calls in and tells us to cancel the reservation.

Q. Are you also -- are you given any information from the airlines themselves that reflects whether the person was on the flight or not?

A. No -- yes. For e-tickets, the person has to pick up the e-ticket.

Q. And if they don't, then you're notified?

A. Then we're notified.

Q. And --

A. To the best of my knowledge.

Q. And the particular stamp "Void" that's on the ticket agent -- or the agent coupon, on this one for Mr. LaPerruque, is that placed on there by your staff in the regular course of your business in the performance of their responsibilities?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Is this document used to adjust any billings that may have occurred where a ticket wouldn't be used?

A. Certainly.

Q. Let's go back to the document you have in front of you, which is 853, okay?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. So we're all on the same page. 853 is a billing for four tickets in the total amount of what?

A. $6,644.

Q. And if this ticket -- if this particular ticket to Mr. LaPerruque isn't used, then you have to adjust your billings accordingly; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Let's go to the next one. The next agent coupon involves an individual by the name of Marie Cascio. Do you see that?

A. Yes.

Q. And on the exhibit that you have in front of you, the itinerary invoice, does the name "Marie Cascio" appear?

A. Yes.

Q. And is the ticket number assigned to her on the exhibit number of the first age, 853, the same as the ticket number on the agent coupon that the jury's looking at?

A. Yes.

Q. And again, this one is stamped with "Void," correct?

A. Correct.

Q. Meaning she did not take the trip?

A. She did not make that trip.

Q. All right. Let's put up the last one. The last agent coupon associated with the invoice 853 is an Aldo Cascio, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Does the ticket number on this particular document, the agent coupon, match up with the ticket number on the first page of 853?

A. Yes.

Q. And again, this one is stamped with “Void,” correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Indicating the person did not make the flight?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: I think we can have the lights, Your Honor. Thank you.

I have two more documents, Your Honor, that I'd like to have marked for identification. 854 and 855 for identification purposes. I'm showing them to counsel. He's seen them.

THE COURT: All right.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: All right. Mr. Dietz, I'm going to take this back so we don't lose it. You can swing around there.

I'm going to show you a document that -- it's actually a three-page document, front, back and then front, entitled, “Client Summary,” and ask you to look at that document.

Do you recognize that document?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And does that document for the time period of - may I have it back just a second, just to make sure I've got this right? - February 5th, 2003, through February 12th, 2003, reflect the summary of the transactions that -- and services provided by your company to MJJ Productions?

A. Not this in front of us. This is only two pages.

Q. No, the back page.

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, I can't hear the witness.

MR. SNEDDON: He said --

Q. Lean into it and say what you said.

A. I'm sorry, I thought we did more transactions than this in that time frame. There must be another client summary.

Q. This is only for the 5th to the 12th.
A. Okay.
MR. SANGER: Objection. Leading and argumentative.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Go ahead and take the paper clip off and look at all three pages.
Have you looked at all three pages?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. You --
A. But they only reflect activity through February 12th, when this is for February 1st through March 31st.
Q. Okay. But the caption at the right is -- has a larger period, correct?
A. That's right.
Q. All right. Now, I want to show you --
A. And there's transactions that you've shown me that are clearly not on here.
Q. Now I want to show you Exhibit 855.
A. Okay.
Q. And take the clip off and look at them front and back, if you would.

A. Okay. Okay.
Q. You've seen those documents before, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. You saw them last night?
A. Correct.
Q. Are those the other transactions that you had in mind between this time period in question?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Objection; calls for hearsay.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And this particular document, which is 13 pages in length, covers the period 2-12-03 --
A. Uh-huh.
Q. -- correct? And ends at the end of March of 2003, correct?
A. Uh-huh. Yes.
Q. Now -- all right. Why don't you keep these for just a second.

All right. Now, Mr. Dietz, with regard to the Exhibit 854, does that have an account number on it?
A. 854. Yes, it does.
Q. What's the account number?
A. 1359.
Q. What's the customer?
A. MJJ Productions, Inc.

Q. You're going to have to lean into the mike.
A. MJJ Productions, Inc.
Q. All right. Now, let's look at Exhibit 855, if we can.
A. Okay.
Q. What's the billing account on that particular series of transactions?
A. MJJ Productions, Inc.
Q. That's the customer?
A. That's the customer.
Q. What's the account number?
A. 1656.
Q. It's a different account from the other -- from Exhibit 854, correct?
A. That's correct.
Q. Now, with regard to the information that is reflected in those client summary forms - okay? - the information reflected in those, is that information that you keep in the normal course of your business?
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object, Your Honor. There's a lack of foundation as to who prepared these and where they came from.
MR. SNEDDON: Well, that's what I'm trying to do.
THE COURT: The objection is overruled.
You may answer.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Is the information contained in these documents, Client Summary, information that you utilized in your business to bill clients and to keep a history on the services you provide to those clients?

A. Is the information?
Q. Yes.

A. Yes, the information is.

Q. And then that information, in this particular case with regard to MJJ Productions' accounts during this time period, was put into this format, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection; lack of foundation.

THE COURT: I don't know what the question -- really what you're asking him. Maybe you do, but I don't.

MR. SNEDDON: If you don't, the jury doesn't, so I better start over again.

Q. The documents that you have, let's start with them individually. 854, the Client Summary for 854, okay?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Did your -- did your business prepare those documents?

A. Yes.

Q. And -- you have to lean into the microphone.

A. Yes.

Q. And did your business -- did the information contained on the document, 854, come from business entries of documents that you maintained in the regular course of your business, information that you maintained?

A. Yes. It's a computer-generated report. It's something we made up. It's something that the computer generates based on the subpoena we received, which was to give us all the transactions that occurred between February 1st and March 31st.

Q. And between the documents 8 -- in 855, the document 855, look at that. That's a Client Summary?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Is that the same -- would you make the same statement with regard to that document? It's information generated from your computers?

A. That's correct.

Q. And --

A. For the purposes of the subpoena.

Q. Correct. Now, with regard to those particular documents, do they cover the transactions that are reflected in the Exhibits 223 through 249?

A. I haven't had time to do that, but I would assume they do.
Q. Well, yesterday --
MR. SANGER: Excuse me. Move to strike as speculation.
THE COURT: Sustained. Stricken.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Yesterday, you were asked to look at those Client Summary forms and compare them with certain transactions to confirm whether or not particular invoices were sent in certain amounts for certain flights, correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection; leading.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: Can you say that again?
THE COURT: I can have it read back to you. Just a moment.
(Record read.)
THE WITNESS: Yes, we briefly looked at this Client Summary for a few -- for a few -- I would say for less than 30 seconds. And I referred -- I actually remember going back to it once or twice with respect to one or two invoices on it.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Right.
A. Rather than every one on them. So I couldn't attest to every one. In general --
Q. We discussed in general --
A. We discussed the ones you've already brought up.
Q. Let's just establish that, okay?
A. Okay.
MR. SANGER: I want to move -- Mr. Sneddon's comments about what he discussed, move to strike those.
MR. SNEDDON: I don't have a problem with that, Judge. I'll just ask the question.

THE COURT: All right. Go ahead.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Dietz, with regard to the Documents 854 and 855 --
A. Yes.
Q. -- yesterday you and I discussed how those documents were prepared, correct?
A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection; leading.
THE WITNESS: Yes.
THE COURT: Overruled. The answer is, "Yes." Next question.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: And then I asked you to take those documents and look at a couple of specific flights, did I not?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: Objection. Leading, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Now, with regard to the transaction reflected in the Document 853 --
A. Okay.
Q. -- all right? - were you asked to look at your Client Summary form to determine whether or not the invoice reflects a charge of 6,000 -- whatever it is, $6,600 for those four people, or whether it reflects a flight of one person?
A. It reflects -- I believe it reflects the price of one person.

MR. SANGER: I'm going to move to strike that answer on the grounds that it's based on hearsay. And there's no foundation.
MR. SNEDDON: Your Honor, I think he's -- the records are before the Court, and he's simply using this to verify the authenticity of those records.
MR. SANGER: Objection to speaking responses.
MR. SNEDDON: Well --
THE COURT: Well, it seems to me you haven't offered them as business records.
MR. SNEDDON: I was getting there. I was trying to lay the foundation for that, as to the relevancy first, and then I was going to go into that. Perhaps if you --
THE COURT: I think if you go to the business record foundation first, and then they're either admitted or not admitted, then you're -- if they're admitted, then you can question him in the way you're questioning him.
MR. SNEDDON: All right.

THE COURT: And I know I might be not quite understanding still the record that he's looking at.

MR. SNEDDON: Let me ask one other question. It might help the Court guide us through this.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. SNEDDON: Make it a little clearer.

Q. Mr. Dietz, you're going to have to lean into the microphone there, okay?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Mr. Dietz, with regard to the Exhibit 853 - okay? - that's the one that has the void tickets on it.

A. Yes.

Q. -- does your business maintain information that would reflect the adjustment as to whether or not the original invoice is sent to your client for payment or some subsequent amount is sent to reflect the voids?

A. The original invoice may have definitely been mailed out. Actually, no, I know that it was not mailed out. It was adjusted to reflect that one passenger -- that only one e-ticket was issued.

Q. Now, going to the Client Summary form, okay?

A. Yes.

Q. Do the Client Summary forms contain information maintained by your business in the normal course of business to reflect the transactions that occurred on the exhibits that I showed you, 223 to 249?

A. Yes.

Q. And that information is kept in the normal course of your business, correct?

A. The information on that summary is.

Q. Yes.

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to the mode and time of the preparation of that information as it's placed into your computer, it's made at or about the time of the transactions; is that correct?

MR. SANGER: Objection. That -- there's a lack of foundation. That's the connection. Lack of foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

THE WITNESS: Can you repeat the question?

THE COURT: Yes.

(Record read.)

THE WITNESS: Yes and no.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Yes and what?

A. Reservations can be made. It's only -- an invoice is generated only when the reservation is turned into a ticket.

Q. Right. And that's what we're talking about here.

A. Okay.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Move to strike counsel's comment.

MR. SNEDDON: Well --

THE COURT: Overruled. Go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Just so there will be no question about it, the exhibits we're talking about, except for the one exhibit, 223, all reflect 8090 transactions that occurred, correct, tickets were issued?

A. Except for --

MR. SANGER: I'm sorry, I have to object. What exhibits are we talking about, except for 223? Vague.

MR. SNEDDON: I'll clarify it.

Q. I asked you to look at the documents 223 through 249, and then I asked you to look at 852 and 853, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Are those all transactions that occurred between you, Air Apparent, your company, and MJJ Productions?

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to the information contained on those transactions, is that the information that's downloaded to your computers?

A. Yes.

Q. And you use that for your business purposes?

A. Yes.

Q. And with regard to the exhibits, now getting back to 854 and 855 - all right? --

A. Yeah.
Q. -- they contain a client summary - correct? --
A. Yeah.
Q. -- of all of those transactions from information that was loaded into your computers at or about the time of the transactions?

A. Correct.
MR. SNEDDON: All right. I move they be admitted.
MR. SANGER: And I would object.
MR. SNEDDON: Let me ask one more question. I want to ask one more question, and this may take care of it.
Q. With regard to the Client Summary form - okay? - and the information that's on that form - okay? - does that information -- from that information, are you able, in the due course of your business, to be able to provide invoices to clients to be paid that may be different than the original invoices that were sent out?
A. Yes.
MR. SNEDDON: All right. Now I move they --
THE WITNESS: But not in that form.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I understand that. But that's what the information is used for, correct, the information that's in your computer?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. It's leading; argumentative; statements of counsel.
THE COURT: Overruled.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: I think the point you're trying to make -- and I think you made it, but let's just make sure that the jury understands. What you're --

MR. SANGER: Move to strike comments of counsel, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: The Client Summary form was a form that was produced specifically to respond to the search warrant, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. That form itself is not something that you use ordinarily, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. But the information on the form is all information that you house at your place of business to conduct business, correct? It was just downloaded into a different format?

A. I -- yes.

MR. SANGER: Objection. Well -- I was going to object, compound.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. We'll break it up.

Q. Is it information that you maintain at your place of business to conduct business?

A. Is what, the --

Q. The information on those forms.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that input into your computer?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And is that information --

A. That's the output. That is the output from input.

Q. Well, let's go back. It's a matter of semantics.

A. Okay.

Q. The information on the form is the output?

A. Correct.

Q. The information that went into the computer is the input?

A. Correct.

Q. The information that's input is information that you keep in the normal course of your business?

A. Yes.

Q. It happened to be output into this format for this trial?

A. Yes.

Q. But reflects information that you keep?

A. Yes.

MR. SNEDDON: All right. Now I move that they be admitted.

MR. SANGER: And I object and request either to have an opportunity to voir dire or ask the Court to reserve ruling until cross.

THE COURT: Well, I think he needs to ask him some questions about this, so I'll let you voir dire now, rather than wait. I don't think that's productive.

MR. SANGER: That's fine. That's why I offered. Thank you.

VOIR DIRE EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Mr. Dietz, how are you doing?

A. Good. How are you doing?

Q. I'm doing fine, thank you. On 854 and 855, it's my understanding that you had not seen those document before they were shown to you by the District Attorney; is that correct?

A. Um, before last evening?

Q. Yes.

A. I might have looked at them in preparation for coming up here.

Q. You're not sure?

A. I'm not sure.

Q. And those are not documents that you downloaded from your computer; is that correct?

A. I don't believe I downloaded them. I believe one of my accounting staff did.

Q. Okay. So you're assuming that that was something somebody on your accounting staff did; is that correct?

A. I'm pretty certain that it's something that somebody did on my accounting staff.

Q. You have not had an opportunity to verify whether or not the billing amounts, the invoice amounts to the particular client, are accurate in each regard on those two exhibits; is that correct, sir?

A. Do you mean the invoices to the statement?

Q. Yes. In other words --

A. To the Client Summary that's been presented?

Q. Let me withdraw it. Your question indicates that my question was not clear.

A. All right.

Q. On 854 and 855 --

A. Yeah.

Q. -- these client billing summaries --

A. Yeah.

Q. -- they show invoice amounts to the client, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. You have not had an opportunity to determine whether or not the invoice amounts shown on those documents are accurate in each case; is that correct?

A. Not in each case.

Q. And these documents, as far as you knew, were prepared for the purposes of this litigation; is that right?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: I have no further questions on voir dire, and I object.

THE COURT: Does that material on the printouts on 854, 855, is that a compilation of the material that's in your computer on this particular account?

THE WITNESS: Yes.

THE COURT: All right. Your objection is overruled. They're admitted as a compilation. But after that --

MR. SNEDDON: I should have let you ask the questions, Your Honor. We'd be way ahead of the game.

THE COURT: Well, I've just got to start this break early. That was so painful.

(Laughter.)

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: All right. Mr. Sneddon, go ahead.

Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: Mr. Dietz, I placed in front of you the document that's in evidence. That's 853, all right?

And does that document have or bear an invoice number?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. What is that invoice number?

A. 0143505.

Q. And the amount of money that's indicated on that invoice number is what?

A. $6,644.
Q. For four tickets?

A. Correct.
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to place on the Elmo, Your Honor, if I might have it for just a moment, page six of Exhibit 855.
No, the other one. Back. Back. There.
All right.
Q. The information contained on page six of Exhibit 855 has the date in the far left-hand corner; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And moving down the date to March 1st, 2003, in the second column over, what does the number 143505 refer to?
A. The invoice number.
Q. And with regard --
MR. SANGER: Excuse me.
Q. BY MR. SNEDDON: -- to the far right-hand side of the exhibit at the top, it bears the word "fare," correct, f-a-r-e?
A. Yes.
Q. And with regard to the flight on Invoice No. 143505, you billed $1,661, correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Is the invoice number and trip reflected on page six of the Exhibit 855 the same trip that's represented by the invoice number on 853?
A. You got me there. Where is 855?
Q. 853, the one in your hands. 855 is the one on the board.

A. Okay.
Q. Is that the same trip?
A. That is the same trip, but the invoice was -- the ticket was issued the weekend. It was changed over the weekend, or reservations were cancelled. Flights were issued, e-tickets were issued. Three of the passengers did not travel --
Q. So this --
A. -- on this itinerary.
Q. Okay. So 855 reflects the fact that only one person traveled on that itinerary that's been marked as 853 that's in your hand, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. I couldn't hear you.
A. Correct.
MR. SNEDDON: All right. No further questions.
MR. SANGER: Can I have the exhibits, please?
MR. SNEDDON: I was going to put them back together again. If you want to have them, here.
MR. SANGER: Why don't we keep them out for now, please.
MR. SNEDDON: The rest of them are up there.
MR. SANGER: May I approach to retrieve the exhibits?
THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: I'm just a little concerned, Your Honor. Mr. Sneddon said he was going to put them back together, so I think I will give them to Mr. Sneddon so they get in the right position there.
MR. SNEDDON: They're all in order except for the one that was taken away from me.
MR. SANGER: All right. There it is.

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. All right. First of all, on -- with regard to these summaries you just saw up on the board, particularly you took a look at one of the pages, I think it was page six, and it showed the amount that was billed, and it showed it was billed for one person to travel, right?
A. Yes.
Q. Say a word so the court reporter can get it down.
A. Sorry.
Q. That's okay.
You are assuming that that record was accurately placed into the computer database by whoever entered these things; is that correct?
A. Correct.
Q. All right. And you noted from the other actual tickets that it appeared that three of the tickets, the ones for the Cascios, I believe, were voided?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. There was the Cascios and LaPerruque, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. They were voided. You look at that, and you pretty much figure, well, as far as your company was concerned, the person that traveled on that particular day was Mr. Jackson?

A. I would not necessarily assume that.

Q. Okay. I was going to ask you how you would come to that conclusion. So you're saying you don't know that?

A. Correct.

Q. All right. Now, I want to show you -- you have the book in front of you there --

A. Yeah.

Q. -- with the exhibits in the 200 series. And I'd ask you to turn to Exhibit 223, and I believe that that is a two-page exhibit; is that correct?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. SANGER: All right. And, Your Honor, with the Court's permission, I would like to put the copy I was given of those two pages up on the -- on the board, if I may.

THE COURT: Okay.

MR. SANGER: Or up on the machine.

Q. And I'm going to show you the first page of exhibit -- the 223. And that's already been up there before, but I'll ask you to look at that again. And this appears to be an itinerary that was generated somehow, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That's not your usual format for itineraries that are generated, is it?

A. For itineraries, I believe it is.

Q. Okay. All the other itineraries that you have shown for Exhibits 224 through 249 are generated on letterhead, with a different font, in a different format; isn't that correct?

A. Yes, they're associated with an invoice.

Q. All right. Now, this particular one was not associated with an invoice because it was not sent -- an invoice was not sent for payment on this flight; is that correct?

A. I cannot tell from what I see here.

Q. All right. Do you know whether or not that flight took place?

A. I do not know.

Q. All right. And ordinarily when flights are booked through your agency by MJJ Productions, who is it that contacts you to book the flights?

A. Evvy.

Q. All right. And I'll tell you what. I'm going to ask you to just turn around and look this way, and I'll direct your attention to the board in a second when we put the next one up, but it's hard for everybody to hear you.

A. Okay.

Q. So Evvy Tavasci is ordinarily the person who would be contacting your agency, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And she contacts your agency not just for Mr. Jackson's travel arrangements, but for other employees of MJJ Productions, correct?

A. Definitely.

Q. Okay. And to your knowledge, if some other employee of MJJ Productions needs to travel for some business-related purpose, they would contact her, and she would in turn contact you; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. When you make a flight arrangement for Evvy Tavasci, or at her -- at her request, do you fax a confirmation?

A. I'm not sure. I don't know our daily practices.

Q. You're not the person that actually does it?

A. Not at all.

Q. You just own the place?

A. Yes.

Q. There you go. All right. Well, let me show you this anyway and see if this is -- this is the second page I'm going to put up of this exhibit, and

I'd like you to read the top -- no, I'm kidding.

(Laughter.)

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I'd like you just to look down at the bottom there. There's a TX Result Report.

A. Yes.

Q. Is that a fax report?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Now, I am going to focus in on that a little bit more here. Give you a fair chance.

Do you recognize the telephone or the fax number that that was sent to as being a fax number associated with anybody?

A. I do not.

Q. Okay. And it appears that this fax -- just go a little wider there. The result on the right is that it did not go through. It's "NG," correct?

A. That's what it looks like to me.

Q. And it says, "Redial, all failed," right?

A. That's what it looks like to me.

Q. Now, your business has regular communications -- during this period of time, your business had regular communications with Evvy Tavasci, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you had a good fax number for her, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there any indication in these two documents -- and you can actually look at the documents in front of you, since I just have a copy here.

A. Okay.

Q. If you look at these two documents that are marked as 223, is there any way to determine the time of day on February 5th that these tickets were requested?

A. Requested?

Q. Yes.

A. No. Prior to 11:31.

Q. You know it's prior to 11:31, because that's when the fax first was attempted, the fax that didn't work, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And ordinarily, your people would be pretty prompt if they were setting up a ticket for the same day. And I believe this is a ticket for the same day, right? You can take a look at your --

A. Yes, it looks like that way. Yes, for a flight at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Q. The flight was to depart at two o'clock in the afternoon of February the 5th?

A. Correct.

Q. So if somebody were doing this and faxing it out at 11:51 in the morning, they probably had made the arrangements very shortly before that; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. All right. Now, the fact that on the top of -- you keep looking at what you're looking at there.

A. They didn't necessarily make the reservation at the time they called it in. I mean, on this day. They could have -- they could have made the reservation prior to this date.

Q. Okay.

A. If that's the question.

Q. Well, that's fair enough. You look -- well, you're looking at your copy there. You're on the first page?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. And at the top -- at the top there, it says, "To MJJ Productions," and "Attention: Evvy, Personal and Confidential"?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Does that mean that Evvy was actually the person that called this in?

A. Not necessarily.

Q. Somebody could have called it in and then you would be dealing with Evvy Tavasci at MJJ Productions, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So, in essence, from the records that you have before you, you do not have any idea who called in this request for tickets?

A. Let me clarify. Most of the tickets, to my knowledge, were ordered or confirmed by Evvy.
Q. I understand.
A. Some of them were called in by other employees of MJJ Productions.
Q. Okay.
A. But nothing was done without, typically, getting Evvy's authorization.
Q. So theoretically, before this flight -- before the tickets would actually issue on this flight, you would need to have Evvy's confirmation, correct?
A. Typically, yes.
Q. Maybe Narcisse, who also worked there, correct?
A. I'm not sure if Narcisse is on the -- she definitely is calling some things in. I'm not sure if she's a part of the approval process.
Q. But going back to my question originally, here, you cannot tell who actually called this in. In other words, somebody else -- somebody else entirely different could have called it in?
MR. SNEDDON: I'm going to object. Calls for speculation, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Overruled.
THE WITNESS: I cannot tell who called this in.
Q. BY MR. SANGER: All right. And then if you look at the air fare there, that's economy air fare, $1,180.50 per person, right?

A. Yes.
Q. Does that tend to indicate to you that this was a flight that was scheduled at the last minute?
A. I -- I can't speculate on that. I think it was -- I mean, my gut feeling is yes, but --
Q. All right.
A. I don't know if it was called in last minute.
Q. Okay. I'm going to take that down for a moment.
A. You know, it might have been contemporaneously, only because ticket fares are good for only, you know, for a 24-hour period per se. So the fare is only good for -- for a certain time frame, and then it will move on. So --

Q. Now, you testified to some other documents as to who might have been -- I'm sorry, you testified to other documents as to whose names were on particular tickets or potential tickets. You do not actually know who flew on a particular day; is that correct?
A. I do not.
Q. And, of course, if you -- if somebody booked flights independent of your agency, you would not know about those flights; is that correct?
A. That is correct.

MR. SANGER: Okay. I have no further questions. And I have the exhibits that were handed to me. I'm just going to leave them here.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. SNEDDON:
Q. Mr. Dietz, are you familiar with the regulations that were put in place as a result of 9/11?
A. Yes.
Q. And given the regulations that are in place as a result of 9/11, in your opinion, based upon your experience in the travel industry, that another person cannot travel on a ticket -- that a person cannot travel on a ticket not issued to them without proof of identification?
A. That's my understanding.
MR. SNEDDON: Nothing further.
MR. SANGER: No further questions.
THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.
MR. NICOLA: People call Jeff Schwartz, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Come forward, please.
When you get to the witness stand, please remain standing.
BAILIFF CORTEZ: Right here, sir. Stand up there. Face the clerk.
THE COURT: Face the clerk and raise your right hand. She's right here.

JEFFREY SCHWARTZ

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Jeffrey Schwartz. J-e-f-f-r-e-y, S-c-h-w-a-r-t-z.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good afternoon, sir.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. Would you tell the jury, please, who you're employed with?

A. My employer is Talk America.

Q. And what is Talk America?

A. We're a C-lite local and long-distance Internet telephone provider.

Q. Are you here to testify today as their custodian of records?

A. I am.

MR. NICOLA: May I approach the witness, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: I've placed in front of you Exhibit 458, and I ask you if you recognize that document, and if you do, what is it, please?

A. I do. It's subscriber information from a customer of Talk America, Jay Jackson.

Q. And does that Exhibit 458 also contain toll records for the period of January, February and March of the year 2003?

A. It does.

Q. Is the information contained within that exhibit material that is generated within the regular course and scope of the business of Talk America?

A. It is.

Q. Okay. And is the material that is in there, the information that is in that exhibit, collected at or near the time of the individual toll calls?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And is it relied upon to conduct the business of Talk America?

A. Yes, it is.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, we would offer 458 into evidence at this time.

MR. SANGER: I just have a technical question. There's a different 458 that we were provided. Has that been withdrawn or --

MR. NICOLA: That was never identified.

MR. SANGER: Never provided to the Court?

MR. NICOLA: No.

MR. SANGER: Oh, okay. I'm just now informed by counsel that what was provided to us was not provided to the Court or marked. So....

MR. NICOLA: We used a different exhibit number for this.

MR. SANGER: So based on that, I have no objection.

THE COURT: It's admitted.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor. May I please have "Input No. 4," Your Honor?

Q. Mr. Schwartz, I would just like to go to the first page of the toll records of that exhibit. I'm going to project a few items up onto the screen, and if you could please explain them to the jury once they're up there, okay?

A. Okay.

Q. Let's begin with the headings in the columns entitled A, B, C, D, et cetera. And I'm just going to point with the laser. If you can speak next to that second mike, please, it would be more convenient for you, and everyone will be able to hear you.

Could you tell the jury what's in this section, the first line, Section A, please?

A. That's a number where the call would originate from.

Q. Is that the number that corresponds to the subscriber?

A. Yes, it does.
Q. The customer?
A. Yes, that's correct.
Q. Okay. And is that a mobile phone number or is that a landline?
A. That's a landline.
Q. Do you provide local service for that, or did you during the time period in question?
A. We did not.
Q. Okay. What kind of service did you provide to that particular landline?
A. We provided LD service only.
Q. And LD, for those of us who don't know?
A. Long distance.
Q. Long-distance service.
What's in Column B?
A. Column B is where the call would have terminated.
Q. What does that mean?
A. That means where the receiver would have been picked up on the other end.
Q. The number that was dialed by the person at the 9279 number?
A. That's correct.
Q. Okay. Column C, is that the date of the call?
A. The date and the time.

Q. Do you know whether the time stamp is based on a particular time zone?
A. It is on the time zone where the call originated from.
Q. So if the phone number is registered in Los Angeles, it's going to be in Pacific Coast time, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. The next column seems to indicate a place.
A. That is the origination column date.
Q. Okay.
A. That is the origination which corresponds to the Column A.
Q. Column E appears to be the state, obviously, correct?
A. Correct.

Q. Correct?

A. Correct, I'm sorry.

Q. And of course there's Column H and Column I. What is Column H, please?

A. Column H is actually the duration of the call, from the time the call is received until the call was terminated.

Q. So that's the actual time that the call lasted?

A. Correct.

Q. And what is this over here, Column I?

A. That would be the time that the call was billed for.

Q. Okay. For example, in this column, H, on the second line, a 34-second call results in one minute worth of billing?

A. Correct. That is correct. Common practice in the telecommunications industry.

Q. We've heard that, yes. I'd like to direct your attention, please, to the middle of this chart, if I may. Beginning with the entry on line 25 --

A. Okay.

Q. -- this would be the calling number, Mr. Jackson, correct?

A. That would be the origination of the call for Mr. Jackson, correct.

Q. And this number here, (201) 213-0763, is the number that was placed -- or dialed by whoever was using this phone?

A. Placed and terminated at that number, correct.

Q. Okay. And does this call on Item No. 24 -- excuse me, Item No. 25 indicate the call was a completed call?

A. Yes.

Q. How can you tell that?

A. By the duration of the call.

Q. Over here, the 6:32?

A. That's correct.

Q. Which on the bill appears to be what, seven minutes?

A. What line are we looking at? 25?
Q. Yes, right where the pointer is.
A. That's correct. Well, six minutes and 32 seconds. Billed for seven minutes.
Q. Okay. And that's how Cingular bought AT&T. Okay. Here we go. Line No. 27, same number, to Morristown, New Jersey?
A. Correct.
Q. And that call lasted 15 seconds, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. Now, is that a completed call, if it lasts 15.3 seconds?
A. Yes. Any call -- I'm sorry.
Q. Explain that, please.
A. Well, any call that is entered into the record, if the call was not answered, if there was not an answer on the telephone, there wouldn't be a record for the call because the call would not have terminated. But once the call is received and answered, regardless of one second or 20 seconds, or as far as ten minutes, there would be a record of the call.
Q. Okay. So does that mean that this call was either answered on the other end or it got forwarded to voice mail or something like that?
A. Any one of those possibilities is possible,

correct.
Q. Okay. And this 15 seconds also costs a minute, right?
A. That is correct also.
Q. Going down the list to Item No. 28 on the left, same number was dialed to Morristown, New Jersey, at 11:53?
A. That's correct.
Q. Is this military time?
A. Yes.
Q. So the next call down here at 1320 hours, that's actually 1:20 p.m., correct?
A. That's also correct.
Q. And the 1:20 p.m. call lasted one minute and eight seconds?
A. And billed for two minutes, if that's what you're asking, yes. Yes, it did.

Q. This is my favorite one right here. The next call appears to be the same number, is that correct, on line 30?

A. Yes. That's correct.

Q. And that call was placed at 1324, 1:24 in the afternoon, correct?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. To Morristown, New Jersey, for a period of 2.4 seconds?

A. That's correct.

Q. Immediately thereafter, at 1334 hours, that number was called again, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And that call lasted 3.1 seconds?

A. That's also correct.

Q. And in total, that was two minutes, in telephone company time, right?

A. That's also correct, yes.

Q. You can tell I enjoy this, huh? The remainder of these calls, at 1539 hours, Item 32, Item 33 at 1407 hours, Item 34 at 2036 hours, Item 35 at 2043, and Item 36 at 2048, were all to the same phone number in Morristown, New Jersey, right?

A. That is correct.

Q. And they were all completed calls?

A. That is correct also.

Q. Now, I believe I misspoke and called 1359 1539. So Item 32 is actually a call placed at 1359 or nearly two o'clock in the afternoon, right?

A. That's correct.

Q. Okay. Now, beginning with Item 36 -- 37, excuse me, on February 16th, 2003, at 4:07 in the afternoon, was a call placed to a phone number in Wyckoff, New Jersey?

A. That's correct.

Q. And what does your record reflect that phone number to be?

A. (201) 847-7576.

Q. Now, you have no way of knowing whether the receiving phone call -- excuse me, the number dialed is a cellular phone or a landline, correct?

A. You could gather the information. I do not know. You could gather the information if you had to gather it. You could do that.

Q. By some kind of a cell site?

A. Or a customer service record. You could request what we call a “CSR,” which would be a Customer Service Record, for the receiving call.

Q. How long are those records kept?

A. I believe a record should be kept for eight years, is what a telephone record is required to be kept, so --

Q. Okay. Would the subscriber information on this end of the phone call also tell you whether it's a cell phone or a landline?

A. Yes, it could.

Q. Okay. Now, beginning with Item 37, and continuing down to Item 41, there appear to be four -- four calls in a row between four o'clock in the afternoon and approximately 10:23 the following day, February 17th, to the same number in Wyckoff, New Jersey; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And were those completed calls?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. Proceeding to Item 42, was a different 8119 number called on February 17th of 2003 at 11:24 in the morning?

A. Yes. Different between 41 and 42 is what your -- is the question?

Q. Yes.

A. Yes, different.

Q. Is that the same phone number that was called on the 15th to Morristown, New Jersey?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. And was that a completed phone call?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long did that one last?

A. Item 42?

Q. Yes, please.

A. It looks like 17 minutes and 39 seconds, billed for 18 minutes probably.

Q. There you go. Okay. And the item right below 42 is 43.

A. Right.

Q. Could you tell us about that phone call including the location and duration, please?

A. It looks like it was 26 minutes and 15 seconds to Wyckoff, New Jersey. The (201) 847-7576 number.

Q. Would you turn the page, please? Okay. I'm trying to get this up there. How about we just do it verbally.

Items 45 through 48 -- excuse me, 45 through 47, are they all telephone calls placed from the Jackson residence, Jay Jackson residence, to the 7576 telephone number in Wyckoff, New Jersey?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And were they all completed phone calls?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And did they occur between February 18th of 2003 and February 19th of 2003?

A. Yes, they did.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, I have no further questions of this witness.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Mr. Schwartz, how are you?

A. Pretty well.

Q. Good. I think you need to kind of list more towards that microphone, if you could.

A. This one?

Q. Yes, please.

The phone records that you just testified to are in the name of Jay Jackson; is that correct?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. And there's a billing address in Los Angeles; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Is this a land-based landline phone or is this a mobile phone?

A. It's a land-based phone.

Q. Is it your understanding this is a residence phone?

A. It is. Our company only provides LD service to residence phones. We don't provide any type of cellular service.

Q. So this particular phone number -- let me see if I can put one of these up here.

Your Honor, with the Court's permission, I'll put up page -- I guess it's really just page one. I'll put up my copy of page one and see if this looks like your copy of page one of Exhibit 458.

A. That is.

Q. All right. So you can look at yours, because it's a little hard to read.

A. Okay.

Q. But look up here first just so you can see what I'm pointing at. I'm going to point on the screen at a phone number up there. Is that the phone number that is associated with this account?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And the account is for Jay Jackson, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Now, I'm going to ask you to tell us what the -- well, let me ask --

Your Honor, I need to ask for the actual phone number. It's up there. Is that all right if I do that? I don't want to --

THE COURT: Yes. It was the other information that we were concerned about, the Social Security numbers, that kind of thing.

MR. SANGER: That's fine. Thank you. I just want to make sure.

Q. Can you read that phone number from the exhibit?

A. From your exhibit or my exhibit?

Q. You have the official exhibit. I'm putting up a copy.

A. All right. Yes, I can.

Q. Please read it.

A. (213) 739-9279.

Q. All right. Now, your phone company provided service, provided long-distance service to that number; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Does that mean anytime that the phone was picked up and a call was made on that telephone number ending in 9279, anytime the phone was picked up and a long-distance call was made, it would be automatically billed to your carrier?

A. That's correct.
Q. Is there a way to bill it to some other carrier?
A. No.
Q. All right. So I'm going to put up page two with the Court's permission. And if you can look in the book there so you can actually read it. But I'll also help you to stay closer to the microphone, because we have that microphone issue here.

These records start when?
A. On page one is what we're talking about?
Q. Yeah. I mean the records you just --
A. January 1 of .03.
Q. January 1 of .03. And these appear to be the comprehensive records for that period of time; is that correct?
A. They are, correct.
Q. All right. Now, do you know what carrier this customer, Jay Jackson, had for his regular telephone services?
A. It would -- probably -- I don't know specifically. It would probably be Pac-Bell.
Q. Pac-Bell. Okay. So if we had seen, for instance, on February 4th a Pac-Bell record showing a call from this number to Reseda, two calls to Reseda on February 4th, they were logged in on the Pac-Bell statement, those calls would not necessarily show up here; is that right?
A. I'm not sure I understand your question.
Q. Well, let's do it this way. I'll just ask you to look at yours, because I can't read mine from the thing there.
If you look at the entries --

I'm going to put that page back up again, Your Honor, if I may. Now that I've seen it, I'll do it this way here.
I'll just try to look at the particular entries here. If you look at the entries for -- starting at the top, it starts with 1-1-03, correct?

A. Correct.
Q. And it goes through the month of January. There is a total of 11 calls through January, correct? Well, no, I'm sorry, there's a total of nine calls. It starts on line 3 and goes to line 11, correct?
A. Right.
Q. And --
A. 1-20-03 would be the last call in January.
Q. Okay. And then as far as your carrier is concerned, the next charge you have is on 2-4-03, correct?
A. To Newport News, Virginia.
Q. That is a call to Newport News, Virginia.
A. Talking about line 12, correct?
Q. Line 12, correct.
A. That's correct.
Q. And then on 2-5-03, there's a call to Naples, I suppose.
A. I'm sorry. Yeah. Naples, Florida, correct.
Q. All right. Now, I'm going to show you Exhibit 451, and I'm going to have to ask the clerk for that, if I may, please. Should be a book. May I inquire of the government to see if they have that book there, by any chance? We're looking for an Exhibit 451, which is the Pac-Bell records. You don't have it there at the counsel table is what I was inquiring.

MR. NICOLA: I don't. It was released for us to redact per the Court's instruction. I didn't bring it down with me.
THE COURT: She couldn't hear what you said.
MR. NICOLA: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I took that per the Court's instructions to redact. I haven't brought it back.
THE COURT: Try to blame it on me, will you?
(Laughter.)
THE COURT: That's the book you have.
MR. NICOLA: Yes. It's one of several.
MR. SANGER: Okay. May I confer with counsel, see if we can find a way around this?
THE COURT: Yes.

(Discussion held off the record at counsel table.)

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, with the stipulation of counsel, we'll use my copy and the one that was provided to me of 451, Tab 6. It's already been received into evidence. And that's what we'll use in a second, if I may.

THE COURT: All right. Good.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. Mr. Schwartz, let me ask you, how long have you worked in the phone business?

A. Nine years.

Q. And are you familiar with phone billing records in general?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And how many companies have you worked for in that period of time?

A. Just one.

Q. Which one is that?

A. Talk America.

Q. Has Talk America been in existence all that time?

A. Yes, that's correct.

Q. Oh, okay.

All right. I'm going to show you a phone record that has been admitted into evidence, which is 451, Tab 6, and it's page three of Tab 6. And this was -- I think I can say for your benefit, to orient you, this was provided by a Pac-Bell representative.

And I'll put that up if I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Now, this is -- I'll let you take a look at that for a second and see if you can orient yourself and get a feel for that. That is --

A. It looks like a phone bill.

Q. There you go. All right. And if you look in the upper left-hand corner, the indication is that this phone bill pertains to this phone number, (213) 739-9279.

A. Okay.

Q. See that? Is that the phone number that's referred to on your Exhibit 458, the Talk America exhibit that's in front of you?

A. It is.

Q. I think you have to lean into the microphone.

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Oh, that one works, too. All right. Okay. And I guess what I was referring to is there are a couple of entries here for February the 4th at 6:11 p.m. and then 6:14 p.m., both four-minute calls to a number apparently in Reseda, an (818) number.

And my question to you is, assuming this is the same telephone, why would there be two calls billed to Pacific Bell on that date and another long-distance call to - where did we say? - Newport News billed to Talk America on the same date?

A. Why would there be?

Q. Yeah.

A. So you're asking why a long-distance call would show up on a local phone bill?

Q. Yes.

A. I'm not familiar with the geography of California, but Reseda may be within the latta, and it may not reflect as a long-distance call.

Q. Could you turn around and talk into the mike there, please. You said -- I think everybody heard, but you said “within the latta”?

A. Correct.

Q. And what is a latta? I'm afraid to ask.

A. For lack -- I guess to -- a layman term would be an area code or a geographic area in which the phone call would be billed in, so -- do you want me to explain it or --

Q. Go ahead.

A. A latta is the area where the phone call -- you'd be charged different rates when you went across a latta. And once you cross a latta, it would be considered a long-distance call.

Q. All right. So your local phone bill might have a call that crosses a latta but does not invoke your carrier's business?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. So if I then put 458 back up, and this is page two, the calls that we've just referred to there are not inconsistent with your carrier providing service during that same period of time; is that right?

A. No.

Q. Okay. Thank you. I just have a couple of more questions here. And let me look at this first. Yes, all right. I'm going to put this up and we'll again try to orient ourselves. Okay. You're welcome to look at the actual exhibit in front of you, but I'm going to refer to Line 17, 18, and 19 from February the 11th, 2003. Do you see those?

A. I do.

Q. Okay. And your bill would reflect only outgoing calls, I suppose, unless somebody called collect, correct?

A. Outgoing only, that's correct.

Q. So it appears on February the 11th, 2003, there were three outgoing calls to Santa Barbara; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. And those three calls were at 2322 hours, which would be 22 minutes after eleven o'clock at night, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And the next -- that's to one number. And then the other two calls are to the same number. I didn't say that correctly. The first call is to a -- one number. And the second two calls are to the same number?

A. The first one's to 2300, and the second two are 2724.

Q. And the second two were placed at 11:23 at night and 11:49 at night, correct?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: Let me have just one more second, if I may, Your Honor, please. All right. I have no further questions.

MR. NICOLA: No questions, Your Honor. See you latta.

THE COURT: Call your next witness.

MR. NICOLA: Crystalee Danko.

CRYSTALEE DANKO

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Crystalee Danko. C-r-y-s-t-a-l-e-e; Danko, D-a-n-k-o.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good afternoon, Miss Danko.

A. Good afternoon.

Q. I've placed in front of you Exhibit 454, correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. Do you recognize that exhibit?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Have you had an opportunity to review it and its contents before you came to court today?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. Can you tell the jury, please, what exhibit four fifty --

A. Five.

Q. -- five is? Excuse me.

A. Yes, these are Sprint cell phone records and landline records, including subscriber information and billing information.

Q. And are the contents of Exhibit 455 those which are regularly made in the course of your business?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Would you open up Exhibit 455 in the index, please?

A. Yes.

(Off-the-record discussion held at counsel table.)

MR. NICOLA: Okay. Just want to make sure we're all on the same page.

Q. With respect to Exhibit 455, did you compare the contents of the table of contents with the information contained in the corresponding tabs within the binder?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. Okay.

MR. SANGER: We're not on the same page. We're not on the same page, I'm sorry. There is no -- there's no -- there's no table of contents on this one.
MR. NICOLA: You can use mine.
MR. SANGER: Okay. Thank you. Let's see what you did here.
MR. NICOLA: You ready?
MR. SANGER: Excuse me just one second.
Q. BY MR. NICOLA: I'm sorry.
A. That's okay.
Q. With respect to the information contained in Tab No. 1, is that subscriber information for a firm listed in the table of contents?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Okay. And are there telephone numbers that your records show connected with that firm?
A. Yes.
Q. And are they also on the table of contents?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. Would you read those telephone numbers into the record, please?
A. (702) 362-5118; (702) 222-2500; (702) 365-6940.
Q. If you would turn to Tab 1 of your exhibit, and does the first page of the exhibit list the same name that is under "Subscriber Name" in the table of contents?

A. Yes, it does.
Q. If you would turn to page two. And what is page two?
A. It is listing information, listing address and names for the information on the front page.
Q. Do those names correspond to the 222-2500 number?
A. Yes, they do.

Q. And is one of those names a David LeGrand?
A. Yes, it is.
Q. Would you please turn the page and go to the page marked 3 of 11. Are you there?
A. Yes, I am.
Q. And on page 3 of 11 of what appears to be a February 21, 2003, phone bill, is there a list of telephone numbers which include the 362-5118 and 365-6940 numbers listed in the table of contents?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And do all those telephone numbers belong to the firm of Hale Lane Peek Dennison and Howard?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. If you would turn to Tab 2, please. Now, does Tab 2 contain the subscriber information for a business entitled, “Geragos & Geragos”?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. And is there a telephone number on the table of contents which corresponds to the number you have on record for Geragos & Geragos?

A. Yes.
Q. And what is that number?
A. (213) 864-2100.
Q. If you would turn to page two, the second page, do you find an additional number for the business “Geragos & Geragos”?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is that number?
A. (213) 625-3900.
Q. Turning to Tab No. 3, does Tab No. 3 contain subscriber and billing information for one Vincent Amen?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Is there a cellular number associated with Mr. Amen in your subscriber records?
A. Yes.
Q. And what is that number, please?
A. (201) 838-4345.
Q. If you would turn, please, to Exhibit No. -- excuse me, Tab 4 in Exhibit 455. Do you have in Tab 4 the subscriber information for one Frederic Marc Schaffel?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And do the numbers in the table of contents correspond to the subscriber information in your Sprint records?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Is there an additional telephone number in your subscriber information for Mr. Schaffel that is not on the table of contents? If you would look at page one.

A. Yes, there is.

Q. And what is that number?

A. (818) 876-0029.

Q. And can you tell if that is a cellular number or a landline?

A. I cannot tell by these records.

Q. If you would turn briefly to Exhibit No. 5. Does Exhibit 5 contain the subscriber information for a Maria Farshchian?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. F-a-r-s-h-c-h-i-a-n?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Okay. And does the Tab No. 5 also contain the toll records -- excuse me, the billing for the period of January, February and March of 2003?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Are the records contained within Exhibit 455 records which Sprint regularly relies upon in the normal course and scope of their business?

A. Yes, they are.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, we would offer 455 into evidence at this time, please.

MR. SANGER: On these, we have the objection of relevance as to, in particular, some of the subscribers. It's the same objection that I made previously, that there's no foundation to show relevance. And I think the Court --

THE COURT: I'll admit them, subject, as I did the others, to the District Attorney tying up the relevance.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor. Your Honor, may I publish?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: Mrs. Danko? It's Missus?

A. Yes.

Q. If you would please turn to the billing information for Fred Schaffel and find the page that corresponds to February 7th of 2003, please.

A. Okay.

Q. Have you found it?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. Does the billing for February 7th of 2003 begin on page eight of the February 21 bill?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I'd like to talk to you about a code on your bills which is denoted as "CW."

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. On line -- excuse me. On Line No. 194, there's a "CW" next to the date and time stamp of 10:17 a.m., entitled "Incoming." Can you explain to us how an incoming call -- what an incoming call on your system means, call waiting?

A. Yes. Our subscriber was on the phone. Either he had received an incoming call or he had made an outgoing call. Either way, he was on a phone call. And during that phone call, he received another call. And when he received that second call, he answered it. And that's what indicates here, an incoming call. And a "CW" over there is what indicates the call waiting was used.

Q. Okay. Now, after he received, he or she --

A. Or she.

Q. After the call came in at 10:17 a.m., can you tell whether or not your subscriber stayed on the phone with the call immediately preceding?

A. For one minute or less.

Q. Okay. How can you tell that?

A. Our corporation bills in one-minute increments, and one minute is listed here next to the call waiting indicator.

Q. So this could have actually been a 2.4-second call?

A. Yes.

Q. My question, however, is, if the caller was on the phone to this number at 10:16 a.m., and it lasted for six minutes, did this call actually interrupt this call?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Okay. So the Entry 193, did that continue after the entry on 194?

A. Yes, it did.

Q. If you could please turn to page nine, and I'd like you to begin at line 215. I'll project that.

There appears to be the same call -- excuse me, the same code here a number of times. "CW" and "CW"?

A. That's correct.

Q. There's also this code right here, what does that mean, the "3W"?

A. The "3W" indicates that a three-way call was initiated.

Q. And how does that work on your system?

A. You would need to be on the phone call in the first place, just like the call waiting situation. In this situation, if you look at 2-7 at 3:13 p.m., there was an outgoing call. Our subscriber had made an outgoing call and was on the phone for approximately 14 minutes. During that time frame, at 3:22, our subscriber called out and conferenced in another number.

Q. Let me stop you for a minute. Where are you? Which line item?

A. I'm on line 230.

Q. Would you look at line --

A. Sorry.

Q. -- 218?

A. That's kind of hard for you to see. How about line 217?

Q. Okay. Explain how that came about.

A. Our customer had received a call, an incoming call, at 3 -- at 1:13 p.m., and that lasted for seven minutes. During that call, they made a call out, three-waying into the (702) 222-2520 number.

Q. Okay. Would you expect, in a three-way call, that when the user of Mr. Schaffel's phone dialed the 222-2520 number, that would show as an incoming call on their system, if they record such things?

A. The receiver?
Q. Yes.
A. Yes.
MR. NICOLA: Okay. I think I have no further questions. Thank you.
THE COURT: Counsel?
MR. SANGER: No questions, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Good.
You may step down.
THE WITNESS: Thank you.
THE COURT: Next witness.
MR. NICOLA: Our next witness is Ms. Jennifer Simmons.
//
//

JENNIFER SIMMONS
Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.
THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.
THE WITNESS: Jennifer Simmons. J-e-n-n-i-f-e-r, S-i-m-m-o-n-s.
THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. NICOLA:
Q. Good afternoon, Miss Simmons. I'd like to hand you Exhibit No. 450, and ask if you recognize that, please.
A. Yes.
Q. What is it?
A. It's records of Nextel statements from Tavasci, Evvy; MJJ Productions.
Q. These are records of Nextel Phone Company?
A. Correct.
Q. Do you work for them?
A. Yes, I do.
Q. For how long?
A. Six years.

Q. And are you here today as their custodian of records?

A. Yes.

Q. He's going to adjust your microphone.

A. Oh.

Q. Are you familiar with the contents of Exhibit 450?

A. Yes.

Q. And is there a three-page table of contents?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you gone through the subscriber information, the corresponding telephone numbers that are listed out in that table of contents?

A. Yes.

Q. And have you confirmed the accuracy of the entries on the table of contents?

A. Yes.

Q. With respect to Tab No. 1, does that contain account statements for the telephone numbers (310) 901-7487 and (818) 402-7087 for the billing period of February of 2003?

A. Could you repeat the second number? The first one was correct.

Q. (818) --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- 402-7087?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. I have the same question about those two phone numbers in Tab No. 2, and I ask if the contents of Tab No. 2 are the billing statements for the month of March for those two numbers?

A. Yes.

Q. And the same question with respect to those telephone numbers and the April billing statement. Are those contained within Tab No. 3?

A. Yes.

Q. Is the bill address under Tab No. 1, 2 and 3 - you can look at Tab 1 first - Evelyn Tavasci --

A. Yes.

Q. -- MJJ Productions, P.O. Box 6034, Sherman Oaks, California?

A. Yes.
Q. Is that the same on exhibits -- excuse me, the bills on Tabs 1, 2 and 3?
A. Yes, they are.
Q. With respect to Tab No. 4, can you describe what is in that exhibit, please?
A. This is a subscriber history, a description of each unit. It will show the unit's phone number; the user name of that unit that's listed in our bill; the radio I.D.; an IMSI I.D., which is for our network to identify each unit for billing purposes; a serial number, which is a SIM identification, which tells what piece of equipment it is, as well as the effective date of the activation, and if there was an expiration, meaning a cancellation of that unit, if it cancelled.
It also includes the account number for the 8143 bill, the billing name, and the billing address.
Q. Are there a number of phones -- excuse me, phone numbers registered to an Evelyn Tavasci --
A. Yes.
Q. -- that are listed in the table of contents under Tab No. 4?
A. Yes.
Q. Did you confirm that each one of those telephone numbers corresponds to the information in Tab No. 4?
A. Yes.
Q. And with respect to the billing information, do all the bills appear to go to the address at P.O. Box 6034 --
A. Yes, they do.
Q. -- Sherman Oaks, California?
Are some entitled, "Ms. Evelyn Tavasci, Attention: MJJ Productions"?
A. Yes.
Q. And some are not, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. But they're all going to the P.O. Box at 6034?
A. Yes.
Q. I'd like you to turn, please, to Tab No. 5.
A. Actually, there is no Tab No. 5 in this one.

Q. Oh, I'm sorry.

A. That's all right.

Q. It's actually Tab No. 7. Does Tab No. 7 contain four additional phones registered to an Evelyn Tavasci?

A. Yes.

Q. And are those phone numbers accurately printed on the table of contents on Exhibit 450?

A. Yes.

Q. Are the billing statements attached for the February billing cycle of the year 2003?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. With respect to the final two tabs, No. 8 and No. 9, are the numbers listed in the table of contents and registered to an Evelyn Tavasci contained within the Tabs 8 and 9 for the months of March and April of 2003?

A. For 8 and 9, yes.

Q. And you confirmed both of those --

A. Yes.

Q. -- sections before you came to court?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. Now, with respect to the contents of Exhibit 450, are these all records which record the information contained at or near the time of each of the events recorded?

A. Yes. Yes.

Q. Nextel is just a wireless company, correct?

A. Correct.

Q. And none of these telephones are landlines?

A. Right, they are all wireless.

Q. Okay. And does Nextel rely on the information contained within Exhibit 450 in the regular course of their business?

A. Yes, they do.

MR. NICOLA: We would offer Exhibit 450 into evidence.

MR. SANGER: I have the same objection.

THE COURT: All right. They're admitted, subject to connection later.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor. I have no further questions.

MR. SANGER: I have no questions, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Thank you. Call your next witness.

MR. NICOLA: It's going to be Joe Corral.

JOE J. CORRAL, JR.

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Joe J. Corral, Jr., C-o-r-r-a-l.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. NICOLA:

Q. Good afternoon, Mr. Corral.

A. Afternoon.

Q. I'd like to show you Exhibit 457 and Exhibit 459, please. Do you recognize Exhibit 457?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And what is it, please?

A. It's telephone records that were subpoenaed from Verizon.

Q. Do you work for Verizon?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. For how long?

A. Approximately 27 years.

Q. And are you here to testify as Verizon's custodian of records with respect to the California and I think it's New York records?

A. Yes, I am.

Q. And are the New York records kept in Exhibit 459?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Okay. With respect to Exhibit 457, is there a table of contents with a number of entries corresponding to tabs in the exhibit?

A. Yes, there is.

MR. NICOLA: Would you give us just a moment.

MR. SANGER: Just one second, Your Honor,

please.

THE COURT: Why don't we take our break now.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: Go ahead, Counsel.

MR. NICOLA: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Corral, we just started talking about the two exhibits in front of you. Why don't we start with the New York exhibit. Is that Exhibit 459?

A. Yes.

Q. And contained within that exhibit, is there subscriber information and toll records for Franchesco Cascio?

A. Yes.

Q. Does he have a billing address in New Jersey?

A. Yes.

Q. Are the records contained in Exhibit 459 those kept within the normal course and scope of the business of Verizon?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And is the information contained within that exhibit gathered at or near the time of the event?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And does Verizon rely upon those records to conduct their business?

A. Yes, we do.

MR. NICOLA: Your Honor, we would move 459 into evidence at this time.

MR. SANGER: Same objection. I take it same ruling.

THE COURT: Same ruling, yeah. I'll allow it with the proviso that it's connected up later.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: If you would please turn to Exhibit 457. Are those the records for Verizon California?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And with respect to the ten numbers listed in the table of contents, are those landlines?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. I didn't ask you, but is it a landline in Exhibit 459 as well?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. And listed within Exhibit 457, is there a table of contents that lists five sections where the subscriber is the Neverland Ranch?

A. Yes.

Q. Have you examined the exhibit and all of its contents prior to your testimony today?

A. Yes, I have.

Q. And are the numbers listed for Neverland Ranch which are listed on the table of contents - those telephone numbers appear on your records contained within Tabs 1, 2, 3, 4 and 6 - do those numbers correspond to the information contained within those tabs?

A. Yes, they do.

Q. Do your records show that the numbers listed for Neverland Ranch were active during the period of January through April of 2003 -- excuse me, through March of 2003?

A. Yes, they do.

Q. So those phone lines were active during that period of time?

A. Yes.

Q. If you would turn your attention, please, to the contents of Tab No. 5. Is that subscriber and billing information for one Rudy Provencio?

A. I'm sorry? Could you repeat the question?

Q. Are the contents of Tab No. 5 the subscriber and billing information for Rudy Provencio?

A. Yes.

Q. And is the corresponding telephone number for him (301) 473-5702?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. Okay. I'm going to show you some records, if you could please turn to page 22.

May I publish, Your Honor?

THE COURT: They're admitted, are they? Have these been --

MR. NICOLA: Oh, I'm sorry. The rest of the foundation.

Q. Are the contents of Exhibit 457 records which are kept within the ordinary course and scope of your business?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. And are the entries recorded at or near the times of the events recorded?

A. Yes.

Q. And are they records which Verizon regularly relies upon in the normal course of their business?

A. Yes, they do.

MR. NICOLA: We'd make our proffer at this time, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Are you asking that they be admitted?

MR. NICOLA: May we admit 457 in evidence at this time, Your Honor?

MR. SANGER: Same objection.

THE COURT: All right. Same ruling. It's admitted.

Q. BY MR. NICOLA: If you could turn to Tab 4, page 22 at the bottom, if I could direct your attention to this section of the phone bill. And maybe give us a little interpretation of what all this means, this string of numbers and letters and numbers. Start right here where it says, “0204,” if you could.

A. Yes, it's a record of billable calls, and in this case, the first call on the very top shows the date, which would be “0204,” or February 4th. The call that was made to would be Canoga Park - that's 8151 an abbreviation “CANO” - in California.

Q. Okay.

A. The time right after that is in military time, which would be 2234, which would convert to 10:34 p.m.

Q. Okay.

A. The numbers after that would be the number that was called, which would be (818) 876-0029.

Q. Okay. Is there a header column at the top of this? I'll focus on that so you can see that one more clearly.

A. Yes. It basically states calls billed to (310) 473-5702.

Q. And that corresponds to the subscriber's

phone number, correct?
A. Yes, it does.
Q. Now, this column up here that says "Date," "Call," et cetera, that corresponds with the numbers down this -- these columns here?
A. Yes, they do.
Q. Okay. So when someone wants to read these records, if they want the phone number dialed, they go to the end of this block and count backwards to get to the area code, correct?
A. Yes. Or, on the very top, where it says, "MPA," which basically is the area code, that's where you can start, and in this case it's (818).
MR. NICOLA: Okay. Your Honor, I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?
MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I have no questions.
THE COURT: Thank you.
Call your next witness.
MR. NICOLA: We have no other witnesses, Judge.
THE COURT: Those are all the witnesses for today?
MR. NICOLA: It is.
THE COURT: (To Mr. Sanger) Do you want to go back and cross-examine? We've got some extra time.
(Laughter.)
THE COURT: (To the jury) I'll see you tomorrow morning at 8:30.
Counsel approach for just a moment. I want to talk to you about our schedule for a moment.
(To the jury) You can go ahead.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: All right. Let me just put this on the record. We're going on the record.

The Court was just inquiring of counsel about the schedule tomorrow, and there's anticipated to be three witnesses tomorrow. Some will be outside the presence of the jury and some will be in the presence of the jury.

Do you think it will be a full day tomorrow? Or what's your anticipation?

MR. SNEDDON: I anticipate it will not be, Your Honor. But from there on, it will be.

THE COURT: They can't hear you back there.

Go ahead.

MR. SNEDDON: And I anticipate it will not be a full day tomorrow. I anticipate on Monday and Tuesday we will complete our case, and we will go all the way through without a break until we finish.

THE COURT: And then you now anticipate we'll complete the People's case Tuesday?

MR. SNEDDON: I believe, depending on cross-examination, but we will not have any more breaks. We will have all our ducks in order for those two days.

THE COURT: Then the Court was addressing with counsel Exhibits 809-A and 810-A, which are the transcripts for -- 809-A is the transcript for the CD tape of the phone conversation between Janet Arvizo Jackson and Frank. And 810-A is the transcript of the tape, CD, made during the Los Angeles Protective Services interview.

And they were previously accepted into evidence, and the Court's pulling them from evidence and having them lodged as transcripts, which is the proper procedure when you file a transcript with the Court. Unless the parties stipulate the transcript may go to the jury, the transcript doesn't go to the jury. So we're just correcting that.

The other transcripts all were lodged properly, and those were the only two that we found that were taken into evidence.

MR. SNEDDON: That's fine with us, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Is there anything else to take up before we recess for the day?

MR. SNEDDON: No, sir.
MR. MESEREAU: No, Your Honor.
THE COURT: All right. Court's in recess.
(The proceedings adjourned at 1:49 p.m.)

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning.

COUNSEL AT COUNSEL TABLE: (In unison) Good morning, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Let's see. I understand that the District Attorney has requested the out-of-presence hearing on the foundation on the books.

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: What exhibit number is that?

MR. ZONEN: No. 841 and 842.

THE COURT: All right. I did review those materials, as I had requested. I did get the materials, and I looked at those books and indicated that there must be further foundation.

Are you prepared to go forward with that?

MR. ZONEN: I am, Your Honor. Foundation with regards to where seized, do you mean?

THE COURT: Yes. Connecting --

MR. ZONEN: Yes, we're prepared to do that at this time.

We'll call Detective Rosibel Smith to the stand.

THE COURT: When you get to the witness stand, remain standing and face the clerk.

ROSIBEL FERRUFINO SMITH

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Rosibel, R-o-s-i-b-e-l; Ferrufino, F-e-r-r-u-f-i-n-o; Smith, S-m-i-t-h.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Tell us your current occupation.

A. I'm a police detective for the Los Angeles Police Department currently assigned to the Threat Management Unit of the Detective Support Division.

Q. How long have you been a police officer for the City of Los Angeles?

A. For a little over 20 years.

Q. And your current assignment involves what?

A. Aggravated stalking cases, criminal threats of elected officials, and workplace violence incidents within the City of Los Angeles.

Q. Did you work also as a sex crimes prosecutor -- sex crimes detective?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. For what period of time?

A. For nine years.

Q. All right. Which period of nine years was that?

A. From 1988 to 1997.

Q. Did you have occasion to conduct and execute search warrants during that time?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. In August of 1993, did you participate in the execution of a search warrant at Neverland Ranch in Los Olivos, the County of Santa Barbara?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you seize objects from that residence during that search?

A. Yes.

MR. ZONEN: May I approach the witness?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: I'm going to show you three objects at this time. Exhibits No. 841 and 842; would you take a look at those two objects, please?

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recognize those two books?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Did you seize those two books?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. From where?

A. These books were seized from a cabinet within Michael Jackson's closet in the master bedroom.

Q. All right. Describe his bedroom for us, please.

A. The bedroom is a very large --

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, I think it would be cumulative at this time, wouldn't it?

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Tell us where in his bedroom this particular closet is.

A. It was off to the side of the main bedroom. There were -- actually, there were two closets on either side of the room, and this would have been the side where the Jacuzzi was located.

Q. Now, this is the first floor of his bedroom suite; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. Was there a bed in that bedroom suite?

A. Yes.

Q. I’m going to show you Exhibit No. 856.

A. Okay.

Q. Do you recognize that photograph?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. And that photograph is what?

A. This is a photograph that was taken during the search warrant of Neverland Ranch, and it depicts the file cabinet that the books were seized from.

Q. All right. And is that file cabinet depicted in that photograph?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. How many drawers in that file cabinet?

A. Four.

Q. In which drawer were those two books seized, from which drawer?

A. From the third drawer.

Q. Was that file cabinet locked?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. How were you able to unlock it?

A. We were able to get the key from -- the maid brought the key over to the home and we were able to unlock it at that time.

Q. Do you remember which maid that was?

A. I believe it was Blanca Francia.

Q. Thank you. Is that photograph -- does that photograph accurately depict the subject matter contained within it?

A. Yes, it does.

MR. ZONEN: Move to introduce 856 into evidence.

MR. SANGER: For the purposes of?

MR. ZONEN: For the purposes of this hearing.

MR. SANGER: For this hearing, I have no objection.

THE COURT: Then it’s admitted for the purposes of the hearing.

MR. ZONEN: And I have no further questions as to foundation for this witness.

THE COURT: Cross-examine?

MR. SANGER: May I approach the witness to take a look at the exhibits, please?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: And I have no questions for the purpose of this hearing.

THE COURT: All right.

MR. ZONEN: I would move to introduce into evidence 841, 842 as well.

MR. SANGER: Well, and I suppose that’s the purpose of the hearing, Your Honor. We had previously objected, and -- excuse me one second. We still object on the grounds that this is remote in time. We have books from -- seized in 1993 with regard to events that allegedly occurred in 2003, so the probative value of these books is minimal at best, and it’s outweighed by the confusion to the jury, prejudicial effect, and everything else. There’s got to be some connection in time. It’s just plain stale to bring in something from that far back and try to use it by way of not much more than innuendo at this time. These books were not shown to anybody. There’s no evidence they were shown to anybody. No evidence they were shown to minors. They were locked in a cabinet.

THE COURT: What about the Memro case, People vs. Memro, cited by the prosecution? The only relevance I see would be to the 1108 evidence that was introduced as these books could be viewed as supportive of the other 1108 evidence. That’s what I think their purpose of introducing the books is.

MR. SANGER: Well, I think that is. I mean, I can’t imagine what else it would be. That’s what I’m saying. In other words, there’s no evidence that these books, or any of the other books, the actual books that were seized, many of which, or all of which the Court has allowed from the 2003 time period, there’s no evidence that they were shown to any of the people in this case. Not shown to minors. They weren’t used for any purpose. They’re just shown -- they’re -- I’m sorry. They were offered to show that Mr. Jackson had these materials in his house. I think the Court’s now heard all the testimony. I think it’s very minimal weight even for the 2003 materials.

And so my concern is that while Memro might talk about allowing this kind of evidence to show that the -- that the individual had this evidence in his possession at the time of the offense, this isn’t the time of the offense. This is ten years before. And it’s locked in a file cabinet. So not only do you not have it being used for any untoward purpose, but it’s simply possessed and it’s possessed in a secure fashion, and it’s possessed ten years before any events in this case.

It just seems to me that at some point the Court has to draw the line. And the Court has, of course, been drawing lines throughout this trial as to what has the kind of probative value that should come before the jury and what doesn’t.

And I think that, given the fact that the only materials that there’s any evidence were shown or seen by minors in this case are adult heterosexual magazines that are lawful to possess by adults, the fact that they have attempted to introduce from a giant library of books any book that might have a page or two or five or ten of individuals who are not fully clothed is -- I think it’s just an effort to prejudice the jury. So --

THE COURT: But the Memro case isn’t about showing the material to anybody. It’s about having the material and allowing it to be introduced as evidence that the defendant may have some proclivity to the type of sexually explicit material that we’re dealing with.

So it’s not a question -- you know, one of the issues in this case presently is about whether he showed children that material. But another reason the material’s admissible is that it relates to his state of mind. And that's why they're offering it, according to their proffer.

MR. SANGER: Right. I understand that. And maybe I'm not being clear. But what I'm saying is, yes, there is no showing that it applies to the other purpose. So therefore, it's evidence to show that it's being offered to show that the person who possessed it has an interest in these materials. And if that's all it is, then my position is that because it's ten years old, the probative value is very, very weak.

THE COURT: If it's offered to show that he had that interest at the time of the 1108 allegations, that's the probative value.

MR. SANGER: And --

THE COURT: And you say that's --

MR. SANGER: And I'm saying that's very, very weak.

THE COURT: I just want to be sure we're seeing it the same way, and I think we are. Okay.

MR. SANGER: Yes. And I apologize for not being more direct in answering the Court's questions.

But I guess what I'm saying, at some point you have to draw the line there. In other words, this case really isn't about 1993. 1108 only allows that to come in for really a limited purpose.

THE COURT: True.

MR. SANGER: And now we are embellishing the limited purpose that's already pretty remote. And as the Court acknowledged from the beginning, the real question is whether or not this kind of material is going to be so prejudicial when the jury is considering the strength of the case that was presented as to the charged events. And the strength of the case presented as to the charged events is, I submit, much weaker than it was led to -- the Court was led to believe at the time of the 1108 ruling.

In other words, Your Honor had heard some of the evidence, but you hadn't heard all of the evidence. You've heard more evidence and it's gotten worse for the prosecution. Their current case is very weak. This is just an attempt to further bolster that with what is remote. And I understand the Court's theory, and -- the prosecution's theory, let's put it that way, and the Court's acknowledgement of that theory. And that's my point; it is remote. It's to bolster 1108. And 1108 is to bolster this case. It's too far afield.

THE COURT: Okay. I understand your argument now.

MR. SANGER: Yes. Thank you, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Do you wish to respond, Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: If the Court would like, yes.

Just briefly, Your Honor, the books that were seized in 1993 were seized at a time that was contemporaneous with the evidence presented pursuant to 1108. There were four young boys who were involved in Michael Jackson's life. It's interesting and unique that the maid who was called to open up this file cabinet was, in fact, the mother of one of those victims at that time.

Those books -- one of the books -- both of the books are pictorial essays of adolescent boys. One of them, about 10 percent of the photographs are completely nude boys. And the other one, 90 percent of the photographs are completely nude boys. The possession of those books by Mr. Jackson, we believe, is evidence of a prurient interest in adolescent boys and it's exactly contemporaneous with the state of the evidence as to all of the 1108 witnesses. Therefore, we believe it adequately corroborates within the meaning of People vs. Memro. We'd ask that it be admitted.

THE COURT: All right. I want to think about this issue a little further. I'm not ready to make a decision on that.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, could I -- I know we go back and forth, and I can't really tell who started and if I get a brief rebuttal. But could I be permitted to make one remark?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

When the Court looks at the evidence, I'd ask the Court to look at the inscription in the inside of the first book, which is "Boys Will Be Boys." And I don't know --

THE COURT: Do you want to get the book for me and I'll look at it?

MR. SANGER: Yes. I take it I may approach.

THE COURT: You may, yes. You may retrieve the exhibits. Bring both of them. You might as well bring both of them.

Officer, I think I let you sit there a little longer because I wasn't sure that someone might want to ask you another question. But I don't think that's necessary, so you may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you, sir.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, if we're going to -- if the debate is going to go beyond the location of where the books are seized --

THE COURT: Cross-examination is over. The argument's not there in that area.

Am I missing something?

MR. ZONEN: No. My understanding was the debate was over the location of the books.

THE COURT: No, no. The debate -- I said I wanted further foundation. I wanted to look at the books, and I wanted foundation. There was no debate. That was my request.

MR. ZONEN: That's fine.

THE COURT: Now I have what I want. I still have to make a decision.

MR. ZONEN: That's fine. That's fine.

THE COURT: Now, what was your reference?

MR. SANGER: I don't know which number is which, but the one that's entitled "Boys Will Be Boys."

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Which I think is 841, but I'm not positive.

THE COURT: It's 841.

MR. SANGER: Okay. On 841, if you look at that, it appears to be Mr. Jackson's own inscription, and he says, "Look at the true spirit of happiness and joy in these boys' faces. This is the spirit of boyhood, a life I never had and will always dream of. This is the life I want for my children. M.J.”

The other book, which would be 842, appears to be inscribed by a female fan, and it appears to have been sent to Mr. Jackson by a fan of some sort. That’s the interpretation I take from that inscription.

THE COURT: Well, there is an inscription, “To Michael. From your fan.”

MR. SANGER: Yes.

THE COURT: “Love” -- “XXXOOO” - I was going to interpret that, but I won’t - “Rhonda.” I know what I mean when I put “XXXOOO.”

MR. SANGER: And I have noted Your Honor has never put that on any of your rulings in this case.

(Laughter.)

THE COURT: I can’t top that.

All right. Then that hearing -- at this point, I’m going to take that under submission, and we’ll rule on that before the People rest.

And if you’re about to rest and I haven’t ruled it, tell me. Remind me.

MR. ZONEN: Did you mean rest the case or rest today?

THE COURT: Rest the case.

MR. ZONEN: All right. The witnesses are here today. Are they not going to be testifying today? If they are not, I will go ahead and excuse them.

THE COURT: They can’t hear you.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry.

THE COURT: What witnesses?

MR. ZONEN: The witness who seized the book presumably would be testifying as to where and what she seized in the course of the trial before the jury.

THE COURT: Oh, I see. You need it for that purpose?

MR. ZONEN: Yeah. If we’re not going to do that today, I’ll go ahead and excuse her and have her come back.

THE COURT: No, we can do that today.

MR. ZONEN: We could put her to the end of the witness list.

THE COURT: We could put her to the end of the morning.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, there was one other matter, a motion that was filed by an attorney who represents one of the witnesses to be called today. Did the Court want to address that at this time?

THE COURT: Yes. That’s the Drew witness?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Is that witness present?

MR. ZONEN: The witness is present, out of the courtroom, and counsel is present before you.

MS. SAGER: Good morning, Your Honor. Kelli Sager on behalf of Ian Drew, a nonparty reporter.

THE COURT: Good morning.

MS. SAGER: We had filed a short memorandum with the Court concerning Mr. Drew’s testimony largely to give the Court some guidance and background, which I understand has already come up once in this case, as to the scope of the reporter’s privilege under the California Constitution and the First Amendment and the common law.

Mr. Drew is being called by the prosecution, as I understand it from Mr. Zonen, to repeat information that has been published by him in a television broadcast. And I assume that Mr. Zonen still intends to limit his questioning to the published material. It nonetheless raises an issue as to cross-examination. And in the Foss case, which we cited in our papers, if it appears that the defendant’s cross-examination would intrude into privileged areas, then it’s advised that the Court address that at the outset, because it may be that if the defendant is not going to be permitted to cross-examine into those areas, that the original testimony should not be permitted either.

In either case, I just wanted to make sure the Court was apprised that the witness does intend to assert his rights as to unpublished information or confidential source information and to ask the Court’s permission to be making objections on his behalf.

THE COURT: Well, you have my permission to do that.

MS. SAGER: Thank you.

THE COURT: You know, I thought your points and authorities were well done and complete.

One of the things that you mentioned in your points and authorities was that there’s a preference to have a hearing outside the presence of the jury before the testimony is proffered to the jury so the Court can determine whether or not the evidence should be allowed.

MS. SAGER: That’s correct, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Based on the right of the defense to cross-examine.

Mr. Mesereau, you wish to say --

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, please, Your Honor.

Your Honor, as the Court knows, the witness’s name came up during the testimony of --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Would someone create a seat there so she doesn’t have to stand.

MS. SAGER: Thank you. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: This witness’s name came up during the testimony yesterday of Debbie Rowe.

THE COURT: Right.

MR. MESEREAU: And she did testify, among other things, that he had actually interviewed her at Schaffel’s house during the subject interview that was talked about yesterday.

This witness was secretly recorded on a number of occasions by Debbie Rowe at the behest of the sheriffs and he also gave a police interview where he talked extensively about various aspects of the case, including Mr. Schaffel and others.

Clearly, he had a career motive in doing this.

Clearly, there were financial considerations involved, considerations involving advancing his career, and clearly he wanted to be involved in this case. If you look at the secretly recorded conversations, you can gather a lot of his motives to do what he's doing.

And to permit him to testify as a prosecution witness and not allow the defense to go into those types of incentives to do various things, say various things, appear in various places, would be highly prejudicial to the defense. So allowing him to just hide behind a journalistic privilege every time his motives and veracity are impeached or contradicted or questioned would be prejudicial to us.

He put himself right in the middle of this investigation intentionally, willingly, and knowingly. Met with Mr. Klapakis for an interview, talked about his knowledge of various individuals and various occurrences in the case as he understood them. Was recorded on a number of occasions by the sheriffs because they thought he had information of significance, conducted the interview. How can they possibly, if he gets caught in a problem, say journalistic privilege? I think that would be highly inappropriate and very prejudicial to the defense.

Thank you, Your Honor.

MS. SAGER: Your Honor, if I could just briefly respond to Mr. Mesereau's comments.

Under Penal Code Section 632, I believe any recordings of Mr. Drew that were done without his knowledge would not be admissible for any purpose. As a reporter, he's engaged in conversations with a great number of people, including Miss Rowe, as she testified to, in the course and scope of his duties as a reporter. The fact that those conversations may have been secretly recorded without his permission, without his knowledge, cannot waive any privilege that he has as a journalist as to information he's attempting to gather.

He's reported on Mr. Jackson. He did an interview with Miss Rowe, which everyone has a tape of. And as I understand it, the issue about that interview has already been discussed, there have been other witnesses who have testified, and the tape of the entire interview is available. So there's nothing Mr. Drew can add to that equation.

As to his -- what Mr. Mesereau described as an interview with detectives, when detectives showed up, as I understand it, at Mr. Drew's office to subpoena him, he was asked about statements that he had made on television, and again referred to those statements that he had already made on television, the published statements.

He didn't have an attorney. He didn't have anyone advising him of his rights at that point, and again, I don't think that could be viewed as a knowing waiver of his rights. Nor is that a publication within the meaning of Article I, Section 2(b) of the California Constitution. He was not disseminating information to the public in any conversation he had with the detective who was serving him with a subpoena.

As I understand it, there's one statement that the prosecution intends to ask Mr. Drew about, and that was in this particular television broadcast concerning a conversation that he had with one of Mr. Jackson's -- I don't know how you would describe him, someone that Mr. Jackson knew. That person is certainly a witness who could testify as to that.

As I understand, it's about whether the family at issue left the ranch at some point in the middle of the night. I don't believe that's disputed. So it's difficult for me to see what Mr. Drew can add to these proceedings in any case, and certainly nothing that would justify invading his privilege by opening him up to questions about conversations he had during the course and scope of his news-gathering activities.

THE COURT: Mr. Zonen?

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, we intend to limit our inquiry to information that was disclosed by Mr. Drew on national television. It's published information, therefore it's not protected by the shield law.

THE COURT: Well, but that's not the issue, is it? I mean, that --

MR. ZONEN: That's one issue. The next issue is the question of whether or not cross-examination --

THE COURT: Right.

MR. ZONEN: -- is important for impeachment. We believe that the information that we are going to be asking him is about a statement made by another person, one of the unindicted co-conspirators, to the effect that the Arvizo family had fled from Neverland, and therefore Mr. Drew would not be able to conduct an interview that he expected to do.

I don't know that the content of that information requires an extensive cross-examination into collateral areas. I think it can be adequately cross-examined as to that statement alone without going too far beyond the published information.

THE COURT: Well, I think what we'll do is you can call your witness, you can ask him the questions, and then I'll understand what you're going to ask him in front of the jury and what his answers are going to be --

MR. ZONEN: Okay.

THE COURT: -- and then we'll see what --

MR. ZONEN: Shall we do that at this time?

THE COURT: -- what Mr. Mesereau wants to do. Yesterday he filed a motion to prevent someone from testifying and later withdrew it, so....

MR. ZONEN: He might wish to do that today.

THE COURT: I don't know. Call your witness.

MR. ZONEN: Did you wish to do that outside the presence of the jury at this time?

THE COURT: Absolutely. That's the point.

MR. ZONEN: Yes. We're prepared to do that. Would you call Mr. Drew down, please.

MS. SAGER: As I believe the District Attorney knows, Mr. Drew is not in the courthouse. He was told to be here at ten o'clock.

THE COURT: Oh, okay.

MS. SAGER: I was asked by Mr. Zonen's office last night to show up early in case the Court wanted to hear argument on that.

THE COURT: That's not a problem. We can do the hearing later.

MS. SAGER: Okay. I will go outside, though, and call him, Your Honor, and tell him to come directly to the courthouse, and he'll be available whenever the Court can then hear him.

THE COURT: If he's going to be here at 10:00, that's fine.

MR. ZONEN: I don't know that our other witness will necessarily go to ten o'clock. If we're not going to be dealing with --

THE COURT: I thought you were going to try to get other witnesses for me.

MR. ZONEN: We are not able to do that. The witnesses we had I think were the ones that we identified yesterday.

THE COURT: But I was told you would attempt to get other witnesses to fill the day. Because I didn't give you permission for a short day today, or no day.

MR. ZONEN: I apologize to the Court. We are not able to do that.

THE COURT: Go ahead and call your client, please.

MS. SAGER: I'll do that. Thank you, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: We have a witness who's ready to proceed at this time.

THE COURT: All right. You can bring in the jury.

(The following proceedings were held in open court in the presence and hearing of the jury:)

THE COURT: Good morning again.

THE JURY: (In unison) Good morning.

THE COURT: It's getting to be a habit, isn't it?

Counsel, call your next witness.

MR. ZONEN: We'll call Detective Craig Bonner to the stand.

THE COURT: I believe you were already sworn.

You may be seated.

CRAIG BONNER

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Detective, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. You've already testified previously, I believe, on a couple of occasions already. Detective, you've already testified previously on a couple occasions. There's an exhibit that's in front of you. Could you take that exhibit, please? And is that Exhibit 827?

A. Yes, it is.

Q. And does that correspond to the Sheriff's No. 817?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Do you recognize that exhibit?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. What is that exhibit?

A. It is an audio cassette tape which contains a recording of Janet Arvizo and Frank Tyson, or Cascio.

Q. This is a telephone conversation; is that correct?

A. It appears to be, yes.

Q. Was that tape-recording delivered to a lab in Los Angeles County?

A. Yes, it was.

Q. And what lab was that?

A. The Aerospace Corporation and/or the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center.

Q. The purpose for delivering that tape to that lab was what?

A. To have them analyze it, and to determine if there were any breaks or stops that occurred within that recording.

Q. Who was it who delivered that tape to the lab?

A. I did.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. The National Law Enforcement Technology and -- whatever it was --

A. Corrections and Technology.

Q. Corrections and Technology. This is actually a private company, is that right?

A. It is.

Q. And they market their services to law enforcement; is that correct?

A. I believe they have a grant through the government that they get paid to assist law enforcement.

Q. Okay. It’s a private company, but they market their services to law enforcement?

MR. ZONEN: Objection; asked and answered.

MR. SANGER: Asked, but not answered.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

THE WITNESS: I don’t believe they market their services, no.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: They let you know that they exist and they’re available to do work; is that correct?

A. That’s correct, yes.

Q. They get paid by doing the work?

A. Not by us, no.

Q. They get paid by this grant?

A. I believe so, correct.

Q. That’s your understanding? All right. Now, did you seize this particular item that you took down?

A. No, I did not.

Q. So you took it out of the evidence locker?

A. Correct.

Q. At the sheriff’s department?

A. Correct.
Q. And you delivered it down to the -- to the lab; is that right?
A. Yes.
Q. And then you stayed for a while while some work was done; is that correct?
A. That is correct.
Q. Not all the work was done while you were there?
A. No.
Q. You left it?
A. Left the item?
Q. Yes.
A. No.
Q. What did you do?
A. I remained with this item until they had brought it into their system, and then I retained this item and brought it back to the sheriff’s department.
Q. All right. So they made a copy to do the rest of their work?

A. They brought it in digitally. I’m not real savvy on it, but basically they played it into their system, which brought it into a computer, and then they utilized that material that was saved onto the computer.
Q. Okay. In other words, that is an audiotape. That’s a regular cassette, little reel-to-reel cassette?
A. Correct.
Q. Magnetic tape, correct?
A. Correct.
Q. And while you were there, they did some analysis of the actual tape?
A. Correct.
Q. And then while you were there, they copied it into digital format of some sort?
A. Correct.
Q. And then you took the actual tape and you brought it back?
A. Yes.
Q. All right. Now, what is your understanding as to the source of the original tape?

A. This tape came from the office of Brad Miller.

Q. Okay. In other words, as one of the detectives working on the case, you are familiar with the source of various items of evidence; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And that was something that was seized during the search warrant execution at Brad Miller’s office, correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. In other words, it was not offered to law enforcement as a piece of evidence that was helpful to Mr. Miller or helpful to Mr. Jackson, or helpful to anybody; is that correct?

MR. ZONEN: I’m going to object as beyond the scope of the direct examination and beyond the scope of his personal knowledge. And relevance.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: Okay. It was something that was -- that was simply seized during a surprise search, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection. Irrelevant; beyond the scope of his knowledge.

MR. SANGER: Well, that’s the question.

THE COURT: Sustained. Argumentative.

MR. SANGER: All right. It’s still my last question. No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions. I will call Dr. Harry Koons to the stand.

THE COURT: You may step down. Remain standing, raise your right hand, and face the clerk here.

HARRY KOONS

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: My name is Harry Koons, K-o-o-n-s.

THE CLERK: Thank you.
MR. ZONEN: May I proceed?
THE COURT: Yes.

DIRECT EXAMINATION
BY MR. ZONEN:
Q. Dr. Koons, good morning.
A. Good morning.
Q. What is your current occupation?
A. I'm a scientist.
Q. You're a scientist in what capacity?
A. I'm a scientist at The Aerospace Corporation in El Segundo, California. It's the Space Science Applications Laboratory. And our company is a -- well, it hosts an FFRDC, which is a federally funded research and development center, which primarily assists the Air Force and national security agencies in their space programs.
Q. All right. Do you also have a second company titled "The National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center"?

A. Yes. That's also hosted by The Aerospace Corporation and it's funded by the National Institute of Justice.
Q. Let's start with the first one, The Aerospace Corporation. What is your position there with The Aerospace Corporation?
A. I'm a distinguished scientist.
Q. What kind of work do you do with the Aerospace Corporation?
A. On the Air Force side, I have flown instruments on spacecraft to make measurements in the magnetosphere of what we call plasma waves, and I'm also an expert on the space hazards to spacecraft.
Q. All right. I think the other microphone is on as well.
A. Shall I just talk in the middle?
Q. You need to be close to one or the other, but whichever is more comfortable.
A. Either one is okay.
Q. All right. What is your education, your qualifications, please?

A. I have a bachelor’s of science in physics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and a Ph.D. in geophysics also from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Q. How long have you worked with The Aerospace Corporation?

A. I joined them right out of graduate school in 1968.

Q. Give us a sense of what type of work you do for Aerospace Corporation. How do you spend your day?

A. I have a million hats. I spend most of my time either -- working on scientific papers. I spend 20 percent of my time on the forensics audio. I spend about 40 percent of my time working with the program offices on trying to help them with their problems on their space programs. There’s almost no way I spend a given day.

Q. Now let’s turn to the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center. Tell us what that is and how that happens to be associated with The Aerospace Corporation.

A. It began in 1995. There was a -- an initiative by the National Institute of Justice to find a way of helping local law enforcement agencies in their work. They recognized that a lot of agencies didn’t have a lot of funding for detailed forensics work, and so they issued a proposal for organizations with more capabilities to help them. And so Aerospace responded with a proposal, and out of that was formed the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center at Aerospace.

Q. And what kind of work do you do with the National Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center?

A. I personally am responsible for the audio forensics work.

Q. Is there other forms -- are there other forms of forensic work that are done by that center as well?

A. Yes. Video forensics and also crime scene analysis. We have a large capability in our support for the Air Force, electron microscopes and very sensitive equipment that can be used to analyze materials. And so it’s essentially a matrix organization that if the Law Enforcement Center needs something in the laboratories, they go to the person in the laboratories. The video and the audio efforts have been more or less continuous since its inception.

Q. All right. What is it that you do with regard to audiotapes?

A. Primarily what we do is we enhance the audio to allow for a transcription. Most people would call this clarifying the audio.

We also, from time to time, are asked to look at the tapes for special reasons. Some of them, for example, are to identify the number of gunshot wounds -- or not “wounds.” Gunshots that were fired at a scene that was recorded. At other times to try to identify the number of people that were present during the recording. We’ve been asked to try to determine where a recording was made based upon background sounds that were heard on the tape.

Q. All right. Are you able to make determinations as to whether a tape is a first-generation or second-generation tape? Is that something that can be done?

A. We can -- we can do that, in some cases, by looking at the content of the -- of the tape, yes.

Q. Are you able to determine whether there are breaks in a tape?

A. Yes. Normally we can determine if there are breaks in the audio in the tape.

Q. Are you able to determine, on occasion, whether a tape is a compilation of prior other multiple tapes?

A. Normally we can do that, yes.

Q. How do you do those things?

A. Each one is done in a different way. Let’s start at the back and work forward.

If you have a compilation of a multiple of tapes, you’ll have different background audio on the different segments. And, for instance, if one segment, at the extreme, if it was made in a restaurant, and another section was made out on a street with passing cars, and another section was made in a home with a television on, that you can look at the backgrounds of each of these tapes and identify the background in the ways that you see, and you can see where these different sections are on the tape.

You ask -- what was the second one?

Q. The second one was breaks in a tape.

A. Breaks. Okay. For breaks in a tape, you again look at the background, and when you have a -- a discontinuity, or a break in the tape, you’ll normally have -- the tape will start and stop, start up again, stop, start up again, and you can see signatures of this on the waveforms on the tape.

You will also find lines in the background. By “line,” I mean a constant frequency. For instance, one line which appears on many tapes is a power line at 60 hertz, and if that power line is discontinuous you could say that the tape was started and stopped when the power line disappears and reappears.

Q. I think the first question that was asked to you was multiple generations of tapes.

A. Yeah, multiple generation is more difficult.

Normally, with the capabilities we have, when a tape is started and played, and stopped and started again, that -- there’s an erase head on the tape-recorder, and the erase head erases the material that was on the tape prior to that.

Now, some laboratories have the capability of going in and examining the material of the tape itself, and they may be able to identify if the tape was started and stopped. We can only look at the content of the tape. And normally what we would do when we’re asked a question like that is we would look at the beginning of the tape and we would look at the end of the tape and see if there’s material which is not contiguous with the material in the middle of the tape, and also look at the end of the tape to see whether, if the present material that was recorded, let’s say, is recorded on only one half of the tape. And then if the tape was previously used there would still be material on the second half of the tape, unless somebody recorded -- erased it all the way to the end.

Q. Doctor, when did you begin doing forensic analysis of audiotapes?
A. 1995.
Q. How many do you think you have done since that time?
A. About 200 cases, give or take 10 or 20.
Q. Have you ever had occasion to testify in court as to your analysis of those tapes?
A. No, I haven’t. I’ve been subpoenaed twice before and I have not testified in court.
Q. This is your first occasion?
A. Yes.
Q. I hope you’re comfortable this morning.
A. I’m fine.

Q. Doctor, did you have an occasion to analyze a tape that was presented to you by Detective Craig Bonner from the Santa Barbara County Sheriff’s Office?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. Could you tell us approximately when that was?
A. They brought the tape to us on June 1st of last year. And according to our logbook, which I may want to refer to later -- but according to our logbook, they stayed with us while we digitized the tape. Digitizing means taking a copy of the audio from the tape and putting it onto a computer. That was done by a technician and I was standing there while he did that. And then we gave the tape back to Craig Bonner. We went up to my office and we looked at it for a period of time. I don’t remember how long it was. There was another gentleman with him, I believe, and then they left. And about a month later, I went through and did a detailed analysis of the tape and wrote a letter, which I sent to him at the time.
Q. All right. The work that you do is off the digital copy of that tape, then; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.

Q. And the process of making a digital copy of a tape, does that in any way transform the original tape?

A. No.

Q. It wouldn’t affect the integrity of the content of that tape?

A. No. There would be no effect on the tape at all.

Q. What was your assignment in this case as to the digital copy of that tape? What was your assignment?

A. Our assignment was to determine if there were any breaks in the audio.

Q. Just for purposes of clarity to make sure that we’re on the same topic, did you have an opportunity to actually listen to the tape as well?

A. Yes, partly. We were listening to the tape, but partly we were looking at pictures of the image of the audio on the screen. I have listened to about 90 percent of the tape.

Q. Is this a tape of what appears to be a telephone conversation between two people, predominantly two people?

A. Okay. Two people.

Q. An adult woman and an adult man and a child?

A. And a child, yes. Three people.

Q. Predominantly the adult woman and the adult child -- the adult man?

A. That’s right.

Q. All right. Doctor, what did you do with this tape? The copy, that is. What were you seeking to do and what did you do?

A. Well, the primary thing we were asked to do was to determine if there were any breaks in the audio. And the first thing that I did was I -- I put an image of the audio on the screen and just looked at the entire tape at one time. And my impression was that it was relatively continuous. And -- because the background appeared to be about the same level from the beginning of the tape to the end. There’s 22 minutes of audio on the tape. It’s a 30-minute tape.

And then I went in and I started at the beginning and I looked at the segments which were one minute long. And the first thing I noticed was that, I think it was 13 seconds or so into the tape, there appeared to be a discontinuity. And so I blew that up and I took a look at it, and there was, in fact, a gap at that time period.

And so having seen one, then I sort of had some idea what I should look for if there were others like that one. And so I moved along through the tape, and I identified a number of these -- these gaps. The gaps are very short on the tape. They're about two seconds each.

Q. All right. Tell us what you were able to determine with regards to gaps in the tape.

A. We found 34 gaps. And they had a characteristic signature. And the signature was 8199 very close to the same as when the tape was first started. And by this I mean that if you start an audiotape, there are wheels that take up reel on the feed reel that have to turn, and it takes a little while to get those to turn, "a little while" being a second or so. And during that time period when the amplifier is trying to put a voltage onto that tape, it makes a little signature that looks a little bit like this, and it's a couple tenths of a second long.

And if you look at the beginning of the tape, you get that signature very clearly the first time it's turned on. There was no audio in front of it and you see that signature.

And what I found, then, was a very similar circumstance, not identical each time. But each time there was a gap, there was a signature that looked just like that one at the beginning.

Q. What would cause a gap in a tape?

A. Can I refer to my notes on this?

Q. Yes. Please, go ahead.

A. At the time I was analyzing it, I made a note of what I thought might be causing these. And instead of trying to remember it, I'd like to see if I can find it in here and --

Q. Go ahead and take a look and read it, but don't read it out loud.

A. Yeah. Okay. It was July 2nd, and I made a note --

MR. SANGER: I'm going to object. There's no question pending.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What I'd like you to do is go ahead and read the notes that you have made quietly to yourself.

A. To myself.

MR. SANGER: And then after he does that, I would like to see what notes he's referring to.

MR. ZONEN: I have no objection.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. SANGER: May I approach, Your Honor? Hang on, one second. Your Honor, could we approach for a moment, please?

THE COURT: Yes.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: I'm going to take a brief recess to give counsel an opportunity to look at the notes before further examination, so I'll see you in a few minutes.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: All right, Counsel.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Dr. Koons, we left off, I was asking some questions about breaks in this --

BAILIFF CORTEZ: Your microphone.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Dr. Koons, when we left off, I was asking you some questions about the breaks in this tape, and I think you proffered the opinion that there were 34 breaks; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. And then I had asked you what types of things or occurrences could cause breaks of such a nature, and you had referred to some notes and you've read some notes.

A. Yes.

Q. All right. Are you prepared at this time to answer that question?

A. Yes, I am.

I hope I can remember all four of them.

I identified four things that could cause breaks such as this. So one is the "pause" button on the tape-recorder. If you press the "pause" button and you press it again to restart it, you would get a break in the tape.

Another would be a press-to-talk telephone that, I don't know if -- you may not be familiar with these in the home context very often, but in a classified context, you have a telephone with a button on the handle, and the only time you can hear a person speak is when the button is pressed.

Another is the "mute" button on the telephone would cause the audio to go out, and then, when you unmute it, to come back in again.

And I don't remember the fourth one.

Q. All right. Would it help to look at your notes again to see what it was?

A. Yeah, probably.

Oh, a voice-activated line; that if you have a voice activation on your recorder, the recorder will stop and start. It will start whenever it hears a loud -- a signal such as a person beginning to talk, and it will stop when a person stops talking.

Q. Would that tend to explain breaks in a first-generation tape?

A. Yes, it would.

Q. Would it explain breaks in a second-generation tape?

A. No. It really can’t do that, because a second-generation tape is not made with a microphone. It’s made by copying or using wires from one tape-recorder to -- the source to the destination tape-recorder.

Q. Let’s talk about the first generation, then, if we could. Is it your understanding or does it appear that this is a tape-recording of a telephone conversation?

A. Yes, I believe it is.

Q. How do people generally tape-record telephone conversations?

MR. SANGER: Objection. Calls for speculation; no foundation.

MR. ZONEN: I’m not asking this specific time, but simply how is it done that telephone conversations are taped.

THE COURT: The foundation is sustained.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Do you know how people tape-record telephone conversations?

A. Yes, there are two basic ways to do it.

MR. SANGER: I’m going to move to strike as nonresponsive beyond “Yes.”

THE COURT: Stricken.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: You said, “Yes.”

A. Yes.

Q. During the course of the work that you have done over the last ten years, have you, in fact, tape-recorded telephone conversations?

A. Yes.

Q. And have you examined conversations that have been tape-recorded?

A. Yes.

Q. And does your study require that you look into the manner in which the conversations are tape-recorded as well?

A. Yes.
Q. And would that be important to your analysis?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. What are the ways in which telephone conversations are tape-recorded?
A. There are two ways. One, you place a small microphone on the handset. And that's usually not a very good way, because it's not strongly coupled into the conversation on the phone.
The second is to put a sensor in-line with the handset. You have these modular plugs that plug into a modern handset, and you have a device that you plug in-line there, and so it picks up the conversation going in both directions very well.
Q. Now, can you tell by listening to a tape-recorded conversation what method was used to tape-record that conversation?
A. Yes.
Q. Do you have a sense of what method was used in this case?
A. I believe it was the in-line sensor.
Q. Why is that?
A. Because of the quality. It had a good pickup at both ends of the conversation.
Q. Now, when we talk about first-generation or second-generation tape, what are we talking about?
A. A first-generation tape is called a virgin 8210 tape, where the first audio is recorded onto the tape. A second-generation tape is one of two things. It's either an overrecording of that one, or it's taking the material on the first tape and recording it onto a second tape.

Q. All right. Now, can you tell whether this recording is a first- or second-generation tape or subsequent to that?
A. There's -- there's some evidence that it's a second-generation tape.
Q. And what is the evidence that you saw?
A. The evidence is the first piece of recording, the first 13 seconds or so of recording, is very different than all of the other, which suggested that the -- that the tape had been used for something else and the second recording started later in the tape.

Q. Can you tell whether or not this is a tape that is a compilation of multiple conversations?

A. I personally cannot determine that.

Q. It could be or could not be?

A. It could be or could not be.

Q. All right. Now, is it possible that this could be a tape-recording of a single conversation but where pieces have been taken out, portions of the conversation deleted?

A. If it’s a second-generation tape, yes. If it’s a first-generation tape, probably not.

Q. Okay. Let’s -- go ahead and explain that to us. Let’s see, what’s the first probability, or the first possibility? The first-generation tape.

A. Okay. If it’s --

Q. Tell us what you mean when you say “probably not” in terms of first generation.

A. Okay. If it’s a --

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object to this line of questioning as no foundation.

THE COURT: Overruled.

You may answer.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead.

A. If it’s a first-generation tape, you can usually identify it by the length of the -- of the pauses. For example, if you press the “pause” and then you go some distance, it usually takes longer than on a second-generation tape. And also, you can tell by the context of the material that’s recorded on the tape where the breaks occur in it.

Q. All right. In this particular case, you suggested a greater likelihood of second generation?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And then we were asking some questions -- I was asking some questions about pauses on a second-generation tape and whether or not this could be simply copied from another tape. Explain how you would have those types of breaks then, please.

A. The -- the way that you -- you make a high-quality second-generation tape with material from other tapes, if that’s what you mean --

Q. Yes.
A. -- is you would pick the section that you want to record, you would turn on the two tapes and record a section, and then you would pause the one you’re recording onto.
And then you would go to either another tape or another place on the first tape, and you would set it up so that you’re about to record it again, and you begin it a little ahead of time, and you hit the “pause” button to start it recording again, and you can record a second recording onto the tape.
You can take any number of tapes, then, and put them onto one tape that way.
Q. What you effectively can do, then, is take portions of an original tape and put it on a second tape, and leave out whatever portions you wish to leave out?
A. That’s correct.
Q. Do you have any way of knowing whether the tape you analyzed was, in fact, the product of that kind of conduct?
A. Not really.
Q. I --
A. No.
Q. All right. You have no way -- let me reask

that question.
A. From the analysis that we do, you cannot determine that.
Q. Okay.
A. You would have to use the context to determine that.
Q. All right. In other words, reading the content of it?
A. Yes. Now, can I elaborate?
Q. Yes, please.
MR. SANGER: I’m going to object. There’s no question pending and there’s no foundation based on what was just said.
THE COURT: Foundation is -- no question pending is sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: All right. Explain to me exactly what the limitations are in terms of what you're able to do.

A. We are able to -- to look at the audio in several formats on the computer screen. And normally what we look for for breaks are discontinuities in the background or discontinuities in the amplitude.

In this case, we found -- we found both, but the -- the type is such that it could be generated by either a "pause" button on a -- going to a second-generation tape or possibly a "pause" button on a first-generation tape.

Q. All right.

A. It's only the context of the conversation would tell you which it is.

Q. You can't tell whether, again, this is first generation or second generation, other than the clues that you have already testified to?

A. That's correct.

Q. All right. Doctor, I'd like you to look at Exhibits No. 857 and 858 that are before you. Tell us what those two documents are.

A. May I start with the second one?

Q. 858?

A. Yeah.

Q. Yes. Please go ahead.

A. 858 is a record of the amplitude of the signal from the tape for 1.8 seconds beginning at two minutes and about 37 seconds into the tape. And in the center of the picture, it shows a section where, first of all, the level goes almost to zero, and then it's at a very low level. Then there's a transient at the turn-on and then it's followed by speech. So there's speech at the beginning, speech at the end, and the transient in the middle is what I have been calling a break.

Q. And the other exhibit, 857, what is that?

A. 857 is the same time period with a different depiction. This shows what we call an audiogram, or a spectrogram, and it shows the intensity as a function of frequency and then with time running along the horizontal or X axis, and it shows in the background the same break as a lightening of the signal. So this is two different ways of looking at a break at exactly the same time period on the tape.

Q. How did you generate those two exhibits?

A. We use a software tool called Adobe Audition, and that is actually listed up on the -- on the menu line on the screen. And this is a screen capture where we take the image from the screen and we capture it and we save it as a file on the disk. So this is what we were looking at at the time.

Q. So this is actually the equivalent of a photograph, or a copy of --

A. A photograph of the screen. An image of the screen.

Q. Yes. Of exactly the image that you look at --

A. That's correct.

Q. -- when you make your determinations --

A. That's correct.

Q. -- and analysis?

A. Yes.

Q. And this is for a relatively small period of time, is it?

A. 1.8 seconds it says on here.

Q. And in 1.8 seconds, does it generate 8216 sufficient information that you can actually see and identify a break at that time point?

A. Yes, the -- yes.

Q. You talked to us about the signature. You used that term early on in your testimony. What does that refer to?

A. The signature is shown on both of these. It's shown best on 858, and that's the -- there is a -- a wave in the line at 238, just before 238.1 seconds, which is what happens when you turn this particular tape-recorder on.

Q. All right. Are these breaks relatively short in duration?

A. They're very short. This one is only about a second long.

Q. The other 33 breaks in this telephone conversation, are they comparable to that one as well?

A. Yes.

Q. What does that suggest to you, that all of the breaks are roughly comparable and fairly short in duration?

A. That they were -- I think in this case, in addition to the signature, they were all made in the same way.

Q. All right. Would it be difficult to have relatively short breaks if you are stopping and starting a tape-recording during the course of a conversation?

A. Well, the breaks would still be short. It’s the context that’s different.

Q. Oh, I see. The content of the conversation itself. Okay.

The two exhibits that we’ve been referring to, 857 and 858, do they accurately depict the content contained in those exhibits? In other words, are they an accurate depiction of what you looked at during the course of your examination?

A. Yes, they are.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, I would move to introduce 857 and 858 into evidence.

MR. SANGER: No objection.

THE COURT: They’re admitted.

MR. ZONEN: And may we publish those two at this time?

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: In front of you should be a laser that I left -- you have it. Good.

Go ahead, please, and tell us what it is that you’re looking at.

A. Yes, we’re looking at an image of -- do I have to talk close to this?

MR. SANGER: We haven’t identified which exhibit is up there, for the record.

MR. ZONEN: 858. That’s Exhibit 858 that’s currently being shown.

Q. And yes, I’m sorry, I know that’s an awkward position, but you do have to continue to speak through the microphone.

A. They won’t be able to see through me.

This is an image of the screen when we were analyzing the tape, and the time runs along the bottom axis here. It’s virtually impossible for you to read it, but it starts at two minutes 36.994 seconds. That means two minutes and essentially 37 seconds into the tape. It’s very difficult to read this little number down here, but that says that the view is 1.8 seconds long. So the time from here to there is 1.8 seconds.

The signature is the amplitude of the signal, and it’s centered at the center, about zero.

And the best analogy that I can make with this is, if there are people here that are old enough to remember what a vinyl record is, this is very much like the groove in that vinyl record; that the needle would be moving along here, and so it would move faster here, and hardly move at all here, and then it goes through a big bump, and then more here. And by -- on a vinyl record, it reproduces the audio in the same way that the voltage that we’re displaying here, when it’s passed through a speaker on a computer, reproduces the speech.

Q. Do you see the signature that you refer to?

A. Yes. The signature extends from here to here, right in -- right in the center, and this is the primary signature which I’ve been calling the turn-on signature.

Q. And the break that you refer to?

A. Yes, the break is really this entire time period, that during this time period the audio turned off, right here. It’s very low here. And then this is the turn-on signature when the reel started to come back up to speed. And then there’s normal speech after about this time here. So this is all a transient that occurred during what I call the break in the tape.

Q. All right. Let’s go ahead to 858, if we can.

A. Okay. This is exactly the same --

MR. SANGER: Excuse me, Your Honor.

MR. ZONEN: We need a question.

MR. SANGER: I think this is 857. Am I wrong?

THE WITNESS: Yes, this is --

MR. ZONEN: Forgive me. My dyslexia is acting in.

This is 857. The last one, then, was 858, if we could correct the record accordingly.

Q. Please go ahead and tell us about 857.

A. Yes, this is the same time period, starting at 236.994 and extending for 1.8 seconds across the axis here. And what's displayed on the vertical axis now is frequency.

And the best way to explain this is if you look at this signature over here, this is a word that a person has spoken, and what you can see is the fundamental of their voice box and then the harmonics of their -- of their voice. And you can also see that over here and over here.

And this is the time period which was very quiet where I said that the tape had turned off. And you can see that the noise at the bottom, which is indicated by the yellow, has gone away. The blue indicates the lowest volume at that frequency; the green, an intermediate volume; the yellow, a louder volume; and the red, the loudest volume.

And the frequency scale is on the left over here. It's impossible to read it there. This is 500 hertz -- oop, no, I think you want to....

Okay. Yes, okay. So this is a thousand hertz, and it goes well above what most people's hearing is at, at ten kilohertz up here. Take it back to the full....

So if you can remember what I showed on the preceding exhibit, this is the period when it went very quiet. This is a period where there was just a little bit of low frequency noise here. This is the transient, and this is the beginning where it begins to have speech again over here. So this is the characteristic signature, on this particular media, of a break.

Q. Doctor, you had mentioned something about a voice-activated tape-recorder. What is a voice-activated tape-recorder?

A. A voice-activated tape-recorder is a tape-recorder which, if the room goes silent, turns off. And if somebody speaks in the room or there’s a noise in the room, the tape-recorder turns back on again.

Q. Does there generally have to be a period of silence before the tape-recorder is activated or deactivated?

A. Yes, it usually takes quite a bit of time before it deactivates, because it doesn’t want to miss speech. And so they have a circuit that waits a long time, in terms of seconds, for the silence to decide to turn off, but then they usually turn on very rapidly because they want to get the first words.

Q. Okay. Doctor, do you have an opinion as to whether this tape is the product of a voice-activated tape-recorder and then those breaks would have been caused by silence in the conversation?

A. My opinion is it’s not voice-activated.

Q. And why is that?

A. Because the turn-off occurred too rapidly after the speech right here. This is only a few tenths of a second.

MR. ZONEN: All right. We can turn the lights on and turn off the projector at this time.

Q. Doctor, just a couple of final questions. Do you have an opinion as to the nature of the equipment that was used in this particular case?

MR. SANGER: I’m going to object as either asked and answered or it’s vague.

THE COURT: Overruled.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Go ahead, please. And I guess by “equipment,” I mean both telephones and tape recorders.

MR. SANGER: Then it’s compound.

THE COURT: Just a minute.

THE WITNESS: I really have --

THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Let’s talk about telephones. Does it make a difference to you in terms of your analysis of what type of phones are used?

A. Only in the sense of whether it was voice-activated or not.
Q. Okay.
A. But otherwise, no.
Q. Or the recording equipment?
A. No.
Q. Okay. Do you have a sense of where the recordings took place?
A. No.

Q. All right. Is there any information that would be -- let me rephrase that just for one second.
In terms of resolving the question of whether or not this is multiple conversations as opposed to a single long conversation, are you able to hear any unique dynamics in the sounds that would send to suggest that there were recordings at different locations?
A. No.
Q. Are you able to tell one way or the other?
A. No.
MR. ZONEN: Okay. I have no further questions.
THE COURT: Cross-examine?

CROSS-EXAMINATION
BY MR. SANGER:
Q. All right. Dr. Koons, the bottom line to this is that you had a tape which you analyzed, and you believe that the tape -- the recording process was stopped several times during the course of the recording; is that right?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. All right. You don’t know if it was stopped for five minutes, or ten minutes, or for a second; is that correct?
A. That’s correct.

Q. And you didn’t really listen to the tape to hear the context when you did your initial analysis of this tape; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Recently you decided to listen to the tape to see if you could kind of hear what the people were saying, right?

A. Right.

Q. And when you listened to the context, as far as you could tell, it seems to be pretty much a continuous conversation, correct?

A. Most, but not all of it.

Q. The first 13 seconds you had a question about; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And, now, when you looked at the sonographic, if I'm using the right term, analysis, that was pretty much consistent with what you heard when you listened to it like the rest of it; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. In other words, you pretty much have the same background noise. You've got the same level of speech that goes throughout the entire tape; is that correct? With the exception of the first 13 seconds.

A. That's correct.

Q. And you had speculated in your bench notes -- in fact, you said, "Speculate on causes," right?

A. Right.

Q. And you said, "Pause on tape-recorder; voice-activated line; push-to-talk phone; mute button," right?

A. Right.

Q. Now, what is an AGC?

A. An AGC is an automatic gain control circuit, and the point of an AGC is to try to make the audio level uniform on a tape.

If you have, for instance, a conference with people sitting around a large table, and you have a tape-recorder in the middle, that the person closest to it will be naturally louder than the person at the end of the table, and the automatic gain control, when it hears a period when the audio is weak, tries to push it up and amplify it, and if it's strong, it brings it down a little bit so it's uniform on the tape.

Q. And you determined that you did not think this was an automatic gain control function that was causing these apparent breaks; is that correct?

A. That’s correct. There is no automatic gain control on this recorder.

Q. So as it stands, you really don’t know what happened, but there was some kind of break?

A. Yes, there are breaks.

Q. All right. You also indicated that there’s a signature to these breaks, simply meaning that they appear to have been caused by the same mechanism; is that right?

A. That’s right.

Q. And from what you could tell by looking at it, it appeared to be some kind of a mechanical function that caused this break; is that right?

A. That’s right.

Q. All right. In other words, somebody pushed a button, either hit a “stop” button on the recorder, or a “mute” button, or a “pause” button, something like that?

A. Can I elaborate on that?

Q. Yes.

A. More specifically, by “mechanical,” I meant that it had something to do with probably the rotation of the wheels on the -- the drive on the tape-recorder rather than the button itself. That the wheel will take a little longer or a little shorter to take up slack, for example, at the beginning and end of the tape and the middle of the tape. And so there are many different mechanical things like that, rather than the button itself.

Q. Okay. Well -- all right. That’s fair enough. In other words, the way these cassette tapes work is that there’s a magnetic head --

A. Uh-huh.

Q. -- that will alter the tape itself magnetically --

A. Yes.

Q. -- when input occurs; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. So somebody talks; it’s translated into energy that affects the magnetic head, that in turn affects the tape; is that right?

A. That’s correct.

Q. So as the tape turns by the head, that’s how you record it, right?

A. Right.

Q. And if you stop the tape from turning, it stops recording?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And so your determination is that at some point it looks like this tape was stopped from time to time?

A. Right.

Q. Now, you said you couldn’t tell if it was first generation or second generation; is that correct?

A. That’s true.

Q. And you did not do an analysis of the actual tape?

A. Physically.

Q. Physical analysis of the tape. All right.
And there are labs that can do that?

A. I believe so, yes.

Q. All right. So you just looked -- once you digitized it, you just looked at the actual electronic remnants of whatever it was that was done to this tape? In other words --

A. I don’t want to use the word “remnants,” but, yes.

Q. I was trying to think of a better word.

A. I know what you mean.

Q. The electronic imprints or whatever it was.

A. It’s the signature of the electronic signal on the tape.

Q. If you actually look at a tape, sometimes you can determine that there are erasure marks or there’s other actual physical --

A. Right.

Q. -- marks on the tape; is that right?

A. We did not do that.

Q. Did not do that.
And I take it, from your analysis, you have no way of determining who it was that stopped this tape from turning from time to time?

A. No.

Q. And you have no idea how long the tape stopped; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. It’s even possible that there could be a malfunction in the tape machine, is it not?

A. Possibly. But they were not random.

Q. All right. So you don’t know how long the tape stopped; in other words, if somebody stopped the tape, got up, went out of the room, came back, or something?

A. That’s true. Yes.

Q. It could have been just a second that was not recording, couldn’t it?

A. Yes.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. Thank you. I have no further questions.

REDIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Doctor, explain to us what you mean by “not random.”

A. If you have -- if you have a random process, the -- the distribution of the stops will obey a statistical function called a Poisson function, and these do not fit that function. They’re almost uniformly spaced throughout the tape, except at the end, where they become more rapidly in the last minute.

Q. All right. Do you have an opinion as to whether the breaks in this particular tape are caused by a malfunction of the recording device?

A. My opinion is they are not.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. No further questions.

RECROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Actually, I didn’t notice that. So let me ask you about that.

You actually -- in your bench notes there, you broke down the times. Are you saying there's essentially a uniform time gap between the tape -- between the --

A. Between the gaps.

Q. Between the gaps?

A. Not uniform. It's not periodic. But they -- there is a group at the end which is out of character with the other ones, which suggest that it's not random. There were a bunch that occurred in the 21st minute and most of the other minutes had only one or two.

Q. I see what you're saying.

A. There was also one period around six to ten minutes where there was no gap at all. So it's not random.

Q. Okay. When you say it's not random, do you mean it's --

A. "Random" means a throw of the dice did it.

Q. Okay. So because there are groupings, you feel that there's some causation?

A. That's right.

Q. So if there was a mechanical problem of some sort, it would have to be a mechanical problem that was more prevalent at one point?

A. Than the others, right.

MR. SANGER: All right. Okay. Thank you. No further questions.

MR. ZONEN: No further questions.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the next two witnesses require a Court ruling.

THE COURT: The Court will admit Exhibits 841 and 842 and make a finding that the probative value exceeds the prejudicial effect under 352.

MR. ZONEN: I'm sorry, I didn't hear the last part of your ruling.

THE COURT: It was just a finding under 352.

MR. ZONEN: And the finding was it's admissible?

THE COURT: They are admissible. They are admitted.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. We'll call Detective Rose White to the stand, please.

MR. SANGER: Is there a limiting instruction that goes along with that, Your Honor?

MR. ZONEN: Smith. I’m sorry, Smith.

THE COURT: We could do one.

MR. SANGER: Your Honor, would it be possible to approach briefly to discuss that?

THE COURT: Yes.

(Discussion held off the record at sidebar.)

THE COURT: I think the next two witnesses are going to involve these exhibits, are they, or the next one?

MR. ZONEN: The next one witness.

THE COURT: (To the jury) The next witness is going to involve testimony about two books, Exhibits 841 and 842. And I want to advise you that these exhibits fall within the same instruction I gave you regarding the 1108 evidence, Code Section 1108 evidence relating to the alleged prior sexual acts.

Remember those instructions I gave you sometime ago? This material is connected to that and has the same limitation. At the end of the trial, we’ll reiterate that instruction for you so that it’s -- this won’t be the last time you hear the instruction.

MR. ZONEN: We’ll call Rose Smith to the stand, Detective Smith, please.

THE COURT: You’ve already been sworn. You may be seated.

DETECTIVE SMITH: Thank you, Your Honor.

ROSIBEL SMITH

Having been previously sworn, resumed the stand and testified further as follows:

THE COURT: You’re still under oath.

THE WITNESS: Yes, Your Honor.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. The jury hasn’t heard who you are yet.

You’ve already been sworn in, but tell us who you are, please.
A. Yes. I’m Detective Rosibel Smith. R-o-s-i-b-e-l. S-m-i-t-h. I’m a police detective with the City of Los Angeles, Los Angeles Police Department, currently assigned to the Threat Management Unit of the Detective Support Division.
Q. How long have you been an officer with the Los Angeles Police Department?
A. For a little over 20 years.
Q. And your current assignment is what again, please?
A. The Threat Management Unit of the Detective Support Division, and we are responsible for investigating stalking cases, criminal threats and workplace violence.
Q. How long have you been in that unit?
A. For six years.
Q. And prior to that, what work did you do?

A. Prior to that, I worked a station called Rampart Detectives, and then prior to that Juvenile Division.
Q. Have you worked as a sex crimes investigator?
A. Yes, I have.
Q. For what period of time?
A. For nine years.
Q. And which nine-year period?
A. From 1988 to 1997.
Q. As part of your responsibilities as a sex crimes investigator, did you conduct and execute search warrants?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. In August of 1993, did you execute a search warrant at Neverland Ranch in Santa Barbara County?
A. Yes, I did.
Q. Did you do that with others?
A. Yes.
Q. A few others, I would assume?
A. There were several others, detectives and officers at the location, yes.
Q. And do you remember which -- where on the property at Neverland Ranch that you personally conducted a search?

A. In the master bedroom of Mr. Michael Jackson’s residence.

Q. All right. Now, the -- I’d like you to look at three exhibits that are in front of you at this time, Exhibit No. 841 and 842 already in evidence.

A. Okay.

Q. Tell us what those two exhibits are. Let’s start with the first one, 841.

A. 841 is a hard-cover book entitled, “Boys Will Be Boys.”

Q. And what is that a book of?

A. It’s a book depicting images of young boys. Some are clothed. Some are nude. And various stages of dress. Depicts them in various positions, at play, swimming, jumping. So....

Q. Is there an inscription in the front of that book?

A. Yes, there is.

Q. Is that an inscription in a person’s handwriting or printing?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you seize that book?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. From where did you seize that book?

A. From a file cabinet in the master bedroom of Mr. Jackson’s residence.

Q. Now, Mr. Jackson’s residence is a -- the bedroom portion of his residence is actually a suite; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Is there an upstairs and a downstairs?

A. Yes, there is.

Q. And the portion from where you seized these items, was that from the upstairs or the downstairs?

A. It was from the downstairs portion of the bedroom.

Q. And can you -- can you tell us where specifically it was seized from?

A. It was seized from a file cabinet within a closet in the master bedroom.

Q. Let’s go ahead to the next exhibit, 842, and tell us what that is, please.

A. This is another book, hard-cover book, entitled, “The Boy; A Photographic Essay.”

Q. Can you tell us what this is, please?

A. And again, this is a book depicting images of young boys, again in various stages of clothing and undress. Some appear to be be nude. And again, various poses; playing, swimming, jumping.

Q. Is there an inscription in the front of that book as well?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, Detective, those two items, were they seized from the same location?

A. Yes, they were.

Q. And I think you’ve already described that location; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. I’d like you to look at another exhibit 8237 that’s before you, which is 856 in evidence.

A. Okay.

Q. What is 856?

A. 856 is a photograph of the search warrant. We, as law enforcement, are required to photograph the location that we serve the warrant on. And this is the photograph of the file cabinet where the books were seized from.

Q. All right. And in that file cabinet, are there multiple drawers?

A. Yes, there are.

Q. Do you actually know from which drawer those books were seized?

A. Yes, I do.

Q. Which drawer was that?

A. They were seized from the third drawer.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, may I publish that exhibit? It’s already in evidence.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Describe for us, please, the photograph that we’re looking at.

A. To the rear of the photograph is the file cabinet containing the four drawers. The third drawer is where I seized the books from. So it’s partly covered by, looks like maybe a briefcase of some sort, or something there.

Q. All right. Detective, how were you able to get into the closet? How were you able to get into the file cabinet?

A. The closet was -- actually, the room was locked. And we had to get keys for the room, as well as for the file cabinet, to get access into the room and the file cabinet itself.

Q. Were you able to do that?

A. Yes, we were.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

You can turn the lights on.

MR. SANGER: Leave it. Leave it.

MR. ZONEN: Do you need this?

MR. SANGER: Yeah.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. SANGER:

Q. Detective Smith, how are you?

A. Fine, thank you, sir. How are you?

Q. You mentioned, Detective, that you were -- that you’re currently assigned to a unit with the Los Angeles Police Department that investigates a number of things, and I think you said threats?

A. Yes.

Q. Okay. And one of the things you mentioned is stalking; is that correct?

A. That’s correct.

Q. And do you, in the course of your duties, investigate celebrity stalkings?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And many times celebrities, in your experience, you find are stalked by fans; is that right?

A. Yes.

Q. And is this -- does this pose a danger to the celebrities?

A. It could, yes.

Q. So you take those seriously?

A. Absolutely.

Q. In fact, somebody may claim to be a fan, and they come out --

MR. ZONEN: I'm going to object as exceeding the scope of the direct examination.

THE COURT: Sustained.

MR. SANGER: All right. Very well.

Q. Your assignment back in 1993 was working with the detectives division in sex crimes; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. That's Los Angeles Police Department?

A. Yes.

Q. So you got a warrant -- I say "you." Your department got a warrant to search Mr. Jackson's home in Santa Ynez, in Los Olivos, California; is that correct?

A. That's correct.

Q. That's not within the City of Los Angeles, I take it?

A. No, it is not.

Q. And you got a warrant issued by a Los Angeles judge?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. And the people that came with you at that time, among others, were fellow Los Angeles police officers; is that correct?

A. Yes.

Q. And you ended up seizing these books that you talked about in the course of that search in 1993; is that right?

A. That is correct.

Q. Now, these two books -- I think -- are they still up there in front of you?

A. Yes, they are.

Q. Those two books are not unlawful to possess by adults in California; is that correct?

A. That is correct.

Q. And do you have any idea how Mr. Jackson came into possession of those books or how they ended up in this locked file cabinet?

A. From the inscription in Exhibit No. 842, it appears that possibly a fan, somebody named Rhonda, possibly gave the book to him. And the other one, I do not know.

MR. SANGER: All right. Your Honor, may I approach and retrieve the books?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. SANGER: Thank you.

Your Honor, I'd like to put the book up on the screen, if I may.

THE COURT: Yes.

Q. BY MR. SANGER: I'll put the cover up there, first of all. And it says, "The Boy; A Photographic Essay," and this is -- this is Exhibit 842, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. All right. You referred to the inscription, and I'm going to put the inscription up on the board. I'm not going to put the whole one up because it doesn't fit yet.

But in any event, this is on the -- I know there's a word for it, but it's on the first actual page of the book, whatever you call it, right inside the cover; is that right?

A. That's right.

Q. Okay. And you were -- based on this inscription, it appeared to be a book that was presented to Mr. Jackson, or to his people, by a fan; is that correct?

A. It appears to be, yes.

Q. And then down at the bottom, it looks like it says, "1983," and that could be "Chicago," but I don't know. Or is it something else? What do you think?

A. I -- it's really hard to read. It could possibly be "Chicago," but I'm not certain.

Q. But in any event, 1983 is the date?

A. Yes.

Q. At the time that you did this -- that you did this search in 1993, did you determine that Mr. Jackson not only received, but kept a tremendous amount of material from fans that was sent to him? I'm not just talking about books, but just things in general that Mr. Jackson received.

Did he seem to have a lot of things that had been sent to him by fans, if you can remember?

A. I do recall him -- or locating letters, notes, from fans.
Q. All right. So even back then, in ‘93, you were -- or I shouldn’t say “even.” He had a lot of fans sending him things. That was your understanding as you were doing this search; is that correct?
A. Yes.
MR. SANGER: All right. Now, with the Court’s permission, I’d like to put up 841. That’s the other book.
THE COURT: Yes.
MR. SANGER: If I may.
Q. And this is the cover. We can’t get the whole thing on at once, but it’s 841 up in th corner, for the record, and it says, “Boys Will Be Boys,” and it has a picture there; right?

A. Yes.
Q. That’s the cover. And by the way, this is a commercially -- both of these are commercially available books; is that correct?
A. Yes.
Q. Okay. And when you open this book up, it actually says -- let’s look right over here. I’m going to try to talk loudly while I’m holding this. It says on the flyleaf, “Book Adventures, Inc.,” and the copyright 1966. Do you see that?
A. Yes. Down at the bottom.
Q. All right. And then if we look up here, at the top, again the first page -- I’m sure somebody who knows books knows the correct word for that. But the very first page, up at the top it says, “OP” -- “OP ‘88.” That means “Out of print, ‘88,” does it not? Or do you know?
A. I’m not certain what that means.
Q. And somebody has written up there, “Very scarce.”
A. Yes.
Q. Do you see that? That was there on the book when you seized it; is that right?
A. Yes, it was.
Q. And there’s some initials that look like “MJ” up in the upper right-hand corner?

A. Yes.

Q. Now, could you read the inscription for the record, please? And I’ll move it up as you go along.

A. “Look at the true spirit of happiness and joy in the boys’ faces. This is the spirit of boyhood, a life I’ve never had and will always dream of. This is the life I want for my children. MJ.”

MR. SANGER: Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. ZONEN: I have no further questions.

THE COURT: Thank you. You may step down.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MR. ZONEN: Your Honor, the next witness requires a pre-trial hearing.

THE COURT: (To the jury) All right. I’m going to excuse you again. We have to have another hearing before this witness may be presented.

Is the witness here now?

THE BAILIFF: The Judge is addressing you.

MR. ZONEN: I’m sorry, Your Honor. I’m not hearing well today.

THE COURT: Is the witness here now?

MR. ZONEN: Yes, the witness is here.

(The following proceedings were held in open court outside the presence and hearing of the jury:)

MR. ZONEN: May his counsel sit at the counsel table?

THE COURT: Yes, for this hearing.

Please remain standing and raise your right hand. Face the clerk over here.

IAN DREW

Having been sworn, testified as follows:

THE WITNESS: I do.

THE CLERK: Please be seated. State and spell your name for the record.

THE WITNESS: Ian, I-a-n. Last name is Drew, D-r-e-w.

THE CLERK: Thank you.

THE COURT: Counsel?

MR. ZONEN: May I proceed?

THE COURT: No, just a moment. I’m sorry, I want to interrupt you.

I’m not sure that I made that finding on the record or at sidebar on Exhibits 841 or 842, both of them, but I previously had reviewed the books and made a finding, preliminary finding, that there were photographs within each book that could be determined to be sexually explicit photographs by a trier of fact, and then I made a finding on -- under 352, which I know is on the record.

Now you may proceed with this witness.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you, Your Honor.

DIRECT EXAMINATION

BY MR. ZONEN:

Q. Mr. Drew, good morning.

A. Good morning.

Q. Sir, what is your current occupation?

A. Editor at US Weekly Magazine.

Q. What does that mean? What do you do?

A. Everything from reporting on stories, to coordinating stories, to a wide array of covering the celebrity news.

Q. How long have you worked in that capacity?

A. Um, about two and a half years.

Q. And how long with US Magazine specifically?

A. Oh, no. At US Magazine, two and a half years, excuse me. And in the capacity about three and a half years.

Q. What is your -- are you a journalist?

A. Yes.

Q. What is your training and experience as a journalist?

A. I have about three and a half years experience. And I started working at a small newspaper and then moved up to different publications, and have been at US Weekly the longest.

Q. If I can direct your attention back to February of the year 2003. Were you working with or for Michael Jackson at that time?

A. No.

Q. Were you working for anybody who was working with or for Michael Jackson?

A. No.

Q. All right. Did you have any association with either Marc Schaffel or Ronald Konitzer or Dieter Weizner?

MS. SAGER: I'm going to object, Your Honor, to the extent that's calling for unpublished information. I think the question is vague.

THE COURT: They can't hear you. Is your microphone on?

MS. SAGER: Sorry, Your Honor. I'm objecting to the question as calling for unpublished information and as vague.

THE COURT: Sustained on both grounds.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Were you called upon to conduct an interview of a family, including a mother of children by the name of Janet Arvizo?

A. No.

Q. Were you expecting to do an interview with Janet Arvizo?

A. Yes.

Q. Did that interview ever take place?

A. No.

Q. Who was it that was coordinating that interview with you?

A. Ronald Konitzer and Marc Schaffel.

Q. Did you know either Ronald Konitzer or Marc Schaffel prior to that day?

A. Yes.

Q. What is it that you were supposed to be doing with regards to this interview?

A. Interviewing them for a print magazine.

Q. Do you know what the subject matter was going to be of that interview?

A. How Mr. Jackson did not do anything inappropriate with the family.

Q. Who is it who retained you to do that?

A. Marc Schaffel and Ronald Konitzer.

Q. Were you expecting to get paid for that interview?

A. I did not get paid through them. I got paid through a magazine.
Q. All right.
A. I was on staff at a magazine at the time.
Q. All right. Was this an article that would appear in a magazine?
A. Uh-huh.
Q. Would it include photographs?
A. That was hoped for.
MS. SAGER: Object to the extent it’s unpublished information, Your Honor, since there was not an interview published.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you ever meet with Janet

Arvizo or her family?
MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor.
THE COURT: Sustained.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you know who they were?
MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor, to the extent that nothing has been published on that subject.
THE COURT: Sustained.
This is -- all objections are under the shield law at this time?
MS. SAGER: Yes, Your Honor.
Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Did you have a conversation with Ronald Konitzer as to whether or not that interview would take place?
A. Yes.
Q. What did Mr. Konitzer tell you?
MS. SAGER: And, Your Honor, I’ll only object to the extent that if it includes information that has not been published, that the witness should not be required to reveal anything unpublished. To the extent that there has been published information on that, we are not objecting.
MR. ZONEN: And let me preface the question with one other....
Q. Mr. Drew, did you appear on national television and discuss this very topic?
A. I believe so.
Q. Was the national presentation through Court

TV?

A. I believe so.

Q. Were you interviewed by someone by the name of Diane Dimond?

A. I was.

Q. Have you ever seen that presentation?

A. Yes.

Q. And you did recognize yourself as well as Miss Dimond?

A. Yes, I did.

Q. And did you discuss the subject matter of this very interview on national television?

A. I believe so. I believe so. Again, I do so many television interviews as part of my job, so remembering what I said in each one is a little difficult, but I believe so.

Q. All right. Did you, in fact, discuss the reason why this interview was not going to take place?

A. Yes.

Q. And what was the reason that the interview would not take place?

MS. SAGER: And again, Your Honor, I will only object to the extent that there's any information that has not been published. But to the extent Mr. Drew has revealed any portion of that on national television, we're not objecting.

THE COURT: So can I take this as an instruction by yourself to your witness to only divulge material that he's previously divulged on television?

MS. SAGER: Yes, Your Honor. Thank you.

THE COURT: I'll accept that.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: Can you answer the question?

A. I was told that the family was unavailable.

Q. And what does "unavailable" mean?

A. I was told that they had disappeared from the ranch in the middle of the night.

Q. And who had told you that?

A. Ronald Konitzer.

Q. In fact, he used the word "escaped," didn't he?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection; leading.

THE COURT: Overruled.

MS. SAGER: Your Honor, we would object to the extent that the word -- whatever words were used in the interview are the words that were used, and any other words should be unpublished information.

MR. ZONEN: The objection was overruled?

THE COURT: Well, I'm to take that as an instruction to the witness, because the objection is -- it's not really an objection. She's saying, "If something happened, I object. If not, I don't." So I can't --

MS. SAGER: I understand, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I could rule if it happened, okay? And if not, no.

I think the better way is for you to instruct your witness. And he knows, to the best of his recollection, what he's said and what he hasn't said. And then if there's an issue there, we'll deal with it.

MS. SAGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

And I would instruct Mr. Drew not to answer with respect to any words that were not used in his discussion of what Mr. Konitzer said.

THE COURT: Do you have any idea what the question was you're supposed to answer?

THE WITNESS: Could you rephrase, please? Thank you.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What exactly did Ronald Konitzer tell you about the disappearance of the Arvizo family?

MS. SAGER: Again, Your Honor, with the same instruction to the witness, only to answer as to what he said on national television on that subject.

THE COURT: Can we just -- can you give him that standing instruction that he would tell you or indicate to you, or us, if we're getting into an area he hasn't discussed, so you don't have to keep interjecting yourself?

MS. SAGER: That's fine, Your Honor.

I don't know that Mr. Drew has a copy of the transcript of the interview in front of him. And that's the only reason I'm issuing this same objection.

THE COURT: Go ahead.

MR. ZONEN: All right.

MR. MESEREAU: Excuse me.

Your Honor, am I allowed to participate in this area of objections? I'm not sure.

THE COURT: You're not sure?

MR. MESEREAU: Well, I think I can. But I know you're trying to determine what's the scope of the privilege.

I'm objecting to what he's saying for other reasons. And I'm going to object on hearsay as far as what he said on an interview.

MR. ZONEN: To the extent that they are statements from the unindicted co-conspirator, Mr. Konitzer.

THE COURT: Well, I think -- he's asking me a question.

Yes, you can object, because what we're testing here is what the jury will hear, of course, and then what you can cross-examine on. So if you object to something and it doesn't come in, there's not an issue about cross-examination.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Thank you.

I'm objecting on hearsay.

MR. ZONEN: The answer is it's a statement in furtherance of a conspiracy from one of the unindicted co-conspirators, Mr. Konitzer.

THE COURT: I don't know what the question was now.

Q. BY MR. ZONEN: What specifically did he say with regard to the disappearance of this family?

Would it be helpful if the witness was given a transcript of the television program? We can do that.

THE COURT: Well, you have to ask the witness that question. That's the question that, would it refresh your recollection if --

MR. ZONEN: I don't believe he's -- well --

THE WITNESS: It's a simple enough question, I think.

I was told that they had disappeared; that they couldn't keep them there anymore.

MR. MESEREAU: Objection. Objection.

THE WITNESS: And --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

Let him complete it.

THE WITNESS: And I believe the word "escaped" was used, but again, I don't -- I can't say word for word. But from -- the best of my recollection, yes, I heard the word "escaped."

THE COURT: Okay. Now, I made you wait, but you have an objection of hearsay.

MR. MESEREAU: I'm objecting to double hearsay. What the prosecutor is asking is, "What did you say in an interview about what somebody else said?"

MR. ZONEN: No, I did not.

THE COURT: He's asking what Mr. --

MR. ZONEN: Konitzer.

THE COURT: -- Konitzer said. That is hearsay. Now, the question is, was it in the furtherance of the conspiracy?

I don't see that it is, so I'll sustain the objection.

MR. ZONEN: I ask to make an offer of proof.

THE COURT: Yes, you may.

MR. ZONEN: This was -- he was prepared to do the interview of the family, the interview that ultimately was done on the evening of the 19th into the morning hours of the 20th by a different interviewer, and this was going to be done in furtherance of the promotion of the rebuttal film, the portion that was to be contained in the Maury Povich film. The family took off. That was in conjunction with the movement off of Neverland Ranch about that time.

It was Mr. Konitzer who was attempting to arrange this, this filming, who then called him and notified him that this filming would not take place because the family had escaped. It's a reflection of the state of mind of the co-conspirator; that the family acted in conformity with the testimony as we presented it.

So the objection -- or the exception to hearsay would be both a statement in furtherance of conspiracy, and a statement consistent with the state of mind of the co-conspirator.

THE COURT: I don’t get that.

If the information is -- I mean, all of the things you said could be in furtherance of the conspiracy, except we get to this one statement, which is, basically, “Where’s the family?” “Well, they escaped.”

That is -- that’s not in furtherance of the conspiracy. If anything, it might reveal the conspiracy.

MR. ZONEN: The fact that he says they escaped, they disappeared in the middle of the night, reflects, as to Mr. Konitzer, a state of mind consistent with the fact that this family was being kept there against their will, or at least as to the mother. So that would be an admission on his part that the family, in fact, was being kept against their will.

And to the extent that that statement was made during the course of the conspiracy, which it was, it was mid-February, then that statement would be an adoptive admission as to each of the unindicted co-conspirators, including the defendant.

THE COURT: All right. You just changed horses in mid-stream.

MR. ZONEN: I sure did.

THE COURT: Do you want to address the --

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor.

I mean, first of all, I think the Court has an obligation to take into account the whole context of the statement, when it was made, and the purpose that apparently it was made for, in deciding whether it might even be reasonably construed to be in furtherance of a conspiracy.

THE COURT: I think he conceded suddenly that it’s not in furtherance. Now he’s asking that it come in as an admission, some sort of admission.

MR. MESEREAU: No, it’s a hearsay statement by someone who’s never been charged with a crime, who isn't in the courtroom. It's not an admission.

They didn't even charge any of these people, except Mr. Jackson.

THE COURT: Don't -- wait, wait. Talk to me.

MR. MESEREAU: It's not an admission.

That's just grabbing for something that doesn't exist. The only way it could possibly get in would be an exception to the hearsay rule, which the Court has, I think, found does not exist.

MR. ZONEN: If I could respond very briefly, Your Honor.

Konitzer's state of mind certainly is an issue in this case as one of the unindicted co-conspirators named specifically in the Indictment returned by the grand jury. To that extent it would be relevant.

But it is also admissible as either an admission, given the fact that he is an unindicted but named co-conspirator, or a declaration against interest, specifically penal interest, if we were to consider him as an unnamed party to this action.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, again, he's not here. He's not charged. He's not present. He's not testifying. We can't cross-examine him. It's not an admission. And it's clear hearsay. If it can't come in under alleged co-conspirator hearsay by someone who's never even been charged with a conspiracy, it just can't come in.

THE COURT: Well -- just a minute. You know that's not the law. The law is that statements by co-conspirators, whether they're here or with us today or not, can come in. That's not the issue. That's -- he's -- you're not addressing the issue. But just give me a moment to think here.

MR. MESEREAU: Your Honor, if there was a co --

THE COURT: Just a moment, please.

Okay. I think what you were going to say is, if it were a co-defendant and one co-defendant's admission was attempted to be introduced in a trial of both of them, that it couldn't be introduced in front of the jury. And I agree with you, if it were any other crime but conspiracy.

MR. MESEREAU: But, Your Honor, I don't believe it would come in as an admission. I believe it would come in under co-conspirator hearsay or it couldn't come in.

THE COURT: They either are trying to help you or they can't hear.

(Laughter.)

MR. MESEREAU: Oh.

MR. ZONEN: I would object to the first of those choices.

MR. MESEREAU: What I said to Your Honor is in that event, it would not still come in as an admission. It would have to come in as an exception to the hearsay rule and be deemed by the Court co-conspirator hearsay.

THE COURT: Well --

MR. ZONEN: Can I ask --

THE COURT: I'm going to --

MR. ZONEN: Can I ask this one question? If, in fact, among the overt acts -- if, in fact, among the overt acts would be acts of this family leaving Neverland Ranch, and to the extent that this person is one of the unindicted co-conspirators, and the overt acts include their efforts to return the family to the ranch and to return the family to this video presentation, then his statement that they had fled the ranch and escaped would certainly be statements in furtherance of the conspiracy in terms of their efforts to renew their activities to bring them back onto the ranch. It would also be an admission on the part of a co-conspirator to the extent of what they were trying to do, and it would be a reflection of that party's state of mind that that's what they wanted to do, was keep them on the ranch until the point that they were able to do this particular interview, and thereafter to Brazil.

MR. MESEREAU: I think I said what I can say, Your Honor. I don't think it can come in in either event.

MR. ZONEN: And I'll submit as well.

MS. SAGER: And, Your Honor, we really don't have a dog in this fight. I want to make sure the record is clear that --

THE COURT: They can’t hear you, so you have to speak into the microphone.

MS. SAGER: We don’t have a dog in this fight, but I just want to make sure the record is clear as to what this witness testified about was not the video interview of the family. He was a magazine reporter who was asking for an interview of the family.

And I don’t want it to be confused with some conspiracy theory about what was or wasn’t done with the video and what they were doing with that. That is not what Mr. --

THE COURT: I’m not -- you have to have been here for 49 days or so.

(Laughter.)

MS. SAGER: I understand, Your Honor.

THE COURT: That’s not a problem.

MR. ZONEN: Where does that metaphor come from? This is the second Los Angeles lawyer talking about dogs and fights.

THE COURT: I don’t know. I’ve used it before. But after hearing someone chastised, I’ve decided I’ll never use it again.

I think it’s admissible as to the state of mind of the co-conspirator, so I’m going to allow it.

MR. ZONEN: Thank you. I have no further questions.

MR. MESEREAU: May I cross-examine, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay. Thank you.

CROSS-EXAMINATION

BY MR. MESEREAU:

Q. Good morning, Mr. Drew.

A. Good morning. How are you?

Q. Fine, thank you.

You gave an interview to Lieutenant Klapakis and another Santa Barbara sheriff named Robel on August 4th, 2004, correct?

A. Yes.

Q. Do you know how long that interview was?

A. No. I didn’t think it was that long, but it was probably a lot longer than it was.

Q. You waived privileges when you gave that interview, correct?

MS. SAGER: This is a question that’s a legal question, not a question for this witness as to whether he waived privileges. He did not have counsel. He had not been advised of rights.

THE COURT: Sustained.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You gave that interview freely and voluntarily, correct?

MS. SAGER: Same objections, Your Honor. He was being served with a subpoena, had no counsel.

THE COURT: Just a moment here.

All right. As to the objection that he had no counsel present, that’s overruled.

The question pending, which you may answer, is, did you give that interview freely and voluntarily?

THE WITNESS: I guess. I didn’t know it was an interview, and I didn’t know that it was being documented in any way.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: You were not served with a subpoena for purposes of that interview, were you?

A. I don’t know why I was served with a subpoena. I just got it in the mail.

Q. You did not attend that interview because you were subpoenaed to do so, right?

MR. ZONEN: Objection.

THE COURT: Maybe he doesn’t know which interview you’re talking about.

THE WITNESS: I didn’t think I was attending any interview.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Did you interview on August 4th, 2004, with Lieutenant Klapakis and Sergeant Robel of the Santa Barbara Sheriff’s Department?

A. I had a conversation with them.

Q. Where did the conversation take place?

A. Outside of my office.

Q. And did those two officers meet you outside of your office?

A. They did.

Q. Did you speak to them?

A. I did.

Q. You were not subpoenaed to speak to them, were you?

A. No.

Q. You spoke to them about facts concerning this investigation, true?

A. Yes.

Q. You told them you were a freelance journalist who was currently working for US Weekly Magazine, right?

A. That’s not true. I’ve only worked as a staffer at US Weekly.

Q. Did you tell them you were a journalist in that interview?

A. Yes.

Q. Did you tell them you were doing some work for US Weekly Magazine?

A. Yes.

Q. After you told them you were a journalist, you continued to interview with them, right?

A. Yes.

Q. You gave them statements about Marc Schaffel, true?

MS. SAGER: Your Honor, to the extent that this is unpublished information that Mr. Drew has gathered in the course of his job as a journalist, I would still assert the shield law, which applies unless he has published information. And the statute and the Constitution specifically say, “disseminated information to the public.” And I’m quoting.

So any discussion he may have had with law enforcement officials would not fall within the scope of published information as it’s defined in Article I, Section 2(b).

MR. MESEREAU: If I may respond, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: He gave a free, voluntary interview with two sheriffs. He knew they were taking notes. He knew they were going to make a report. He knew it was part of this investigation. He knew that the reports were likely to be circulated.

They have been circulated. They are not under any particular special form of privilege. They have been produced to the defense. They are available to use at trial. He knew the information he gave could be used in the investigation.

THE WITNESS: That’s not true. I didn’t know any of that. I knew some of that.

MS. SAGER: Ian.

Actually, I was going to object, Your Honor, but I was going to let Mr. Mesereau finish first.

THE WITNESS: Okay.

MR. MESEREAU: He gave extensive information about Schaffel, Konitzer, his discussions with them, his perceptions of them. And it’s very clear from the interview he knew exactly what he was doing.

MS. SAGER: And, Your Honor, I would point out two things. One is Mr. Mesereau, with due respect, has not established any of the things that he just said as to what Mr. Drew knew or didn’t know. He’s merely asserted them.

Second, we’re talking about a waiver of a constitutional right, First Amendment right and state constitutional right. And I don’t think Mr. Mesereau has established either that Mr. Drew understood or had any reason to know when he was in that conversation that there was later going to be a position taken that, by talking to the police officers at all, that he was waiving his constitutional rights.

THE COURT: Are there any cases on this scenario where a person talks freely to the law enforcement and then claims the shield law in court?

MS. SAGER: I don’t know of a case in California, Your Honor, that deals with this particular issue.

The Playboy case, which we cited in our papers, does deal with the difference between revealing information publicly and any other information that may be related that's not revealed publicly, and they draw a very strict line. The language of Article I, 2(b), talks about information that is disseminated to the public. Everything else is defined as unpublished information.

THE COURT: What about -- I didn't read the Playboy case. What was the disclosure in the Playboy case?

MS. SAGER: In the Playboy case, there was an interview published with Cheech and Chong that had some information that they had given during the course of an interview with a Playboy --

THE COURT: But nobody understood what they said.

(Laughter.)

MS. SAGER: Everybody bought it for the article, too.

(Laughter.)

MS. SAGER: The argument was made, in subpoenaing all of the information from Playboy, that they had already revealed, in fact, what was said in the interview because they wrote an article about it.

And the Court of Appeal in the Second Appellate District said only what is actually revealed in the article disseminated to the public has been revealed, even though there were discussions with Mr. Cheech and Mr. Chong, even though there was some information published.

THE COURT: Are you familiar with that case, Counsel.

MR. MESEREAU: I am not, Your Honor. But I would -- I haven't completed my examination of him yet, so I don't think -- I think it's rather premature to conclude we can't establish that he didn't know what he was doing or didn't know he was --

THE COURT: The question, though, is what questions he has to answer right now while you're trying to complete your examination. That's the problem. And --

MR. MESEREAU: Well, Your Honor, if I can't cross-examine him on the issues he wants to testify on direct about, then I don’t think he should be allowed to testify as a witness.

MS. SAGER: And, Your Honor, I’d only point out that we did not brief the issue of waiver, because it did not come up, but there’s certainly a long line of cases about the waiver of constitutional rights needs to be knowing, not simply a voluntary conversation, but a knowing waiver of your rights.

And if Mr. Drew is asked, I expect he could answer the question as to whether he knew and understood that, by any conversation he had with these officers, he was waiving all rights he might have under the California shield law and the Constitution.

THE WITNESS: Can I actually say, I was told by the officers and I actually had the understanding that --

THE COURT: Just a moment.

THE WITNESS: All right.

THE COURT: The way we have to do this is we rely on your attorney to help --

THE WITNESS: Okay.

THE COURT: -- what she wants to bring out. You -- that’s the -- you have a very competent attorney, so I think you should --

MS. SAGER: Thank you, Your Honor.

THE WITNESS: Thank you.

MS. SAGER: And I just would add, Your Honor, that I don’t disagree with Mr. Mesereau about whether Mr. Drew should have to testify at all. I do think getting into cross-examination will lead into areas that are covered by the privilege, which is the reason we put that in our brief. It is a problem when you have reporters called as witnesses, because even if one side tries to limit what they’re asking to published information, it is inevitable the cross-examiner will attempt to get into other areas that are not published and that do delve into reporters’ constitutionally protected information.

MR. MESEREAU: If I may, Your Honor.

THE COURT: Yes.

MR. MESEREAU: There is information in the police reports that suggests that it was the conclusion of the investigating sheriffs that Mr. Drew has been a business associate of Mr. Schaffel.

The Court already knows, because it's in evidence, that he did conduct an interview of Debbie Rowe at Mr. Schaffel's residence, presumably at the behest of Mr. Schaffel. And there is considerable evidence in the police reports that he has relationships with Konitzer and others.

Now, if he's going to be called to testify to what Mr. Konitzer says to him, it would terribly prejudice our ability to defend if we couldn't extensively cross-examine on veracity, on bias, on a motive to make a statement for a particular reason, and also his relationship with these people. If we can't do that, he should be precluded from testifying.

MS. SAGER: And the problem again, Your Honor, is journalists have relationships with a number of people. They may be getting information from a lot of different sources. And the fact that they get information from people that they may later want to publish, that's something that is tremendously protected under the First Amendment. And to allow counsel to cross-examine into what information he may or may not have gotten from people who may have been confidential sources, may have been on-the-record sources but were not ever published, really opens up the privilege widely, and for something that in this case, frankly, is a tangential issue.

And there's some question about whether this particular statement has any relevance here, given that I don't believe it's disputed that the family left when they left, why they left. And the circumstances of that, are not within this witness's personal knowledge.

So what his impressions were, what he interpreted the remark to mean is not something that would be admissible. So the remark itself that they left is really not all that important compared to the constitutional issues.

THE COURT: Actually, the substance of what he said is important. That’s not a good argument. But --

MR. MESEREAU: If the Court will permit, Your Honor, could we have a few minutes to try to research that case? Because I’m not --

THE COURT: The Playboy case?

MR. MESEREAU: Yes.

THE COURT: Yeah, it wouldn’t hurt for me to look at it.

MR. ZONEN: Do we need the actual evidence from that case?

THE COURT: Let’s --

MS. SAGER: As I said, Your Honor, we did not brief the issue of waiver extensively, so we’re happy to do that for the Court if that’s going to be an issue that’s --

THE COURT: That might not be necessary if each of us have a chance to look at the case. Let’s see. The next recess is scheduled for -- I don’t want to make the same mistake I made earlier, so why don’t we just take our 11:30 recess, and then everybody who doesn’t have to read cases can eat. Okay? And we’ll come back at the end of our 11:30 recess.

(Recess taken.)

THE COURT: All right. You wanted time to look at that case?

MR. MESEREAU: I did look at it, Your Honor. It deals primarily with civil matters, obviously. And I think --

THE BAILIFF: Can you turn your microphone on, please?

MR. MESEREAU: Pardon me. I did look at the case, Your Honor, and I believe it clearly deals with civil matters. I think what the Court in our discussion has identified are really three issues to be analyzed. The Court did analyze the first issue, and that had to do with the question of whether this was admissible or not. We did do a little bit of research. I don’t know if the Court will allow me to even address that again, or if you would, I would refer the Court to a local case called Saling, which holds that, “Although it has been held that statements which merely narrate past events are not to be deemed to be made in furtherance of a conspiracy…,” and then it does say that the Court has to do a balancing analysis. The cite is 7 Cal.3d at 852.

So we would certainly renew our objection to the admission of the statement the witness purportedly wants to testify to.

Number two, the question is, does the shield law apply? And if the shield law is deemed by the Court to apply, I believe you still have to then do another balancing test to determine, in a criminal trial, if the defendant, to get a fair trial, has a right to crack what is being shielded.

And I would refer the Court to the case of Delaney vs. Superior Court, 50 Cal.3d 785. It’s a 1990 case. And you have a holding that, “To overcome a prima facie showing by a newsperson that he is entitled to withhold information under the shield law, a criminal defendant must show a reasonable possibility the information will materially assist his defense. A criminal defendant is not required to show that the information goes to the heart of his case.”

Now, I think the prosecutor has basically admitted that he thinks the purported testimony goes to the heart of his conspiracy allegation. He believes it goes to the heart of his conspiracy allegation as it appears in the Indictment and as it appears in the alleged overt acts in the Indictment, according to the prosecutor.

The question we have, or the question for the Court is, if he’s allowed to bring in this hearsay statement, or I think the Court considered it an admission as well, what are we allowed to do if we want to cross-examine him?

And I think it’s pretty clear that the witness and his attorney are attempting to preclude any type of examination into his relationships with the people he wants to testify about, relationships which he identified and articulated to two police officers. And I renew my claim that we would be severely hamstrung and prejudiced in our ability to examine him for the truth of what he is saying and his motives for saying what he's saying if we couldn't go into that.

So where we are right now, Your Honor, is, I think there's an argument that it's shielded based on the case the Court read, but there is a far stronger argument that the defense must go into that information if the witness is allowed to testify.

So perhaps the better solution, weighing all of these issues, is disqualify him from testifying, and then there is no argument that the defendant is being unfairly hamstrung in his ability to confront and cross-examine.

And I don't think -- one thing I will say to the Court, in his interview to the police, it appears as if he's giving all of the information. As I understand, a lot of these cases dealing with the shield law, they have to deal with information gathered by the reporter that the reporter doesn't want to disclose.

Here, you've got police interviews where basically the police appear to be saying nothing, giving him no information at all, and he is voluntarily allowing himself to be interviewed, near his place of business, about Schaffel, about Konitzer, et cetera, about the Arvizos.

THE COURT: But, see, that's the material he's gathered. It's not -- he wasn't gathering from the police, or if he tried, he apparently failed. He was -- he had already gathered his information, and he was telling the police what he'd gathered.

MR. MESEREAU: Uh-huh.

THE COURT: And --

MR. MESEREAU: But it does involve more than that, Your Honor. He admitted to the police working out of Schaffel's home for weeks, for example. Things like that are part of that interview and are part of the information his lawyer wants to shield. And it would just -- it would just eviscerate our ability to probe and test for credibility on cross-examination if we couldn't go into those relationships and that information.

THE COURT: Well, under Delaney, you have to show -- the defense has the burden of showing that the information, the unpublished information that he has, would materially assist the defense. And --

MR. MESEREAU: As I just said, Your Honor, I believe the holding is just if we show a reasonable possibility it will help us to assist the trier of fact in determining whether this witness should be believed or whether this witness has a motive to lie or a motive to gain financially by appearing in this trial, by saying what he's saying, given his past associations, his past admissions and statements to various people. If we can't go into that, we are severely prejudiced.

THE COURT: Well, what is the information that you claim that he has that would materially assist the defense? And it says you must make a specific showing that the nondisclosure would create a substantial probability of injury to the defendant's right to a fair trial. What is that information that you think is that valuable?

MR. MESEREAU: His relationships with Konitzer; when he met him; how many times he spoke to him. Did he have any financial connection with Konitzer? To his knowledge, was Konitzer involved with Schaffel when he was involved with Schaffel? What business relationship or financial relationships did he have with these two people? Why was he trying to get information from them? What did he intend to do with the information? When did he last talk to them? Did he, in fact, talk to the police voluntarily and give information to try and be part of this case, because he is a journalist and he can profit that way?

I mean, there are lots of questions that I would want to go into about his relationship --

THE COURT: There's lots of questions, but the -- what is the information you would get that would -- it's not the questions that prove the point. It’s the answers.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes. Yes. Well --

THE COURT: So what are you offering -- what are you proffering to me in the way of information he has? Not questions you have.

MR. MESEREAU: He’s had a falling-out with Schaffel, who he had a business relationship with. He worked out of his house for three weeks. He saw a contract at Schaffel’s saying Schaffel was going make millions of dollars. He was not allowed to participate in that. He had a falling-out with Konitzer. Is he now trying to basically assist the prosecution in incriminating Konitzer? He has a lot of relationships with these two characters that I would think we have to be able to go into to show his motive to lie.

THE COURT: You’re making an offer of proof that those facts are -- if he were forced to testify, he would say that he had not been able to enter into multi-million dollar deals with them, et cetera, et cetera?

MR. MESEREAU: Well, he may deny it. But if he does, I would explore it further and show he’s not telling the truth.

THE COURT: Okay. Well, what I want to know is what you know he has to say, not what you suspect from your questions.

MR. MESEREAU: Well, Your Honor, I’ve never interviewed him.

THE COURT: You have the police interview.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, I do.

THE COURT: That would be of some assistance, I would think.

MR. MESEREAU: Yes, Your Honor. He worked out of Schaffel’s residence for approximately three weeks. He learned that Schaffel was trying to enter into a contract with FOX for $7.5 million regarding the Rowe interview. He conducted the Rowe interview. He told the police the Rowe interview was not scripted. He apparently didn’t make any money off of the Rowe interview and apparently wanted to. He had -- he met Konitzer, who was also involved in the Rowe interview. He had a relationship with Konitzer. They apparently talked on a number of occasions. He was in Florida with these individuals.

THE COURT: I think what we should do is -- you know, some of those things may not be subject to the shield law. Some may. The District Attorney has finished his examination. I've made the ruling, which I'm not changing, on the state of mind that -- so now the question arises under Delaney.

So, in order to find out where we really are under Delaney, I think you have to ask the witness some questions, and we have to see which ones he answered and which ones he claims are unpublished and he has a privilege, and I'll have to look at the case from that standpoint.

MR. MESEREAU: Okay.

MS. SAGER: And the only thing I would like to add, Your Honor, is under the Delaney test, the test that --

THE COURT: You need to --

MS. SAGER: I'm sorry, Your Honor. I'm not used to using these microphones.

Under the Delaney test, it's not only the threshold test, which is what Mr. Mesereau presented, of whether the information sought is reasonably likely to materially assist the defense. That's simply the threshold.

Assume he gets past that. Then the Court engages in a balancing of all the other factors in Delaney. It's not simply enough that he meet that one test.

THE COURT: That's right. Then we look to see the balance, I agree.

So you may question.

MR. MESEREAU: Thank you, Your Honor.

Q. Mr. Drew, do you know someone named Marc Schaffel?

A. I did.

Q. You did?

A. Uh-huh.

Q. When did you first meet Marc Schaffel?

MS. SAGER: Your Honor, I'd object to the extent that reveals unpublished information. And also point out, Your Honor, that really has very little relevance to the one statement that Mr. Drew has been asked about by the prosecution that was published. You're now talking about an entirely different individual, not even the individual that he has spoken to that he talked about in his interview.

MR. MESEREAU: With all due respect to counsel, that's not true, Your Honor. I will link the relationship he has with Schaffel and Konitzer to the impeachment I'm trying to demonstrate. But I could ask the questions on Konitzer, and I'll see if he's going to assert the privilege to those. Maybe that would narrow it. Shall I do that, Your Honor?

THE COURT: Let me think. He's already testified that the -- that he was working for Konitzer when he did the interview, right?

MS. SAGER: Actually, I don't believe that's correct. I believe he testified he was working for a magazine and the interview was set up through Mr. Konitzer and Mr. Schaffel, not that he was working for them.

And in fact, I think he testified -- and counsel will correct me if I'm wrong. I believe he was asked was he paid anything by them, and he said no. Nor was he working for Mr. Jackson at any point.

THE COURT: All right. For purposes of where we are in the hearing, I'll sustain the shield objection on that question.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Do you know someone named Ronald Konitzer?

A. Yes.

Q. And how long have you known Ronald Konitzer?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor, to the extent that that's not been published, the extent of the length of their relationship or knowledge. Simply the fact that he knows him has been published.

THE COURT: Well, I think I need you to be more clear in your objection. You're saying "to the extent that that has not been published." I mean, you have to make a claim that that's not been published; that, "Your Honor, that has not been published," so I know that. I don't really know that, the way you're stating it.

MS. SAGER: I apologize, Your Honor, and the only reason I'm couching it the way I am is because Mr. Mesereau seems to believe that some things are publications which I don't agree with and the Court hasn't ruled on. There is an interview that does not contain the information that Mr. Mesereau is asking about and that's the publication that we're looking at. That information is not published, as far as I'm aware.

THE COURT: Well, I don't think you can limit it to that interview. I mean, if he's published it anywhere, in any magazine, or any news, or T.V., or -- you know, the definition really doesn't even involve media. If it's -- I guess if it's dissemination to the public, he could do it personally walking around the mall over there. So we have to -- when you claim he's being asked to reveal something that he hasn't published, it has to be he hasn't published it. Not that he didn't talk about it in the interview with the -- which interview are we talking about?

MS. SAGER: The Court TV interview, Your Honor.

THE COURT: The Court TV interview that he was interviewed on. That is not the only place that he could have published. He may have published it nowhere else, but we need to be clear. We aren't limiting this to that.

MS. SAGER: I understand, Your Honor. And so my objection is that Mr. Mesereau is calling for information which is unpublished within the meaning of the shield law.

THE COURT: All right. For purposes of this hearing right now at this point, just to see where we're going, I will sustain the claim under the shield law.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When did you first meet Ronald Konitzer?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor. That’s unpublished information.

THE COURT: All right. For purposes of this hearing right now, I’ll sustain that claim under the shield law.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Where did you first meet Ronald Konitzer?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: All right. And I’ll make the same ruling for purposes of this hearing.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you first met Ronald Konitzer, who else was present?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection under the shield law.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: When you first met Ronald Konitzer, in your mind, what was the purpose of the meeting?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor. Also that Mr. Drew’s state of mind is not at issue here.

MR. MESEREAU: I think it is on cross, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I’ll sustain it under the shield law.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: How many times have you met with Ronald Konitzer?

MS. SAGER: Same objection, Your Honor, as to unpublished information.

THE COURT: I’ll sustain the objection under the shield law.

Q. BY MR. MESEREAU: Have you ever discussed Michael Jackson with Ronald Konitzer?

MS. SAGER: And I would object to the extent that it seeks information that has not been published.

THE COURT: That’s an insufficient objection. I’ll overrule it.
